Spotters Will Combat "Fixes" In 1947 Kitty League Games; 126-Game Card Is Announced

League Officials Hold Meeting In Mayfield Sunday

UC OPENS YEAR HERE

Mayfield, Ky., Feb. 3.—A campaign against gambling was announced by officials of the Kitty Baseball League as they adopted a 126-game 1947 schedule here yesterday.

President Shelby Peace, Hopkinsville, of the Class D loop urged club owners and officials to cooperate to stamp out gambling at ball games. He announced "spotters" would be in league parks this summer to help prevent gambling.

Season's openers were scheduled for May 2, as follows: Owensboro, 1946 league champion, at Madisonville; Mayfield at Cairo, Ill.; Clarksville, Tenn., at Hopkinsville, and Union City, Tenn., at Fulton. The season is to end Sept. 1.

The annual All-Star game was scheduled for July 10 with July 11 left open date on the league schedule for the tilt in case of inclement weather July 10.

Creation of players' pool was authorized with one cent being taken from each adult admission. The money is to be divided on a percentage basis among players on the four first-division clubs.

The post-season Shaughnessy playoff system was re-adopted.

League team managers already under contract include Earl Browne, Owensboro; Frank Zuk, Madisonville; Rod Lisenbee, Clarksville; and Ray Clonts, Cairo. Hopkinsville, Nashville farm, and Mayfield, St. Louis Browns farm, have not been assigned managers by their parent clubs.

Johnny Gill, former Union City pilot who has been invited to manage the Orioles this year, still has not signed a contract. Fulton Baseball Association officials said today. Gill is expected in Fulton Wednesday to discuss the contract. A previous meeting with Fulton officials was canceled by Gill due to illness of a business partner in Nashville.

Union City's creditors also announced that a report that Johnny Antonelli, former Kitty League player, had been signed as their manager is erroneous. Antonelli is now the property of the Buffalo, N. Y., club of the International League.

Those from Fulton who attended yesterday's meeting in Mayfield included: H. Bugg, Happy Hogan, Bert Newhouse and Wilburn Holloway.

Some Oppose Legal Wage

New Scales "Too High," Say Some Opponents At Hearing In Frankfort

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 3.—(P)—Scattered opposition to proposed new minimum wage scales for women and minors in Kentucky was recorded today at a public hearing.

Miss Ruth Gilbert, Louisville, representing the state retail merchants association and the Kentucky Retail Grocers Association, said the new minimums are "too high" and should not exceed the federal minimum of 40 cents an hour.

She said a recent survey revealed that women and minors employed by members of the associations are receiving wages higher than those recommended.

The hearing was held by Industrial Relations Commissioner L. C. Willis who took under consideration proposals that the minimum rate be 50 cents an hour in cities with more than 20,000 population, 45 cents in cities between 20,000 and 4,000, and 40 cents in all other areas. The proposed rates are 100 percent increases over current scales.

Robert Caldwell, attorney representing the associated industries of Kentucky, questioned the authority of the minimum wage board to peg wage rates. He said state law provides a 60-hour work week for women and minors, but that the board has recommended a 48-hour week.

W. L. Murray, Lexington, of the Kentucky Food Dealers Association, criticized the new rates as more regulations, symbolic of a period through which the country just passed. C. W. Craig, Paducah, recommended that state laws be rewritten to conform with federal wage-hour regulations.

Guthrie Crowe, representing theater owners, reported that if the new wage rates for minors in Louisville went up to 50 cents theaters might be forced to raise admission prices.

W. F. Gossage, speaking for bakery interests, favored the rates but was opposed to compelling employers to furnish uniforms to workers.

Scientists Lambasted Army Into Making Smyth Report Public, Baruch Tells Atomic Committee

Washington, Feb. 3.—(P)—Bernard M. Baruch asserted today that scientists had "lambasted" the army into making public the Smyth report, since criticized for its disclosure of atomic bomb secrets.

Appearing before the senate atomic committee considering President Truman's nominations for five members and a manager for the atomic control commission, the 78-year-old financier and statesman testified:

1. That the army had been too much criticized.

2. That Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, who had charge of the Manhattan project, had never received just praise in development of the bomb.

3. That Maj. Gen. T. P. Farrell, (Ret.) who was active in the Los Alamos, N. M., atomic project would be an ideal man for commission manager, a post to which the President nominated 36-year-old Carroll L. Wilson of Boston.

The war department identified Gen. Farrell as Gen. Groves' deputy during the Manhattan project. He is now chief engineer for New York state.

4. That atomic energy developments will remain primarily "a military question" until workable international controls are provided.

5. That he knows Herbert Marks, named for commission, and labeled as a possible communist sympathizer in testimony before another senate committee, as "a very able fellow" but knows nothing of his back ground.

6. That David Lilienthal, nominated for commission chairman, is "thoroughly qualified."

Baruch, cupping his hand to his ear to catch the questions of the senators, told committee members he thinks the public has gone too far "in criticizing military men—whom we call brass hats—for their handling of this problem."

"The army and navy are starved in peacetime and then suddenly we call on them to fight our wars," he said. "They do a magnificent job and then we turn around and criticize them."

Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.) asked if the American delegation on the United Nations atomic commission, which Baruch headed until recently, has been handicapped in its work by the publication of the Smyth report.

This report, issued by the war department in 1945 with the approval of President Truman, was criticized by Lilienthal in testimony last week as revealing too many of the A-bomb secrets and making it difficult to keep security regulations.

Prepared by H. D. Smyth, it contained the first authoritative general information on the successful development of nuclear fission for weapon uses.

"The scientists talked the army into issuing that report," the white haired witness said. "They lambasted the army into it."

"Then," Johnson asked, "it come out under tremendous pressure?"

"Oh, yes," Baruch replied. He added that there was a "natural desire" on the part of the scientists to have free disclosure of developments in an effort to aid humanity in general.

"But I don't want to use this scientific information for the benefit of somebody who wants to destroy the world," Baruch said.

The man had entered by forcing up an unlocked west side window leading into the bedroom. The 14-year-old girl awakened first, when the man touched her, and she woke up Mary Jo. The latter screamed for her father, and as Mr. Boston ran to her room the intruder escaped through the window. Police were called, but they found no one in the neighborhood.

Adm. Mitscher Dies Today

War-Time Head Of Task Force 58 Died At Norfolk Of Coronary Thrombosis

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 3.—(P)—Admiral Marc A. Mitscher, commander in chief of the Atlantic Fleet, died at the Norfolk Naval Station Hospital early today of coronary thrombosis.

The war-time boss of famed Task Force 58 which played havoc with the Japanese, died in his sleep at 1:20 a. m. He was admitted to the hospital after suffering a heart attack on his sixtieth birthday last Sunday.

Mitscher entered the hospital last week for what a fleet spokesman said would be a "complete and thorough checkup." On January 28 the fleet spokesman described the admiral's condition as "very good."

On Friday, Capt. L. E. Mueller, surgeon of the Atlantic fleet, described Mitscher's condition as not serious and said that Capt. Cecil Andrews, a heart specialist at Bethesda, Md., came to Norfolk for consultation and concurred in the diagnosis of the admiral's ailment as a heart attack.

Mitscher, soft-spoken but a hard-hitting, determined fighting man, had a personal hand in many spectacular and important actions against the enemy in the Pacific and his admirers claimed that he put the tempo of the war against Japan into high gear with his task force 58's first carrier blows at Truk and the Marianas in February of 1944.

He was the skipper of the Aircraft Carrier Hornet, the "Shangri-La" from which Lt. Col. (later Lt. Gen.) James Doolittle launched his Mitchell bombers for the raid on Tokyo and four other Japanese cities April 18, 1942.

Murray Pleads For More Paper Stock For Small Papers

Washington, Feb. 3.—(P)—Contending the "competitive press is dying," Senator Murray (D-Mont.), called today for immediate federal action to see to it that every small and new newspaper gets a fair share of the available newsprint.

Relinquishing the chairman-ship of the senate's small business committee, Murray said in a report that "our traditionally valued American system of small competing press units is now in such serious jeopardy as to warrant the immediate attention of congress."

Murray proposed among other things that the reconstruction finance corporation make government loans to small newspaper publishers and radio station operators with "no consideration of personal opinions or party affiliations."

Approval Would Help In Crisis Like Coal Strike

ASKS QUICK ACTION

Washington, Feb. 3.—(P)—President Truman today asked congress for "limited" extension of the second war powers act, including his authority to ration sugar and allocate scarce foods and a handful of materials.

Though he named only a few items, he left a big field for White House discretion by asking the power to restrict other materials in case of "a national emergency that we do not now foresee"—such as a coal strike.

Pleading for "immediate and favorable" action on Capitol Hill, Mr. Truman asked a one-year extension beyond March 21 for three sections of the act. The major one, title III, carries the sweeping power of priority and allocation of export and import control.

Under it, Mr. Truman asked continued authority over these items:

Foods—Grain, rice, sugar and related products; export and import control only over fats and oils; import controls only over meats, dairy and meat products, peas and beans, canned fish and protein foods.

Imports—materials—rubber, tin, antimony, cinchona bark and alkaloids, manila and agave fibre.

U. S. products—automobiles and tractors (quota limits on export); freight cars; the drug streptomycin.

Skips Inventory Control

Mr. Truman did not ask extension of inventory control, the government's wartime weapon against hoarding and a reconversion weapon against "withholding" of goods from market.

The two other "titles" of the act which should be retained, said Mr. Truman's message, are those which (1) allow the maritime commission to run shipping lines and (2) permit the operation of ships with less crew and equipment than in ordinary times of peace.

"It is unsettling, both for business and for the general public, to be obliged to wait until the last possible moment for decision by the congress on emergency legislation," Mr. Truman said.

"I urged the congress to give immediate and favorable consideration to the limited extension of the second war powers act I have requested."

He reported that "we can now foresee the day when no further use of these powers will be necessary," but said the "effective completion" of reconversion demands the continued use of the powers set forth.

Most Foods Unchanged

All foods now controlled by the agriculture department would remain under restrictions but inedible molasses, used largely for industrial alcohol, would be freed. Only a few of the materials subject to orders of the Civilian Production Administration would be freed, and many of these controls are dead letters already.

Thus, the iron and steel order would die, but steel allocation is now sparingly used, the uranium order would expire, but the atomic energy commission is authorized to take over atomic energy materials.

Control over building materials (which would continue to June 30 under the act), can be continued until the year-end under the Patman Emergency Housing Act. The chemicals order would be eliminated.

Originally the second war powers act contained 14 titles. Seven have lapsed or been turned into permanent laws; the remaining four, which would lapse under today's proposals, are largely inoperative or unneeded.

In seeking blanket powers in time of emergency, Mr. Truman specified that it would be used only "if there is a declaration by the President that such a national emergency has arisen."

Power Needed

"Although I do not anticipate that such an emergency will occur, it is imperative that the government should have the power, during the remainder of the reconversion period, to deal

Taxes For Touchdowns?

Although reconciled to the fact that any unspent funds which might be lying around in the old sock at the end of the year will be demanded for taxes, we would like to raise our feeble voice to protest against part of our tax money going to support football games. This suggestion was made last week by W. A. Alexander, member of the National Football Rules committee, who thinks it would put a damper on gambling on the games by removing the commercial aspect.

We will not burden our readers with our views on what government subsidization of football would do to spectator interest. The prospect of going to a ball game just to receive some benefit from tax money you have to pay anyway is about as interesting as a Senate filibuster.

Also, there is no basis for the belief that those who now bet on ball games would keep their money in their pockets rather than wager it on a tax-supported T-formation. The numbers racket, using figures from daily stock market transactions to determine its few and far between winners, has been attracting suckers by the thousands for a good many years.

Ladies' bridge clubs play for pennies and quarters on the side, church-sponsored bingo games have the old element of chance, as their drawing card, men's club meetings generally include a session with the galloping dominoes or the poker chips. Mark Twain, in his story of the celebrated jumping frog, told of a man who would bet on which of two birds would fly off a fence first, and there are thousands of men and women just like Smiley, to whom betting is meat and drink and furnishes most of the excitement and suspense in their otherwise drab existences.

Investigations of attempted "fixes" in big-time football and boxing have merely served to shed the light of nationwide publicity on a situation that has existed for as long as men have played games and indulged in contests. Lacking football or boxing or card games on which to wager, we have no doubt that gamblers' ingenuity would come up with some other schemes with which to persuade suckers that they have a chance to make a lot by risking a little.

All of which sounds as if we are convinced that gambling, like the poor people who are its inevitable product, will be with us always. This is the pessimistic view, admittedly, but perhaps a true one. For that reason if for no other, we do not care to be taxed to support a host of state-paid athletes who would have as much opportunity and temptation to "throw" games as the current crop who receive their salaries from the schools or professional organizations who bid the most for their services.

An Apology

The weekly announcement of the First Christian church was inadvertently omitted from the church calendar which appears in each Saturday's edition of the Leader as a public service.

We hope the members of the church congregation and the pastor will accept this as the paper's apology for the omission. The mistake was an honest one.

At Henderson, 41 indictments against 25 individuals, roadhouses and nightclubs on charges of gambling were quashed on a legal technicality. There's probably nothing to the rumor that you could get nice odds from some of the Henderson gambling gentlemen on what the court's action would be.

Federationists To Meet

By J. M. Roberts, Jr.,
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The first national congress of those whose slogan is "the brotherhood of man and the federation of the world" as a practical objective will convene Feb. 21 at Asheville, N. C.

The congress has been called by the United States Council of the movement for world government, and is being sponsored by a dozen organizations. They have invited representatives from a score of other national organizations which are on record as favoring the idea, including the American Veterans committee, the Commission of World Peace of the Methodist Church, the U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce, various bar associations and the like.

The United States council was organized after an international meeting in Luxembourg last October, and is designed to unify the movement in this country.

The idea seems to have attracted worldwide attention since the war, has received strong support in England, and is a long-range objective of some who support such groups as Union Now, which seeks immediate federation of England with the United States, and the proposed United States of Europe. A recent public opinion poll in the United States (by Roper) indicated that more than 60 percent of Americans support the federationists, believing this country should join a representative world congress empowered to make and enforce laws.

Some of the people who are advocating world federation want it to replace the United Nations now. Others realize that, considering the present state of the world, their lifetimes will at best permit only the prosecution of an educational program looking toward accomplishment at some distant date.

Still others feel that the most practical immediate approach is through confederation—a non-legislative combination of countries to promote peace and mutual welfare. Many of them would like to see the U. S. and the British commonwealth begin it with treaties calling for customs union, military alliance and cultural support, and with this union thrown open for membership by any other countries which would support the same tenets. They believe such a union would soon become sufficiently strong to enforce peace by the mere promise to step in on the side of the underdog whenever the need arose. This is the same line of thought that held that England, the U. S. and France could have prevented the Ethiopian, Sino-Japanese and second world wars by an alliance which promised to whip anyone who started a fight.

Your true federationist is likely to be an idealist who prefers the long, hard route of education and social development rather than stoop to the use of force to attain even a good end. The unfederationist is likely to refer to his idealist counterpart as "starry-eyed," and reject him as impractical, and to claim that an attainable perfection is a better immediate goal than a presently-impossible perfection. He is nearer to those who, though unsatisfied, are leaving their money on the United Nations.

Part of the job at Asheville, if the movement is to have any success, will be to unify the federationists and the confederationists. If the two efforts can be converged on a line pointing to federation through confederation they may, even though forced to feel their way along, produce amazing results.

Christ Exultant

"Christ in you, the hope of glory: whom we preach, warning every man in all wisdom: that we may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus." Col. 1:27-28.

"I dare not, I do not, hope that I have succeeded; but I hope that I have not wholly failed. For to me what I have tried to say is more and more the glory and the richness and sweetness of all life. The idea of Jesus is the illumination and inspiration of existence. Without it moral life becomes a barren expediency, and social life a hollow shell, and emotional life a meaningless excitement, and intellectual life an idle play or stupid drudgery. Without it the world is a puzzle, and death is a horror, and eternity a blank. More and more it shines the only hope of what without it is all darkness. More and more the wild, sad, frightened cries of men who believe nothing, and the calm, earnest, patient prayers of men who believe so much that they long for perfect faith, seem to blend into the great appeal which Philip of Bethsaida made to Jesus at the Last Supper, where so much of our time in these four hours has been spent. 'Lord, show us the Father, and it sufficeth us.' And more and more the only answer to that appeal seems to come from the same blessed lips that answered Philip, the lips of the Mediator Jesus, who replies: 'Have I been so long with you and yet hast thou not known me? He that hath seen me hath seen the Father.'—Phillips Brooks.

O Love that wilt not let me go, I rest my weary soul on thee; I give thee back the life I owe, That in thine ocean depths its flow May richer, fuller be.

O Light that followest all my way, I yield my flickering torch to thee; My heart restores its borrowed ray, That in thy sunshine's blaze its day May brighter, fairer be.

Washington Letter

Washington—Every Tuesday the Senate Ladies—about 80 wives of the lawmakers—meet in their own room on the first floor of the Senate office building to work for the Red Cross, to eat a box luncheon and to chat.

Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, wife of the president pro tem of the Senate and one of the busiest women in the capital, as well as one of the most popular, is president.

The Senate Ladies was organized in April, 1917, with Mrs. Thomas Marshall as president. She was the wife of the Democrat from Indiana who as Vice President in the Wilson administration was famed for saying: "What this country needs is a good five cent sea-gal."

During World War II, under Mrs. Peter G. Gerry, wife of the Democratic senator from Rhode Island, the Senate Ladies met two full days a week, concentrating on the making of surgical dressings.

One year they worked a total of 186 days and made more than 72,000 dressings.

The group now meets from 10 to 3 o'clock Tuesdays to continue making dressings for local hospitals, knitting and sewing for the Red Cross.

Mrs. Edward Burke, wife of the former senator from Nebraska, is in charge of the sewing, and Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall, wife of the Republican senator from Massachusetts, is in charge of knitting. Mrs. Ernest W. McFarland, wife of the Democratic senator from Arizona, is in charge of the dressings.

Big Jim Benton No. 1 Receiver In National Loop

New York, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The No. 1 pass receiver in the National Football League last season was Big Jim Benton of the Los Angeles Rams, who preserved the title for Pine Bluff, Ark., by mauling the throne vacated by his fellow-townsmen, Don Hutson, now retired.

Statistics released today by headquarters of the professional circuit show that the Los Angeles end snugged 55 forward passes in 1946 for a total gain of 981 yards and six touchdowns, averaging 15.5 yards per catch.

Second to Hutson in this department in both 1944 and 1945, Benton caught two or more passes in each of his 11 games in 1946 to turn in twice as many receptions and more than twice as many yards as his closest competitor, Harold Crider of Boston.

Colonels Acquire Pytlak As Catcher

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 3.—(AP)—The Louisville Colonels of the American Association today announced the signing of Frank Pytlak, 37-year-old catcher formerly with the Boston Red Sox.

Pytlak played in 108 games and batted .371 during the 1941 season, his last before entering the army. He returned to Boston last year but developed a sore arm at the beginning of the season. He said his arm is now "as vigorous as ever."

Frick Advises, 'Keep It Clean'

Baseball Men Told They Must Be On Lookout For Gambling, Rule Breaking

New York, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Ford Frick, president of the National League, has called upon club owners, sportswriters and fans to help "keep baseball clean and healthy."

Injecting a serious note at last night's winter World Series of baseball, the annual dinner of the New York baseball writers at the Waldorf-Astoria attended by virtually all of the game's top executives, Frick asserted:

"These are uncertain times when we must strengthen rather than let down our standards. It is unfortunate that any player has acquaintance with any gambler, anytime, xxx it is unfortunate that undesirable too often are permitted the run of our ball parks and unthinkable that they should be permitted access to our clubhouses."

"It is doubly unfortunate that actions off the field, acquaintances and associations of leisure hours, too often uncover the feet of clay of those idols whose conduct on the field is above reproach."

"It is unfortunate, too—and I say this advisedly—that those of us who own clubs, who are officials of leagues, who represent management and operation, too often condone in our own actions those shortcomings for which we hold our players guilty."

"There must be no double standards. If our house is to be kept in order we too must abide by the rules we set for others. The right hand cannot condemn what the left hand is prone to conceal."

Farmers Like Dairying Now

Carroll Countians Find Milk Production Is Good Way To Increase Income

Herd improvement and artificial breeding associations, better pastures, water supplies and hay crops, and an increase in the number of farmers selling graded milk combine to make dairying one of the principal sources of income in Carroll county, according to the annual report of County Agent Clyde Watts.

Many improvements can be traced to the dairy herd improvement association, Watts said. One man who once disdained milking told the county agent, "I like my cows so much now that I would quit farming rather than give up my herd."

Better management, pastures and feeding made his 1946 production per cow 50 percent over the 1945 production, he said.

Alfalfa is chiefly responsible for more and better hay, the Carroll county agent declared. Thirty-four farmers improved their stock-water supply last year. A local milk plant reported the number of graded milk shippers to be three times the number in 1945.

Another factor in building a better dairy program in Carroll county is the county's 4-H dairy club, Watts said. Boys and girls have won many prizes and are taking great interest in establishing good herds.

"The dairy program as a whole shows the outstanding progress that should bring large dividends to farmers of Carroll county in the years ahead," County Agent Watts declared.

Western Seeded No. 1 Team In KIAC Tourney

Meet Eastern, Second Choice, Wednesday Night

MEET OPENS FEB. 20

By The Associated Press

Battle positions were marked off and an "early line" on the top-speeded teams was in prospect today for the annual Kentucky Intercollegiate athletic conference basketball tournament in Louisville Feb. 20-22.

Western Kentucky State Teachers College of Bowling Green, seeded No. 1 team for the K. I. A. C. tourney, and Eastern Kentucky State Teachers College of Richmond, seeded No. 2, tangled Wednesday night. The game at Bowling Green will be their first meeting of the season.

The teams were seeded and their positions drawn by K. I. A. C. coaches meeting in Louisville yesterday. The University of Louisville was tabbed No. 3 team. Murray State Teachers College, the only club to beat Eastern this season, by a score of 48-41, was seeded No. 4.

Eastern, now heading the K. I. A. C. race with a season's record of 15 victories against the one loss, including nine loop wins, is defending titlist. The Maroons beat Louisville's Cardinals in the championship tilt last season.

Western ruled the K. I. A. C. tourney for 10 years before the war days set in and appears up to prewar power. Coach Ed Diddle's Hilltoppers have won only two and lost one in the K. I. A. C. but have a season's over-all record of 12 wins against three losses.

If there are no first-round upsets, second-round games will pit Louisville and Western in one bracket and Eastern and Murray in the other.

The coaches decided to permit each to have 12 players, instead of 10; named Edgar McNabb of Covington, Tom Green of Georgetown and Bowser Chest of Nashville the tourney referees, and Coach Diddle, Coach Peck Hickman of Louisville and Athletic Director Bard Jones of Georgetown the tournament committee.

Both Still Undeclared In Southeast Conference To Play At Tuscaloosa

Atlanta, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Alabama and Kentucky, two of the nation's top teams and the only outlits still undeclared in Southeastern Conference action, tangled tonight at Tuscaloosa.

While Alabama is the underdog, the Crimson are capable of handing the Kentuckians their second loss of the season while maintaining one of the few perfect records in the nation. The Wildcats have won 20 of 21 games, while Alabama has copied 14 without a defeat, 11 in the league.

The manner in which the Wildcats beat Michigan State, 86-83, and Notre Dame, 60-50, last week to set a new all-season scoring record of 1460 points in the conference, left no doubt as to their ability. The previous regular-season record of 1,347 points was set by Mississippi in 1938.

Alabama, however, whipped Georgia Tech 54-46; Mississippi State 56-42, and Tulane 41-39, to maintain its prestige as a strong contender for Kentucky's crown. The contest tonight, one of three this week for Alabama, and the top contest of 12 conference games slated for the period, should feature a scoring duel between Jim Homer of the Crimson, and either Ralph Beard or Alex Groza of the Wildcats. All three are sharpshooters.

Auburn dropped two more games during the week to remain out of the victory column, losing to Georgia Tech and Vanderbilt, the latter by a 59-58 score. Auburn's total in that tilt was just one short of the league record for a losing team.

After Kentucky, Alabama has tough assignments in meeting LSU and Tulane on the road in return games.

Tennessee downed Georgia and Mississippi State last week to get back in the contender class and move into a third-place tie in the standings with LSU. The Vols meet Georgia Tech in a return game at Knoxville Saturday night at the same time Kentucky takes on DePaul at Chicago in the only non-conference game the Southeastern has scheduled this week.

Williams Signs 1947 Contract For $60 To $70,000

Boston, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Ted Williams, Boston Red Sox slugger, today signed his 1947 contract—reportedly calling for between $60,000 and $70,000.

General Manager Eddie Collins of the American League baseball champions said that Williams "wrote his own ticket."

Ted himself refused to divulge just what he was getting, but did tell newsmen "it's the most money I ever got."

He was smiling broadly and appeared obviously well satisfied as he emerged from a brief conference with Collins.

Friday night at the same time Kentucky takes on DePaul at Chicago in the only non-conference game the Southeastern has scheduled this week.

Big Nine Teams After Wisconsin

Chicago, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The scramble after pace-setting Wisconsin in the Big Nine basketball race today turned towards a sharp test of runner-up Michigan and possible elimination of two other contenders from the title picture.

A heavy seven-game conference program this week opens tonight with Michigan's Wolverines (3-1) invading Bloomington, Ind., to face fourth-spot Indiana (3-2) and Wisconsin (4-1) entertained Iowa (2-1).

Two of Michigan's wins were over last-place Northwestern and the third was a 66-43 decision over Purdue which lost to Indiana by a comparable score, 62-56.

A defeat probably would spoil Indiana's championship bid and the same is true for the loser of Wednesday night's Lafayette, Ind., encounter between third-running Illinois (4-2) and sixth-place Purdue (2-2).

BROADWAY By JACK O'BRIAN

New York—Over in London, my friend Russell Landstrom, an Associated Press staffer who keeps a practiced finger on the pulse of the theater on that side, writes to say that a controversial French play has caused a tempestuous typhoon in a grease-paint jar, a to-do he says the drama reviewers on his side of the sea agree was an undue disturbance. The play having been given an outside reaction by the Lord Chamberlain, who has banned it, Russ decided to give us home kids a size-up of what makes a theatrical censorship brawl start snowballing downhill, picking up speed and attention.

The play, "Vicious Circle," translated from Jean-Paul Sartre, an exponent of the quasi-philosophical movement known as existentialism, was performed rather quietly at the Arts Theater club, a West End organization which has given to private audiences some of London's best shows in the last four years.

His lordship gave similar attention to another play in the last few months, an American drama by Elia Shelly called "Pick-up Girl," which ran about six months on Broadway, amassed a $75,000 deficit and a set of negative reviews, but managed to offstand such domestic opposition to become one of London's current hits. The Lord Chamberlain last summer refused to permit a public theater showing of the Shelly play, but lifted the prohibition after Queen Mary and certain members of the government, having seen and approved private performances, praised its purpose, dignity and the quality of its interpretation.

"The objection here was mainly to references to venereal disease," Landstrom informs us. "Vicious Circle," my London informant notes, is a psychological study of three persons in hell, their punishment being that they must for all time and with their natures unimproved, associate with one another.

"Critics found it frequently sordid," says Russ. "Sometimes dreary and tedious, of little enduring importance, but on the whole interesting." The Lord Chamberlain refused it a license because of frank allusions by one of the characters to sexual abnormality. Most of the reviewers thought the Lord Chamberlain had been unduly disturbed.

While His Lordship was able to ban the play from production in a commercial theater, he was unable to stop its presentation twice this month over the radio; The British Broadcasting Company makes its own rules of censorship.

Landstrom said the BBC took the attitude that "the play seems to us a suitable object for broadcast. Granted that its characters may be despicable, the theme of the play certainly isn't. In fact, we think the play has a strong religious streak. We shall present it twice in October."

And that, says Russ, is that.

Card of Thanks

I wish to thank each of you for the lovely flowers and your kind expression of sympathy at the passing of my darling wife.

Remembrance is golden chain
Death tries to break,
But all in vain.
To have, to love
And then to part
Is the greatest sorrow
Of one's heart.
May God bless each of you.

BY EWING GALLOWAY

I'm going to get more pleasure out of writing about Madisonville than about any other subject I have tackled since I began this weekly column a year ago. Partly because I have known the Hopkins county seat and many of its civic leaders rather intimately for ten years, partly because it confirms the oft-repeated contention that the progress Kentucky needs so badly is mainly a community job.

When, some ten years ago, the city had an opportunity to get Federal aid to build a new and very modern hospital, 2200 people contributed to a necessary local fund of $32,000 and this money was raised in less than a week. The institution cost $165,000. It is paying its way, without asking the city council for a single dollar. The only mistake was not making it bigger. Plans for an addition to the hospital are now in the discussion stage, which, to anybody who knows Madisonville, means it will be built.

A million-dollar TB hospital is to be built just outside the city in the near future.

When other Kentucky cities, befuddled with petty politics or cramped by pinch-penny educational policies, were failing to grasp opportunities to get government aid to build new schools, the Madisonville school district bought a 17-acre tract of land conveniently situated, came across with the city's share of the funds, and today the Hopkins county city has one of the finest high schools in west Kentucky, with a modern stadium on the campus.

I asked a civic leader if the city's school system were cursed with petty politics.

"Certainly not in the last twenty years," was his answer.

Here's a nice compliment and a deserving one too, for our county agent Warren Thompson and it comes from a reader in Detroit who owns a farm here. Briefly he says "Warren is a live wire who writes some very good articles and the people in Hickman county should appreciate his services very much." The praise comes from L. Watts, a brother of Bob Watts near Fulton and we join him with a "Rah, rah, rah, for Thompson!"

with major unforeseen contingencies of this character," the message said.

Mr. Truman gave up the power to seize strike-threatened industries on Dec. 31, when he proclaimed the end of hostilities. The power he now requests—which his aides said might be used in time of a strike affecting a nationwide industry or utility—would serve only to conserve supplies of the commodity affected.

Futting food at the top of his must-list for continued controls, the President declared world grain supplies are "still far short of essential needs." Control must be continued to insure shipments to war-devastated nations and to prevent "disease and unrest" in Germany and Japan.
