Delta Alpha To Become Sigma Chi

Charter Approved;
Chapter Installation
To Be April 24, 25

Delta Alpha, MSC's oldest social fraternity, will become the Epsilon Tau Chapter of Sigma Chi international fraternity April 24-25.

Mr. William T. Bringham, executive secretary of Sigma Chi, announced in Evanston, Ill., April 1 that the undergraduate and alumni chapters of the fraternity had approved the granting of a charter to Delta Alpha.

Delta Alpha was founded by five Murray students Feb. 3, 1948. It became the first social fraternity on Murray's campus, Feb. 16 of that same year. The fraternity has expanded from five members to the present membership of 96 active members.

Delta Alpha sponsors "Last Resort," the Student Directory, and the Pigskin Ball.

Sigma Chi fraternity was founded June 28, 1855, at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. Now 104 years old, it has 131 active chapters and 160 alumni chapters. Epsilon Tau will become the 132nd active chapter.

The Sigmas, an organization composed of wives of the members of Sigma Chi, is the only group of its kind in existence.

REW Talk Set Tonight

"The Art of Living" will be topic of discussion at tonight's vespers service at 6:30 in the auditorium.

This is the second of three evening addresses being made by Prof. Lytle T. Mason of Phillips University, Enid, Okla.

Professor Mason was secured as the main speaker for the annual Religious Emphasis Week activities, which are sponsored each year by the Campus Religious Council. Lectures are being held each morning and evening, Monday through Wednesday, of this week.

RE Week began at 11 yesterday morning with an assembly in the auditorium. Classes were dismissed for the occasion, and the topic of discussion was "Faith in God." Last night Professor Mason spoke on "Power for What?" This morning he will again speak, at 10 a. m. Topic for discussion is "Dynamic Christianity."

Foreign Policy Difficult, Says Vandenberg In Convocation Address to 1,500 MSC'ans

The formulation of a successful foreign policy becomes more and more difficult in this world of revolution, reported Dr. Amory Vandenberg in an address before approximately 1,500 Murray State students March 25 in the college auditorium.

Dr. Vandenberg, head of the political science department and the new school of diplomacy at the University of Kentucky and State Department consultant, described the difficulties of modern diplomacy.

"Diplomacy is complicated because it deals with problems out of our national jurisdiction, problems of human behavior, and it must be designed to correspond with domestic policy," he said.

As an example of the latter statement, he commented that our present Southern racial policy is at the present handicapping our foreign policy and prestige, and is being used advantageously by the Communists in propaganda, particularly among middle-of-the-road African nations.

In discussing the political revolutions and evolutions of the modern world, Dr. Vandenberg pointed out that since 1919, at the end of World War I some 700 million people have been released from under colonial rule. These struggling, immature nations, he said, are largely responsible for the changing political structure of the world.

This example, Dr. Vandenberg continued, may be most clearly traced in the changing format of the United Nations. At the conclusion of World War II the United Nations hoped to use the United Nations as a channel for its foreign policy, but because of the admittance of these newly independent countries, we are finding it much too immature. The new nations seem to be trouncing their former colonial masters by saying, "You are responsible for our backwardness, you got us in, now get us out."

Such conflict within the international body ties to petty feuds with little opportunity for expressing truly significant international policies, he said.

Dr. Vandenberg remarked that the United States has sold the world on the idea that a good life is possible for all, and that the former colonial dependencies with their often meager resources are determined that they shall "catch up with someone."

Into this scene comes Russia, warring the new struggling nations with economic aid and flaunting its own ascension to power in the last half-century.

The role of the diplomat has changed to conform to the modern policy. No longer is diplomacy "90 percent alcohol, protocol, and Geritol" pointed out Dr. Vandenberg, but today's diplomat must be a militarist and with the rapid development of science, a physical scientist.

The old balance of power has been replaced with a balance of terror as each of the world's large powers strives to out-produce the others in the control of technological advances.

Dr. Vandenberg said the Communist nations, which already outnumber the Western nations population-wise, will, with their high birth rate, far surpass the West, and this population pressure will stimulate still more daring ventures in the field of foreign affairs.

The challenge of this generation is to cope with this, study communism, and be prepared to defend democracy's place in the sun, he said.

Dr. Vandenberg's appearance here was sponsored by the International Relations Club. He was introduced by Dr. C. S. Lowry, social science chairman.

Longer Festival Significant Step

The eight-day contemporary music festival of last year has expanded this year to 48 days, and it includes art and drama as well as music—a significant step in the promotion of more culture on campus.

The enthusiasm with which the festival was received last year prompted the fine arts faculty to expand the program this year, according to Prof. Paul Shanan, last year's director.

The festival features contemporary artists and works in music, art, drama, dancing, and films dating from 1920 to the present. Student and faculty groups almost exclusively.

Prof. Russell Terhune, this year's co-ordinator, said that the festival is an attempt to expose people to what is going on presently in the arts.

"It has been so true that people live economically and socially in the present but live culturally in the past. Our idea is to bring them up to date," he said.

The question now is this: Will the students respond to such a lengthy program—a program which will last all spring?

It has been suggested that most of the 18 events which have been scheduled to cover a 48-day period could be concentrated into a single weekend, perhaps on a Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, with evening, afternoon, and, possibly, even morning performances.

Promotion could be more effective for an event of three or four days than for an event of 48 days. Consequently, students' interest might be kept at a stronger peak, with attendance resultantly higher.

Presented annually, such an event might correspond to Homecoming in the fall. Not only would this appeal to a more artistically minded group, but, if the festival were to be concentrated within the limits of a few days, there would be a greater chance of attracting arts alumni to campus.

But whether or not such a plan were adopted, it is highly commendable that the fine arts department, along with the AAUW, Sigma Alpha Iota, and Phi Mu Alpha, is making this spring cultural program possible.

Religious Freedom Can't Be Assumed

"It took the Russian 'Sputnik' to awake us from our complacency concerning education—what will it take to shake our religious complacency? Maybe loss of religious freedom would do it!"

This is a quotation from Prof. Lysle T. Mason, of Phillips University, Enid, Okla., who is now on campus as special Religious Emphasis Week speaker. Perhaps he has a point well worth considering.

Many people hesitate to discuss religion with anyone, even their close friends. Others have found something that fills their own lives with so much joy they want to share it. They usually spend a good bit of their time trying to convince others that what they have is necessary.

While something in between these two extremes would probably be most satisfactory for most people, not everyone can work out his own religious problems. This is a necessary part of maturity but varies a great deal with different individuals.

College students especially who find themselves on the threshold of adult life and responsibility need to decide just what they can believe in and to be able to plan their conduct accordingly. It is disturbing indeed to discover that something that we take for granted could be taken from us, but it could.

Professor Mason seems to suggest that Americans need to take a firm stand. No doubt the citizens of this country do take freedom of religion, as all of the freedoms, as inevitable.

Religions, like governments, can be overpowered and exterminated. It would seem then that Americans need to realize this fact. Nothing can be taken for granted.

Professor Mason says that the weakness of the church is the failure of its professed members, as individuals, to become real disciples of Christ.

Moreover, he says: "Many people have called themselves atheists because they could not accept the religious views of others—think they believe God, whether they use that name or not."

The Clipboard

No, the campus isn't under atomic attack, it's just that as your professor begins lecturing on information destined for the final exam certain conspirators decided to mow the grass under your classroom window.

The big flower bed contest will soon begin transforming the campus into a glorified botanical garden, but judging from the amount of fertilizer recently distributed one wonders just who is going to plant posies on the sidewalks.

Up for investigation: a rumor that a faculty member was admitted to the Masquerade Ball—without a mask.

NATO Celebrating Tenth Anniversary

The iron hand in the glove of Western foreign policy, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, is now celebrating its tenth and busiest year.

Fifteen hundred representatives of the 15 NATO member nations are meeting in Washington this week to hear President Eisenhower, first NATO commander, outline plans for the organization's future.

Since its formation in 1949, the gigantic experiment in collective security has expanded into the chief military foundation of the free world with 22 atomic powered divisions in Western Europe against the 60 Soviet divisions in Eastern Europe.

The rapid modernization of the NATO command has streamlined facilities in the SHAPE (Supreme Headquarters) nucleus near Paris, which is now headed by Norwegian Gen. Lauris Norstad. This is a result of an attempt to coordinate closely the resources of the 15 widely diversified members.

Integrating 15 different national units is no easy task, especially with such incidents as General Charles de Gaulle's recent attempts to increase France's power by setting up a new NATO command in North Africa (with France running the show there of course) arising frequently.

Nevertheless, the NATO family reunion this week finds the group stronger and more closely knit than ever, for its members realize that the atomic power it wields will present the most effective bargaining power when Western leaders meet Kremlin boss Nikita Khrushchev at a summit conference this summer.

Behind the protective barrier of NATO strength, Western leaders will discuss two proposed "standoff" plans with the Russians. Either plan, if adopted, would mean drastic revisions in the NATO set-up.

The "freeze" plan, favored by British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, would enforce a "freeze" on troop sizes on both sides of the Iron Curtain and would keep atomic power out of West Germany. Ideally, this could forceably mature into a disarmament settlement with an international Berlin.

Russia prefers a plan which would ban nuclear weapons in both sections of Germany as well as Poland and Czechoslovakia. This too is aimed at eventual middle European disarmament. The latter plan would definitely leave the atomic powered Western divisions at a disadvantage and any pulling out of Western troops now would seriously weaken NATO effectiveness.

Fifteen hundred men in a State Department room are now formulating the plans and policies which must solidify the free world's position at the summit.

'Ghosts' Success, Yet Not Completely Satisfying; Miss Wasson, McCord Have Reviewer's Praise

The most recent theatrical event on the MSC campus was a production (the second major one of the year) which was unquestionably a success and yet not completely satisfying. The work performed was Henrik Ibsen's well-known Victorian bombshell "Ghosts."

Of the principals, Katherine Wasson and Kelly McCord were outstanding.

The exacting role of Mrs. Alving was smoothly handled by Miss Wasson, who is undoubtedly a gifted actress but possessed in addition the advantage of being considerably more experienced than the other members of the cast.

She deserves much of the credit for making believable a play that at times verges on melodrama, and was not too overawed by the prevailing gloom even to get an occasional laugh when the situation warranted it.

As the paraisical Pastor Manders, Mr. McCord maintained and perhaps surpassed the level of performance he achieved earlier this year in "Dial M for Murder." His blending of pompousness and naivete was effective and thoroughly convincing.

To this reviewer, who had missed Frank Cunningham's first major appearance on the Murray stage, his performance in this play was of particular interest and constituted an agreeable surprise.

His portrayal of Mrs. Alving's unhappy son was rather exaggerated in spots but on the whole successful.

Judy Johnston as Regina was competent as usual, but the role did not really give her much opportunity to display the ability she possesses. Bill Threlkeld's Jacob Engstrand was adequate but not much more than that—sinister at times but seldom completely the fawning hypocrite.

Given a satisfactory cast (plus some handsome costumes and a set that was nicely Victorian without being unnecessarily cluttered), any shortcomings in the Murray production are to be laid mostly at the door of the play itself. It seems to be widely felt, at least in Ibsen's own country, that this work and the others that first brought the author to the shocked attention of the public are considerably inferior to some of his later plays.

Certain things about "Ghosts" are undeniably dated, as for instance the circumlocutions which were apparently necessary at that time in order to discuss certain topics at all but now appear just a trifle ridiculous.

However, it must not be forgotten that the really essential points Ibsen makes in "Ghosts" are still pertinent today, and the decision to produce it was probably a wise one.

I CAME HERE TO GET A COLLEGE EDUCATION . . . WHEE ! !

MSC Continuing to Grow Structurally

The new Murray State College student union building will be finished on schedule by Owensboro contractor Kirkpatrick in July. Before students start using the new union building, College president, Dr. Ralph H. Woods, points out, construction will begin on the new men's dormitory to be located near Orchards Heights. Thus marks the most recent structure growth at Murray State College.

Administration officials also hint of ground work being laid for a new classroom building for the business department.

Anyone For A Soft Drink? . . .

Some individuals had a wicked case of gas-on-the-stomach following Thursday night's political rally-street dance.

Some person and/or persons evidently enjoyed the soft drink part enough that they relieved the student org of two cases of soft drinks when someone wasn't looking.

—N. R. Heard any suspicious burps lately?

Someone will no doubt wonder, "Where are we going to put all the new buildings," or a student might ask, "Why wasn't Murray State located outside the city limits?"

Several years ago Dr. Rainey T. Wells, state political leader and second Murray State College president, returned to Murray from Frankfort, to inform Callowayians that Murray had been chosen as the future site of Murray State Normal School. That occurred some 37 years ago one hot summer day in 1922. Later the school became known as Murray State Teachers College. Today it is nationally known Murray State College.

Dr. Wells' ideal was to build a multi-course institution of higher education in his native community. As a result, of his success he is the recognized founder of the college.

In 1924 workmen concluded work on the college's first building, a three-story red brick structure with a small auditorium attached on the rear. It is now identified as the administration building.

Two more buildings were immediately launched on this little campus that had been hastily planned on the 100-acre Rainey T. Wells farm. The second and third buildings, Wilson Hall and Wells Hall, were finished in 1925.

Other buildings constructed on the scrubby farmland campus were the training school and the main auditorium in 1928, Ordway Hall in 1930 and the library in 1931.

Oakhurst, home of all Murray State presidents, was a personal home before the founding of Murray State and was bought by the college board of regents in 1936.

Today's Murray State also includes Carlisle Cutchin Stadium, built in 1934; Carr Health Building, 1936; home management house 1937; Warren S. Swann Dormitory, 1941; agricultural engineering building, 1941; fine arts building, 1944; technical training building, 1947; science building, 1950; Thoroughbred Fieldhouse, 1954; and Woods Hall, 1957.

Nearing completion is the new Student Union Building. Plans are now made to start construction on the new men's dormitory to be located southeast of Orchard Heights and north of Chestnut street and the stadium. College officials point out that as soon as construction starts on the dormitory, plans will go to the drawing boards for a new classroom building.

The growth of Murray State College housing facilities assures a wholesome increase in student registration from semester to semester as MSC keeps abreast of higher education plans.

Joe College Sets Style Come The Ides of April

April is an ironic time of year around here. The style-conscious Joseph College has to strut around campus in Bermudas and tee-shirt to keep in warm-weather style, yet keeps his hanky soggy because the weather doesn't give a hang about the cut of Joseph's trousers.

The most pitiful, however, is the poor co-ed who shivers through two hours on the sundeck just to acquire a beautiful bunch of sunburned goose-pimples, that will start peeling off just about the time of her glorious debut at the lake.

Working on the Fuse a week or so ago, we decided to carry out advertising campaign to the girl's dorm. I asked some of the girl staffers to put the signs where every girl would be sure to see them.

They did just that. The next day I heard there were 45 signs in Woods—and they were seen. They put the signs on the inside of certain doors that every girl had to see sooner or later.

Speaking of the Fuse, I'd like to thank everyone who expended silver and bought ore.

I'd also like to thank the unique personalities featured in the Fuse for being what they are.

If everyone were perfect, it'd be a great place, but where would we get our laughs?

It was the same old Thursday drill on April 2, except that a Pershing Rifles unit was demonstrating precision marching. After about 15 minutes of it, even the precision drill got boring to the tired cadets who were watching.

Pershing Rifles must have foreseen the boredom. During some unseen marching maneuver, they raised their rifles to the sky and fired 12 rifles simultaneously.

The entire brigade rose six inches off the ground in the most coordinated movement of the year.

Compared to last year's runoff, back-slapping, hand shaking election, today's student org election should be about as exciting as Brigitte Bardot at an old maid's picnic.

The voting will probably hit an all-time low, what with only one hopeful seeking the top office. On top of this, the posters are so scarce that you can see the walls.

Campus Organizations Bustle With Varied Spring Projects

By Judy Given

Top social news for this week, of course, has been the news of Delta Alpha's going national—congratulations! Sigma Chi, I am sure, will be a worthwhile addition to MSC.

Up on top floor of the library, a cleaning and redecorating session has been going on these past few weeks, with both sororities completely remodeling their rooms. If the moosehead and various related articles left over from the time when the top floor was a museum can ever be removed (somehow they just don't fit into the modern decor—mooseheads are out of fashion now) the sorority rooms will invite lounging during the week, instead of serving merely as a meeting room on Monday nights.

Speaking of Mondays, last night was a big occasion for two sorority girls. Loretta Tucker and Alma Atwood, Alpha Sigma Alpha and Sigma Sigma Sigma, respectively, were installed as presidents of their sororities for next year.

Congratulations—and lots of luck. Pledge classes of the sorority groups elected officers recently.

Alpha Sigma Alpha's pledges chose Saundra Evans as president. Other officers include Faye Vance, vice-president, Frances Pinson, secretary-treasurer, and Brenda Crockett, chaplain.

Jo Brown was chosen to head Tri-Sigma's pledge class. She is assisted by Judy Barden, vice-president, Peggy LaFever, treasurer, Ruby Kissling, secretary, and Janet Fentress, song leader.

This seems to be turning fast into the "congratulatory" column.

Campus Sing Entries Are Due This Friday

Entries for the May 12 All-Campus Sing to be sponsored by Sigma Alpha Iota, must be in by 6 p.m. Friday, April 10. They may be turned in at the key desk in the fine arts building, according to Chairman Shelia Morton.

Drawings for position on the program will be held April 11 at 2 p.m. in Recital Hall. Each organization that wants to participate in the song fest must have a representative there.

Home Ec Major Wins In Cooking Contest

Elizabeth Ann Shelby, sophomore home economics major from Wingo, has been named a winner in the Kroger-Westinghouse Cook-of-the-Year Contest.

Her prize, a collection of four RCA Victor Albums, was the result of her preparation of a favorite recipe in an advanced foods class here.

Miss Shelby's teacher, Dr. Alta Presson, was awarded a transistor radio, and a roaster was given to the college.

Jane Henry Wins $100 Scholarship

Jane Henry, junior piano major from Madisonville, has received the annual $100 Price Doyle Scholarship awarded by the Iota Beta chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota.

Miss Henry is editor of SAI, and is a member of the Vivace Club, a cappella choir, band, and orchestra.

Auditions for the scholarship were conducted by the music faculty and SAI executive committee subject to the approval of the chapter.

The scholarship, which is awarded annually to an upper-class SAI member, was established last year in honor of the chapter's past adviser, Dr. Price Doyle, who retired as head of the fine arts department in June, 1957.

Grant to be Given By Business Club

The Business Club again will award a $100 scholarship to an outstanding high school senior, Esco Gunter, club sponsor, has announced.

To be eligible, a student must be a graduating high school senior and ranked in the upper one-third of his class. He must plan to major in business education upon entering college.

Applications are now in the process of being sent to various Kentucky high schools. Final selection will be made by Business Club members and business department faculty.

Last year's winner was Pat Jones from Livingston County High School.

Phi Mu Alpha Holds Initiation

Phi Mu Alpha initiated nine new members in ceremonies March 28 in the chapter room in the fine arts building.

Following the initiation ceremony, a pledge banquet was held at the Collegiate Restaurant. At this banquet Gerald Siedd, pledge-master, accepted a plaque on behalf of the fraternity. The plaque was a five foot replica of the paddles traditionally carried by Phi Mu Alpha pledges.

Those initiated were Okel J. Dillingham, Booneville, Ind.; Tony Asher, Clay; Ronald Kelly, Murray; James Cox, Paris, Tenn.; Marty Johnson, Crown Point, Ind.

Charles Stephens, Owensboro; Norris Lacy, Hopkinsville; Donald Bieber, Columbia, Ill.; and Douglas Garrett, Dawson Springs.

Racer Ravings --

Murray's Racers got outstanding performances in their three games with Taylor University from four of their untied players.

In Friday's second game of the double header in which the Racers won both ends, 9-0 and 9-7, Gordon Fritz, freshman, contributed two hits, one of which was a tremendous 350 foot grand slam home run in the first inning. Frank Yates, who was cut from last season's squad, collected two hits in Friday's nightcap of the twin bill.

On Saturday, Ron Holmes, pitching his first year for the Breds even though a senior, allowed a hit to the first man he faced and then blanked the Indiana team for the remaining four innings he pitched. Also, pitcher Jerry Fetherstone tossed two innings in Saturday's game and looked good in allowing only one hit.

With this support from some of the inexperienced members of the team, Murray's Racers would be even more favored to cop the title in the OVC for the second time in as many years.

In the Wednesday, March 25, exhibition game with Central Michigan college, one of the longest hit balls on the Murray diamond was clouted. Herb Schupp, reserve outfielder and a letterman last season, slugged out a triple midway in the game which was estimated to have traveled at least 380 feet in the deep Murray State rightfield. Having no fence in right field prevented Schupp from having a four bagger.

Jack Morris, who was named all OVC fullback for the 1958 season, was named most valuable player for the football season. Morris did not participate in spring football and will not play next fall because he was dismissed from the squad, along with starter Jim Barton, for disciplinary reasons. The loss of Morris and Barton will be sorely felt by the Breds next football season.

Terry Darnall received the Bill Hunt award for the past basketball season as most valuable player. Darnall, who was presented the award at last week's all-sports banquet, was chosen most valuable by a vote of his teammates.

Ab Davis, co-captain of the 1958 Racer football received the Paducah Sun-Democrat's award for scholastic-athletic achievement for this year.

Congratulations to Corky Carman and Bill Taylor for being named the co-captains of next year's Racer football team. Carman and Taylor, both lettermen, played outstanding football for the Breds last season, and next year's team should benefit from their leadership.

Fifteen Teams Entered In Intramural Softball

Intramural softball began Monday with 15 teams participating, an increase of nine teams over last year's quota.

Because of the large turnout, the teams have been divided into two leagues, with the top two teams of each league going into a round-robin tournament for the championship.

PiKA Cage Team Wins Tournament

Murray State's Pi Kappa Alpha basketball team closed a successful season March 21 by winning the four-chapter tournament at Arkansas State.

The Epsilon Lambda chapter of Murray State defeated host Arkansas State in the finals, 60-53.

In the semifinals Murray very soundly trounced Southeastern Missouri 94-54. Arkansas State reached the finals with an easy 72-51 victory over Memphis State.

The four participating chapters of the fraternity are planning to make the tournament an annual affair with a different school hosting each year.

According to tentative plans, Murray, as the first tourney winner, will be host next year.

Baseballers Open Year, Win Three

Murray State's Racers opened their baseball season with a flying start Friday and Saturday, March 27 and 28, by winning three games from Taylor University of Upland, Ind., 9-0, 9-7, and 8-1.

In the season's opener, the first of two games played March 27, the Racers pounded out 8 hits and 9 runs, while returning pitcher Joe Heier blanked Taylor University by pitching perfect baseball for 5 innings before Lynn Bridwell came on in relief.

Bridwell also pitched well in his 2 inning relief stint, allowing only 2 hits and no runs.

Rightfielder Herman Reed was the hitting star of the first game driving in 3 runs with 2 doubles.

In the second game of the doubleheader, the Racers got started on the right foot as shortstop Gordon Fritz banged a bases loaded homer in the first inning to give them a 4-0 lead. Taylor banged 11 hits off Murray pitchers Rich Coleman and Dan Pugh but never managed to stay ahead of the Breds for long.

Fritz who had a single along with his grand slam home run, Frank Yates and Bernie Lautman who also got two hits led the Murray batting attack.

In the Saturday game with Taylor University, Murray collected 6 runs in the third inning, 1 each in the fifth and seventh frames to coast to a 8-1 win.

Ron Holmes tossed the first four innings for the Breds and allowed only one hit, that to the first man he faced. Holmes was relieved in the fifth by Jerry Fetherstone and Lynn Bridwell took over the mound chores in the eighth inning.

Herman Reed was the Breds' leading hitter as he banged out a triple, double and a single to drive in three runs. Laverne Billinger and Dale Alexander had two hits in four trips to the plate.

Murray plays Evansville away today and Middle Tennessee away on Friday.

Tri-Sigma Takes Volleyball Title

Ending an undefeated season, Tri-Sigma topped the Rockets to win the women's volleyball tournament.

Tri-Sigma met the Rockets once before during the double elimination tournament and defeated them, 15-6 and 15-14. In the final game Tri-Sigma won by a score of 15-13 and 15-12.

Pershing Rifles Win Third in Fancy Drill

The exhibition drill team of Murray State's Pershing Rifles Society won third place in fancy drill competition Saturday on the Purdue University campus in Lafayette, Ind.

The Murray entries placed fifth in the overall competition. Twelve teams competed in the Third Regiment event.

Lynn Bridwell follows through after throwing one of his blazing fastballs.

Cool in the Clutch

Lynn Bridwell, Tough Lefty, Could Be Racer Mound Ace

By Ed Buckalew

Lynn "Lefty" Bridwell, husky 5-11 lefthander, seems a likely choice to take up the slack in the Murray pitching staff left by Tommy Wells, who signed a bonus contract with the Los Angeles Dodgers, and lead the Racers to their second straight OVC baseball title.

Bridwell, a letterman last season, is almost certain to equal some of Wells' pitching accomplishments of last season. Last season, Bridwell started only 1 game due to his inexperience but saw plenty of relief action. In the Union University game that Lynn started, he gave up only 2 hits, struck out 16 and contributed two singles and a home run as the Racers trampled the Tennessee team 23-1.

In the action that Lynn saw last year he was extremely impressive in his performances and finished the year with the leading earned run average of 0.49. In achieving this almost fantastic mark, Bridwell allowed only 1 run 9 hits and 4 walks and struck out 28 in the 19 innings that he worked.

According to Coach Reagan, one of Bridwell's chief assets is his coolness in working on the mound.

Intramural Track Meet To Be Tuesday, April 21

The intramural track meet will be held at 6 p.m. Tuesday, April 21, in the football stadium. Teams competing in this meet are ATO-1, Pi Kappa Alpha, and the Gladiators.

no matter how tough the situation. This is due to the fact perhaps, that he has been pitching in competition since he was 11 years old. Lynn began his competitive career in the Marion, Ky., Little League program. Although only 11, Bridwell then threw the ball with almost unbelievable speed for someone so young. As the years moved on, Bridwell continued to impress fans and coaches alike when he pitched for Marion High School from which he graduated in 1957.

Lynn, who lived on a farm near Marion, attended school for a year and a half at Crittenden County High before transferring to Marion High in order to play baseball with the teamates he had played with five years before in Little League ball.

Baseball is not the only sport in which Bridwell was a standout in high school. While a senior at Marion, Lynn posted a highly respectable 18 point average on the basketball team.

A top student, the stockily built sophomore never seems to let the time playing baseball require to interfere with his studies. A physics major, he has a scholastic average of 3.6. Bridwell resides in Orchard Heights with his wife Peggy and his 6 months old daughter.

It seems almost certain that Murray State will not only have one player in professional baseball in Wells, but if Bridwell decides to play professional baseball, he is almost certainly to have offers from the major league clubs.

Track Season Opens Here Tonight

Murray State's championship track squad will be in quest of a second straight OVC title when action starts against Middle Tennessee here tonight.

The team will be crippled by the loss of four record holders and two members of the once beaten relay team, but a strong nucleus of last year's squad remains.

Returning will be Marshall Gage, the best point-getter in Murray track history; Joe Voyles, pole vault; Dennis Barden, OVC champ in the 220 and a member of the relay team; John Brooks, pole vault; Russ Dawson, distance man; and Chuck Asmus, a member of the relay team.

Other returnees include Bob Giombetti, Dave Shore, Phil Messenger, Dan Matthews, George Karnavas, Wade Harper, and J. D. Burke.

Dan Scheller and Tommy Dunlap, distance men; Ray Ward, middle distances, and Tom Angerio, discus, are expected to add much to the strength of the squad.

John Daniels, perhaps the greatest discus thrower ever in the OVC, is on the doubtful list because of a knee operation. If he should return to the lineup, Murray would be almost unbeatable in the discus and much stronger in the shot.

Nine meets have been scheduled in addition to the OVC meet, which will be at Murray this year.

Following the Middle Tennessee game at Murray April 7 will be meets with Tennessee Tech, Union University, Austin Peay, Fort Campbell, Western, Vanderbilt, Memphis State, and Arkansas State.
