Truman Vetoes Tax Cut Bill; C. Boudrant Dies June 15

President Says Measure Unsafe For Our Economy

"WRONG KIND, TIME"

WASHINGTON - President Truman vetoed today the tax cut bill and re-emphasized his belief that taxes should be raised instead of cut in order to tide the Nation over its current economic crisis.

The White House announced that Mr. Truman would veto the bill, which Congress sent him yesterday. The bill would have cut taxes 20 per cent for the 1949 fiscal year, with the cut to be increased to 50 per cent over the next two years. But Mr. Truman said the bill was a "wrong kind, time of tax cut for the American Nation." He said the measure was "unwise and unsafe." He vetoed a similar bill last year.

He told Congress that a tax cut now would add to, rather than correct, the current financial problems of the Nation.

"The present deficit of government revenue is estimated to be over $30 billion, while taxes on an income of $500,000 by nearly this year, he said.

"The tax bill offers no solution to the present financial problems. The problem requires a thoroughgoing re- examination of the fiscal policies of the government. To continue the present program of taxation is to continue disaster. To cut taxes at this time is to ask for disaster."

"Continuing public confidence in America's ability to fight Communism abroad."

"To continue the present program of taxation is to continue disaster. To cut taxes at this time is to ask for disaster."

Presidential Aides: "It requires a two-thirds vote to amend a law over the President's veto."

"The President declared it."

Mr. Truman said: "The President declared it."

"The American people now need a change in national government as fundamental and necessary as is now needed in national finances."

"The mission of the President and the Federal Government is to secure lasting peace." He said.

"The President declared it."

Reds Softening Up!

"Reds softening up" is the theme of the series of programs in the United States. Russian newspapers, notably Pravda, have printed articles please for the American people. The theme is "Softening up" as they believe that the American people are starting to see the error of their ways. However, there are signs that the American people are not softening up as expected. The Russian newspapers have blamed this on the American government's policies."
