Jo's Notebook

Have you ever stopped to think what BPOE means when it appears before the Chapter number of an Elks group? It means Benevolent, Protective Order of Elks. While the Elks Club participates in many civic undertakings, it is a fraternal group. The dictionary says that fraternal pertains to "working together in a brotherly union." The local Elks Club has lived up to the definition in every way, each year expanding its area of exhibiting compassion for their less fortunate fellowmen.

While the local organization has always done its share toward helping the needy at Christmas-time, for the past four years it has sponsored a program that warms the heart just thinking about it, much less seeing it. The new charity program at Christmas has involved bringing cheer to needy school children. Without causing any embarrassment to the students involved, the Elks have gone to the teachers in the local school systems, asking them to submit the names of students whose financial position prohibits them from enjoying, or anticipating joys of Christmas as more fortunate children do.

So here's what the Elks do. They invite the children whose names have been given them to a great, big, lusty lunch of hamburgers, soft drinks, ice cream and all that goes with such a treat. But before the lunch, which usually is held on the last day before the Christmas vacation, the children are taken to down-town stores and outfitted in the items of clothing they need the most for comfort. A ragged, old coat, perhaps a hand-me-down or from the Clothes Bank, is replaced with a brand new store-bought one. Shoes that are sturdy, and shine from newness are put on; when they touch the cold school yard, there's no shock of cold water or ground that touches the bare feet.

For the girls there might be a frilly blouse, a new skirt, a sloppy sweater, even. And for the boys there are warm pants, pretty shirts and warm socks. All of this is done as the members of the Elks Club and their ladies watch, trying to hold back a tear and swallow that knot in the throat, as the young people look starry-eyed at their new clothes.

But such sweet charity takes money . . . plenty of it! And you can help, whether you're an Elk, a Moose, a Rotarian, Lion or Civilian. Just buy a ticket to the buffet dinner to be held tonight at the Park Terrace. The tickets are $5.00 each. You get a meal, a bountiful, delicious one; a good speaker and the comforting feeling of knowing that your money will soon be used to bring a sparkle in the eyes of some child whose happiness will be your reward. Dr. Ralph Tessener, professor of psychology at Murray will be the speaker.

Buy your ticket now by calling John Joe Campbell at 130 or any member of the Elks Club. And if you just can't buy it in advance, a few tickets will be sold at the door.

The Elks say that BPOE means "best people on earth." You can be one of them by attending the dinner tonight at 7 p. m. If you can't go to the dinner, why not send the Elks five dollars anyhow.

South Fulton City Manager Asks Team Work At Meet

Henry Dunn, Jr. South Fulton's new City Manager called the City Commission and all department heads to a meeting Tuesday afternoon, setting the tone for the administration of the city's affairs, under the new form of government.

The former Florida native who arrived last week asked for the cooperation of the elected officials and the employees in building a greater South Fulton and bringing about efficiency and economy in city government. He sought the advice and counsel of his fellow workers, citing that the city administration is a team and all should work for the good of the team.

When Mr. Dunn asked for comments from his department heads he got a nice bouquet tossed his way by City Clerk Emily Dame. Said Mrs. Dame: "I want to pay a compliment to Mr. Dunn. His arrival was welcomed by all the city employees. Not a single employee was under any tension and it seems like he's been here all the time."

City Commissioner John Reeks told Mr. Dunn that the City Commission started him off "with a present of about $7000 in collections from back taxes and there's about $4,000 more coming in."

Mr. Dunn of Royal Palm Beach, Florida is building a home in South Fulton and plans to bring his family here at an early date.

State Democrats Elect New Leaders Saturday

For Kentucky Democrats, the process of setting up an organization to lead the party for the next four years will begin on December 5.

Rules of the Democratic party in Kentucky provide that on the first Saturday in December following each presidential election, a committeeman and a committeewoman shall be elected in each precinct.

All registered Democrats of the precinct are eligible to take part in selection of the two leaders. Voters are to meet at 2 p. m. on December 5 at the same place they voted on November 3.

The present committeeman is to preside over the meeting. In his absence, the committeewoman presides. In case neither is present, any qualified Democrat may call the meeting to order and preside over the election.

In Fulton County J. Turney Davie is the Central Committee Chairman and Mrs. Ward Bushart is the committeewoman. Since precinct officers were named four years ago, the county's precincts have been reduced from 21 to 16. All voters are asked to be at their precincts Saturday to name the new officials.

The News was reliably informed Wednesday that Sheriff Joe Campbell is the likely choice to be named Central Committee chairman. The post of committeewoman is as yet undecided.

In Fulton county, there are 16 precincts, so there are 16 committeemen and 16 committeewomen to be chosen.

On the second Saturday—December 12—the 32 precinct leaders meet to select the chairman of the county Democratic committee and a secretary to the committee. This meeting will be held at the courthouse.

The officers selected by this process are the official leaders of the party for the next four years.

The party rules provide that no person shall act as a committeeman or committeewoman who fails to support all nominees of his or her party.

Governor Breathitt Goes Prospecting In California

Governor Edward T. Breathitt is meeting with some 100 top California industrialists and bankers at Los Angeles and San Francisco this month in an attempt to woo industry to Kentucky.

Breathitt was scheduled for luncheons and private conferences at Los Angeles, December 1, and will go to San Francisco, December 7.

His schedule also includes an address at the national convention of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners in Honolulu, Hawaii, December 3.

The West Coast trip, the third of a series of such tours planned by Breathitt, is designed to help the governor find 75,000 new jobs for the state.

Breathitt talked to industrialists in Chicago and Detroit in April and to similar groups in New York in June.

Among those invited to the California luncheons, Breathitt said, are representatives of industries home-based in California with Kentucky branches and West Coast manufacturers who are prospects for mid-central United States plant or warehouse locations.

"I intend to point out that Kentucky is a good place in which to do business and a good place in which to live," the Governor said.

Dresden Plant Expanding, Adding New Line And Adding Jobs For 100 More Employees

Bringing In Christmas Season With Song

Mrs. J. U. McKendree was welcomed as a new member of the Business and Professional Women's Club Tuesday night and she was immediately put to work. Here Mrs. McKendree is shown accompanying the singing enjoyed during the dinner meeting. Standing behind Mrs. McKendree is Mrs. Bertie Pigue, president and Mrs. Gussie Vincent also a new member. Others in the photo are: Mrs. Kellena Durbin, Mrs. Ann Whitnel, Mrs. Dorothy Patrick (a visitor), Mrs. Fay McNatt, Miss Gertrude Murphy, Mrs. Bessie Green, Mrs. Boots Adams, Mrs. Frances Jones, Mrs. Eleanor Bizzle, Mrs. Elizabeth Joyner, Mrs. Ruth Scott, Mrs. Kathleen Hagan. New, Yuletide Street Decorations Beckon Shopper To Buy Early Local shoppers ought to take a sneak preview of the new and beautiful Christmas decorations that will say "Welcome and Merry Christmas" to the thousands of shoppers who will come here to do their Christmas buying. Arriving home in the early hours of Monday morning, the returning home-folks were greeted with the warm and inviting street decorations . . . and they are beautiful indeed.

The light poles, wrapped in red plastic, with a sugar plum garland entwining the pole add just the right adornment for the big, red, illuminated English lantern that hangs gracefully from the extended arm. At four intersections, a huge string of bright Christmas lights, twinkling bells and sugar plum garlands seem to say out loud, "Merry Christmas from all of us to all of you."

This year, 21 enterprising merchants joined in buying the hand-made new street decorations. Purchased under the auspices of the Retail Merchants Association, the group hopes to add other downtown areas to the festive scene.

In admiring these lovely Christmas decorations remember these Lake Street merchants who have added the holiday glamour to Fulton:

City National Bank, Bay Family Shoe Store, Arcade Barber and Beauty Shop, Dewey Johnson Insurance Agency, P. H. Weeks & Sons, Kasnow's Department Store, Dotty Shop, Warren's Jewelry, Baldridge's Variety Store, Fulton Bank, Railroad Salvage, The Keg, Noffel's, National Store, W & L Dollar Store, Fulton Hardware, Ben Franklin Store, K. Homra's, City Drug, Evans Drug, and Leader Store, Leader Sporting Goods, L & S.

And Santa Claus has made an early entrance into these and many other local stores with his gifts for Christmas giving. Local merchants and Santa Claus are eager to personally supervise the opening of the most fun-filled, exciting Christmas gifts shopping season this city has ever seen. What's more, they want to help everybody take advantage of an important secret they have learned in many years of joyful, successful gifting.

This secret is a simple one, but it makes an almost magical difference in added ease and pleasure for pre-Christmas preparations. Santa sums up his secret in just one sentence: "Wrap up Christmas early!"

In every way, an early start on Christmas shopping really pays, Santa points out. It pays in convenience, for early shoppers have more time to shop leisurely and be sure of selecting exactly the right gifts for everyone on the Christmas list. It pays financially, for Santa's wise helpers who shop early can take advantage of Christmas Lay-Away Plans. Making it a rule to "Lay-Away a Gift a Day" greatly simplifies gifts shopping. Convenient credit plans, too, help spread Christmas spending over a longer period.

Most of all, wrapping up Christmas early pays off in more enjoyment for every Christmas shopper. Just unpacked from Santa's sleigh, the abundant, ex-

We Ask The Help Of Our Local Florists To Help Stop The Malicious Practice Of Grave Stripping

With blood in his eyes and thunder in his voice, an irate citizen stormed into our office last week vociferously complaining of a situation that chills us to the marrow of our bones. The complaint has been brought to our attention many times before, and our reaction is always the same; one of loathing, contempt and vengeance for a blood-thirsty practice that would make a long prison sentence too good to impose upon the culprits.

We have reference to the horrid felony of stealing floral offerings and equipment from graves in the cemeteries around us. A few years ago a lady came to us at the radio station grief-stricken and disconsolate. She had lost her husband in a tragic accident, which was a heavy enough burden to bear under any circumstances. But yet, within a span of less than 48 hours this same lady was to witness another heart-break that, she told us, seemed even worse than the untimely loss of her loved one.

This person, whose name we need not mention because she is among many who have suffered the same indignity, went to visit her husband's grave, only to find that every floral offering had been mutilated and destroyed, stewn indiscriminately over the grave-site and the vases, containers and stands stolen. Even the beautiful ribbons, with cherished inscriptions from the donors inscribed on them had been ripped away and stolen, too!

We recall making mention of this incident on our radio program, only to learn that many, many others have suffered the same unpardonable sorrow.

Last week's incident made us even more irate than was the person reporting it, for this person believes he has evidence to support his suspicion of some people who might be involved in the grave-stripping scandal.

Our informant told this story: Visiting in Fulton from out-of-town he bought a floral piece to place on the grave of a relative. Within hours after he had placed the offering there he saw a truck in the vicinity of the cemetery, laden with floral stands, vases and other containers. He didn't think much about it, he said, until he visited the grave a second time only to notice that the floral offering was gone, stand and all.

Furious, he searched the whole area for the truck, and finally found it. He reported the whereabouts of the truck to the police, only to become more vehement because the police were unwilling to conduct any kind of an investigation as to why an out-of-town truck should contain so much floral equipment without any identification that the truck represented a bona fide floral equipment firm.

Of course that figures. The police could not summarily conduct an investigation without some concrete evidence that the merchandise on the truck might have been stolen. We, in turn, cannot cast any aspersions on the area florists who do business with some of these itinerant floral equipment peddlers.

The sad aspect of this horrendous crime is that grave-stripping does not occur in the local cemeteries. It is most prevalent in these lovely, little church cemeteries where there are no care-takers or watchmen.

Yet there is one thing we can do to help bring a halt to this malicious crime. We can caution every florist who reads this newspaper here, and anywhere in the United States to be sure the floral equipment they buy is from established firms with whom they are familiar. It is not likely that grave-strippers would operate in the area from which they pilfer their wares. Surely, they would not be that brazen and bold. If they are, then we think that it is the responsibility of the florists who buy such wares to stop, what might be, a lucrative and perhaps national racket.

Once before, we got almost to the doorstep of a florist who was aiding and abetting the racket, only to be stopped by the proper evidence necessary for a conviction. We are happy to report it was not a local florist, and from what we know about our florists, it never will be. In this light we ask the florists of this area to cooperate wholeheartedly with the police whenever they suspect that the material they are being offered for purchase is not from an established firm.

In this manner we feel sure that our local florists will be rendering the same kind of dignified and public service for which they have always been identified.

100 Years Ago This Week

An historical review of the Civil War day by day in Kentucky, as reviewed by the Kentucky Civil War Commission

By JOE JORDAN

One hundred years ago this week the Federal government issued an abeyance order putting an end to efforts to draft more Kentuckians into the Union Army. The draft call affected, first set for an earlier date and once postponed, had been put into operation September 19, and had been a failure. The effort had been renewed in the form of a "supplementary" draft in counties which had not filled their quotas, but it also failed. The order abandoning any further attempts came out December 4.

Men whose names had been drawn for military service, and who had been notified to report, disappeared in large numbers. Some of them were known to have joined the Confederate States Army. Others were believed to have joined the guerrilla bands which were preying upon civilians. A few were reported to have left the country. Those who remained at home after their names were drawn were the ones who were financially able to hire substitutes to take their places. It was reported that Negro substitutes were available "at a reasonable figure."

The "Military History of Kentucky" says: "That the draft failed utterly is borne out by official correspondence and documents, indicating that nearly 7,000 of the men drafted in Kentucky in November and December, 1864, failed to report for duty, and accordingly were listed as Union Army deserters."

It was reported that 578 men from only three counties—Breckinridge, Hardin, and Meade—having left their homes to avoid being drafted into the Union Army, were counted as they passed through Henderson and Morganfield to join the Confederate Army. They were on their way to enlist in the command of Confederate Brig. Gen. Hylan B. Lyon, who was in Western Kentucky under orders from Maj. Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest. One of his missions was recruiting.

In Hardin County, one of the names drawn in the Federal draft was that of a Baptist minister named Williams. His congregation offered to pay for a substitute to go in his place, but he said he would not have another serve a cause for which he could not conscientiously fight himself. He solved his problem by raising a whole company for the Confederacy and as Capt. Williams led the unit as it marched south to find Gen. Lyon and be sworn into the Confederate States service.

During the week under review, a trial which attracted more than ordinary interest was concluded in Campbell County Circuit Court at Newport. Alexander Caldwell, when serving as a private in the Confederate Army, had taken a horse from a citizen. Later he was captured and was indicted for horse-stealing. He did not deny taking the horse, but said he acted under an order from an officer, and turned the horse over to him. The court recognized Caldwell's status as a belligerent, ruled that stealing the horse was an act of war, and therefore not a crime. He was acquitted.

AIRLINES TO KEEP TAPES ON FLIGHTS

WASHINGTON — Jet or turbo-prop passenger planes weighing more than 12,500 pounds will be required to have cockpit voice recorders by July 1, 1966. These will tape flight conversation to aid accident prevention. Air carriers already are required to have flight recorders keeping such data as altitude, heading, speed, and rate of climb or descent.

"Let's Talk It Over"

BY GOV. EDWARD T. BREATHITT

Frankfort—

I am told that students participating in the State-sponsored, bail-bond projects now under way at the University of Louisville and the University of Kentucky have really put their teeth into the program. This pleases me very much.

The projects, for which I appropriated $9,000 from my emergency fund only two months ago—$4,500 to the law school of each university—are part of a larger project designed to improve the standing of the poor man in the courts of Kentucky.

The studies at the two universities will be incorporated in a report to be made not later than November 1, 1965, by the Governor's Task Force on Criminal Justice.

I have asked this task force, headed by Commonwealth's Attorney M. R. "Mike" Mills, of Madisonville, to recommend action on three points: bail-bond procedure, State counsel for the needy, and capital punishment.

Pre-trial release of a person who has been charged with a crime should be determined in my opinion by the nature of the crime and the character of the defendant—not by money. Kentucky judges do have the power to make such releases without bail.

I have known of cases where arrested persons, too poor to make bail, are forced to remain in jail as long as a year awaiting trial. This practice is contrary to our belief that a man is innocent until proven guilty.

The project at the University of Louisville, first got under way September 1 with a $3,000 appropriation made by Jefferson County Judge Marlow Cook. The State money was added later that month. The project at the University of Kentucky started in October, using the State appropriation. The U. of L. project will run through February, the U. of K. project through May.

Procedure in the two projects works like this:

A person is arrested and taken to jail. If the offense is bailable and the person cannot make bail because he does not have the money, the investigating law student checks the charge and the person's previous criminal record, if any. If the record indicates the person is eligible for release, the student interviews him to determine whether he is a good risk to release without putting up bail.

The defendant is asked about his job, whether he supports his family and other questions. His story is checked by telephone with people involved. If the defendant is still considered a good risk, the information is given to the court with a recommendation that the person be paroled on his own word.

When a defendant is so released project staff members then notify him in writing of the date and location of subsequent court appearances. If the parolee is illiterate, a fact that is recorded in the questionnaire, he is telephoned as well as notified by letter.

Dean Marlin Volz of the U. of L. law school, says that a study of the six-months period prior to August 1, 1964, when there was no special help for these people, will be made for a comparison with the project result. He wants to find out how accused people in the respective periods fare and how much money can be saved through the elimination of welfare and jail costs.

Kentucky judges rarely exercise their privilege of paroling without bail a defendant who simply gives his word that he will appear in court for trial. This is because no machinery has existed till now to conduct pre-trial investigations. I am hopeful the task force will develop a plan whereby all judges may be given accurate information on a defendant's background in all bailable cases.

Once a judge has this information, he is in a good position to determine whether an accused person should be released while awaiting trial. If the person is forced to stay in jail because he can't make bail, he may lose his job and further hurt his family. He cannot locate witnesses and his chance of acquittal is reduced. He is often treated like an already-convicted criminal, despite our country's principal that he is presumed innocent until proven guilty.

It is my hope that we can eventually see to it that Kentucky does not unjustly punish the man who is already serving a life sentence of poverty.

We're Lucky To Have No Widespread Juvenile Delinquency... And No Youth Center To Help

The Christmas season is fast approaching when our young people will be on vacation from school for about two weeks. It may come as a distinct shock to you to know that many high school students dread the thought for, they say, "there just isn't anything for us to do; no place to go where we can all be together and have fun."

At our age that seemed a rather unusual statement, because we were of the opinion that young people today have dozens of things to do that were not available to us in the halcyon days of our youth. We found out how wrong we were until we started asking questions about after-school and week-end activities of the young people around us.

Here's what they told us:

SCATTERED PATTTER

About People and Things

If Thanksgiving comes, can Christmas be far behind. Not very, as is indicated by the holiday parties and programs already getting into full swing. Perhaps earliest Christmas party was held Tuesday night when the Business and Professional Women's Club gathered, about 40 strong, to usher in the Christmas merriment by exchanging gifts and having a good time in general. Funny thing about this B&PW Club. Nearly all of its members are working gals, but yet they take on more interesting projects, with success, than you can imagine.

Again this year the club will sponsor a Christmas tour of Fulton homes, where the local florists have a field day decorating the respective homes as the occupants would like to have them done, if that much imagination could be expended. The tour this year will be held on Sunday, December 13 beginning at two o'clock in the afternoon and ending at five p. m. Last year the club initiated the program and would have been delighted had as many as 100 people joined the entourage.

Their expectations were widely exceeded when almost 200 people took advantage of visiting around the homes to take a look at the amazing craftsmanship of our local florists. This year five homes are included in the tour. The homes may be visited in any sequence, however refreshments will be served at Westwood, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Westpheling on West State Line Road. So if you want to have a sip of spiced punch and party food, at the beginning, middle or end of the tour, the choice is yours.

There is no charge for the tour, the ladies laughingly say, but if you want to "buy a donation" for just $1.00 you might get an extra peanut at the refreshment table. (Please laugh here.) No spoofing, the young folks say, you ought to include the Christmas homes tour on your "must" list for December 13. These Fulton florists have all kinds of simply beautiful and heavenly elaborate items to make your home look just right for the Christmas tree, the egg-nog and the visitors.

The homes on the tour and the florists who will decorate them are: Mr. and Mrs. Sammy Haddad, Burcham Street in South Fulton; Scott's Floral Shoppe;

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Jobe, Water Valley; Joy Lynn Flower and Gift Shoppe;

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Jones, 503 Third Street; by Mrs. Jones;

Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell McDade, 401 Third Street; Mac and Fay Florist;

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Westpheling, West State Line; by Ann and Billy Gore at Killebrew's Florist and Gift Shop.

It's awfully nice to go over the hill to grandmother's house for Thanksgiving, but then such absence keeps you from seeing some of the interesting visitors and former home-folks who come here for the holidays. We hated to miss seeing Lorene Hughes over Thanksgiving and to be absent from that lovely party Ann Holland had for Lorene last Friday morning. It was scheduled as a "coffee," but the way we hear it Ann set a bountiful table for the guests who came to chat and reminisce with Lorene.

And there was a lot to talk about with this interesting lady who lived here when her late husband Bud, was manager of the local Southern Bell Telephone Company office and Lorene was secretary of the Chamber of Commerce among many of her worthwhile contributions to the community. We'll bet that "how is so-and-so" and "whatever happened to so-and-so" questions were brought up-to-date as never before. Lorene lives in Louisville now and is as active up there in her job and extra-curricular activities as she was here, and that's saying something.

A lovely, young miss from B-o-s-s-ton got her first view of Kentucky during the Thanksgiving holidays. Chances are she'll be talking about her visit and the

Miss Anna Devere Tate Betrothed To Mr. Gary Edward Williamson

Miss Anna Tate

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Lloyd Tate of Hazard, Kentucky, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Anna Devere Tate to Mr. Gary Edward Williamson of Fulton, Kentucky. Miss Tate, a member of Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority, attends the University of Kentucky.

Mr. Williamson, a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, is a graduate of the University of Kentucky and is now in the Officers Training Program of the United States Air Force.

The wedding will be January 1 in the First Presbyterian Church, Hazard.

southern hospitality shown her for the rest of her life. She'll also have a lot of other words to recount about the weather hazards she encountered in the sunny South trying to get here and departing, too.

Paula Tozzi, a petite and lovely, dark haired lass was scheduled to arrive in Memphis early last Wednesday afternoon for a holiday visit in the Glenn Dunn home on Eddings. Lt. (j. g.) Bobby Dunn was all prepared to be at the airport to meet her at 2:30 p. m. when a call came through early Wednesday that Paula's plane was grounded in Boston, throwing her plane connections in Washington out of kilter. Paula got to Washington somehow, found that the plane she was to take, had her flight been on schedule, was also grounded and she was able to board it, as scheduled, but later. Which meant that she was late leaving Washington, late arriving in Memphis, absent for the small dinner the Duns had planned for Wednesday, and late to meet some friends who had hoped to meet her, but who were leaving town by motor.

Anyway Paula had a fine time meeting all the folks and visiting here. The story should have a happy ending after all that flight delay, but it doesn't. Bobby and Paula left Sunday morning to visit around in Illinois with friends before Paula's flight left St. Louis Sunday night at 7:30 p. m. Luckily Bob heard a weather newscast about the horrible snow-storm in St. Louis so they took off early in the afternoon. It took them four hours to drive 60 miles, with Paula and Bob having to run down the run-way to board that plane. Paula had classes at her college in Newport Monday, making her departure imperative.

Bob's problems are almost anti-climatic. But he had them. He had to spend the night in St. Louis because driving was so hazardous. He had to call his ship and explain his problems. They were nice. Bob came back to Fulton Monday, only to leave Tuesday by air from Paducah.

It gives us air-sickness to think of all that flying and running.

The head of our household might find time to tell you about our trip back from St. Joseph, Missouri in more detail than our poor battered mind can report. Briefly it took us 14 hours to make a trip that normally takes nine. We left St. Joe in weather like Spring, only to get to Columbia, Mo. to find a near blizzard. Crawling along, and that's no understatement, in a bumper-to-bumper traffic line, our speedometer clocked four and one-half miles of cars moving along at about three miles per hour. Instead of tranquilizers we were soothed by dear little Mary Jo who gave us a report on the occumad 'cause the weather stopped them... that couple just got married, look how pleasant they are... those old people have been to see their son at school and they hated to leave him... were the kind of analyses she kept us amused with.

Had she analyzed the occupants of our car she would have said: "The mother in that car is going to konk her daughter if she doesn't stop making like a psychiatrist."

Maybe it's the frenzy of the season that makes the best made plans of mice and men go awry. Annabelle Edwards had a story to contribute to the holiday merry-go-round. Seems as how a friend of Annabelle's called and asked her if she (Annabelle)... intended to spend the week-end in Jackson, Tenn. with her old friend Annabelle Bledsoe. Our Annabelle said she hadn't planned on it, but the person who called just insisted that she go to Jackson and besides that he would take her and bring her back. Well, our Annabelle wanted to go all right, but hadn't intended to, but finally made plans to go. Waiting with bag and baggage in hand Friday night she waited, and waited and waited, yet no good samaritan came. Annabelle didn't want to disappoint Annabelle so Annabelle took the bus to Jackson Saturday morning. Some friend, we'd say.

The way we hear it, there's liable to be a mass exodus to Europe this summer. The incentive seems to be the 60-voice Murray State College Choir that plans to leave in June for a singing and sight-seeing tour of the continent. We hope said plans materialize. We've been planning such a family trip for some years now, but an unexpected expenditure always delays the trip. If some of these folks who intend to go need bus boys, baggage carriers, chaperones, reading companions, or secretaries just call this agency, we can supply them all. We're sort of like Paladin... "have urge, will travel."

citing selection of Christmas gifts is at its freshest and best, right now. Stores are bright and glowing with the happy, heart-warming spirit of Christmas, and brimming with hundreds of ideas for making Christmas merrier — everything from wonderful new gifts to tree ornaments and decorations.

If any further reason is needed for shopping early, Santa points to the calendar. Again this year, Thanksgiving was late, occurring near the end of the month, on November 26.

Thus the "traditional" after-Thanksgiving shopping season offers only 24 shopping days till Christmas—two days more than last year, it's true, but still all too few. For those who don't want to be hurried and harried by the last minute rush, it's wise to start early.

There are literally hundreds of story and picture suggestions for gifts, and in addition, stores have taken advertising space to present the highlights of their Christmas collections, ready for your early selection.

Because Christmas and children go together, one logical place to begin shopping is in local Toylands, where parents as well as children will find much to marvel at.

Talking, walking dolls, more lifelike than ever, often have complete wardrobes, furniture, cars—even their own pets. Toys and games inspire creativity, and are just for fun, too. Many toys have a historical story to tell. While others reflect today's living.

Gifts that bring happiness and comfort to everyone in the family take a high place on most Christmas lists. This year a wealth of furniture and furnishings, appliances and home entertainment aids bid for attention from Santa's helpers.

These include the big gifts such as a new sofa, an electric dishwasher, a color TV set or hi-fi stereo components, "from the family to the family," and smaller personal presents as well — perhaps a tea cart for Mother, or a portable transistor radio for almost anybody!

Jewelry stores, too, offer Santa-inspired selection of enduring gifts for the whole family or any of its members.

For the women on the list, Santa suggests gifts of fashion, which combine practicality and glamour to serve feminine needs, tastes, wishes.

Men, traditionally hard to gift, have obliged Santa and his helpers by continually adding to their interests. Now, aside from apparel, the categories of sports, business, travel, hobbies, leisure are just a man's Christmas.

Since practically everybody has a hobby these days, hobby shops and departments provide the Christmas giver with a host of suggestions. Photographic gifts, for instance, include both an interesting array of new cameras and a variety of practical gadgets.

With all this to choose from, Christmas shoppers are indeed wise to start early and get the full benefit of this season's more extensive opportunities for happy gifting.

Breathitt Reissues Antibias Order; Tightens Contract Items

Governor Edward T. Breathitt last week reissued a Governor's code of fair practices prohibiting discrimination in State Government.

Kentucky's original antibias order, the first by a Southern state, was issued in March 1963, by then Governor Bert T. Combs.

Breathitt's new order supplanting it is almost identical, making changes only in the preamble and in provisions relating to contractors who do business with the State.

The sections covering State employment and job opportunity, financial assistance, licensing, vocational and other training programs, and facilities such as parks and hospitals were not changed by the new order.

The code's article governing contractors requires the following provision in every state contract for goods or services:

"During the performance of this contract the contractor agrees as follows:

"(1). The contractor will not discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment because of race, creed, color, or national origin.

The contractor will take affirmative action to ensure that applicants are employed, and that employees are treated during employment without regard to their race, creed, color, or national origin. Such action shall include, but not be limited to the following: Employment, upgrading, demotion or transfer; recruitment or recruitment advertising; layoff or termination; rates of pay or other terms of compensation, and selection for training, including apprenticeship.

The contractor agrees to post in conspicuous places, available to employees and applicants for employment, notices to be provided setting forth the provisions of this nondiscrimination clause.

"(2). The contractor will, in all solicitations or advertisements for employees placed by or on behalf of the contractor, state that all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, creed, color, or national origin.

"(3). The contractor will send to each labor union or representative of workers with which he has a collective-bargaining agreement or other contract or understanding, a notice to be provided advising the said labor union or workers representative of the contractor's commitments under this section, and shall post copies of the notice in conspicuous places available to employees and applicants for employment.

The contractor will take such action with respect to any subcontract or purchase order as the administering agency may direct as a means of enforcing such provisions, including sanctions for noncompliance."

Teachers Urged To Teach More Traffic Safety

Governor Edward T. Breathitt said recently that he believes every elementary school teacher in the state should spend "a few minutes a week" on school traffic safety programs.

"Highway safety education in schools should start the day a child first enters the classroom," the Governor said.

"He should be taught how to use sidewalks, how to cross the street, and which side of the road to walk on.

"When he begins to ride a bicycle, he should be made to understand that the motor vehicle laws apply to him and he must have a knowledge of these laws." Breathitt said a youth must obey stop signs and traffic lights, give directional signals, drive on the right side of the road, grant right of way to pedestrians and develop good riding habits.

"This training and these habits and attitudes will carry over into his entire automobile driving life," he pointed out.

The Governor said he is certain that most of this training is already being given in the state's schools but, he said, "We need 100 per cent participation."

Hickman County Night Classes For Young Men

Clinton, Ky.—Night vocational training courses are being planned at Hickman County High School for young men who are not enrolled in the day classes.

An organizational meeting for the classes was held Monday at 7 p. m. in the agriculture department of the school, according to Wayne Hurd and Earl Bolin, vocational agriculture teachers. They will teach the classes.

Subject matter, time of classes and day of meeting will be determined by the majority of those who will be entering the classes.

No grades are recorded, but attendance will be kept and certificates will be given to those who attend regularly and show progress.

More Counties Levy Taxes For Library Service

Two more counties, Whitley and Green, have established library districts and levied a small property tax for library service through petitions, State Librarian Margaret Willis has reported.

Both counties levied a tax of 10 cents on each $100 of assessed property valuation. These local funds, which will become available in 1966 and annually thereafter, will enable the two counties to qualify for Federal grants for construction or remodeling of their local library quarters, Miss Willis said.

In addition, Green County will retain a Bookmobile, Bookmobile books and other library materials that were provided by the State Department of Libraries on a demonstration basis, and Whitley County will now receive these same aids.

The department will provide additional books and materials to both counties at regular intervals, along with annual State grants to improve the local library programs.

The new revenue will be controlled locally by the District Library Board. Four counties—Meade, Washington, Union, and Clinton—previously circulated successful petitions under a new State law which went into effect June 19.

John Kennedy Is Never Alone On Arlington Hill

ARLINGTON, Va. — In the year since he was laid to rest on Arlington's hill of heroes, he has never been alone.

Day or night, winter or summer, someone always comes.

On sunlit summer Sundays, when the breeze off the Potomac stirs the languid air like a benediction, as many as 50,000 may come, lining the walks for hours as far back as Memorial Bridge.

On fine fall afternoons, when leaves rustle across the lawn of the old Custis-Lee mansion up on the hill and squirrels go bounding over the squat military headstones, the parking lot is filled with chartered buses and the gravesite carpeted with wreaths and flowers brought by church and fraternal groups.

No matter what the weather, someone always comes.

On days of pelting rain and driving sleet, when the cemetery crows nestle low in the hedges behind the mast of the battleship Maine, the procession of bobbing umbrellas up to the white-fenced enclosure seldom numbers less than 3,000 mourners. On weekends, no matter how inclement, never less than 8,000.

Even on the bleakest of winter nights, when the north wind shrieks down the long rows of tombstones on the frozen slope and the snow piles up in a little ridge on the collar of the sentry silhouetted in the soft blue grave lights, someone always comes.

Military police on duty at the grave can't recall a night when a car didn't stop on the roadway below and a shivering motorist, perhaps a postman on his way to work or a waitress heading home, get out to stare silently through the locked gates at the eternal flame flickering up on the hill.

Sometimes, long after the cemetery has closed for the night, the widow comes, a tragic figure kneeling in the moonlight or under stars fierce with frost by the graves of her husband and two of their children. The last time she came, in summer just before moving to New York, the sergeant who let her in handed her one of the dozens of mementos left on the grave that day.

It was a piece of needlepoint, set in a cheap frame, anonymously but lovingly executed with a line from Tennyson:

"So sad, so fresh, the days that are no more."

Hardly a day goes by without someone leaving a poem, quoted or home made, on the grave. Hardly an hour goes by without someone leaving a medal, a rosary or a religious picture. Every 15 minutes crack troops from the 3rd Infantry — "Old Guard" — flawless in dress blues and white gloves, escort some groups up the hill to place another wreath. By evening, there are always 25 or 30 more. Every morning caretaker William Robertson removes the withered wreaths.

John Fitzgerald Kennedy, 35th president of the United States, is never alone on Arlington's heights.

Compelled by an emotion they cannot explain, drawn by a duty and a loss they feel but cannot express, people come from all over the country, all over the world, to pay their respects. In the past 12 months, 7.6 million mourners have filed past the grave.

Chandler Beard Faces Charges Of Obtaining Money Under Pretense

Chandler Beard, former resident of Dresden, where he operated an automobile agency, was indicted last week at Nashville on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses. The indictment was handed down by the Davidson County Grand Jury. Indicted with Beard was Harold A. Wiggins of Atlanta, Georgia, a former salesman at Beard's Nashville auto agency.

Davidson County Assistant District Attorney Paul Bumpus said that Beard and Wiggins will probably be tried early next year.

The indictment against the two men involves the sale of a $3,800 automobile last year to Jose Elmiro Vela of Caracas, Venezuela. Vela, who was attending Vanderbilt University at the time, has since returned to his home in Venezuela.

"He will return to Nashville expressly for the purpose of prosecuting Beard and Wiggins at the trial," Att. Bumpus said.

The charges against the pair allege that a 1962 model sports coupe was purchased by Vela on February 18, 1963, at Beard Motors, Inc., where Beard was president and Wiggins was a salesman. Vela said that he made a $1,500 down payment on the car, arranging to take care of the balance in periodic payments. He made his last payment this month with a personal check.

Vela later went to Washington where his car was reported missing.

Police there learned that the title of the car was in the possession of Harold Winstead of Dresden where Beard lived for 15 years and operated an automobile agency. The police said it was learned that the title was being transferred to another person, still unidentified.

Before moving to Nashville, Mr. Beard operated an automobile agency in Dresden for a number of years. He later owned the West Tennessee Gravel Company, which was also located in Dresden and which ended operations three years ago. He later moved to Nashville, where he became president of Beard Motors, Inc. The company is now closed.

Beard was jailed Sunday night after a deputy sheriff accused him of throwing a brick at a car.

Beard was to appear in court to face charges of assault with a brick, malicious destruction of property and drunkenness.

Deputy Sheriff Chester Armes said Beard denied his car with a brick when he went to his home to serve an execution judgment warrant on him.

Ashland Oil Giving Away Yule Candles

Ashland Oil service station dealers are giving away a heap of candles — more than 150 tons of them, in fact.

That's enough candlepower to light Yankee Stadium for a night baseball game, or enough to stretch from New York City to Pittsburgh, if placed end to end.

Between now and the first of next year, customers will receive a free tapered red candle with a purchase of seven or more gallons of gasoline.

The offer is in keeping with the Thanksgiving-Christmas holiday, and also is symbolic of Ashland Oil & Refining Company's 40th anniversary, which is being celebrated this year.

Canadian Growth To Surpass U. S.

Ottawa — Canada's economic growth, as measured in gross national production, will lead both the United States and the Common Market in 1964, economists say. The increases in the G. N. P. are: Canada, seven percent; the United States, 6.8 percent, and the six European nations, 4.5 percent.

TVA FARMS, HOMES USE MORE POWER

KNOXVILLE — Farms and homes served with Tennessee Valley Authority electricity used an average of 10,818 kilowatt-hours each in fiscal 1964, an increase of about 400 kwh from the previous year and nearly 2 1-2 times the national average home use.

earlier and in greater numbers, and similar results were noted for cucumber, spinach, and radish crops.

Kentucky Farm Bureau Honors Smith Broadbent For Tremendous 29-Year Farm Service Record

Smith D. Broadbent, Jr., a Trigg County farmer active in service to Kentucky agriculture for 29 years, received the sixth Kentucky Farm Bureau distinguished service to Kentucky agriculture Tuesday night. He was nominated for the honor by the

The award is given annually to the person doing the most to advance the cause of agriculture and farm living in Kentucky through leadership and service to Kentucky agriculture.

Broadbent, who received his Masters Degree in agriculture from the University of Kentucky in 1935, served as president of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation in 1941. He was president of the Trigg County Farm Bureau from 1937 to 1943, and a director of Trigg County Farm Bureau from 1937 to 1962.

Broadbent also was president of the Kentucky State Fair Board from 1949 to 1959, president of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce in 1962, president of the Kentucky Seed Improvement Association from 1950 to 1964, president of the Kentucky Seed Stocks, Inc. from 1952 to 1956, president of the Thomas P. Cooper Foundation in 1960 and president of the Kentucky Agricultural Council in 1958. He was a member of the National Tobacco Research Advisory Committee from 1956 to 1962, a member of the National Tobacco Advisory Committee in 1963 and a member of the National Cattle Advisory Committee in 1964.

In addition to these many and varied agricultural activities, Broadbent has been active in many other fields. He has served on the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees, University of Kentucky, in 1952, 1956 and 1960, and the Executive Committee, University of Kentucky Alumni Association from 1958 to 1962. He also has served as trustee, Kentucky Wesleyan College, in 1958.

He is a member of the Lions Club, Pendergast Club, a Mason and a member of the AOPA (Pilots Association).

Farmer in 1955, he operates several thousand acres of Trigg County land producing wheat, tobacco, cattle, hogs and 1,500 acres of hybrid seed corn. As owner of Broadbent Hybrids, he developed and produced many corn varieties which have been of great benefit to Kentucky farmers.

The tremendous energy which Broadbent can bring to bear on the problems of Kentucky agriculture is typified by his getting up at 4 a. m., getting the work started on his farms, then flying his plane to Louisville or Lexington to a board meeting by 10 a. m.

But many and varied as these activities are, perhaps his most lasting contribution to the long-run future of agriculture in Kentucky is the fact that his two sons are trained, dedicated young farmers who are taking up and will continue his work of good farming and service to Kentucky agriculture.

Farm Bureau President Jack Welch presented Broadbent a special certificate and an engraved gold wrist watch.

Breathitt Plans State Meeting For Farmers

Governor Edward T. Breathitt has announced a statewide Governor's Conference on Agriculture to be held in Louisville February 3-4.

The conference will deal primarily with his administration's plan to raise Kentucky's annual farm income to $1 billion, Breathitt said.

The Kentucky Agricultural Development Commission will give a progress report on the goal and discuss its plans and proposals at the conference.

Breathitt said several farm-industrialists will be on the program to outline the part they and farmers can play in the over-all development of the state's agricultural economy.

With JIM PRYOR
Agricultural Agent, Illinois Central Railroad

During the year I have been holding soil testing demonstrations with the Illinois Central Mobile Soils Testing Laboratory in co-operation with County Agent and Vocational Agriculture Departments. I am finding many who do not fully understand how to take a soil sample and care for it until it is left with the testing agency. It is very difficult for a County Agent or Vocational Agriculture teacher to contact every farm and give personal instruction as to the method of handling a soil sample properly. I would like to take a little time today on this most important problem.

First of all, a soil sample should consist of at least 10 borings or cores, each coming from different sections of a field not more than 10 acres in size. If a 10 acre plot has two or more levels or has been treated differently, more than one sample should be taken, with each sample containing 10 cores. The core should be at least 6 to 7 inches deep. Actually, the top 6 inches of soil is about all we are farming now and at least 90 percent of the feeder roots are within this area.

The tools used in taking the sample are very important too. The three most common tools are the soil auger, soil tube, and spade or shovel. Most agriculture workers agree that the soil tube will take the best sample for the farmer or student. The soil auger tends to turn out soil unless properly used. All farms have a shovel and you can take just as good a sample with it as any other tool, however, make sure it has been cleaned before going to the field. In taking a shovel sample, remove a spade of soil then slice away the sides until the core is about 2 inches thick and 2 inches wide, and 6 inches deep. Remove the top vegetation and you have the first of ten cores. Avoid old house and barn sites, spots where the grass is taller, and bare places. Get the samples from representative areas if possible. Mix the ten cores and let them dry without artificial heat. Keep the sample protected from anything that may blow on the soil. Do not smoke when taking a sample.

The containers for samples should be clean. Do not use glass jars especially pickle jars because the vinegar will give an acid reading to the test. The laboratory can test only what is brought in, so be sure you have a sample that is free from contamination. The laboratory needs only about 1-2 pint of soil for the tests and then only used a spoon full for each test, so you can see we must do the best job possible in taking the cores, mixing and drying them and bringing them in for testing.

The history of a field is of great importance. Different fertilizers will not react the same way in the soil. Applications of rock phosphate as long ago as 8 to 10 year will give a fair reading in the test tube today. If you applied agriculture limestone last spring, the fall sample should have this reported since limestone becomes available very slowly. It is very important that the County Agent have this information in order to recommend the proper amount of plant food for the crop you intend to produce. Remember this,

Death Of Fred Sawyer Is Shock To Community That Loved Him

By Jo Westpheling
Fred Sawyer, a quiet, soft-spoken and congenial man, whose friends were legion, died at his home in Highlands last Friday morning. He was having breakfast about 8:30 a. m. when he was seized with a heart attack and passed away suddenly.

It can be said that Ruby and Fred Sawyer have always been our neighbors. When first arriving in Fulton our businesses were in the same block on Fourth Street. A few years later we moved to Highlands and our homes were within a block of each other. In those early years, when Sawyer's Market was across the street from the News office we went into the grocery store more than usual simply because that friendly smile, that pleasant greeting and words of encouragement were always ready for the new editors who had come to town.

It is noteworthy in our lives too, that when we visited around Washington before we came here for information about people we would like to know, Fred Sawyer's name was given us as a man who would help us to know the town, its people and its customs. We never told Fred this until years after we came here. We didn't have to. He offered his help, just as he gave it to scores of others who were shocked and saddened by his untimely death.

If ever it could be said that a person was a true family man, it was Fred Sawyer. He was devoted to his wife and two sons and made it possible to be around them every spare moment. What is more his family reciprocated, for his wife, and later his sons, at intervals joined him in his business.

When the Sawyers decided to go out of the grocery business, it was like closing the important chapter in the lives of many, many families around the area. We remember the remark of one of his customers and close friends, and all of them were both. She said: "I don't think I can plan a meal anymore without Fred Sawyer."

After closing the grocery store in Highlands he told this reporter: "I'm sure I'll miss doing the same thing I've done for so many years, but what I'll miss more is seeing and talking with so many wonderful people every day." Fred similarly expressed the opinion of people who talked with him, too.

At his death Fred was a salesman for A. Huddleston Company. That was a nice thing for Fulton and for the Huddleston Company, since the hardware company is an area landmark too. Old friends who had formed the habit of trading with Sawyer's Market have the habit of trading with the long-established, home-owned hardware and electrical firm. It was a most happy relationship for all concerned.

Fred was born in Ruthville, Tenn. November 22, 1908. He was the son of the late Roy and Annie Nora Reeves Sawyer.

Funeral services were held on November 29 in the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, of which he was a member, with Rev. Glenn Kapperman officiating. Interment, in charge of Hornbeak Funeral Home, was in Obion County Memorial Gardens.

He was an elder in his church. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Ruby Alexander Sawyer; two sons, Charles Sawyer of Milan, Tenn., and Leroy Sawyer of Savannah, Tenn.; three grandchildren, one brother and one sister.

James Hurt, Tommy Lynn Bring Laurels To Fulton's Football Team

By Paul Westpheling, III

James Hurt, a 5'10", 175 pound senior, and Tommy Lynn, a 5'8", 180 pound senior, placed on the West Kentucky Conference team of 1964.

James, who lives with his aunt, Mrs. Shelton Bowman, scored 36 points for Fulton for 5 touchdowns and 6 extra points. James is 16 years old and this was his second year of play with the Bulldogs. He is the kind of boy every coach wants to have on his team. Backfield Coach Jim West of Murray said, "Although James' average for ball carrying isn't very high, you can always count on him for the one or two yards needed at a crucial moment." When James played, he played with all his heart. When someone told him to do a job, he did it then.

James also made the W. K. C. team, in addition to the W. K. class "A" team.

Tommy is the son of Mrs. Betty Lynn of Fulton. He is a 17-year old senior at Fulton High School. He is one of the most improved players on the football team this year. He is also one of the most consistent players on the team. If we had eleven more players like Tommy Lynn, with his determination, we would have one of the most determined and consistent ball clubs in Kentucky.

The News wishes to congratulate James Hurt and Tommy Lynn for a wonderful 1964 football season. Tommy made the W. K. C. class "A" team.

Stepping aside from football, the Fulton City Bulldogs will open their basketball season on Friday night, December 4, against Fulton County, there. The probable starters for the 1964 season will be Lloyd Bone and David Mann at forward. Richard Fry will be the center and Greg Williamson and Donnie Green at guard.

The probable "B" team starters will have Mike Stevens and Rodney Foster as guards. The other three positions will be filled from Mike Butts, Mike Gargus, Henry Armstrong or Steven Alexander. We wish the Bulldogs luck at the opening game of the 1964-65 season.

Another outstanding athlete from Fulton, Charlie Forrest has received honorable mention on the Associated Press' Little All-America team. Forrest, attending Murray State College plays quarterback.

Meanwhile across the border South Fulton's Red Devils have had hard sledding since they opened their cage season on December 1, but the Devils let the firing up the hardwood. Having played six games so far the Red Devils have lost five and the Devils have won 'em all. The teams will play Martin on December 5 there and Fulton County at Hickman on December 8.

CHESTNUT GLADE

By Mrs. Harvey Vaughn

Of interest to all farmers in the nation is the Agricultural Census that is in progress during the remainder of this year. In this community the census collection will begin December 2. Many have reported that they have finished preparing the questionnaire they received in the mail a few days ago. This is a very good method, as it will take so much less time when the census taker calls. All information prepared for census will be very useful in a short time after the first of the year for incoming filing. It will be most helpful to carefully read all information on the questionnaire when filling it out. Mrs. Harvey Vaughn spent four days last week, working a self-study course, preparing to be able to answer questions concerning the questionnaire and learned where the answers which she does not know can be found. She will be glad to assist in answering any questions that may arise.

A family Thanksgiving dinner was enjoyed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Verhines. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Van Brann and Emil Schmidt of Memphis; Hoyt Vaughan of Hollday, Tenn.; Mrs. Earl Gossum and David, Mrs. Dick Gossum and daughter of Calvert City, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. Darrel Wright and Mike, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Vaughan. They enjoyed a telephone call to Opal Pounds in Parsons, Kansas. Mrs. Pounds and the Folles family were happy to have Ann, her husband and little son from Milwaukee, Wisconsin, to spend the holidays with them.

Everyone was shocked Thursday morning when they learned that Connie Seay had died from a heart attack. He had sold his milk route several weeks ago due to the heart condition, but had not been a shut-in. Funeral service was Friday at Pisgah, where he was a member. Burial was at New Hope, in this community.

Mrs. Elnora Vaughan spent the week end with Mrs. Vera Simmons and family. Mrs. Simmons has been a shut-in for several months and is unimproved.

REGULAR CHURCH WORSHIP

"I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord."

PARENTS' RESPONSIBILITY

"Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it." Proverbs 22:6

Ask anyone what his most precious possession is, and he will almost invariably say, "My children." The desire for the welfare of our children enables us to "move mountains". We will do anything, give them anything, if we think it will help them.

The one most important thing we can do for them, however, is to instill in them a love of God, and a desire to obey him. The church can help you in this endeavor, inspire and strengthen you. We invite you to take your family to church this week. It may make a great difference in the life direction taken by your children.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

The expansion by Bay Bee into this new shoe line and the additional warehouse space will create jobs for an additional 75-100 people. This new structure that will be of metal type construction, is being located on a 5 acre tract of land recently acquired by the company that adjoins their present property. A new office building is contemplated in the near future to be located south of their present plant.

This will be the sixth addition to the company's plant in Dresden since they opened operation in a 11,500 sq. ft. building in 1948 with 35 employees. With the addition under construction they will have 75,000 sq. ft. of space and will be employing between 400 to 425 people.
