DISASTROUS FIRE

The McDaniel Boarding House Totally Destroyed Last Friday Afternoon At 6 O'clock.

At 6 o'clock Friday afternoon, "Aunt" Laura, the cook, discovered smoke around the flue at the McDaniel House, and it was found to be on fire between the ceiling and roof. An alarm was at once turned in and the bucket brigade went to work until the arrival of the fire company, when it was reported to be under control, but the men were ordered from the roof to make way for the hose. A delay was caused at this time by some misunderstanding among members of the fire company and the fire got under headway and could not be checked and the building was a total loss. Only three beds out of twenty-three were saved, and the parlor furniture.

Part of the clothing of the guests were saved but much was burned. All extra feather beds, bedding household supplies, etc., were stored on the third floor and was a total loss.

Mrs. McDaniel, the owner, is a woman well advanced in years and blind, so this great loss of building and contents valued at $8,500 with insurance of only $5,200 comes as a great shock. Surrounding buildings, including the livery stable of Holland & Co. caught on fire but were extinguished, though for a time it looked as if all must go.

The McDaniel family wish to express their appreciation of the work and kindnesses shown them during and after the big fire, by such a large number of Murray's citizens.

Pray and Call Doctor Too.

Dr. Oster, the famous surgeon who said all men become useless at 40, and should be killed off at 50, recently broke loose with another rash statement, says the Pathfinder, to the effect that people nowadays rely too much on faith and not enough on doctors. Cardinal Gibbons, of Baltimore.

IN BIG MEETING

New Tobacco Association is Formed at Large Gathering Held in Madisonville.

The growers of the Stemming type of tobacco arbitrarily, by the Department of Agriculture at Washington, confined to eleven counties, six on the east and five on the west side of Green River, have learned by experience that a multiplicity of Pools and Associations are ineffective for the attainment of the best results in the contest of tobacco growers with that malign monopoly, the Tobacco Trust.

Wherefore the meeting at Madisonville last Saturday, June 7th.

And significant it is to note just here that seventeen counties, instead of eleven, sent delegates to that meeting. The fact is the counties range themselves as growers of the Stemming type more accurately than does the Bureau of Agriculture.

In the chronology of the farmers' cooperation the seventh of June, 1913, the date of the "get together" meeting at Madisonville, will prove an accepted point of time from which succeeding epochs or co-operative endeavors are numbered.

The exodus of the Israelites from Egypt, and the Babylonian captivity, are remarkable epochs in their history. And looming big in the years to come as a conspicuous day marking the beginning of a plan promising the fullest protection to the tobacco growers of Kentucky is the 7th day of June.

And the plan is simplicity itself. Attentively regard that compound word, "get together," and there you have it. Voluntarily wipe off the map this little pool and that little pool; surrender charters for this Association, big or little, and let all farmers growing the stemming or Regia type of tobacco get together for a co-operative sale. Say seventeen or eighteen counties and the same hooked up with the Protective Association handling the great bulk of the Clarksville type. That is the plan.

Take Plenty of Time to Eat.

There is a saying that "rapid eating is slow suicide." If you have formed the habit of eating too rapidly you are most likely suffering from indigestion or constipation, which will result eventually in serious illness unless corrected. Digestion begins in the mouth. Food should be thoroughly masticated and insalivated. Then when you have a fullness of the stomach or feel dull and stupid after eating, take one of Chamberlain's Tablets. Many severe cases of stomach trouble and constipation have been cured by the use of these tablets. They are easy to take and most agreeable in effect. Sold by Dale & Stubblefield.

Fish Killed by Dynamite.

During the past two or three months many fish have been found floating dead in Clark's River that would indicate the evidence of dynamiters. In fact, there is no doubt about the cause of the fish dying, but who the guilty parties are is a mystery.

We have talked with the County Game Warden, R. C. Cornwell, and he is going to make some investigations. He should have the cooperation of every lover of sport, and every effort should be put forth by the good citizens along our streams and the officers of the county to ascertain who is guilty of causing this wholesale slaughter of the fish, and when the guilty ones are caught they should be given the full penalty of the law.

Mr. Cornwell informs the reporter that he will put a large number of small bass and other game fish in Clark's River at the proper time. These fish will be furnished by the State Fish Hatcheries, and these fish should be protected by the citizens along the banks of the stream. Hardin Enterprise.

Geo. Dick Badly Cut.

Late Wednesday afternoon at the Bishop Livery Stable, a difficulty arose between Doc Bailey and George Dick, two Murray boys. Dick was cut three times in the side, but neither of the wounds are very serious and he will recover in a short time. Increase in Price of Treasury Stock is Voted. Out of Town Stockholders Much Encouraged.

Paducah, Ky., June 18.—Following the announcement of the financing of the Kentucky Southwestern Electric Railway and Light company's Paducah-Mayfield-Murray division and the assurance that construction work would begin in a few weeks, the price of the company's stock has been advanced.

At the afternoon meeting of the company yesterday it was decided to increase the price of the treasury stock to $12 from $10 a share, effective July 1, and to increase it $1 a share each month up to November 1, when the price will be $15.

The story in yesterday's Evening Sun, announcing the ratification of the sale of the bonds on the first division of the system created the greatest enthusiasm among the friends of the company and Paducah business men in general and gratification was expressed everywhere that active work on the line would soon begin.

At the meeting yesterday afternoon, President H. C. Rhodes called upon the stockholders from all divisions of the line for expressions and a general "love feast" over the final arrangements for the first work was held. Every speaker affirmed his faith in the early construction of the other divisions of the road.

Assurances were given at the meeting that the other divisions would be taken up and construction on them begun as soon as possible.

Author Famous Report Dead.

John Flanagan, a well-known old resident of Tracy City, has died, aged about 81 years. He was a soldier in the Union Army during the civil war and was afterwards railroad engineer for many years. He is the real John Flanagan who made the laconic report to his superintendent in the well known report.

It was many years ago at a time when the N. & C. road was not keeping its tracks and road-bed in as good condition as it might have done and Mr. Flanagan's engine got into the bad habit of getting off the track pretty often. Mr. Flanagan was required to make reports on these occasions and, having lots of practice, got to making rather lengthy reports and was jacked up about it by his superintendent and told to make them short. His chance soon came and he sent in the report "Off again, on again, gone again. Flanagan."

Origin of Some Bad Dreams.

The New York Evening Mail reports that in the latter part of May in the same night, two brothers, Joseph H. and Max Freedman, New Brunswick, N. J., each dreamed the same dream. In the dreams, their dead father appeared and insisted that his sons must accompany him to the spirit world. Early in June one of the brothers died and an explanation of the dreams is in order. That the dreams did not automatically occur to the brothers is evident. Presumably there were influences brought to bear upon their minds. That those influences were not earthly is evident, for no earthly being would suggest such dreams to anybody. That they were not heavenly influences is apparent, for the supposed spirit did not claim heaven as its home, and manifested an evil rather than a heavenly disposition in saying to each son, as reported, "I will not stay alone under the sod. I am lonely."

That no father would thus seek to break up the homes of his children is self-evident, and that he could not do it after he was dead is plain, for "The dead know not anything" (Ecc. 9:5). In the day that a man dies, "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that day his thoughts perish." (Psa. 146:4). "His sons come to honor, and he knoweth it not; and they are brought low, but he perceiveth it not of them." Job 14:21. What, then, are these influences which seek to unjustly and untruthfully impress living men with the thought that the dead or not dead?

The answer is that since death first came into the world; all the evil spirits, Satan and the angels who fell at the time of the flood, (Genesis 6) have conspired in every possible way to deceive mankind into believing that death is not death, so that they might also destroy their faith in a future life, through a resurrection from the dead. If Satan can once convince a man that his future life is positively assured, no matter what he does, he has convinced him that he needs no Redeemer, and has taken from him the greatest incentive to an upright life. Contrast the deceptions of these lying spirits with the Scriptural hope of a resurrection from the dead, as follows:

"O that thou wouldst hide me in-sheol (the tomb), that thou wouldst keep me secret, until thy wrath be past, that thou wouldst appoint me a set time and remember me! If a man die, shall he live again? All the days of my appointed time will I wait till my change come. Thou shalt call (in the resurrection morning), and I will answer thee; thou wilt have a desire to the work of thy hands." Job 14:13-15. The resurrection morning is near. The Wandering Jew.

European Municipalities Are Best Governed

By Rabbi Charles Fleischer, Boston, Mass.

Often in Europe I have been amused by the air of complacent superiority and of more or less indulgent patronage which your average American traveler assumes and maintains. Such a traveler neither creditably represents the country while abroad, nor brings back to it the information and benefit which the United States ought to be enriched by every American tourist and pilgrim.

As a matter of fact, not only in France—as the proverb goes—but everywhere in Europe, they do certain things better than we do here. Among these superior achievements of Europe, is the important matter of the government of cities.

That is not to be wondered at. Though ours is the oldest constitutional government on earth, we are (excepting only Australia and New Zealand) practically the youngest of the nations. We call ourselves a democracy, but actually we are very inept in self-government. Indeed, we do not seriously undertake to govern ourselves, whether in city, state or nation. We are too prone to delegate our powers, and thus to give over to parties, machines, bosses and to those temporarily in office, a comparatively irresponsible rulership, which fairly places a premium upon the twin public vices of inefficiency and corruption.

Contrast this with European conditions. There, even when the democratic spirit dominates the situation, the traditions of aristocratic government prevail. "Noblesse Oblige" is the unconscious motto, and the official class are held, both by these traditions and by public opinion, to a type of public administration and service that illustrates habitually the twin public virtues of integrity and efficiency.

They are used to government in Europe. They are old at the business. We, on the other hand, are not merely young at it, but we are too busy, each of us, with our own individual business to be deeply concerned for what ought to be everybody's business.

I believe unalterably in political democracy, both in the right and in the ability of people to govern themselves. But it needs only half an eye to see (even without instituting a comparison between European and American municipalities) that we Americans still have everything to learn regarding the efficient and honest organization of life in our cities.

American Grocery Boys Receive Good Wages

By William J. Hendon, New York

The boy who is employed in an American grocery store should never complain about his pay. The United States consul at Prague, Austria, has looked into the matter of wages for grocery boys, and in an interesting report to his government says:

"A boy who desires to follow the business must serve an apprenticeship of three years, during which service he usually pays his employer from $20 to $30 per annum. In a few instances an apprenticeship of but two years is served. In such cases the employer usually demands about $60 per annum from the apprentice, who in return for his services and said doing is furnished with plain board and lodging.

"While serving his apprenticeship a boy is compelled to attend an advanced business school at least twice a week and on Sundays study an additional language, either German or Bohemian, according to his nationality, as both German and Bohemian are essential here in business establishments. In case the apprentice is not industrious and falls behind in his studies he must attend the business school an additional half year. Before being taken as an apprentice he must have a certificate from a grammar school showing he attended the school at least three years.

"After apprenticeship has been served wages are paid which vary somewhat according to the grade of the grocery where the apprentice is employed, the average being about $4 to $7.30 a month, including plain room and board; without the latter, about $10 to $14.25 a month. Wages advance according to a salesman's merit; a capable and experienced one can earn $20 to $25 a month with board and lodging when employed in a first-class grocery.

"Girls are not usually employed as grocers' apprentices, but sometimes to arrange salads, cold meats, cheese, etc., for customers. When a man desires to open a grocery in his own name he must present an apprentice's certificate from the business men's association to the highest government official in the district. He must also prove that he has served five years, including his apprenticeship and service as a grocer's assistant."

Keep Lost Children From Patrol Wagons

By C. P. BROWN, Boston, Mass.

2,069 lost children were restored to their parents in Boston alone. Out of this number 536 children were conveyed to police stations in patrol wagons.

I think that Governor Foss is correct when he states that no prisoner under seventeen years of age should be carried in a vehicle which is occupied at the same time by prisoners above that age.

I think that when a child is lost the first act should be to restore it to its parents or guardians, and I agree with the governor that a policeman should either take the child on foot or in a trolley car to the nearest station.

I recently had to look into the matter and found that the Boston police in 1912 had to do with 2,443 delinquent or wayward children. Of these, 1,409 were before the courts on summonses.

There were 939 who were actually arrested. A bill was recently passed in Massachusetts to allow the police to carry lost children in the patrol wagons, but it has been vetoed by Governor Foss.

Poor Spelling of Average School Child

By H. S. Le Valley, Kankakee, Ill.

Business men are constantly calling attention to the poor spelling of the average school child. It need excite no wonder, as there are many psychological reasons for it that are well understood.

No one can have failed to see in the long and the healthful rivalry between the pupils under the old and the new way of spelling down. There both eyes and ears were at attention. Fingers and tongues were noted, where now a languid interest is manifested.

Let us in the public schools have some of the types of spelling which say, three times of writing to one of old-fashioned spelling down. You will note a marked difference in a short time in both interest and efficiency by so doing.

PORCUPINE CAUSES A PANIC IN MID-OCEAN

Escaped From Cage on Steamer and There Was Something Doing Every Minute.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—A porcupine panic in mid-ocean, with 400 passengers thrown into wild excitement over the prospect of being pierced with quills, was described the other day by an under officer of the steamship Proctor, when she docked in South Brooklyn with a great load of animals from Hamburg.

According to the voracious narrator, one of the animal tenders forgot to lock the door on a cage full of porcupines and a few minutes later wild shrieks from the main saloon announced the appearance of the first of the be-queiled wanderers. There was a rush of officers to the companionway and in his excitement Second Officer Herman Siffendorff slipped on the top step and bumped his way down, landing fairly and squarely upon the head of a porcupine.

Griner was at work the other night in a coal mine near Brighton. He had just fired a shot and had entered the room to resume his work, when he realized that he had used a larger charge of powder than usual, or the ventilating system was not performing its functions as well as it should.

He worked for a few moments, and then, realizing that the poisonous gases he was drawing into his lungs were overpowering him, he attempted to fight the feeling off, but felt himself becoming dizzy. The fumes burned his throat and appeared to close up the breathing tubes.

He dropped his tools and reeled toward the exit. His eyes burned as the gas filled them and blinded him. He groped his way through the blinding smoke and gas until he came to the ladder leading to the top of the shaft.

His numbed brain told him this ladder led to safety and good air. His hands grasped weakly the first rung he could reach. His weight appeared trebled and his strength greatly diminished as he tried to draw himself up.

He exerted every ounce of his strength and slowly and laboriously ascended, but when he had pulled himself up two score of the rounds, his strength departed and with a despairing cry he plunged to the stone floor.

He lay there for some time, but his eyes were closed and he was unconscious. He was found by a fellow-miner, heard the cry. Calling others to help him, a stream of water was turned down the shaft, while the descending and carried the unconscious man to the top.

Griner was hurried to the hospital, where the doctors found that more than a dozen fractures had resulted. Placed on the operating table, his companions noted that his hair, which was as black as the coal he mined, had turned to the whiteness of the ash that resulted when it was consumed.

Physicians said the change in the color occurred in all probability while Griner was battling on the ladder to fight his way to freedom and safety.

Most Remarkable Escape From Serious Injury by a Nervy Philadelphian (Pa.) Woman.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Risking her life in an attempt to save her home from destruction by fire the other night, Mrs. Pearl Williams, of 336 North Street, carried a blazing oil stove to a second-story window, and in her efforts to hurl it out lost her balance and toppled into the street, miraculously escaping serious injury.

The flame from the stove, painfully burned her hands and seared her neck as it was blown back by the rush to the window, but the fall failed to produce more than a slight shock.

Mrs. Williams started the stove shortly after midnight, when a change of weather brought chill breezes from the northwest. She was busy with her sewing, when the stove exploded and became enveloped in flame. Without an instant's hesitation she grabbed it up in her arms and with all burning hands and neck rushed to the window. She thrust it against the glass and burst out the sash, but in her haste to drop her perilous burden she leaned too far out and followed the stove to the ground.

Clapper, of the Ninth district, saw Mrs. Williams as she fell and ran to her assistance, later summoning Policeman Elliott to his assistance. After examining the house to see that no blaze had been started they sent Mrs. Williams to the German hospital, where her condition was reported as not serious.

HIS HAIR TURNED WHITE BY FRIGHT

WAS NUMBED BY GAS

Tumbled From Ladder as Poisonous Fumes Filled His Lungs and Took Strength—Terrible Experience in a Coal Mine When Almost Suffocated.

St. Louis—Charles Griner's terrible experience in a coal mine, when he was almost suffocated from noxious gases, and in trying to escape fell twenty-five feet, turned his hair from a hue of jet to almost white in a single night.

Many of his bones were broken from his fall twenty-five feet down the shaft to the slate floor of the mine, and the gas he inhaled weakened him so he cannot recover from the shock as he would otherwise.

Griner was at work the other night in a coal mine near Brighton. He had just fired a shot and had entered the room to resume his work, when he realized that he had used a larger charge of powder than usual, or the ventilating system was not performing its functions as well as it should.

BOILED EGGS BETRAY THEM. Nationality of Dinners Is Shown in Their Various Methods of Eating.

Sherlock Holmes might have figured this out, but he did not. The average Englishman will always demand his egg boiled just three minutes, then he places it in an egg cup, just large enough to have the egg itself, taps the top of the shell, and removes the broken shell, with his fingers. The egg is eaten a spoonful at a time.

A Frenchman, much like the Englishman, likes his eggs of three minutes, exactly. He then "peels" them, places them in a glass, stirs and mixes well together with salt, pepper and butter. He makes a practice of dipping bread into the mixture, and eating it along with the eggs.

A Spaniard wouldn't think of letting his egg boil more than one minute. He then breaks it, and lets the contents run into a glass, and consumes it as if he were drinking a glass of wine.

An egg is only fit in an Italian's estimation when it has been placed in cold water, and removed just as the water begins to boil. He then breaks it, pours it on a plate, and proceeds to sop it with bread.

The German, like the Italian, demands his eggs as near the liquid state as possible. He breaks his eggs in an unsightly cup, and scoops the liquid out as if it were soup.

The American is about the only one who prefers his eggs boiled hard. When they are served up to him, he knives them in half, removes the contents into a glass, after which he adds a plentiful supply of pepper, butter and salt. He then mixes the eggs fine, mixing them well with the spices, and eats them with his toast.

BEGAN YOUNG. Had "Coffee Nerves" From Youth. "When very young I began using coffee and continued up to the last six months," writes a Texas girl.

"I had been exceedingly nervous, thin and very pale. After quitting coffee and drinking Postum about a month my nervousness disappeared and has never returned. This is the more remarkable as I am a primary teacher and have kept right on with my work."

My complexion now is clear and rosy, my skin soft and smooth. As a good complexion was something I had greatly desired, I feel amply repaid even though this was the only benefit derived from drinking Postum.

Before beginning its use I had suffered greatly from indigestion and headache; these troubles are now unknown.

I changed from coffee to Postum without the slightest inconvenience, did not even have a headache. Have known coffee drinkers, who were visiting me to use Postum a week without being aware that they were not drinking coffee.

Name given by Postum Co. Battle Creek, Mich. Write for booklet, "The Road to Wellville."

Postum comes in two forms. Regular (must be boiled). Instant Postum doesn't require boiling but is prepared instantly by stirring a heaping teaspoonful in an ordinary cup of hot water, which makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and so people who like strong things put in a heaping spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream.

Experiment until you know the amount that pleases your palate and have it ready that way in the future. There's a Reason for Postum.

The Question. "What would you suggest as the best drink for lovers?" "Pop."

Wears Little There. "Miss Slasher is a stunning girl when she is dressed up." "I can't say anything about that. I've only seen her on the street."

No Chance for an Argument. "Waiter, how do I know that isn't horse meat instead of beef?" "You probably don't sir; all kinds of people come here to eat."

At Home. "Miss Corcoran does a great deal of fancy work." "With her needle, you mean?" "Shucks, no! On the horizontal bars."

Sherlock Holmes might have figured this out, but he did not. The average Englishman will always demand his egg boiled just three minutes, then he places it in an egg cup, just large enough to have the egg itself, taps the top of the shell, and removes the broken shell, with his fingers. The egg is eaten a spoonful at a time.

A Frenchman, much like the Englishman, likes his eggs of three minutes, exactly. He then "peels" them, places them in a glass, stirs and mixes well together with salt, pepper and butter. He makes a practice of dipping bread into the mixture, and eating it along with the eggs.

A Spaniard wouldn't think of letting his egg boil more than one minute. He then breaks it, and lets the contents run into a glass, and consumes it as if he were drinking a glass of wine.

An egg is only fit in an Italian's estimation when it has been placed in cold water, and removed just as the water begins to boil. He then breaks it, pours it on a plate, and proceeds to sop it with bread.

The German, like the Italian, demands his eggs as near the liquid state as possible. He breaks his eggs in an unsightly cup, and scoops the liquid out as if it were soup.

The American is about the only one who prefers his eggs boiled hard. When they are served up to him, he knives them in half, removes the contents into a glass, after which he adds a plentiful supply of pepper, butter and salt. He then mixes the eggs fine, mixing them well with the spices, and eats them with his toast.

BEGAN YOUNG. Had "Coffee Nerves" From Youth. "When very young I began using coffee and continued up to the last six months," writes a Texas girl.

"I had been exceedingly nervous, thin and very pale. After quitting coffee and drinking Postum about a month my nervousness disappeared and has never returned. This is the more remarkable as I am a primary teacher and have kept right on with my work."

My complexion now is clear and rosy, my skin soft and smooth. As a good complexion was something I had greatly desired, I feel amply repaid even though this was the only benefit derived from drinking Postum.

Before beginning its use I had suffered greatly from indigestion and headache; these troubles are now unknown.

I changed from coffee to Postum without the slightest inconvenience, did not even have a headache. Have known coffee drinkers, who were visiting me to use Postum a week without being aware that they were not drinking coffee.

Name given by Postum Co. Battle Creek, Mich. Write for booklet, "The Road to Wellville."

Postum comes in two forms. Regular (must be boiled). Instant Postum doesn't require boiling but is prepared instantly by stirring a heaping teaspoonful in an ordinary cup of hot water, which makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and so people who like strong things put in a heaping spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream.

Experiment until you know the amount that pleases your palate and have it ready that way in the future. There's a Reason for Postum.

MARKEN IS QUANT

Strange Island Community That Is Found in Holland.

Sturdy, Vigorous and Happy People Who Spend Their Lives in Peace and Contentment—Some of Their Domestic Manners.

Marken, Holland.—Marken, too small and unimportant to be found on many maps, is a quaint community of about 1,000 people who live on 12 small islands in the Zuyder Zee. These small, sandy knolls are connected by narrow brick foot bridges and protected by dikes—Red-roofed, gabled houses made of wood, and tarred, or ornamented by paint in red and green stripes, are built on piles. During spring freshets the inhabitants are sometimes obliged to remain on the upper floors, or drows. Stairs are unknown, so the ascent is made by ladders. After the annual spring bath the uneven little streets look fresher and brighter than ever and the place is a real spotless town.

Only the newer houses have chimneys. In the older ones the smoke from constant peat fires must escape through a small square "smoke-hole" in the roof. The chimney place is faced with tiles—usually blue—and the hearth is black tiling rubbed to a polish. Everywhere there is gleaming brass and copper and the whole house shines. Personally, the people are also very neat; but, strange to say, large, fat-looking fleas are plentiful—more plentiful than our mosquitoes!

The kitchen, usually the living room as well, is the largest in the house. From the beams overhead hang hams, strings of drying fish, wine jugs and native delicacies. At the windows are green shutters and lace-curtains. The floors are made of wide planks, highly varnished to a dark brown. Chairs have rush bottoms and slat backs. Well-scoured candlesticks are numerous. Every house contains an old carved cabinet filled with rare treasures that would gladden the heart of a connoisseur. Each man has a "treasure chest" of his own which is kept securely locked, and the contents often remain a mystery to his wife and family.

Not far from the big chimney are the beds—and such beds! They are built in the wall, on a wooden frame the head being much higher than the foot. There is a feather mattress, coarse linen sheets, quilts and last, but not least, always a thick cover stuffed with feathers until it resembles another small mattress. After the Markenites have crawled in under these bed clothes they pull a sliding door, or panel, and shut them.

selves within the wall! How and why they survive until morning is not known! But survive they do and they are fond and proud of their beds. They retire at seven o'clock in the winter and at nine in the summer. Candles being expensive they usually go to bed in the dark.

In appearance these people are tall and heavily built, with coarse features, yellow skin, light hair and pale blue eyes. Up to the age of ten children are all dressed alike and only a close observer can pick out the boys by an odd button sewed on their caps. The girls' caps are adorned with a small rose bud.

Corsets are unknown, but at ten years the girls are put into tightly-laced bodices and loaded down with heavy woollens and silks, their numerous petticoats spreading out over wooden hoops. On their heads they wear muslin caps, over which is a miter-shaped pasteboard affair, covered with calico, silk or bright ribbons. Their yellow hair is banged to the eyebrows and from each temple hang two long curls that reach nearly to the waist. Now here is a secret: Old ladies with scanty hair wear bangs and curls like the girls—only they are made of yellow silk floss! Isn't it terrible?

There is only one style in stockings the year round—thick woolen ones, knitted by hand; color dark blue. Skirts are short enough to show about six inches of ankle and on week days wooden shoes (klompen) patterned white. On Sundays heavy leather ones with silver buckles are worn. Klompen are always kicked off at the doorstep before entering a house.

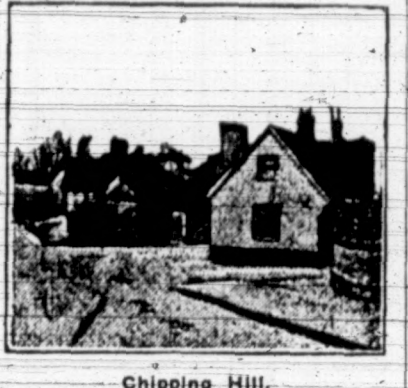

On dress occasions the bodices are worn with a wide orange or red sash and have many little cost falls on the back. The voluminous skirts are brilliantly striped. This gala dress is not only saturated with farina extract, but many ladies carry a supply along with them in scent bottles!

ANCIENT CITY TO HAVE FETE

Witham, England, Near London, Will Celebrate Its 1,000 Years in History.

London.—Witham is a little town of Essex, thirty-nine miles northeast from London, which is to celebrate its millenary this year. It has a population of about 3,500 and is situated on the River Brain, also known as the Gullth, a form indicating the origin of the name of the town. In the days of the ancient Britons it is said the place was called Gullth-aven.

In that part of the town called Chipping Hill are earthworks thought to be the remains of fortifications ordered made by Edward the Elder in 918, but held by some to be of British origin. Roman bricks appear in the old Church of St. Nicholas. The tower of the church formerly was of wood, but was rebuilt with brick in 1748. An old smithy there is pointed out as one where Dick Turpin stopped to have his horses shod when on one of his pilgrimages for plunder. The Spread Eagle hotel is six centuries old and has been said to be the only four-gabled inn to be found in England. Witham will recall events of 1,000 years ago, including the reconquest of England from the Danes.

DOLL SOLACED DYING MOTHER

Kansas Woman Took Substitute for Her Dead Baby Down to the Grave.

Trinidad, Colo.—It was only a doll—a big, golden-haired, "shut-eye" doll; but to the fever-racked mother who tossed on tear-stained pillows in the county hospital, it took the place of another little doll in a Kansas cemetery.

She cared for it as she had cared for the baby which death had taken from her. And as death approached she hugged the waxen image to her breast and begged that it share her grave.

She was penniless, a county charge; she looked forward only to a tiny plot in the potter's field. But her pleas touched the doctors who attended her and a little group of hospital attendants afterward stood beside a new made grave in the Catholic cemetery where lay the woman and doll.

The woman was Mrs. Florence Stancel of Great Bend, Kan. She came to Trinidad two months ago, just a month after her three-year-old girl died. She had quarreled with her husband, she said, and left her Kansas home.

One day she saw the big doll in a store window. It was just the size of her dead baby. She bought it, and from a trunk took the little clothes her own baby had worn. With them she dressed the doll. Around its neck she placed a necklace of beads and cartilage adorned its waxen ears. It was only a doll, but when her constitution broke down and peritonitis set in, she took it with her to the hospital to remind her always of her own little one. And thus it lay beside her body in the morgue; and thus it was buried by her side.

MEMORIALS ARE RESTORED

Damage by Vandals on the Gettysburg Battlefield Almost Obliterated by Skillful Repair Work.

Gettysburg, Pa.—Successful efforts at the restoration of the nine memorials on the Gettysburg battlefield, defaced by vandals on the night of March 5 last, are now being made by Lieut. Col. E. B. Cope of the national park commission. Several of the memorials have already been placed in their original condition, and the others are expected to be completed before the battle anniversary celebration in July.

This day after the vandalism many of the marble pieces which were chipped from the granite monuments were found nearby and preserved. Where these are sufficient size they are being fitted to correspond to the stone.

Missouri River Gets His Farm.—Atchison, Kan.—Joseph Prakes, who four years ago owned a 260-acre farm near here, will cultivate a rented farm this year, as all his own place has been washed away by the Missouri river. Two months ago 20 acres of his land remained, but the last acre of this recently dropped into the river.

Woman Weds Three Brothers.—St. Louis.—Although she married three, Mrs. Jessie Young did not have to change her name. All her husbands were brothers. The first and second husbands were killed in mine accidents.

Sues for $100,000 Damages.—Newark, N. J.—Damages of $100,000 were asked by the executors of Louis C. Green, who, they claim, was fatally injured when caught in the suction of a speeding Pennsylvania express train.

THIS WOMAN HAD MUCH PAIN WHEN STANDING

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her a Well Woman.

Chippewa Falls, Wis.—"I have always had great confidence in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as I found it very good for organic troubles and I recommend it highly. I had displacement, backache and pains when standing on my feet for any length of time, when I began to take the medicine, but I am in fine health now. If I ever have those troubles again I will take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. E. F. FRANK, 816 High St., Chippewa Falls, Wisconsin.

Providence, R. I.—"I cannot speak too highly of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as it has done wonders for me and I would not be without it. I had organic displacement and bearing down pains and backache and was thoroughly run down when I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helped me and I am in the best of health at present. I work in a factory all day long besides doing my housework so you can see what it has done for me. I give you permission to publish my name and I speak of your Vegetable Compound to many of my friends."—Mrs. ANNE LAWSON, 123 Lippitt St., Providence, R. I.

Catching Flies Pays Well.—Catching flies is affording a Shreveport (La.) man a profitable and independent living. He sells them to the city board of health. His name is Bartch, and his net revenue from the fly industry for the first two days of a recent week was $24.20. When the health board began offering premiums for the flies, dead or alive, Bartch purchased about 100 traps and placed them in fly-ridden sections of the city. Then he began making trophies on the health board's exchange, and so well did he operate that he bore the market price down from 50 cents to 20 cents a quart, for it is by that measure that the board purchases. Bartch is still working, and he will work as long as the treasury holds out. He finds fly catching pays.

England's Oldest Bowling Green.

Which is our oldest recreation? There are not wanting archeologists who profess to be able to trace references to football and baseball on Egyptian monuments. However, when it comes to actual records, the fine old English game of bowls would appear to be as old as any.

Southampton, Eng., has records showing that one of the bowling greens was in existence in 1299. Many interesting customs are associated with the game on this historic green. Every summer a "fire jack" competition is held, and an order of knighthood is conferred on the winner, who kneels in the center of the green while the other players gather round him and the master touches him with a sword and dubs him "sir."

For the Ironing Board.

Put the ironing board with a thick quilted old blanket; then lay the board on the table and cut a piece of heavy muslin so it will fit the board loosely. Steam it up, leaving the slip open at each end. Make two of these slips and change them frequently, says Mother's Magazine. Thus the ironing board is always clean, and the padding will not have to be changed for months.

A Relic of History.

A newly rich woman, who was anxious to make a favorable impression in her neighborhood, decided to show her collection of antiques to the bishop when he called. The time came, and one by one she displayed the whole collection, giving him the history of each piece. "There," she said, pointing impressively to an old yellow teapot, "that teapot was used in the Boston tea party."

Meteorite Falls Near Woman.

A meteorite weighing 37 pounds was recently the subject of discussion in a church circle in Johannesburg, South Africa. The stone fell in Zululand a few months ago, and was not only noticed by an eye witness some 15 miles away, but fell within a few feet of a native woman, who gave information which led to its discovery. The meteorite cannot so far be broken. It is known, however, to contain platinum.

Unique Suicide.

A safe was used by a man named Jacob Rabinowitz, fifty-four years old, of Philadelphia, Penn., to commit suicide, a few days ago. First he jammed up an 800 pound safe with a block of wood. Placing his head between the door and the block, he could around his neck. Then he knocked the block from under the safe and the heavy weight fell upon his head. He was found by his wife, but died before a physician arrived. He had been despondent for several weeks because he lost a lawsuit.

REAL MERIT HAS MADE BOND'S LIVER PILLS

A household word through the South, we have spared neither time nor money in perfecting BOND'S PILLS for the cure of Headaches, Biliousness, Constipation, Malaria, and similar ills. MERIT was our chief object. Not how "cheap" but how good we could make them.

Broken Heart Caused Death.

A broken heart, caused by violent beating due to sudden emotion, was said by a doctor to be responsible for the death of Alexander Burgess, sixty-four, a master tailor, at a London inn. Burgess fell and died during an altercation with a foreman cutter as to the ownership of certain articles which he was about to remove from his former premises to new ones.

London and Its Lumber.

London is the most conservative city in Europe, if not in the world. It loves its lumber. You may still see these notices attached to lamp posts which announce "Standing for Four Hackney Carriages, or whatever the number may be, though for ten years (in one case, to my own knowledge for twenty-five) to vehicles of any kind have stood there. Perhaps it is as well that these relics should remain; they are a tiny part of our social history. They will probably remain when we are trying to dinner or the theater in omnibuses. By that time people won't know what "hackney carriages" mean, and there will be discussions in the "Notes and Queries" of the period. For each generation hands down to the next certain type to crack.

A man's sins find him out eventually.

but his wife usually beats them to it.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to convulsions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the bowels and cures colic and fever.

FAITHFUL DOG IS PUNISHED

Lashed for Barking While Burglars Were Robbing His Master's Cafe in New York.

Aaron Silverman's brindle bulldog Spot is the only living creature around Silverman's cafe at 141 West Twenty-seventh street that is in any condition to write. Spot is physically too sore to smile.

Some time after midnight the barking of Spot awakened the Silverman family in their rooms above the saloon. Silverman then started across a trunk strap and walloped poor old Spot into silence and went back to bed.

When Silverman went behind the bar about 6:30 he found that burglars who doubtless had started Spot's unprecedented barking had ripped open the cash register and taken $30 and a ring from it, and then had attacked the safe and got away with one diamond ring worth $125, two more worth $100 each, a $75 watch—a lavalliere worth $75, a $45 locket and chain and four Russian gold pieces worth about $10.—New York Sun.

Regulation Weight.

There is only one way to regulate body weight, and that is by the natural method—by diet, exercise, bathing, etc.—by alimentation and elimination. The nostrums advertised to take off flesh without change of diet are all dangerous. Be sure of that, and avoid them. The same diet that will put flesh on a thin man will take flesh off a fat one. In other words, a natural diet produces a natural condition of the body.

Case in Point.

Agricultural Extension.

The wealth of Kentucky is her agriculture and her prosperity is measured by the success of her farmers.

Agricultural extension work includes the various activities of trained experts in various phases of agriculture, among those who are depending upon farming for a livelihood. This class of work has been taken up on account of the diminishing production of the average acre and the fact that published instructions for better farm management are not properly sought or heeded. For this state of affairs the farmer is mainly to blame for there are few kinds of business to the assistance of which so much money and investigation have been devoted. At the same time we cannot deal with things as they should be, but must deal with conditions as they actually exist.

The principal source of accurate information on agricultural subjects has always been and will continue to be experiment stations. When an experiment is completed at the Kentucky Experiment Station, the information gained is printed in bulletin form and about 20,000 copies of this bulletin are mailed to persons who have asked for them. This however, is less than one person in a hundred, and of these 20,000 people only a small percentage read carefully and actually make use of the information contained in the bulletin. This is unfortunate but true and necessitates the carrying on of demonstrations on the farmer's own premises or convincing him by word of mouth.

The Kentucky station has the following departments: Agronomy or soils and crops; Animal Husbandry, Dairying Chemistry, Entomology and Botany. Fertilizer Control; Food and Drug Control, Stock Feed Control, Horticulture, Research in Chemistry, Bacteriology and Biology, and the Division of Extension. These departments are investigating for the direct benefit of the farming public and some department for the public at large.

It goes without saying that an enormous amount of valuable information has been gained through long costly experience by farmers themselves but the fact that the yields indicate a continual decrease in soil fertility makes it plain that the usual farm methods, as good as they may be, need improvement.

The extension service of the Agricultural Experiment Station is intended to carry information by various methods directly to the farmer, and the results of such work have already become highly gratifying and so far as possible all requests for assistance are complied with.

It goes without saying that the most valuable extension work done is the education of the boys who attend the Agricultural College to be trained for the farm and not from it; who return to the farm to live among their neighbors and farm better than ever before. These boys are to be depended upon to increase the wealth or producing power of our state. T. R. Bryant, Supt. Extension Division, Experiment station, Lexington, Ky.

Please don't forget that dollar next Monday. We know each man thinks, "well, Jennings don't especially need that dollar I owe him," but when over 3,000 think the same thing it gets serious, and the law will not let us carry you like we used to in days past. We don't want to hurt your feelings by stopping your paper, but neither do we want Uncle Sam to hurt our feelings by stopping the publication, so hurry up that dollar.

GOOD CAKE RECIPES

ANY ORDINARY COOK CAN SUCCEED WITH THESE.

Delicious and Toothsome Confections That Are Easily Made by Following Simple Instructions—Latest Style in Cakes.

Chocolate Sponge Cake.—Cook to a syrup 1½ cups of sugar and five tablespoons of boiling water. Separate six eggs, beat whites ten minutes, then beat yolks very light, add and beat together five minutes. Add syrup a little at the time and beat all ten minutes. Add slowly two cups of pastry flour, pinch of salt, teaspoonful of vanilla, and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Bake 45 minutes in moderate oven. Do not look in oven for 20 minutes. Ice—Melt over teakettle two squares of bitter chocolate, add cupful of sugar and add boiling water, one tablespoonful at a time until dissolved, but do not add more than three tablespoonfuls. Spread on cake while icing is warm.

Orange Cake.—Cream half a cup butter with one cup sugar, add yolks of two eggs, half cup milk and half cup of orange juice, and a little of the grated rind, two small teaspoons baking powder sifted with two scant cups of flour, then the stiffly beaten whites of the two eggs. Bake in layers and spread with orange icing made as follows: Boil one cup sugar with one-quarter cup water until it threads then add gradually to stiffly beaten white of one egg and whip, slowly adding the quarter cup orange juice, one teaspoonful of lemon juice and a little of the grated orange rind. Beat until thick and cream.

Ice Cream Cake.—One cup butter, two cups sugar, one cup milk, 3¼ cups flour, two teaspoonfuls baking powder, whites of eight eggs, one-quarter teaspoonful salt. Mix dry ingredients, cream butter and sugar, add milk, then flour and beat. Add whipped whites and beat again. Flavor with almond extract. Bake in three jelly tins in hot oven and when cold put together with boiled icing flavored with almond extract.

Devil's Food Cake.—Butter, one heaping teaspoon; sugar, one cup; beat to a good cream, then add yolks of two eggs. Cut up one-fourth of chocolate, put in saucepan, add one-half cup of cold water, let come to boil, then pour over above. Next add 1½ cups of flour, eggs, one teaspoon baking powder. Lastly add one-half teaspoon scant baking soda to half cup boiling water, then add to above contents. The secret in making this cake is to have the batter thin. Take the whites of the two eggs for boiled icing.

Oyster Patties.—Into frying pan put two tablespoons butter. When hot add one-quarter medium sized onion cut in very small pieces. When well browned add the oysters, liquid of one pint of oysters and one cup of cream. After it boils up stir into the mixture two table-spoons flour dissolved in water enough to thicken it sufficiently. Season with salt and pepper. When well blended and cooked add one pint large oysters, cook until they curl, about two minutes. Line gem pans with rich paste, which serves the purpose of shells; fill with the cream oysters. Sprinkle lightly with buttered bread crumbs, brown in a very hot oven. Serve at once on platter surrounded with parsley.
