Lyda Travis Sees Sights At The Big Ky. State Fair

Dear Gania:
I went through a driving rain the first day of the State Fair to see the Civil War pageant. I was one spectator in a crowd of 50 but it was worth the effort. The "brass" from Ft. Knox was in place of honor on the stage. The band marched and played some stirring music. We stood when they played Dixie. Two widows of Union soldiers were introduced, and one Confederate. I was pleased when the band played "The Battle of Shiloh." There was one incongruous sight in the middle of a boys' band were about 20 husky girls wearing black short-skirts and white blouses. They didn't carry batons like majorettes, but, believe me, they did some high kicking with their bare legs. I heard a man say, "Imagine that in a Civil War celebration! And the woman beside him answered with 'Oh never mind. It'd take a cannon ball to keep them out of a parade.'"
At the 4-H exhibit I was told that nobody had time to pick out the Marshall County entries for me. I told the ones in charge that I couldn't see that they were so busy. I started out by myself and found Nancy Goheen's cake. Her very name made me recall memories of Birmingham. I wish I might have found all the prize winners.
In the live stock wing some boys looting on cots next to the Hampshire sheep exhibit told me they were resting up for the shearing contest. I told them I used to shear sheep with sewing scissors and they refused to believe me. As I couldn't find a Hampshire that looked like my lamb Velvet I went on to the poultry department.
At previous Fairs I had lots of fun accusing everybody in sight of stealing my wild duck Twiddle. Not telling them that Twiddle lived some 30 years ago. This year the head of the department was determined to introduce me to the owner of the only pair of wild ducks on exhibit. He was a little man from Greenville, Ohio, who talked enthusiastically about his two acres of land and his 60 mallards. He added, "But I don't make any money off of them." I told him I didn't get rich off Twiddle either.
On Sunday I was back at the Coliseum to hear Carlos Romulo, the Filipino Ambassador, and the former head of the United Nations. The Ben Coopers were there. I went again on Friday to roll some wheel chair patients from the hospital where I work who wished to see the blue ribbons on their weaving. We went to the Navy Steel Band concert where the fellows thought they were making music on some oil drums. I haven't much ear for music but I did recognize "My Old Kentucky Home." I laughed when the woman next to me grabbed her companion and in her Northern accent said excitedly, "Oh, there's the Kentucky Derby song!"
The biggest show of all was Johnny Ringo. The girls in the office were surprised when I told them I gave my seat to a tired mother and walked out. Yes, I'll admit he is handsome—he isn't ignorant of the fact—but he is not the only handsome boy who can flourish a gun gracefully. I didn't care much for his show.
Guess what? They had a booth where they were giving away Kennedy buttons. I saw a woman wearing one as big as a saucer bearing the warning: "Mare, start packing. The Kennedys are coming." She said she paid fifty cents for it. You may know I didn't squander my lone fifty cents.
To save space I will tell about only one industrial exhibition booth, though there were many. It was Air Reduction with big pictures of the Calvert City plant. I fell into conversation with a Detroit couple as the three of us were looking at it. We started talking about Calvert and they told me they stayed at Moore's camp when they visited the Lake. I told them that Moore's camp is next to my old home and home it once belonged to my neighbors, Leslie Wallace, Tommie Hamilton, and Avery Harrison.
The man said, "No matter who it used to belong to; it's the St. Clair Shores of the Kentucky Lake area now."
Tell Al O. Bourassa of Benton that his thoughtful letter published in the reader's column of one of the big newspapers here attracted attention in the office where I work. I was proud to tell that I am from the country that has Benton as a county seat. I wonder who Mr. Bourassa is? One of the new people, no doubt. I have been away too long to know any of them.
The letter from Mrs. Frank Varley of Gilbertville, Route 1, Varley of your paper voiced my sentiments exactly. Like her, I couldn't care less whether I have a new jail or not, and I had better not get a tax notice sent in jail. Why should we build a new one for transients. Will it be air-conditioned? Let them serve their time in the basement. Maybe they will by-pass our county next time.
What Mrs. Varley said about roads makes me think she lives on that hundred-year-old road that runs by my old home. They say it is called the Moore's camp road now. If Moore's camp is going to be the St. Clair Shores of your county, it deserves a better county next time.
Much love to you from Lyda Travis.

FARMING AROUND

By Mark Welsh

Mark Welsh

Tranquilizers have many uses on the farm. At farrowing time a sow can become a savage dangerous animal that will run you out of her pen, refuse to nurse her pigs and may kill and eat them. Cows, mares and other animals as well as sows can now be calmed and quieted by tranquilizers and become safer and more profitable.

products for man or beast. There can be no compromise with quality.

... About 75 per cent of all hogs marketed 25 years ago went to terminal markets in Chicago.

Omaha, St. Paul and other cities. Now they handle less than 40 per cent, and it's dropping each year.

Today, the farmer trucks his hogs rapidly to a nearby market, has little shrinkage and sells direct to the packer. Better roads, refrigeration, modern, efficient, small abattoirs all combine to cut costs and move pork from the farm to the consumer with little waste effort. Chicago is no longer "the butcher to the world."

(Editors Note: Dr. Mark Welsh is a former university instructor and state livestock sanitary service director who has spent a lifetime in agriculture. He now is agricultural consultant to American Cyanamid Company.)

Purpose of the law was to provide for the common defense by increasing the personnel of the Armed Forces of the United States and providing for its training.

Small Grain Crops Had Record Yield In Ky. This Year

LEXINGTON—Small grains—wheat, barley, oats and rye—had record or near-record yields this crop year, says S. H. Phillips, UK Cooperative Extension Service agronomist.

Wheat production was 28 bushels per acre average for the state, three and one half bushels higher than the 1939 mark. The 28-bushel mark is a new high average.

Barley averaged 33 bushels per acre in the state, only a half-bushel below the record thirty-five and one-half bushel of 1934. Rye averaged 20 bushels an acre, one bushel above the record year of 1938.

Phillips said unusually good weather for small grains and good management practices were responsible for the high yields.

He recommends the following steps for continuing high yields: As early seeding as possible, particularly with barley and oats; use of certified seed; adequate fertilization and proper planting.

'Uncle Tom's Cabin' Was Inspired By Home In Kentucky

Frankfort—Because of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," antique dealers and souvenir hunters carried away so many parts of the Kennedy House near Lancaster, Ky., through the years that only its foundation remained.

Author Harriet Beecher Stowe is said to have gained much of her inspiration for the book from this house. She is reported to have visited here while in Kentucky looking for material for a novel. Her Kentucky trips were made while she was a resident of Cincinnati during 1832-50. Uncle Tom's Cabin was published first as a serial in The National Era during 1851-52.

Owner of the place was Gen. Thomas Kennedy, who also owned 200 slaves and 15,000 acres of land. His was one of the largest plantations in the South.

General Kennedy's daughter, Nancy Kennedy Letcher, who lived in the house and reared a family of 10 children, is said to have been the inspiration for the Little Eva of the story.

Lewis Clark, a Negro slave owned by General Kennedy, was the George Harper of the story. After the death of Kennedy, Clark, who reared that he would be sold on the New Orleans slave market, fled to Cambridge, Mass., where he lived for many years with the family of Mrs. Stowe's sister.

Clark's descriptions of old slaves are said to have suggested to Mrs. Stowe the character of Uncle Tom.

Uncle Ned - - - From Dogtown

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Seems like I been going to a heap of meetings lately. Friday night I went to a small git-together of the wimmen folks. They was trying to git some kind of neighborhood canner project started and wanted some advice from the men folks.

I didn't offer none on account of knowing any woman smart enough to ask a man's advice ain't dumb enough to take it. Anyhow, the men couldn't git in a word edgewise.

I was reading in the papers the other day where the average American family consists of 3.7 members. After going to that meeting I found out who the 7 member is. Stay away from these wimmen meetings, Mister Editor, they'll shake your faith in the right of the female to vote.

Saturday night I went up to the country store to find out how things is going on a worldwide basis. When I got there Ed Doolittle was telling about a law they now got in Old Kentucky where you've got to boll stop afore you feed it to the hogs.

The fellers in general was in favor of this law. Clem Webster said that with a little piece of ham costing 90 cent a pound, nothing was too good fer the hog that produced it. If ham gits back to a dollar a pound, Clem allowed as how he was in favor of giving the hogs a little ice cream fer dessert.

All the fellers was upset about them Congressmen spending tax money fer liquor and fine hotels while taking their kinfolks on these trips to all parts of the world. Zeke Grubb said he set down the other night to write his Congressman a letter criticizing such things but it took him so long looking up how to spell criticizing that he didn't have no time left to write the letter.

They do some crazy things in Washington, Mister Editor, but I reckon it's good we got such a place. They say the good Lord provided the dog with fleas so he'd be too worried about the fleas to worry about being a dog.

I reckon the Lord give us Congress to keep us from worrying ourself to death over things closer home. And if a feller goes crazy he can always move to Washington where nobody will notice it.

I closed out my week of meetings by going to preaching Sunday morning. Our preacher said he was putting on a "little collection drive." He got mighty personal about it, too. Told the congregation they couldn't take it with 'em, and that where some of 'em was going it would burn up anyhow.

Best collection drive we've had lately—and we have one every Sunday.

Incidental, I see where we got a new champion. Up to now, Coolidge has held the record with "I do not choose to run." Somebody asked Senator Williams last week for a statement on taxes. "They will continue," he said.

Yours truly,
Uncle Ned.

Ask Amy

BY AMY ADAMS

SMOOTH SALESMAN HAS SALES

Dear Amy:

I work in a small sales office of four girls. We all know the salesmen's wives. One of the salesmen has repeatedly asked a particular girl to stay after work (not to work) and this has been going on for 6 months. I know his wife is a wonderful person and I also thought he was, too. Now I'm beginning to wonder. I feel terrible whenever I see his wife because this affair is getting way out of hand. Maybe by writing you, he may get to see and read this letter and understand what he's doing. The other girls suspect, but I keep telling them that it's not so. A remark was even made that his wife is dumb! How can salesmen's wives be so foolish as to think their husbands are always working?

An Unhappy Office Worker

Dear Office Worker:

You would be wise not to concern yourself with the private lives of your fellow workers. What this salesman does is his business. The bill of goods he sells his wife and what she is willing to buy is their business . . . and not yours or mine!

Dear Amy:

There is a question that a group of mothers would like to have answered. There is a young man in our neighborhood who attended college in a different town in our state last year. Just before school let out this spring, he started dating a girl who also attended this school. They are not engaged, yet this girl visits him in his home every other week end and spends three days each time. There is just this young man and his father and mother in the house. Other mothers in this community do not let their girls do this and they do not think it is a good example. Is this the correct thing for this girl to do?

One Who Wants to Know

Dear Wants to Know:

No indeed, Mother! A girl must consider her reputation. Once it is questioned, it is never quite the same.

Dear Amy:

Since I was once a victim of an unsigned letter, your letter in last week's paper really drew my at-ention. Now you tell me right or wrong by just reading the letter I received. It said that my husband was having an affair with a neighbor and that he was going on for a long time. I don't know if this is true or not, but I feel terrible whenever I see his wife because this affair is getting way out of hand. Maybe by writing you, he may get to see and read this letter and understand what he's doing. The other girls suspect, but I keep telling them that it's not so. A remark was even made that his wife is dumb! How can salesmen's wives be so foolish as to think their husbands are always working?

It so happens that I trusted my husband and now I only believe what I see. I don't look for trouble as she says she is. I'm just a poor woman who keeps a close watch on her husband because he might be some other woman's watching mine!

As Happy as a

Dear Happy:

Dear Amy:

I would do anything to please this person. I do!

Dear May:

Come September in Junior in June, and your studies. They are not only this teacher's teachers as well.
