Best Answer To Need For Industrial Park Here Is Illustrated By These Success Stories

Fulton wants new business and new industry. Kentucky wants new jobs, and wants them enough to work for them and to provide the kind of environment industry needs.

In a recent statewide survey Kentuckians were asked "What single thing is most important to Kentucky's future progress and development?" Forty-six percent answered "More Jobs and Industry."

Perhaps the most important contribution of local development corporations in Kentucky is their control and development of industrial sites. This makes it possible to offer a developed site package complete with price.

Kentucky wants the kind of growth that new industry and new jobs provide. That's why private business, local development groups, and the Kentucky State Government have gotten together to keep Kentucky attractive and profitable for industry; to provide continuing assistance to existing industry and to give you every fact you need to explore Kentucky's profit opportunities.

At the core of the Kentucky industrial effort is the Department of Commerce — equipped with brainpower, skills, and experience to match the nation's best.

The newly formed Kentucky Industrial Development Association, working closely with many State agencies is doing a tremendous amount of work to get our cities in the position to compete with thousands of other cities to meet the demands made by industrial site-seekers.

There may be those who may not view the establishment of an industrial park in Fulton as a "must" for attracting industry. The best answer we can give to the skeptics may be found in communications received here by Mrs. Ward Bushart, president of the Twin-City Industrial Committee and also secretary of the newly formed KIDA.

407 Third Street
Fulton, Kentucky

Dear Mrs. Bushart:

In Kentucky there are approximately 45 communities which own industrial property ranging in size from the 800 plus acres in northern Kentucky to a 1 acre tract in a small community.

A recap of the South Kentucky area shows the following foundations and acres owned:

Communities	Acres
Monticello	50
Glasgow	132
Bowling Green	198
Leitchfield	21
Elkton	75
Hopkinsville	175
(3 year option)
Princeton	57
Cadiz	3
Murray	56
(2 tracts)
Bardwell	106
Dawson Springs	50
Paducah	50
(approximately -this is in urban renewal area)

The success stories go something like this:

Scottsville last year sold their last 12 acres to New Castle Industries.

Glasgow has purchased their second tract, the first having been sold several years ago. Two new industries, P. R. Mallory and Tyson Bearings, announced in Glasgow in 1964; however, neither used the foundation property.

Bowling Green sold their original 119 acres to Wren Products, Cutler-Hammer, Master Vibrator, and Humble Oil Company. Just recently they purchased another 198 acres.

Elkton has owned their approximately 75 acres since 1960. Last year Rockwell announced a new plant in Elkton. This foundation property was not chosen as their site.

Dawson Springs sold a portion of their property to Mid-South Plastics.

Princeton owns 57 acres adjacent to Arvin Industries which located on their foundation property.

It is almost a necessity these days to have a developed site which is immediately available at an established price. Those who are charged with plant location work certainly look with more favor on any community that does own their land. Those that have a developed site will get more "lookers" and, consequently, have more opportunity to sell their communities.

We hope these brief facts and the enclosed material will give you a little fuel for your publicity. If we can sit down with you and discuss any of this in more detail, just let us know.

Warm personal regards.

Very truly yours,
Leonard C. Neff, Jr.

Observance Of Lincoln's Birthday Recalls Famed "House Divided Speech 1858" Urging Courage

This time of year the minds of many Kentuckians go back to that snowy day on February 12, 1809 when Abraham Lincoln was born in a log cabin near Hodgenville.

One of Lincoln's assets was his ability to express profound truths in simple language. On this 156th anniversary of his birth, we do well to recall his famous house-divided speech in 1858:

"If we could first know where we are, and whither we are tending (going), we could better judge what to do, and how to do it."

This is a question on many minds today: who are we, and where are we going? We may not always say it that way, but that's the sentiment of our hearts. As one teenager asked, "What do good grades mean? And what if I go along, get married, have a good job and raise kids? Do we know what it is all about?"

Compare the teenager's question with that of Lincoln asked over a century ago, and you note they are very similar: Who are we, where are we going?

One explanation of Jesus' popularity with the common people was his ability as a teacher to help each listener feel he was somebody. On one occasion he reminded them that God knows even the number of hairs on a man's head, and that not a sparrow falls without his knowledge. When you and I grasp the fact that man is more than a mere speck of cosmic dust in a universe void of feeling or purpose, we are on the way to self-realization and self-fulfillment. Not all the way, mind you, but on the way!

100 Years Ago This Week

An historical review of the Civil War day by day in Kentucky, as reviewed by the Kentucky Civil War Commission
By JOE JORDAN

One hundred years ago this week, Gov. Thomas E. Bramlette transmitted to the Kentucky legislature a joint resolution of the United States Congress proposing an amendment to the Constitution abolishing slavery. The governor did not make a recommendation that Kentucky ratify the amendment, but he did state arguments that had been advanced in favor of ratification.

The message pointed out that an 1833 act abolishing slavery in Great Britain had appropriated 20,000,000 pounds (then equivalent to nearly $100,000,000) to compensate the owners. "It cannot be," Bramlette said, "that our government will be less just, if we accept the amendment upon condition that the assessed value of 1864 be paid to the state to compensate owners who are to be affected by the proposed amendment. Our slave property was assessed for taxation in 1860, before the war began, at a total of $107,494,527. In 1863 the effect of rebellion and unfriendly legislation reduced the valuation to $57,511,770, and in 1864 to $34,179,246."

The message got a cool reception, and it was apparent at once that there was no enthusiasm among the legislators for taking any action favorable to abolition. Members of the General Assembly were overwhelmingly in favor of the Union, but Kentucky Unionists in general had taken that side because they favored preserving the Union and not because they were opposed to slavery. An attempt to pass the question to the voters was made in a resolution offered in the House of Representatives by E. H. Smith of Grant County to conduct a referendum at the August election but no action was taken on it. The Louisville Journal of February 10 announced: "Maj. Gen. John M. Palmer of Illinois has been appointed to command in Kentucky. Thank God and President Lincoln!" It was not because of any admiration for Palmer that the newspaper was rejoicing, but because the appointment of a new commander of the Military District of Kentucky meant an end to the rule of Maj. Gen. Stephen G. Burbridge, who had been in command since February 15, 1864. In an article published last year in the Register of the Kentucky Historical Society, L. L. Valentine, president and general manager of the Franklin Favorite, asserted that Burbridge's assuming command marked "the beginning of the blackest and bloodiest year in Kentucky history." That was the year which was about to come to an end 100 years ago this week.

Among the Confederate soldiers who were prisoners of war at Camp Douglas, in Illinois, were 1663 Kentuckians. During the week under review a poll was taken to find out how many of them would wish to return to Confederate Army service if exchanges could be arranged. It was announced that 1422, more than 85 per cent of them still wanted to resume fighting for the South.

H-BOMBS

One Internal Revenue agent was momentarily shocked by a telephone question from a lady who asked how she should report a certain type of interest.

"Interest on what?" asked the agent.

"H-Bombs," answered the lady.

"What was that again?" asked the agent.

"I'm sorry," said the lady, "I meant H Bonds."

Kentucky Windage

Education is a wonderful thing these days, but I found out something last weekend that kind of startled me. Twenty-five years ago I had a college degree from a highly-rated journalism school, and I was educated, and I was right up to snuff. But now, after doing practical work in journalism, and radio, and communications, and advertising of various sorts, I find I am nearly completely uneducated. And here I thought I had been making progress, and instead have been going backwards.

I arrived at this startling conclusion after spending last weekend at the University of Kentucky at a Journalism symposium attended by college professors from around the country. At the sessions I attended some of them unloaded their current formulas and conclusions and their projections and their frameworks for action, and this stuff is so far beyond my world of operations I have concluded that my alleged education has completely disappeared.

Education at the college level and post-grad level in public communications (radio, TV, newspaper, etc.) deals with reactions and behavior patterns of huge masses of people, the professors tell us. So when they talk about a TV program having an audience of 50 million, or ditto for a radio network, or even a newspaper with a circulation of a half million, they talk in terms of behavior patterns, and motivations, and they get out their computing machines to figure out how many million people will do such if they say such, and how many additional more million will react thusly if they change their pitch thusly. In dealing with masses, everything has to be reduced to a mathematical formula that can be fed into a computing machine, it seems.

It makes one feel a little silly to realize that there is so much thing as an "individual" any more. You and I, my friend, are only statistics to anyone engaged in the mass public communication field! "Of this sounds crazy, but it is true, and while I have to laugh at it a bit, I still respect it and don't belittle our young people who are getting educated thusly. College graduates in the public communications field are going to tremendous jobs right off the bat, and at UK they tell me that starting salaries right out of college start as high as $150 a week, so more power to them, and to any of you who read this who may have college ahead of you.

I don't mind anything going up except the national debt. And I wonder when the time will ever come when it will dawn on our national congress that they cannot spend more each year than they take in and still stay solvent; I'd like for someone to feed that fact into a computer sometime and see what kind of an answer comes out.

I think it's a whole lot more enjoyable these days running a small paper and being able to treat people like human beings rather than statistics. If I want to find out what's going on, I can take a swing up Lake Street and across the tracks, and out to the edge of town and I'll have a pretty good opinion in an hour. And on a lot of things I don't even need to go ask anybody at all, just use common sense reasoning. But on the national scene, it isn't so easy. You hire a poll-taking organization, and they sample public opinion, and they put that in a computing machine, and they have to add "variables" that have influenced opinions, such as the fact that the weather may be below zero, and the Viet Cong have just bombed a U. S. barracks, and the President has a cold, and it is near tax-paying time, and that Vice-President Humphrey should have gone to the Churchill funeral, etc., etc. Kinda like mixing up a salad with a lot of ingredients, and then putting it in the sausage grinder and what comes out is the answer, correctly flavored to the moment.

I could go on and on. I got real educated last weekend.

Seriously, Dr. Oswald and the entire University of Kentucky have a fine program mapped for 1965 honoring the 100th year of UK. The Centennial will be a broad affair extending into many activities, and I am sure that all UK alumni everywhere will boost the observance all they can. UK has a strong program of advancement mapped to start off its next 100 years and is going places. And if you've been out of school very long, you ought to go back and discover just how uneducated you are. Nothing happens like it used to.

AUSTIN SPRINGS

Mrs. T. T. Harris returned to her home near here on Saturday from Hillview Hospital, where she underwent surgery a few weeks ago. She is resting quite comfortably at this writing, which all her many friends will be glad to know.

Mrs. Mary Bynum has undergone surgery in a Mayfield hospital and is reported to be as well as expected, so we send "Get Well" wishes to her that she may very quickly be restored to former health.

Profound sympathy is extended to the family of Ambrose McClain, 64, whose death occurred the past week, following a heart attack. Funeral services were held at Rhodes Chapel church and burial in Williams Cemetery, with Jackson's Funeral Home in charge of all the arrangements.

Mrs. Haldon Glover is reported to be resting more comfortably at her home near here, where she has been very ill the past few weeks.

Miss Margaret Bynum was indisposed the past week, due to a siege of cold.

Rev. Russell Rodgers filled his regular appointment at New Salem Baptist Church the past Sunday at 11 a. m., also the evening service following the BTU service.

"Get Well" wishes are sent to Bunis Westbrook, who had surgery in Western Baptist Hospital in Paducah several days ago. Mr. Westbrook was a former resident of this section.

It's amazing how happy the birds, our feathered friends, are. There comes a warmer day when they flitter here and there chirping, singing their spring-like songs, after a siege of cold, snowy, icy weather, when there is no food available. I hope my friends and all readers of this column found time to put out some food for the little creatures only a week ago.

'I Want A Recipe'

by Camille Glenn

Dear Camille,

A few months ago we were visiting a friend of mine who lives in Quebec. While there she served a most exciting dish called Quiche Lorraine. We call it cheese pie, but it was not sweet. Do tell me something about it. It was d-e-l-i-c-i-o-u-s!

L. E.

Quiche Lorraine (Keesh-Loh-rain) is a very old and time-honored French tart or pie made of eggs, cream and smoked bacon and cooked in a crust; it is great. . . really great! In Lorraine, France where it originated it is served as an hors d'oeuvre or as a snack. We add cheese to the mixture just as they do in Switzerland and serve it as an entree. I can think of nothing that is more delicious and exciting for a luncheon, an informal Sunday night supper, or for your own deserving self than . . .

CHEESE PIE

(Quiche Lorraine)
Pie Crust For Nine-Inch Pie
1/2 Lb. Cheese (Swiss, Gruyere or sharp Cheddar)
1 tablespoon Flour
1 Cup Cream or Milk
3 Eggs (whole)
Salt and Cayenne Pepper to taste

Line pie pan with your favorite flaky crust. Pick crust with a fork to keep it from popping up and leaving the pan or cover the crust with oil paper and weigh it down with dried beans or rice while cooking.

Bake in a PREHEATED 450 degrees oven for 10-15 minutes or until crust is a very light brown. Remove the oil paper and beans a few minutes before it is done.

Grate or shred cheese and dredge with 1 tablespoon flour. Distribute the cheese in the bottom of the cooled crust. Beat eggs until fluffy. Add cream or milk. Mix. Salt and pepper to taste. Pour over the cheese. Set in a PREHEATED 325 degree oven for approximately 30 minutes or until the custard tests done. Insert a knife in the custard; when the custard no longer sticks to the knife, it is done. Serve hot or cold. Quiche can be baked early and heated again at the finish line. Here is a menu that I love, and all of it is "do ahead" . . . elegant and easy.

Black Bean Soup (with a slice of lemon and Sherry)
Cold Asparagus Salad (with vinaigrette dressing)
Cheese Pie
Fresh Fruit in Season
Coffee

HINTS

When Quiche Lorraine is made with cheese, it usually calls for Swiss or Gruyere, but if you are partial to the cheddar flavor—full steam ahead.

HAZARDS

As soon as the custard filling is firm, remove it from the oven. Any custard will curdle if it is cooked too long or at too high a temperature. (The protein in the milk and egg is the culprit in the case.) The fat content in cream inhibits curdling; that is one reason why it is well to use cream. Cream gives us a tastier product too. (I heard what you said . . . but cream is not as high in calories as that candy you ate today!)

TO THE WISE

Quiche must have a creamy luscious filling and a very thin crunchy crust. That duet of textures leaves nothing to be desired. It is the epitome of fine cooking.

This recipe may sound complicated, but it isn't. It is as down to earth as apple pie. I tested it on my beloved 1800 guinea pigs and they loved it.

VARIATIONS

Several slices of crisp bacon laid over the cheese before adding the custard is traditional and very good. Baked shredded ham can be used or slivers of broiled Canadian bacon. If you are feeding a hungry man I would add the meat!! If you have no bacon or ham, lay some strips of cheese over the top of the custard just before you pop it into the oven. It comes out looking very grand - very grand indeed! Your family will be so proud of you.

* Mrs. Glenn has been food director of the Highland Presbyterian Church in Louisville for many years. She often refers to the Presbyterians as her beloved guinea pigs.

Best Answer To Need For Industrial Park Here Is Illustrated By These Success Stories

Fulton wants new business and new industry. Kentucky wants new jobs, and wants them enough to work for them and to provide the kind of environment industry needs.

In a recent statewide survey Kentuckians were asked "What single thing is most important to Kentucky's future progress and development?" Forty-six percent answered "More Jobs and Industry."

Perhaps the most important contribution of local development corporations in Kentucky is their control and development of industrial sites. This makes it possible to offer a developed site package complete with price.

Kentucky wants the kind of growth that new industry and new jobs provide. That's why private business, local development groups, and the Kentucky State Government have gotten together to keep Kentucky attractive and profitable for industry; to provide continuing assistance to existing industry and to give you every fact you need to explore Kentucky's profit opportunities.

At the core of the Kentucky industrial effort is the Department of Commerce—equipped with brainpower, skills, and experience to match the nation's best.

The newly formed Kentucky Industrial Development Association, working closely with many State agencies is doing a tremendous amount of work to get our cities in the position to compete with thousands of other cities to meet the demands made by industrial site-seekers.

There may be those who may not view the establishment of an industrial park in Fulton as a "must" for attracting industry. The best answer we can give to the skeptics may be found in communications received here by Mrs. Ward Bushart, president of the Twin-City Industrial Committee and also secretary of the newly formed KIDA.

The success stories go something like this:

Scottsville last year sold their last 12 acres to New Castle Industries.

Glasgow has purchased their second tract, the first having been sold several years ago. Two new industries, P. R. Mallory and Tyson Bearings, announced in Glasgow in 1964; however, neither used the foundation property.

Bowling Green sold their original 119 acres to Wren Products, Cutler-Hammer, Master Vibrator, and Humble Oil Company. Just recently they purchased another 198 acres.

Elkton has owned their approximately 75 acres since 1960. Last year Rockwell announced a new plant in Elkton. This foundation property was not chosen as their site.

Dawson Springs sold a portion of their property to Mid-South Plastics.

Princeton owns 57 acres adjacent to Arvin Industries which located on their foundation property.

It is almost a necessity these days to have a developed site which is immediately available at an established price. Those who are charged with plant location work certainly look with more favor on any community that does own their land. Those that have a developed site will get more "lookers" and, consequently, have more opportunity to sell their communities.

We hope these brief facts and the enclosed material will give you a little fuel for your publicity. If we can sit down with you and discuss any of this in more detail, just let us know. Warm personal regards.

Very truly yours,
Leonard C. Neff, Jr.

"If we could first know where we are, and whither we are tending (going), we could better judge what to do, and how to do it."

This is a question on many minds today: who are we, and where are we going? We may not always say it that way, but that's the sentiment of our hearts. As one teenager asked, "What do good grades mean? And what if I go along, get married, have a good job and raise kids? Do we know what it is all about?"

Compare the teenager's question with that of Lincoln asked over a century ago, and you note they are very similar: Who are we, where are we going?

One explanation of Jesus' popularity with the common people was his ability as a teacher to help each listener feel he was somebody. On one occasion he reminded them that God knows even the number of hairs on a man's head, and that not a sparrow falls without his knowledge. When you and I grasp the fact that man is more than a mere speck of cosmic dust in a universe void of feeling or purpose, we are on the way to self-realization and self-fulfillment. Not all the way, mind you, but on the way!

100 Years Ago This Week

An historical review of the Civil War day by day in Kentucky, as reviewed by the Kentucky Civil War Commission

By JOE JORDAN

One hundred years ago this week, Gov. Thomas E. Bramlette transmitted to the Kentucky legislature a joint resolution of the United States Congress proposing an amendment to the Constitution abolishing slavery. The governor did not make a recommendation that Kentucky ratify the amendment, but he did state arguments that had been advanced in favor of ratification.

The message pointed out that an 1833 act abolishing slavery in Great Britain had appropriated 20,000,000 pounds (then equivalent to nearly $100,000,000) to compensate the owners. "It cannot be," Bramlette said, "that our government will be less just, if we accept the amendment upon condition that the assessed value of 1864 be paid to the state to compensate owners who are to be affected by the proposed amendment. Our slave property was assessed for taxation in 1860, before the war began, at a total of $107,494,527. In 1863 the effect of rebellion and unfriendly legislation reduced the valuation to $57,511,770, and in 1864 to $34,179,246."

The message got a cool reception, and it was apparent at once that there was no enthusiasm among the legislators for taking any action favorable to abolition. Members of the General Assembly were overwhelmingly in favor of the Union, but Kentucky Unionists in general had taken that side because they favored preserving the Union and not because they were opposed to slavery. An attempt to pass the question to the voters was made in a resolution offered in the House of Representatives by E. H. Smith of Grant County to conduct a referendum at the August election but no action was taken on it. The Louisville Journal of February 10 announced: "Maj. Gen. John M. Palmer of Illinois has been appointed to command in Kentucky. Thank God and President Lincoln!" It was not because of any admiration for Palmer that the newspaper was rejoicing, but because the appointment of a new commander of the Military District of Kentucky meant an end to the rule of Maj. Gen. Stephen G. Burbridge, who had been in command since February 15, 1864. In an article published last year in the Register of the Kentucky Historical Society, L. L. Valentine, president and general manager of the Franklin Favorite, asserted that Burbridge's assuming command marked "the beginning of the blackest and bloodiest year in Kentucky history." That was the year which was about to come to an end 100 years ago this week.

Among the Confederate soldiers who were prisoners of war at Camp Douglas, in Illinois, were 1663 Kentuckians. During the week under review a poll was taken to find out how many of them would wish to return to Confederate Army service if exchanges could be arranged. It was announced that 1422, more than 85 per cent of them still wanted to resume fighting for the South.

Kentucky Windage

By F. W.

Education is a wonderful thing these days, but I found out something last weekend that kind of startled me. Twenty-five years ago I had a college degree from a highly-rated journalism school, and I was educated, and I was right up to snuff. But now, after doing practical work in journalism, and radio, and communications and advertising of various sorts, I find I am nearly completely uneducated. And here I thought I had been making progress, and instead have been going backwards.

I arrived at this startling conclusion after spending last weekend at the University of Kentucky at a Journalism symposium attended by college professors from around the country. At the sessions I attended some of them unloaded their current formulas and conclusions and their projections and their frameworks for action, and this stuff is so far beyond my world of operations I have concluded that my alleged education has completely disappeared.

Education at the college level and post-grad level in public communications (radio, TV, newspaper, etc.) deals with reactions and behavior patterns of huge masses of people, the professors tell us. So when they talk about a TV program having an audience of 50 million, or ditto for a radio network, or even a newspaper with a circulation of a half million, they talk in terms of behavior patterns, and motivations, and they get out their computing machines to figure out how many million people will do such if they say such, and how many additional more million will react thusly if they change their pitch thusly. In dealing with masses, everything has to be reduced to a mathematical formula that can be fed into a computing machine, it seems.

It makes one feel a little silly to realize that there is so such thing as an "individual" any more. You and I, my friend, are only statistics to anyone engaged in the mass public communication field!

Of this sounds crazy, but it is true, and while I have to laugh at it a bit, I still respect it and don't belittle our young people who are getting educated thusly. College graduates in the public communications field are going to tremendous jobs right off the bat, and at UK they tell me that starting salaries right out of college start as high as $150 a week, so more power to them, and to any of you who read this who may have college ahead of you.

I don't mind anything going up except the national debt. And I wonder when the time will ever come when it will dawn on our national congress that they cannot spend more each year than they take in and still stay solvent; I'd like for someone to feed that fact into a computer sometime and see what kind of an answer comes out.

I think it's a whole lot more enjoyable these days running a small paper and being able to treat people like human beings rather than statistics. If I want to find out what's going on, I can take a swing up Lake Street and across the tracks, and out to the edge of town and I'll have a pretty good opinion in an hour. And on a lot of things I don't even need to go ask anybody at all, just use common sense reasoning. But on the national scene, it isn't so easy. You hire a poll-taking organization, and they sample public opinion, and they put that in a computing machine, and they have to add "variables" that have influenced opinions, such as the fact that the weather may be below zero, and the Viet Cong have just bombed a U. S. barracks, and the President has a cold, and it is near tax-paying time, and that Vice-President Humphrey should have gone to the Churchill funeral, etc., etc. Kinda like mixing up a salad with a lot of ingredients, and then putting it in the sausage grinder and what comes out is the answer, correctly flavored to the moment.

I could go on and on. I got real educated last weekend.

Seriously, Dr. Oswald and the entire University of Kentucky have a fine program mapped for 1965 honoring the 100th year of UK. The Centennial will be a broad affair extending into many activities, and I am sure that all UK alumni everywhere will boost the observance all they can. UK has a strong program of advancement mapped to start off its next 100 years and is going places. And if you've been out of school very long, you ought to go back and discover just how uneducated you are. Nothing happens like it used to.

Mrs. T. T. Harris returned to her home near here on Saturday from Hillview Hospital, where she underwent surgery a few weeks ago. She is resting quite comfortably at this writing, which all her many friends will be glad to know.

Mrs. Mary Bynum has undergone surgery in a Mayfield hospital and is reported to be as well as expected, so we send "Get Well" wishes to her that she may very quickly be restored to former health.

Profound sympathy is extended to the family of Ambrose McClain, 64, whose death occurred the past week, following a heart attack. Funeral services were held at Rhodes Chapel church and burial in Williams Cemetery, with Jackson's Funeral Home in charge of all the arrangements.

Mrs. Haldon Glover is reported to be resting more comfortably at her home near here, where she has been very ill the past few weeks.

Miss Margaret Bynum was indisposed the past week, due to a siege of cold.

Rev. Russell Rodgers filled his regular appointment at New Salem Baptist Church the past Sunday at 11 a. m., also the evening service following the BTU service.

"Get Well" wishes are sent to Bunis Westbrook, who had surgery in Western Baptist Hospital in Paducah several days ago. Mr. Westbrook was a former resident of this section.

It's amazing how happy the birds, our feathered friends, are. There comes a warmer day when they flitter here and there chirping, singing their spring-like songs, after a siege of cold, snowy, icy weather, when there is no food available. I hope my friends and all readers of this column found time to put out some food for the little creatures only a week ago.

'I Want A Recipe'

by Camille Glenn

Dear Camille,

A few months ago we were visiting a friend of mine who lives in Quebec. While there she served a most exciting dish called Quiche Lorraine. We call it cheese pie, but it was not sweet. Do tell me something about it. It was d-e-l-i-c-i-o-u-s!

L. E.

Quiche Lorraine (Keesh-Loh-rain) is a very old and time-honored French tart or pie made of eggs, cream and smoked bacon and cooked in a crust; it is great... really great! In Lorraine, France where it originated it is served as an hors d'oeuvre or as a snack. We add cheese to the mixture just as they do in Switzerland and serve it as an entree. I can think of nothing that is more delicious and exciting for a luncheon, an informal Sunday night supper, or for your own deserving self than...

CHEESE PIE

(Quiche Lorraine)

Pie Crust For Nine-Inch Pie
1/2 lb. Cheese (Swiss, Gruyere or sharp Cheddar)
1 tablespoon Flour
1 Cup Cream or Milk
3 Eggs (whole)
Salt and Cayenne Pepper to taste

Line pie pan with your favorite flaky crust. Pick crust with a fork to keep it from popping up and leaving the pan or cover the crust with oil paper and weigh it down with dried beans or rice while cooking.

Bake in a PREHEATED 450 degrees oven for 10-15 minutes or until crust is a very light brown. Remove the oil paper and beans a few minutes before it is done. Grate or shred cheese and dredge with 1 tablespoon flour. Distribute the cheese in the bottom of the cooled crust. Beat eggs until fluffy. Add cream or milk. Mix. Salt and pepper to taste. Pour over the cheese. Set in a PREHEATED 325 degree oven for approximately 30 minutes or until the custard tests done. Insert a knife in the custard; when the custard no longer sticks to the knife, it is done. Serve hot or cold. Quiche can be baked early and heated again at the finish line. Here is a menu that I love, and all of it is "do ahead"... elegant and easy.

Black Bean Soup (w. a slice of lemon and Sherry)
Cold Asparagus Salad (w. vinaigrette dressing)
Cheese Pie
Fresh Fruit in Season
Coffee

HINTS

When Quiche Lorraine is made with cheese, it usually calls for Swiss or Gruyere, but if you are partial to the cheddar flavor—full steam ahead.

HAZARDS

As soon as the custard filling is firm, remove it from the oven. Any custard will curdle if it is cooked too long or at too high a temperature. (The protein in the milk and egg is the culprit in the case.) The fat content in cream inhibits curdling; that is one reason why it is well to use cream. Cream gives us a tastier product too. (I heard what you said... but cream is not as high in calories as that candy you ate today!)

TO THE WISE

Quiche must have a creamy luscious filling and a very thin crunchy crust. That duet of textures leaves nothing to be desired. It is the epitome of fine cooking.

This recipe may sound complicated, but it isn't. It is as down to earth as apple pie. I tested it on my beloved 1800 guinea pigs and they loved it.

VARIATIONS

Several slices of crisp bacon laid over the cheese before adding the custard is traditional and very good. Baked shredded ham can be used or slivers of broiled Canadian bacon. If you are feeding a hungry man I would add the meat!! If you have no bacon or ham, lay some strips of cheese over the top of the custard just before you pop it into the oven. It comes out looking very grand - very grand indeed! Your family will be so proud of you.

Miss Sylvia Kay Morris And Mr. Daniel Robbins Married

The stately Gothic sanctuary of the First Methodist Church provided a beautiful setting for the wedding of Miss Sylvia Kay Morris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Morris, and Daniel Joe Robbins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Robbins, which was solemnized at seven thirty o'clock in the evening on December the twenty ninth. The Reverend William T. Barnes, minister of the church, officiated, using an impressive double ring ceremony.

The traditional wedding scheme of green and white was carried out in the beautiful decorations. Centering the choir rail was a sunburst arrangement, centered with white cushion mums and outlined with white stock. A tree candelabra was placed directly behind the floral arrangement. Many tall wrought iron candelabras, holding tall white candles, were placed in the choir and in the pulpit section. Smaller groups of candles were placed at intervals along the communion rail. Sprays of white flowers caught with satin ribbons marked the place of the ceremony. Handsome bows of white satin ribbons marked the reserved pews.

As the guests assembled, Mrs. Frank LeMaster, organist, gave a program of nuptial music, including "I Love You Truly" by Bond, "Because" by DeHarlot, "Savior, Like A Shepherd Lead Us," and "A Wedding Prayer." Miss Joyce Binford, soloist, sang "Alway's," "O Promise Me" by DeKoven, and "One Hand, One Heart." Strains of the Barnby Wedding Hymn, "O Perfect Love," were heard from the organ just before the processional. The traditional Processional from Wagner and the Recessional from Mendelssohn were used for the entrance of the bridal party and for recessional. The bride was escorted to the altar by her brother, Billy Mac Morris, and was given in marriage by her father.

The striking brunette bride wore a handsome formal wedding gown fashioned of pure silk organza poised over bridal silk taffeta. The fitted bodice was designed with a portrait neckline, which was encrusted with handsome Alencon lace. The long fitted sleeves were fastened with tiny silk covered buttons. At either side of the waistline were tailored silken bows. Festoons of the lovely lace encrusted the skirt. The controlled skirt developed into a cathedral train. Her tiered veil of imported illusion fell from a dainty queen's crown. The bridal bouquet was arranged with white giant chrysanthemums, with a spray of smaller chrysanthemums in the hues of the attendants' frocks.

Mrs. Bill Wade was the bride's matron of honor and her bridesmaids were Mrs. Billy Mac Morris, Mrs. Nicky Forrester and Miss Cleta Beggs. They wore identical frocks of golden bronze satin, which were street length and styled with fitted bodices, elbow length sleeves and bell-shaped skirts. Their accessories matched their gowns. Each carried a nosegay made of a large gardenia encircled with tiny gold cords.

Little Miss Jan Thompson was an enchanting flower girl, wearing a bouffant frock of yellow embroidered organza. She scattered petals from a dainty lace basket. Mike Hawks carried the rings on a satin pillow.

Warren Nanney served the groom as best man. The ushers were Marty Fox, Jim Burton, Virgil Craven and Bobby Howard.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Morris chose a handsome dinner dress of champagne lace over pure silk. The lace bodice was designed with brief sleeves. Her accessories matched her dress and her corsage was a green cymbidium orchid. Her hat was of shaded velvet petals, harmonizing with her dress.

Mrs. Robbins, mother of the groom, chose a peacock silk costume suit. The dress, which featured a deep lace encrusted neckline, was accented with a matching silk jacket. Her hat was made entirely of silk roses, matching her dress, and her corsage was a pink cymbidium orchid.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Morris entertained with a reception in the church dining room.

The bride's table was covered with a floor-length taffeta cloth. White net caught in festoons was held with clusters of lilies of the valley. The three-tiered wedding cake, with each tier elevated on fluted columns, was topped with a miniature bride and groom. Tall white candles were placed on the table, and crystal and silver appointments enhanced its beauty.

Punch was served from a crystal service.

Mrs. James Holt presided at the register. Assisting in receiving and serving the guests were: Mrs. Jerry Hawks, Miss Priscilla Alley, Miss Donna Snyder, Mrs. Paul Nanney and Mrs. John Thompson.

When Mr. and Mrs. Robbins left for their wedding trip Mrs. Robbins was wearing a three piece suit of pure silk linen. Her accessories complemented her suit. They will make their home in Murray, Kentucky, where both are students at Murray State College.

Out of town guests attending the wedding and reception included Mrs. H. W. Howard and Bobby Howard of Paducah, Kentucky; Mrs. Vannie Hawks of Sharon, Tennessee; Mr. and Mrs. James Wells, Stevie Wells, and Jo Ann Butler from Wood River, Illinois; Mr. and Mrs. William Graf and Karen Graf, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jones, James Dickerson, Tom Yarbrough, Stephen Watson, Marty Fox, and Stephen Sharber from Murray, Kentucky; Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Thompson, Jeff Thompson and Jan Thompson from Benton, Kentucky, and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Edwards from Union City, Tennessee.

Following the rehearsal of the Robbins - Morris wedding party at the First Methodist on the twenty eighth of January nineteen hundred and sixty five, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Robbins, parents of the groom, were hosts at an attractively planned rehearsal party in the dining room of the church. The long tables arranged in a U shape were centered with arrangements of white chrysanthemums with emerald fern and white satin ribbons. The gifts of the bride and groom to their attendants were placed at the place of each person.

For the party the bride-elect wore a stylish taupe knitted dress with touches of a darker brown. Her accessories were brown and she was given a white carnation corsage. Mrs. Robbins wore a fuchsia silk frock with matching jacket. Mrs. Morris, mother of the bride, wore a knitted suit in beige.

The guest list included the honorees, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Morris, Reverend and Mrs. W. T. Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. Frank LeMaster, Tommy LeMaster, Mr. and Jerry Hawks, Mike Hawks, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Thompson, Jan Thompson, Miss Joyce Binford, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Mac Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wade, Mr. and Mrs. Nicky Forrester, Miss Cleta Beggs, Mr. and Mrs. Walker Voelkel, Mrs. Cecil Wade, Mrs. James Holt, Marty Fox, Warren Nanney, Jim Burton, Virgil Craven and Bobby Howard.

Medi-Card Identification Can Save A Child's Life

Arrangements have been completed for students of all County schools to join others in this area and across the nation in a program of medical identification, according to a spokesman of the 50-STATE RED-CARD program.

Medical I. D., that is a personal record of one's physical condition in their possession at all times could be the outstanding life saving program of world history, according to the medical profession. It is estimated that complete participation of Medical I. D., with everyone carrying a record, could result in the saving of 80,000 lives annually in our country, over 20,000 of this number being among our children.

The RED-CARD program in which our students will participate consists of a medical record card perfected over years of study to give everything necessary to a person's well being in an emergency or when obtaining medical attention. First grade students will be furnished a card each year once the program is installed so that it remains permanent. It is carried in a special red case. Public safety officials, such as State Troopers and local police are being alerted to look for "the red card" in all emergencies and, in fact, carry the card for their own protection.

Completion of the card or carrying it requires no special trouble or any expense to the parents or an individual. All doctors are co-operating in this work, but no special examinations are required. It is pointed out that where the blood type or other information is not known, this should simply be left blank until the next visit to a physician.

It is emphatically pointed out by the program representative that the doctor should be consulted in a danger condition, where a person is under regular medical care. Replacements of the cards that go in the red case will be easily obtained, when needed, from doctors, health centers and other locations in the community.

The Committee of the American Medical Association working with others on Medical I. D. say that everyone should carry a card and the 40,000,000 persons they list as "danger cases" should also display the International Symbol of Medical Identification in a durable form to more quickly draw attention to their condition. The world-wide definition of the symbol is, "Look for Medical Information on my Person."

Medical Identification is not only a national program of the AMA and other safety minded groups, but is an international program. It is admitted by those in the work that this is one thing in which our country has not kept up. Medical I. D. was proven of tremendous value in life saving in some countries in Europe over fifty years ago. It is today compulsory by law and regulation of many countries.

The present efforts of work in this country was complimented by the World Medical Association at their July meeting in Finland with the adaptation of the AMA Symbol for International use, to replace the several already in use. This Red Symbol will begin to have national and world wide publicity to the extent that all people will eventually know it.

The medical profession's facts and figures behind this work are astounding and tragic. In the past they have made a diligent effort to educate and arouse the public. For several years the AMA has allotted a tremendous amount of money to material on the subject and mailing informative articles to over 4,000 publications. They seek a goal of full participation in our country without any regulation or legislation, as in other countries.

Certainly their information is correct, because there is no better "estimate" or more tragic than the death certificate of a diabetic who died in jail as a drunk while in diabetic shock, or a child who died of an allergy, perhaps even known by parents who had not bothered to give the child protection. The AMA can point to shocking figures on loss of life, but possibly even more important are the two things impossible to estimate and that is the tremendous reduction of suffering and the billions, yes billions, of dollars saved in man hours and medical expenses.

The AMA Committee points out that the little girl who has been hospitalized once for an insect bite or a boy who bleeds freely from a minor injury is probably in far greater need of protection of this information on their person than even one of the serious danger cases of diabetes or even epilepsy. There are over 200 known allergies, with one of every ten persons being dangerously allergic to the common tetanus shot.

The RED-CARD program is bringing out that few parents have ever disclosed to a teacher any special condition of their child that warrants attention. With over five million children being treated by doctors for a respiratory ailment, it seems no parent has ever thought to advise the teacher of this. School authorities are acclaiming the program for the designation of a doctor to be called, if for no other reason.

A State Safety Commissioner said, "Aside from the medical value, the public will find a proper identification card on our children too young to carry a driver's license to be one of the finest programs ever instigated for public welfare."

Over 2,000 cards are being used in this first phase of the program in our county, with all school personnel and public officials also offered the card. According to the

4-H Club Leaders Seek To Revamp County Council

Eighteen Fulton County 4-H club leaders attended a conference last Friday morning, February 5th, at the Hickman-Fulton REOC assembly room, to study 4-H Philosophy and Objectives. This study pointed out that major emphasis in the county 4-H club program should be given to the development of boys and girls into good citizens.

The group will have another session soon to reorganize the county council and to complete plans for this year's program. Leaders attending were: Miss Myra Seearce, Mrs. Zoma Moss, Mrs. N. F. Sutton, Mrs. Henry Brawner, Mrs. David Dunnagan and Mrs. Roy M. Taylor.

Mrs. Donald Mabry, Mrs. Albert Moss, Mrs. John C. Bondurant, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Adams, Carl Mikel, Elmer Hixson, Mrs. Bobby Curlin, Mrs. M. F. Glidewell, Jr., Mrs. John Watts and Mrs. Baker Minton.

Sports Final

R. Paul Westpheling, III

The Bulldogs scored an impressive victory over the Fulton County Pilots 56-40 here Friday night. Harold Hutcherson led the scoring with 26 points and 30 rebounds.

At the end of the first quarter, the Pilots had a slight majority. In the dressing room at half time, Coach Yates and the Bulldogs had a fairly good margin.

Everyone in the gym was afraid that the third quarter would bring defeat, but it didn't. County never could catch up with City and the final score was 56-40, a 16-point deficit for County.

One thing was very strange about the game. After half time, the teams came back on the floor, but, instead of playing basketball, it appeared to be a mild game of football.

One other thing I might mention, the Bulldogs did an excellent job from the gratis line.

estimates, this number of cards will help our local doctors save a life in a 12-month period.

The RED-CARD program is set up to the end of everyone eventually having it. The next phase is extending the card of large community groups, of labor, farm, civic and veteran organizations.

Fred Stokes, Jr. Named Officer In Oil Group

Fred Stokes, Jr., of the Stokes Oil Company in Hickman, was named second vice president of the Kentucky Petroleum Marketers Association at its annual meeting in Louisville last week. Associated with his late father in the oil business for many years, Mr. Stokes has been active in petroleum groups on the county, state and national level.

At the meeting F. C. Heerde, Service Oil Company of Benton, was elected president. Heerde succeeded Robert T. Lewis, J. Heber Lewis Oil Co., Burnside. Heerde was second vice president of the association and has served as chairman of the executive committee of the Kentucky Petroleum Council and chairman of the oil men's association of the State of Vermont.

The association, in its closing business session, adopted a resolution condemning President Johnson's intention to raise highway user taxes to meet a $5.8 billion deficit in funds needed to complete the interstate highway system by 1972.

The association also adopted a resolution blasting the Breathitt administration for its refusal to reverse its policy of building and leasing commercial facilities in service plazas on Kentucky toll roads.

Two Prominent Fulton Countians Die In Head-On Collision; Another Hospitalized

Two men were fatally injured and a youth was seriously injured in a head-on collision near Union City Tuesday.

State police reported the deaths of John Wesley Harrison, 45, Fulton Route 4, and Frank Wall, 75, Cayce, Ky., after the car in which they were riding collided with one being driven by Monty Ray Poole, 17, Union City Route 4.

Mr. Poole, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dock Poole of the Shady Grove community, was admitted to the Obion County Hospital, where his condition was listed as serious.

The accident occurred about 3:45 p. m. on the Section Line Road, a country road east of Union City. Sgt. Bill Moore, of the Tennessee State Police, said the two cars collided at the crest of a hill.

Mr. Wall was a passenger in the car being driven by Mr. Harrison. Mr. Poole was traveling alone.

Mr. Harrison was a member of the Hickman Church of Christ. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Annie Haynie Harrison; a son, John Billy Harrison, Cayce; two daughters, Miss Sandra Harrison and Mrs. Charles Curlin, both of Cayce; six brothers, Roy Harrison of Cayce, Hubert Harrison of Union City, Herman, Jack and Robert Harrison of Fulton Route 4, and W. H. Harrison, Hickman Route 4; two sisters, Mrs. Irene Brockwell, Harris Station, Tenn., and Mrs. Virgil Younger, E. St. Louis, Ill., and three grandchildren.

Funeral services for Mr. Harrison will be held at two o'clock this (Thursday) afternoon in White-Ransom Funeral Home at Union City, with Bro. Ernest Abston, pastor of the Hickman Church of Christ, officiating. Burial will be in Liberty Cemetery.

Mr. Wall, a bachelor, was a member of a prominent Cayce family and was a retired farmer. His only survivors are a sister, Mrs. Lee Atwill of Chicago; a niece, Mrs. Paul A. Laine, Chicago, and a brother-in-law, Clem Atwill of near Cayce.

Funeral services for Mr. Wall will be held today (Thursday) at 1:30 p. m. in the Cayce Methodist Church, with Rev. Luther Clark officiating. Interment, in charge of Whitnel Funeral Home, will be in the Cayce Cemetery.

SCATTERED PATTEN

About People and Things

The ground-hog says there will be about six more weeks of winter, but we're here to say that it just ain't so. For a visitor to our office on Tuesday brought so much refreshing "vigor" into our lives, that we almost went out to pluck a few March flowers. Rita Wilson, that Fulton lovely, who possesses more charm and personality than anybody we ever met, came in for a short visit to tell us about some exciting plans she has for an equally exciting future. The most important one we cannot tell right now, but we can tell you that it is so fascinating and glamorous we can hardly imagine it's happening to our very own International Banana Festival princess.

The event we can tell you about is on the front page. Rita leaves Friday en route to Dallas, Texas where she will appear before the national fruit growers association to tell all about our Festival and our town. If there is a better way for these folks to learn about us, than for Rita to expound on the subject, we just don't know what it is.

In the course of our visit Rita told us about her good friend Jimmy Weatherly, that star quarterback at the University of Mississippi. Besides being all-SEC, and an honorably mentioned player for All-America, Jimmy is a very talented, and very successful, thus far, song writer. Signed recently to a nice contract with Twentieth-Century-Fox, Jimmy's new album hit the airwaves last week and Rita says it's great. One side of the record is entitled "Wise Men Never Speak," and the flip-side is "I'm Gonna Make It," and there are no doubts about it in this corner.

Jimmy is from Pontotoc, Miss.

He is from a truly musical family, yet none of them have had any formal training in the talent. The good-looking, All-American looking guy writes his own music and then writes the words, and his album now on the market was brought into being with no help from the experts.

Luckily, Jimmy is sponsored by the Jordanares, the same group that made another Southern boy a little bit famous ... Elvis Presley. Looks to me with all that talent and support and Rita's friendship, too, record fans had better get a first edition of Jimmy's new record ... the way things look, it may be a collector's item.

Last week in Lexington (See Windage on editorial page) we attended a wonderful reception at the Helen G. King Alumni House on the UK campus given by Dr. and Mrs. John Oswald, the nation's most dynamic college leadership team. A very friendly lady tapped us on the back and said: "Doing any campaigning here?" It was Norma (Weatherly) Eckdahl of the Lexington Leader-Herald. She asked about all of you. She advised that another Fultonian, Andy DeMyer, who now lives in Lexington, told her of the campaign route taken by this reporter.

Jeffrey Lee Byrd celebrated his fourth birthday with a party given by his mother, Mrs. Turney Lee Byrd, on Thursday, January 21 at one o'clock.

The children played with toys, played games and did finger painting. Each guest received a whistle, a balloon, and a wrapped gift of a coloring book and crayons. After the birthday gifts were opened, refreshments of ice cream cones, birthday cake shaped as a teddy bear, and Kool-Aid were served.

Whenever we read articles describing the morays of modern-teenagedom, we look around town with satisfaction at the wonderful things some of our teen-age crowd dream up. About two weeks ago, a group of young ladies around town, calling themselves the Explorettes, decided to reverse the order of dating and asked the boys for dates.

We got the story first hand from our teen-age correspondent, who told us it was the most fascinating experience ever witnessed. It went like this:

The girls called up the boys and asked them to a lovely party held in Fellowship Hall of the First Baptist Church. The girls called for the boys at their respective homes; walked up to the door to get them; escorted them to the cars; opened the door for them; walked around the car and drove away, with the distaff side at the steering wheel. On arriving at Fellowship Hall, the girls extended the same courtesies to the young men by jumping out of the car and opening the door for those great big old stiffs, and similarly escorting them into the Hall, taking their wraps to the cloak-room, and serving them all evening.

After the party the girls took their dates to the local soft-drink hang-out, paid for the refreshments, and wanted to tarry around the place to visit with the gang. This, we think is the most delightful part of the story ... for when the girls showed no hurry to get about your choice...

On May 25, you will have an opportunity to choose a Representative to Kentucky's General Assembly.

As one interested in State government, I have placed my name in contention for your consideration. I do so humbly and without pretense of declaring that I alone can solve all of the problems confronting residents of our legislative district.

In our own best interest, I believe we must counsel together to discover our needs and to find ways of providing for those needs. Should you choose me to represent you in State government, I propose to meet with community leaders and elected officials of each of the District's four counties to work out a program we feel can successfully be promoted to give us the kind of government most desired.

The office I seek is an important one. I would fill it to serve the public as you would be served. Fully aware of the demands the office will make on my time, I pledge a full effort to fulfill those duties in your behalf. Each regular session of the General Assembly lasts 60 working days over a 2½ month period of time. It is not a task that can be finished in 22 days, as you may recently have read.

As your elected Representative, I would be remiss to place your interests in jeopardy by obligating myself to any one elected official. I would prefer to maintain my present position of being able to work with all other elected representatives of the people. We cannot hope to accomplish much for our district or our State if those we choose to present our views in government have already signed away the right to bargain in our behalf.

Your decision on the person who will represent you is important to me, yes; but that decision can be of greater importance to you. Talk to your family and friends about your choice.

Respectfully,

Super Abundance At The Super Market

Housewives know that the horn of plenty held scant relations compared with today's food store. A team of economists has just returned from counting the abundance available in the typical American community. Their statistical grocery cart is ready to collapse under the weight of their food figures. Item by item they counted selected inventories for super markets, superettes, and curb markets in two neighboring communities in a nearby state. Then they surveyed again by size of store and the neighborhood it served. Food was found in an almost stupefying variety regardless of the method used in the study. The housewife could have found 85 different kinds and cuts of meat. If that would not fill the needs, the shopper could have pushed the possibilities to 135 by checking in all the stores. Cold cuts and seafood were not on the list of meats available in this investigation.

Take canned beans for a sample of everyday eating. There were cut beans and French style, fancy long vertical packs and whole beans, green beans with or without seasoning. There were nine different varieties of canned beans not to mention fresh and frozen types.

The larger food stores offered well over 70 different varieties of canned vegetables and the choice in some was up to 100. The figure as a measure of variety isn't even near the mark. You have to add, brands—to please the individual housewife's taste—can sizes to suit the needs as to the size of the family and packaging to comply with today's mode of living. One store in the survey offered 262 different combinations of can sizes, brands, packages, and varieties of vegetables alone.

The most likely place to find the widest variety of foods, incidentally, is not in the richest part of town. The survey found the biggest stock of items in super markets in the lower income neighborhoods. It is the budget conscious housewife who needs and get the widest selection of foods in order to stretch her budget. Convenience is another demand of the modern shopper, and this means in the form of late hours and seven-day service. The somewhat old-fashioned neighborhood store and the new superettes both make sure this accommodation is met, with the neighborhood store being open more hours of the two studied. It was found that in the different communities, local food stores do their best to provide the items and service that are required of them.

Southern States Names Campbell To Serve As Vice-President

O. Howard Campbell of Henderson, Ky., has been named vice president of Southern States Cooperative at a meeting of the board of directors held on January 28.

He succeeds John W. Stone of Looneyville, W. Va., who had been vice president of the cooperative since July 1962. Stone was named president of the cooperative.

Campbell, who was elected to the board in 1961 is a former county agent and now a successful livestock farmer.

He served with the Extension Service in Logan and Laramie Counties and later was assistant cashier of the Lincoln National Bank of Hodgenville. He was treasurer of the Laramie County School Board. Since 1950 he has farmed in partnership with his father-in-law.

A former member of the board of directors of Southern States Henderson Cooperative, Campbell is vice president of the county Farm Bureau, chairman of the 4-H Council and a member of the Livestock Breeders Association and the Extension Council. He is superintendent of his Sunday School and a steward and a former chairman of the Niagara Methodist Church's official board. He has also headed a Rotary Club and been county Red Cross chairman.

In other action taken at the meeting, the board named the following board members to its executive committee in addition to Stone and Campbell: Hubert L. Snodgrass, Street, Md., retiring president, Samuel L. Sloan, Harbeson, Delaware, Dr. B. F. D. Runk, Charlottesville, Va.

Southern States Cooperative's 15 man board of directors is composed of 10 elected directors and 5 public directors who are appointed by the directors of Agricultural Extension in each of the states served by the Association.

Your Wisest investment of time... REGULAR CHURCH WORSHIP

"I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord."

SHE'S MY VALENTINE!

How wonderful young love is. Going steady is the greatest! For the box of candy he brought her, he was rewarded with a hug and a delighted squeal. They're sure of each other. Life is wonderful!

However, steadies break up, lovers part — young hearts are crushed. Life seems ended. It is hard for them to believe it when we tell them that another one will come along to claim their hearts.

Aren't we a lot like youngsters in love in our relationship with God? If things don't go our way, we adolescently feel that God doesn't love us. We blame Him for what our lack of wisdom has brought us. When he doesn't allow us everything we want, our hearts pout.

God would have us know that he loves us with a mature and everlasting love. He loves us as we are, even with all our faults. He stays faithful when we falter. He yearns for us when we turn away from him. He never withdraws. The Psalmist comforts us with this saying: "Thy faithfulness is unto all generations." God is near to all who call upon him. We invite you to come to Church this week.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

SCATTERED PATT—

Some, the BOYS started getting nervous about the time . . . yacking, that they just simply had to get home at eleven p. m. sharp.

So the girls took the boys home, and took them to the door . . . and yes, you guessed it, the boys got real coy when asked for that good-night kiss.

Now, don't you think this is a real fun story?

They call themselves the Young People's Social Club, but we could give them another name . . . maybe something like the "Do-gooders." Anyhow the club is composed of most of the members of the Junior Class of Fulton High School. Last week Lynn Dallas called and told us that the new club wanted to do something for the March of Dimes so they decided to have a candy sale last Saturday. They did, and they were the proudest young people you ever saw when they handed us $27.60 as the receipts.

In checking about the club with Lynn she told us that the officers of the club were the same as the class officers. Said she: "We've always talked about doing something to help people and we decided on the March of Dimes." We're mighty glad they did. The officers are: Rodney Foster, president; Mary Elizabeth Mitchell, vice-president; Carol Pigue, secretary-treasurer; Jeannie Hinton, business manager; Betty Beades and Mike Stevens public relations.

When we asked Lynn what her title was she replied: "Just a worker." And there must be many more of them in school around here.

While the other classes in the Fulton Schools didn't undertake a project they did give generously to the school collections. We got in the vicinity of $25 each from Fulton High, Carr Elementary and Terry-Norman. The largest school collections to date have come from Milton Elementary. Principal Cecil Maddox brought us about $42 worth of money and about a million dollars worth of smiles and generosity from that schools.

NEW POSTOFFICE—

Sectional centers will be distribution and transportation centers for mail, now being organized and made operational in order that the national zip-code program in this (the Cincinnati region) is in line with the rest of the country. Sectional centers in Kentucky are being located in Paducah, Ashland, Bowling Green, Campton, Corbin, Elizabethtown, Hazard, Lexington, Louisville, Owensboro, Pikeville and Somerset. In noting that the principal mode of transportation of mail in Kentucky is now by highway, the Post Office department pointed out that in the past 30 years over 90 percent of the rail service which formerly carried the U. S. mails has been discontinued.
