Waterfield For Refunding Tax To Servicemen

Announces Stand In Two Speeches In East Kentucky

WILL SPONSOR BILL

Whitesburg, Ky.—Harry Lee Waterfield, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, Saturday told Eastern Kentucky veterans of World War II that he would request the 1948 legislature to enact a law to refund state income taxes collected from veterans on their service pay.

Waterfield made his first two campaign speeches in Eastern Kentucky with talks at Jackson in the afternoon and here Saturday night.

He cited his support of the bill passed by the 1946 legislature, when he was speaker of the House, which exempted veterans from payment of state income taxes on their service pay. "The bill was vetoed by Governor Simeon Willis, who charged that it was unconstitutional."

Waterfield said if he was elected Governor he would sponsor and press passage of a bill to meet constitutional restrictions, that would do what the bill Willis vetoed attempted to do. He said he did not believe the people of Kentucky favored the present system of making men who served in the armed forces pay income tax on their pay while they were in the uniform of their country.

"I am seriously concerned that veterans who have been forced and are now being forced to pay tax on their service pay, get their money back," Waterfield declared.

"I want to see Kentucky recognize her obligation to her service men and, during my term as Governor, I shallarken to the requests of the veterans as they are given to me through the veterans' organizations," the candidate said. Charging that his opponent, Earle C. Clements, was the candidate of the Kentucky Utilities Company and other special interests of the State, Waterfield compared his record with Clements' on TVA.

As a member of the State Senate in 1942, Waterfield said, Clements "did everything he could to destroy the TVA enabling act. He offered one amendment that would have rendered it ineffective. He voted for another that would have completely destroyed TVA. He voted with the Republicans."

"I am for rural electrification expansion and cheap TVA power. I have always been for it. My record proves my stand. I spoke and worked for the original TVA enabling act in 1942 in the House. I voted for it then. I have not changed my mind about TVA for the purpose of this campaign."

"The question in this campaign is: Are you for the people, or the power trust and my opponent?"

Nancy May Lancaster Selected Prettiest Baby In DAV Contest

Pictured below is Nancy May Lancaster, seven-and-one-half-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Lancaster, Fifth street, who received the award as the prettiest baby girl at the Festival of Victory sponsored by the Paducah chapter of Disabled American Veterans in Franklin auditorium last Wednesday in Paducah.

The little blue-eyed blonde captivated the judges to such an extent it took twins together to win second place, Sandra Dale and Wanda Gale, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Sikes.

Trophies were also awarded to the handsomest baby boy, the healthiest baby and the grand champion baby.

The prize baby show was held in order to raise funds for the Paducah chapter of Disabled Veterans.

Joe Beth Smith, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Smith, was named grand champion baby for having the most money entered in her name. Nancy May did not have enough monetary support to win this event, but in the contest where sheer beauty was the deciding factor she won easily with a smile.

Ephraim Jones died at 2:17 a. m. Sunday, June 22, at his residence, 208 South Bates street, South Fulton, after an illness of about four weeks.

Mr. Jones was 72 years of age last March 7. He was born in Obion county in District 16, the son of the late Starling Thornton Jones and Demarius Norman.

His wife, Mrs. Della Peoples Jones, preceded him in death seven years ago. He spent all of his life in and near Fulton. He was active as a painter and paperhanger contractor until his last illness.

Frankfort, Ky., June 23—(P)—There can't be an assistant city manager of Hazard because state law makes no provision for one, the attorney general said today.

Now-Pending Bill Could Retard REA Development, Is Charge

Louisville, Ky., June 23—(P)—Edward F. Pritchard, Jr., Paris, Ky., attorney, was scheduled to address members of the Kentucky Association of REA Cooperatives at its convention here today.

Clyde T. Ellis, executive manager of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association, spoke yesterday at the convention opened.

U. S. Senators Alben W. Barkley, Democrat, and John Sherman Cooper, Republican, had accepted invitations to speak at the meeting. However, officials said they were prevented from attending by today's Senate vote on President Truman's veto of the labor control bill.

Ellis declared in an interview that hope for providing electricity to the 61 percent of Kentucky's presently unelectrified farms would be destroyed by passage of a bill pending in Congress.

Ellis said the bill proposed to revoke priorities granted under the 1944 Federal Flood Control act. He said this act gives priorities in the purchase of power from flood control dams to the federal government, public bodies and electric co-ops. If the priorities are revoked, he said, privately-owned utilities could outbid municipalities and co-ops for the power. Ellis charged that after the companies bought the power they probably would not distribute it in rural areas.

Bourbon Beef Show Dec. 11

Samjo Farm, Fulton, Helps Raise Entries To Million-Lb. Total

Louisville, Ky.—A million pounds of "Bourbon Beef" is slated to be shown at the Bourbon Beef Show next Dec. 11 and 12 in Louisville.

Entrants include: S. J. Reed and Son (Samjo Farm), Fulton, two head.

According to the Bourbon Beef Association's field director, Jas. R. "Buck" Rash, Jr., "We had over 1000 cattle entered in the show before the entry deadline, June 15. They will average at least 1000 lbs. apiece at show time, which means a million pounds of Bourbon Beef will be competing for the $5,000 in premiums offered by the Bourbon Beef Assn. The Grand Champion receives $1,000 as does the Champion Carload."

C. R. Bottorff, association president, stated that 81 entrants have cattle in the show and that the entries come from 32 Kentucky's counties. "Why, we have cattle coming from as far west as Fulton, as far east as Mayfield, and as far south as Williamsburg," Bottorff said.

All of the cattle will be fattened on balanced rations containing either distillers dried grains or distillers dried solubles which are Kentucky produced protein feeds. This makes them eligible to show as "Bourbon Beefs."

Million Words Sent In Minute

That's Announced Speed Of Ultrafax, New Method Of Radio Communication

Washington, June 23—(P)—NBC president Niles Trammell said today a new radio communication system has been developed which can send 1,000,000 words a minute.

He said the new system known as ultrafax, "could transmit twenty 50,000 words novels from New York to San Francisco in only 60 seconds."

It's so speedy, the National Broadcasting Company head told congress, that present communications methods will seem as "slow as the ox cart" compared with a straitliner. Ultrafax was developed by Radio Corporation of America, and will be ready for a public showing some time this summer. Trammell said this is the way it works:

"Each printed page is treated as a picture and (a) flashed in rapid succession. At the receiving end, the pages are reproduced by new high-speed photographic processes for quick delivery."

Trammell told a Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce subcommittee that the new process may mean that the newspaper of the future will be delivered by radio.

"Many radio broadcasters of today will become the electronic publishers of tomorrow," he predicted in his prepared testimony.

Doctor Called In May Trial

Will Report On Condition Of Ailing Jos. Freeman As Court Reconvenes

Washington, June 23—(P)—The government arranged for a heart specialist to tell the May-Garson war fraud trial today about the condition of an ailing key witness, Joseph F. Freeman.

Freeman, one time Washington agent for the $70,000,000 Garson munitions combine, is one of the few witnesses remaining to be heard. He spent the past week in a hospital.

Former Rep. Andrew J. May (D-Ky.), wartime chairman of the House Military committee, is accused in the case of federal bribe conspiracy charges, along with munitions makers Henry and Murray Garson.

The government claims that May pocketed $55,000 in payments from the Garsons for government favors he obtained for their war firms.

Freeman, a fourth defendant in the case until he won a bench-directed acquittal, collapsed a week ago in the midst of testimony in behalf of May and the two Garsons.

With the defense claiming that Freeman is too ill from a heart condition to return, government attorneys hired a specialist to examine him and report back to court today.

Summer Ushered In By Blizzards And Floods; 15 Drowned In Nebraska, Three Die In Snowdrift

Tornadoes, flash floods and howling blizzards claimed at least 18 lives, left hundreds homeless and trapped 70 vacationists in a swirling snow storm yesterday as a reception to summer.

Hardest hit was Nebraska where at least 15 were known to have perished as a 12-foot wall of water from an overflowing creek surged through the town of Cambridge at dawn, taking the 1,100 inhabitants by surprise that they were unaware of the disaster until their homes were sent sprawling from their foundations.

At least three persons died in the cold of the blizzard which left snow drifts as much as 15 feet deep at Beartooth Pass between Yellowstone National Park, Wyo., and Red Lodge, Mont.

The floods in several areas of Nebraska followed cloudbursts which brought an estimated 12

Painters To Back Waterfield

Paducah—The candidacy of Harry Lee Waterfield for governor of Kentucky was endorsed by the Paducah Union of Painters, Paperhangers and Decorators Friday night at a special meeting called to elect officers for the organization.

After studying the record of gubernatorial candidates subject to the August primary and choosing Waterfield, the local issued this statement:

"The main factor in the decision of the painters was the fight that Harry Lee Waterfield led on the floor of the House, after leaving the seat as speaker, to enable the citizens of all Kentucky to obtain cheap electrical rates, which offer inducements to large manufacturers to establish plants in our state and thereby create a better economy for all."

Taft Confident As Upper House Prepares To Vote

66-27 BALLOT SEEN

BULLETIN

Washington, June 23—(P)—The Senate voted the Taft-Hartley labor bill into law today by overriding President Truman's veto 68-25, more than the two-thirds margin required to enact the hotly-contested curb on labor unions.

The action was taken despite an eleventh-hour appeal from Mr. Truman to the Senate Democrats to uphold his June 20 veto and kill the measure which he called "dangerous legislation."

Mr. Truman urged Senator Barkley (D-Ky.) just before the Senate voted that he is convinced the bill will do serious harm to the country. The new law provides government injunctions to halt national emergency strikes for at least 80 days. It also bans the closed shop and amends the Wagner Act to restrict some other union activities.

Washington, June 23—(P)—President Truman today made an eleventh hour appeal for Democrats to uphold his veto of the Taft-Hartley labor bill, terming it "dangerous legislation" which will "do serious harm to our country."

As the voting hour neared, both Senator Taft (R-Ohio) and a high Democratic strategist today that the Senate would vote to override President Truman's veto and make the Taft-Hartley labor bill law.

Their forecasts were strengthened by the announcement of Senator O'Connor (D-MD.), previously classed as doubtful, that he will vote to override.

The Democrat, who asked not to be named, said a last-minute canvass indicated a vote of 66 to 27 to pass the measure over Mr. Truman's disapproval. This would be well over the required two-thirds of those voting. In a final blast at the Republican-sponsored measure, Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) charged that the bill would "create a labor czar."

In a statement, the Wyoming Senator said the proposed general counsel for the National Labor Relations Board would have "more power over the life and death of American business than was ever dreamed of by President Roosevelt and the New Deal."

The general counsel would be clothed with power to determine which labor disputes cases would be laid before the board for its action and which would be taken to the courts.

O'Mahoney declared that "instead of promoting peace in labor and management, this bill is a blueprint for the complete establishment of discretionary government power over the entire field of industry-labor relations."

O'Connor was one of a group of "doubtful" Senators who were invited to the White House last Friday for luncheon with the President. Of this group, only Senator Sparkman (D-Ala.) has announced he will switch from support of the bill to support of the veto.

Believing the measure certain to go on the statute books, Senator Taft (R-Ohio), one of the authors, called for appointment of "outstanding citizens" to the enlarged National Labor Relations Board which the measure provides.

Sensors agreed on the timing of the vote Saturday upon adjourning after a 30 hour, 22 minutes filibustering session kept going by the President's supporters to delay a showdown.

No Fire Eating

There is no fire-eating in Harry Lee Waterfield's advocacy of a tax on pari-mutuel betting. Racing is a highly profitable monopoly of open, law-provided, court-sanctioned betting. It should return substantial revenue to the State.

The turf will do well for itself if it refrains from trying to perpetuate its rich privilege at the same time avoiding a reasonable tax.

The people of Kentucky are, in the main, not sports-loving in the degree that they want undue privilege granted to racing. They take pride in the State's reputation for producing thoroughbreds and the prominence of the Kentucky turf. There is no enmity toward the turf even among those who never see a race or a thoroughbred nursery. But a referendum upon the question, "Shall pari-mutual betting pay a tax in Kentucky comparable to taxes it pays in other States?" would reveal the will of a large majority in behalf of such a tax as Mr. Waterfield proposes. (Louisville Times).

Gambling Is Target

Investigations into gambling activities are the order of the day in Kentucky. Hopkinsville and Louisville are the two most recent centers of action by the anti-gambling forces. In the latter city, a new approach is being used. Property owners should be held responsible for the illegal activities of their renters, several lawsuits charge. It will be interesting to watch the progress of these suits in Jefferson circuit court.

As we stated some months ago, we do not believe gambling can be eliminated anywhere by legal action. Some people will bet on the weather, if nothing else, for the thrill of risking a little on the chance of getting a lot. But much can be, and should be, accomplished in the war against big-time gambling syndicates now operating in Kentucky. The big hand-book rings, the lush slot machine trade, the illegal dice and card games are virtually unmoored in many cities.

We have some gambling in Fulton and Fulton county, but apparently nothing like the conditions described in Hopkinsville and Louisville. We believe we could find a crap table, sit in on a poker game or put some money on the horses here if we wanted to. However, most of the local gambling seems to be conducted on a more or less personal and private basis, and probably is near the irreducible minimum.

Honesty Best Policy

It's doubtful that anyone who smokes Raleigh cigarettes was naive enough to believe the advertisements saying they were easier on the throat, and altogether less harmful, than other brands of cigarettes. That advertising claim will be made no more, according to a ruling by the Federal Trade Commission. The cigarette-smoking public and the manufacturers of Raleighs alike will benefit from this ruling. In advertising, as in all other fields, exaggerated or downright erroneous claims never result in long-term profit.

Chief offenders in this category are the patent medicine manufacturers. Thanks to the F. T. C., the words "Caution, use only as directed" or other similar warning must accompany most advertisements. Pre-set ads sent newspapers carry this warning in the tiniest type, and radio announcers hurry through the phrase, so it will attract as little attention as possible. All in all, many of the patent medicine ads leave much to be desired.

Yet, we have come a long way in correcting the evils of false advertising—so far that an ad subject to any question at all is the seldom-seen exception. This is a tribute to the vigilance of the F. T. C., and to conscientious space-buyers who know that one sure path to financial success lies in careful, consistent, honest presentation of sales message in the best medium available—the local newspaper.

Bevin Speaks His Mind

By Dewitt MacKenzie, AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

This column has called attention to the fact that the current investigation of ownership and control of the British press by England's Socialist regime—launched some time ago amidst an outcry among Communists and fellow travelers for regimentation of newspapers—has been causing uneasy speculation as to whether this indicates a further leftist tendency by the government.

We now have a sensational clarification of the government's policies in British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's blistering "shirt-sleeve" speech in Commons, telling Russia bluntly what the score of international relations is and in Prime Minister Attlee's pointedly anti-Russian speech before a miners' rally in Barnsley Saturday in which he declared that "so-called Democratic government is a travesty" in "several countries of eastern Europe."

Bevin—one of the most outspoken of England's major public figures—flatly declared himself against "one-party" government (totalitarian). He said he would regret a conflict between ideologies "but if it is forced upon us we must face it." He didn't believe that in the long run the western world would be the sufferers in event of a conflict, because the many directors who have tried to suppress liberty in the world have failed. It was a fighting speech which was a direct challenge to aggressive Communism and to the tactics which thatism has been employing in eastern Europe. It would seem to line Britain up squarely with America. The gage of battle over this issue has been thrown down.

An interesting aspect of this fiery pronouncement is that it was delivered while London and Paris were awaiting Moscow's reply to the joint Anglo-French invitation to Russia to join in drafting a program of aid for Europe in accordance with U. S. Secretary of State Marshall's program for economic rehabilitation. British newspapers deduced from the tone of Bevin's speech that France and England had made up their minds to go ahead with the task laid down by Marshall irrespective of whether the Soviet Union decided to participate. In effect it served notice on Moscow to fish or cut bait.

Bevin made it clear that in inaugurating this program he wouldn't tolerate any such delays as those which caused the recent Moscow conference of the Big Four foreign ministers to fail in efforts to write the all-important German peace treaty. The Western Allies charged that Russian obstruction was to blame for this failure.

"I spent six weeks in Moscow trying to get a settlement," Bevin told Commons in his speech Thursday night. "I shall not be a party to holding up the economic recovery of Europe."

The British press generally approved of Bevin's call for speed, an exception being the Communist Daily Worker which characterized it as an "ultimatum." Of course obstruction to cause delay has been a favorite Communist weapon in many recent instances where delays in rehabilitation favored the Redism.

Bevin's dramatic pronouncement of policy was accompanied by a speech by Anthony Eden, Conservative party spokesman, which brought Britain's two major political parties into complete solidarity as regards General Marshall's proposal. Eden charged Russia with flagrant interference with the right of eastern European nations to govern themselves. Of the American economic program the former British foreign secretary said:

"This offers the possibility of creating a new Europe—it is the second chance that so rarely comes. When rarely this does come, it is in the nature of a miracle."

the state agriculture college reported. The cost of producing an acre on high-yielding farms was $33.32 while it was $22.58 on other farms.

Lexington—Another conference was planned today in an attempt to find a settlement in Lexington's 13-day-old city bus strike. The strike began June 11 when unionized drivers and Taxes On Alcohol Provided 25 Per.

Frankfort, Ky., June 23—(AP)—A report of the Kentucky Tax Research Association showed today that alcoholic beverage taxes and license fees provided 25 percent of the state appropriations made for Kentucky education and welfare in the 1945-46 fiscal year.

The study of the state general-purpose fund revenue for the 1945-46 fiscal year was made by the association. The report disclosed that liquor and beer levies amounted to $29,279,923 of the $41,544,687 brought into the fund by at least 22 taxes.

A total appropriation of $19,894,900 was given education during the fiscal year studied. Of that amount, $5,636,225 came from alcoholic taxes and fees. A total of $7,252,000 went to welfare activities. Of that amount, $2,057,324 was from alcoholic beverage revenue.

PALESTINE REVIEWS THE YEAR'S WORK

A review of the year's work was discussed by leaders, Mrs. C. B. Caldwell and Mrs. J. H. Lawrence, on clothing selection and making hooked rugs at the Palestine Homemakers club which met at the home of Mrs. Lewis Thompson, Friday afternoon, June 20. Mrs. William McClannahan, president, presided. Mrs. Lon Brann read "The Recipe" from the club's year book.

During the business session, a club picnic was planned to be at the community house July 11. Each member paid her penny for friendship dues. At this time, the president called for the report of the nominating committee which was given by Mrs. Morgan Davidson, chairman.

The following were nominated: president, Mrs. William McClannahan, vice-president, Mrs. Roy Bard; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Mac Burrow; program conductors, Mrs. Hillman Collier and Mrs. Percy King. These officers were elected by the club.

The program was then presented. "Landscape" was given by Mrs. A. M. Browder, who told about the control of chaper and aphids on roses by spraying with arsenate of lead and black leaf 40. Other things mentioned in notes were the pruning of evergreens, how to keep them growing evenly, and during July and August, cutting the grass just enough to keep up weeds from seeding.

Mrs. Gus Browder showed pictures of some birds and told about different birds building their nests and caring for their young.

The recreational program, directed by Mrs. Harvey Pewitt, consisted of the group singing

W. A. HARRIMAN Secretary of Commerce Says:

Keep Turning In Your Used Fats

Used cooking fats have represented a substantial part of our total industrial fat supply. The more than 600 million pounds of used fats that American homemakers have saved and turned in since 1942 has been of vital importance. It is a record of which every woman who contributed may well be very proud.

The United States still lacks adequate supplies of fats and oils. And we are particularly short of industrial fats. Many, if not most, of the things we all use and wear require industrial fats, or the products of industrial fats, such as soaps and glycerine, in their manufacture.

So won't you keep up your good work and continue to save and turn in every possible pound of used fat?

Fun House Is Barrel Of Fun; Never Get Tired Seeing How The Girls React, Operator Confesses

The man who made his living by blowing the girls' dresses up over their heads said he didn't reckon he'd ever get tired of his job.

He fingered the lever that controlled the blasts of compressed air which caused all the excitement, and reminisced about some of the girls who had patronized his "Fun House," one of the attractions at a carnival that played Fulton last week.

Most of 'em know what to expect when they come out the door, but you get a lot of surprises because no two of 'em ever take it the same way.

Yep, I get a big kick out of it, he admitted. But those people out there (the inevitable crowd that giggles and waits for the girls to come out) are more fun to watch after you've been in the business a while.

He didn't look like a carnival man. He was wearing an open-collared Army shirt and khaki trousers and kept his come-on spiel down to a few well-chosen words. He had the sunburnt face and gnarled hands of a farmer.

He didn't have much to offer the cash customers inside the fun house, because about all the trade was interested in was the unpredictable air vent at the exit. Of course, there were a few girls who wore slacks and went through just to see what was behind the swinging doors, but they were a minority.

One time down in Alabama, the high-pressure air man remembered, there were a couple of girls who went through the fun house about 15 times a night. They'd go find new boys and come back, and every time I'd turn on the air they'd act like it surprised the daylight.

I let 'em keep on going through as long as they wanted to, he continued. People like that draw the crowd outside and show the ones who are about halfway scared to try it that they won't get hurt—you got to figure all the angles when you make your living for all year in a few weeks.

He didn't have much use for the smart alecks among the customers. He said it made him mad when someone backed off and crashed through the exit door to miss the air jet. Lots of times, he explained, they'll bust right off the platform and into the crowd and hurt somebody and there's your night's trade knocked out. Also, it's hard on the doors.

And the girls who knew all the answers and came out holding their skirts tight around their knees and laughed because he couldn't budge them irritated the fun house man. He had that angle figured, too. Next time one of the girls did that he just let her stand there over the air hole and wait for the blast that didn't come. When she was embarrassed enough, he jerked a thumb toward the steps and said "Move on."

Well, somebody asked him, did you ever have one—I mean, did anyone ever forget to—that is, did anybody go through that shouldn't have?

Yep, he grinned. That happened once down in Ripley, Tenn. She just stood there and didn't know what was going on. I don't think she ever caught on. When she finally moved, she looked over at me and said "Gee, that was cool."

You'd think a man would finally get tired of it all, he remarked. I don't think I will. Then he picked up his microphone and started all over again: "A barrel of fun for everyone at the old fun house. Come in now while it's not crowded, stay as long as you please, come out when you get ready."
