DEATH'S SHINING MARK

Judge T. J. Morrow Died Friday Morning

AFTER LONG ILLNESS, SHOULD BE PRESERVED

He Was a Man of Prominence, and Was Universally Esteemed.

THE DEMISE CAUSES GENERAL SORROW

The people of Hopkinsville heard with profound sorrow of the death of Judge Thomas J. Morrow, who quietly passed away at about 3:30 o'clock last Friday morning at his home near this city.

His Illness.

Judge Morrow had been in very bad health for about two years, and for about six months of that time was confined to his bed, but a few months ago he rallied sufficiently to be able to drive into the city every day and attend to his business as Master Commissioner of the Christian Circuit Court, and his friends all hoped that he would again regain his health, but instead of improving Judge Morrow suffered a relapse and a few days ago was compelled to retire to the bed that he was destined to never again leave. The malady from which he suffered and which caused his death was Bright's disease.

His Birth and Career.

Judge Morrow was born March 31st, 1844, in this county as the son of John Morrow, a pioneer settler, and Mary Morrow, a daughter of Col. William Morrow, a distinguished citizen of this county, and who represented the county in the lower branch of the Kentucky Legislature for one or more terms, and who died at Princeton, Ky., in 1864, having moved to that place in 1854, taking his family with him. At Princeton Thomas J. Morrow grew to manhood. He selected the law as his profession, and soon after being admitted to the bar was elected to the office of County Attorney of Caldwell county, which he filled with marked ability that the people of Caldwell later on chose him to represent them in the Kentucky House of Representatives, where he took rank amongst the leaders of the Democratic party.

Moved Back Home.

In 1880 Judge Morrow moved back to the county of the nativity and located near the city of Hopkinsville. For some time after returning here he was in the coal business, but in 1886 he was elected County Judge of Christian county and was re-elected in 1890—a high tribute to his worth as a Christian gentleman and a business man, for he is remembered that he had big odds to contend against. The people all knew him to be worthy of their confidence. He, a few years ago, made the race for the Democratic nomination for Circuit Judge of this district, and after a long contest in the convention was finally defeated, though his strength at the start was equal to that of the gentleman who was finally nominated. He also a few years ago was the Democratic nominee for County Attorney of this county, but he had a large majority to overcome as Democrats over the county did not turn out in the election, and he was defeated. He was a man of high character, a loving husband and a kind and affectionate father. For many years he was Chairman of the Christian County Democratic committee.

His Domestic Life.

In 1873 Judge Morrow was married to Miss Nina Campbell, of Nicholasville, Kentucky, and six children are the result of this union. The children are, Thomas, Mary, Fannie, Edgar, Gordon and Robert, the oldest being in his twenty-third year, and the youngest in his sixth. Judge Morrow's eldest son, Robert, who is now a student at the University of Kentucky, is a very promising young man. Judge Morrow was a member of the Christian Church, and he was a very active member of the same. He was a man of high character, a loving husband and a kind and affectionate father. For many years he was Chairman of the Christian County Democratic committee.

Funeral Services.

Funeral services will be held at the late residence to-morrow morning at ten o'clock, conducted by Rev. H. H. Webb. The interment was in Hope-well cemetery. PROVISIONS ADVANCE

Sugar, Coffee, Meats and Lard Go Up In Local Markets.

TABACCO USERS IN FEAR AND TREMBLING

It is costing Hopkinsville people more to live, than it did before the war with Spain started.

Prices Go Up.

Provisions have advanced considerably in prices. Lard, sugar, meats, both smoked and fresh, coffee and tea sell for more than they did two weeks ago. Flour has gone up fifty cents on barrel, and bacon is worth from two to three cents more.

The cheap package coffees have advanced from 10c per pound to 12c.

and the higher grades 5c to 10c per pound.

Wholesalers regard this as a product of the war scare and simple and say there was no good reason for the advance.

There has already been considerable buying in staple products anticipating advances and this is continuing as further advances are looked for.

Wholesalers have also been laying in big stocks and anticipating their heavy trade to continue.

The Tobacco Users.

It may be money in the pocket of the man who uses much tobacco, to lay in a supply now. Last week chewing tobacco advanced from 10c to a pound and wholesalers look for a still further advance this week in anticipation of the revenue bill. Smoking tobacco has been affected about the same as the chewing brands.

Small Soap.

The advance is as yet small, but the consumer has not felt it in his purchase of a nickel plug or a dime sack of soap. It is only a question of a short time until he will pay more for the same quantity or get less for the same price.

The Weekly Crop Bulletin For the State Of Kentucky.

The weekly crop bulletin for Kentucky, issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture says: "The week has been only moderately favorable for agricultural interests, the weather continuing to cool and damp for best results. Light frosts have occurred in many counties, but our correspondents express the opinion that no damage will result. Farm work is still backward, considerable land in the bottom and overflowed districts being yet unbroken. Corn and hemp planting is progressing slowly and some early corn fields will have to be replanted. Oat sowing has not been finished, but the early crop is healthy and growing very well. In localities where the frosts are low and not too much, which have been injured to some extent by the weather, but as a rule, that crop is in excellent condition and very promising. The indications point to a very large acreage of cotton, and the ground is being put in condition to rapidly as the weather will permit for transplanting. There is an abundant supply of good healthy plants in all sections of the State. Peaches will be very scarce, but the outlook for other fruits is fairly good."

FIRMER AND HIGHER.

Local Tobacco Market Last Week.

CROP COMING IN EARLY

Owing to Rain Farmers Are Getting Behind-hand With Their Work.

QUOTATIONS ON ALL KINDS OF THE WOOD

Local tobacco receipts last week were 200 hhds., offering 195, sales 147, receipts 51. The market was firmer and a shade higher than any time in the past three weeks.

Quality Unimproved.

The quality of the offerings last week showed no improvement over that of last, and only a few good hogsheads of leaf appeared on sale, some of which sold at 16c.

The market was unusually active and prices for everything were stronger than at any time this season.

Owing to an abundance of "seasons" for handling, the crop is coming to market unusually early, and will soon be sold.

So far this spring we have had entirely too much rain and farmers are getting behind hand with their work.
