Waterfield Promises To Be On Side Of "People," Against Privileged Interests In Race

Bases Plea For Support On His Record In Office

29 SIGN DECLARATION

A statement issued Saturday by Harry Lee Waterfield on his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for governor follows:

"In filing my declaration for governor in the Democratic primary August 3, I am conscious of the honor I seek and the responsibility that will be mine if I am elected. That is why I am submitting my candidacy in humility.

"I am humbly conscious of the opportunity to give Kentucky an administration that will advance the general welfare of all the people. I humbly believe the people are in the temper to demand that we forget the old political faces and things that divided us in the past. It is my humble conviction the people want greater achievement in schools, hospitals, prisons, highways, rural roads, parks, health departments, bridges.

"If the people elect me governor, I now pledge that my service will not be hindered by political consideration, nor strangled by unbecoming ambition for personal advantage. I shall covet only the approval that my record will deserve.

"It is, I believe, becoming clear to the people that my opponent is supported by a combination of special interests, on one hand, and a coterie of machine politicians, on the other hand. These forces use politics as a measuring rod for every proposal that is advanced to improve the general welfare of all the people.

"As I see it, the primary issue of this campaign will be the people of Kentucky versus the privileged interests. I now pledge you that I will side with the people. This is not a new stand for me to take. The record of my public service will show that I have always been on the side of the people. My record of public service will show I have always opposed special privileges for any individual, group, or interest.

Wants Cheap Power
"The second issue of the campaign, as I see it, will be private utilities versus TVA and REA. I shall continue to advocate cheaper electric power for all the people. I shall do all I can to electrify every farm home in Kentucky. I shall work unceasingly to secure better service and cheaper power, through TVA and REA, for town people and country people alike.

"Within the near future, it is my purpose to make a detailed public announcement of my program as to:

1. Roads and bridges.
2. Education.
3. Agriculture, business, labor and industry.
4. Welfare, health, hospitals and prisons.
5. Conservation and recreation.
6. Home rule, with respect to the financial plight of cities and counties.
7. Fiscal affairs, with respect to revenue, appropriations, and the cash surplus.

"The third issue, as I see it, is the issue of performance. I will be able to do the things I promise because I will not be bound to any special interests or political bosses. But my opponent is in the opposite position. He will be bound to the vested interests and machine politicians who support him. They will demand and obtain a voice in administering any program my opponent might advocate.

"I believe the people know my philosophy of government, as demonstrated by 10 years of service in the House of Representatives. I believe my service has set a standard by which Kentuckians can gauge my fitness for the larger tasks ahead. In any case, upon that record rests my candidacy, my request for support, and my hope of election. I submit myself, and my record, in full candor and faith.

Auto Injuries Cause of Death

Mrs. Wilson Fleming of Mayfield Fatally Injured When Car Overturned

Mrs. Wilson Fleming of Mayfield, a sister of Mrs. E. M. Fortner, Highlands, died early Sunday morning as the result of injuries she received when an automobile in which she was a passenger overturned between Paducah and Mayfield, relatives there were informed.

Mr. Fleming and another couple who were in the car when the accident occurred were not injured.

Mrs. Fleming first was taken to a Paducah hospital, then went to Mayfield in a Kirk-Burns ambulance. It was reported that she died as she was being carried up the front steps of her home in Mayfield.

A number of her relatives from Fulton went to the Fleming home in Mayfield today.

Southern Pacific May Move Office Out Of Kentucky

San Francisco, March 24—(AP)—The Southern Pacific Company has announced its stockholders will vote May 14 on a plan for changing the railroad's corporate domicile from Kentucky to California.

The change was proposed as a result of the railroad's tax problems, which have arisen from incorporation in Kentucky. The company said it recently paid $4,000,000 in settlement of Kentucky's tax claims.

"The change in corporate domicile," the announcement said, "effects merely the re-incorporation of the present company under the same name in another state. Stockholders and creditors would continue to have the same rights and interests as they now possess, and directors and officers would remain the same as for the present company."

Hopkinsville—The crash of an automobile into a parked truck here yesterday killed Miss Mary Sue Wyman, 23, Mayfield, student at Belvoir Women's College here and injured two persons. Officers said George Moseley, 24, was in serious condition at a hospital suffering with a head injury. They said Callie Stigall was treated for minor cuts and bruises.

Mayfield—The Rt. Rev. William R. Moppy, bishop of the Lexington Episcopal diocese, announced from the pulpit here yesterday that Mrs. John M. Hunt of Mayfield had given $50,000 to the Episcopal Church of the Nativity here. The bishop said the gift was made at the request of the donor's husband, who died several weeks ago.

Frankfort—After suffering a heart attack two weeks ago, L. B. Marshall, 50, plant superintendent of the Frankfort State Journal, died in a Louisville hospital yesterday. He was a son of the late Ben Marshall, prominent figure in Democratic state politics, and had been with the State Journal 37 years.

Lexington—A two-day convention of the Kentucky hospital association will open here next Thursday with 100 hospital administrators and superintendents expected to attend.

Louisville—Clifton Rodes, vice-president of the concern operation the Starks building in downtown Louisville, said normal operation was expected today after a fire caused minor damage on the ninth floor yesterday. Some heat and smoke damage was caused on the 10th and 11th floors. Fire chief John Krusenhaus said the blaze started in a box used to control electrical wiring on the floor.

Cotton Men Meet At Bemis

Discuss Competition Of Other Fibers; See Need For Research, Promotion

Bemis, Tenn., March 24—(AP)—One of the chief problems of the cotton industry—dealing with competitive materials—virtually monopolized the discussion here today among members of the Tennessee-Kentucky unit of the National Cotton Council.

Robert Groves, president of Tennessee Ginners' Association and cotton buyer for the Bemis Cotton Mill, dealt with the fiber's fight for markets and urged a program stressing research, sales promotion and more efficient production and marketing methods.

"A united cotton industry must devote itself to improvement of quality through research," Groves told the cotton men. "If a competitor can offer the American consumer a better product than cotton can offer, the consumer will buy that product and cotton will lose proportionately."

Read Dunn of Washington touched on the foreign trade aspect of the industry and predicted that exports to Europe during the current crop year would probably reach more than two million bales.

M. K. Horne, Jr., also of the council's Washington staff, discussed cotton's superiority over competing substances, saying the fiber led all others in wet and dry strength, absorbency, resistance, perspiration resistance, flexibility and versatility.

Marine Colonel A.C. Roberston Presumed Dead

Co-Pilot of Plane Lost Dec. 10, 1946 In Washington

PARENTS LIVE HERE

Lt. Col. Alben C. Robertson, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Robertson, Highlands, is presumed to have died in the crash of a Marine Corps transport plane Dec. 10, 1946, on Mt. Ranier, Wash., his parents have been notified by Gen. A. A. Vandergift, Marine Corps commandant.

Col. Robertson was co-pilot of the plane, which had three other passengers who also are presumed dead.

He would have been 32 years of age Jan. 1, 1947. He was educated in Mounds, Ill., and was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis in June, 1937. In 1939 he served in China and at Cavite, P. I., returned to the States June 30, 1941, and was stationed at the Marine base at Philadelphia and at Newport, R. I.

On Dec. 7, 1941, he entered air training at Pensacola, Fla., later going to Miami, Fla., Virginia and Connecticut. Col. Robertson went overseas in 1943 with the first squadron of rocket bombers.

He was credited with shooting down 10 Japanese planes, and was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross in addition to other medals and decorations.

Col. Robertson is survived by his parents; his wife and two small children, Robin, 5, and Rex, 3, Santa Ana, Calif.; and one brother, James D. Robertson, who is employed in Washington, D. C.

9 Cars Derailed At New Yards

Considerable damage was done at the new yards here early Sunday morning when a cut of cars backed into Illinois Central freight M82, northbound from Memphis. Unofficial reports said that the freight was heading into the second cutoff when the collision occurred, and that nine cars were derailed. No one was injured.

All through trains were routed through the old yards until the track was repaired and the cars put back on the rails.

L. H. Howard Rites Today

Interment In Fairview; Long-Time Resident Died At City Hospital Saturday

L. H. Howard, 78, died Saturday, March 22, at the Fulton Hospital.

Mr. Howard was a long-time resident of Fulton, coming here to make his home from Calaway county where he was born in 1869. For a number of years he was engaged here in construction work as a builder and contractor. In his latter years he retired from active work and operated a service station near his home.

Mr. Howard is survived by his widow, Mrs. Berlie Meacham Howard; three sons, Hardeman Howard, Detroit, Searcy Callahan, Jacksonville, Fla., and Dr. Thomas Callahan, Washington, D. C.; two daughters, Mrs. W. M. Hays and Mrs. Ward Bushart of Fulton; one brother, the Rev. Jewell Howard, Marysville, Calif., and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were conducted this afternoon, March 24, at the First Christian church by the Rev. E. M. Oakes, pastor, assisted by the Rev. W. E. Mische, pastor of the First Methodist church. Mr. Howard held membership in the First Christian church. Burial, in charge of Hornebeck Funeral Home, was made at Fairview cemetery.

Active pallbearers were Frank Beadles, Louis Weaks, Charles Gregory, Don Hill, Robert Holland and Bob White.

Honorary pallbearers were deacons of the First Christian church, members of the deceased's Sunday school class, R. E. Pierce, Flournoy Taylor, Washington, D. C., Paris Campbell, Will Whitnel, Henry Whitnel and N. C. Cooke.

Big Four Still Deadlocked On New German Government

Moscow, March 24—(AP)—The diplomatic struggle over Germany in the Big Four foreign ministers' council entered a new phase today as the conferring powers planned their next moves in negotiations on a German government.

The Soviet Union on the one hand and the United States and Britain on the other, charted maneuvers aimed at achieving the kind of government under peace-treaty provisions that each side seemed to believe would be most favorable to its own political system.

Proposals of all four powers on this issue had been laid before the council in varying detail Saturday night when it quit work till tomorrow to give the foreign ministers' deputies time to summarize the results of deliberations, now two weeks old.

The deputies on Germany were committed to hard work today and economic proposals in lists of points on which there was agreement and points on which there was disagreement. Some top U. S. authorities said this week should tell whether any concrete accomplishment could be expected from the Moscow conference.

The deputies on the Austrian treaty, which had been expected to give less trouble than the German, were shown by a summary of the talks made little progress. This summary listed eight agreements and seven disagreements on political clauses, seven agreements and 11 disagreements on military clauses and one agreement and nine disagreements on economic clauses. On the 27 disagreements 25 were in major points.

The ministers themselves, taking their seats for a suggestive day off, were busy analyzing what had been done so far and planning what to do next. Secretary of State George C. Marshall took last evening off to attend a buffet supper and movie given by U. S. Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith at Spasso House for American delegates and American correspondents.

Diplomatic officials professed to see a major clash developing over essential differences between the plan for the German government outlined by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and those outlined by Marshall and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin.

In a nutshell, the proposals submitted last week show, said these officials, that the Soviet Union wants to build the government from the top down, while the U. S. and Britain want to construct it from the bottom up.

U. S. Won't Send Any Troops To Help Greece And Turkey, Acheson Tells Senate Group

Repeats Belief Truman's Policy Won't Mean War

DECLINES COMMENT

Washington, March 24—(AP)—Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson declared firmly and flatly today that American plans for bulwarking Greece and Turkey against communism "do not include our sending troops."

"We have not been asked to do so. We do not foresee any need to do so. And we do not intend to do so," Acheson asserted.

His testimony was prepared for the opening of hearings by the senate foreign relations committee on President Truman's program for insuring the independence of the two southern European countries with American dollars, weapons and limited military missions.

As he did before the house foreign affairs committee last week, the acting cabinet officer said he does not think the aid proposals will lead to war.

"I think that quite the opposite is true," Acheson told the senators.

"These proposals are designed to increase the stability of, and to further the opportunity for democratic development in, two countries most important to the world community.

"These are not acts which lead to war.

"They lead in the other direction. They help to maintain the integrity and independence—what the United Nations charter calls the 'sovereign equality'—of states. That is one of the principles upon which the whole effort to organize the world for peace is founded."

Acheson's testimony before the senate committee was one side of a two-way congressional drive to press the aid program through. It was spurred by documentary accusations that Russia is attempting to hoist the flag of communistic control over both Greece and Turkey.

These documents—their "secret" label removed under congressional pressure to give the nation the "full facts"—accused Russia of waging a "war of nerves" against Turkey, told of a "master plan" to make Greece Communistic, and called Poland a Soviet "satellite."

In the second segment of the Capitol Hill drive, Undersecretary of State William Phillips, in charge of the Department's economic affairs, told the House Foreign Relations Committee that all but $150,000,000 of the proposed $400,000,000 aid program would be spent for military purposes in the two countries.

He said approximately $200,000,000 would go to Greece, split on a 50-50 basis for military and civilian necessities. Of the latter $150,000,000 he said that $60,000,000 has been earmarked for internal costs to help Greece return to economic stability, $50,000,000 for foreign exchange costs, and $40,000,000 for such things as livestock and farm equipment.

Clayton acknowledged that all of the $100,000,000 tentatively proposed to ease Turkish troubles would go for safeguarding the country's security. Most of it would be spent directly for military equipment but some of it for closely allied projects such as improving the transportation system.

In saying that no troops would be sent to either Greece or Turkey, Acheson asserted:

"We have no understanding with either Greece or Turkey, oral or otherwise, in regard to the sending of troops to those countries.

"Our military missions x x x will be small ones, whose task will probably be to find out the local need for military equipment and to see to it that needed material is delivered and is in the hands of the proper authorities. Our missions will consist only of observers and advisers."

A stove pipe at Smith's Cafe fell at about 2 o'clock this morning, filling the cafe with smoke. Fulton firemen were called, but no blaze was found.

Take Your Choice

A difference of opinion, it is said, makes a horse race, and makes a high school basketball tournament an event upon which the gambling gentlemen are eager to wager a goodly number of dollars. Arrest of 29 persons at the Louisville armory last week during the recent tournament prompted these divergent comments from two of the larger Kentucky newspapers:

Said Edd Kellow in the Paducah Sun-Democrat—Biggest sensation of the tournament: The arresting of "Fox DeMoisey," coach at Kavanaugh, and Virgil McWhorter, Hazel Green, for alleged gambling activities. The cops couldn't have picked two better-known individuals to try and pin bookie activity on. If the plainclothes boys would raid a few second-story joints very near the armory, they could get to the real seat of the game. But maybe these places are not as bad as couple of out-of-town fellows making a few friendly wagers. At least they weren't openly solicited bets—nor did they have a blackboard displaying the odds.

Said the Louisville Courier-Journal—What is most disturbing is the presence of three high school coaches among those arrested. A coach shouldn't be even that close to gambling. Assuming none of the three coaches arrested here would dream of it, the temptation to influence games on which money is wagered is nevertheless present. And it taints the whole atmosphere of sincerity and cleanliness in the tournament. While the action of the Louisville Police Department is commendable, responsibility for prohibiting betting activities of coaches and at games belongs first to the schools themselves.

Housing Trouble Solved

Chicago.—(AP)—Lee Williams has come to the end of the trail in tramping streets looking for a place to house his family. Since last July he and Mrs. Williams and their six children have been living in an eight by eight foot "cracker box" trailer.

Daily Williams answered advertisements and rang doorbells in search of more commodious quarters. Now the family is looking forward to receiving a promised two-story, three-bedroom trailer with adjustable porch, gift of a trailer manufacturing company which heard that the children all slept in one bunk. The new "home" is valued at $5,000.

Army Style Now

La Salle, Ill.—(AP)—The method in which police shifts are relieved has been changed by the city council at the suggestion of Alderman John Hrovat.

Hrovat said that under the arrangement whereby one shift was relieved by another at the city hall "someone could come in and walk away with the whole town."

The council agreed to his plan of having policemen relieve other officers "on post."

We never encourage or discourage anyone about running for office. If we encouraged him, and he got hell beat out of him, he would always think we got him into it because of the few dollars we get for announcing him. If we should discourage him, he would always think we didn't love him any more.—Grenada County, Miss., Weekly.

Aiming At Communism

By Dewitt MacKenzie,
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

President Truman's order for a house-cleaning among government employees has pinned the label "disloyal" to any one who belongs to, or has "sympathetic association with," any group which the attorney general rules to be "totalitarian, fascist, communist or subversive."

While this order specifically relates only to government service, it is obvious that the label of disloyalty applies equally to any citizen who associates himself with any of the groups in question. Also, since the chief executive's move comes so soon after the pronouncement of his new world policy against aggressive communism, it's safe to say that he once more is aiming chiefly at the Red Ism.

Why? What is it that places communism outside the pale of Western democracy? What about the claim of American communists and fellow travelers that they will be deprived of constitutional rights if their political aim is banned?

One answer is that modern communism has as a major principle that it must come to power through a revolution by force and that the establishment of a Soviet government—which is a totalitarian dictatorship—must be accompanied by a period of terror to impress the significance of the change on the populace. We first saw this put into effect in the Bolshevik revolution which established Russian communism in 1917.

The czar, the Czarina, the Czarovitch and other members of the Royal Family were shot. There was widespread "liquidation" of the nobility, aristocracy, landed proprietors, and other people of wealth. There was wholesale confiscation of property.

A similar pattern has been followed elsewhere, though there have been some variations in connection with the vast expansion of Moscow's European zone of influence during and since the World War. Elections have been held in Poland and the Balkans, resulting in the return of communist dominated governments, and in the cases of Poland, Bulgaria and Romania, the United States and Britain protested hotly that there was no free vote.

Widespread liquidation of people listed as hostile to communism has been reported in the various countries. All these states are under control of Moscow, although they haven't actually become members of the Soviet Union.

It is we see the communism, as a revolutionary ideology, is wholly outside the laws of any country adhering to Western democracy. This fact was recognized by both Britain and America for many years after the Bolshevik upheaval of 1917 until finally the communist propaganda for world revolution would cease within their domains.

The United States now appears to be reverting to its old viewpoint. Further striking evidence of this is seen in the refusal of the supreme court, last week to review the case of a man who had been dismissed from federal employment because he belonged to a so-called "communist front" organization. Federal courts upheld the right to dismiss him, and the supreme court's action in effect approved the ruling by the lower courts.

through a glass darkly

By ERL SENSING

The sound of the rain today (Sunday) brings a thought forcefully to mind. There is a little creek that winds its way through the heart of our town—Harris Fork. It is called.

In dry weather it appears to be such a harmless little stream. The sight of it trickling under the bridge there where Carr, Lake and State Line come together is enough to lull most of us into complacency. No one would ever dream, looking at it at such time, that it could angrily rise out of its banks and inundate the whole of Lake street on one side and spill over toward Carr on the other.

Those of us who have lived here in Fulton for some time know just how quickly it can do exactly that very thing, though. For a number of years now flash floods have been common occurrences. The rainy season is almost upon us again. And almost as sure as death and taxes, Harris Fork creek is about to rise up again and flood our town. It is my fervent wish that we shall be spared this year—but wishes aren't strong enough to hold back rising water.

If a flood does come, there will be another big creek meeting. It is too bad there isn't some way we can inform the creek of the decisions made at these meetings. I'm sure, if it only knew, it would not dare come out of its banks. However, being only a creek it can only understand such things as a deeper channel or a wider right of way.

I dare say it took less time to build the Gilbertville dam that it has taken to get started on taming that pesky little creek. The world has fought another war in the time that the people of Fulton have been waiting for someone to turn a spade of dirt under the bridge on Commercial avenue. It has become a joke to nearly all of those who do not own property that is flooded in time of high water.

This is not written in condemnation or censure of those who have been entrusted with the problem of flood control in Fulton. What I have to say is directed toward the citizens of Fulton—all of them. Let's get behind the creek project. Let's do everything to make it a success. Let's give those who have been selected to do this job all the assistance within our power. It makes no difference if you live in Fairheights where the water never reaches you or right on the bank of the creek, it is still your concern.

It is such an easy thing to decide to let others do a task that needs to be done—it is even easier to stand back and find fault with the way they do the job once they have begun. It is a much better way, though, to join forces and work together to accomplish the thing that must be done. There is no doubt in anyone's mind but that something must be done about finding a way to let Harris Fork creek run through Fulton without flooding its banks. Plans to be made. Let's see to it that those plans are put into effect as quickly as possible.

I don't want the people who chance to read what I write to form the mistaken idea that I have set out to criticize all things that are done in Fulton. In spite of the fact that criticism never hurt anything, that is not my intention at all. I will not hesitate to put things as I see them, however.

In this particular case, I only see a creek flowing through Fulton. I know that it can be kept within its banks, no matter how much it rains. I think it is up to the people of Fulton to see that this is done. I don't think that is a problem only for the business men who have stores along Lake street. I don't think that it should be left completely up to the city administration, or to those appointed by them. I think this is a common burden that we all should bear proportionately to our means and the benefits that can be derived by banishing it entirely as a cause of concern.

Horse Sales Open Tonight At Tattersall's Stables

Lexington, March 24.—(AP)—March saddle horse sales open at Tattersall's barn here tonight and continue through next Saturday.

Most of the 495 horses consigned by 277 owners are five-gaited although about 100 walking horses are included. Tuesday through Friday there will be afternoon and night sessions. The final sale will be conducted Saturday afternoon.

$100,000 Fire Destroys Laboratory

Smoke and flames billow from the Barger Laboratories, Inc., building in New Orleans, La. Before firemen could bring the fire under control the flames had spread to an adjoining church and icehouse. Damage to the three buildings was estimated to be $100,000.

Utah, Wildcats Tangle In NIT Finals Tonight

Westerners Are Underdogs Again But Have a Chance

NCCA TUESDAY NITE

New York, March 24—(AP)—Utah University's second Cinderella team in four years challenges the powerful Kentucky Wildcats in the finals of the national invitation basketball tournament at Madison Square Garden tonight as the court sports' whirlwind series of post-season activities swing into their closing week.

Oklahoma and Holy Cross take over the Garden floor tomorrow night to battle it out for the National Collegiate A. A. title and there are reports that the winner will be matched with the N. I. T. champ on Thursday night for the benefit of the American Olympic basketball committee.

College basketball's parting shot of the 1946-47 season comes Saturday night when an eastern all-star squad coached by Nat Holman of City College takes on a western group directed by Nat Iba of Oklahoma A. and M.

In a charity game sponsored by the New York Herald Tribune, Top-seeded Kentucky is out to win the invitation tourney for the second straight year tonight, a feat accomplished by only one other team, St. John's turned the trick in 1943 and 1944.

Blocking the Wildcats' path is a Utah crew which didn't even win its own big seven conference title and came into the tourney as one of the four unranked teams.

The Utes nipped third-seeded Duquesne, 45-44, in the first game and then bounced West Virginia, ranked second, out of the semi-finals, 64-62, as Kentucky eliminated fourth-rated North Carolina State, 90-42.

Utah's surprising march to the finals recalled the situation in 1944 when the Utes, eliminated by Kentucky in the first round of the invitation tournament, received a bid to the NCAA western regional playoffs as a substitute for Arkansas, which withdrew when some of its players were injured in an automobile accident.

Utah won the western NCAA title at Kansas City, came to New York and whipped Dartmouth in the East-West NCAA finals and then turned back St. John's, winner of the invitation meet, in a game sponsored by the Red Cross.

Two of the stars of this Cinderella team—Arnold Ferrin and Wat Misaka—still are regulars on the Utah quintet which will enter tonight's tussle in its usual role of underdog.

Gigantic Windmills Suggested To Produce Cheap Electricity

By Robert E. Geiger
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Washington.—Engineers of the Federal Power Commission say it is possible to harness on wind and tame them into producing $50,000,000 worth of cheap electricity each year.

That one of the oldest sources of energy, the wind, appears destined to be harnessed alongside the newest, the atom.

Plans for wind generators have been discussed for several years, and Percy H. Thomas, staff member in the office of the commission's chief engineer, says he now is convinced they will work on a gigantic scale.

Hugh windmills would be constructed on towers 575 feet high, 20 feet higher than the Washington monument.

Thomas has plans for a generator for each tower, which would have a capacity of 6,500 kilowatts or around 8,870 horsepower. Connected into the existing power circuits of the nation, between 800 and 1,000 of these gigantic aerogenerators would produce about 20 percent of the nation's electricity, engineers estimated.

Already, Thomas says, studies have shown that there is sufficient wind in virtually all parts of the nation to operate such huge windmills.

What it takes, he says, is a steady wind of around 20 miles per hour. Wind force increases with elevation. That is why he proposes to build each windmill on a tower 575 feet high. Each tower would be placed on a carefully selected site where studies show winds prevail.

Each windmill, Thomas estimates, could be constructed for around $50,000.

Compared with hydroelectric and steam plant costs, the wind generators are cheaper, Thomas says. He estimates the cost of production at around 1-1/3 mills per kilowatt hour. Average steam and hydroelectric prices range from around two mills to 7 or 8 mills, Thomas estimates.

If the savings are applied to America's bill for $20,000,000, 900 kilowatt hours annually, and if the windmills produce a full 20 percent of the total, the savings would be around $50,000,000. But this probably couldn't all be applied as a savings on power bills because the aerogenerators would have to supplement steam and hydro plants.

This is because the wind is not a "stable" source of power, and the steam and hydro power plants would be needed to produce current when the aerogenerators are becalmed.

The wind has been used to produce electric energy in Russia as well as in the United States but not on the scale Thomas proposes. He says three "groups" are interested in taking over the aerogenerator plan and constructing experimental projects to prove the feasibility of wide-scale operations.

Tremendous engineering problems are involved.

Each tower, with twin "windmills" and generator house platform, would weigh 1,400 tons. The windmills, generator and platform, elevated to 575 feet, alone would weigh about 700 tons, each blade 11 tons.

The "mill" would be around 100 feet. This is longer than the wing of a superfortress, 65 feet.

Each generator would produce around 8,870 horsepower at capacity. This is almost three times the power of each engine in the new 999-ton Constitution airplane, carrying 100 passengers.

Engineers estimate this 8,870 horsepower would provide for the home needs of a town of 20,000 people.

Cleveland Indians To Have Try-Outs At U. City Soon

The Cleveland Indians, with whom the Union City Greyhounds have a working agreement, will hold a three-day baseball try-out school at Turner Field, Union City, Tenn., on April 8, 9 and 10, it was announced today by H. P. Moss, business manager of the Greyhounds.

In order to enter the school it will be necessary for aspirants to make written application to Moss before the school starts. No one who is over 22 years of age may enter the school, nor is it permissible for high school students or players on American Legion baseball teams to enter, he said.

Big Operator Is In Court
Nicholasville Man Said To Be Ringleader In Bets Placed On State Tourney
Louisville, Ky., March 24—(AP)—John Hubbard Stevens, Jr., of Nicholasville, Ky., who with three Kentucky high school basketball coaches and 28 other persons was arrested at the Kentucky high school basketball tournament here, was scheduled to receive a police court hearing today.

Detective L. Ellis Joseph identified Stevens as a known bookie and a "big operator." He said more than $2,000 in cash and betting slips was found on Stevens, who was released on $100 bond pending the hearing.

Joseph identified the coaches as Harry E. Meacham of Carrollton high school; Virgil H. McWhorter of Hazel Green, and Jean C. DeMoss of Lawrenceburg, coach at Kavanaugh school.

Judge Homer McLellen in police court Saturday amended charges of disorderly conduct against Meacham and DeMoss to security warrants, and released them on their own bond. Charges of disorderly conduct and gambling against McWhorter were continued.

Fines ranging from $2 to $25 were imposed on 15 others on disorderly conduct and breach of peace warrants. The remainder of cases were continued.

The arrests were made by detectives at the Jefferson County Armory, scene of the basketball tournament, acting on orders of Police Chief Carl Henatis. The tournament ended Saturday.

Ready For Date, But A Bit Late
Ellensburg, Wash. — (AP)—Friedrich Janda of Vienna, Austria, is a bit late in seeking a date on the Central Washington College campus here.

He wrote the college, enclosing a clipping telling how 420 coeds, planning a hayride, could find only 30 men and had to select the girls by lottery. Janda wanted in on the next hayride.

But the lottery was last year. This year there are 527 men and 425 girls in the college.

BY EWING CALLOWAY

Governor Willis' sub-committee on Motor Vehicle Administration recently prepared a report that is just about the best public document I have read in a dozen years.

The sub-committee recommends that a separate agency having equal status with other state departments be called the Department of Motor Vehicles. This agency would be charged with responsibility for administering the Operators' License Law, the Drivers' Responsibility Act, the Motor Vehicle Regulatory Laws, and all other motor vehicle functions of the state, including the Highway Patrol, the Division of Motor Transportation and the Department of Revenue, relating to the operation of vehicles. This would be consolidation for economy and efficiency, and the agency would study traffic problems in critical areas on county roads and city streets as well as state and federal highways.

It would promote strict enforcement of the law by all peace and judicial officers of the commonwealth, with emphasis upon the following causes of accidents which result in the loss of hundreds of lives, injury to thousands, and hundreds of thousands of dollars in damages to vehicles:

Violation of speed regulations, drunken driving, overtaking where vision is obstructed, violating signals and signs, operating with improper light-violating line markings, stopping or parking in hazardous places, and pedestrians violating rules for people on foot.

Important also would be better training of highway patrolmen in traffic law and how to obtain the right kind of evidence to be used against violators.

And here comes a recommendation your reporter has been advocating ever since this column was started in January, 1946: A regular system of periodic inspection of all motor vehicles.

This would involve inspection of cars twice a year or often by well trained mechanics. The inspection work could be maintained by charging nominal fees to car and truck owners, who would profit in the long run by getting a statement of defects to be used to protect themselves against ignorance of service charges for fictitious repairs.

Persons issuing drivers' licenses would be trained to examine applicants. Strict rules as to mental and physical qualifications of applicants for drivers' licenses are one of the main recommendations of the sub-committee. This clause in the report is too long to be covered in this article. I will give you all the essential points in the near future.

A program of education in road courtesy, urged by the sub-committee, would include: Strict observance of speed laws, stopping behind hauled school buses, aiding and assisting motorists in distress, education in the use of hand signals, proper use of dimmer switches, assistance by local and state police in the training of fleet drivers. My guess is that less than fifty percent of the licensed drivers in the state use the required hand signals all the time, and as many never think of using their dimmer switches unless they are blinked at by persons meeting them.

Hints For Farmers

By J. A. Hayes
Agricultural Agent
Illinois Central Railroad
Paducah, Kentucky

A farmer who puts out a block of salt for his cattle, and says, "Come and get it," is certainly robbing his cows. This is like the farmer's wife who invites neighbors in for Sunday dinner and gives them a salt shaker filled with wet salt which will not pour.

Cattle need about one ounce of salt per day, and this amount is not met from a block of salt, without making their tongues sore. Much better than this method is to use loose salt and mix it in right proportions in feed, or by itself in a mineral box, conveniently placed so as to be readily accessible to the cattle throughout the day.

By using this method, dairy-men find their cattle will keep in healthy condition and give them more milk daily, while beef producers will find their cattle put on gains faster and more economically.

Poland Imported
$52 Million Worth
Of Textiles in 1946

Warsaw, Poland—(AP)—Poland imported textile raw materials valued at $52,000,000 in 1946. Imports included 41,300 tons of cotton, 19,260 tons of wool, 7,020 tons of flax, 5,313 tons of jute, 13,320 tons of cellulose, 761 tons of oakum and 269 tons of rags.

The Polish government plans to double the import of raw materials in 1947 and quadruple exports to cover about 60 percent of costs of imports. Textiles were exported in 1946 to Russia, France, Switzerland, the United Kingdom and Norway.

Wall Street Report

New York, March 24—(AP)—Selected stocks made a little further headway in today's market although many leaders did nothing or slipped a shade.

Slowdowns were frequent after a quiet opening. Fractional plus marks predominated near midday.

Some professional bidding still was based on the idea the list could achieve more of a technical recovery after five losing weeks.

Better performers included Allis-Chalmers, Du Pont, American Can, Goodyear, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich, Southern Pacific, U. S. Steel, Republic Steel American Telephone and Western Union "A."

Occasional stumblers were Santa Fe, Pullman on a sharp drop in 1946 net, General Motors, Chrysler, Electric Power & Light and Texas Co.

Bonds and cotton futures were relatively steady.

Wiring, Light Contract Let At Home For Blind

Frankfort, Ky., March 24—(AP)—A contract to install electric wiring and lighting fixtures at the Kentucky School for the Blind in Louisville has been awarded to the Thirwell Electric Co., Louisville, for $32,260.

The State Engineering Division reported today the company was lowest of eight bidders.

A proposal to install new kitchen equipment and plumbing at the school was abandoned when the lowest of four bids was $3,997, the Division stated.
