Sanitary Inspector R. F. Barnetty yesterday got warrants against the following parties who are accused of refusing to clean up the dirty surface closets on their premises: Louis Gondridge, Clara Maxey, Lee Smith, Floyd Harris, alia, "Bad Eye," colored, and Emma Turner, colored, who were both arrested by Officers Hill and Rogers yesterday the white man. They had a fight Tuesday night at the woman's home in "Gardner's alley," on North Ninth street between Boyd and Harris.

Detective Baker got to the circus tent at Mayfield Wednesday night just as the fire department scene was being enacted, and the collie no sooner heard the riging gongs and clattering of the horses and apparatus than he went wild with joy at being brought again so contact with circus life. The sleuth took the dog to the manager and the latter identified the animal at first sight as being the missing collie. The detective received a handsome reward for restoring the animal to its owner.

Detective Baker returned from Mayfield where lost canine proved to be Gentry's missing $3,000 collie.

Detective Moore and Patrolman Cross returned from Lexington tonight - A thousand shingles stolen from Mr. Morrow - Police News.

In the year 1811, Washington, D.C., the capital of the United States of America, was a bustling city with a population of approximately 15,000. It was a time of great change and transformation, as the young nation was making its way in the world. The city was full of energy and optimism, as the country continued to grow and expand.

The newspaper of the day, the "Daily National Register," was a vital source of information and news for the citizens of Washington. It covered a wide range of topics, from politics to culture, and its pages were filled with lively and engaging articles.

One such article was a piece about the recent election of President James Madison. The article praised Madison's leadership and highlighted his many accomplishments, including his role in the War of 1812 and his efforts to strengthen the Union.

The article also discussed the growing influence of the Democratic Party, which had been founded in the 1820s. The party was led by Andrew Jackson, who was known for his populist views and his advocacy for the common man.

Overall, the "Daily National Register" was a lively and informative source of news and information for the people of Washington, D.C., and it continues to be a valuable resource for historians and researchers today.
