THE MURRAY LEDGER.

VOL. 21, NO. 17.

Several New Aspirants for Public Office Make Announcement This Week.

The Ledger announcement column this week contains the name of four new candidates for public office at the hands of the people, and in presenting their names to the voters of the county and the city of Murray the Ledger asks a careful consideration of their claims and believes the men aspiring to the various offices are worthy of the confidence and esteem of the public.

FOR POLICE JUDGE.

Mr. R. R. Lassiter, for many years a citizen of the New Concord section of the county and who came to Murray to make this city his home some several years ago, places his name before the voters of the city as a candidate for the office of city judge, subject to the action of the voters in the next August primary election. Mr. Lassiter served his magistrical district as magistrate for two terms and is well acquainted with the duties that might be imposed upon him in the capacity of police judge. He has had the experience and is acquainted with the law, and is a firm believer in the law's enforcement. He is a splendid citizen, progressive and asks that the voters carefully consider his qualifications and claims before reaching a decision in this matter.

FOR JAILER.

Gatlin Rowland, of the New Concord section of the county, and one of the widely and well known young citizens of the east side, makes official announcement through the columns of the Ledger this week for the office of jailer of Calloway county, subject to the action of the democratic primary to be held the second day of next August. Gatlin Rowland is a son of Lem Rowland and is a hard working, industrious farmer and numbers his friends by the scores. He is big and stout and fitted in every way to make the county a splendid official and should be elected to the place the Ledger predicts that he will make a record that will be pleasing to the voters of the county. He expects to make an active and energetic campaign for the office and asks that his claims be given a careful consideration.

FOR COUNTY JUDGE.

Mr. J. B. Swann, possibly as well known throughout the county as any other single citizen within its borders, a resident of old Swann precinct where he has lived all his life and where he is counted one of the many splendid citizens of this splendid section of the county, makes announcement through the Ledger this week for the very important office of the county judge of Calloway county, his claims being subject to the action of the August primary election. Brack Swann has served his district and county in different official capacities and has always served the people honestly and conscientiously. He was magistrate of his district for two terms and afterwards served this county in the legislature, and in both capacities made an enviable record. Aside from these official positions he has been found allied with every interest that had for its purpose the advancement of the farming interests and he is a man of high character and a good chairman of the tobacco association for two years and largely due to his efforts and energies is the present success of this organization of farmers. Mr. Swann is deserving of the fair and impartial consideration of the voters of the county, and should be selected to preside over the office to which he aspires the Ledger believes that the interests of the people will be placed in good keeping.

FOR ASSESSOR.

To the voters of Calloway county: Having been solicited by a number of citizens of this county to make the race for county assessor, and after a careful consideration of the same, and the advice of friends, I have decided to become a candidate for that important office. Having no aspiration for any political "pie" until the present. I have never asked the voters of this good old county for any office. I was born and reared in old Calloway. Have taught many schools over the western part of this county, holding a first class certificate for the last 22 years, and still have the same; besides holding a nice diploma from Lexicon Institute, (as a completion of the teachers' normal course.) With the experience of two years as deputy assessor under J. A. Howlett and Wm. Broach. Besides this is the fourth year as deputy clerk under R. H. Falwell, and this is worthy of consideration. Fellow citizens, this is a very important office as it deals strictly with the revenues of this county, and only such a man as will fulfill the duties impartially and honestly should be elected by the voters. I beg you to consider my qualifications and investigate my record and give me your support and influence on the second day of August, and I will promise you to fulfill the duties of that office to the best of my ability. Hoping to see many of you as possible in the near future and present my claims, and let me thank you in advance for anything you may do for me. I am yours to serve.

Confederate Pay.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 25. Auditor Bosworth today referred to Attorney General Garnet the question of the constitutionality of the Confederate Pension act. The matter came up over the advisability of issuing warrants for the payment of the first installment of pensions. Bosworth said the question had been raised by his bondsmen and he wants to protect himself before paying the pensions.

Thompson's School House.

The farmers are very busy burning plant beds, sowing plant beds, cuts and repairing fences. Quite a number and wife visited her father, Amos Turnbow, of the Brown's Grove section, last Saturday and Sunday.

Rev. Cunningham preached to a large and attentive audience at the Baptist church in Hick-sey Saturday and Sunday. He is a fine preacher and a logical thinker and holds the attention of his congregation.

There has been five old men buried at Mt. Carmel in the past four months, Messrs. John Crick, C. T. T. Johnson, C. W. Anderson, Watson Anderson and Joe Magness.

There is a new plow boy at the home of Henry Dick.

Dr. Tyree and family, of Murray, visited J. C. Sanders and family Sunday.

J. W. Cox has been quite ill but improved.

Talmage Jones and Dallas will enter the Bowling Green school in a few days.

Quarterly Meetings Set.

Paris, Tenn., Feb. 11. Rev. L. D. Hamilton, presiding elder of the Paris District of the Memphis Conference, has announced his quarterly meetings for the second round of the conference year.

Rev. Hamilton, during the first quarter of his presiding eldership of the Paris District, has proven himself quite popular, and his quarterly meetings are largely attended.

Cedar Lane.

Dear Ledger: We will send in a few lines from this pair of Calloways.

Farmers are taking advantage of these pretty days and doing lots of work, they are not so much interested this time about a tobacco crop, in fact, there is not likely to be a very large crop, set this time, they are going in for more hog and hominy and not so much tobacco.

Sylvester Jones has been very ill of dropsy of the heart.

There is a new girl at the home of Albert J. Owhe.

Say people, why don't some good farmer make the race for representative, most of us down here are getting mighty tired of lawyers and school teachers, and what we want is someone to represent us who has some feeling for the people and not in favor of so much taxation. As we said before there is being entered by too many boys sent to the legislature to make laws for the taxpayers. No wonder the state is in the shape it is, and it never will be any better as long as lawyers, school teachers and boys are allowed to put the yoke on the taxpayers. West Side.

See me before you buy leather goods. I can save a big line. H. Steel, Hazel Ky.

WHY NOT?

Possible That Primary Elections Will be Means in Future of Selecting Postmasters.

Washington, Feb. 23. Primary elections for the selection of fourth-class postmasters are provided for in an amendment to the postoffice appropriation bill, which the Senate committee on postoffices today added to that measure. The consideration of the bill was completed by the committee, but on account of the necessity of gathering information relating to some of the changes the bill was withheld from the Senate.

The amendment regarding fourth-class postmasters was adopted as a result of suggestion by Senator Benton, of Kansas, although his original provision was much modified. As agreed upon by the committee it will apply only to fourth class officers and will be optional with the Postoffice Department as to whether the system shall be put into execution. In that event it authorizes the holding of primary elections, and when such elections are held it is made obligatory upon the department to appoint the person receiving the highest number of votes among the patrons of any given postoffice.

The committee also passed favorably upon an amendment requiring the reweighing of the mails next September in order to arrive at a basis for compensation to the railroads for carrying the business of the parcels post. Another amendment reveals the much criticized blue tag law, which gives the postmaster general discretion in delaying second-class mail matter.

This is the season of the year when mothers feel very much concerned over the frequent colds contracted by their children, and have abundant reason for it as every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality and paves the way for the more serious diseases that so often follow. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is famous for its cures, and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by Dale & Stubblefield.

Dr. Tyree Assaulted.

Dr. Tyree was assaulted by a young man near Kirksey last Sunday evening while returning from a professional visit in his auto and was struck in the forehead with a rock and received a painful wound. A young man by the name of Kendal made the assault and claimed as his reason for so doing was that upon another occasion Dr. Tyree's machine caused a mule to run away. The young man was arrested and placed under bond.

NOTICE.

All parties holding claims against A. L. Copeland, deceased, will present same to me properly verified within the next six months or they will be forever barred from collecting same out of me as administrator. This Feb. 14, 1913. H. E. Langston, Administrator of A. L. Copeland, deceased. 2203.

Prize Corn to Build Memorial.

Through the sale of fifty bushels of prize corn grown by Lester Bryant, the champion boy corn grower of Kentucky, who was apotheciated in Washington, Commissioner of Agriculture Newman believes he has found a scheme which will practically be the same as letting the individual grow his own monument. Mr.

Newman purchased the entire crop raised by Bryant. Out of the 148 bushels he will select 50 which will be sold for seed purposes.

As there is an average of seventy ears of corn to each bushel, Commissioner Newman plans to sell each ear of the prize corn for a dollar. At this rate the fifty bushels would net in the neighborhood of $3,500.

Dr. Fred Mutchler, of Bowling Green, who has been instructing the boys' corn clubs in the state, will select the best fifty bushels of corn from young Bryant's crop. Each person desiring to purchase an ear must send their dollar to Commissioner Newman, at Frankfort, and the ear will be sent to them by Dr. Mutchler.

No Need to Stop Work.

When the doctor orders you to stop work it staggers you. I can't you say. You know you are weak, run down and failing in health day by day, but you must work as long as you can stand. What you need is Electric Bitters to give tone, strength and vigor to your system, to prevent break down and build you up. Don't be weak, sickly or ailing when Electric Bitters will benefit you from the first dose. Thousands bless them for their glorious health and strength. Try them. Every bottle is guaranteed to satisfy. Only 50c. at Dale & Stubblefield.

Blood, Ky.

Health is very good at this writing: Some few measles scattered about.

We are having some fine weather. Plant bed burning is the order of the day.

Buddie Vance and John Vance made a business trip to Paducah the past week.

William Holland, the tobacco man, is receiving and pricing tobacco right along. He shipped 19 hogsheads the past week.

Pama Henslee, who is attending school at Murray came home to spend his birthday with his parents.

Uncle Tom Whaley died the 8th and was buried the 9th in the Williams grave yard. Grandma Whaley has been quite poorly since the death of her husband.

Dr. Henslee is having the ties hauled off his new ground. He is getting a nice pile on the river bank.

Miss Vera Grogan visited her aunt, Mrs. Bettie Henslee, the past week.

Huston Cook and wife visited R. F. Holland and wife the later part of the past week.

Two of Pierce Hollands children have the rosola.

Buddie Vance shipped a lot of hogs to Paducah last week.

Mr. Bill Downey is building a gasoline launch and will soon have it ready for the river.

Surprise Your Friends.

For four weeks regularly use Dr. King's New Life Pill. They stimulate the liver, improve digestion, remove blood impurities, pimples and eruptions disappear from your face and body and you feel better. Begin at once. Buy it at Dale & Stubblefield.

E. Outland's Home Burned.

The home of Mr. E. Outland, three miles east of the city, was destroyed by fire last Friday night. The origin of the fire is unknown and the loss extended to nearly all the contents of the building. The building and contents were partially insured.

Court of Appeals Decision Makes Members of Association Liable for Contract.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 22. Insurgent members of tobacco pools received a warning in a decision rendered by the Court of Appeals which reverses the finding of the Fayette Circuit Court in the case of the Grant County Board of Control and Burley Tobacco Society against A. S. Alliphinn.

The decision states that pooling agreements between growers and their association, even though containing a provision of liquidated damages, are enforceable in equity and violations may be enjoined.

Alliphinn was accused of shipping his tobacco to Lexington and selling it after having agreed to the terms of the pool. In this agreement was a provision that violators, who sold tobacco independently, should pay into the common treasury 20 per cent of the amount received for the tobacco.

The Court held that the very life of the pool depended on its members keeping the agreement and the 20 per cent clause was in the nature of damages if members deserted and thus endangered the combination.

There was some difficulty in holding the poolers in line after the lower court decided in favor of Alliphinn, for there are always some growers who are dissatisfied and looking for a chance to get out of the combination.

Now that the Court of Appeals has decided in favor of the pool, fewer defections are anticipated.

The dog tax in Kentucky amounts to $127,651, while the tax on money, bonds and stocks is $127,625. Hurrah for the dogs!—Glasgow Times.

Make evidence that the poor man pays the taxes. In the entire state of Kentucky the tax on the poor man's dog is in excess of the rich man's money, stocks and bonds to the amount of $26 per year. You are privileged to own money, stocks and bonds and refuse to list them that they might bear a legitimate portion of the burden of the cost of government, but you must not own a dog without paying into the state's coffers $1 per year to protect the rich man who owns the money, stocks and bonds.

Anxious to Know.

Candidates before the August primary have begun to deluge the Attorney General's department with inquiries about the primary law. The two questions that confuse them most are with regard to the signatures to their petitions and the methods of voting. Many of them are in doubt whether they must have the

HOW, WHEN AND WHY A SECOND ADVENT

Denver Divines on Right Track,
Says Pastor Russell.

Na—World-Burning—Batan—Le—Be Bound—Sin, Sickness and Death to Be Conquered—Man to Be Delivered. The Power Vested in Messiah—His Kingdom Near—How it Will Appear.

(PASTOR RUSSELL)

Denver, Dec. 1.—This city is stirred! Seventeen pastors of all denominations have been discussing the Second Advent for a month. Now comes Pastor Russell telling us all that "the Earth abideth forever"—that it will never be destroyed by literal fire. According to him the great event of Christ's Coming will bring blessings such as we all desire. He seems to have the Bible and logic on his side too!

Pastor Russell declared that false concepts of the Second Coming of Christ had done great injury. The view set forth in all orthodox creeds is that Christ will come again in the flesh. The resurrection will take place within twenty-four hours. The salinity will rise in the air to meet the Lord. Then fire will come down from heaven, and consume the whole earth. Premillennialists claim that Christ will reign in fleshly glory a thousand years to bless the living. The majority of Christians disown this as "ridiculous nonsense because they believe little of creed or Bible. A minority perceive its inconsistency with the Bible."

What Bible Students Now See.

The "fire of that day" is symbolic, already kindling in society, the elements of which: Capital and Labor, getting hotter. Soon they will melt; the symbolical "earth" will be consumed with the "heavens" also, the ecclesiastical powers. Their passing away will usher in a "new earth," or "new heavens," and "new heavens," the Church in glory.

The Second Coming of Christ is associated with blessings. Messiah will abolish the curse and bring in wonderful blessings. The Day of Christ will be "the last day," the great Seventh Thousand-year Day. All humanity will be blessed, including the dead who will then be awakened.

Christ Comes to Reign.

As the redemption was necessary for man's salvation so Messiah's Kingdom is necessary to accomplish restitution. The delay of more than eighteen centuries is Scripturally explained. (1) God designed Six Great One Thousand Year Days to teach mankind the exceeding sinfulness of sin. He purposed that on the Seventh Day the blessing of Messiah should come. (2) An important work has been done since Calvary. An Elect Church has been gathered, and all manner of saints made perfect through suffering. A Little Flock, the "Church of the First-born." These are to become the Bride of Christ at His Second Advent. The Second Coming of Jesus is to claim His Bride class, and to "exalt them." As regards the world, He comes to bind Satan, to overthrow sin, and to uplift fallen humanity. St. Peter tells that restitution work, not a literal burning of the world, awaits the Second Coming of Jesus: "Times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord."—Acts III, 19-21.

Christ's Kingdom to Be Spiritual.

One great mistake we have all made is in not noticing that Jesus was human, for only thirty-three and a half years. He was a glorious spirit being before. He was made flesh; and He was resurrected to a higher plane of existence than His original one. How foolish we were to think of Jesus as a man (a little lower than angels) in the midst of the Heavenly host. He is now partaker of the Divine nature; His Church is to be "changed" and made "like Him." As His descent was from a higher to a lower, so His ascent was from a lower nature to a higher, "far above angels." His is the exceeding glory which no man hath seen nor can see—"which no man can approach unto."

It is this glorious Being whose Kingdom is about to be established. He and His Church will be as invisible to men as are Satan and the fallen angels. The appearances of Jesus in the flesh at His resurrection were materializations, to prove (1) that Jesus was no longer dead; (2) that He was changed, born of the Spirit, able to go and come like the wind.

Parousia, Epiphania, Apokalupsis. Messiah's Kingdom will have earthly representatives—the faithful saints of previous ages, raised to human perfection instantly. Through these the invisible Messianic Kingdom will operate. Jesus said: "Ye shall see Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and all the prophets in the Kingdom." The parousia of Jesus will come first—present but invisible. The world will continue with the ordinary affairs of life (while He is gathering the Church), as in the days of Noah.

After the gathering of the Church, there will be an epiphania and an apokalupsis of Jesus. He will reveal Himself to be revealed not to be seen, but "in flaming fire," the trouble of that hour, in which the present world will be consumed in a single day, like chaff to the burning.

WARNING!

Owing to the fact that a good many cases of hydrophobia have been reported to the county health officers of this county, and the danger to which the people are exposed, it has been ordered by the County Board that a quarantine be established against any dogs running at large, unless securely muzzled. This quarantine applies to the entire county, and any dog found hereafter running at large, unless securely muzzled will be killed at once.

All peace officers of the county, the sheriff and deputies, all constables are hereby notified to see that the provisions of this act are enforced. Also the County Livestock Inspector is hereby authorized to enforce this quarantine and take such measures as he may deem necessary to protect the people and also the cattle of our county from this dread disease. Section 4 of the laws of the State Livestock Board makes it a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of not less than twenty-five and not more than one hundred dollars for each and every violation of this quarantine. And the owners of all dogs throughout the county are hereby notified to securely muzzle or confine all dogs belonging to them as the same will be killed when found running at large.

Done by order of the County Board of Health.

T. W. Patterson, J. C. C. C. Chairman Board of Health.

Dr. C. N. Tyree, County Livestock Inspector of Callaway Co.

BRONCHITIS SUFFERER

Takes Druggist's Advice With Splendid Result.

If anyone should know the worth of a medicine, it is the retail druggist who sells it over his counter every day in the week, and is in a position to know what remedy gives the best satisfaction. Mrs. Frank H. Ulme, of West Sand Lake, N. Y., says: "For a number of years I was a great sufferer from bronchitis. Every fall I had an attack which was more severe than any, and my friends thought I could not recover from it. Then I was advised by my druggist to try Vinol, which I did, with wonderful results. My cough has left me; I have gained in weight and appetite, and I am as strong as ever I was. I advise all who have bronchitis, chronic coughs, or who are run down to try Vinol."

It is the combined action of the medicinal, curative elements of the cod liver, without the greasy oil, aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron that makes Vinol so efficient. Remember, we guarantee Vinol to do just what we say—we pay back your money if it does not. DALL & STUBBLEFIELD, Druggists, Murray, Kentucky.

1913 Models of the Indian Motorcycle

Following the "14 Important Improvements" of 1912, The Hendee Mfg. Company announce no less than a dozen additional new features in their 1913 model of the Indian Motorcycle.

By far the most significant feature of the new machine is the Cradle Spring Frame. It is something entirely new, a radical departure from the conventional bicycle and recent motorcycle systems of "springing." Briefly the new device consists of the application to the rear wheel of the Indian Cradle Spring device as used on the front fork for the past three years.

Extending back horizontally from the frame joint, cluster under the saddle, flanking the rear mud guard, are two "Leaf Chromo" Vanadium steel springs. The "C" shaped curls at the rear end of these springs are connected by stays to bell cranks on which the rear axle is hung. The forward end of the rear fork has a hinge joint which enables the rear wheel to yield to imperfections of road surface. All shocks are completely absorbed by the leaf springs. The rear wheel can go through almost any vertical motion without affecting the body of the machine. There is no "bottom" to this spring device. The life of the machine is greatly increased.

The Engineering Department of The Hendee Mfg. Co. devoted 18 months of exhaustive to the Cradle Spring Frame before finally deciding on its adoption for all models of the 1913 Indian.

In addition to the Cradle Spring Frame, the 1913 Indian embodies 10 other important improvements which will be appreciated by motorcycle riders in general. Prices remain the same as last year.

New style, single clinch runs; larger tires; wider mud guards; casing for upper stretch of transmission chain and curve of sprocket; larger luggage carrier in rear, fitted to all models; foot rests, as well as pedals, fitted to regular 4 h.p. and 7 h.p. models; foot brake lever fitted on left side now operates band brake as well as the pedal action; larger size multiple disc clutch now fitted to all models alike; improved Indian type saddle.

All 1913 Indians will be chain driven and finished in Indian red only.

THE DOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

Hearing Kent call on Louise Farish to propose marriage and find the house in great excitement over the attempted suicide of her sister Katharine. Kent starts an investigation and finds that Katharine had been forbidden the house by General Farish. Kent had talked with Katharine over the telephone just before she shot herself. A torn piece of yellow paper, found in the room of the General, is taken up by Kent. A yellow envelope is found in the room of the General. A yellow letter also found in this case. Kent calls Louise on the long distance telephone and finds that she had just been killed by General Farish. Kent goes to the house to investigate and becomes suspicious of a "Henry Cook," a woman who had been in the room of the General. A yellow letter also found in this case. CHAPTER IX.

A New Mystery.
I was up with the dawn the next morning and down-stairs to find a twin schedule. The only thought in my mind was that I must go to Louise at once. I could not understand her sudden amazing change of front. Why, after pledging me to solve the mystery, should she all at once be as insistent that I should immediately stop all inquiry? I had lain awake the whole night, pondering the situation and seeking a solution. What reason could she have? Who could have influenced her to such action?

The first train, I found, left two minutes before six. I ordered breakfast, though in no mood for eating, and went to Davis' room. I felt that I needed his advice. I found him awake, smoking a cigarette in bed. Briefly I related to him the amazing telephone conversation I had had with Louise the night before.

"What possible reason could have influenced her to make such a strange request?" I concluded.

"A woman doesn't have to have a reason," he answered flippantly. It seemed to me.

"You don't understand!" I cried.

"Louise is not an ordinary flighty girl. She has the finest, best-balanced mind of any woman I ever knew. She never acts on impulse."

Davis looked at me with that exasperating smile of his.

"Kent," he replied, "when you have been married as long as I have, when you know women as well as I do, you will realize the folly of trying to find reasons for the things women do. Their minds are not governed by reason, but by impulse. Every sane woman knows that the hobbie skirt was an absurdity, yet when fashion decided in favor of the hobbie skirt it was worn. I doubt very much if Miss Farish herself could tell you why she asked you to discontinue your investigation. Probably she acted on impulse. By this time she undoubtedly is just as eager as she ever was for you to go on."

"What would you advise?"

"I'd go on," said Davis laconically, as he lighted another cigarette.

For a moment I was almost shaken in my determination to do nothing until I had seen Louise. It seemed as if Davis might be right. Perhaps she had acted only on impulse. Perhaps her love for me had made her feel that the investigation might lead me into danger. But I reconsidered. She had given me her love and trust and confidence. She surely was entitled to full confidence from me. I could not honorably continue the investigation without first seeing her.

"I am going to town on the first train," I said decisively. "I shall do nothing until I have seen her."

"And I shall go off with the investigation," said Davis with that exasperating smile of his.

Impatiently I turned and left him. I choked down a cup of coffee and hurried to the station. The journey passed miles and miles, though the train made few stops. As soon as the ferry landed me in New York I sprang into a taxi and ordered the driver to take me at once to the Farish house. Not until we had turned into their street did I realize that it was still too early for me to try to see Louise, even on such an urgent mission as mine. A few doors away from the house I stopped the chauffeur and made him drive up the avenue to the entrance of Central park.

I dismounted him, there and strolled aimlessly into the park. I would wait until ten o'clock before I tried to see Louise. Still pondering the situation, I strolled along one of the park walks and, being weary, I sat down on a bench by the lake where the swan boats are. There was no one about at that early hour and I was glad of it. I wanted to be alone and think.

How long I sat there I do not know.

I was so deep in thought that there was neither sight in my eyes nor hearing in my ears. Yet the eyes were not denied their rights. A feeling came over me that some part of my brain was trying to tell me something. It came more and more forcefully. My eyes were seeing something which they were trying to compel me to notice.

What was it?

I pulled myself together with a start and looked about me.

With an exclamation of horror I sprang from the bench and gazed into the lake just in front of me. Floating on the surface, not fifty feet from where I had been sitting, was the body of a woman.

"Other suicides, other suicides!" Davis' remark of two days before kept flitting through my brain. Other suicides! Katharine, Elsie, the woman at Ardway—his prophecy had been right—and was this another in the terrible chain?

I ran like a madman toward the park entrance, where I remembered I had passed a policeman. It was with relief that I found him still there.

"There's a woman—drowned—in the lake!" I gasped, pointing over my shoulder.

He ran back to the lake with me and together we waded out in the shallow water where the body lay. In my horror at the unexpected sight I had not stopped to note her appearance, nor could I have told whether she was young or old, dark or fair.

I looked at her now with more than interest—with a feeling of sorrow, of understanding. The deed of Katharine Farish had brought me to a closer sympathy with unfortunate persons influenced to weak death. As I saw that this poor girl was young and fair, I sadly wondered what tragedy had driven her to drowning.

Never shall I forget the impression the picture of this suicide made on me. She lay on her back with long blonde tresses or well-kept hair floating out on either side of her shapely head. Her eyes were closed, but her shapely brows and long dark lashes made her face comely even in death.

Her clothing, I observed, was well-made, and though wet and soiled as it was by the water it still gave the impression of neatness.

We grasped the body gently by the arms and drew it in to the bank, where we lifted it to the park bench on which I had been sitting.

"I wonder if there is anything about her to identify her by?" said the policeman, and together we looked.

Apparently there was nothing. There were no rings, no hands, the fingers were those of a woman of refinement. The officer turned back the collar of her coat, but the name of the maker had been cut away.

She didn't want anybody to know who she was, I guess," said after a hasty examination. "They generally try to hide their names."

"Yes, I suppose they do," I said apathetically.

"I've got to go over to the arsenal and report this and such other things. Will you wait till I come back?" I won't be long.

"I'll wait," I said.

He disappeared up the path and I was left alone with the body. As I sat there, meditating on the mystery that had caused so many other tragedies, I became conscious of the fact that one of this girl's hands was closed, as if, even in death, she was striving to conceal something.

Stooping over, I gently pressed back the stiffening fingers.

An exclamation of horror came to my lips as I saw what had been concealed there.

It was a little scrap of yellow paper. I could hardly believe my eyes. It must be that this poor girl here was another of the victims in the bathing chair of crime I was seeking to unravel. I held the water-soaked fragment up to the light, but there was nothing on it—not a word. Yet there was no mistaking the color and texture of the paper. It was undoubtedly the same that Louise and I had found in Katharine's room after she had tried to kill herself. It was the same that the police had discovered in Andrew Elsie's room. There was no question in my mind but that it was the same that the woman in Ardway had torn up before she hanged herself in the little hotel. But what was the meaning of it? What could be the mysterious import of this yellow letter that drove its recipients to death?

Here was one fragment. Perhaps I could find other scraps—perhaps the whole letter. I ran down to the bank of the lake and began a systematic search of the water along shore. For ten minutes I searched unavailingly and then I caught a glimpse of something yellow beneath a willow tree. Carefully I parted the branches. Sure enough, submerged in six inches of water, were more of the yellow scraps. I waded in and, scooping them up carefully in my hands, laid them on the grass to dry, for they were all but falling apart and I hardly dared handle them. Meanwhile I continued my search for other yellow scraps—this time without avail. If she had carried a torn-up letter with her as she sprang to death, the other pieces had floated away.

At last, convinced that there was no possibility of recovering more of them, I gave up my search and returned to where I had spread the recovered scraps on the grass. One by one I studied them. They were evidently a part of a type-written letter.

But the ink had run so that it was impossible to read a single word on them. From their shape, too, it appeared that they were not consecutive, so there was little hope of learning anything from them.

Just two of the ink smears seemed to have a possible meaning.

On one of them I was almost positive that I could trace the word "youth." On another scrap was a word that a little stretch of the imagination might decipher as "her."

"Youth" and "her." They might mean much or nothing. They might have some bearing on the great mystery I was trying to solve. They might have none. Perhaps they were, after all, merely phrases from a letter that had brought disappointment to a loving woman. In all likelihood this suicide had no connection with the others. But why, then, the yellow paper?

So intent was I on my thoughts that I did not observe the return of the policeman until I heard his voice.

"What have you got there?"

"There was suspicion in his tone—the natural suspicion of the representative of the law. It was on the tip of my tongue to say: 'Another yellow letter.'"

For once prudence restrained me. I recalled how my too hasty speech at the coroner's inquest had led me into trouble. I could hardly expect a twelve-hundred-dollar policeman to assist in solving the mystery that was still perplexing Davis.

"Just some scraps of paper," I said carelessly. "After you had gone I noticed that she was clutching a bit of paper in one hand. I searched around the lake to see if I could find more. I found these. It is evidently part of a letter, but the ink has run so you can make nothing out of them."

"Let's see them."

I handed him all of them.

"This," I explained, "I found in her hand and the others were over there under those bushes."

One by one the policeman examined them, turning them carefully over and over.

"There's nothing to them," he finally announced. "The wagon will be here in a minute. I don't suppose you'll want to be claiming any credit for finding the body?"

you, though, for coming and talking me about it. There's a lot of fools would have gone and telephoned the arsenal and then I'd been on the can for not covering my post properly."

I was glad indeed of the opportunity to get away. It was nearing ten o'clock. My trousers and shoes were in such condition that I wanted to get to my apartments for a change before seeing Louise. I hastened to the park entrance and hailed a taxi. By the time I left my rooms and reached the Farish home it was ten minutes after ten.

As my taxi turned into the street I saw another one stop before the Farish door. At first I thought it must be the doctor or one of his assistants, but as the front door closed behind the tall figure of a man who had been admitted to the house I realized that it was some one I had seen before.

There was something reminiscent in the broad shoulders, the walk. It was some one I knew, or ought to have recognized, yet who it was or where I had seen him I could not at the moment recall.

I was not three minutes behind him in reaching the door. Though the other flatter had been admitted at once, there was no immediate response to my ring. I waited a while and rang again. It seemed minutes before any one answered, then one of the maids opened the door, a trifle and peered out.

"Mr. Kent to see Miss Louise," I said.

To my great amazement she did not open the door to me, but still holding it just barely enough to enable her to talk to me, said: "I'm sorry, but I have orders to admit no one to the house."

"Of course, I understand that you have your orders, but please tell Miss Louise that Mr. Kent is here."

"I'll tell her, if you wish," she said doubtfully, carefully closing the door before she went on the mission.

The shutting of the door in my face gave me an odd sense of desolation. It seemed as if I were being shut out of the life of the woman I loved. Yet, on second thought, I smiled at my perturbation. The maid was only carrying out a necessary order. As soon as Louise knew I was there she would come running to the door herself. In a minute she would be folded in my arms and all misunderstanding would be cleared away. Undoubtedly she would have a good explanation for her telephone message of the night before. I told myself that it was only lack of sleep and the incident in the park that had upset my nerves. My misgivings were utterly foolish.

At length the door opened slowly. I had expected to see Louise herself behind it, but it was the same maid. This time she held the door hardly as wide as before.

"I'm sorry, sir," she said, "but Mr.

OVERDO THE BABY ACT

HIGH-TARIFF PLEADERS HOIST BY THEIR OWN PETARD.

Assertion That They Are Unable to Compete With European Manufacturers Is Being Made Much of in Foreign Markets.

It was an excellent point which Congressman Kitchin made the other day at one of the tariff hearings. The ways and means committee was, as usual, listening to the same old plaint that American manufacturers cannot compete with foreign manufacturers without protection because we pay such high wages in America. As it happened, it was the cotton people who were chanting this old refrain when Mr. Kitchin brought them up sharply by calling attention to the use foreign manufacturers are right now making in neutral markets, of precisely such statements as these American gentlemen have been making.

As everybody knows, the cotton men and other American manufacturers do compete largely, on equal terms, in countries like China with European manufacturers. Yet here they are declaring their inability to compete on equal terms for their own home market. According to Mr. Kitchin, their confessions to this effect are being advertised in Manchuria and elsewhere as evidence of the inferiority of American goods when sold as cheaply as German and other European products.

There is nothing whatever the matter with such reasoning as employed by European manufacturers. If it is true that our manufacturers must have protection to sell goods here at home, then how can they possibly sell in Manchuria or South America products quite equal to those of Europe at prices equally low?

Fortunately, there is the fact that they do compete successfully in such foreign markets. It is a fact which will have to be recognized, notwithstanding their doleful protests to this and other ways and means committees—Harper's Weekly.

Trusts and Foreign Trade.

American consuls report that manufacturers of this country will not take trouble to seek foreign trade. They will not make long campaigns for overseas commerce, as do English, French and Germans.

One reason for this condition is not far to seek. A large part of American manufacturing is under trust control. Trusts are too fond of "protection" at home to enjoy meeting competition abroad. During the last campaign Louis Brandeis published figures showing that most trusts pay little attention to export trade; and that their boasted "efficiency" is a myth.

American commerce is increasing because American growth, inventive power and natural resources compel an increase. What the country needs in promoting foreign trade is not subsidized ships, but normal competitive conditions at home.

Responsibility Is on All.

While the Democrats must take the initiative in all business, the Republicans and the Progressives have a certain responsibility. They must make a record; too, as the wheels go round. They must vote on how much revenue shall be raised by means of the income tax, and how the amount shall operate in the revision of the customs schedules and the new duties they shall carry. And they must vote on all new anti-trust proposals and all currency reform measures presented. The battle will not be alone between the Democratic factions, warm as that may be, but on some of the lines of contention, between the old parties as heretofore. So that the chances and penalties for blundering will not be confined to the Democratic party.

Governor Wilson's Message.

Governor Wilson's request to the New Jersey legislature for laws to stop stock watering, and trust building and prevent monopoly differs in only one particular from some of his previous messages to that body—where they were disregarded. But that difference is an important one.

Governor Wilson speaks now, not only as chief of the commonwealth, but as president-elect of the United States, as the man whose policies are approved by the American people. That should count for something.

This Helps Us All.

When denouncing the integrity of the tariff, forget not its virtues. Uncut diamonds are on the free list.

The passage of the income tax amendment just at the next congress is ready to amend the tariff making a combination that indicates that the Lord is with his people—Birmingham (Ala.) Ledger.

Currency Reform at Once.

Whatever may be the ultimate plan of currency reform, whether it include the basic principles of the Aldrich currency commission or some totally different scheme, it must be apparent that the steps to make the currency more elastic should be taken at the earliest possible moment. If action is postponed until later, it will be like locking the door of the stable after the horse has been stolen—Washington Post.

HUSBAND TIRED OF SEEING HER SUFFER

Procured Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which made His Wife a Well Woman.

Middletown, Pa.—"I had headache, backache and such awful bearing down pains that I could not be on my feet at times and I had organic inflammation so badly that I was not able to do my work. I could not get a good meal for my husband and one child. My neighbors said they thought my suffering was terrible."

"My husband got tired of seeing me suffer and one night went to the drug store and got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told me I must take it. I can't tell you all I suffered and I can't tell you all that your medicine has done for me. I was greatly benefited from the first and it has made me a well woman. I can do all my housework and even helped some of my friends as well. I think it is a wonderful help to all suffering women. I have got several to take it after seeing what it has done for me."—Mrs. EMMA EPPENSHADE, 219 East Main St., Middletown, Pa.

The Pinkham record is a proud and honorable one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of woman—ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Cough, Cold Sore Throat

Sloan's Liniment gives quick relief for cough, cold, hoarseness, sore throat, croup, asthma, hay fever and bronchitis.

HERE'S PROOF.

Mr. ALBERT W. PAUL, of Proctor, Kan., writes: "We use Sloan's Liniment in our family. It is an excellent relief for colds and hay fever attacks. I have coughing and sneezing almost instantly."

GOOD FOR COLD AND COUG.

Mr. W. J. STRANGE, 2721 Elmwood Avenue, Chicago, Ill., writes: "The best remedy I ever used. I gave the mother Sloan's Liniment to try. She gave him three drops on each before going to bed, and he got up without a cough or sneeze, and it cured him of my trouble."

I had feared that he would insist on my accompanying him to testify to its finding. It was quite a relief to hear him take this view of it.

"Of course not," I answered hastily. "Then," said he with utmost candor, "you might as well say to me don't do a cup no good to have other people flaying things on his post. If you ain't here when the wagon comes, there ain't nobody to say it wasn't me that found the body. I want to thank Louise says she can't see you now."

"What?" I gasped.

She repeated her message while I stood there dazed. There must be some mistake. Louise must have misunderstood the name.

"She said 'Louise' it was Mr. Kent," I told her.

"Yes, sir, I told her."

"What did she say?"

"She said she could see you I am one else now."
