Hawaii's Restless Volcanoes

Thought On Verge Of Erupting

By Ralph Larrabee

Three of the most restless volcanoes in the history of Hawaii — Mauna Loa, Kilauea, and Makua — are on the alert as scientists are gathering data on their activity.

Mauna Loa, the world's largest volcano, is located on the Big Island of Hawaii. It is 13,676 feet high and has a diameter of 70 miles. Kilauea, located on Maui, is the second-largest volcano in the world, with an elevation of 4,207 feet. Makua, located on Hawaii, is the third-largest volcano, with an elevation of 3,088 feet.

During the past 10 years, Kilauea has erupted nine times, with the last eruption occurring in February 1983. Mauna Loa has erupted 15 times since 1926, with the most recent eruption occurring in January 1984. Makua has erupted five times since 1920.

Mauna Loa's periods of quiet are puzzling but scientists still classify it as an active volcano. "Mauna Loa's periods of quiet are puzzling but scientists still classify it as an active volcano." (Jungle)
