Mill Costing $75 Million Eyeing Bardwell-Wickliffe

Kentucky Commissioner of Commerce Katherine Peden wired the Fulton County News Wednesday of a major development in the state's industry-seeking program.

Miss Peden's wire said:

"Kentucky is delighted in being considered by West Virginia Pulp and Paper as the site for a major new pulp and paper mill at an initial cost of 50 to 75 million dollars. The consideration of Bardwell-Wickliffe, Ky. community as a plant location by this major pulp and paper manufacturer is an important phase in Kentucky's economic development story. Officials of the company met with Governor Edward T. Breathitt and me Tuesday in Frankfort. During our conference they outlined their specific needs and requirements for information which must immediately be made available. Governor Breathitt committed the full resources of state government to this effort. The Department of Commerce, in particular, will bring its entire staff capability to bear in providing the needed information and assistance. Services of the department will also be available to the Bardwell-Wickliffe community. "Company officials said that information already available through the Department of Commerce was of great assistance in their long range evaluation and consideration of the Bardwell-Wickliffe area.

A study by Spindletop Incorporated feasibility of establishing a hardwood pulp and paper mill in western Kentucky was of particular importance in the analysis of the Bardwell-Wickliffe location. This is only one of a number of specific industry studies which the department of Commerce is effectively using in its industrial development program throughout the country.

"Harlow Newland, director of wood products development for the department, has been in touch with officials of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company for some time. He has already furnished much critical data relating to Kentucky which the company needed in formulating its development decision. The Department is already in the process of assembling and evaluating additional types of economic information which are required."

Jo's Notebook

If you take time to read the News carefully this week, you'll find that it can be called truly "the complete newspaper." With Jackie Caraway now on our staff, who incidentally likes to write and read as much as I do, we've got this town "but covered." If you don't believe it, and have the time, spend the next hour reading this paper, with its Homemaker supplement, and you'll be the most informed person on local and area news in this parts.

There's one story we didn't cover as "news," this week, simply because Jackie and I didn't quite know how to handle it. You see the story concerns a member of our staff . . . T. C. Taylor . . . whose wife was involved in that miserable scare last week when the hitchhiker knocked on the Taylor home near Water Valley, almost sending Mrs. Taylor into shock, as you can well imagine.

The intruder, who disrobed on the highway, then went prowling in the Taylor neighborhood, has been sent to a mental hospital, from which he should never have been dismissed in the first place.

Louise, T. C.'s wife, experienced some frightening moments that we just as soon not have her remember. Luckily the man was apprehended before he might have caused further terror, so for that we are thankful. So we're going to forget the whole thing as I hope Louise can in the not too distant future.

The days aren't long enough, nor are the weeks, or the months or the years, for us to do all the things we have to do, and for not half of the things we wish we could do.

This week-end Cile Sauvigny and I are going to Jackson to be in attendance at the Miss Tennessee pageant. It will hold special interest for us since our very own Vicki Hurd, the 1966 Festival Princess will be competing for the title of Miss Tennessee, in which competition she was runner-up last year. Vicki is part of our community family, so you know we'll be all clued in to the proceedings.

And as if Vicki's participation in the pageant isn't enough excitement for us, Margaret Ann Butts, a lovely young lady whom we've known since she was a tot, will also be competing. Margaret Ann is entered as Miss UTMB at Martin. Her grand-mother is Mrs. Edith Lowe and her mother is Mrs. Elias Williamson of Murray.

Margaret Ann has also competed in the Banana Festival Princess Pageant, so that makes us even more interested in the outcome of the competition. To top it all . . . Colonel Mercer Lee Price, our Banana Festival benefactor is one of the judges. Cousin Tuny, in whose home Cile and I will visit over the week-end is broadcasting and entertaining.

Ole Home Week . . . you'd better believe it!

Must close for now. It's deadline time. See you next week.

Prospective Industry To Interview

Persons who signed the labor survey forms sought by a prospective industry in the twin city area will be called in for interviews next week. Mrs. Cavita Olive, secretary of the Fulton-South Fulton Chamber of Commerce announced today.

The interviews will be conducted by T. D. Pentecost of the Tennessee Department of Employment Security next Thursday and Friday, July 28 and 29 at the Park Terrace.

Cards will be sent out to persons meeting the qualifications for the industry advising them of specific hours for the interview. Those applicants receiving interview notices who are unable to fulfill the appointments specified are asked to call the Employment office in Union City for alternate hours.

More than 1500 applications were received during the labor survey. However, those persons who have not filled out an application and are interested in employment may do so until Friday of this week (July 22).

Housing Project Has 36 Units For Elderly

"A survey made by the Public Housing Commission a year ago disclosed a need for at least 50 more low cost housing units in Fulton," said Richard Myatt, Executive Director of the Fulton, Ky., Municipal Housing Commission.

"Today we are assured that the need will be fulfilled," he said, referring to a telegram from Frank Albert Stubbiefield advising that the Department of Housing and Urban Development had approved a federal loan in the amount of $673,344.00 for construction of thirty-six low rent homes for the elderly and 14 low rent homes ranging from 1 to 5 bedroom units.

The homes for the elderly differ in construction because of the apertures such as hand rails, ramps, low cabinet construction, emergency signal lights and other features.

"The 50 units now in Fulton are filled and there is a waiting list of over 100 applicants," Myatt said. "The need is great. We made application last October and now that we have approval the 50 new units should be ready for occupancy within two years," he continued.

Included in the loan are sufficient funds to build a community center consisting of an assembly room with tables and chairs, a kitchen and bathroom. This center will be accessible to all the 100 units and will also be available for civic organizations and activities not directly concerned with the

South Fulton Negro In Top Contention In Obion County's Magisterial Contest

There's some mighty electioneering on the campaign trail in Tennessee these days.

Candidates are going round and round the State, the counties, the cities, and the magisterial districts with campaigns so torrid that the unusually hot weather seems like zero weather by comparison.

While tremendous interest is centered in the gubernatorial, senatorial and congressional races, there's a heat wave of enthusiasm building up in the magisterial race in the sixteenth district of Obion County with three young businessmen, a Negro barber and handyman, a service station operator and a long-time political figure seeking three of the posts to be filled.

While four of the candidates are making their political debut, it is significant that one of the four, a well known Negro resident of South Fulton since 1921, appears to be the leading contender, slated on a ticket with a candidate for the United States Senate (Bass, believed to be supported by President Johnson) and a gubernatorial candidate (Hooker, believed to be the candidate of Senators Robert and Teddy Kennedy.)

The candidates are:

Carl "Sonny" Puckett, Jr., one of the twin cities' most prominent businessmen and civic leaders. Sonny, as he is affectionately called, is making his first bid for public office, because he says, "if I want our children to get every advantage available in our educational system; if I want more industry for our twin cities; if I want to expand our economy by creating more jobs for our people and if I want good government for our city, county and State, I've got to be willing to find the opportunities to get them. If it takes running for public office to do it, I'm willing to take the chance."

Sharing Sonny's views are two other young Obion County businessmen who are making their first political campaigns for public office. They are C. D. Jones, associated with his father in the Jones Coal and Concrete Company and Ralph Puckett, a bulk gasoline distributor.

South Fulton Makes Saving In Operations

Henry Dunn, Jr., South Fulton City Manager announced this week that the city is saving $1,155.00 in costs of labor by utilizing power driven equipment to apply weed killer to the Harris Fork Creek, rather than cleaning the banks strictly with hand labor as has been done in the past. Three men accomplished the job in 8 days this year compared to four or five men taking approximately five weeks to complete in previous years.

Dunn also announced that the Nichols Engineering Company has completed the final application papers for the request of the city for the federal grant on water extensions. The Commission will receive the matter, to review this week after which it will be submitted to the Farmers Home Administration, the federal agency from which the grant will be requested.

Dunn, also announced today that the tennis courts by the S. Fulton School have been renovated are now in good condition for public use. It is expected that the lights will be ready for night play this week-end.

South Fulton City Manager At Meeting

Henry Dunn, South Fulton City Manager attended a Tennessee City Manager's Association committee meeting in Nashville, last week. The committee was formed for the purpose of encouraging high school and college age students to enter careers in local government.

Peggy Hussey Showing Art In Tulsa Exhibit

Mrs. Peggy Scott Hussey, daughter of Mrs. Ruth Scott of Fulton, and one of the best known commercial artists in the southwest, is now exhibiting her abilities at a one woman show at the Tulsa Little Theatre gallery, Tulsa, Okla.

Mrs. Hussey is showing 36 colorful miniatures using the latest acrylic-plastic painting techniques for her various studies of families and children, landscapes and portraits. Some of her works are currently showing in San Francisco's Union Court Gallery.

In the commercial art field for 15 years, Mrs. Hussey completed

You'd Hear A Melody Of Memories If Antiques Could Talk

By Jackie Caraway

"If that trunk could talk, what tales it could tell," said Ira Dixon of Dixon Antiques, referring to a horsehide trunk that went through the Civil War and is a treasured item sought after by an antique museum in West Memphis, Arkansas.

If antiques were people, they would have a wonderful time talking over their prime years. Actually though, antiques have reached a new high.

They are enjoying more prestige than accorded to antiques even some twenty years ago. In the modern world of simple line and boisterous color, anything goes and many a home owner is successfully combining the craftsmanship of yester-year with the assembly line products of the twentieth century.

In an impromptu search for the oldest antique in the area we visited the shop of Clarence Stunson, a craftsman in his own right, gifted in the art of restoring antiques. How marvelous it is to find a man dedicated to saving and revitalizing treasured pieces and making them into prized and usually practical possessions. What a pleasure it was to see a solid walnut umbrella stand with burl walnut inserts from the same tree. This lovely piece completely restored by Stunson was recently purchased by Mrs. Gilson Latta.

The usual roll-top type desk is made of oak, but Mr. Stunson has one of walnut that will soon be ready for sale. The desk, a large one almost five feet long, features a rotating pigeon hole portion to the left side of the desk where drawers would ordinarily be found. Imagine a rotating movement in a piece of furniture made over 100 years ago. When this desk is re-stored, the purchaser will have a practical roll-top type desk with the rotating feature and the pleasure of owning and using a fine antique item, much sought after by the connoisseur.

At the Park Terrace may be found another very practical and valuable antique item, a high chair with cane seat and back, featuring wooden wheels to glide it about the room. This piece, in excellent condition and well worth a trip to view, is placed at over 100 years old.

Though Mrs. Jean Smith is not in the antique business, she is the proud possessor of a cherry clothes press with the original sandwich glass knobs placing it at approximately 75 years of age. She also has a cherry spool chest, though they are usually found in oak, and a four poster bed with a spool mechanism through which ropes pass for a mattress to swing upon. One of the oldest antiques we have learned of to date is a rosewood spinet piano in fine condition and considered to be 165 years old, the property of Mrs. G. J. Willingham.

Tying for first place might be a walnut corner cabinet at the Derby Gift Shop. A fine specimen of Pennsylvania cabinet work with double doors top and bottom, this walnut cabinet with tiger-striped maple shelves is placed somewhere between 1780 and 1820.

Another item that may go back further than the spinet and the school financing and the need for vigorous leadership in the quest for more industry and better roads in South Fulton and the 16th district, all three "newcomers" to the political arena are waging a house-to-house effort in support of their campaigns to "put the 16th district on the same level as other districts in Obion County for the benefits that come from tax revenue to the area."

Meanwhile the strongest effort on record is being made among the Negro leaders in South Fulton to elect Cummings, 57, who says that "we need representation in the 16th district and I'm willing to go after it, if elected."

In a telephone interview with Cummings on Wednesday, the Negro candidate said that a "kick off" of his campaign will be held this Saturday, with plans for a tight organization and house-to-house solicitations.

Cummings' candidacy will make its mark felt more strongly in the vote-getting potential of former Mayor Milton Counce, who is the incumbent. Counce, who resigned his office as Mayor because of ill health, has heretofore had a strong following among the Negro population of the 16th district.

While Cummings believes that he will get the major portion of the Negro vote, which has increased greatly as a result of a concerted registration campaign among his backers, another strong faction among the Negro leaders is believed to be split among the other candidates.

Cummings told the News that he has been told that he has a sizeable number of white supporters, who may make up the difference needed to win him election as the first Negro office-holder in Obion County.

"I am going to campaign among the white voters as well as the Negro voters," Cummings told News reporter Wednesday. "While I am not running for 'black power' that the newspapers are talking about these days," he said, "I do think that my people deserve some power in government," he added.

Circulars distributed in South Fulton on Wednesday advocated a slate of Ross Bass for Senate, John J. Hooker for Governor and Nelson Cummings for Magistrate. The circular was signed by the Tennessee Voters Council and the South Fulton Advisory Council.

The Tennessee Voters Council is an organization of Negro leaders who are becoming a force in area political matters; the South Fulton Advisory Council is believed to be composed of local Negro leaders who have been candidates, or sponsored candidates for local offices in Tennessee.

Another candidate, Jack Lowe, who lost his first bid for the office in 1960 by less than 20 votes, told the News that he has not done any diligent campaigning as yet, but intends to do so right away. Lowe, "the mayor of Pierce Station," has operated a service station in South Fulton for eight years. He has served as deputy sheriff on the staff of Sheriff Ed Gwaltney.

Lowe, is seeking one of the two magisterial posts to be filled out of the city of South Fulton. Other candidates for the two posts are Jones and Ralph Puckett.

Counce, Cummings and Sonny Puckett are seeking the single magisterial post in the city limits, now held by Counce. All three magistrates have an equal voice in the administration of 16th district governmental affairs.

Another interesting race to be decided in the August 4 primary is that of constable, where former police chief Elmer Mansfield is seeking the post now held by Harry Moss Latta, who is seeking re-election.

Bill Jolley and Harry McKinney, incumbent magistrates in the rural area of the 16th district are not seeking re-election.

Kentucky's Revised Constitution Will Give People The Voice In Local Government They Deserve

Should the 1891 Constitution be allowed to stand in the face of pressure which has been building for 22 years for constitutional change? To the voters of Kentucky, The General Assembly has submitted for ratification a proposed revision. The Revision is a result of two years' labor by the 50 members of the non-partisan Constitutional Revision Assembly.

The Constitutional question before the voters in November must be decided by an intelligent choice, not appeals to ignorance. It is urged that all Kentuckians read the proposed Revision. It is hoped that such a reading will rectify some misconceptions concerning the home rule section of the proposed Revision.

In Article VIII, Section 1, there will be a marked increase in the authority vested in citizens of Kentucky to govern themselves. The Revision offers an alternative to the constitutionally dictated structure of local government which Kentucky now has. For the first time, voters in cities and counties will be given the power to organize local government to suit unique local problems. Rather than being vested only with such power as the General Assembly may give, cities and counties will be authorized to do that which is not specifically denied them by the Constitution, The General Assembly, or their own charters. This will give cities and counties a wide latitude presently impossible under the 1891 Constitution. The charge has been made that the Revision will deprive localities of political power. Such is not the case.

Local officials will not and cannot be appointed by Frankfort. Voters within a city or county are the only group given power to control the choice of local officers. The Revision specifically states that the chief executive and legislative bodies of local government must be elected while all other officers must be chosen by local authority (either directly elected or appointed by other local officers who are directly elected). Power over local government will not, as has been stated, be centralized in a few individuals.

Local government will not change unless (1) The General Assembly provides for a change by general law, or (2) a majority of the local voters choose a change in their local government. This is the Revision's answer to the present constitutionally stratified system of local government inherited from medieval England over which the local populace has no control.

In other words the Revised Constitution will put more power in the hands of the people.

Public officials who find it more profitable to keep the balance of power in their own hands will oppose the revision; those who believe that government of the people, by the people, is a better government will join the thousands of other dedicated Kentuckians seeking progress, economy and development of the Commonwealth.

We Long For Blessings Of Security... But How?

The amazing success of the charming little book, "Security Is" by Charles Schulz may be based on the nostalgic longing of man for the security felt in childhood and characterized by the thumb in a blanket.

How many of us recall incidents of childhood that made us feel secure and how many of us, as adults strive for that same feeling of security.

The unhappy paradox lies in the fact that even though we long for the blessings of security we do little about it.

We want the security a democracy can offer us, but we don't want to pay the taxes to support our government.

We want the security good law enforcement officials can give but we don't want to trouble ourselves to cooperate with them.

We want fair and intelligent people in political office but we refrain from going to the polls.

We want security for our young people but we too often fail to set good examples ourselves.

We long for the security of love that only our closest associates can give us and yet we may debase them.

We want religious tranquility but we make little effort to carry on the work of our churches.

We want the assurance of a healthy body, but we neglect to have regular health examinations.

We raise a voice of protest against pornography but we spend money for it.

We protest objectionable films but continue to patronize them.

We deplore television when it insults our intelligence but we cater to that type of presentation.

We want security in the knowledge that God is with us, yet we turn to Him only in times of distress.

The examples are multiform, the paradox the same. We want the prize but we don't want to run the race.

The world is a worthwhile place because this paradox is not true of every individual. A discerning look about us will determine that the people who have the security for which we have longed are the ones who have made the effort to attain their goal.

"Behold I am against thee, O thou most proud, saith the Lord God of hosts; for thy day is come, the time that I will visit thee." Jeremiah 50:31

He will not forever tolerate rebellion in those He has created after His own image. "Turn ye, turn ye for why will ye die?"

When men speak ill of thee, live so as nobody may believe them.

THE BLENDING

If each individual drop of water
Felt not its power and worth,
But stayed apart from all the rest,
How lonely the rocky beds would be!
How empty the ears that would not hear
The happy laughter of the brook,
How longing the eyes that could not see
The silvery splashing of the rapids
As they play ring-the-rose and leapfrog
O'er the ageless stones.
How lonely, too, the individual drops
That stay apart
And lend not to the symphony of life.
They sing not in the cascades
Nor o'er the waterfalls;
Nor do they sleep in crystal pools
Of quiet rest and peace.
But lonely they, and vanquished, too.
But lonely not the drops that blend and harmonize and sing
In joyous songs; their voices raise
In melody, and in God's praise.
Though infinitesimal the voice
Of individual drops may be,
Life's great crescendo's incomplete
If one small melody is lost.

Library Corner

by Miss Jessie Orgain

Space—including space missiles and space travel — is front page news in every country and every language in the world today. With giant telescopes, rockets, missiles, and finally, space ships men are seeking an answer to the challenge of the universe about us. The conquest of space for military reasons—to hurl weapons of destruction from one part of the world to another—has received the most emphasis, but this is not really the most important thing about it. The spirit that leads men to venture into the remote realms of space for military purposes may result finally in the unlimited exploration of the universe.

To learn about each of the phases in the exploration of space the following books will help in your search for knowledge:

TELSTAR by Louis Solomon. In this photograph-filled book are glimpses of communications satellites that preceded Telstar I and of some that followed, including Relay, Syncom, and Telstar II.

GEMINI by United Press International. Here, in all its incomparable excitement, is America's historic Gemini 4 flight with Astronauts James A. McDivitt and Edward H. White II. Here are the 6,000 mile walk in space, many never before published photographs, data on the projected Apollo moon-shot program, and a record of pictures and biographies of the astronauts.

PROJECT APOLLO by Tom Alexander. This is the history of the moon project through its basic development stages and well into the construction of the ultimate machinery. In addition, it is a layman's look at the full sweep of space science and technology as mirrored in the project's problems—the reasons behind the basic decisions, the nature of celestial mechanics and navigation, the available knowledge on the deep space environment and the surface of the moon, and a description of the spacecraft and its rocket carriers.

WE SEVEN by the Astronauts themselves. This book, like the man-in-space program which it describes, is the result of a considerable amount of teamwork. Its authors, the seven Astronauts, took turns carrying out many of the duties involved in Project Mercury; and they have followed the same procedure in the preparation of this volume. As a reader will soon discover, it is a personal narrative, full of suspense and adventure, reminiscences and beliefs, facts and opinions, good days and bad days, and patiently detailed descriptions of a number of complex technical matters which the Astronauts themselves—as the men who know the subject best—are best equipped to explain to others.

THE MOON: NEW WORLD FOR MEN by Martin Caidin. In this book we are taken behind the scenes to share the hopes and joys, the angers and frustrations of our lunar programs. With uncompromising candor, Caidin explains the stakes in the race and tells of our strengths and weaknesses.

He helps us to watch the miracles of events taking place far out in space, and we learn, too, of the wonderful "fallout" from these great ventures, the amazing benefits from this struggle to reach the Moon that filter down to you and me. This book is the foundation of everything we have done—and a preview of what we are about to do.

It is the saga of man's accepting the challenge of the greatest adventure he has ever known.

lice Department. Mr. Roberts left for Texas Wednesday to return the car here.

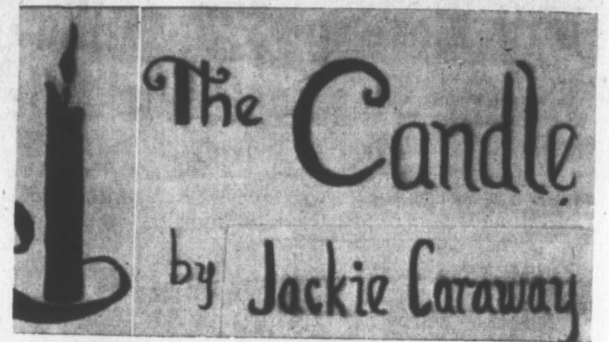

The Bennett Homemakers Club will hold their annual picnic with Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Croft at their home on highway 45 tonight, July 26. Picnic lunch will be served.

From Latham: Mr. and Mrs. Karl Rogers announce the arrival of a new baby girl, born at Haws Memorial Hospital last Friday. She will be called Suzanne. Mrs. Rogers was formerly Lydia Winstead.

From Pilot Oak: There were around fifty of the church folks who had Sunday dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Cleve Cruse.

From Crutchfield: The Woman's Society of Christian Service met with Mrs. Lucy Turner Thursday, July 18. The morning was spent in friendly conversation, with a delicious meal at the noon hour. The meeting was held after lunch, in charge of the president, Mrs. Percy Veatch and the subject of the study was "Women, Trustees of the Future".

From Palestine: Helen King returned home Monday night from a vacation in California and other points in the west.

"It is better to light one candle than to curse the darkness," is the theme of the Christopher program. "Brighten the corner where you are," is almost synonymous with the work of the Salvation Army. An old gospel hymn repeats the thought, "this little light of mine, I'm going to let it shine;" the Bible says, "let your light so shine before men" and in Proverbs 20, "The spirit of man is the candle of the Lord". Hence, The Candle.

This column is not only my candle but yours. A tiny light in the darkness of day to day life. Perhaps something you read here when repeated to your neighbor or friend will help him through a time of near despair. A light hearted thought or poem will put a smile upon his face, a serious thought may linger as a comfort in his heart. In either case your light can also shine among others and the good that you do will come back into your own life.

The long awaited summer is full upon us. The temperature soared to 120 degrees on Monday when the air-conditioners refused to cooperate and battle the heat at the H. I. Siegel plant. This sort of thing can make us better appreciate the high ceilings of the old homes, but the mystery remains as to how any work at all was accomplished when the mercury rose before the days of electric fans and air conditioning.

Just think the ladies weren't even allowed to combat the heat with skirts three or four inches above the knee. Even in this banner year of shorts for both sexes and an ample supply of light weight apparel, the heat may make us somewhat lackadaisical.

If you are more tired but doing less, you may have a right to be lazy, after all you have to travel with the solar system at the rate of 1,000,000 miles an hour as you move around the sun at a rate of 70,000 miles an hour and at the same time you are rotating on the axis of the earth in a jiggly motion at a speed of approximately 700 miles an hour! Lie down, take a nap, cool off, you have every right to be tired.

If a European vacation is in store for you this year, why not visit Llanfairpwllgwylllogogerychwyndrobwyllantysillogogoch, Wales. When you come back you will be sure to get a write-up in The News provided there is enough room to say any more than the name of the city. In case you cannot pronounce the name it means, St. Mary's Church by the White Hazel Pool, by the Rapid Whirl Pool near the Church of St. Silog of the Red Cave. It sounds like a nice cool place to visit so send us a card, we would like to see the postmark.

When vacationing you can accomplish one of two things. You may find out that your home surroundings are better than you had originally thought, or you may come home bursting with ideas to improve everything. "To know how sweet your home can be, just go away but keep the key."

Those of us who do not find a vacation in our immediate future can visit distant places, renew old acquaintances, and make new friends in the air conditioned comfort of our public libraries. Some of the most memorable people never lived except upon the pages of a book. In our libraries we have a concentrated effort to combine fictional material with factual material to suit our every mood. What better time to take advantage of such a happy combination.

I am looking forward to my daily trips to Fulton so that I may watch the change in the landscape through the season. The lovely flowers along the way, tended by the gifted homemakers, bloom gaily. The crepe myrtle, of which Fulton is justly proud, is a joy to behold.

These flowers too are candles spreading their beauty to all who pass their way. The gardener working hand in hand with God to produce such lovely blooms should never feel that his work is not noticed by those who pass his way. "A thing of beauty is a joy forever."

Life Is What We Make It

by Jackie Caraway

Looking at a glass half filled with water, the pessimist said, "the glass is half empty", the optimist said, "the glass is half full".

In the few months remaining in the year 1966, there is time to weed the garden, plan the crops for next season, read the book we have laid aside, visit the shut-in we have neglected, and write the letter we keep putting aside. There is still time to renew the promises we made to ourselves on last New Year's Eve, time to turn over a new leaf.

A pessimist would say there is not time, the next few months are as the last, don't make any more resolutions until next December 31. The optimist can work and dream in the knowledge that though the sand is swiftly falling in the hour glass, much can be done. The answer is not in others, it is within ourselves. We must join hands with time, not sit and wait until it passes us by.

There is a cloistered convent where the sisters must each day turn over one shovel full of earth from the grave in which they are to be buried. This is not a pessimistic attitude, it is an optimistic one. They are not thinking that there is nothing to do but dig their own graves, but they are to feel that death is imminent and in the time remaining they must accomplish a great deal.

"Two men looked out of their prison bars, one saw mud and the other saw stars." Are we constantly looking for the mud, aiming below our target in life or are we looking at the stars, striving to be better individuals? The secret is in the dedication. The time and practice it takes to achieve a desire is the most difficult thing to teach a child and the hardest task for an adult.

Some ladies were awed by the workmanship in a lovely crocheted table cloth. The craftswoman receiving the praise said, "it is not so difficult, if you take your time and work a little on it every day". That is the secret of success in any task. Whatever we would like to accomplish before the year is over, can be done, if we take our time and work a little on it every day. Your glass is half full!

to atheism. There can be no compromise with Communism." He is also deeply concerned about the evidence of appeasements and toleration of Communists by churchmen and political leaders. The conditions under which the pastor and other Christians were imprisoned are almost too horrible to describe. The believers were tortured, beaten and starved and, in the midst of unspeakable cruelties, their faith was mocked and Christian symbols were ridiculed. There was no sanitation whatsoever. Christian prisoners were often tied to crosses for four days and four nights. The crosses would then be put on the floor twice a day and other prisoners would be beaten and tortured while the Communists would say, "Look, your Christ, look, your Christ, how beautiful He is, adore Him, worship Him, He brings you fragrances from Heaven." These were the things they said when the dirt of excrement was thrown upon them. Many Catholic bishops and nuns died in the prison, as well as peasants from the Greek Catholic Church.

When he was asked if the church can have peaceful coexistence with militant atheism, Pastor Wurmb said, "Everyone would laugh if I said the church could peacefully coexist with drug addiction or with prostitution. We will never make peace with sin." One of his more revealing insights was the effect of American aid to the Communist government of Rumania and the effect this has on the treatment of anti-Communist prisoners. Sitting in the prison of Sherla, all the prisoners were gathered as the commandant of the prison, Major Alexandrescu, delivered a speech. He told the prisoners:

"You fools, you sit in prison, ten, fifteen, twenty years expecting the Americans to come to release you. You have loved America, you have praised it, you have appreciated it, now we give you the news that the Americans come. But, they don't come to release you - they come to help us, to do business with us, to give us loans." This reveals the farce of those who argue that by sending aid to Communist regimes we are helping the people.

Our Christian Heritage

THE COMMUNISTS STILL PERSECUTE CHRISTIANS

By Dr. N. Burnett Magruder

Many American clergymen and distinguished visitors have been bringing back to America rather glowing reports of the softening attitude of the Communist regimes to Christians. These optimistic reports have usually been based on very superficial observations. For example, in Soviet Russia, American tourists are usually taken to one church in a given city - no matter how large the population. The Baptist Church in Moscow has been a kind of exhibit of the new freedom in Christianity under the Soviets. It apparently never occurs to these observers that one church is mighty small for a city of several million.

These reports of a mellowing attitude, however, were brought crashing to earth by the appearance in the United States this year of the Reverend Richard Wurmb, a Rumanian Lutheran clergyman, who bears in his body, as did the Apostle Paul, the marks of torture during fourteen years of imprisonment in a Communist cell. Pastor Wurmb testified at a hearing of the Senate Internal Security Sub-Committee and revealed the scars on his body from hot poker and knife wounds he had received at Communist hands.

Pastor Wurmb is deeply disturbed by evidences of pro-Communist sympathy he has encountered in the United States. At Newark and Philadelphia, he heard speakers at anti-war gatherings defend the aims of Red China and North Viet Nam. Again exposing the slash marks on his back, neck and stomach, he told these audiences, "I received these scars from the Communist oppressors you are defending. I have seen many men die under torture rather than yield

Letters To Editor

Dear Jo and Paul:

How many licensed rest or nursing homes are there in our twin cities? How many elderly residents do they accommodate? How many of these residents are male and how many of these residents are female? How many of these residents are alone and without a single relative?

It would seem that this situation would afford an opportunity to the many persons in this town who are looking for some worthwhile endeavor to take up their spare time. Elderly people are usually lonely, some people, who appreciate the smallest gesture of kindness and friendliness. Perhaps they are remembered on their birthdays, which come only once a year, and at Christmas time, which also comes only once a year. There are then 363 days of the year left for them to spend in their single room, isolated from the community and church life.

It is a known fact that there have been elderly persons who have done great things after reaching their so-called "golden years". Have our elderly residents of our rest homes been provided with material to develop and carry out creative hobbies that oftentimes could prove remunerative. The things they might produce could be placed in local gift shops and would be bought by prospective purchasers. Grandma Moses became a great and famous painter in her later years. Winston Churchill became great and famous in his later years - not too much can be said for his earlier years.

The needs of these elderly citizens present a great challenge to those of us who are still active and think we are too busy to undertake another project. Making these elderly people feel wanted and loved would be a most gratifying and enriching experience. Let us see what we can do towards achieving this accomplishment.

"We Shall Return," Is Theme Of Reunion As Three Classes End Fun-Filled Days

The 1940-41-42 Fulton High School classes gathered in Fulton last week-end for the largest class reunion held in the area. Joe Treas, Fulton postmaster, did an excellent job as chairman of the event.

A great many good things were accomplished at this reunion showing the perpetual interest of the class members in their Alma Mater. The group voted to set up a scholarship fund with the money left over from the reunion funds. This money is to be deposited at First Federal and each year some capable Fulton High senior will be presented $100 to help pay his graduation expenses. The student will be selected by the Fulton High faculty and a local class committee.

Joe Treas, was elected as chairman for a similar reunion to be held by the three classes in five years.

The reunion was off to a flying start Thursday night in the Kentucky Room of the Derby Restaurant when a large group of class members, their wives and husbands gathered for an unscheduled Dutch party.

Registration was scheduled for Friday noon at the Hospitality

Ruth Ann Burnette, Susan Holt and LaDonna Lawson, students of Mrs. Nelson Tripp played ukuleles and performed Hawaiian style for the group. Mrs. Joan Collier Dowdy, Mrs. Helen Neal Allen, Mrs. Mildred Brooks Cloys and Mrs. Rachel Baldrige Williams assisted Mrs. Sonny Puckett with the lovely luau decorations.

Special luau guests were: Miss Rhea Looney, former Miss Colorado, Miss Memphis State and a former runner-up in the Miss Universe contest, the daughter of Charles Looney, class of 1941; Carl Hurst, Miss Looney's escort; Terry Beadles, UK football star and son of Mrs. Mossie Morgan Beadles, also a 1941 class member; Miss Darlene Roberts, fiancée of Mr. Beadles; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Mahan, News Editor of the Fulton Daily Leader; Mr. and Mrs. J. Butterworth; Mrs. Hugh Pigue; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Voelpel; Mr. and Mrs. Ual Killebrew; Mr. and Mrs. Mansfield Martin; Miss Polly Thompson; Miss Katherine Williamson; Mr. and Mrs. Yewell Harrison and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Carter. Unable to attend were Miss Mary Royster; Mr. and Mrs. Hershel Giles and Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert DeMyer.

Mr. Homra proved a sparkling wit at the luau as he presented funny little gifts as prizes to Wiley Cowell and Mrs. Mary Browder Paschall Butler for having the smallest waists; to Mrs. Sarah Mae Evans Powell for having the largest number of children; to Mr. and Mrs. Merville Mullin for having the most grand-children and another prize to Mrs. Butler for having come from California, the longest distance traveled for the event.

Each class had a separate breakfast at the Derby Restaurant, Saturday morning, and Saturday afternoon featured a picnic to which all the children of the class members were invited. This was under the expert direction of Mrs. Gloria Nelm Stephens.

Joe Treas served as master of ceremonies for the Saturday night dinner-dance at the Country Club. Treas and David Homra were co-chairmen for the brilliant event. Mrs. Jo Brady Omar was chairman of the committee fashioning the attractive decorations.

ANTIQUES—

walnut cabinet is a lovely music box in the private collection of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Robey, which evidently was made in a European country. Its lovely melody casts a spell of the days of hoop skirts and powdered wigs. The Robey Antique Shop, Rt. 2, S. Fulton, has many other items, some perhaps even older, but this music box has a rare and unusual quality, a prize to the collector.

Antiques remain a steadfast tribute to the patience and craftsmanship of their makers, mute witnesses to over a century of history while constantly serving a beautiful as well as a functional purpose. They bear a silent tribute to their maker that withstands the tests of time. Would that we could do as much.

A picture of Mrs. Carl Robey with the antique music box will appear next week.

Fire Fighting Class On In South Fulton

George C. Hunt of the Tennessee Vocational Training Department is conducting classes for the South Fulton firemen in all phases of fire fighting and the proper use of water in conjunction with fire fighting.

Nineteen volunteer and paid firemen attended the first session of the school held last week. The next class will be in September. Garry Wright, Director of Public Safety supervises the program.

Garry Wright Warns Of Following Fires

South Fulton Director of Public Safety Garry Wright, would like to call to the attention of the general public the fact that following fire fighting equipment to a fire scene is a violation of both state and city law and traffic citations will be issued for this practice.

The traffic congestion arising from the influx of additional traffic makes it impossible for fire fighting equipment to reach the scene safely and swiftly and may result in the loss of personal possessions and may endanger lives unnecessarily.

South Fulton Officials Study Annexation Of More City Area

South Fulton's City Commission met in regular session last week and voted to transfer $6000. from the gas fund to the general fund in lieu-of-taxes payment. Included in the vote was the stipulation that these funds were to subsequently be transferred to the street aid fund. The in-lieu-of-taxes payment is made annually by the gas department.

The Commission also approved payment for the purchase of a tractor from Paul Nailing Implement Company, $2660 of the bill to be paid from the gas fund, and $414. to be paid from the general fund.

A resolution was approved for an advisory study of annexation of additional areas, to be made by the state at no cost to the City.

The City Attorney was directed to investigate the Henry I. Siegel parking lot problem since the neighboring residents have complained of the dust in the area.

SOYBEAN RESEARCH HIGH LIGHTS FIELD DAY ON JULY 27

How well do soybeans fit into a double-cropping program? What are the best varieties to use? These are only a few of the questions which may be answered at the Soybean Field Day at Milan next Wednesday, July 27.

"Soybean production is one of the most rapidly expanding farm enterprises in the state." "The research work at the Milan station should be of interest to every soybean grower or to anyone having other interests in the crop."

Obion County farmers are now growing about 70,000 acres of soybeans and this year if farmers receive $3 per bushel for their beans and we have a normal yield - soybeans will bring into Obion County over five (5) million dollars. We are not satisfied with our soybean yields and the University of Tennessee is going all out to break the barrier to higher yields such as has been done with corn and cotton.

The tours of the University of Tennessee's Milan Field Station begin at 8:30 a. m. and continue throughout the morning.

There are eight main points of interest manned by U-T staff members. The stops include variety studies, lime and fertilizer research, the importance of micronutrients in soybean production, weed and seedling disease control and row spacing studies.

With JIM PRYOR
Agricultural Agent, Illinois Central Railroad

CONSERVATION - A NATIONAL PROBLEM

According to statistics released by the Department of Agriculture, prices received by farmers for products marketed are about the same as they were in 1962, but prices paid for production items such as interest, taxes, wages and living expenses are higher. The farmer's share of the consumer's dollar has dropped to 36¢ - a drop of 13¢ since 1951. Farm production expenses have been climbing almost steadily, due in large part to farmer adoption of labor saving techniques, and will be about one-half billion dollars higher than the $28.2 billion spent last year. Equipment, feed and seed items have increased more than the average, while costs of fertilizer (including lime) building and fencing materials and feeder livestock are lower than the average.

Because of this continued cost-price squeeze, can the farmer be held solely responsible for the conservation of the nation's soils? There are many who believe that this should be the case because he happens to hold title to the land temporarily. Fortunately, however, the greater number, as evidenced by the action of our Congress, believed that conservation is the joint responsibility of the nation and the farmer. The Congress has continued to enact legislation for sharing costs for carrying out approved conservation measures under the Agricultural Conservation Program, and also provides for technical assistance with conservation and land use problems through the Soil Conservation Service. Both of these programs are administered by locally elected farmers. Problems of major concern to both groups are the correction of soil acidity by application of limestone and conserving the nation's water resources by growing vegetative cover to hold rainfall in place without excessive run off, which can create erosion problems.

DID YOU KNOW?

Unemployment isn't nearly the problem under employment is in rural areas. Under employment means not getting enough return for a normal period of work. For example in 1959, the last income census year, U. S. D. A. Economists estimated that about two million persons in rural areas had net annual incomes of $1,200 or less. Most of the rural families with net annual incomes of less than $1,200 are in the Southern states. Many of these states have more than 50,000 families in this low income group.

Letters of Interest

Mrs. Westpheling:
In my paper today you were asking for copies for a Mrs. Ruth Lewis. So we clipped out the part they wanted and am sending it to you for them.

Also, I came in the News office in May to see you about a problem I wanted to talk about, but, unfortunately, you were not there. I told the lady that was there what I wanted to tell you. I don't know if she ever told you or not.

It was about the rest stop convenience on the free-ways in Kentucky. We drove from Cincinnati to Princeton, Ky., and only found one rest stop with rest room facilities. We had to stop under an overpass to eat our lunch, for it was raining. But most important, is to build some rest rooms. Maybe you will know how to go about getting this done.

Respectfully yours,

HOUSING PROJECT—

low cost housing project, Mr. Myatt announced Wednesday in an interview.

Myatt, who acts in a part time capacity as Executive Director of the Fulton, Ky., Municipal Housing Commission, and who employs a full time secretary and maintenance man stated that:

"Many people felt that it would hurt rental property to have such a housing project in Fulton, but standard homes vacated by people moving into the low cost housing project have been remodeled and up-dated to meet the needs of the public and are renting substantially higher than they did previously. "Rental property has not been able to keep up with the demand of the growing population of Fulton", he added.

Garrigan Farm Location For Angus Program

Parnell Garrigan's Ken Tenn Farm will be the scene for the Ohio County and Ken Lake Angus Association Joint Field Day to be held July 23. The farm is 7 miles north of Union City, and 7 miles southeast of Hickman on the State Line road. Registration begins at 10:00 a. m.

Lunch will be available and an interesting and informative program, including a panel discussion on bulls for the commercial operator, is planned.

Kent Brown will make a type demonstration with other features in the planning stage.

Breathitt Sets July 24-30 For Farm Safety Week

Governor Edward T. Breathitt has proclaimed July 24-30 "Farm Safety Week" in Kentucky and urged Kentuckians to make an extra effort to curb farm mishaps. The Governor said farm accidents cripple or kill more than 750,000 persons annually. Use of farm machinery increases each year, making the chance of accident more serious, he said.

"Farm safety," the Governor said, "involves all Kentuckians because of the movement of farm vehicles and equipment on public highways."

June G. Davis of the Agriculture Department, state farm-safety chairman, said "Farming is considered to be our most hazardous enterprise. A death rate of 64.1 per 100,000 farm workers ranks third to mining and construction and costs the lives of 8,300 farm people each year."

KNOW WHEN OUR SHIP CAME IN?

In 1859.

That was the year an imaginative 26-year old, named George H. Hartford, had a brilliant idea.

The idea?

Buy tea direct from the Orient by the clipper shipload.

Eliminate expensive in-between costs.

Sell directly to the public, at great savings... a small profit.

1859...that's when our ship came in.

That was the beginning.

That's when our founder showed he cared about people.

Today, in keeping with that proud heritage,

A&P is still dedicated to bringing the most good food, to the most people for the least amount of money.

Today, more than a century later, we can honestly say, "WE CARE...about you."

Is this a good reason for shopping A&P?
It's one of many.

Wetherby Named Campaign Leader For Ky. Democrats

FRANKFORT — Former Gov. Lawrence Wetherby was selected by state Democrats as campaign chairman for the November congressional and Senate election.

In a meeting at the governor's mansion, the Democratic State Central Executive Committee also heard some optimistic comments by several party nominees.

John Young Brown of Lexington, running against Republican Sen. John Sherman Cooper, said the unity he detects in the Democratic party bodes well for his election.

"We have never had a campaign where Cooper was a candidate when we didn't beat him if we were united," Brown said. "There is no split in our party this year."

Rep. Norbert Blume, running against former Louisville Mayor William Cowger for the House in the 3rd District, said that for a change the Republicans are fighting among themselves.

The 3rd now comprises Louisville since Jefferson County was shifted to the new 4th District. Blume said a Republican has won only one of the last ten congressional races at Louisville if the city is counted as an entity.

Democrat Eugene Harter, a Campbellsville newspaperman, said "I will do the best I can to finish off 100 years of Republicanism in the 5th District."

The Republican incumbent from that area in Southeast Kentucky is Dr. Tim Lee Carter of Tompkinsville. State Democratic Chairman Foster Ockerman of Lexington said campaign headquarters will be in downtown Frankfort, the same as during the successful 1964 presidential campaign.

"We'll be ready to do business in the next few days," he said. The Democrats also filled two vacancies on the executive committee. Edgar Arnold, editor-publisher of the Madisonville Messenger, was named to replace the late Clarence Maloney of Madisonville. Mrs. Phyllis Wood of Whitley County was chosen to succeed Helen Smith of Harlan who resigned to take a state post.

The Democrats, in a resolution, expressed their sorrow at the death of Louisville newspaper executive Robert Worth Bingham.

The Democrats also announced three nominees for the new campaign finance registry, the state's watchdog committee to keep tabs on political campaign financing and contributions. They are Mrs. Adron Doran of Morehead, Jo Ferguson of Louisville and Wayne Ridley of Providence.

Cash Presented For Postmaster Of Fancy Farm

The name of James Albert Cash of Fancy Farm was among two nominations for Kentucky postmasters sent to the Senate today by President Johnson.

Cash, a resident of Fancy Farm, Rt. 1, was nominated for the postmastership at Fancy Farm at the same time David S. Miranda was nominated for a similar post at Ashland.

Both Kentucky residents were nominated for the proposed postmasterships by President Johnson. Their appointments must be approved by the U. S. Senate.

Cash was one of seven applicants for the postmastership at Fancy Farm during tests given in July, 1965. Sammy Hayden has been acting postmaster there since the retirement of Mrs. Christine Willett about one year ago.

Cash has been engaged in farming near Fancy Farm for the past 20 years. He is the son of Mrs. Susie Cash and the late Jim Cash of the community. He is a veteran of five years service with the U. S. Army.

What's Covered And What Isn't By Medicare Insurance Plan

Part A of Medicare, the part that pays hospital bills and is available to all Medicare participants without charge, will cover:

- Room and board in a semiprivate room (2 to 4 beds in a room).
- Nursing services.
- Supplies, appliances, and equipment, such as splints, casts, wheelchairs, crutches, etc.

• Blood transfusions, except for the first three pints of blood in a "spell of illness."

• Medical social services.

• Therapeutic services, such as X-ray or radium treatments.

• Operating room costs.

• Drugs furnished by the hospital.

• Diagnostic services, such as blood tests, electrocardiograms, etc.

• Services of hospital residents and interns who are in approved training programs.

NOT COVERED: The hospitalization part of Medicare will NOT cover:

• Physicians and surgeon's services. (Only Part B of Medicare, the supplemental part for which you signed up to pay $3 a month covers doctor bills.)

• Private room, furnished at your request, unless it is medically necessary. (If you request a private room, you will pay the difference between the private and semiprivate rates.)

• Private duty nurses.

• Cost of first three pints of blood. (If a donor replaces the blood, the hospital would not charge you for it.)

• Personal comfort or convenience items which you request, such as telephone, radio, or television in your room.

YOUR BENEFITS FOR DOCTOR BILLS

The benefits to help you pay doctor bills will be your most important protection under the medical insurance program. Benefits may be paid for the medical services you receive from a physician wherever they are furnished—in a hospital, in an extended-care facility or nursing home, in his office, in your home, or in a clinic.

You select your own physician. A doctor does not have to "sign up" or make any special arrangements to provide and charge for covered services. All that is necessary is that he be legally authorized to practice medicine or osteopathy in his state. The following list shows the kinds of physicians' services which are covered and which are not covered.

COVERED

Part B of Medicare, the part that covers doctors' bills and for which you will pay $3 a month, will cover:

• Medical and surgical services by a physician—wherever they are furnished.

• Medical and surgical services by a physician—wherever they are furnished.

• Services in connection with a physician's treatment, such as: diagnostic tests, medical supplies, the services of his nurse, drugs which cannot be self-administered, and similar services which he would ordinarily include in his bill.

• Dental surgery, by a doctor of dental medicine or a doctor of dental surgery, but only if it involves major dental surgery, such as an operation on the jaw.

NOT COVERED: Part B of Medicare will NOT cover:

• Routine physical checkups.

• Eye examinations for prescribing or fitting eyeglasses.

• Hearing examinations for hearing aids.

• Routine dental care.

• Immunizations.

• Services of practitioners such as chiropractors, naturopaths, chiropodists or podiatrists, optometrists, Christian Science practitioners.

According to the Hearing Aid Industry Conference—most hearing losses result from one of four principal causes. They are: infection, otosclerosis (bone disorder), noise and age. Six million Americans who are suffering from hearing losses of varying degrees could be helped through medicine, surgery or the use of a hearing aid. However, they do not know they can be helped because they will not admit to or recognize their loss and seek the available help. Why not invest a little of your time one of these long summer days and get your hearing tested? Be sure you are not one of the six million missing out on the wonderful world of sound.

Fulton To Be Honored

If you like outdoor entertainment and live in or near Murray, Mayfield, Fulton, Benton, Paducah, Cadiz or Hopkinsville, then a special Kenlake Amphitheatre "package" plan may be of interest to you.

A special evening has been set aside at the Amphitheatre for each of these communities. Arranged by the Kentucky Department of Parks and various chambers of commerce, the Community Night involves a one-price package plan for transportation to and from Kenlake State Park on an air-conditioned bus, a barbecue dinner at the park and a choice seat in the amphitheatre for that night's musical bill of fare. During the course of the entertainment, a special tribute will be paid to represent.

Fulton, Fulton County and two cities night has been set for July 29, when Billy Edd Wheeler, who is well known here for his appearance at the Banana Festival and for his role in "Stars in My Crown," will be the attraction for the evening.

A bus-load, carrying 37 persons, will run from Lake Street to the Amphitheatre. Persons wishing to attend may call the News office.

Ellington Addresses Big UC Rally

Former Governor Stresses His Long-Time Interest In Preservation Of Lake

Former Gov. Buford Ellington, campaigning hard for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, returned to his "second home," Obion county, Thursday night and was greeted enthusiastically by a perspiring but a well-fed and contented crowd at Grove Creek City Park.

Men, women and children thronged the main picnic grounds at the city park and enjoyed a free barbecue dinner before gathering around an improvised platform to listen to the former governor reminisce about his frequent trips to Obion county and Reelfoot Lake and lash into his opponent, Nashville attorney John Jay Hooker Jr. The crowd was estimated at from 1,000 to 1,500.

"As you folks know, Reelfoot Lake is my favorite hangout and had been for some 10 to 12 years before you folks first elected me your governor," Mr. Ellington said. "And with you people, I had a vision, a vision of you and I working together to preserve this wonderful creation of nature, a project to stop the siltation which is filling up the lake. There are $7 million available now to accomplish this project. The process is slow but it is progressing."

The candidate also had kind words for U.S. Rep. Robert A. "Fats" Everett of Union City whom he termed a "great congressman." He told the attentive audience, many of whom were seated on small bales of straw, especially transported to the park for that purpose, that he and Mr. Everett began their long association when Mr. Everett was administrative assistant for former Gov. Gordon Browning.

"Because of our association, your county and its citizens have always been close to me — your problems always have been my problems."

Mr. Ellington said Mr. Hooker, who he referred to only as "my opponent," changes his platform as he travels, saying one thing in East Tennessee, another thing in Middle Tennessee and something else in West Tennessee.

"He'll say anything to anybody to get a vote," Mr. Ellington charged. "But I have the same platform in this end of the state as I have in every part of the state."

Mr. Ellington defended Tennessee's record in education by declaring the state actually is 16th among the 50 in the percentage of state funds allocated to education.

He also chided Mr. Hooker for referring to California and New York as examples for Tennessee to follow.

"He may have an obligation to New York (an obvious reference to Mr. Hooker's alleged ties with Sen. Bobby Kennedy of New York) but I don't," the candidate declared. "I'm a Tennessean and the record will show that the leadership in our state is doing much more to solve our problems than is being done in New York."

He reminded those attending that he promised not to increase taxes during his former administration and that he kept his promise. He said that during his four years in office Tennessee obtained 600 new industries, 800 industries in the state expanded and 90,000 new jobs were created.

"We made this kind of progress before and we'll do it again," he promised. "We will go forward in our goal to make the State of Tennessee a land of real opportunity for our boys and girls."

Mr. Ellington promised there would be no income tax during his four years in office and that the 3 percent sales tax would not be increased.

"We will meet our obligations without an income tax on working men and women and without increasing our sales tax," he declared.

He charged that Mr. Hooker has declared himself for a minimum wage law but actually accepted $20,000 a few years ago to lobby against sections of the federal minimum wage law.

"Is that honest?" the candidate asked.

"If you folks will work for me for the next three weeks," Mr. Ellington said, "I'll work hard for you for the next four years."

Mr. Ellington was introduced by Willie Sellers, chairman of the Farmers For Ellington committee in Obion county.

The barbecue supper began at 6 p.m. and Mr. Ellington arrived at the park shortly before 7 p.m. He wandered through the crowd shaking hands and talking to friends and supporters before his short address and then spent about 30 minutes shaking hands before leaving the park for the Biltmore where he spent the night.

CLAY, Ky. — W. W. Johnson, operator of a grocery here for nearly 50 years, has learned it's never too late for a customer to settle an account.

On Jan. 1, 1925, a customer gave him a $75 note to cover a charge account he was unable to pay. The note was worthless since the customer left the state and couldn't be traced.

Recently, Johnson received a check to settle the account.

Virginia Woolf Reaction Varied

"Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" with its sex, profanity, two drunken faculty couples and superb acting, opened to mostly ecstatic reviews like:

"Monumental piece of American drama" — Phil Scheuer, Los Angeles Times. "Strong contender for this year's honors" — George Jackson, L.A. Herald-Examiner.

But how does it set with the general public?

To find out, this reporter stationed himself with pad and pencil in the lobby of the Pantages theater at show-ending time and approached emerging patrons with: "How did you like the picture?"

Conclusion: Most people feel strongly pro or con — with favorable votes in the lead — except for those who say, "The acting was great, but..."

Gray-haired man: "Very good." Woman about 30: "I'm trying to figure it out." A youth:

"I loved the acting. The story, I don't know." A housewife: "If I could get a refund, I'd go ask for it." Gray-haired woman: "Yuh-uh-uh!" — that unspeakable exclamation of disgust. Her husband: "The acting you couldn't beat."

Assorted women, mostly middle-aged: "Very exciting. Different. Of course, they're all neurotics." "Just marvelous. Both (Liz and husband Richard Burton) deserve the Academy Award." "He — Burton — makes the picture." "Gives one a lot of food for thought." "A morass of ugliness."

Don't Dive into Double

What could be more inviting than a cool blue lake in the midst of a hot humid Summer day? Very little, indeed, for water sports are some of the greatest summer pleasures known to man. There's something for everyone: the surfer, the wader, the diver, the casual swimmer, the boatsman, and even the person who just plain likes to loll about!

Water offers fun galore but it also holds certain dangers of which few people are aware. The Hearing Aid Industry Conference offers the following suggestions to avoid troubles which could impair hearing:

a.) Use correct diving form to prevent damage to the ear drum which could lead to a hearing loss.

b.) Do not let ocean breakers hit the ear... this could also damage the ear drum.

c.) Do not swim in polluted waters. Polluted waters can cause an infection that could bring on a temporary or permanent hearing loss.

H.A.I.C. urges all swimmers to remember these simple tips and use every safety precaution, including ear plugs and/or bathing caps. Swimmers are also urged to bring any hearing problems, no matter how small, to the attention of a medical ear specialist immediately.

Once a hearing loss has been detected, it can be corrected, or compensated for through medical or surgical treatment or the use of a modern hearing aid. The first step, getting a hearing test once a hearing loss is suspected, is the urgent action required to get the correction underway.

A new regulation which will control labeling on packages sold in Kentucky has been adopted by the Division of Weights and Measures. It will become effective next month and will serve as another step in protecting consumers from misleading statements on packages they buy at the store or supermarket.

The measure will set minimum sizes and number of letters that specify quantity contained in a package. Also required is that quantity statements appear on the main display panel in a style that is easy to read.

Terms such as "jumbo" and "giant" will be prohibited if they tend to exaggerate the amount contained in the package. In other words, such terms cannot be used on standard size packages.

Kentucky's new regulation implements the code recommended by the national Bureau of Standards. Its adoption will give our Weights and Measures inspectors guidelines to use in the inspection of packaged items.

Many manufacturers are already complying with specifications of the regulation. However, the Division of Weights and Measures wants to be sure that the buying public is not misled by statements appearing on packages.

Plans for the 1966 Kentucky Tobacco Pageant are being completed. Local tobacco boards of trade, warehousemen, or marketing centers should be selecting their contestants for the annual Tobacco Princess Contest.

The new Kentucky Tobacco Princess will be crowned as an opening night feature of the Kentucky State Fair on August 18. The Pageant will open on August 16 at the Kentucky Hotel in downtown Louisville.

Various activities are scheduled for the three-day event which is designed to promote Kentucky's number one cash crop. The new Kentucky Tobacco Princess will receive a $500 college scholarship and will represent Kentucky in the National Tobacco Festival at Richmond, Va., in October.

This year's pageant has been expanded and should prove to be the most exciting and colorful one yet. I hope that a majority of our tobacco marketing centers will be represented.

The 1966 county fair season is now in full swing throughout Kentucky, and each year seems to bring much improvement in the programs offered. This year eight additional fairs are participating in the Department's aid to county fairs. They are the Boyle, Butler, Henry, Johnson, Marshall, Muhlenberg, Pendleton, and Russell County fairs. Each of these fairs has met the standards set by the Department to regulate allocations of the available funds.

Another point of progress is the number of fairs holding dairy type and production contests. Some 20 counties are holding contests this year.

Only 12 Pinball Stamps Sold

LOUISVILLE — Last year at this time, 900 applications for the $250 gambling stamp had been received by the Internal Revenue Service. So far this year, there are 12.

The sharp contrast is an apparent result of the state's new anti-pinball machine law.

The 1966 Legislature outlawed pinball machines that take more than one coin per game, accumulate more than 30 free games, have a free-game knock-off meter, or require a federal gaming-device stamp.

The federal stamps for coin machines that offer the player a "payoff" through the element of chance are required by the federal government.

Motor vehicle accidents are the leading cause of accidental death to farm residents, according to the National Safety Council.

RON JOHNSON

Newsman Takes Post With State

Ron Johnson, staff writer for the Sun-Democrat for two years and 10 months, has resigned to accept a state government job in the office of Highway Commissioner Henry Ward.

Johnson, 26, will serve as administrative assistant to Ward. His special area of interest will be in the field of highway department press relations.

Johnson joined the S-D staff Sept. 9, 1963, after serving for a year as sports editor of the Sikeston (Mo.) Standard. A native of Missouri, he is a graduate of Missouri and Missouri

State College. Besides general reporting assignments, Johnson served as S-D farm editor with responsibility for a weekly display of agricultural news, and frequently worked in the capacity of sports, wire or city editor in the absence of regular editors.

He maintained an avid interest in sports and often carried out sports department assignments. Johnson entered UM originally on a basketball scholarship. Johnson also developed a keen interest in politics and state government and offered for publication a number of "Notebook" columns on those and other subjects.

He is married to the former Betsy Williams of Madisonville. They plan to establish residence in Frankfort immediately.

HOW TO HAVE A SAFE HOLIDAY WEEKEND

The time for horseplay—and planning—is before the drive begins.
It's wise to have enough books and toys in the car to keep the children happy, and some cigars to help Dad relax while driving.

Whether you'll stay close to home or drive long distances over holiday weekends this year, these tips may help you increase your safety and make the trip more enjoyable, too.

of well-being that comes with smoking a good cigar can contribute to his driving enjoyment. A back rest, gloves and a good pair of sunglasses may also add to the driver's comfort.

1. Borrow tricks from professional drivers. Watch not only the car in front, but also the car ahead of that one. Watching the left front wheels of oncoming cars can help you anticipate surprise turns before the other guy swerves into your lane.

2. Seek wide-open spaces.
The old rule of one car length for every 10 miles of speed is okay on city streets and ordinary roads—but stretch it or high-speed highways, when rear-end collisions are a common hazard.

3. Check often for tire cuts and bruises. Though nylon tire cord isn't damaged by water penetrating into cuts and bruises, other fibers are easily affected if the rubber coating is cut. Check for cuts every time you check tire pressure.

4. Keep in mind driving comfort. To combat frayed nerves which can result from highway motoring, frequent restbreaks are good. One good way to keep your nerves calm while driving is to keep a package of cigars in the glove compartment for him. The sense

SUMMER SUGGESTIONS

If the prospect of hot weather recalls previous summer sufferings, make yourself more comfortable this year by heeding these hints from Menley & Jones Laboratories:

ONE GOOD WAY TO BEAT THE HEAT is with frequent showers.
According to scientists, lukewarm water cools you off more quickly than cold water.

BEST SUMMER PESTS like flies and mosquitoes, limit your use of hair tonics and cosmetics, and use a residual insect spray on screens, around porches and doorways.

FOR MORE FUN IN THE SUN
on the beach or in the backyard, use a suntan lotion that blocks out the sun's burning rays and lets in the healthy tanning ones.

TAKE A BREAK FROM HAY FEVER SYMPTOMS—if you're one of 22 million hay fever sufferers in the U.S.—vacation in a spot with a low pollen count. But if that is impossible, you always can seek relief with Contac capsules, the decongestant that helps reduce sneezing, running nose, itching and watering eyes up to 12 hours.
