Coach Rupp Says SEC Basketball
Is Getting Tougher

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 26—(AP)—
Big-time basketball in the SEC for the first time in years will happen this year.

According to Coach Adolph Rupp, the University of Kentucky's coach, the conference schedule is being strengthened.

Rupp, addressing members of the press, said that the SEC basketball schedule is being lengthened and that the conference will play a 16-game schedule this year.

The SEC is composed of eight schools: Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana State, Mississippi, Ole Miss, and Vanderbilt.

This year the SEC will play a 16-game conference schedule, the longest in the history of the conference.

The SEC has been criticized in the past for its schedule, which has been considered too easy.

Rupp said that the SEC has been working to improve its schedule, and that the conference will now play a 16-game schedule.

The SEC's schedule will include games against some of the top teams in the country, including the University of Illinois, the University of Michigan, and the University of Kansas.

Rupp said that the SEC is ready to compete with the best teams in the country, and that the conference will be a strong contender for the NCAA basketball title.

The SEC basketball schedule for this year will include games against some of the top teams in the country, including the University of Illinois, the University of Michigan, and the University of Kansas.
