napped on Sunday morning. In upper right picture, members of the missing man's family anxiously await news of him. Shown are (left to right) his father, MacArthur Woods; a nephew, Clinton Harrison; his mother Mrs. Woods; brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Woods; sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Lewis. Children are nieces Vera Mae Woods, Sally Mae Woods and Leon, a nephew.

believes the shot was fired by rabbit hunters. Didn't know he was shot until he got home. (Center photo) shows Police Chief Ed Mullins pointing to spot on mattress where blood

Dramatic Death Schedule Last Rites For Leader, C. Powell

CHARLES POWELL, SR.

Funeral services for one of Memphis' most widely-known religious figures, Charles Powell, sr., who lived at 1802 Lamar, were scheduled for Nov. 8, following his sudden and dramatic death last Friday night.

Mr. Powell suffered a fatal heart attack while driving his car on Capital st. around 9:40 p.m. Friday night.

An employee for 16 years at the Thomas Dry Goods Store on Thomas st., Mr. Powell was enroute home from work, and had just stopped on Capital st. to permit a passenger, Mrs. Jessie Mae Jefferson, of 1263 Capital, to get out of the automobile.

When he started to leave, Mrs. Jefferson said she noticed the 61-year-old man seemed to be in distress. The car began swerving across the street with increasing speed. It crashed into two parked vehicles on Capital. Mrs. Jefferson called for a bystander to help go to the stricken man's aid. DEAD AT WHEEL.

When they reached the damaged car Mr. Powell was slumped over the steering wheel of his auto dead. Ambulance attendants and police listed the cause of his death as a heart attack. He had previously been in apparent good health.

Mr. Powell was well-known in Memphis, where he had resided virtually all his life after moving here from Germantown where he was born. He was a life-long member of Grady Chapel CME church. For six years he served as president of Laymen's Activities for some 12 churches in the South Memphis District of the C. M. E. church.

He was married and the father of four children. His son, S.D-1 Charles Powell, jr., is a veteran of more than 20 years service in the U. S. Navy. His other children include: Robert Powell, Harry F. Powell and Mrs. Addie Mae Martin, all of Memphis. His widow, Mrs. Pansy Powell, along with other relatives, also survive him. He was brother-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bailey, proprietors of the Lorraine Motel.

Funeral services were slated for Nov. 8, at 2:30 p.m., at Mt. Pisgah CME church. The wake was Wednesday night at Grady Chapel. S. W. Qualls & Co., officiated.

End Bias In Army's Educational Program

Sen. Herbert H. Lehman announced in Washington last week he had been notified that the Department of the Army has abolished segregated off-duty education courses conducted on Southern military installations under contracts between the Army and private and public educational institutions.

Word of the Army's action reached Sen. Lehman in a letter from Carter L. Burgess, Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower, Personnel and Reserve.

The New York Senator first questioned the Defense Department's policies on off-duty education last February when he learned that Negro airmen at Donaldson Air Force Base were being denied access to courses conducted on the base by the University of South Carolina. Later, Sen. Lehman learned that similar restrictions were being applied to Negro soldiers at Fort Jackson, Columbia, S. C., an Army installation. In releasing his correspondence with Defense Department officials and copies of a Department memorandum and order, Sen. Lehman made this statement:

"I am pleased that long uncovering facts relating to discrimination against Negro military personnel by educational institutions receiving Federal funds have now resulted in the elimination of this shameful phase of racial segregation. Racial discrimination is a national disgrace in and of itself. It is all the more intolerable when schools subsidized by Defense Department funds extend the prejudice to men in uniform on the very installations where they serve."

"I am advised that a number of Southern military bases have integrated courses in operation, in cases where educational institutions have refused to enroll Negro service personnel, military authorities have been authorized to take remedial action. This means that no segregated classes, university extension or otherwise, will be permitted by the Army."

"The first instance of discrimination in this area came to my attention 10 months ago. It involved the inability of Negro personnel at Donaldson Air Force Base, Greenville, S. C., to take on-the-base courses conducted by the University of South Carolina. While the information I have received from the Department of Defense includes only the orders and reports of remedial action taken by the Department of the Army, I am hopeful that similar action has been or will be taken by the Department of the Air Force."

"In every instance, military personnel should be encouraged to take advantage of these off-duty educational courses in their own and the country's interest. But we cannot tolerate the recent practices of limiting on-base education to white personnel and subjecting Negro servicemen to segregated or in some instances to no educational opportunities at all."

"I am releasing the background letters and the material received from the Department of Defense to emphasize the need for paying constant attention to the protection of the rights of all the young men who serve in our armed forces."

"I shall continue to pursue this matter as long as I hold the office of U. S. Senator. All the facts are not yet available, but I shall continue to keep a close watch and to press for all necessary action to insure that the practice of discrimination and segregation is not tolerated in the armed service."

Tennessee State Whips Southern

Next Saturday evening, Nov. 10, the undefeated Tigers tackle Alcorn in Memphis at the Bluff City Classic.

Casts 1st Vote In Her 83 Years

DUNN, N. C.—(INS)—Mrs. Ella Whitaker voted yesterday for the first time in her 83 years. She said she had been tempted many times before to vote, just never got around to it.

Why did she finally vote? "I just like that boy," she said, explaining her vote for President Eisenhower.

Fine, Hold Mixed Couple

Police arrested a white man and a Negro woman, both in the nude, at the Negro woman's residence in a respectable neighborhood here last week.

Nabbed were Aleck Peter Poulos, white, of 1806 Peabody and Annie Johnson, of 1547 Wilson, Negro.

Each was fined $51 on disorderly conduct charges and held to State by Judge Beverly Boushe. They will face the State on open charges of open and notorious lewdness.

According to police the two were caught in the act of intimate relations.

Neighbors report that Annie Johnson is the mother of four children, two of them of pale complexion.

Information about the mixed couple was given to police by indignant neighbors.

Adam Beats Two Seeking His Seat

By TED COLEMAN

REP. ADAM POWELL

NEW YORK — Adam Clayton Powell, preacher-politico and the most controversial figure in American politics today, has done it again.

He was re-elected to his seat in the Congress of the United States by a majority Democratic vote in the Sixteenth District of New York, which comprises a large section of Harlem.

He was opposed by Joseph A. Bailey, popular New York attorney on the Republican ticket and Forgingham Taylor, Liberal party candidate.

Neither was able to put much of a dent in the Tammany Hall clamp on the vote in the Negro belt.

Powell's switch of support to President Eisenhower's campaign for the Presidency caused him to lose the blessings of his party, but there was little they could do about him, at this time.

He was on the slate and reaped the benefits of the party's bid for victory in the Harlem area. However, it is believed that he has committed political hara-kari by his latest move.

The paradoxical situation caused by the Congressman's act, is also attributed to a larger percentage of Negro votes going to President Eisenhower.

Powell has a large group of faithful followers in Abyssinian Baptist church which he pastors in the heart of Harlem. The church has a membership of nearly 5,000. His campaigners were "preaching" the method of "preaching" the ticket.

Powell has served in the U. S. Congress since 1945.

Judge Frank M. Scarlett ruled last Friday that their removal from the voting list was done according to law.

The jurist declared there was no evidence to show conspiracy between the registration board and the challenger, John C. Parker of Patterson, Ga.

In defending the voting procedure, County Atty. S. Foster Memory said:

"It is true that the challenger challenged only Negroes, but the registration board had nothing to do with it."

He added that local vote registration board officials observed the law to the letter.

Shortly after the judge's ruling, officials blasted a Justice Department taking the Negroes off the voting list without investigating the matter.

Memory also expressed anger over the FBI agents who were here to probe the situation.

Before the recent ruling, Warren Olney III, head of the Department of Justice's criminal section, had accused Pierce County of being one of three southern counties that his department planned to probe because it was disfranchising Negroes.

"In each instance where we can show a person was denied his right to vote because of his color, we intend to prosecute," Olney had said.

When he made his ruling that the 130 Negroes had not been disfranchised illegally, Judge Scarlett explained that Parker challenged the qualifications of 300 Negroes in Pierce County as provided by Georgia law and that the board followed the law in setting up hearings for the challenged voters.

He added that only 70 Negroes showed up for the hearings and that of that number only 15 were disqualified from voting.

Va. Village Casts 3 For Ike, 1 For Adlai

WASH. WOODS, Va. — (INS)—This little Virginia fishing village quickly completed its ballot tabulation, giving President Eisenhower three votes and Adlai Stevenson, one.

DR. HOLLIS F. PRICE, president of Le Moyne college, Memphis, delivered the Founders' Day address at Talladega college Sunday, November 4.

Dixie Burns Crosses But Negro Votes

ATLANTA — A wave of cross-burnings and claims of the strongest Negro vote since reconstruction days highlighted southern elections yesterday.

At Greenville, S. C., five crosses were burned over the weekend near Negro churches and schools. Other fiery symbols of the Ku Klux Klan were reported in the Columbia area. They were obviously meant as warnings to Negroes to stay away from the polls.

In Atlanta, meanwhile, the Southern Regional Council said a survey indicated about one and a quarter million Negroes were eligible to vote in Dixie in Tuesday's presidential election. That is an increase over 1952 in every southern state except Mississippi.

One Negro leader, managing editor of the Atlanta Daily World, declared his own survey showed more southern Negroes voted for President Eisenhower.

Gordon said that earlier the Negro vote this year could have been decisive in some states where the race between the President and Adlai Stevenson is particularly close.

SOCIETY Merry Go-Round

By Marjorie I. Ulen

Indian Summer continues to lull us with its loveliness. . . and even the appearance of another November has not dispelled the brightness of the golden days that have been ours this autumn. Lest we forget though, we'll awaken just any morning now and find the cold weird beauty of frost covering the remnants of the glorious summer. This week too, the people voted — or should have — thereby putting an end to the tumult and din of campaign oratory in a presidential election year. We are concerned also with not only how many voted — but how well!

During the last stretch of the race for votes, Memphis was honored with the presence of several national and one international personality as guest speakers for various groups. It is regrettable that there is so much apathy in our midst, to the extent that audiences have been embarrassingly small. One can't help but feel that these speakers leave here with a rather dim view of our fair city and its citizenry. Maybe we need to take a long, hard look at ourselves and especially our reactions to vital issues of our day and times.

Members of the Achievement Award Committee of Omega Psi Psi fraternity are to be commended for selecting Jesse Turner, cashier of our Tri-State Bank of Memphis, to receive the 1956 Omega Achievement Award. Mr. Turner has made himself seen, heard and felt in finance, politics and civil and social circles since his return to our community following his service in the Army in completion of his work at the University of Chicago. His name is reckoned with respectfully in the banking and accounting circles of the Bluff City. . . and he is fearless in taking a stand on matters pertaining to civil rights. To Mr. Turner, his charming wife, Allegra and their children, we doff our hats! He is a young man who stands as a symbol of inspiration and hope to the thousands of young folk in our midst who often must search long for someone worthy of emulation.

At the Omega Cocktail party which we briefly touched upon last week, the question, "Who's likely to receive the reward?" was the burning question of the evening. Anyhow, folk were glad of the opportunity to again enjoy the convivial fun. . . the inane chatter. . . the questions and answers left hanging in the air. . . as they trekked to the bar — or spied someone and remembered a thought left hanging (you know where), the last cocktail gathering, of course!

Be this as it may, . . . cocktail parties are wonderful devices for letting down one's hair and forgetting the many cares of the day. Among those out to meet the honorable Frederic E. Morrow, the Omega speaker of the following day, were Henry and Myrtle White, Dr. W. H. and Grace Young, Dr. J. E. Hawkins of Forrest City, Ark., and Miss Vernelle Tolson of Newport, Ark. Dorsey and Fanny West, Mildred and Onzie Horne, Dr. Vasco and Maxine Smith, Marilyn Watkins, Emogene and Alex Wilson, Martine Haynes, Mrs. Anthony Jones of Holly Springs, Miss. Maceo and Harriet Walker, Johnetta Kelso, Marion Johns and Jewel Gentry, John and Rita Olive, John and Anita Brinkley, and John's brother, Atty. Percy Brinkley of Baltimore, Md. Sallie and Caffrey Bartholomew, Mary and Houston Collier, The A. L. Plaxicox, Dr. Theron and Nell Northcross, Dr. E. Frank and Jeannette White, Atty. Russell and Laurie Sugarmon.

Alex and Estelle Dumas, Dr. Fred and Margaret Rivers, Dr. Oscar and Jewel Speight, Melvin Conley, Floyd and Lil Campbell, Augusta and Harry Cash, Elmer Henderson, Rita Porter, The A. W. Willises and the Thomas Willises, Joe and Pauletta Atkins, Howard and Joyce Pinkston, Dr. "Ike" and Neets Watson, the graduate basileus, . . . who was on the ball every second seeing to the comfort and pleasure of his guests. . . also, Bill and Carrie Nabors, Lawr. . . and Ernest Westley, C. C. and Helen Sawyer, B. G. and Ida Olive, Peter and Leath Jones, the Joe Lee Nelsons, Clarence and Lou Pope and Jerry Pope, the Willard Bells, the H. A. Gilliams, . . . and the very charming Mary Lee Martin of Detroit, with whom I enjoyed the opportunity of catching up on folk and events in the Motor City. Mary and Margaret have long been synonymous names historically — and "proof of that pudding" is the fact that they are childhood friends from their hometown, Dallas, Texas, and college classmates at Flisk U. There were others too, and like I've said previously, one does become side-tracked when so much genuine gaiety abounds, particularly the kind provided by members of Omega that night.

WHAT THEY DID RECENTLY
Mrs. Irene Riley was the hostess to the last regular meeting of the Patroness Board meeting of Sigma Gamma Rho sorority. Mrs. Elizabeth Stokely was welcomed as a new member. After the business session, Mrs. Riley, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Mary Brooks and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Helen Riley, served a delicious ice course.

The Orleans hotel was the scene of the Saturday week meeting of Semper Fidelis club. . . and though hostess Adalide Settles had to leave town due to an accident involving her nephew who died Wednesday morning, her friends and club-mates Nellie Humes and Ardena Herndon carried on for her in her absence. Novel place cards were the tea towels bearing the name of each member and guest. Scrumptious fried chicken and delicious accompanying fare delighted all. Prizes of a beautiful gray pocketbook, a multicolored umbrella, an envelope pocketbook and a bracelet and necklace set were won by the lucky ones. Guests at the lovely party were Willa Dean Jackson and Aretta J. Polk.

Costume balls have become the source of lots of fun. . . and the trend now is that the majority of guests do costume at the elaborate affairs. In this regard, the e Voguettes are in the process of making plans for their annual Mardi Gras to be held at the Flamingo Room on Dec. 21, at which time the introduction of new members of the Voguettes will be made during the intermission. This year the theme will be "In the Orient", with costumes and decorations centered accordingly. Prizes are to be given to the guests wearing the best costumes. Keep your ears tuned for new developments for this pre-holiday affair.

The Su Amigo Bridge club met Saturday week at the Gay Hawk with Lorraine Phillips as hostess. Members present were Minnie Sanders, president; Mamie Dillard, Mattie Jackson, Willie Mae Alexander, Marie Smith, Juanita Allen and Mrs. Larence Bridges. Leathier Gallion was absent because of illness. Prizes were won by members Mamie Dillard and Willie Mae Alexander, and guest Frances Hassel. Other guests present were Delores Scott, Margaret Mosely and Gwen Featherstone. Miss Minnie Sanders will serve as hostess for the November meeting.

THOSE INTERESTING PERSONS
The presence of the Honorable Edith Sampson at last Friday night's Democratic public meeting at Clayborn Temple touched off a wave of social events in her honor. That she is a VIP of no small means, present to hear her speak were Mayor Edmund Orloff, Atty. Guy Joyner, Mrs. Frances Coe of the Board of Education and Mrs. Ann Hickey, another political figure locally. Mrs. Sampson, a world traveler, orator, lawyer and social worker who formerly served as alternate delegate to the U. N. was sponsored by the Democrats of Shelby County under the direction of Dr. J. E. Walker.

A large motorcade and a sound truck greeted Mrs. Sampson at the airport. She is a Zeta and Zeta basileus Gloria Callian and Zetas Utoka Qualls, Bertha Ray, Lucille Rhine Woods and Bernice Caloway were on hand to greet her. Mrs. Sampson was the house guest of her long-time friends, Dr. and Mrs. Julian Kelso. Courtesies were extended by a local business and created clubs, the Zetas and the Links, organization in which Mrs. Sampson holds membership. She was the guest of the Democratic group, under the direction of Mrs. Jana Porter, at dinner at Tony's Inn, appeared and spoke to the Links as their meeting which was held at the same place, with Mrs. Sallie Bartholomew as hostess.

Links present and enjoying the vital comments, observations and suggestions passed on by their illustrious member were Mrs. S. S. Rivers, Mrs. Leland Atkins, Mrs. Philip Booth, Mrs. Floyd Campbell, Miss Jewel Gentry, Mrs. W. H. Young, Mrs. Hollis Price, Mrs. Charles Tarpley, Mrs. C. C. Sawyer, Mrs. C. S. Young, Mrs. Julian Kelso, Mrs. Robert Lewis, Jr., and Mrs. LeRoy Young. The group has completed plans for the coming National Line Week celebration, and for their 4th party scheduled for Nov. 15 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Lewis, Jr.

RATCLIFFE, the Pittsburgh Courier News Editor, former LeMaynite and journalist who got his first taste of printers ink right here in Memphis, has been visiting with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ratcliffe on So. 6,950 Get Help From Travelers Aid Group

A group of 6,950 residents of Memphis who were in trouble away from home were among the 1,032,418 persons who benefited from the nationwide network of Travelers Aid services last year, it was revealed last week by James M. Breytspraak, president of the Travelers Aid society of Memphis.

This information was drawn from the latest Home Town Study (Copy Herewith) compiled by the National Travelers Aid Association to show the places or residence of people who came to any Travelers Aid Society for assistance last year. The Memphis Society, which is a member of the national association, was one of the 108 member organizations participating in the nationwide tabulation.

The overall study showed that 7,270 separate American cities, in addition to places in 89 foreign lands, were named as their home towns by a group of over 1,000,000 persons who turned to Travelers Aid for help in 1955.

Residents of Memphis were among the 25,079 persons from 172 communities in Tennessee included in this group.

A person's crochet work is as individual as one's signature. Just as no two signatures are alike, no two samples of needlework made by different crocheters are identical. Though you and your neighbor may be making the same item with the same materials, differences may be seen in the joinings, the finishings, the twist of a stitch. Because a little of your personality is included in everything you crochet, your crochet makes cherished gifts. A gift made by you represents time, care and thoughtfulness to the receiver.

CROCHET FOR REMEMBRANCE

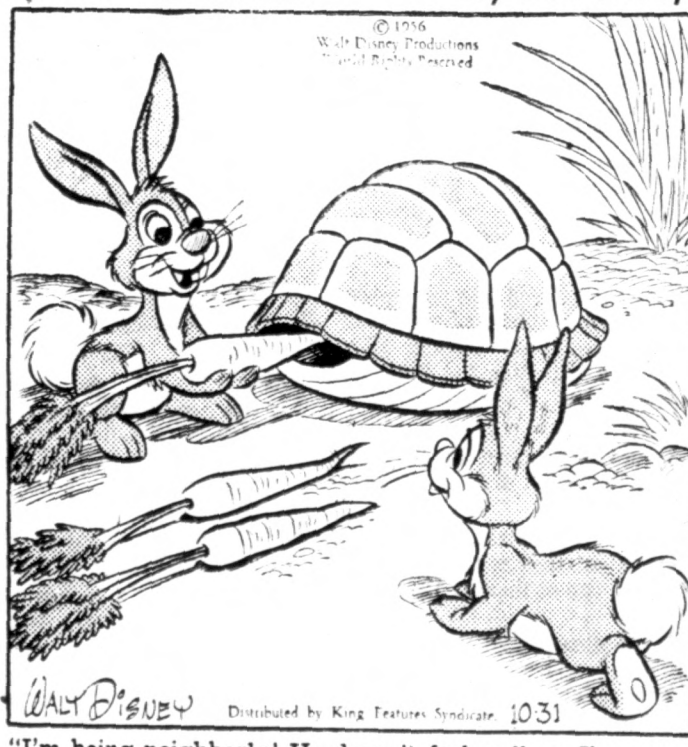

Rare is the festive occasion that cannot be celebrated with a crocheted gift. Since the recent introduction of gold- and silver-twined cotton threads, even 25th and 50th wedding anniversaries can be aptly remembered with crocheted. For births and birthdays, showers and graduations, crocheted apparel made from the specially-constructed crocheted wool or super fingering yarn are perfect presents. Double-thick cotton makes up gift toys to delight the children, household items for housewarming parties, fashion accessories to please girls and women from six to sixty.

Crochet serves as a cheer-up tonic for invalids, too, who will appreciate receiving flattering bedjackets such as the one featured today.

CHARMING BEDSIDE MANNER

Whether you have a friend who likes to loiter in bed reading or one who is ordered to bed during a recuperating period, this lovely jacket holds the promise of making her resting hours more pleasant. The bedjacket is feminine and attractive, crocheted of warm but lightweight wool in a lacy shell stitch. Black velvet ribbon is laced through the bottom of the short bodice and tied in a bow at the bottom of the deep V-neckline. The full sleeves, seamless shoulder line and easy-fitting bodice adapt to almost any size. To obtain the directions for making a CROCHETED BED-JACKET, simply send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Needlework Department of this newspaper with your request for Leaflet No. PC 8238.

Better Farmers Is Goal Of Supervisors Confabs

Better ways of helping colored farm families to improve their farms and their homes are to be discussed in two area meetings of supervisors of Negro extension work in 15 Southern States, P. H. Stone of the Federal Extension Service administrative staff announced this week.

The meetings are to be held Nov. 8 and 9 at A. T. college, Greensboro, N. C., and Dec. 5 and 6 in Texarkana, Texas. The extension supervisors of Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, and Alabama are to meet in Greensboro, and those of Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas will meet in Texarkana.

These supervisors, who have under their direction nearly 800 farm and home agents, will seek to provide better assistance to colored farm families by improving their own supervision of the agents under them.

In addition to considering problems in supervision, they will also discuss the Soil Bank, the Rural

THE JACKSON SCENE

By Mrs. Anna Lee Cooke

Extra beautiful weather and a day of Irvin Wendell Howell, hundreds of energy filled spectators played a great part in the big homecoming celebration of the heroic action in saving a seven-75th Anniversary of Lane college, year-old play mate from drowning. Yes, we lost the game to Miles in a Paris "Crash" Young Howell college by a score of 26 to 7 but it is twelve years old. Loyal Lanites refuse to let that merli badge was presented dampen their spirits for the four to him by R. H. Woodson, chair-remaining games.

Leading up to the week end of celebration, several charming young ladies worked diligently aspiring for the title of Miss Dragonette. The contest came to a climax with over $1400 being raised. Thursday night homecoming activities began with the Corona "Crash" on Lane ave., with Mrs. Es- college Gymnasium.

MISS DRAGONETTE
The young lady proudly receiving the crown and the honor of "Miss Dragonette" was Miss Carol Fullwood, a junior from Detroit, Mich. Her court consisted of Miss Marlene Davis, senior from Humboldt, Tenn., first alternate; Miss Ouida Valux, a freshman of Jackson second alternate; and Miss Crissie Fisher, a sophomore from Alamo, Tenn., third alternate.

Friday night was the big Pig Skin Review and Barn Fire on the campus. The Pig Skin Review, which consisted of skits centered around the theme "The Diamond Shines for Lane, Lights Out for Miles" was won by the Freshman Class presentation.

Saturday was the big Alum-Inc., sponsored the first in a series of programs "Tell Us Do-fee and d'auhtins in the B. tor" in the reading room of the Tigreet Science building beginning J. K. Daniels Library on the campus at 9:30 a.m., one of Lane college last Sunday. Countess Advises: Use Love In Menu

By NORA W. MARTIN

PARIS — Good cooking is a woman's passport to a happy family life.

That's the firm conviction of Countess Marie-Pierre De Toulouse-Lautrec known in Paris as "Mapie" (diminutive for Marie- Pierre.) Her husband, Count Guy De Toulouse-Lautrec is Command- ing Admiral of French Naval forces in the Pacific and the great-grand-nephew of the famous French impressionist painter.

The countess is a cooking expert in the best French tradition. Under the title of "The Recipes of Mapie" her first cookbook has just been published in Paris. She also is food adviser for a popular weekly woman's magazine.

But the countess is by no means an ordinary cooking expert. Her family being a member of the high French society, she often tries out new tasty "tricks" in her kitchen.

Her attractive and strong personality — she is a vivacious, elegant tall brunette with four grown-up children — is closely tied with the feminine and original side of her character.

Find the countess attending a fashion show at Dior, later discussing a recipe at Maxim's and then helping one of her children to get ready for a trip to America. In between you may find her at home trying out a new and different way to make an omelet with truffles.

She always wears a hat, even in her own kitchen.

"I like hats," she said, "and I don't see why I shouldn't wear one all the time." She may take off her shoes to be more comfortable but she insists upon a hat . . . and no apron.

Here are some of her ideas on cooking.

"If a wife isn't a good cook her husband may get into the habit of not coming home for meals. She also must be able to whip up tasty dishes on short notice for unexpected guests.

"You can't be a good cook without love. Love for your husband, for your children or the friends and guests for whom you prepare a meal. It is the love you have for them which makes your cooking a success."

In the opinion of the countess, good cooking and the art of arranging flowers are as basic, important and normal for the woman of today as they were 50 years ago. And, contrary to belief, "French cuisine" is not complicated.

"Many simple things," she advised, "but make them perfect. To become a good cook you must practice, just as a pianist must do his scales."

For her new cookbook the countess took inspiration from the old handwritten recipes in the family, which she had adapted and simplified for modern life. She plans to have the book translated into English by her son, 19-year-old Charles Constantin, who recently returned from college in the United States.

INFORMAL MEAL — EASY TO PREPARE

Football and cool, sparkling fall days seem to suggest informal suppers with easily prepared menus. One of the simplest, most ap- petizing dishes to serve for such occasions is a steaming, well se- soned oysterstew. Serve it at the table from a chafing dish, a soup tureen, or a large casserole set in a warmer.

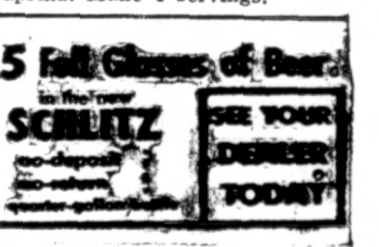

This nutritious soup, made fas- tly with half-and half and butter, is completely satisfying as the main course if served with hot toasted slices of French bread sprinkled with grated Parmesan or Romano cheese, a crisp, tart tart tossed salad and quick and easy ice cream for dessert.

Though soups know no season, they say the time to really enjoy oysters is when there is an "R" in the month. While oysters may now be purchased frozen the year around, we can enjoy their juicy, fresh goodness during the gener- ous string of "R" months ahead. And for oysters at their best cook over low heat only until the edges curl and serve promptly.

DISTINCTIVE FLAVOR
The distinctive flavor of oysters blend well with the bland flavor of the milk which supplies addition- al protein as well as calcium and other valuable nutrients to the meal.

EASY OYSTER STEW
1 pint oysters
1-4 cup butter
1 quart half-and-half
1/4 teaspoon salt
Few grains pepper
4 teaspoons butter
Paprika
Drain oysters; save liquor. Melt butter in saucepan; Add oysters. Cook slowly until edges curl. Heat half-and-half; add oysters, oyster liquor, salt, Pepper and butter, pour into bowls, top each with paprika. Make 4 servings.

100th ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

Booker T. Washington Centennial

The action of the 84th Congress of the United States, appropriating $225,000 to celebrate the centennial of Booker T. Washington, lends opportunity to reappraise the great educator's contribution to Negro advancement.

To properly understand Booker T. Washington's historical role, it must be appreciated that he came to the forefront during the lowest ebb of race relations in America. At that time the Negro faced almost complete denial of the great promise of freedom brought by the Civil War and Reconstruction, and seemed facing extermination.

What the Negro needed in the 1890's was time and weapons to combat the evil influence of his enemies and detractors. He needed reassurance of his potentialities, opportu- nities and a program for realizing them.

Booker T. Washington supplied both. His diplomatic approach to race relations stayed the hand of his enemies and revived the sympathy of his friends. It was time for compromise, rather than attack; time for reorganization and preparation for coping with the harsh period ahead.

There being no place for the Negro to go, Washington advised him to stay where he was, to prepare himself to deal with the problems of his environment, and to make a truce with the surrounding white people. This meant discipline, education, sobriety, health, industry and thrift.

The results of this campaign became universally evident, not only in the growth and expansion of the school which he founded but also in the organization of self-help efforts which redounded to Negro's advantage and made him a more valuable citizen in the community.

It is therefore entirely fitting that in 1956, the centennial of the birth of Booker T. Washington in a slave cabin in Franklin County, Virginia that all friends of the Negro should extend themselves to publicize the philosophy and programs of this inspired man who did so much to help resolve the racial conflict in America.

Under the sponsorship of the Booker T. Washington Centennial Commission of Booker Washington Birthplace, Va., headed by the redoubtable Sidney J. Phillips, 1956-1957 should bring to the attention of America as never before the contribution of one of its greatest sons.

Postal Union Head Hits Federal Body

Seeks Law To For New Group

WASHINGTON, D. C. — "When the Civil Service Commission decides that the Commission is a functionary of the White House, then we have indeed gone far afield from its original concept," James B. Cobb, national president of the National Alliance of Postal Employees, declared in a speech to the delegates, postal personnel and leading civic figures at the opening meeting of their 10th District area convention.

The demand for recognition of federal employees unions was the major topic for discussion at the meeting.

Pointing sharply to the evils of the Commission's interpretations of its function, which originally was to safeguard the career service from plundering by political parties, he gave instances of hardships endured by postal workers.

"The incidents," he said, "make it imperative that some balancing machinery be established in law to correct the posture of public officials and especially those in the U. S. Postal Service in their relationship with employe problems."

The Postal Alliance president cited cases of abuse which went contrary to the procedure set down by the Department for meeting the requests of employes.

He said, "that historically the American people through the Labor Relations Act of 1935 had set the climate in which management and employes should function."

"The opposition to the proposal," he further stated, "stems from the determination to retain the absolute life and death power over federal workers. Under this system the standards of conduct vary from area to area and official to official."

"In this vein," he added, "administrative laws and regulations must not, like an accordion, be expanded and contracted to fill the whim or will or particular individuals."

The audience heard sharp criticism of statements made by agency representatives to a Congressional Committee studying such a measure in the closing days of the last session. In his criticism, Cobb flatly contradicted the statement made by officials that the union recognition measure was not needed.

Further substantiating his position, the Postal union official cited the majority opinion of Chief Justice Charles Evan Hughes in the case of the National Relations Board v. Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation in which he wrote that unions are essential to give laborers opportunity to deal on equality with their employer.

The Convention chairman, District president William F. Cook, assisted by branch president, Charles Mothershead, of the Golden Gate PTS branch and branch president Raymond L. Ingram of the San Francisco branch guided the business of the branch to its conclusion.

Then the ministers went to the Fifth Ward Baptist church where Ashley Dabbs, another candidate for mayor, stated his platform and his views about having Negro policemen, firemen and nurses, etc. He, Mr. Dabbs, stated that he was in favor of the plan, and saw no reason why Clarksville should not have them if they were qualified, good citizens and came well recommended. A & I Tigers Get Set For Bluff City Classic

WILL THRILL — The 10 outstanding Tennessee State University Tigers will be among those who are expected to thrill a capacity crowd at Melrose Stadium Saturday evening, Nov. 10, when Tennessee State tangles with Alcorn college in the Bluff City

Known as "Mr. Outside" and is one of Coach Howard Gentry's touchdown twins of Orange, Texas, he will receive the 1955 Blue City Classic's most valuable player award trophy. The trophy will be awarded to Hines during the half-time ceremony. It will be the second award to a Tennessee State player. Lincoln's Little All-American Leo Lewis received the first MVP award in 1953 and Tennessee's

By DICK HYLAND

(Los Angeles Times)

There is a 20-year-old at UCLA who will play against the Cougars in the Coliseum whom any man would be proud to call "son." He is a very soft-spoken individual. In high school he was named to the National Honor Society, which is based strictly on scholarship. He is majoring in chemistry and specializing in quantitative analysis at UCLA.

During the football season and throughout the school year he studies from 7 p.m. to midnight, and all day on Sundays. This last summer he worked for Douglas Aircraft, in the chemistry department.

Athletically, his coach, Jim Myers, says of him, "Last year he was one of our most outstanding sophomores. This season he is bigger, stronger, shows more poise and has gained confidence in his ability to do a job."

A CHAMPION

Athletically, too, Bruin Guard Esker Harris is our Los Angeles Times Golden Gloves Heavyweight Champion. At 20 years old, he had been boxing for seven years. Esker Harris went to Melrose High school in Memphis, Tenn. his father started him boxing in grammar school so that he could learn to "take care of himself." It is stated that Chemist Harris has learned to do just that. His record as an amateur boxer is astonishing:

1950, eighth grade, 14 years old: Won Tri-State 118-pound championship. 1951, ninth grade, 15 years old: Won Tri-State 35 pound title. 1952, 10th grade, 16 years old: Won Tri-State 147-pound title and was runner-up in the AAU tournament. 1953, 11th grade, 17 years old: Won Tri-State 147-pound title, won AAU (Southern) title, was semi-finalist in St. Louis Golden Gloves.

1954, 12th grade, 18 years old: Won Tri-State 160-pound title, won Jackson AAU, finalist at St. Louis Golden Gloves, 1955, UCLA Fresh, 19 years old: At 170 pounds, finalist in Los Angeles Times Golden Gloves light-heavyweight division. 1956, UCLA soph, 20 years old: Won Western Golden Gloves heavyweight title, weighing 187 pounds. He was named the outstanding boxer in The Times tournament.

PICKED UP 31 POUNDS

Harris reported to Freshman Football Coach Johnny Johnson weighing 170 pounds. Today, two years later, he weighs 201. There is not an ounce of fat on him. He explains his weight gain by saying, "When I was in prep school, I did not gain weight naturally like other athletes. I had to stay in training for boxing. Now that I am a heavyweight I don't have to worry. I expect to go to 210-215 next season and believe my best playing weight sometime in the future will be about 225."

While Harris was doing that prep school boxing, he found time to letter also in football and track and make senior class president. He is third in a family of seven and says, despite his own record, that his younger brother George, who is quarterback for Howard university in Washington, D. C., has all the brains in the family. He, too, is a chemistry major.

When he was graduated from Prep school Harris wanted to go to some college that had a good chemistry department. Tommy Photo, now Oregon State's coach in Memphis told him about UCLA. "I considered the opportunity to come to a school such as UCL would more than make up for the extra money I could have gotten for going to other schools."

HIS IDOL

Harris is supposedly one of the Bruins who received $10 a week at Westwood to equalize different conference cost of living levels. While the list of those who received this amount is unknown and unpublished, the Pacific Coast Conference has taken the peculiar stand that everyone at Westwood is guilty until proven innocent.

Harris says that his idol and the greatest football player he has seen is Jim Salsbury, Bruin All-American guard in 1954. Characteristically, he says his greatest athletic thrill came last year when Jim Decker kicked a last-minute field goal to win the Washington game. Harris had nothing to do with this. He was on the sideline at the time. "It's my greatest thrill, just the same," he says.

A team player, a great boy, is Harris. If he can just develop Salsbury's drive and consistent aggressiveness on the football field, he could become as good as his idol.

Plenty Turkeys Now Available

Thanksgiving is not too far away, but you need not wait until then to treat your family to a turkey dinner.

Because of a record crop — 76 million turkeys — the U. S. Department of Agriculture expects market supplies in November to be 18 percent larger than in November a year ago. Many food stores are already featuring turkey. Leo W. Smith of the Department's Food Distribution Division said.

This year homemakers are likely to find more turkeys bearing the federal inspection and grade markings, as more poultry processors are using USDA's inspection and grading services. The inspection mark means that the bird has passed USDA inspection for wholesomeness and was prepared under exacting sanitary conditions. The marking can be identified by the wording "Inspected for Wholesomeness by the U. S. Department of Agriculture."

Another federal marking that may be found on ready to cook turkey is the shield-shaped U. S. grade, which is a guide to quality. Any federally graded poultry must first have been inspected for wholesomeness.

About one-third of the sky visible from the United States has been photographed and recorded out to a distance of approximately 350 million light years, it is now estimated.

LAUDERDALE HIGH

The following students of the Lauderdale High school under the supervision of Prof. Levi Moore gave some helpful and interesting demonstrations Oct. 2 at the Lauderdale County Teachers in service training.

The teachers were organizing a course of study for science and conservation. The students set the stage for a conducive atmosphere of learning. Mr. Moore, along with the students are to be commended for transferring their learning to a doing level. A coverage of the in-service training will be found in next week's paper.

Prof. A. H. Lockard, Mrs. Ruby Winston, Prof. W. S. Taylor, Prof. L. O. Gillespie and Mrs. Anna B. Clay served on a panel during a program conducted at Morning Star church Oct. 28 with Mrs. Anna B. Clay serving as chairman. Subject: What Can Be Done to Bring a Better Relation Between Us As A Race. Mrs. Clay introduced the subject and presented the panelists. The following points were emphasized by the speakers: Mrs. C. I. a y stressed cooperation, love and faith. Prof. Lockard stressed transformation into a new character, stable conviction which will cause stable actions at all times and places, producing some impressions, a need for lifting our moral and social standards.

Mrs. Winston was a substitute for Prof. F. Taylor and she is to be commended for her contribution especially with such short notice. She stressed a need for vision and re-emphasized several points previously mentioned. Prof. W. S. Taylor was substitute for his father and Prof. Taylor began by letting the audience know that he could not fill his father's place. Mr. Taylor stressed — Deceit as an obstacle to better relationship, unless there is no hope. Our youth can be taught less self gain and more group gain must be advocated before Negroes can work together.

Prof. Gillespie began by saying all actions were the results of some cause, why did Negroes not have a better relation as a race? Did Negroes as a whole really want a better relationship? What were we doing or not doing that caused us to not have a better relationship? We regret the passing of Mrs. J. F. Taylor's sister, whose funeral was held in Fayetteville, Tenn., Oct. 30.

FRUIT CAKE — If your fall plans call for an open house or perhaps a neighborhood party complete with punch and pastry, why not make use of special seasonal foods. Delicious fruit cake, old English style, laden with nuts and d fruits from all over the world crowned with the personal touch of your favorite glaze and a garnish of bright cherries and pineapple, repeating the fruits in the cake, will make your buffet table colorful and attractive. Finger slices of fruit cake about two inches long will be particularly tempting when spread with powdered sugar frosting flavored with lemon, lime or orange.

The frosting may be applied with a pastry tube or spread with a knife. The rich mellow fruit cake available at your grocer's ready-to-eat cake department will cut cleanly and easily if you chill ahead of time and use a sharp knife, wiping it off with a moist cloth after each slice.

Melrose Wildcats Down Booker Warriors 33-6

By ALEXANDER DELOACH, Jr.

The Melrose Golden Wildcats broke a slow starting game wide open in the last quarter to defeat the Booker T. Washington Warriors, 33-6 at Booker T. Washington stadium before a crowd of 3,000 fans.

In the first period the Wildcats pushed over a touchdown when quarterback Steve Harden passed to his left halfback Calvin Moore who went 30 yards for a touchdown.

Quarterback Charlie Lee's kick was good through the uprights, putting the Wildcats out front, 7-0, but the Warriors bounced back in the second period to score when quarterback John Aldridge passed to end Charles C. Morgan who raced 37 yards for the touchdown.

The try for the extra point was no good. Neither team scored in the third period, but twice the Warriors had the ball inside the Melrose 15-yard line, but fumbled on both occasions.

STOPPED ON THE 30

In the final period the Wildcats went over right tackle for the extra point. At the end of the first half the Thunderbolts led 9-0. At the beginning of the third period, halfback Richard Jones received the ball on the kick-off and returned it to the Thunderbolts 36; it looked as though the Wildcats would go over the goal line, but the hard charging line of the Thunderbolts stopped them on the 30 yard line. The Thunderbolts took the ball over but couldn't move anywhere.

Hopes went down the drain when quarterback Calvin Boyce's pass was intercepted by left end Steve Boone on the 15 and raced all the way for an 85 yard touchdown.

HAMILTON LOSES

After the Thunderbolts took a last week to defeat the Hamilton Wildcats, 16-7. In the first quarter the Thunderbolts put on a sustained drive from their 20-yard line up to the 50. It looked as though the Thunderbolts were going to strike pay dirt but on the next play, fullback Johnny Jones fumbled. The Wildcats took over on their 48-yard line, but couldn't get anywhere, so they had to punt. After both teams had their share of the piggins, the Thunderbolts got a 2-0 lead when the Hamilton quarterback was trapped in the end zone.

In the second period the Thunderbolts were still fired up and after Quarterback Grant Ward had moved his team down to the Wildcats' 8-yard line, he leaped in the air, hitting his right end Thomas Donald, who took it and went all the way to score. Left Willie Denton struck like lightning, pushing over 4 quick touchdowns. Halfback Moore raced some 37-yards to score. A few minutes later Melrose recovered a Warrior fumble on the Warrior's 35 yard line, and fullback James Armour went over left tackle on a beautiful play with good down field blocking for the touchdown.

GOES OVER

The Warriors tried hard to stop them, but it just wasn't any use. A few minutes later Halfback Albert Wilson went over from the 25-yard line. The Wildcats final touchdown came with only 58 seconds showing left on the clock. When halfback Arion Hackett took a hand off from quarterback Joseph Westbrook, faked a run around left end and passed 40-yards to his end, Charles Hicks who took it going all the way for a TD.

Denton again crashed over for the extra point. The Wildcats lone touchdown came early in the last quarter when Howard Griffin picked up a blocked punt and went 35 yards to score. Quarterback Boyce went over right tackle for the extra point.

UNIVERSAL HOMECOMING — The Universal Life Insurance company held its second annual homecoming celebration recently at its home office, at 480 Linden. Members of the field personnel winning all-expense paid trips came from the following Universal districts: Los Angeles Number 2, St. Louis Number 2, Nashville, Dallas and Wichita Falls.

Some also came from Beaumont, Texas and Tulsa, Okla. and Jackson, Tenn. A group came from Little Rock, Ark., "on their own." Shown are most of the agents, assistant managers, managers, clerical personnel and special agents who came to the city for the homecoming.

pany, is attending a six-week course in life insurance salesmanship and marketing at Purdue university, LaFayette, Indiana. Mr. Sharp is pictured here with other members of his class. Universal Life reports that correspondence received from Mr. Sharp indicates that he is very pleased with the course and that he is getting much needed information. Universal said that its entire family is wishing for Mr. Sharp the best of everything, because it believes very firmly that the future belongs to those who prepare for it.

Universal Homecoming Impressive

Because of outstanding achievements in a Summer-long contest, 125 Universal Life field representatives made an all-expense paid trip to the Home Office, Oct. 25, to participate in the Second Homecoming celebration.

Members of the field personnel winning all-expense paid trips represented the following districts: Texarkana, Los Angeles No. 2, St. Louis No. 2, Nashville, Dallas and Wichita Falls. They included agents, assistant managers, managers, clerical personnel and special agents.

Using cash bonuses won in another contest to make the trip were Beaumont and Tulsa, and Jackson, Tenn. Not having the will power to stay home with such promising happenings in the making at the home office, a part of Little Rock came "on their own." The first homecoming was in 1949 when the new home office building was dedicated.

'GET ACQUAINTED'
The festivities began Thursday evening with a "get acquainted" dinner in the company's cafeteria, after which the recreation room was opened for dancing, and other forms of recreation. Bridge and dancing were the order of the day, with many old friends meeting and reminiscing. The gracious home office hostesses and other members of the clerical personnel lingered long after the office closed to help foster the get acquainted movement.

Friday, the day long awaited — homecoming — began with assembly and greetings by the officers. An organized tour of the building acquainted the guests with the beautiful, newly decorated home office building, modern, fully equipped and efficiently staffed. Lunch was served. Later the visitors were guest attendants at the regular home office monthly forum which had been planned especially for them. The day ended on a festive note. The Halloween buffet dinner-dance was an enjoyable affair.

Mrs. Jana Cox Porter prepared a delicious dinner of turkey, shrimp and the trimmings, and Tuff Green's orchestra was at its best. Intermission entertainment was furnished by Mrs. Posey and Mr. S. Lambert of Los Angeles, both rendering very beautiful vocal selections.

TOUR CITY

A three-hour tour of the city last Saturday morning ended the celebration, and at noon the weary but extremely happy guests departed for home and more work which will enable them to come again in 1957.

For most of the visitors, this was their first trip to the home office and their first meeting with many of the officers of the company.

The contest was promoted by the company under the direction of the Agency Department headed by H. A. Gilliam, vice president-agency director.

Musing: Social Characteristics of boys and girls from 9 to 12. They want to be or are members of a school group. They want to act and dress like the rest of the gang. They are ready for a widening of social contacts. They take part in foolish capers, silly racing, guffawing, devising secret codes, rough-housing, and practical joking. Grow in self-reliance.

independence, and self-Government. Social Characteristics continued next week.

Dear Carlotta:
To what extent do you feel that religion should figure in politics?
A. B.

Dear A. B.:
I don't feel that the church should engage in politics. It is contrary to the principle of the separation of church and state. The church's function is to be our social and political conscience, and to train men to apply the ideals of Christ in public affairs.

HALL OF FAME — John Lipford, who graduated from Geeter High school in June of this year, was the most outstanding male student at the school. Booker T. Washington Faced Worse Ill Will

B O O K E R WASHINGTON BIRTHPLACE, Va. — The lowest ebb of race relations in America came in the period following the War Between the States when the Negro faced almost complete denial of the great promise of freedom, and seemingly extermination, writes George S. Schuyler, noted traveler and brilliant editorial writer for the Pittsburgh Courier in a special article on the Booker T. Washington Centennial which is now appearing in newspapers all over the country.

Schuyler's current appraisal of Booker T. Washington is one of many articles contributed by leading writers which will be published in connection with the Centennial of Washington's birth, it was announced today by Sidney J. Phillips, Commission president.

NEEDED WEAPONS

"What the Negro needed (in the 1890's) was time and weapons to combat the evil influences of his enemies and detractors," said Schuyler. "He needed reassurance of his potentialities, opportunities, and a program for realizing them. Booker T. Washington supplied both."

Schuyler, who has one of the most extensive records for personal investigations of racial disorders in this country and Latin America, and who led in the denunciation of Communism among

Negroes, claims that "all friends of the Negro should extend themselves (during this Centennial Year) to publicize the philosophy and programs of this inspired man who did so much to help resolve the racial conflict in America."

Ex-High Court Justice Wins Praise At UCLA

CHICAGO — Former Associate Justice Sherman Minton, who retired recently from the Supreme Court, says in the December EDITION that the Court's desegregation ruling was inevitable because the high tribunal had been chipping away at the "separate but equal" doctrine for a long time. In Minton's view, the ruling destroyed the legal foundation of an ancient, and to him, obnoxious system of dual citizenship in America and decreed a new day of equality for Negroes.

"We are conscious of the great progress the Negro people have made and now, with the school desegregation ruling, the possibilities for them are infinite," Minton says.

Minton hated the riots that flared up when authorities attempted to desegregate schools in Texas, Kentucky and Tennessee. "It's possible that we could even have had more violence than we've had so far," he states gravely, "but the problem of violent resistance will have to be met as it appears."

FEDERAL FORCES

As to whether Federal forces should be used to quell such riots, Minton is quite specific: "You can't reject the use of Federal forces in suppressing violence," he says.

As to how long racial segregation will last in America, Minton says it is anybody's guess. He adds that resistance to it will ultimately fail. Determination to preserve segregation at any price is so fanatical among a large segment of whites in the South, that they may even resort to more destructive measures in their futile efforts to delay the custom's death.

Whether the Supreme Court's ruling will ultimately lead to the end of segregation in all areas of national life, Minton refused to predict. As to future actions of the high court, however, he is firm in his belief that the great 1954 ruling has set a definite pattern, from which coming decisions on segregation shall not deviate.

POETRY CORNER

OUR NEW EMMANUEL
Our new Emmanuel church is real.

It's as beautiful as can be; I was there for that early morn opening,

For communion at seven thirty.

There were five of us out for that service.

To take first communion so sweet.

Just one man — an old communicant,

With four of us women to meet.

I was happy at that communion.

It made me reflect — I can tell;

Of that innocent blood that was shed there,

For this dear old Emmanuel.

But for everything good done in this life.

Someone through hardships must go;

And walk in the path of our Savior.

And drink of that same cup of woe.

HOLLYWOOD — Some interesting things came to light when Dr. James McHenry, a very outstanding doctor and sports car racing enthusiast, lost his life recently in a racing mishap. It has developed that the high powered Porsche racing car in which that promising young actor James Dean lost his life, was purchased by Dr. McHenry and a friend. Each took a part of the car; Dr. McHenry the motor, and his friend the transmission and rear end. Both had accidents in the cars in which the parts were placed before the doctor's fatal one.

The owner of the other parts has indicated that he does not feel that this is a junk car, and will continue to use his car. I hope he is right.

Eight Cite Kasper In Clinton Riot

CLINTON, Tenn. — (INS) — Eight witnesses testified Monday that talks by John Kasper, accused of sedition in rioting which accompanied the integration of Clinton high school, "made the crowds unruly."

Kasper, 26, a pro-segregationist from Washington, D. C., is on trial before Judge D. L. Hutson on charges of sedition and inciting a riot.

A handful of pickets patrolled outside the courtroom, and several spectators displayed "Citizens Council" emblems, as the trial progressed.

Kasper, an official of the White Citizens' council, faces the charges as the result of the disturbances which started the week of August 26, when 12 Negro children started classes in the formerly all white Clinton high school.

Under cross examination, none of the witnesses said that Kasper specifically urged physical violence in the Clinton case, but Oak Ridge Atty. Leo Grant, who organized the auxiliary police force during the weeks of violence, testified that the Washington, D. C. bookseller told one crowd meeting that "the will of the people is supreme to the law."

Clinton Courier-News editor Herald Wells told the court that although the federal court order calling for integration had been widely publicized for eight months before it actually took place, he knew of no protest meetings which had taken place before Kasper came to Clinton.
