The shrill call of the battle trumpet, calling men to their death, is silent today; the rattling drums of war, beating out the doom of mankind, no longer sound. Uniforms, touched with gay, shining bits of ribbon, are gathering dust. Souvenirs have lost their fascination. Marching feet that once strode across the face of the earth in cadence have skipped a step and now walk the peaceful paths of the world. Memories are all that remain. In some cases, all that remains is blessed forgetfulness.

There is a glistening stretch of sand along the coast of Normandy. It is quiet and peaceful, with the waves breaking softly and gently upon the beach. Children play in the sand by day in the bright sunlight, and lovers walk there, arm in arm, by night in the light of a pale moon. A bird sings from the top of a pruned tree at the edge of the sand, and, further inland, a peasant, wearing wooden shoes, plows his tiny, hedged-in field. The apple orchards are laden with little apples.

It could not be that there, three years ago today, men from far across the sea came storming ashore at the breaking of dawn—beating at the outer ramparts of hell. Is it possible that the blood was washed out of the sand so soon? Can it be true that there where the bird is singing in the pruned tree, limbs have grown out from the cannon-shattered trunk? Where are the streaks of red that stained the sky, and where is the pall of smoke that blackened the blue of heaven? And, O Lord, what is this screaming silence that has fallen upon the beach where once men went deaf listening to the thunder-rolls of doom?

On June 6, 1944, all the strength and power, all the art and skill that America possessed were hurled at our enemy. No push buttons were used. Mortal men with hands and feet of flesh and bone waded the water and crawled upon the sand. Many fell, never to rise again, red blossoms in the white sea foam. Others, and still others, poured ashore—up by the side of the shattered tree trunk, into the tiny, hedged-in field of the peasant, under the little apples in the orchards. They came back no more to Tennessee, Kansas, California, Maine and Kentucky—back to the land of their beloved homes, back to the arms of their loved ones. Life ended that day for them. They fell only that still others could come behind them to fall and die upon the sand and in the grasses—to kill and to be killed.

Slowly they won the sand, and the tree, and the hedged-in field, and the apple orchard. How they went on from there is history—how, after pausing in the silent death traps of the hedged-in field, they one day broke out under a sky that came down to join the earth, and raced into the heartland of our enemy.

D Day, men called it. This is not a chronicle of that day, nor of the days that came after it. This is three years later. This is only to say we have not forgotten.

Bids On Judiciary
Building Reviewed
In State Capital

Frankfort, Ky., June 7.—(AP)—Bids on preliminary work for the new state judiciary building here today were subject to review by state officials.

Low bid of $107,760 for excavation work was submitted yesterday by Harry O. Wyse, Lexington. The bid also covers grading and sewer installation. Four other bids on the project.

The 1946 state legislature appropriated 600,000 for the building to house the state court of appeals and the attorney general's staff.

U. S. Prepares
"Strong" Note
To Russians
Protests Reds'
Illegal Action
In Hungary Coup

MAY GO TO U. N.

Washington, June 5.—(AP)—With President Truman's approval the State Department has drafted a hotly worded note to Russia, accusing the Soviets of illegal interference in Hungary affairs. The note threatens an appeal to the United Nations.

This was learned from American diplomatic officials who said that the note is one thing the President presumably had in mind when he asserted yesterday that the United States would not stand idly by in Hungary. The note was said to make these four principal points:

1. Directly charges Soviet authorities in Hungary with participation in the ousting of Premier Ferenc Nagy and other cabinet officers—the move by which pro-Soviet forces began to take over the government—and asserts this is a serious interference in the affairs of Hungary.

2. Charges the Soviets with breaking the terms of the Yalta agreement respecting great power protection and development of political independence in enemy small nations.

3. Proposes a joint American-Soviet-British investigation of the Hungarian situation.

4. Warns that unless satisfaction is forthcoming, beginning with the reply from the Soviet Union, the United States may take the case to the United Nations.

On the latter point, it has not yet been decided at the state department whether it would be better to appeal to the Security Council or the U. N. General Assembly. The council is in session at frequent intervals but Russia has a veto there. The assembly does not meet until September in New York.

Dropped, Other Economy
Cuts Made Over Protest

Mayfield—Graves court fiscal court yesterday voted major cuts in the county's budget despite a protest meeting of homemakers and children over reduction of the public library fund.

Only the county road and bridge fund was increased, from $48,000 to $57,551.

The court eliminated the $2,000 appropriation for the Graves county library.

In other economy moves, the court halved the salary of the secretary to the county attorneys, halved the appropriation for repairs to court house property to $1,000, abolished the position of commissioner of the county poor farm, reduced by almost 50 per cent the salary of the clerk of the juvenile court, whacked $200 off funds for farm extension work, and did away with over half the general fund, leaving the latter at $3,002.

Mrs. Ollie Kaler Fatally Hurt
In Truck-Auto Wreck Thursday

Mrs. Ollie Kaler, 60, 503 West State Line, was injured fatally yesterday afternoon in a truck automobile collision on Highway 45 near Pryorsburg, Graves county. Mr. Kaler and two other ladies in the Kaler's car also were injured.

The Kaler automobile was the fifth vehicle in a funeral procession accompanying the body of Mrs. J. W. Johnston from Mayfield to Boulah cemetery in Obion county for burial. Witnesses said the northbound truck in meeting the funeral procession swerved across the highway and into the path of the Kaler car to avoid hitting a coupe, also northbound, which stopped suddenly.

Mrs. Kaler was taken to the Fuller-Gilliam Hospital in Mayfield by a Murphy ambulance from Martin, Tenn. She died shortly after arrival there. She suffered a fracture of the neck and leg, in addition to other injuries.

Louisville Paper
Compares Record,
Picks Waterfield

CAMPAIGN PLANS LAID

The Louisville Courier-Journal, Kentucky's leading newspaper, in an editorial today announced its support of Harry Lee Waterfield for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Kentucky in the August 2 primary election.

Mr. Waterfield, publisher of the Fulton Daily Leader and the Hickman County Gazette at Clinton, is speaker of the state House of Representatives. He is one of three announced candidates in the Democratic race.

The Waterfield campaign opens officially next Saturday, June 14, at Murray. A barbecue will be held at the city park, followed by the candidate's opening speech in the court square there. Everyone interested in the candidacy of the First District Democrat is invited to be present.

A motorcade of Waterfield supporters from Fulton county will be organized to attend the opening rally. Maxwell McDade will be in charge, and those who can make the trip, and who can furnish transportation for others, are urged to contact him as soon as possible.

Following is the Courier-Journal's editorial in support of Mr. Waterfield's candidacy:

The Courier-Journal urges Kentucky Democrats to support Harry Lee Waterfield for the nomination for the governor on August 2. We believe there is good evidence to prove that Mr. Waterfield, if nominated and elected, would give the State an unusually capable, honest, progressive administration.

We have made a close analysis of the public record of Mr. Waterfield and of his principal opponent, Earle C. Clements. Both men have excellent legislative experience. Both have shown intelligence and leadership in the ordinary level of politics. Both command large followings on the basis of proven ability.

Compares Records

The records of the two men run closely parallel through the 1942 and 1944 sessions of the legislature. There is no direct comparison beyond that date, since Mr. Clements moved on to Washington as Congressman from the Second District, while Mr. Waterfield remained to serve as Speaker of the House at Frankfort in 1946.

On the voting record of the two gentlemen in the legislature, we can find only one really significant divergence. The issue came on the long battle of Kentucky Utilities against public power. The first time the issue occurred in 1942 when the T. V. A. Enabling Act was proposed. Mr. Clements aligned himself with the utility interests by proposing an amendment to this bill which even a political ally, Senator E. C. Moore, declared would "prevent T. V. A. from seeing the light of day in Kentucky." When this amendment was killed and public sentiment became apparent, Clements voted for the Enabling Act.

In 1944, however, he returned to the fray as champion of Kentucky Utilities. The Moss Bill was introduced for the purpose of crippling the distribution of cheap T. V. A. power in Kentucky. Clements voted against two minor amendments to Senator Moss, designed to satisfy objections to the bill. He then followed with three negative votes on amendments offered by Senator Carroll which sought to nullify the effects of the Moss Bill entirely. He completed the cycle by voting for the bill, which was killed in committee in the House.

Fought Special Interests

Mr. Waterfield, in the meanwhile, was making a consistent record in favor of the public interest in these matters and against the special interest of K. U. When the Moss Bill bobbed up again in the 1946 session and passed the Senate with the support of leading political allies of Mr. Clements, his course was stopped in the House by exertion of strong Waterfield

Reds Win In Hungary

Joseph Stalin's answer to President Truman's anti-Communist program has been a new political coup, this time in Hungary, that gives the Soviets control of the final link in a chain of smaller nations stretching from the Baltic to the Adriatic seas. Official American reaction to the Communist coup has been cancellation of credit to Hungary and a State Department investigation of the situation.

The Americans are trying to combat Communism with dollars and materiel; the Communists counter by calmly taking over government after government, expanding their sphere of influence, and in effect daring someone to do something about it.

There are some who explain Russia's actions in this manner: suppose you were a Russian, watching the American Congress pass legislation to provide funds for combatting Communism, your form of government; reading the American president's plea for standardization of arms in the Western Hemisphere and mutual preparedness against attack, which could come only from your country; hearing arguments for universal military training of American young men to ready them for World War III, if it comes; listening to David Lillenthal tell of American plans to safeguard the secret of making atomic bombs, and to increase America's stockpile of bombs. Wouldn't you want to make your country (Russia) as strong as possible as quickly as possible?

This argument may have some worth. Most Americans likewise are anxious to remain strong militarily because they either fear or distrust the Russians, or both. It is a foreign conclusion that the people of neither nation want another war, but the way the struggle for power is shaping up there is no assurance that another war will not occur.

It is ironic, and tragic, that such an international crisis is at hand today, the third anniversary of D-Day when Allied troops went ashore in Normandy to join forces with these same Russians in crushing a mutual enemy.

Classy Classifieds

A newspaper's classified advertising columns, in addition to performing yeoman service for those who want to buy, sell, swap, work, hire, etc., often produce quite a bit of comic relief.

Lockwood Barr, former managing editor of the Wall Street Journal, makes a hobby of collecting unusual classifieds. Here are a few of his findings:

"Young man who gets paid on Monday and is broke on Wednesday would like to exchange small loans with a young man who gets paid on Wednesday and is broke on Monday."

"Positively no more baptizing in my pasture. Twice in the last two months my gate has been left open by Christian people, and before I chase my heifers all over the county again all the sinners can go to purgatory."

"If J. M., who 22 years ago basely deserted his helpless, penniless wife and son, Michael, will return home Mike will take pleasure in knocking the hell out of him."

"Brown, the furrier, begs to announce that he will make up cats, capes, etc., for ladies out of their own skins."

"Found: lady's purse left in my car while parked. Owner can have same by describing property and paying for this ad. If owner can explain satisfactorily to my wife how purse got into car, will pay for ad myself."

U. S. Strong In Middle East

By Jerry Korn

AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The United States is swiftly outstripping both Russia and Britain in the one spot in the world where interests of the three big powers meet head-on—the Middle East.

That area is extremely important to all three nations because of its great oil reserves and because of its strategic position astride the crossroads of the air, sea and land routes around the globe.

For many years the nations of the Middle East have been among the most backward in the world. Now they are modernizing, with American assistance. And as the lot of the people improves, the stock of the United States rises.

Take Saudi Arabia, which contains much of the Middle East's oil.

A great development program is under way there which American officials say will change the country more in the next five years than it has changed in the last five centuries.

King Ibn Saud's own five-year plan will cost about $100,000,000. A little of this is being furnished by American private and government sources. American oil companies have vast projects which will bring the total to more than $400,000,000.

But Americans are furnishing something harder to find in the Middle East than money: industrial knowledge.

By the time the Saudi Arabian program is completed some 4,000 United States experts—largest American colony in the Middle East—will be living in the country.

"It's to our advantage to see more wealth produced and that better distributed," one American official says. "The people will associate prosperity with the United States."

Officials say that British failure to recognize that fact in time is one reason why they lost their position of leadership.

Russia, these experts add, fumbled a chance to build up good will when it moved into Azerbaijan.

Russia could have developed the country and used it as an example for the other Arab countries. Instead the Russians stripped the region bare, and their standing dropped so low in the Middle East that even the Iranian intellectuals—who might normally have supported the Communists—were soured on them.

The Arabs don't like American support of the Jewish position on Holy land immigration, even with the problem in the hands of a United Nations commission.

The experts say the Arabs, like many other peoples, think of U. N. as being dominated by the United States.

A few other things could trip the U. S. up. These are the most important:

1. If the Arabs decide the United States is taking an imperialistic course in Greece and Turkey, they might throw us out of their own countries to keep the same thing from happening there.

2. Like most nations which are tying their economies to that of the United States, the Arabs fear a major depression here. That might make them lose faith not only in the United States, but in the capitalistic system as well. It could drive them straight into Russia's arms.

Poet's Corner

LIFE'S BLOOD

They talk of war again today, Of power, hate and greed, A world divided within itself, They hurry to plant the seed.

This monster rises again today Amid the chaos from war; It will destroy our universe Before we heal the scar.

Our boys went in at Normandy, Poppy fields flowed red, Covered with blood from American youth.

Piled high in slaughtered dead, They paid a price so very dear For ideals they believed were right.

But today, nations are marching on To keep their sword and might, If they could march again today.

Upon God's precious land Would they again give life's blood For the folly of their fellowman?

Too soon men of power forget Cost in human life As they bicker and divide Around the table.

Spoils from war and strife, It is a problem for our God, From prayer must come our way.

Our country, upon bended knee, Must kneel to pray for peace, True fear within man's heart, As science moves toward new goals.

Can be stopped only if God Is master of all men's souls. (Composed by Mrs. Emma L. Robinson, 201 1-2 Commercial, Fulton.)

Sports Roundup

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

New York, June 6—(AP)—There wasn't much doing along the fight beat, but Harry Markson, as usual, came up with the makings of a story. He signed a bit because he couldn't beat the 20th Century Club tom toms as he remarked: "I think that Ike Williams-Bob Montgomery fight in Philadelphia will be very important." . . . someone cut in: "I saw them once and what a fight. With ten seconds to go, Montgomery finally belted Williams out and as he fell through the ropes his head hung over the edge of the ring apron. Looking at him from the other side it really looked as if his head had been knocked off." . . . "My reason," Markson continued imperturbably, "is that for the first time in about 25 years there'll be undisputed champions in every division." A checkup showed he was right. From the time Mickey Walker abdicated in 1926 until Tony Zale cleaned things up in 1941, there always an argument about the middleweight title. An argument over the featherweight crown began when Henry Armstrong dropped it in 1937 and didn't end until Willie Pep licked Sal Bartolo a year ago. The current lightweight disagreement began in 1943 after Sammy Angott retired and then changed his mind . . . a bored scribe broke up the discussion: "So what?" he demanded. Maybe before they fight Rocky Graziano will knock out Zale and what will the New York commission do then?"

Oklahoma's baseball players give a lot of credit for winning the Big Six championship and a spot in the national playoffs to a four leaf clover . . . the charm was presented to pitcher Jack Venable by Mrs. Margaret Heath, whose son, the late John Heath, pitched for the Sooners five years ago . . . Venable wore it in his left shoe as he best Oklahoma A. and M. 8-1. Next day Elton Davis borrowed the clover and hurled a three-hit 4-1 victory over Missouri. Then Sal Cumberland tried it and the Sooners beat Missouri again to take the Big Six lead . . . the bauble has been carefully preserved and used ever since . . . you might say: darn clover, these Sooners.

End of The Line

The Cleveland Browns have sold almost twice as many season tickets as they did last year and figure on doubling their 1946 advance sale. . . . Ace Parker, who couldn't catch on as shortstop with the Chicago Cubs this spring, has been shifted to the outfield for the Portsmouth, Va., farm club . . . George Blair, who gave the University of California crew a new shell while he was in the Navy, returned this spring to row in the "George Blair" with the California Jayves this spring . . . the national 100-mile motorcycle race will be staged on a rugged five-sided course on New Hampshire's Belknap Mountain June 22. And if the riders aren't careful, they'll be copying the "sitt-marks" of Belknap skiers.

First Rhodes scholarships were awarded in 1904.

Pro Redskins Sign Ex-MSC Gridder

Washington, June 6—(AP)—The pro football Redskins announced today the signing of three new linemen, bringing their team roster to 50 for the 1947 season.

The players are Hugh W. Taylor, Wynne, Ark. an end from Oklahoma City University; Clifford T. White, Shaker Heights, Ohio, tackle from Murray (Ky.) State College; and Ernest O. Alther, Jr., Martinsburg, W. Va., guard from Syracuse University.

Oilers Thump Chick Nine 19-3 In Second Win At Owensboro

Fulton absorbed a 19-3 drubbing by the Owensboro Oilers at Owensboro last night, their second loss in the three-game series.

The 1946 Kitty champion Oilers now are two full games ahead of Mayfield, the second-spot club, who dropped a 4-2 tilt to Hopkinsville at Mayfield last night. The Oilers barely are in sixth place now, just ahead of the Cairo Egyptians, who beat Clarksville 9-3 at Clarksville last night.

Owensboro batters ganged up on Shublom and Narleski for a total of 22 hits. Medcalf, the winning pitcher, gave up 10 safeties.

Once again, the game started off about even with both clubs scoring twice in the first inning. Then the Oilers moved ahead 3-2 in the third, but the Oilers produced six runs in their Shoulders now have a smooth rounded look that is very flattering. There is some padding, but not as heavy in the past.

Side effects are very popular in St. Louis junior fashions. A diagonal closing at the neckline is accompanied by a diagonal drape or pepum on the opposite side of the dress, or there may be a huge side pocket, very practical for carrying the gadgetry dear to the heart of a junior miss.

High styling appears throughout the St. Louis lines. Hemlines dip in the back—a line which is also extended to peplums and drapes. Dresses and suits make much of hoods, which may be detached or draped down the back in a cowl effect.

Coats reveal a significant new look, which begins with the classic coat that takes a definite swing to the back. The strictly fitted coat, now flares from a snug bodice.

Brilliant hues of red, green and purple tend to light up winter fashions, and are particularly important in "spiking" beiges and blacks, which continue to be the favorite colors for the basic dress. "A must in every young wardrobe this season is the black 'date' dress," further comments Mr. Filler.

Taylor Ineligible To Manage Fair, High Court Rules

Frankfort, Ky., June 6—(AP)—Kentucky's court of appeals ruled today that C. Waitman Taylor is ineligible to serve as manager of the Kentucky state fair.

The opinion affirmed Franklin Circuit Judge W. B. Ardery, who ruled that Taylor, being a member of the state House of Representatives which specifically created the post, was barred by Kentucky's constitution from holding it.

Taylor was appointed last April 14 by the state fair board with the backing of Governor Willis. Today's ruling made permanent Judge Ardery's order ousting him.

Filler Goes To St. Louis Mart

Dotty Shop Manager Reports Style Trends In Ladies' Clothing

Leo Filler of the Dotty Shop returned recently from a buying visit to St. Louis, center of young fashions in the country. "The fall collections of the St. Louis Fashion Creators reflect the junior demand for longer skirts, which, in most cases, are two to three inches longer than those of last year," states Mr. Filler.

"I have found that the 'teen-ager,' the college and career girl want skirts that reach to mid-calf, particularly when the skirt is straight, a favorite type in St. Louis lines. In full skirts they prefer a slightly shorter length."

"Junior and misses fashions," comments Mr. Filler, "receive youthful styling by young St. Louis designers—many of whom are only a short time out of college.

The softer, longer silhouette is favored by the St. Louis Fashion Creators. Fullness swings from a natural or a lowered waistline, minimizing the waist to a mere nothing. Gone is the exaggerated square shoulder.

COURIER-JOURNAL PICKS WATERFIELD

leadership. He left the chair to speak from the floor against the measure, now known as the T. V. A. Ripper Bill, and became the acknowledged leader of the opposition.

This issue alone might not seem to vital except in a State such as Kentucky, where agriculture is king and the electrification of farms is a paramount factor in the future prosperity of our people. Further, the fight is not ended. Political observers fully expect K. U. to come back in 1948 with still another ripper bill. Its success or failure may depend on the type of Governor who sits in Frankfort.

Mr. Waterfield's record is full of other positive factors. His leadership of the House in 1946 was able, adroit and clean. Those qualities are important in a Governor. He sponsored an excellent Research Bill to provide an independent fact-finding body for the legislature, only to see it defeated by Senate leaders who are now supporting Clements. His House budget contained $2,000,000 more for school funds than the Senate allowed, and would have gone far to avert the teacher pay crisis. He engineered an increase in appropriations for public health from $773,500 to $1,076,000.

Young, Experienced
Harry Lee Waterfield combines youth with practical experience in public life. He has shown in Frankfort that he can fight for principles, and his punches are hard but clean. His 1946 record showed him an effective organizer who knows how to work with people and develop a program.

Finally, Waterfield is happy in his close circle of political advisers and friends. They represent the newer, fresher element in Kentucky politics. Mr. Clements has attracted to his standard a collection of old-line politicians who bear the scars of endless factional battles. If their candidate is successful their conflicting interests and demands are likely to prove an embarrassment to him. Mr. Waterfield would be freer to act, for his support would not come from Court House circles, but from the scattered mass of Kentuckians who are more interested in progressive government than in any party machine.

Wall Street Report

New York, June 6—(AP)—The stock market stayed within a narrow, irregular range today. Retreating at times were Goodyear, American Telephone, Southern Railway, U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, American Smelting, J. C. Penney, Standard Oil (NJ), Texas Co.,

Godrich and American Can. Resistant were Kennecott, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, Consolidated Edison, Bethlehem, Western Union 'A' and Philip Morris.

Bonds were narrow and commodities mixed.

Followers of merchandising shares gave attention to the Dun & Bradstreet report that retail sales for the week ended Wednesday held close to those of the previous week, with heavy buying before and after the holiday offsetting and losses due to Memorial Day shutdowns. Dollar volume was estimated at 7 to 11 percent above the corresponding week a year ago.
