Minnie Rose Won't Forget Railroad Men Her I. C. Friends Bought Furniture For Her Parents

THEY HELPED BEFORE

BY OUIDA JEWELL
"Thank you, dear God, for making such kind and generous men as Conductor McNamara and his railroad friends," must be the nightly prayer of crippled 15-year-old Minnie Rose Webb, of Route 3, Covington, Tenn., for these men have done it again. They have bought her parents a complete set of new furniture.

On day last week, John W. McNamara paid his little protégé a visit. While there, he noticed that some new furniture was badly needed in the little girl's home. So Mr. McNamara did again what he had already done several times before—got his railroad buddies together and asked them all to chip in with enough money to buy Minnie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jake H. Webb, farmers, some new furniture for their entire house.

Mr. McNamara said that the furniture wasn't the most expensive, but it was good—the stove cost about $60.

You will remember Minnie Rose, a victim of infantile paralysis, as the little girl who hadn't walked since childhood until her railroad friends sent her to the Shrine Hospital for Crippled Children in St. Louis on March 22, 1946, for treatment. Now Minnie Rose can walk, of course, and still has to use crutches, and has a steel brace on her left leg, but she can walk just the same.

This week, Mr. McNamara received a very sweet letter from Minnie Rose. She was telling him how she wished for him at her 15th birthday party last week. She said it was a nice party and that she received many gifts. She also said she wished that she still lived where she used to live—by the railroad tracks.

This was where the first met her I. C. friends. She would sit on her porch each day and wait for Mr. McNamara's train to come by. She would always wave. Finally, one day the train stopped in front of her house and the crew came over to say "hello." It was then they discovered that Minnie Rose was a cripple.

Shortly thereafter, the train stopped again. This time a wheelchair was unloaded—a present for Minnie Rose.

Next, the railroad men took her to the hospital. For this kind deed, Mr. McNamara and

Seek Kevil Bank Robbers

$11,550 Taken By Three Armed, Unmasked Men Who Flew In New Auto

Kevil, Ky., July 1—(AP)—Law enforcement officers in western Kentucky today sought three armed robbers who yesterday held up the bank of Kevil shortly before noon, taking $11,550. Sam Criswell, 48, cashier, and John Miller, 37, assistant cashier, said two armed bandits entered the bank while a third waited outside in a new automobile.

The bank employees and Clarence Feezor, who was in the bank at the time, were herded into the directors' room while the gunmen gathered up the money. Feezor made a break for the door and one of the robbers shot at him, narrowly missing him.

Criswell and Miller later were placed in the bank vault but not locked in, and telephoned for help as soon as the robbers left. The bandits stuffed $11,550 into a paper bag and left through a side door, Criswell said. The robbers also took approximately $1,000 worth of bonds belonging to Andrew Jenkins, a bank patron.

Criswell and Miller were rescued from the vault 10 minutes after the robbers left.

Bystanders who saw the hold-up car said the driver was about 50 years old. The men who entered the bank were described as about 25 years old and about 6 feet tall. None of the holdup men was masked, but witnesses said the driver of the car wore colored glasses.

May Try To Rebuild Europe Without Reds' Aid

Paris, July 1—(AP)—The deadlocked conference of Russian, British and French foreign ministers convened this afternoon for its fourth and possibly last session to consider Secretary of State Marshall's proposal for American aid in European economic recovery.

Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov virtually had vetoed Marshall's plan, and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault were reported ready to proceed in continental economic planning without the Soviet Union.

The French press agency said Bidault would attempt to save the conference with a compromise proposal, the terms of which were not disclosed.

British sources said the conference was not expected to last long.

Both British and French circles said "only a miracle" could save the conference from failure. French sources even predicted that today's session would be the last. The official French press agency said that after the final meeting a communiqué would be issued setting forth the impossibility of agreement.

The ministers were to consider a plan Molotov had proposed in answer to Secretary of State Marshall's June 5 offer of United States help in a European reconstruction program, to be drawn up primarily by European nations.

Informed sources said that both Bevin and Bidault last night termed the Molotov proposal unacceptable but, at the Russian minister's request, agreed to seek further advice from their governments.

Lost Girl, 21, Alive And Safe

Missing Since Sunday, Greta Gale Found Today In California Park Wilds

Lassen National Park Calif., July 1—(AP)—Little Greta Mary Gale, missing since Sunday, was found alive today in brush of the rugged park area, a searching group informed the family.

The two and a half year old Greta—"Toni" to her family—dropped from sight Sunday while on a vacation camping trip.

Her grandfather, Former U. S. Congressman John H. Tolan, 70, died from a heart attack last night, apparently induced by the shock and excitement. He had been ill.

The little girl was found by Jim Gaither, the message to the family said. She was on a ridge, about a mile from the cabin.

Forest service men, sheriff's officers from three counties, lumberjacks and vacationers, numbering in all about 150, searched the area of numerous creeks yesterday. A sound truck asking for volunteers to join the search was sent to communities in this remote sector of north-eastern California. Fifty men responded in Susanville alone, and persons close to search headquarters said the parties going out at dawn today included about 350 searchers.

Hunting dogs trailed the little girl's footprints for a quarter of a mile yesterday, but the prints disappeared near some automobile tire tracks.

Waterfield Carries Campaign Into Clements' Home District

Calhoun, Ky., July 1—(AP)—Harry Lee Waterfield, seeking the Democratic nomination for governor, today continued to carry his campaign into the Second Congressional District, which his opponent, Earle C. Clements, represents in Congress.

Waterfield is scheduled to address McLean county voters here at 8 o'clock tonight.

In talks yesterday in Greenville in the afternoon, and in Central City at night, Waterfield declared that "level-headedness shall prevail in Frankfort when I become governor."

He stressed his proposal for a legislative research commission, saying that this body would be appointed, if he is elected, and would study ways of obtaining "adequate revenue and a readjustment to the tax structure."

This group, he said, would report before the 1950 fall election so that the voters might select candidates who favored views similar to their own on tax matters.

"I have never had, and I do not have now, any fear that a majority of Kentuckians are willing to share with their neighbors the expense of improved governmental services. But, I am equally convinced, you are not willing to share the expense without getting improvement in service," he said.

"You do not want government by special interest. You do not want government by a combination of groups dedicated to securing for itself some monetary or special concessions."

"You and I know that special interests demand special favors from the men they elect to office. You and I know they can't get special favors from me when I become governor. That's why they are fighting you and me in this campaign."

"They know I will keep my pledge to you that I will see to it that special interests—be it a combination of professional politicians or the Kentucky Utilities Company, or a combination of all of them—receive only that to which they are entitled."

"If I am elected your governor, I will be your governor—not theirs."

Conference Disappointing Thus Far

By Dewitt MacKenzie,
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Little hope for united action is found in early reports from the three-power conference (Britain, France and Russia) which is meeting in Paris to consider U. S. Secretary of State Marshall's proposal for the economic rehabilitation of chaotic Europe.

As had been widely anticipated, Russia has come out in opposition to any "all embracing economic program" for the hapless continent. Moscow takes the position that the task of the conference merely is to ascertain the amount of financial aid the various countries need from Uncle Sam and whether such aid could be secured under the Washington program. Each country would be dealt with as a unit in accordance with its own sovereign wishes, and not as a part of wholesale continental cooperation in recovery.

Of course if the Soviet Union adheres to this stand it will scuttle Marshall's project. Obviously if Europe is to be rehabilitated it must be treated as a whole and not piecemeal. The continent has resources for recovery, if these can be "marshalled" so as to give fair and advantageous distribution.

However, while there certainly is small ground for optimism at this writing, it would be unwise to dismiss the plan as a failure yet. It depends on what is in the back of Russia's mind. She has made it clear that she suspects Washington of having ulterior purposes in making the economic proposal—of scheming to extend American political influence in Europe. On the other hand, diplomatic circles in the western democracies charge that Moscow wants to keep Europe chaotic in order to extend Communism.

If by chance it's merely Moscow's suspicion of Washington which is standing in the way, there is a bare possibility that this doubt can be dispelled. In that case Russia might change her mind and join in the rehabilitation program.

As this column pointed out last week, one of the greatest possible achievements which could come out of the Paris parley would be the dissipation of the suspicions which the eastern and western Allies entertain for each other. Naturally that couldn't be accomplished unless the doubts were without foundation, as America knows to be the case in connection with Moscow's idea that Washington is up to political skulduggery in proposing the economic program.

The alternative to cooperation among all the Allies would seem to be for the western nations to go ahead with the project in that part of Europe which is free of Russian domination. The consensus among observers in both Washington and London is that the time has come to work without Russia if we can't have her with us. Any idea of appeasement is out the window.

Obviously this would mean further consolidation of the division of Europe into eastern and western blocs. That is far from being a good solution of an economic problem which depends on unified effort, but half a loaf still remains better than none.

The Professional Politician Speaks

Trite political catch-phrases and reluctance to face primary issues were abundantly evident at Glasgow last Saturday afternoon when Congressman Harry Lee Clements opened his campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor of Kentucky. The complete text of his address is, of course, too lengthy for such a small newspaper as this to publish—and scarcely worth the trouble if space were available. It was a speech marked principally by glittering generalities and a lack of definite, clear-cut proposals as to how campaign promises would be kept.

The candidate suggested little positive action except to advocate appointment of two state organizations, one a publicity bureau to attract new industry, the other a research commission to bring "proper government." His opponent, Harry Lee Waterfield, earlier proposed to attract new industry more quickly, more directly, and more effectively, by drastically reducing the intangible tax, which will increase the state's total tax revenue through greater business activity. Mr. Waterfield also outlined his views on a state legislative research commission, similar to the one he sought to establish by an act of the 1944 and 1946 General Assemblies. Mr. Clements again was saying "Me, too."

It is the voice of the professional politician we hear when Mr. Clements throws up his hands in horror at the thought of increasing any state tax or of adding any new tax. This would be unpopular in some quarters, and Mr. Clements is trying hard not to incur anyone's displeasure. However, he fails to mention where he will get enough money for his better schools and better roads and first rate state fair. His industrial expansion program, about the only way in which he hopes to increase the state income, must grow to full flower overnight if it is to do all these wonderful things in the immediate future, as he promises.

Mr. Clements chooses not to alienate any potential taxpayers at this stage of the game by suggesting a positive and possible program of obtaining more money for state purposes now, while the need is acute. Contrast this position with Mr. Waterfield's advocacy of a tax on pari-mutuel betting, a tax on a luxury that gets a "free ride" in Kentucky. Of course, it will lose a few votes for Mr. Waterfield in the race horse sections, but the people of the state would benefit if the tax were levied. Again, it is apparent that the First District candidate is siding with the people of Kentucky, not with the special interests and the privileged few.

Mr. Clements hurriedly passes over the primary issue of the campaign—the future of TVA and REA in Kentucky—by declaring that he is a friend of both programs and that his feelings were hurt when his opponent had the audacity to think otherwise. As Phil Ardery pointed out in a radio address May 24, the journals of the House and Senate detail with extreme clarity the position of Mr. Clements in fostering the Moss Bill, which was designed by the private power interests for the purpose of demolishing the farmers' chance of getting power, and the cities' hope of reducing rates by owning their own power plants. Small wonder that Mr. Clements would like to forget that TVA and REA are issues in this campaign. Significantly, he has made no attempt to deny that the Kentucky Utilities Company has had its paid lobbyist out campaigning in his behalf. The reason for KU's active interest in Mr. Clements' campaign is crystal clear to those who are not so blind that they will not see.

Mr. Clements apparently believes that it is enough for him to be for the Democratic party and against sin, so to speak—that he can lull the people to sleep by clever oratory and promises of prosperity with no real workable program to achieve it. He adds to this time-worn strategy the old political trick of dragging a red herring into the campaign. While professing to be deeply hurt that his opponent has "slurred and slandered" the professional politicians and prefixed Democrats who clambered aboard the Clements bandwagon, the Congressman launched a bitter personal attack on Mr. Waterfield. His subtle implications and innuendoes, though baseless in fact, are of the type that earned for Kentucky politics the appellation "the damndest." That he has resorted to this unprovoked display of bad taste hints that he is afraid to play off an open and above board campaign, because he knows what the result would be.

The Clements opening was not without its humorous side, however. Congressman Frank Chelf, of the Fourth District, hotly denied that he had been in a quandary over whether to attend the rally at Glasgow. He closed his brief address by saying "God bless you good people, God bless Kentucky, God bless the Fourth District, and as Tiny Tim from the book of Scrooge might say, God bless the Courier-Journal (which editorially endorsed Waterfield)." Congressman Chelf was confused, as any schoolboy knows, in referring to the "book of Scrooge," and we have no doubt that Marley's ghost shook with laughter until his chains rattled when the Congressman spoke. Congressman Chelf also was confused, we think, when he picked Clements as the winner in the coming primary election. We confidently expect that the people of Kentucky will unite behind Waterfield in August to defeat the spokesman of the special interests.

Conscience Hurts Regularly

New York. (AP)—Payments of conscience money by anonymous individuals who have swiped such things as free trolley rides offer little novelty to city finance officials; they have received about $2,000 that way in the past two years.

But the sustained pang of conscience suffered by one individual evokes continuing interest at the treasurer's office. Regularly, each week since Oct. 15, 1945, he (or she) has remitted $1.

Claybrooks said the fish were swimming in deep puddles near the curb, and added that he thought they came from water-clogged sewers which backed up during a heavy rain.

REAMS-GRUBB VOWS PLEDGED

Miss Betty Jean Reams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cleatus Reams, of Martin, Route 5, became the bride of J. C. Grubb, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Grubb, of Fulton, Route 5, in an impressive double ring ceremony solemnized Sunday afternoon, June 29, at 3 o'clock in the home of the bride's parents.

The Rev. Thomas Smith, pastor of the New Hope Methodist church, officiated in the presence of the immediate families and close friends.

Vows were pledged before an improvised altar, arranged in front of the fireplace. Greenery interspersed with spring flowers formed a background for baskets of blue and white hydrangeas. An arrangement of the flowers and white tapers were used on the mantelpiece.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a street length dress of soft white Irish linen with white accessories. Her shoulder bouquet was of red roses.

Miss Delroy Johns was her cousin's maid of honor and only attendant. She wore aqua gabardine with white accessories, and a corsage of white carnations tied with pink ribbon.

Bill Taylor, of Dresden, attended his brother-in-law as best man.

Mrs. Reams, mother of the bride, was attired in black crepe with touches of white. She wore black accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Grubb, mother of the bridegroom, wore black crepe with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

An informal reception was held immediately following the ceremony. The bride's table was centered with a tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. Mrs. Horace Reams cut the cake and Mrs. Feltis Harris served punch.

The young couple later left for a short wedding trip. The bride wore a brown and white dress with a white straw hat and other white accessories. Her flowers were roses.

The bride is a graduate of Martin high school. The bridegroom was graduated from Dresden high school and served three years in the Navy. He is now employed in Kankakee, Ill., where they will make their home.

WCSG GUEST DAY LUNCHEON HELD

The WCSG held their regular monthly meeting and guest day luncheon in the dining room of the First Methodist church June 30.

The tables were lovely with arrangements of spring flowers. A delicious menu was served by Mesdames R. L. Lynch and Claude Sheldy and their committee to 120 members and guests.

The president, Mrs. Whitesell, in her usual gracious manner, introduced the 30 visitors to the society. Mrs. Mischeke gave a timely devotional, using a playlet from "Methodist Women." The playlet portrayed Mary and Martha in comparison with women of today.

Mrs. Warren Graham in a most charming manner introduced the speaker, Mrs. Homer Tatum, W. S. C. S. conference president.

Mrs. Tatum outlined the purpose of WCSG, giving a clear vision of the power and responsibility women have today. The society was honored to have her as its guest. Her talk was an inspiration to all.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Tatum, Mrs. A. R. Austin, Mrs. H. B. Vance, and Mrs. F. E.

Polish Army Is Dwindling

Had Only 165,000 Men April 1, Official Says

Warsaw—Finance Minister Konstanty Dabrowski told a parliamentary committee Poland's army had dwindled to 165,000 men as of April 1 this year.

The Polish army numbered 600,000 men at the end of the war. It presently is the intention of the defense ministry to maintain forces about one-fourth that size but more compact and more highly trained.

Dabrowski said proposed expenditures for national defense, for public security and for the foreign ministry in 1947 amounted to 25.3 percent of the total budget estimates.

Those estimates foresee an income of 185,000,000 zlotys ($1,350,000,000) and expenditures of 174,000,000 zlotys ($1,740,000,000), thus leaving the government an anticipated 11,000,000 zlotys ($110,000,000) balance at the end of 1947.

Frankfort.—Attorney General Eldon S. Dummit has ruled that the city of Georgetown cannot hold primary elections to select candidates for the city council because everybody forgot that entries must now be made 45 days before the Aug. 2 primaries. Candidates can file as independents, however, between 60 and 45 days before the November election, Dummit said.

Sports Roundup

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.
East Lansing, Mich., July 1—(AP)—One of Biggie Munn's first acts after coming to Michigan State as football coach was to get the squad together to elect a captain. It had been 15 years since the Spartans had chosen a captain, but Munn, a very serious gent about some things, explains it this way: "I'm a great believer in captains. A team without one is like a ship without a rudder; the boys need one and it's the greatest honor a player can get. Also a good captain can do a coach a lot of good." Biggie isn't boasting about his 1947 prospects, since he hasn't much new material coming along, but he's very proud of Michigan State's custom of never cutting a player from a squad. "We still had 125 at the end of spring practice," he boasts. "I think that any boy who comes to practice regularly should be kept. In later years he'll be able to say he was on the Michigan State football squad, even if he wasn't good enough to win a letter."

Wheat Growers Offered Loans On Present Crop

Kentucky wheat growers will be offered loans on their 1947 crops at 90 percent of parity and in addition they will be offered purchase agreements under which they may elect to deliver their wheat to the Commodity Credit Corporation after the maturity date of the loans. M. D. Royce, state director of the Production and Marketing Administration, announced today.

Only wheat grading No. 3 or better, or No. 4 or No. 5 because of test weight only, will be eligible for loan or purchase under the program, Royce said.

Loan rates for the 1947 wheat crop will not be determined finally until July 1. Royce pointed out, but interim loan rates based on an estimated parity price of $2.00 per bushel will be established.

U. of K. Will Build New Fine Arts Center

Shown above are the architects visualize it, the Arts Center will be the new home of the Departments of Music and Art and Guignol Theater. It will replace the old Arts Center which was destroyed by fire last February. ## British To Build New, Better House of Commons; War, Destruction Old Story To Historic Palace

By William B. King
London.—The Labor Party is turning its attention to rebuilding the bomb-wrecked House of Commons in Westminster Palace.

On the night of May 10, 1941—one of the heaviest blitz nights for London—a German bomb fell smack on the House of Commons, reducing it to rubble. The bomb, which carved the Commons' Hall out of the extensive Westminster building, left the rest of the Palace relatively unharmed.

This Nazi depredation, however, was—historically—nothing new for Westminster Palace. It has seen worse in its day.

Canute Built the First
Canute the Great, who was England's Mr. Big back in 1016, was the first to build a palace at Westminster. But Edward the Confessor of the next generation founded the palace at its present location.

William the Conqueror carried out extensive enlargements and Westminster continued to be used as a royal residence until 1512. In that year it suffered so severely from fire that royal decided to find another home. Westminster was soon renovated, however, and was used by both the House of Lords and the House of Commons.

Another fire in 1834 destroyed the whole place, making that Luftwaffe bombardier of 107 years later look like a piker. The present, spired building with its stately tower, including the 329-foot one housing Big Ben, was built from 1840 to 1867.

It is still something of a mystery how the House of Commons, which covered an area 90 feet wide and 170 feet long, was so completely destroyed. It has never been established whether it was done by a high explosive bomb, an oil bomb or a string of bombs.

Whatever it was, it was thorough. Work on the foundation and steel framework of the new House already has been completed. The stone work will take about three years and cost an estimated $5,000,000 to complete.

Small Size Retained
The new building, designed by Sir Giles Gilbert Scott, will be constructed of warm cream colored stone quarried at Clipsham, Rutlandshire. It will be the first large London building using such stone.

Except for air conditioning and an improved amplifying system there will be no changes in the new House of Commons. It will have 456 loud speakers but only some 437 seats for its 650 members.

As before it will be an elongated chamber with government and opposition members seated facing each other.

Q. How much is allowed for a child whose father is taking a G. I. college course? We are divorced and he claims that he is receiving only $65 a month.

A. A veteran going to school under G. I. Bill, if single and without dependents, may receive an allowance of $65 monthly; if he has a dependent, or dependents, he may receive $90 a month. If the child is dependent on your former husband, he (the former husband) would be entitled to the higher rate.

Q. I have a lender who will loan me the money I need under the loan guaranty provisions of the G. I. Bill, but he wants additional security. Does the law allow him to ask for more security?

A. Yes. This is a matter between you and the lender. While the Veterans Administration does not require that additional security be given, it does not object if the veteran is willing to give it.

Fireman's Helper Wasn't Much Help
Centuria, Ill.—(AP)—State Fire Instructor Ray Remick, demonstrating fire hose handling to a school of firefighters here, got all he could stomach when a "helper" fluffed his signals. Remick's circling hand motions were to show how to lay hose, but, at the hydrant where the hose was attached, Fireman Ray Flowers misinterpreted the motions as a signal to turn on the water. Remick took the stream's full force in his bread-basket.
