20 Are Killed As Winds Lash Three States Small Missouri Town Is Razed Tuesday Night

ARKANSAS, IOWA HIT

Worth, Mo., April 30.—(AP)—Tornado winds whipped through small towns in Arkansas, Missouri and Iowa leaving at least 20 dead today, injuring more than 50 and causing thousands of dollars in property damage.

Hardest hit was this northwestern Missouri town with a population of 233. Thirteen persons were killed and approximately 45 injured. Only half a dozen buildings in the town were left standing.

At least seven persons were killed in Arkansas where vicious winds last night lashed the small community of Bright Water and swept close to Garfield, not far from the Missouri line.

A tornado also struck Clio, a town of about 200 population, in southwestern Iowa, causing extensive property damage. No loss of life was reported, however.

The tornado that hit Worth swept through the center of the town, wiping out the entire business district. Two of the town's three churches and its brick schoolhouse were among the buildings demolished. Practically every tree in town was clipped off.

The community was in darkness until late last night when a mobile generator arrived from a neighboring town. Both the Salvation Army and the Red Cross set up stations and homeless were being cared for in the few remaining residences still standing and in nearby towns.

At Doping, Associated Press reporter who also covered the recent Texas City, Tex., explosion disaster, described the devastation here as greater proportionately than that at the Texas City.

"There simply isn't anything left standing except a few homes at the south edge of town which the storm missed," Doping said. "The center of town is wiped bare except for splintered wood, bricks and other debris."

N. A. Combs, a Worth mail carrier, said he doubted if the community would be rebuilt.

Mrs. N. A. Combs, 59, a nurse, said the first saw the tornado high in the air.

"It had a long tail," she said. "When it hit the ground there was a swirling dark cloud. The point seemed to broaden and sweep everything before it. There was a terrifying roar."

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Pickering arrived just shortly after the tornado hit and found their two children, Irene and Melvin, and Mrs. Pickering's mother dead in the ruins of their home.

"Everything we had is gone—the children, the home, the livestock, everything," said Pickering.

The couple had just returned from nearby Grant City when they saw the storm sweep into Worth.

House Trims Foreign Relief

Lops $150 Million Off
Administration Figure;
Takes Slap At Moscow

Washington, April 30.—(AP)—The House passed a $200,000,000 foreign relief bill today after cutting $150,000,000 off the sum asked by the administration and changing light conditions on aid going to countries under Russian domination.

The measure now goes to the Senate where the Foreign Relations Committee already has approved the full $200,000,000 figure.

Final passage came after the House shouted down a motion by Rep. O'Connell (R-Wisc) to return the bill to committee. The House already had voted to trim the funds and fix distribution standards where Moscow might be involved.

The restrictions would deny relief assistance to "those countries whose governments are dominated by the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics" unless they agree to American control of the supplies.

The restrictions were first ordered tentatively yesterday in an outbreak of protests against the activities of Russia within the countries on her borders.

Check For Nickel Isn't Much Good To Martin Soldier

Martin, Tenn., April 30.—(AP)—Truman Benthall, a former private first class, opened his terminal leave payment envelope and drew out a check for exactly five cents.

He would have cashed it, but the bank charges a nickel for out-of-town checks. He would have mailed it back to the Army, but that would take a three-cent stamp.

So Benthall settled his problem by buying a two-dollar frame and hanging the check in his bedroom.

Williams Says He'll Resign

Paducah City Manager
Says He'll Practice Law;
Formerly of S. Fulton

Paducah, Ky., April 30.—(AP)—City manager Charles A. Williams last night offered his resignation to the board of commissioners.

His letter of resignation, asking that it become effective July 1, was not acted upon by the board, but was placed on file.

Three of the four commissioners expressed surprise at the letter, saying they did not know of Williams' plans until they arrived at the meeting.

Williams said in his letter he was submitting his resignation at this time in order to give the commissioners plenty of time to select a successor. He said he would re-enter law practice here, and expressed appreciation for cooperation of the commissioners during his term of office.

Williams was named acting city manager March 13, 1946, afterwards he was given the job on a permanent basis. He is a native of Tennessee; a former resident of South Fulton, and came to Paducah in 1944 to enter the practice of law. He has been receiving a salary of $5,000 a year as city manager.

Ex-Col. Durant Gets 15 Years For Part In Hesse Jewel Theft

Frankfurt, Germany, April 30.—(AP)—Col. Jack W. Durant was sentenced today to 15 years at hard labor and dismissal from the U. S. Army for participation in the bizarre theft of $1,500,000 of Hesse royal jewels from Kronberg Castle.

After deliberating for two days, the U. S. military court sentenced the 37-year-old Chicago Air Force officer on eight counts. These included theft, smuggling jewels into the United States without payment of customs, and signing another officer's name without authority in an attempt to hasten a discharge from the Army.

The slim, dark featured Durant, who stood erect and motionless, blanched when sentence was pronounced in a courtroom filled mostly with American women and teen age girls.

The crowd had craned to see glittering array of precious stones spread out before the court martial as evidence.

Specifically, the court found Durant guilty of stealing only $10,000 worth of the jewel collection, which the Army prosecution valued at $1,500,000.

U. S. C. of C. Official Fears Truman Advice May Backfire

Washington, April 30.—(AP)—An official of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce suggested today that President Truman's plea for lower prices may produce joblessness and recession instead of preventing them.

William S. Street, chairman of the Chamber's economic policy committee, cautioned business to be watchful lest the White House call "result in wholesale cancellations of commitments both by business and the consumer."

The Seattle merchant suggested that unemployment might be caused "by the action now taken to attempt to prevent it."

"Such can be the result of failing to give our economy time to work out of its wartime dislocation by the free enterprise method," he said in a speech prepared for a luncheon gathering at the Chamber's 35th annual convention.

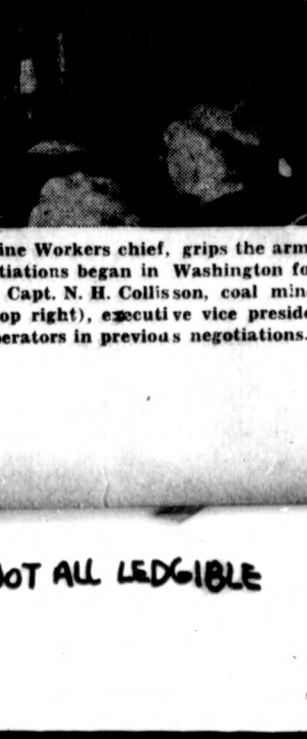

"The consumers prior to the President's announcement had already indicated their dissatisfaction with some of the values represented in some markets. It seems to me that a sound price adjustment was on its way to be worked out."

Street said he is "not hopeful" that industry generally will cut prices "unless at the same time there is a commitment on the part of labor that they will hold the line during the period such price cutting will require before stability is achieved." He explained:

"Until wages and prices stop chasing each other up a ladder of inflation, our hope that we can merchandise ourselves into an adjusted period while maintaining full employment becomes dimmer."

The chamber late yesterday adopted a formal policy statement approving price reductions "where and when business permits." This was qualified, however, by the assertion that the job of recovering economic stability is a task for all—government, business, labor, agriculture.

UMW, Operators Begin Coal Contract Talks

Five Eastern Telephone Unions Take Raises, Return To Work; None Was Affiliate Of NFW

Beirne Informs
Other Pay Boosts
May Be In Offing

Hikes Were $3, $4

Washington, April 30.—(AP)—Five unions of 43,000 telephone workers in New York and Pennsylvania called off strikes today, accepting contracts for wage increases of $3 to $4 a week.

None is affiliated with the National Federation of Telephone Workers, which called the nationwide tie-up April 7—but their actions aroused optimism among government labor negotiators for an early end to the strike of 300,000 NFW unionists.

Joseph A. Beirne, president of the NFW, said that it showed the Bell Telephone System's "solid wall of opposition to wage increases is crumbling."

He made that comment in a statement as negotiations were resumed here aimed at bringing about a national settlement.

Beirne added that the NFW's 39 union "will maintain our picket lines until our entire dispute is settled."

Same $6 Wage Demand

A $6 weekly wage increase was the chief demand made by the New York and Pennsylvania unions as it is with the NFW.

Four of these unions are in the New York City metropolitan area. It was announced that the agreement they reached provides:

Ending of the strike today; a general $4 weekly wage increase effective tomorrow; maintenance of union dues for members beginning tomorrow; pensions and benefits to remain undiminished during contract period; an extra day of vacation for a holiday falling during vacation period plus "improved one-week vacation treatment."

No discrimination by either party for strike or union activities; fringe issues to be negotiated at department levels; either party may reopen the wage question once during the one-year lifetime of the agreement.

The settlement in Pennsylvania was reached by a union with 6,000 maintenance workers. It agreed to $3 weekly wage increases for workers getting less than $51 and $4 for those now making over $51.

A big question left by the agreements was whether the members of these unions would respect picket lines of the NFW workers still on strike.

NFW officials said they expected the independent unionists to do so. But some government labor conciliators took the view that the agreements provided for a return to work, and that the independentists would feel bound by that.

Wants To See Lewis

In other labor developments, the Southern Coal Producers Association serviced notice that it preferred to deal with John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers independently of other mining groups.

The southern group which claims 35.4 percent of the nation's bituminous tonnage had the benefit of a 10-cent an hour wage differential until 1941. It became allied with the other operators in a national contract in 1945.

Discussions on the new contract to replace the present government agreement with the miners were begun yesterday and recessed until this afternoon after the southern group announced continuance of a national agreement was "impractical and undesirable" from its standpoint.

The law under which the government has operated the mines for the past 11 months expires June 30 and Navy Capt. N. H. Collison, federal coal mines administrator, has urged acceptance of contract terms by that time to assure peaceful return of the properties to their owners.

An Unselfish Decision

RAMBLINGS... By Henry Ward

The withdrawal of Adron Doran as a candidate for state superintendent of public instruction will stand as a shining example of the willingness of a man to sacrifice his personal ambitions to help a friend and advance a cause in which he believes.

The election of Doran as state superintendent if he had remained in the race was about as certain as anything can be in the realm of politics. He had been pledged the backing of school leaders all over the state, and they are the ones who usually manage to see that the superintendent they support is elected. The voters generally are willing to go along and name as superintendent the man the profession seems to want, since his duties are concerned solely with school matters.

It was natural that Doran would want to be state superintendent. It provides an opportunity for service to the cause of education that is unusually broad, in view of all the things which need to be done for education in Kentucky.

Add to that desire the knowledge that the office was so near, and you can visualize that Doran's decision not to seek it was a difficult one to make. But, considering all the factors, there will be general recognition that he acted for what will be in the interest of the educational program in Kentucky.

In brief, what he decided was that it is more important to have a governor who is a real friend of education than it is that he be state superintendent.

What prompted that decision was the information that the backers of Earle C. Clements, Waterfield's opponent for the Democratic nomination for governor, intended to declare that since Doran had been agreed on as the candidate for state superintendent the educational program need not be an issue in the gubernatorial campaign. Doran knew that this would not be true.

For example, a Democratic governor would be in control of the Democratic legislature. In addition, he would appoint the members of the state board of education. If the governor were not friendly to education, the state superintendent would have little influence against him, and the state board could tie his hands so effectively that he would have no more to do than hold his position and draw his salary.

Because Doran served in the state legislature with Earle Clements and was the leader of the educational forces in the House at the last session, when friends of Clements were in control of the Senate, he knew that Waterfield and not Clements would be a better friend of education as governor than would Clements.

The Clements' lieutenants in the Senate were the ones at the 1946 session who spiked the efforts of the Waterfield group in the House to appropriate sufficient funds for education to minimize the crisis which has arisen.

Knowing all this, Doran decided that the proper course for him to follow was to get out of the race for state superintendent and to devote his energies to helping in the election of Waterfield.

As a consequence, it is anticipated that he will be quite active in the state campaign, probably accepting a place on the Waterfield headquarters staff and becoming one of the chief speakers out over the state in his behalf. He will be an effective campaigner, for he has had considerable experience as a speaker, in his capacities as a debater, a teacher, a legislator and a minister.—(Fulton Sun-Democrat.)

That Palestine Problem

By Dewitt MacKenzie, AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

As was anticipated, the Palestine problem is producing variegated fireworks right at the start of its consideration by a United Nations which isn't too happy in the knowledge that it must render a judgment of Solomon if the issue is to be settled.

There was one heavy outburst yesterday when India challenged Sir Alexander Cadogan, British delegate, to give assurances that England would abide by recommendations of the Palestine session of the U. N. assembly. Sir Alexander retorted that Britain couldn't be expected to "expel blood and treasure single-handed" to carry out recommendations of the U. N. on the future of Palestine.

That could be the acme of diplomacy because, while it seems self-explanatory, it actually doesn't say "no" and it doesn't say "yes". One suspects that Sir Alexander was being non-committal in order to leave the way open for Britain's formal answer at a later date. However, that may be, the incident does illustrate the delicacy of the situation.

The U. N. is faced with what many pessimists would call an "impossible" task. It involves not only establishing a national home for Jews but safeguarding the interests of the big Arab population which outnumbers the Jews about two to one—the total population of the country being estimated at close to 1,800,000. And there are other items—of which more anon.

Still, it strikes me that the problem would be susceptible of solution if it could be confined to the interests of the inhabitants. I observed during visits to the Holy Land that the rank and file of Jews and Arabs get along well together if left alone, despite clashes among the upper registers of the two races. The current conflict in Palestine isn't between Jews and Arabs, but between some Jews and the British.

So it's our guess that if the U. N. finds an answer to the puzzle it will be based on the fundamental fact that the Jews and Arabs can live together amicably under normal conditions.

Unfortunately that isn't the whole story. If it were, the solution would be comparatively simple. The greatest obstacle lies in the fact that Palestine is so strategically located that its control is of vast interest to the major powers—militarily, politically and economically. As a military base it affords a powerful defense of the Middle East and safeguards the eastern approaches to the Suez Canal. The friendship of the many Arab peoples in that part of the world is being sought. And petroleum in Arabian hands is desired by many.

Thus we see that Palestine is the center of a mighty game of power politics. This has become hotter as Soviet Russia has reached for a place in the eastern Mediterranean which heretofore has been dominated by Britain.

Palestine still remains an important link in Britain's chain of imperial defenses, and the fact that London has turned the question of a Jewish national home over the U. N. doesn't mean that England is prepared to relinquish the mandate. Only necessity would impel the British government to abandon such an important base.

Bulldozers Help Poles Clean Up

Job of cleaning up the miles of rubble and ruins in Warsaw is getting a big boost.

Several hundred "bulldozers" have arrived in the capital from the United States. Poles estimate each machine replaces 65 men, most of whom have been cleaning up Warsaw by pick and shovel.

through a glass darkly

By ERL SENSING

In fear of becoming the most unpopular man in town, I dare to call the attention of the people who live in Fulton to the surface of earth that paces for a road under the viaduct on Lake street extension. I almost called it a street—but I refuse to murder the English language in such a fashion. If that that-bomb crater on Lake street, Lake street is paved with gold.

Tommy James, a young aviator from Fulton, spent Christmas day, 1944, riding up the streets of Bitburg, Germany, in better condition with a load of bombs. As I have my car—no, that is wrong, too. As I force my way through the town, only one thing is missing to carry me back completely to the ruins of European cities I saw in the war. At least, the place doesn't sink—yet. The old cities of France and Germany let forth a terrible stench when our shells and bombs broke their sewers and tore down their walls.

Bus drivers coming into Fulton from Mayfield, bring their buses to a snail's pace and sing out, "Fulton next stop—fasten your safety belts!" Passengers aboard the buses first laugh, then hold on to their seats for dear life—and, in truth, wish for safety belts. They certainly form a very bad first impression of our town. People driving their automobiles into town along the same route are similarly impressed. One day last week a man from out of Kentucky had to have a wrecker come down and pick his broken car out of that crater. He had stopped in town for a bite to eat. I doubt that he will ever stop again.

That plowed field masquerading (what a horrible false face it wears) as a street is a shame and a disgrace to the people of Fulton. It should be set apart with red flares to warn passing motorists of the danger of the sink in its depths. It should also turn some faces red. Someone is responsible for the condition of that—I still refuse to call it a street. I'll just say that someone is responsible for that thing.

The pitiful attempt now being made to fill the holes will do little good—absolutely no lasting good. I can't fix that thing so it will pass for a street. Not one of the readers of this paper can have it fixed. But I know how to make it look like a street. Start talking about it. Keep talking about it. Tell everyone you know about it. Tell the mayor, tell the council, tell the policeman, tell the firemen, tell the Chamber of Commerce, tell the Lions Club, tell the YMBC, tell the Rotary Club, tell the Kentucky state highway department—tell every body. Somewhere there is someone who can do something about it.

I am not the commissioner of streets in Fulton. I think I would make a very poor one. But other have been elected to look after our streets. They have a duty to perform. We have some good streets in Fulton. It is a pity that the highway has to come into town on one of the very worst—I still won't call it a street. Just the same, it is a pity the highway from Mayfield has to enter town by such a route.

Quite a number of people have told me that the trouble is not under the viaduct, but is down in the middle of Lake street. Highway 45 from Mayfield is a federal highway, and in order to be maintained through the town by the state it must have a clear right of way. As long as these sixty cars (I counted them) are parked in the middle of Lake the state refuses to maintain the highway through town. It would seem a bargain to obtain a little parking lot, say, on some of the railroad property along Lake, and park those cars there.

It is either move the cars or fix up under the viaduct ourselves. If the state will take over and maintain the highway through town after we move the cars, it would appear the sensible thing to move them. If that cannot be arranged, then it only remains to get to work ourselves.

Wall Street Report

New York, April 30.—(AP)—A brief flurry of bidding moved selected stock leaders to the recovery side in today's market, though there were a number of dissenters.

Activity soon settled to a low pace, and many gains that had been made at a point were reduced or eliminated. Near midday the list presented a well-mixed appearance.

Early demand for stocks was distributed by brokers to favorable overnight news including S. Steel's first quarter earnings report, and partial agreement in the telephone strike.

Registering improvement were S. Steel, Republic Steel, Goodrich, United Aircraft, Great Northern Preferred, Chesapeake Ohio, American Woolen, International Nickel, Westinghouse Electric, General Electric, Du Pont and Johns-Man-

Lexington—Eighteen University of Kentucky geologists students will take a five and a half week tour covering four Southern states this summer to observe geological phenomena.

Louisville—The Rev. John Thomas Mulvin, O. P., assistant pastor of St. Louis Bertrand church, died here yesterday. He was a native of Paducah.

Louisville—Taxable property in Jefferson county, including public utilities, has passed the billion dollar mark for the first time. Tax Commissioner George C. Trager yesterday reported the total tax assessment was now $1,007,266,095.

Washington, April 30.—(AP)—Rep. Chelf (D-Ky.), yesterday interrupted a speech in the House by Rep. Colmer (D-Miss), to say:

"Though we spent some $250,000,000,000 and 1,000,000 casualties to win the war, we are being shortsighted and niggardly in appropriating funds to preserve the peace."

Chelf told the House it "jerked the rug out from under Secretary of State Marshall" when it tentatively trimmed $150,000,000 from a $350,000,000 foreign relief bill.

"You can't teach a man Democracy on an empty stomach," he shouted during the debate.

Even Uncle Sam Can Show Profit In Inflation Era

The inflationary market has caused even the government to make a profit of $38,098 on the sale of 886 barrels of surplus cottonseed oil, according to the Louisville office of War Assets administration.

It all began when 1,799 fifty-five-gallon drums of the oil, stored at the Louisville Medical Depot, were declared surplus. The government claimed 913 barrels, leaving 886 to be disposed of.

WAA's Drugs and Medical Division in Louisville took over the 886 barrels, which cost $45 a barrel, and advertised the oil for sale on the basis of current market price—$1.60 per gallon. The response was terrific. When the sale was finished, 739 barrels had been purchased by certified veteran dealers, 57 by state and local governments, and 90 by non-profit institutions. Total cost of the 886 barrels was $39,870—cash return was $77,968, a profit of $38,098.

sales and luxury taxes will remain unchanged.

Some labor officials were critical of the fact that the new budget—which calls for expenditure of $2,002,000,000 in the new fiscal year—proposes removal of the excess profits tax and maintained that if that levy could be removed lower bracket income taxes should have been eliminated entirely.

Galleries of the House of Commons were jammed last night when Finance Minister D. C. Abbott presented the budget, and members on the Liberal (government) side applauded the announcement of the federal income tax reductions by banging loudly on their desk tops.

College enrollment in 1946 is estimated at 1,750,000. In 1920, it was 600,000.

In the past ten years, American labor unions have tripled their membership—from 4,700,000 to 15,000,000.

"KINGS ROW" BROUGHT BACK TO FULTON THEATRE

---Because it is good entertainment

Real Values And Services That Remain In Fulton

---Because they are lasting savings

"Kings Row" is the story of a town people talk about in whispers. The values and services listed on this page are things you shout about!

Strange and peculiar characters make their way across the screen in "Kings Row." Bellmann, the creator of these characters, uses them to play with thoughts and emotions as deftly as a skilled surgeon uses a scalpel to probe the tissues of your flesh.

"Kings Row" becomes a far-a-way town brought near when you see this picture.

"Kings Row" is a far cry from Fulton. Our town is a simple little community made up of ordinary, normal people. You must go to the theatre to meet the characters depicted in "Kings Row." Here in Fulton you can find your friends eating a steak at Smith's Cafe, a sandwich at the Ken-Tenn Grill or ice cream at the Brown Derby Ice Cream Bar; buying gasoline at John E. Bard's White Way Service Station, Coleman's Service Station or Adams' Body Shop and Service Station, buying meats and groceries at Sawyer's Market or L. V. Williams and Son Grocery; purchasing paint or wallpaper at Reed and Bowen; playing pool at the Three-Way Pool Room or Goodwin's Lunch Room and Billiard Parlor—or riding in a 243 taxi.

Go and see "Kings Row" at the Fulton Theatre, but be grateful you live in a quiet and peaceful town like Fulton.

It's a fine reflection on your own good taste when you bring your guests here for Luncheon or Dinner. The excellence of whatever we serve—plus the graciousness of our service and charm of our atmosphere is most inviting.

Chicks Edge Browns 8-6

Hold Lead Eight Innings In Game at Mayfield; Play Browns Here Today

Fulton's Chicks overcame a 1-1 tie in the first inning and led through the rest of the game with the Mayfield Browns at Mayfield last night, winning 8-6. This averaged an 8-3 defeat. The Chicks absorbed here last Sunday afternoon at the hands of the Browns, and makes their exhibition record show two wins and two losses.

Ed Engel was the winning pitcher, staying on the hill all the way. Fulton crossed the plate with two runs in the second and added five more in the fifth. The Browns put on a five-run rally in the eighth, but couldn't match the Railroaders' score. Pete Peterson collected four hits in five times at bat. Engel was next on the hit parade with three, followed by Propst, Buck and Gill with two and Gray with 1. Gill played left field for about half the game.

conferences, not the separate schools, and that the kind of dough they get now isn't enough to attract good, young prospects. That goes for football, too.

ROMANCE DEPT.

Ray (Hap) Dumont, who makes a practice of answering every letter that comes into his National Basketball Congress headquarters, has a brand new one—many of the kids asking strange questions, Ray reports, say they've written major league clubs without receiving answers—and Dumont almost broke his record the other day when a young sprout in an Iowa grade school wrote to ask where he could buy a baseball uniform for a birthday present to an eight-year-old girl.

SHORTS AND SUELS

It cost trainer Tom Smith $25 when Derby candidate Jet Pilot worked the Derby route between races at Churchill Downs Monday. Tom had to do almost everybody but the steward, who fined him for not asking their permission—Eddie Redi Cameron, former U. of Miami footballer turned heavyweight boxer, pilots his own plane between Miami and Newark, N. J., where he does most of his fighting—When the Boston Braves held a "Babe Ruth Day" after Ruth joined the club in 1935, the Babe was fanned three times by Cincinnati's St. Johnstone. The other times he fouled out.

SPORTSMENTION

Walter Pate, non-playing captain of the Davis Cup tennis team, is the best player of them all at the bridge table—Don Kepler, former Penn State and pro baseball who was in charge of the Navy's survival program at Chapel Hill, has designed a new fishing boat. The manufacturer recently sent him the first pair for a trial with the word that Don like it will be the only fisherman in the creek with a $500 pair of boots—Seems we've seen some like that in the World Series.
