Breathitt Says He Will Revoke Anti-Bias Order

Edward T. "Ned" Breathitt pledged Saturday to rescind the executive order banning racial discrimination in Kentucky's public businesses once the 1964 General Assembly expresses its will on the matter.

He told a statewide news conference that he intended to submit the entire issue of civil rights to the 1964 General Assembly if he is elected governor.

"Once the legislature has made known its will, the executive order will have served its purpose and will no longer be continued," the Democratic nominee said.

"I believe in constitutional government. I do not believe in and I shall not practice government by decree. The people's representatatives and they alone have the right and the power to make laws for Kentucky," he said.

Breathitt charged that his opponent, Republican Louie Nunn, was campaigning with "ambiguity and demagoguery" in regard to the executive order.

He said Nunn endorsed a similar law barring discrimination in Louisville before the Louisville Rotary Club but in Paducah, on a television program, he stated that he had no position on the matter of civil rights.

The Louisville public accommodations ordinance was adopted by the administration of Mayor William Cowger, a Republican. It also outlaws racial discrimination in businesses offering public accommodations.

Breathitt said Nunn "has sown the wind of strife and discord, and if he wins, he and all Kentucky will reap the whirlwind of conflict and violence."

Breathitt said he would not cooperate with Nunn's efforts to demagogue the race issue by participating in platform debates.

Harry Lee Wants It Known He Is Loyal Democrat

"I am a Democrat, running on the Democratic ticket—and I want no part of any ticket-splitting, fifth-column movement designed by Republican leaders to disrupt a united Democratic Party."

So stated Harry Lee Waterfield, nominee for lieutenant governor, after a newsman asked him Saturday at a press conference to comment on a Nunn-Waterfield split ticket.

Waterfield said those who would link his name with any Republican candidate are acting "against my wishes, against my interest, and against the interest of Kentucky."

The Clinton publisher said to serve as a lieutenant governor with Louie Nunn, the Republican gubernatorial nominee, would be a "foolish and frustrating experience."

"Kentucky has never moved forward under a Republican administration. Only a Democratic governor—Ned Breathitt—has the experience and capacity to keep Kentucky moving ahead."

Waterfield said Kentuckians who cry "Vote the Man" are "in reality urging us to destroy the two-party system."

"What we need in Kentucky is party unity, party responsibility—not a cult of personality," he said.

Save Letter Writing ... Send The News To College, Too!

Students attending college away from the Twin Cities area this year will be expecting many letters from home. And, when you write, naturally some local items of interest may be overlooked.

That's when The News will come in handy. Why not send them ALL the news every week by subscribing to this newspaper?

During the nine-month scholastic year, The News will be mailed to any college or university student for only $2.00. (Plus 6 cents extra for sales tax if mailed in Kentucky - elsewhere $2.00.)

And, because we want our young friends to have something pleasant to read while not studying, we will give a copy of Sam Holly's Scrapbook with each college subscription.

Call 470 or 487 and give The News names and addresses of students you want to receive this paper for the next nine months. Or, stop in and subscribe at your convenience.

Belgian Student Finds A Heart Full Of Kindness In Our Town

Leo Goovaerts is a Belgian college student visiting in various Fulton homes under the auspices of the Fulton Rotary Club. Leo is from Brussels. Recently he spoke before the Rotary Club giving his impressions and observations of national and international situations. He was introduced by Rotarian J. D. Hales.

Interesting and informative, his talk is reprinted herewith:

Gentlemen, Mr. Hales, who has been in Belgium, knows that it could be very interesting to speak about. And if I do not do so, it is because I hope to present some problems by another way.

Why some Belgian problems are important? Because they are not tied on our country, but they are more general. They appear in more than one European country. So there is:

1. The role of our king - his position - his necessity, if there is one.

2. The language question.

3. The Congolese question, which has some relation with your Negro problem.

4. The European Unification: Common Market and General de Gaulle.

5. The relationship "Church - Government," a problem for the future in Europe.

What I will try to do for you is analyze some characteristics of the American people, like I observe them at this moment and make some comparison with the European ones. In the beginning I would compare the American and the European: Energy of life, Practical sense, Moral conceptions, Optimism, Informal sense, Friendliness, and Religion.

The equalitarian sense of the American and the European people, more than the European people, in the relations from:

Person to person. In Europe there is an intentional and artificial distance in the relationship between the persons whose education or material resources are different. Your democratic system makes that one can speak to another in reciprocal respect, but without sense of superiority or inferiority that are the pillars in our European relationship. A consequence of this conception is the natural and no-complicated games of questions and answers about things that we consider as the culminating points of privacy.

Many years ago the question about the opportunity and the justification of these for European Revolutionary conceptions was posed in whole the world and the German philosopher Hegel expressed the general feeling when he said, "America is the land of the future, where, in the ages that lie before us, the burden of world's history shall reveal itself." I think that your relationship from third person to third person is better than ours, insofar as the passion that can become the sense of democracy doesn't darken the positive spirit of this attitude. ## Voters Will Be Asked To Judge Two Amendments

Kentucky voters will be asked to approve or reject two amendments to the Kentucky State Constitution in the November 5 general election.

One proposed amendment would remove the statutory limit on certain State salaries, and the other would make it easier to amend the Constitution.

Under section 246 of the Constitution, all elective offices except the Governor are limited to $12,000 yearly; all circuit judges to $8,400 and all other officers (mainly city and county) to $7,200.

Constitutional amendment No. 1 would restore these salary limitations and give the General Assembly the power to determine what the pay for these positions would be.

Constitutional amendment No. 2 is a three-part change. It would (1) change the number of constitutional amendments the people may vote on at one time from two to five; (2) allow a Constitutional Convention to be called by one legislature with the approval of the people instead of the current requirement that two legislatures and a vote of the people empower a third Legislature to call a convention; and (3) require ratification by the people of any changes enacted by a Constitutional Convention.

B&PW Club Plans For Observance Of National Week

The Business & Professional Women's Club met in the City Park on September 3 for a picnic supper, after which they went to the home of the president, Mrs. Ramelle Pigue, for the regular business meeting.

Mrs. Lorene Harding reported on the meeting with representatives from various civic organizations to discuss the Banana Festival. The club voted to participate in this project.

National Business Women's Week, which will be observed by the club October 6-12, was discussed. It was decided to start the week off by attending the First Baptist Church in a body for morning service on October 6, this being the church of the president. It was also voted to change the regular October meeting date from October 1st to 8th so that meeting would be held during National Business Women's Week.

The president called attention to the "Fall Roundup", to be held at Kenlake Hotel October 12-13, and urged that members attend.

Meet Sunday To Plan For Next Year's 'Stars' Show

Next year's plans for "Stars In My Crown" will begin to take shape Sunday at the first annual meeting of Western Kentucky Productions Association, non-profit organization which sponsors the lakeside outdoor drama.

The meeting marking the formal end of the first year of operation for the association, will be held at Kenlake Hotel.

It will start at 2:30 p. m. and will be held in the hotel's recreation room.

Business will include:

1. Amendments to the constitution and by-laws.
2. Annual report of the first year of operation.
3. Election of trustees. Terms of Max Hurt, Kirksey, president; Mrs. Paul Westpheling, Fulton, first vice president, and Bill Powell, Paducah, second vice president, expire.

Hurt said a large turnout of members is expected. Special invitations are going out to charter members.

"Stars In My Crown," the story of Alben W. Barkley and this area's struggle against the rivers, had a successful first year.

Large crowds in August gave the project what Hurt called "a favorable position."

He said, however, that next year's plans would hinge on decisions of the members at Sunday's meeting.

Coming in second was the freshman class with Barbara Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Brown; third was the sophomore class with Anita Bondurant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bondurant; and fourth was the senior class with Mary DeMyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert DeMyer. These three young ladies will serve as attendants to the queen.

Jo's
Notebook

A few weeks ago I wrote a column about the "happy life of an editor." You remember I pointed out that most people instinctively think of "typewriter-peckers" when life's oddities cross their paths. Well, the situation hasn't changed a bit. It probably never will.

I have covered everything from the multiple birth of calves to an execution in a gas chamber, but I don't think that I have been asked, seriously, to find a husband for somebody. And so now this experience comes to me rather late in my newspapering career. In the week-end mail we received the following letter:

Stockbridge, Michigan
Mr. and Mrs. Paul Westpheling
Dear Editors:

I am a widow woman, very lonely. Would like to meet a nice gentleman. I am 68 years young, in good health and a nice Christian woman. No bad habits. Own my home, get social security and old age assistance.

Was born in eastern part of Kentucky, been in Michigan 23 years. I want to correspond with a Kentucky man. I can give references.

Shall it be possible this can be published in the News and want the charges.

Sincerely,
Zana Carpenter
Stockbridge, Michigan
R. F. D. 2

Paul didn't see the letter when it came in. It was addressed to me, personally. Where the lady ever got my name, the good Lord only knows. Maybe she heard about the success I had in advertising for a husband. When Paul is in a good humor, he sort of admits he fell into the trap set for him when he answered an ad in the Publisher's Auxiliary. When his frame of mind is not so cheerful, as a result of having lived with me for nearly 24 years, he merely says that it was temporary insanity.

But anyway he decided to go to Mississippi in 1939 as a result of a deviously worded classified ad that I inserted in the national trade paper of the newspaper business. The ad didn't actually say: "Female business manager of Mississippi daily wants husband who is willing to start at low salary until conditions permit business manager and ad manager to combine salaries and live happily ever after." That would have been too obvious wouldn't it? But you know how wily women can be. The ad that I inserted in the Auxiliary said:

"Good future for young advertising salesman, who is willing to work hard on one of the South's most respected daily newspapers. Experience not necessary, but college graduate preferred. Since starting salary is average to begin with, single man preferred. Write Business Manager, Clarksdale (Miss.) Daily Register. Send photograph."

I received more than the usual number of inquiries. I screened them carefully, without ever losing the sight of those photographs, and wrote Paul Westpheling, then in Racine, Wisconsin that I would like some references, etc. But I nearly lost the applicant. When Paul learned, he said, that the business manager was a woman,

Fulton Citizens Can Stop Wave Of Bad Publicity By Selecting Men Who Value Good Name Of City

By now, the citizens of Fulton ought to be sick and tired of some of the juvenile antics perpetrated during the past two years at the monthly Commission meetings.

Such poor taste as has been occasionally voiced, such stupid remarks as have often been heard, such embarrassingly juvenile observations as have usually noted and duly spread in the press for all of the area to see are poor public advertising indeed of Fulton, and its citizens ought to be good and sick of such things by now.

One would never believe, in reading the official proceedings of the Fulton city government, that Fulton is trying mightily to make of itself a better, cleaner, more progressive town, with lots of good men seizing every opportunity to put the town's best foot forward in all circles; to make it attractive both to its present citizens and to those who often drop in for a look around, with the idea of moving an industry here or (and also) moving their families here.

This does not go to say that SOME of the members on the Commission, and the Mayor, are not trying to do their job intelligently and well. We do not attribute any of this absurd conduct to them.

Fulton needs the best brains in the community on its government, but it hasn't been represented 100%. It needs men of business acumen, financial responsibility, dedicated interest in progress... men whose personal success indicates a measure of their ability to communicate this inspiration to their community.

It does not need men who will use the position to voice their own petty jealousies; it does not need men who will print and distribute circulars asking the citizenry to back down on a bona-fide agreement to build an airport; it does not need men who would like to back the city up to 1900 and then expect it to still exist alongside its modern neighbors; it does not need men who are "against" everything and "for" nothing; it does not need men who cry "economy" and vote against nearly every expenditure, yet when given a project and a little money to supervise themselves—such as cemetery improvement—spend more than triple that allotted to them; it does not need men who are not clean in their speech.

In short, the Fulton City Commissioners for 1964-65 ought to be the best brains in Fulton. They ought to work closely with a hard-working and intelligent City Manager and Mayor; they ought to be the kind of men we will be proud to see in action at monthly meetings, or representing us before a visiting team seeking industry; they ought to be men well-accepted in the business circles of this area and respected for their intelligence and vigor.

Pretty soon the citizens of Fulton will go to the polls to choose their Commissioners for the next term. We hope each voter will place each of his nominees on the scales and weigh him carefully before they choose him.

A Commission made up of good men has nothing to fear from adverse newspaper reporting... such people don't create the kind of headlines they detest because they don't make that kind of news.

Congressman Siler Speaks For Many People When He Voices Objection To Higher Salaries

Representative Eugene Siler (Republican, of Williamsburg, Ky.) is to be commended for his stand in opposition to a presidential study committee proposal to raise the annual salary of U. S. congressman from the present $22,500 to $35,000.

We concur in his observation that "most congressmen are not very skinny," and that "not one single congressman... will ever need to be fed by the ravens pending the end of his service..." in Washington.

Rep. Siler explained, "In my congressional district we have close to 50,000 people who do not have much more in the way of 'vittles' than the handful of meal and the crust of oil possessed by the poor widow who fed the prophet Elijah when famine was raging throughout the land."

He said he could vote "a thousand times for a few more jobs for our people back home, but not one time for more thousands of dollars in salaries for congressmen."

There are those who will contend that the present salary tends to discourage many poor but able men from offering themselves as congressional candidates. Included in their plea for the increase will be the hollow sounding retort, "but a congressman can hardly get along on $22,500 any more."

The fact is that a congressman doesn't have to get along on this meager income. Congressmen enjoy many fringe benefits which accrue from their position.

This is, of course, in addition to the fact that $22,500 is still a pretty respectable salary for people employed in non-government positions, a standard of comparison often overlooked.

Bad Review Of Movies Seems To Draw Crowds

From time to time we use this space to pass along warnings about movies, quoting what critics in other towns have said.

A fat lot of good it does. There never was a show blasted more fiercely than "Spencer's Mountain," but after we passed along the choicest epithets local boxoffice receipts soared.

Okay, here's another. Something called "The Caretakers" opened this week in Louisville. Variety summed up this epic in these words: "Super-

100 Years Ago This Week

An historical review of the Civil War day by day in Kentucky, as reviewed by the Kentucky Civil War Commission.

By JOE JORDAN

One hundred years ago this week the Louisville Journal, which a good many Kentuckians estimated had been as influential as any other one factor in keeping the Commonwealth in the Union, proposed in an editorial that President Lincoln issue "a positive and solemn assurance to the people in rebellion that whenever they return to their allegiance, they shall be protected in all their constitutional rights, as such rights were understood and declared by the national authorities at the outset of the war."

John Jordan Crittenden, a former governor, who had been U. S. senator from Kentucky four times and twice had been attorney general of the United States, had died at his home in Frankfort July 26 at the age of 75. The Journal editorial said: "Mr. Crittenden spent in this city the greater part of the fortnight preceding his death, and every friend who visited him during his stay here and conversed with him at all on public affairs can bear witness to his exceeding anxiety that the President should at once second the recent victories of our arms by a proclamation of amnesty or by some act of like effect."

"But it is not so generally known that, prompted by his absorbing solicitude on the subject he had resolved to address a private letter to the President, urging him without delay to take this step. Yet such is the fact, as is well known to a number of the friends of Mr. Crittenden, including the writer of this article."

In conformity to Journal policy and the general practice of nearly all U. S. newspapers, the editorial was not signed. However, there could not have been any doubt in the minds of the readers that Editor George D. Prentice, a close friend of Crittenden, was "the writer of this article." He went on to say that on the evening before the highly respected elder statesman left Louisville for his home in Frankfort, he had expressed an intention to write the letter to Lincoln "as soon as he should get a little strength." Although death had taken him before he could perform the task, his friend Prentice now was making sure that President Lincoln would learn what Crittenden's wish had been; thus the editor also was attempting to use Crittenden's prestige to give his own proposal additional strength.

Union Army Major Gen. A. E. Burnside reported from Cum-

Letters To Editor

An Open Letter To All High School Students:

With classes getting under way across the state, it is a good time to stop and reflect on the values and opportunities offered through education and the part that good schooling will play in your future life.

In our democracy you have a right to an education. This is your right simply because you are a citizen—not because of any wealth or influence your parents may have or because you yourself have done anything to earn it.

Your State and local governments have an obligation to give you an opportunity to prepare yourself for a happy and useful life—a life of spiritual and physical freedom, a life without want and without fear.

But in a democracy, you, as a citizen, also have an obligation. You have the obligation to develop your skills and capabilities to their fullest so that you can make your greatest contribution to that democracy and to your fellow citizens.

This is one of the reasons that I hope you will continue in school until you graduate.

Aside from being evidence of good citizenship, a high school diploma, and the accomplishments it represents, will mean a great deal to you personally. It will mean greater enjoyment of life, a finer appreciation of occupation and avocation, of friend and family. And it will mean greater economic opportunity for you.

A high school graduate will, over a lifetime, earn $85,000 more than an eighth grade graduate. A college graduate will earn $104,000 more than a high school graduate. And the difference in earning power between the educated and uneducated is getting greater all the time.

There is no place in this automated age we are entering for the school dropout. Although if you quit school you may find a job now earning a few dollars a week, your job will probably soon be taken by one of your graduating fellow students. You will face a future in which employment is almost impossible and your friends who stayed in school will live in better homes, drive better cars and lead better lives than yours.

Your state and your country are about to enter their greatest era of opportunity. I hope you will continue your schooling through high school, and as much beyond as your ability permits, so that you will be ready for it.

As a good American, as a good Kentuckian and as one who has respect for himself and regard for his future, don't be a dropout.

Sincerely,
Ned Breathitt

Telephone Talk

BY

YOUR SOUTHERN BELL MANAGER

MOVING? If so, try to let us know your telephone requirements in advance. We have two important jobs to do when you move... disconnect the phone at the old address, connect one at your new address. And in your new home you may want extra telephone conveniences... extensions, color phones, perhaps a Bell Chime. Advance notice of your move will help us give you the kind of service you've come to expect from your Telephone Company—quick, efficient, dependable.

GOING TO THE 1964-65 NEW YORK WORLD'S FAIR? If so, you'll find throughout the fair grounds over 1,700 specially designed telephone booths featuring push button telephones and maps of the fair that show the caller's location.

SCHOOL'S IN... and that means the children will be out by the dozens, walking to school, riding their bicycles, getting on and off school buses. So, it's time again for all of us to be extra careful with our driving... especially around schools, crossings, and bus stops. Watch for the signs, drive slowly, and STOP whenever required. Our children are our most precious assets, and it's up to all of us to protect them.

EVER HAD TO SCRAMBLE—with the rest of the family—to talk on a Long Distance call? A Speakerphone gives everyone a chance to participate in calls without huddling, crowding or waiting in line. And families will enjoy hearing both sides of the conversation. Call our Business Office to find out more about the Speakerphone.

THE WORLD'S FIRST TELEPHONE EXCHANGE celebrated its 85th birthday early this year. In 1878 the exchange, in New Haven, Connecticut, listed nearly 50 telephone subscribers. The switchboard itself was primitive to say the least. Among its fittings were teapot handles, and the whole thing was strung together with wiring from the frames of ladies' bustles!

Diary of Doin's

(Items gathered along Fulton's merryway for your pleasure and your scrapbook)

Some people read newspapers to find out what's going on in this here now-world. Others buy them for functional reasons . . . like lining the garbage pail, closet shelves or packing items for the attic. This week we're going to write about a trip we were on last week-end. For those readers who are interested in travels, etc. we are going to tell of some interesting sidelights we encountered along life's by-ways, or perhaps we should say, life's skyways. For those readers who are not interested, we just say, skip these lines, and use the newspaper for the same old reasons.

On with the travelling. Here let us remind you that if and when you plan your next vacation, or leisurely trip, please take some good advice and see Kentucky first. In the short span of just 72 hours, we travelled something like 2500 miles, by motor and mostly by air. We went literally, from Madrid Bend to the Breaks of Sandy.

Kentucky is beautiful almost anytime of the year. Each region has its own particular kind of beauty. From the air the rolling Bluegrass region, with its characteristic white fences, marking off acres and acres of those beautiful horse farms, looks like a beautifully painted picture, dotted here and there with the first magnificent colors of Fall in the trees.

Eastern Kentucky, in the Fall and in the Spring, is like the song, a many splendored thing. We have marvelled at the beauty of this section in both seasons. In the Spring the dogwood trees are everywhere and in every color. In the Fall, Nature goes wild in painting those rugged mountains with every color in the spectrum.

From the air, those little valleys, and hollows and settlements look like sentinels guarding those beautiful mountains.

If this sounds like rhetoric to you, it is. You simply cannot describe the area any other way. If plans materialize for the tourist development of that area, and we feel that they will, the area will far surpass any other vacation spot in America for beauty, entertainment and accessibility.

Our mission to East Kentucky was in the interest of that tourist development. Travelling with us was Joy Stokes of Hickman, a member of the State Tourist and Travel Commission. It was her first trip to many of the areas we visited. She has now become a real ambassador for every little spot of ground she saw.

In between airports we attended a state-wide meeting of the Kentucky Council of Performing Arts, helped to organize another drama association in Prestonsburg (how many rocks can you get in the head) viewed one of the most breath-takingly beautiful new amphitheatres in all the world, (at Jenny Wiley State Park) discussed Paul Green's progress of an outdoor drama by that name . . . and yet, ended up, what ordinarily would have been a fabulous so-journ in anybody's country, eating lunch at a State dinner with James Wine, ambassador to the Ivory Coast of Africa and former ambassador to Luxembourg.

Ambassador Wine is a native Kentuckian. He calls his home Pikeville. A former legal counsel for the National Association of Churches, he was coordinator of religious affairs for the presidential campaign of John F. Kennedy. After serving two years in the embassy at Luxembourg, he was re-assigned to the Embassy in Africa. His two lovely daughters and twin boys, age nine, were guests at the Governor's Residence in Frankfort at the same time we were. All the family speaks several languages. We were most intrigued by the fluent French spoken by the little boys. Mrs. Wine remained in New York with her mother. The Ambassador and his children joined her on Tuesday in Washington, where Mr. Wine conferred at the White House.

For all you mothers and fathers who are taking youngsters off to school for the first time, we suggest that you call Margaret Homra for advice on what to do when the circle diminishes by one member for the first time. It ain't easy!

Paula Jones Is Honored With Tea Saturday

Members and friends of the Mt. Carmel Church honored Miss Paula Jones, bride-elect of Freddie Courtney of St. Louis, with a gift tea on Saturday afternoon August 31. The tea was held in the home of Mrs. H. C. Brown. Arrangements of summer flowers were placed effectively throughout the house.

The honoree wore a floral silk dress, with a corsage of pink mums.

The tea table was draped with an imported cutwork cloth and centered with a pink and white arrangement of flowers and candles. Decorated individual cakes, punch, mints and nuts were served to about thirty guests, and others sent gifts.

Smith Street Church Of Christ Is Setting For Grissom - Johnson Vows

The marriage of Miss Hazel Grissom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Grissom of South Fulton, and John Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Johnson of Edmond, Oklahoma, took place in the Smith Street Church of Christ at three thirty o'clock on August 25, with the father of the groom performing the ceremony.

The sanctuary of the church was beautifully decorated, carrying out the color scheme of yellow. Yellow tapers burned in arched candelabra behind a huge spreading arrangement of yellow gladioli, with tapers burning in white tree candelabra on each side. The altar was marked by two tall topiary trees decorated with yellow carnations fashioned with yellow satin streamers.

A musical program was presented preceding the ceremony by a quartet composed of Mrs. Fred Collier of Fulton, Marilyn Johnson of Edmond, Oklahoma, Joe Finney of Fairlawn, New Jersey and Bradford Holt of Edmond, Oklahoma. The "Bridal Chorus" was sung as the processional and "Always" as the recessional.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of Alencon lace and satin. The fitted bodice featured a softly scalloped hemline, which fell to the floor over hoops. Her fingertip veil fell from a headpiece of white satin flower petals, handmade by her grandmother, Mrs. Florence Ray. She carried a cascade bouquet of cymbidium orchids with deep yellow throats, surrounded by yellow roses with puffs of illusion and dainty pearl hearts.

Serving as matron of honor was Mrs. William B. Harrison, Jr. of Muscle Shoals, Alabama, and bridesmaids were Miss Patsy Babb, Miss Paulette Ward of Ripley, Mississippi and Miss Marilyn Johnson, sister of the groom. They wore identical street length dresses of yellow taffeta, with bell-shaped skirts covered with yellow chantilly lace. Their headpieces were of yellow net centered with a yellow rose of taffeta and they carried long stemmed yellow roses.

Miss Anita Grise of Lewisburg, Kentucky, cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid and wore a yellow taffeta dress similar to those of the bridesmaids.

Miss Brenda Evans, Glynn Bradley Married In Clinton Church Wedding

The marriage of Miss Brenda Evans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Breckenridge Evans, Jr. of Clinton, and Glynn Ray Bradley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ray Bradley of Fulton, was solemnized in the First Methodist Church in Clinton at 2:30 in the afternoon on September 1. Rev. L. L. Jones of Jackson, Tennessee performed the ceremony.

Mass arrangements of white mums graced the chancel rail and altar and the pews were marked with white bridal satin streamers and foliage. Candleglow from white tapers in wrought iron Grecian stands within the sanctuary lighted the bridal scene.

Preceding the ceremony a musical program was presented by Miss Susan Smith of Benton, organist, and Mr. Gary Harper of Clinton, soloist.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a formal wedding gown of white bridal silk, fashioned with a semi-basque waist that featured a scalloped neckline appliqued with pearl beaded peau de ange lace, which extended down the long tapered sleeves. The bouffant skirt was poised over layers of tulle and ended in a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion was attached to a headpiece of handmade silk rosebuds and sprays of lily of the valley. She carried a cascade bouquet of white cymbidium orchids surrounded by yellow roses.

Serving as maid of honor was Miss Carolyn Piper of Clinton and bridesmaids were Miss Gayle Daniel of Burna, Miss Sharon Poore of Russellville and Miss Nancy Smith of Paducah, all sorority sisters of the bride. They wore identical dresses of willow green peau de soie, featuring scooped necklines and full length skirts. They wore snood veils fashioned to a handmade peau de soie rose of yellow-green. Their colonial bouquets were of yellow mums surrounded by tulle and autumn leaves.

Miss Susan Eby of Nashville, Tennessee was flower girl. She wore a dress identical to those worn by the bridesmaids and carried a basket of rose petals, which she scattered in the path of the bride. Ringbearer was John Gregory Hoodenpyle of Earlington, Kentucky.

Mr. Brady Williamson of Fulton served as best man. Groomsmen were John Breckenridge Evans, III, brother of the bride, Rex Paschall of Murray and Kenneth Bradley, cousin of the groom.

Immediately following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained with a reception in their home. Presiding at the guest register was Miss Jo Dillard. Assisting in serving were Misses Judy Roberts, Vicky Phillips, Kay Fields and Judy Hoodenpyle. The bride's table was overlaid with a white linen cloth centered with a huge tiered wedding cake, atop of which was a miniature bride and groom. The cake was flanked with white tapers in silver candelabra. Later in the afternoon the couple left on their wedding trip, after which they will be at home in El Paso, Texas where the groom will be a Second Lieutenant in the United States Army.

The idea that American youth are too valuable to fight their country's battles may be worth something politically but, if put into effect, will mean the end of the United States.

Diary Of Doms

"You don't recognize me, do you?" the gent said as he walked into the News office. We didn't. His identity brought back memories. Remember a long time ago when that quiz program-called "Romance Of Kentucky" was staged in Fulton? Jimmy Young, who sponsored the program, was in town, this time doing public relations for the Mid-South Fair. He asked to be remembered to all the contestants.

Ella Doyle and this diarist finally made contact with each other. Ella is in Fulton for a visit "at home" before she takes off for New York to assume her position with the Corinthian Broadcasting Corporation. We might tell you all about her new job after she leaves town. To say it's fabulous, is the understatement of this generation. Ella is visiting in the home of Elsie and Louis Weeks.

The Junior Class at Fulton High will miss one of its most popular and brightest students this year. Ann Williams entered the Lausanne School for Girls in Memphis last week and her first letter home says she likes it just fine. Her parents, Clyde, Jr. and Rachel Williams report that she's been a busy girl while getting "oriented" to the new school. Ann reports: "It's a wonderful school, but oh that home-work." She's equal to the task, as you well know.

All of us on Commercial Avenue and environs welcome Scott's Floral Shoppe as a new neighbor. The shop adds a bit of sparkle to the corner of Carr and Commercial. When the shop held its open house recently over 400 persons signed the register and looked around at the lovely surroundings.

Mrs. Milton Exum of Fulton won the door prize—an arrangement of artificial fruit in a milk glass bowl and Mrs. Jim Crawford, Route 1, Wingo, won a mantel arrangement of artificial flowers.

Ruth, expresses her appreciation to the many persons who attended the open house and also to those who sent flowers.

ATTENTION VETERANS

NOTEBOOK—

he said "Never again!" He had had a female boss before and the association is not one of his most pleasant experiences.

Well, when we corresponded a little more, he decided that he would take the chance on the female boss... anyway, he later told me, "I thought it would be a lark to work in the deep South for about six months." Poor thing, he never had a chance. He ran after me until I caught him. He's been running ever since!

I will always be a firm believer in the trite old statement, that "classified want ads pay." The letter above is bona fide. You may write her at the address given, if you are interested.

Kentucky's Unemployment Is Lowest In Ten Year Span

Insured unemployment in Kentucky dipped to the lowest level in 10 years during the past year, Economic Security Commissioner Earle Powell said recently.

The unemployment rate was 5.2 percent of those covered by unemployment insurance during the 1963 fiscal year, with 23,947 workers filing claims during the average week. The rate was 5.9 percent in 1962 and 8.3 percent in 1961.

Powell also said the number of new spells of unemployment — represented by initial claims filed — was 18 percent lower last June than in the same month a year ago and the number of unemployment weeks was 24 percent lower.

Total benefits paid to the unemployed dropped to $26,900,000 in 1963 or $1,600,000 less than a year before.

The average payments, however, for a week of total unemployment increased by $2.35. Powell said this is because of the increase in minimum and maximum payments approved by the 1962 Legislature.

PREVENTION OF GRUBS IN BEEF CATTLE

We now have three materials that are very effective against cattle grubs if properly used. They should be used during the summer and fall months but before November 1. The materials, all systemic, are Co-Ral, Ruelene, and Trolene FM.

They must be used exactly according to directions on the container. Sick animals or calves under 3 months of age or cows producing milk for human consumption should not receive any of these materials. However, they may be used on dry dairy cows, heifers or on bulls, as well as on the general run of beef cattle. None of them may be used immediately before slaughter of any animal. Again be guided by the instructions on the container.

LIME IS A MONEY-MAKER ON KENTUCKY FARMS

Agricultural limestone is a good money-maker when properly used. Research at the University of Kentucky Experiment Farms shows that, if lime is needed it usually returns from 3 to 5 times as much as the cost. In fact, for every dollar spent, lime may return as much as $4.50 on clover-grass hay, $5.50 on alfalfa and $6.50 on corn and wheat.

A soil test should always be used to determine the need for limestone.

State Prepares Two Geological Maps Of Area

Seven additional aerial geological maps prepared under the cooperative program between the Kentucky and U. S. Geological surveys are now available.

Preston McGrain, assistant to the State Geologist, said the new maps are:

Bowling Green South (part of Warren County); Crutchfield (part of Fulton and Hickman Counties); Gamaliel (part of Monroe County); Gradyville (part of Adair County); Parrot (parts of Jackson and Laurel counties); Tyler (part of Clay and Jackson Counties); and Water Valley (parts of Fulton, Graves and Hickman counties).

The single-sheet colored maps contain geological information and outlines of potential mineral wealth. Copies may be purchased from the Kentucky Geological Survey, University of Kentucky. The price, $1.13 each, covers the packaging, postage and tax.

Was Kind Robin A Modern Day Hood? Or Was He Really A Hero Of The Woodlands

A British magazine drew a parallel between Robin Hood as a hoodlum last week and said if he were alive today he would be jailed.

The magazine, the "Justice of The Peace and Local Government Review," also hinted that Robin's girl friend, Maid Marian, was not as pure as the old stories would have it.

Said the magazine's current issue: "Having regard to the fact that the exploits of this legendary hero were chiefly concerned with robbing the rich, under the specious motive of giving to the poor (after deduction of a reasonable commission for services rendered), a function which, in modern times, has been taken over by the welfare state—it is a question of some doubt whether a Robin Hood festival is not contrary to public policy."

A Robin Hood festival was staged in Nottingham—Robin Hood's stamping ground—last June. It was sponsored, said the "Justice of The Peace" magazine, by a Nottingham clothing manufacturer who wanted to attract American tourists.

"The nurturing among the country's youth of admiration for an outlaw who had deserted his lawful wife for fun and games in the greenwood with Maid Marian (who was, apparently, no better than she ought to be, and certainly no maid) is about as anti-social as the hero worship of a bold, bad bandit who did not hesitate to discharge lethal weapons at the posterior of the local sheriff deputed to arrest him," the periodical added.

The article also administered an editorial spanking to Friar Tuck, accusing him of behavior unbefitting a churchman.

"And Little John," said the magazine, "Apart from his marksmanship, has not much to recommend him to law-abiding persons."

It concluded: "One thing is certain—if Hood were alive today, he would be eligible for a good long spell of preventive detention."

this disease. It is questionable whether or not vaccination for mastitis is a good practice. You should follow the recommendations of a veterinarian in this matter.

Stable vacuum is very important and should be at the level recommended by the manufacturer of the equipment. Fluctuations in vacuum can be caused by leaks, stoppage, worn vacuum pumps, too small lines, too small pumps, or a combination of the above. It is important that the pulsators perform properly. The ratio between the milk phase and the rest phase should be 50-50 to 60-40.

High level feeding or protein content of feed does not cause mastitis. Stimulation by feed for high milk production may cause a low level case to become active.

Here are some steps to follow in the control of mastitis:

1. Raise replacements - do not buy cows.
2. Be sure all equipment is in good operating shape and performing as recommended by the manufacturer.
3. Use strip cup on each quarter before milking.
4. Milk fast, machine strip, do not overstrip.
5. Maintain proper vacuum pressure.
6. Milk heifers first - infected cows last.
7. Use 2 sets of rubber goods - alternate use weekly. Soak unused set in 5 percent lye solution (13 ozs. lye to 2 gallons water).
8. Avoid udder injuries.
9. Do not overteat.
10. Remember, if the cause is not corrected, all treatment will only be temporary.

4-H Group Sees Nation's Sights And Studies, Too

The 4-H Citizenship short course in Washington, D. C. was well attended August 25-31 and was quite educational. Eight states were represented including Kentucky.

Some of the objectives of the short course were to develop an understanding of the meaning of citizenship; increase our skills in analyzing and meeting problems facing us as citizens—using at home the understanding and inspiration we gained at Washington.

Many points of interest were toured such as Washington Cathedral, Tomb of Unknown Soldier, Department of Agriculture and many others. The famous boat ride to Mt. Vernon to view the home of George and Martha Washington will long be remembered by the group.

The group met Congressman, Frank Stubblefield and Senator John Sherman Cooper. It was quite a treat to the Kentucky delegation. An aide of Congressman Frank Stubblefield took the group on a tour of the old and new senate buildings.

Those attending from Fulton and Hickman Counties were Enid Lee, Hattie Odessa Harris, Sue McKinney and Gary Thomas.

MASTITIS

Mastitis is the most costly disease of dairy cattle in the United States. It has been estimated that he disease cost the nation's dairymen $229 million last year. In Louisiana, mastitis cost our dairymen approximately $4 million. Mastitis is not a name of a disease or infection. It is a term used when there is inflammation or irritation in the tissues of the cow's udder or teats. It is caused by an infection in the udder where bacteria are present or any bruise or injury to the udder or teats.

Research indicates that faulty milking machines and bad milking practices cause over 50 percent of our mastitis cases. Before any cure for mastitis can be permanent we must correct these faulty machines or milking practices. Too much emphasis in the past has been placed on treatment of the disease rather than prevention.

The narrow bore ring type stretch liners are recommended over other types of teat cup liners. The life of a liner is usually 700 to 900 milkings. The liners can be used as long as they retain sufficient elasticity. To get the best results for narrow bore ring liners they must be accompanied by stable vacuum and good pulsator action. Improved milking practices are also helpful in preventing mastitis. The cow should be stimulated for milk let-down before milking machines are put on. One minute of time should elapse between stimulation and the attachment of the teat cups. The machines should not be left on the cow too long. Most cows milk out in 3 to 6 minutes. Machines left on a cow after she has milked out may cause irritations in the udder and teats. The cow should be machine-stripped. Long time machine stripping is highly injurious to the udder and teats.

The teat cups should be disinfected between each cow. Be sure to use clear water to rinse teat cups before placing in disinfectant. It is of no value to disinfect teat cups if it is not done right. You should always milk first calf heifers that have not had mastitis first. Next you should milk older cows that have not had a history of mastitis. The cows with known cases of mastitis should be milked last.

Use Veterinarian's recommendations for treatment of mastitis and do not overteat. The best time to treat cows is when they are dry. Cows that have mastitis often should be culled. They may have an inherited weakness for talk to you after this - is revolutionary when I try to make a comparison with the facts in Europe. In our countries reigns the authority of the father. He is, by tradition and custom, an autocrat in his relations with his wife and his family. The role of the women in Europe is a very passive one: Stay at home with the children without any possibility of creative occupations. Only unmarried women work to provide their material needs. The few married women who work are obliged to do so by the material necessities of their families. It's a custom that a young girl, after her wedding, stops exercising an occupation. However, in the towns there are exceptions. They are only the expression of new views that will take full expansion in 10-15 years. Consequently, the influence of the woman is a moral one in Europe. And you all know that a woman's really dangerous in her psychological power to make subjective the objective. In Europe he has all the time for that, while in America, she has as much objective sense to use as men. So, the European women have as much authority indirectly as the American ones have directly.

The high proportion of wives working makes the home a cooperative enterprise. What in Europe is impossible to imagine a few of weak men excepted-in the U. S. men, so wittingly and willingly do their share of the household tasks because both husband and wife are holding jobs.

Another very important element in the position of American women is the labor and time-saving equipment, and the extended usage, much more than in Europe, where the traditionalists are peaking about the "harmful" consequences of frozen and ready-prepared foods!

In short, the status of women in the U. S. is a distinctive one and caused by historical and industrial needs. However, the question can be asked, "How far goes the creative responsibility of the women? Is it not the first task of the women to assure the education and only after that be creative?" America found it the ideal middle between the two conceptions! Looking at the scarcity of artists by what fertile imagination and thinking power are combined; looking at the increasing youth-criminality, there are certainly serious reasons to make some adaptations.

Parents and children in America live in the same world, live the same life and have the same worldwide interests.

In Europe children are educated in fear for their parents that makes every open discussion impossible. The discovery of the secrets of life is an individual step without help from anywhere. The figure of father is one to be treated with a deep tone of eternal respect, that finds its roots in the first years from our creation. The reason for this lies in the religion that is one of obligation and fear for what will happen to you if you don't be a faithful, silent member of the church. The church that has as head the papa - I translate Father - of Rome.

In Belgium we die in our traditions, we go under in the religion, waiting for the moment that people will understand its position to make the step to a perfect atheism that made the Belgian communist party.

We live in the past. Your children live for the future. In America a high value is given to progress. Children sense the spirit of change, the need to find ever better ways of doing things, that is the best preparation for life in an individualistic democracy. But, the progress comes often so fast that your young people can't follow it and leave decisions and positions to others specialized in that material. So is there the American educational system that has lost the sense of effort for the big majority and asks too much of the good and working students. We can be athletes, but muscles can never replace thinking!

What about boys and girls? Here, only an observation that is not directly tied on the sense of equality. In America there is also by the individualistic way of life, no time for an extended social life. You stay in a certain middle that you frequent all the time. It's the same for the youth, their middle is town, youth organization, school - middles that are closed. In Belgium we have large halls where there is, every Saturday and Sunday night, an orchestra and where young people come and go. There, it is possible to have a dance with a girl you have never seen. In America, there is the question of the dates: a custom we find ridiculous, in its practical appearance.

I think also here is one of the marriage difficulties existing in America. Young people is tied on 17-18 years, and make of the marriage a romantic trip instead of a real life based on daily difficulties. I am sorry, but these limited conceptions and customs for such an important thing I don't understand for such a modern country.

In conclusion - In this system of relations between some groups of persons that I tried to compare on our European conceptions, I find the American different from the European. Is your system better? Sometimes yes, sometimes it asks some accommodations, but the essential is: The systems are different because they are based on different historical facts, on different traditions.

This conclusion that pleads for the relativity of systems, traditions and the whole history, finds one thing the same in Europe and in America: The heart of the people, often better than we suppose. And, as in Europe, the U. S. is presented as the pragmatic country, as a paradise of phenomena, logic, without ideal. I found here a heart, full of kindness: yours.
