The Executive Committee will not leave a stone unturned to make this undertaking a howling success and the road from Murray to the Marshall county line one of the very best in the county. This committee also wishes to state in response to many inquiries received that it is not vested with authority to change the proposed route of the road between Murray and the county line as the route was selected by the meeting at Benton some few weeks ago and it will be necessary for the Calloway committee to follow the dictates of the executive committee of the three counties engaged in the task of building the road. Inquiries have come from other points for a change and the Calloway committee regrets that the requests cannot be granted for a change.

It is earnestly to be desired that the general soliciting committee published last week will do their part in soliciting and as fast as contributions of either labor or money is given that the names be forwarded to the secretary for publication as soon as received. The undertaking can only be accomplished by work and every member of the committee is expected to do a share in the labor necessary to complete the details.

Mass meetings will be called for different places along and near the road within a few days by the executive committee and endeavor will be made to secure assistance from every citizen within reach of the highway, and to solicit the hearty co-operation of every good road enthusiast in the entire county. It makes no difference where you live this road will be an asset to the county, it will be an inspiration for development and improvement of highways throughout the county.

If you are going to help, sign one or both of either of the blanks below and send to the secretary and try and do it today.

Friendship.
The most beautiful thing in life is true friendship; and the most despicable is that pretended friendship which is manifested by the fellow who courts you as long as he can use you, as long as your kindly counsel and endorsement will aid him along a difficult pathway, and when, frequently through no merit of his own, but by virtue of some fortunate circumstances, he reaches a position of comparative independence, assuming a self-importance that does him no credit, ignores the friends who helped him in his lean and unpropitious days.
The average human encounters this sort of thing often as he journeys along life's crowded highway, and finally reaches the state of mind where he may regard it with undisturbed equanimity and only with the reflection that a man's real coinage will manifest itself sooner or later, whether of fine gold or dross.—Ex.

The catalog is one of the most attractive ever issued by the association and is worth the reading by every citizen of the county. The fair this year promises to be the best ever held here and one of the best county fairs in the state. One or two errors occurred in the publication of the catalog and instead of the purse for the mule race being $75, as shown it will be only $7.50. On page 35 of the book item 14, should read, "best stallion and four or more of his get" instead of only four.

Read the book through and make preparations to attend this meeting together with your best stock and farm products as entries.

Diarrhoea Quickly Cured.

"I was taken with diarrhoea and Mr. Yorks, the merchant here, persuaded me to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. After taking one dose of it I was cured. It also cured others I gave it to," writes M. E. Gebhart, Oriole, Pa. That is not at all unusual. An ordinary attack of diarrhoea can almost invariably be cured by one or two doses of this remedy. For sale by Dale & Stubblefield.

Mean Man Knocked Fad.

Edgartown, Mass., Sept. 4.—A woman bather started the fad here of wearing a garter with a tiny bell attached. Other women soon took up the fad and the beach now fairly tinkles.

KILLED BY TRAIN

John Jeffrey, Well Known Calloway Citizen, Instantly Killed Last Friday Night.

John Jeffrey, of Dexter, one of the most widely known citizens of the county, was struck by a freight train of the Illinois Central railway company last Friday night at Harris Station, Tenn., and instantly killed. Mr. Jeffrey left his home in Dexter last Friday at noon and was enroute to a meeting near Harris Station where he was to conduct the singing. He boarded the through Memphis and Louisville train on the I. C., with a ticket for Harris Station. Before reaching his destination he was informed by the conductor that the train did not make that stop and Mr. Jeffrey said in reply that he had a ticket for that place and that the conductor had accepted it, and demanded that he be permitted to get off. When the train reached the station Mr. Jeffrey was asked to alight as soon as the train slowed up, which he did, and as he stepped from the passenger train, a north bound freight train was passing and struck Mr. Jeffrey in the side, resulting in injuries from which he died almost instantly.

The remains were prepared for burial at Paducah and sent out to Dexter for burial. The funeral was held Sunday at about 4 o'clock and fully two thousand people were in attendance, attesting the esteem in which the deceased was held in his home community. Rev. Mac Pool conducted the services. Mr. Jeffrey is survived by a wife, three sons and one daughter. One son, Otis Jeffrey, was killed about a year ago near Dexter by an N. C. & St. L. train.

Cousins Engage In Scrap.

Benton, Ky., Sept. 9.—Considerable excitement was created in Benton Sunday when Ed Ethridge and Rufe Ethridge, two cousins, became involved in a fight during the course of which an iron bar and a pistol played a prominent part. Bad feeling has existed between the two men for several years, and Sunday when they met in front of the court house, which is the central location of Benton, it is alleged that Rufe Ethridge seized an iron bar and started towards Ed Ethridge, who drew a pistol.

Ethridge fired four shots at his advancing cousin. One bullet struck him in the neck, and a second bullet struck him in the shoulder. He fell to the ground but arose quickly, and proved game when he chased the shooter down the street. Both men have been arrested and released on small bonds. Ed Ethridge is charged with malicious shooting, while Rufe Ethridge is charged malicious striking.

Both Ethridges are about 30 years old, and they reside in Marshall county near Benton. It is said that the trouble that has existed for several years began over Rufe Ethridges's wife.

School Will Convene Monday.

The regular fall term of the Murray public school will be convened Monday morning of next week. Every indication points to a large attendance and one of the most successful sessions in the history of the school.

DIAZ CANDIDATE; CAUSES TROUBLE

U. S. CANNOT RECOGNIZE HIM MORE THAN HUERTA.

OFFICIALS ARE NOW WORRIED

Reports from Mexico City Are That Provisional Authorities Do Not Regard Negotiations as at an End. No Anti-American Outbreak.

Washington.—There is an ominous sound in the announcement of Felix Diaz for the Mexican presidency. To some ears here it has a disturbing ring. There are those who are inclined to construe the declaration of Diaz that he will be a candidate for president as a new defiance to this government, one that may change the whole aspect of the Mexican situation. One significant argument made is that if this government will not stand for the candidacy of Huerta how can it view the candidacy of Felix Diaz in any light other than a rebuff and distrust? Diaz for Huerta would be like swapping the devil for a witch. Both are catalogued in the same blackness.

What is the United States going to do about it? It is being asked. One answer is wait until the administration's present program for the restoration of peace and order in Mexico runs its course. It is suggested that the candidacy of Diaz will greatly embarrass and complicate our relations with Mexico. An honest opinion of Diaz, it is claimed by some, is impossible. To prevent a dishonest one would necessitate a reversal of the administration's policy of non-interference. This brings the United States face to face with a new problem in its unending efforts to save Mexico from itself.

At any rate, some officials here are worried at the forbidding aspect given the situation by the announcement of the Diaz candidacy.

Mexico will have to settle to the last cent for the damage to property owned by Americans since the reign of rebellion began three years ago. During the present lull in the negotiations between the United States and the Huerta government the state department is turning its attention to the immense indebtedness Huerta is accumulating for his expenses to settle.

MANUEL PEREZ ROMERO.

Manuel Perez Romero, who is accused of lobbying for the constitutional party of Mexico, is the unacknowledged diplomatic agent of that party in Washington.

CAMINETTI JUROR IS INJURED

Auto Accident May Force Selection of New Jury.

San Francisco.—A new jury to try Drew Caminetti on the federal white slave charges may be necessary as the result of the injury to juror William H. Mann, who was crushed in an automobile accident on the San Jose road. Adams' condition was doubtful.

Physicians at the O'Connor Sanitarium in San Jose, where he was taken, could not say how soon Adams would be able to walk. Judge Van Fleet of the United States district court was inclined to think that a new jury would be necessary if Adams does not recover within a few days.

Washington.—Charles G. Swift of the house lobby investigating committee denied any intention on the committee's part of "whitewashing" Representative James T. McDermott, accused of accepting money for legislative services.

Minneapolis, N. Y.—George A. Parker, a negro, and employee of Col. Theodore Roosevelt at Sagamore Hill, Oyster Bay, was placed in jail here, charged with having stolen $1,000 worth of jewelry from the Roosevelt home Saturday.

MISS COLUMBIA'S WAY

Music to Soothe the Savage Breast of Man and Secure the Right to Vote in Minnesota—News Item.

TO INVESTIGATE N. Y. N. H. & H. WRECK

COMMERCE COMMISSION WILL GO INTO MATTER FULLY.

LOOK INTO ROAD'S OPERATION

Corner Refused to Make Public the Testimony of Engineer of White Mountain Express or That of the Flagman.

New Haven, Conn.—With 21 dead and five dying as the result of the wreck near New Haven of the Bar Harbor Express, the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad faces a public inquiry into the cause of the disaster by the Interstate Commerce Commission. It will be the most searching ever conducted by the commission into any railroad catastrophe.

This was announced by H. W. Belknap, chief inspector of the commission, who arrived here, Commissioner McHardy will preside. Mr. Belknap said the inquiry would "get down to fundamentals" and determine what causes in the general operation and management of the road were responsible for the series of fatal wrecks which have afflicted the New Haven for the last two or three years, culminating in the most disastrous of all.

Until the Interstate Commerce Commission's witnesses tell their story the official explanation given out by the company will be the only version of the causes of the wreck available. Coroner Mix persisted in refusing to make public the testimony of Engineer Miller of the White Mountain Express, which crashed into the Bar Harbor train, both of whom he examined in a preliminary investigation. This attitude was also taken by J. C. Fyfe, chief engineer of the Connecticut Public Utilities Commission, who attended the hearing.

WILL BE NO FREE ALUMINUM

Time Considered Not Ripe for Trust Legislation.

Washington.—By a vote of 55 to 15 the senate rejected a proposal by Senator Kenyon, to put aluminum upon the free list. Senator Kenyon and those who joined him in supporting the amendment declared that the manufacture of aluminum in the United States was in the control of a monopoly—the Aluminum Company of America. The vote was accepted as a prelude to action upon an other amendment proposing to free the manufacture of all commodities declared by the courts to be monopolies. Chairman Simmons of the finance committee announced during the debate that it was not the purpose of the majority to legislate on the trust question at the present time. He agreed that the more platform declared against trust-made products, but said this was not the time for trust legislation.

T IS SAID HUERTA WILL QUIT

Rumors of Cabinet Changes Rife in Mexico City.

Mexico City.—That Gen. Huerta intends to quit the presidency in favor of Gen. Gerardo Trevino and become a candidate at the October elections is the statement made by a well-known Mexican close to the administration. Gen. Trevino is making his way to the capital, and little effort has been made to disguise the fact that he has been officially summoned. Just how the contemplated succession is to be brought about has not been disclosed.

Novalles, Ariz.—The Yaquis of Sonora have begun to threaten Americans. Descentions of the Indians from the state troop ranks continue.

General Lookout Ordered

Dublin.—At a meeting here 400 prominent employers signed an agreement binding themselves not to employ any member of the Transport Workers Union. This means practically a general lockout.

Sh Born an American

New York.—Mr. and Mrs. Herman Harris buried from Paris to New York so that their son, born here, might be beyond any doubt an American citizen. They arrived with only six hours to spare.

GREAT FIRE AT HOT SPRINGS

FANNED BY HIGH WIND, BUT BUSINESS SECTION SAVED.

LOSS REACHES $5,000,000

Treachery of Gale Causes Much Confusion Among Fighters in Effort to Head Off or Divert the Flames From Business Houses.

Hot Springs.—Five million dollars' property loss, 50 blocks laid waste, 2,000 people homeless, is the story of the most disastrous conflagration which ever visited this city. Friday afternoon and night, the fire burned its way practically to the foot of West Mountain, sweeping a district some 10 to 15 blocks in width from Hot Springs Mountain on the east to West Mountain, a distance of a mile and a half.

Human ingenuity and modern fire apparatus availed nothing against the resisting force of the flames, fanned by a shifting gale which varied its direction and then another, threatening the entire city at times.

Hot Springs views in quiet awe such a scene of desolation as it never witnessed before. Aided by the Little Rock fire department, the local firefighting force battled with the flames for almost ten hours, fighting a hopeless battle in every stage, and succeeding only in diverting the course of the fire from the principal business section and the reservation.

Gov. Hays announced that he was coming to Hot Springs and would hold the National Guard in readiness to patrol the fire district if needed. This and many other offers of assistance in firefighting apparatus, financial aid, food and clothing have been received from all quarters. It is not indicated that Hot Springs will need to avail itself of these many offers.

Section 8:— That in the laying and constructing of said sewerage system the owner and holder of this franchise, its successor and assigns shall use only approved material for such purposes and shall construct and maintain said system in a good workmanlike and sanitary manner.

nor. That the surface of all streets and alleys shall be replaced in as good condition as possible and in practically as good condition as they were before said pipes were laid; that all reasonable precaution be taken to prevent injury to vehicles, and pedestrians while engaged in the construction of such work; that all excavations shall be properly guarded for the safety of the inhabitants of the city and the users of the streets and alleys and side walks and that the purchaser, its successors and assigns shall at all times indemnify the City of Murray against any and all loss and damage that may result from any injury occurring by reason of the construction and operation of said sewerage system and from the negligence of any of its managers or employees. That the construction of said sewerage system and the laying of all pipes and apparatus for the construction and operation of said system shall be done under the supervision of a committee of the City Council.

Section 9:— That for and in consideration of the construction and operation and maintenance of said sewerage system in and for the use of the inhabitants of the City of Murray, and the conditions and requirements as are herein before specified, the City of Murray hereby agrees to and does exempt from municipal taxes all property and money invested in said sewerage system and all stock in and all bonds and liens thereon for and during the period of this franchise. The City of Murray further binds itself to enact and enforce all such ordinances as may be necessary to maintain the sewerage district of the City of Murray herein established in a sanitary condition and to promote the use of the said sewerage system in the said City of Murray by the inhabitants thereof and to enforce the regulations of the State, County and City Boards of Health and the Health Officers thereof.

Marks the Opening of the Fall Season at Our Store

YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED TO ATTEND

Opening Sale begins Wednesday morning, September 24, and ends Sept. 25. Free Souvenirs to each family represented at our store on Opening Days. In connection with this Opening Sale, and beginning with Sept. 24, we desire to announce that our business will be placed on a STRICTLY CASH BASIS. We believe this is the most important announcement that we have ever made to the buying public of Murray and Calloway county. We have been considering this step for more than a year, and we are more convinced now than ever, that what the people want is better service, and better goods for the same money. The business of this country will eventually come to a cash basis, and we are taking the lead in this, as in all other matters. While we have been studying over this matter, we have taken the occasion to count the cost of doing a credit business and the natural advantages of a cash business over the old way of selling goods on a credit, and we are going to take you into our confidence long enough to tell you of some of the advantages of a strictly cash business.

First, we will suppose that with a credit business, $5,000 is carried at all times on the books as accounts. The interest on this amount alone would be, at 6 per cent, $300, or about $1 per day, for each business day of the year. The salary of a book-keeper and collector must be paid, and this item will amount to about $350, and with some losses that will come to any credit business, the total amount will be swelled to somewhere between $1,000 and $1,500. Now, this is the amount we have decided to save for the customers that buy their goods from us, henceforth. As we said in the beginning, we have studied over this matter for more than a whole year, and we are fully convinced that we will sell goods STRICTLY FOR CASH, and this does not mean that the man who really thinks he needs credit will not get it, and the man who is at the head of some "banking" institution and all alike. In doing this we desire to say that we feel good towards every one. We have just as much confidence in you now as in the past. No sore spots on us at all. But we have caught the vision of being of greater service to you, through the medium of a strictly cash business, and plans are all made to give you better service in the future than in the past, and to give you more goods for the same money, than any other living concern can, or will give you.

Again We Invite YOU to be Present at Our Store on These Opening Days. A Beautiful FREE Souvenir Will be Given to a Member of Each Family Represented.

As their forefathers farmed. This tersely describes the lives of many farmers today. They are following the traditions and methods taught by their fathers. The methods that prevailed then were probably the best that were known at that time. As the soil was almost virgin, the immediate results of the great damage that was being done to it were not noticeable. There has been one conclusion of absolute certainty reached, and that is the fact that there must be as much put back into the soil as is taken out of it. For years the majority of farmers' sons have migrated citywards. There were probably many reasons for this, but, undoubtedly, the chief reason was the fact that each year they saw the farm grow poorer, and gradually they began to form the impression that there was little, if any, future there for them; there was naught for them but toil from early morning until late night, and but little of interest in the eternal grind. How different this could be were the farmer to send his boys to the farming college or if they were not old enough, to take up the study themselves, to experiment and to watch the results. This would have a natural tendency to create an interest in the farm life. The percentage of boys that leave the farm would be materially decreased if they saw more abundant crops each year, and advancing prosperity all around. Discuss farm matters with your boy, take him into your confidence, assist him to acquire scientific knowledge, let him make some experiments himself, and you will soon see a wonderful change come over your farm life. Farm with something besides physical labor, farm with brains. Acquire knowledge of scientific methods, and your physical labor will be materially reduced. This knowledge is proffered to you for the asking, your State, College and the United States Government are willing and eager to assist you.

There are few more beautiful places in the universe than "Spring Hill", the Kentucky home of Mr. Johnson N. Camden, which is illustrated in this issue of the monthly Magazine Section. While West Virginia was the birthplace of Mr. Camden, Kentucky has become his home by adoption, and no citizen of that State has done more, if as much, to advance her interests. Her uplift is his constant aim and her progress his life work.

Many letters have been received by the publishers of the monthly Magazine Section, speaking in the very highest praise of its first issue. This has been a source of great gratification, and in a measure rewards them for their efforts to give their readers a good, clean cut magazine section, and one that is out of the ordinary run of such publications, educational, yet interesting.

Injecting Progress Into a Great City

The Revival of Cincinnati

By W. C. Culkins,
Sup't The Chamber of Commerce

CINCINNATI'S renaissance is the most interesting feature of municipal development in America. It is comparatively easy for a new city to establish itself with modern ideas while making for itself a position and a name, but it is doubtful if any municipality with such long established institutions and deep rooted traditions has ever made such rapid strides, or achieved so much in a few years as this Queen City of the West. With age and prestige supported by unquestioned financial stability and commercial integrity, the citizenship has fallen into a selfsatisfied complacency, which, for many years somewhat retarded progress in its broadest conception. This, however, was not without value since it provided a substantial foundation for the newer ideals to rest upon.

Foreigners complain of the similarity and lack of individuality of our American cities. This is not true of Cincinnati, for even the casual visitor who views the green clad hills rising above the lower basin crowned with institutions of art and learning, must carry away with him the impression that here natural beauty is conserved and culture and education has found an abiding place.

From its earliest days Cincinnati has occupied a distinctive position among her sister cities. The first settlers came from sturdy New Jersey and Pennsylvania stock, leavened with a dash of chivalrous Kentuckians, and established a city which at once became noted for the broad views and tolerant spirit of its people. In the days of water travel it was the gateway of the south and west, and the students, travelers and frontiersmen who passed through, stopped long enough to leave the impress of their diversified ideas, until throughout the world the little town on the Ohio became known as "the freest city on earth."

The city became the great point of exchange for the products of the south and west for those of Europe and the north and east. Cincinnati commanded the commerce of the Mississippi basin and thereby laid the foundation of a business supremacy based upon a high order of ethics which she has ever maintained.

It was not in the nature of things that the commerce of a mighty empire should be restricted to one gateway, so the coming of steam transportation developed Chicago, St. Louis and other points to the far west. Cincinnati was, therefore, in a measure, restricted to her natural sphere of influence, the Ohio Valley and the South. And here it may be said that in one point of distinction there is a dispute—it is as to whether Cincinnati is the most northern city of the south, or the most southern city of the north. Whichever may be correct it is true that Cincinnati was located on its present site by Kentuckians, and their selection happily placed it where northern enterprise meets southern heartiness and combines to make Cincinnati the most vigorous yet hospitable city in the world.

That she might carry out her destiny Cincinnati, when the expediency arose, again did something distinctive by building a great railroad into the heart of the south, and is still the only American city owning a steam railroad. If fortunately situated at the exact point of contact between Dixie and the north, the location is not less advantageous from a commercial and industrial point of view. Since it is the exact center of the great Ohio valley which has been called the "workshop of the world," with a thousand miles of waterways between its hills, and hundreds of miles of tributary pouring in from all points of the compass.

On the east is the greatest soft coal producing region of the world; on the north the mineral ores and orchards; on the west the grain bearing prairies, and on the south the cotton fields, and now the inexhaustible mines and quarries which are just opening up their treasures to the world. Thus surrounded by every character of raw material in its most available form, connected by rail and waterways' helpful and restraining influence it would have been strange had not Cincinnati become a great industrial as well as commercial center. Not only did factories locate and enlarge, but became more diversified until it may be said that today Cincinnati has a greater variety of business and manufacturing activities than any other city in the world. The slogan "Cincinnati can supply you" means what it says, that whatever may be your requirement you will be able to buy it in Cincinnati, with the probability that you can there obtain it direct from the producer.

All of this, however, is preliminary to the topic in hand, and leads to the time some seven or eight years ago when the citizenship awoke to the realization that a city may be great in its commerce, and yet not fulfill its highest destiny. A spirit of interest in the higher things that make for municipal achievement stirred the people and with this the new era began. Built upon stately hills rising from charming valleys, Cincinnati well deserved fame as the most picturesque city in America, yet so little heed was given that in park area she ranked among the lowest in the country. Here came the first development. A movement was started to conserve and embellish these natural beauties. Public spirited citizens gave illustrated lectures in all sections showing what less favored places had accomplished and as a result a comprehensive park system has been adopted, which, when completed, will be unsurpassed by any other city in the nation, if not in the world.

Already the park area has been increased from 500 to 2,000 acres and boulevards, parkways, tennis courts and golf links are being established. Where formerly the municipality gave no thought to its children leaving them to seek amusement in restricted school yards, or upon the streets under the hoofs of horses, now an elaborate system of public play grounds are in operation. Swimming and wading pools, sand piles and all modern apparatus for scientific juvenile recreation are to be found under the direction of competent instructors. Baseball diamonds abound, and moving picture shows and other classes of proper entertainment are provided. In addition to this, free municipal band concerts are held in all parts of the city during the summer, and the people have voted a bond issue of $250,000 toward the erection of a mammoth auditorium for musical and other entertainments to be furnished to the public at a nominal cost. This building will also be used for large conventions, flower shows, horse shows, and various kinds of expositions.

In educational lines the strides have been even more pronounced. In fifty years Cincinnati had white plague. Medical inspection in the schools, food inspection by the health department, and other activities along this line have been added to the public work. A wider use of the public school buildings for social centers, public gatherings, Fourth of July celebrations, and the like, have greatly widened the utility of these institutions. The city has also maintained public baths, public lodging houses, public laundries, and public dances where the poorer people may enjoy their pastime under proper surroundings.

Under a department of social service the municipality is co-operating with private philanthropy and making the public charities and in-the neighborhood of two million dollars, will be in operation by the end of the year. A $400,000 baseball park has been opened, and the county is erecting a two and a half million dollar Court House. Plans are under way for a permanent manufacturers' exhibit building to cost half a million, and for a rapid transit belt line and interurban subway to cost seven millions. Bonds have been authorized for $3,000,000 for a sewer system, $1,750,000 for parks, $350,000 for tuberculosis hospital, $550,000 for university purposes, $600,000 for street improvements, which with the new court house, $2,000,000 hospital, and the convention hall, will total $11,000,000. Thus it will be seen that the city has completed, has under way, or has in contemplation in public and private improvements, upwards of twenty-five million dollars in the last few years. As a definite proof that prosperity goes hand in hand with an uplift movement such as has taken place in Cincinnati, the following figures are taken from the census report, showing the percentages of increases in the period of ten years covered: Capital invested, 74.2%; wage earners, 24.7%; salaried officials and clerks, 85.5%; total factory employees, 30%; factory payrolls, 67.6%; materials, 69.1%; factory output, 68.6%; bank clearings, 70%; the total value of new buildings for which permits were issued in 1912 was a hundred percent greater than in 1902; the total value of property returned for taxation in 1912 was two hundred million dollars greater than in 1902.

In addition to all this Cincinnati has not lost any of its prestige as a world leader in many important lines of industry. "Made in Cincinnati" goods are sent to all parts of the world, and in some lines, notably machine tools, nearly half the entire product is exported, which is a high tribute to the character of Cincinnati's workmanship. That Cincinnati is located in the right place is evidenced by the fact that notwithstanding the great growth of the United States this favored city still occupies the distinction of being the nearest to the center of population. It is within twenty-four hours ride of seventy-six million people. Less than carload shipments of freight can be delivered in within two to five days to sixty-two millions, and within three days to almost any part of the south. In by far the greater portion of the southern territory the freight rates are lower than from either St. Louis or Baltimore.

When one realizes that practically every human want can be supplied from the three thousand factories; or the numerous jobbing houses of spent but $250,000 for high school buildings. Since the revival, two new high schools, each costing more than a million dollars, have been erected, and a still greater one is in immediate contemplation. The schools now embrace every modern feature and equipment for education. Manual training, kindergartens, continuation schools, classes in cooking, sewing, dressmaking, millinery, and general housework have been established. Special instructions have been provided for shop girls who give a couple of hours a week to the study of their line of salesmanship. Commercial courses along practical lines will turn out students equipped to take hold of office work at once. The school system is crowned by the great University of Cincinnati, the only municipally owned university in the United States. In addition to all of the usual courses, the co-operative engineering course has introduced a plan which is being taken up rapidly by other cities. Under this method students spend two weeks in study and alternate two weeks in actual work in the factories of the city. The rapid growth of the University and the influx of students from all parts of the country testifies to its value as an institution of learning.

The municipality furnishes to its people filtered water as nearly pure as science can produce, and this alone has resulted in giving to the city the lowest typhoid fever rate on record. In fact, there is no typhoid that can be traced to the city's water supply.

The largest municipal hospital in the United States is almost completed, and will make the city a seat of medical instruction and learning. A scientifically operated tuberculosis sanitarium has saved many lives, and in co-operation with the rigorous tenement house inspection just established and the voluntary work of public spirited citizens is doing much to stamp out the stitutions not only mediums of immediate relief, but of assistance to enable the unfortunates to become self-sustaining. The city has established an employment bureau, which also assists discharged prisoners from penal institutions to obtain work and become self-respecting citizens. The loan shark evil has been eradicated and hand books and other forms of gambling largely suppressed. These things are due to the development of a high spirit of civic consciousness on the part of the people, and as an evidence that further progress is desired, Cincinnati has just elected fifteen of her leading citizens to draft a new and scientific municipal charter upon a platform pledged to the separation of municipal from national politics, the short ballot, civil service, Initiative and Referendum, with a modified recall, and the largest degree of home rule consistent with the surrounding conditions.

That this public interest in the altruistic side of municipal affairs has not retarded the material advancement of the city is fully evidenced from the record of her commercial growth. It should be borne in mind that no federal census gives a correct idea of the size and importance of Cincinnati. The metropolitan district includes three large cities and a dozen smaller ones, situated in two states and three counties, with a population of more than six hundred thousand. The largest office building of any inland city in the world, the Union Central, has just been completed, and towers 500 feet above the street level. It houses the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, whose membership has increased from eight hundred to two thousand within a year.

Two new skyscrapers are to be built, one at Sixth and Main, the other on the site of the old St. Nicholas. A new hotel, the Metropole, has just been completed, and the Hotel Gibson, which will include 500 rooms with baths, and cost in Cincinnati, that freight rates are more favorable, and that geographical location renders deliveries prompt, it is easy to understand why the citizens of progressive Cincinnati regard their city as an ideal market place for the buyer, an attractive resort for the visitor, and a haven of refuge for the investor or homeseeker.

Thrusting Aside the Tragedy of Tradition A Barbecue and an Awakening

By A. Bart Horton

KENTUCKY has produced a wonderful galaxy of great men. The Blue Grass State has proudly given to the nation men of magnificent ability in the forum, men of powerful minds and brilliant pens. Among the foremost of these men of today is Johnson N. Camden, not great alone in mind and executive ability, but for a character that is constantly striving for the common good. It was in great part due to this ability that the wonderfully rich treasures of the coal mines in Eastern Kentucky were sent out to the world, for he marshalled the capital that opened the mines and built the railroads into them. Having accomplished this with the highest degree of success, he began to quietly investigate the condition of Kentucky's only other great interest—agriculture. He saw much of her wonderful soil being gradually impoverished, and he saw the heroic efforts of a little band of men struggling against the tragedy of tradition. In common with them he saw the possibilities of making Kentucky one of the great agricultural states of the nation, and to them he extended welcome assistance. His personal energy, active mind, and an open purse became important factors in the fight. The chief obstacle that had been met with was the reluctance of farmers to accept the theories advanced to them. For years they had been living in the lethargy of tradition, obstinately ignoring the progressive ideas founded on the actual results obtained by experiments. Mr. Camden conceived a new method of preaching the doctrines of scientific farming. He extended an invitation to every farmer and to each member of every farmer's family in Kentucky, to visit his beautiful place at Versailles on August 20. He secured the services of the foremost agricultural experts in the United States to be present on that day, and he promised them that feast which is nearest to the Kentuckian heart, a Barbecue. The invitation so splendidly extended, was as splendidly accepted. From early morning vehicles of every description, ancient and modern, streamed into Spring Hill loaded to capacity with farmers and farmer's wives. The interurban service was taxed to its utmost, and everyone who came enjoyed himself for there was entertainment of every description. Mammoth tents gaily decorated provided with every comfort and convenience, burgoos made by a master hand, excellent music, entertaining and instructive addresses, and a treat in itself, a visit to Spring Hill. The ceremonies were held in that part of Mr. Camden's property that lies across the pike from his home. It was a wonderful sight to see those countless thousands gathered there, ladies in their holiday attire, earnest men, and happy children. In order to accommodate the vast crowds there were two speaker's stands. Mr. Camden opened the exercises with an address, which in part was as follows:

"My friends, I give you one and all a most hearty welcome. I am truly delighted to have you here today. I hope you will allow me to tell you briefly what was in my mind when I decided to have this barbecue.

"Always, in thinking of Kentucky, I have a great inspiring vision. I have been in most of the states in the Union, and have traveled in many lands, but I have never beheld a state or empire that has such material possibilities, variety of soil, diversity of products and other blessings as our own beloved state—old Kentucky.

"In ten years' time she will lead every state in the Union in the production of coal and, what is more, as time goes on will increase the lead and hold it, for she has a greater deposit of high-grade coal than either Pennsylvania or West Virginia. It can also be truly said of Kentucky, as of almost no other country, that if we were absolutely isolated from the rest of the world, we have within ourselves everything necessary for the development of a most advanced and prosperous civilization. We have in abundance the raw materials, iron, coking coal, timber, fire and porcelain clays, phosphate deposits, oil, gas, and an endless variety of mineral wealth, a most varied soil, grazing lands, and a beneficent climate.

FARM LANDS HEART OF STATE

"Yet, while the mineral wealth of the state is a vital thing and means more to us than we can now understand, to my mind the very soul and heart of Kentucky must always dwell in her farm lands and pastures—beautiful, gently rolling, the fairest and greenest the sun shines upon, and fruitful as the delta of the Nile. Kentucky will ever be a great farming state, and the character of her agriculture will determine the character and development of her people. Someone has well said that a people can not be greater or stronger than their soil.

"What I wish to draw attention to today, and to emphasize, is the well recognized fact that in mining, manufacturing, and all productive enterprises, the basic form of wealth is in itself only about 50 percent of the problem involved—the other 50 percent is in organization, which really means co-operation. Granting that our soil would grade No. 1 in fertility—which in many cases it will not do though by intelligent and industrious methods it can be made to—as we now stand, with our imperfect system of soil education, organization and cooperation, we farmers are realizing but half of what we are entitled to from our farms.

"With us the chief obstacle to organization and cooperation, to my mind, is the intense individualism of the Kentuckian. That spirit of self-reliance, indomitable will, and courage to stand alone and all-sufficient, which made him the greatest pioneer the world has ever known, is in a measure a detriment now and blocks his further progress and material development. We are not living in the age of the coonskin cap and long-barrel rifle. Our times are strenuously competitive and the degree of our civilization very complex.

SHOULD ORGANIZE AND COOPERATE

"Realizing this condition, we should set about intelligently, with determination, and our eyes open, to learn the value of organization and cooperation, and to fully understand the destructive quality of unintentionally selfish individualism.

"We must establish team work among ourselves, we must trust one another if we are to prosper further as a people and advance the solidarity of Kentucky interests.

"I have an unbounded faith in the future of Kentucky and in the ability of Kentuckians to do things when their attention and interests are centered upon those things. It is because of my ambition and hope to personally help in quickening this movement that I decided to give this barbecue.

The beautiful day, the enormous crowd, the manifest pleasure of everyone amply repaid Mr. Camden for his efforts. From his heart came the words, "Today, I am the happiest man in Kentucky."

A Son of Dixie

By A. Bart Horton

PART II.

WOOD walked down the lane with Jean and the Colonel, who had been talking over old times until it was time for them to drive home to lunch.

The Colonel said to Wood, "My boy, I have grieved very much over your father's troubles, but he would accept no assistance from me. After you left college so suddenly, he wrote me enclosing a draft for $500, stating that he understood that I had paid certain obligations of Wood's to that amount, and thanked me for doing so. I wrote him enclosing my check for this money, and assuring him that neither he nor you owed me a cent. This check has never been cashed. After I received your $500, I invested the entire amount in your father's name. The investment proved to be fortunate, and about seven years ago I instructed attorneys to notify your father that a distant relative of your mother's had left him a little legacy, which has paid him about $25 a month. God knows it has hurt me very much to think of him in want, when I have more money than I can possibly spend. Your father saved my life once, and this fact, aside from my deep affection for him, should certainly entitle me to the pleasure of assisting him in every way possible. I want you to go over to the sale of the property with me this afternoon to buy it in for me, and give it to him as though coming from you. Jean and I have been visiting Harry in the South of France for several months, and we only arrived in New York about two weeks ago. I had instructed agents here to look after your father and do everything possible for him. On my arrival in New York, I found a letter telling of the foreclosure on your father's property. I notified them, immediately, to take steps to purchase this property, and also Dixie and her colt. Business detained me in New York, and I could not reach here until last night."

"I can readily appreciate your feeling, Colonel, of course, no one knows better than you how proud father is, and our estrangement caused by my conduct, and his many other misfortunes, have embittered him greatly. I will be glad to accept your offer, for I have resources that will enable me to repay it in the near future."

"We will discuss that part of it later on, my dear boy. I will drive over for you immediately after lunch."

Miller held the reins of the thoroughbreds, as Wood helped Jean and the Colonel into the runabout, and bade them good-bye.

As they drove away, Miller remarked to Wood, "a fine pair, that."

"Yes, indeed," said Wood, "Colonel Castlewain is a splendid character, and when I last saw Miss Castlewain, she was only ten years old, and I had no idea that she would grow into such a sweet and beautiful girl."

"I wasn't speaking of the Colonel and Miss Jean," replied Miller, "though they certainly are top-notchers. It was that team of thoroughbreds, I was thinking of."

"So was I," said Wood.

That afternoon the Colonel and Wood drove over to the Court House, where Major Shelby's little property was sold to Wood, at a price that just covered the mortgage and the court costs.

On the ride to and from the Court House the Colonel talked constantly of his children. His love for them was unusually great, and they were always a pleasing topic of conversation to him. Wood was also delighted to listen, for in the early days they had been very close to him. The Colonel told Wood of Harry's life since the accident at college; that on the advice of physicians he had taken him to the South of France, and that while abroad Harry had taken up the study of medicine, and was now practicing in a French city on the Mediterranean coast.

"Quite often Harry and I have talked of you and wondered what had become of you. When I last visited him, I endeavored to persuade him to return to America and take up the practice of medicine, but he has been doing a great deal of hospital work there, and has promised that after a year or so he will come back to his native state."

Just before they reached Major Shelby's home the Colonel asked Wood what his plans were.

"I am very much undecided, Colonel. I own a half interest in a ranch in Wyoming. Our property is part of an irrigation proposition, and we have been very successful with it. I know that father would be very adverse to leaving Kentucky, and I feel as though I ought to be near him, for a while at least."

"I heartily agree with you," said the Colonel, "for I believe it means much to him to be with you as in his present physical condition he would not last very long, if you were not with him."

"Doctor Henderson was at the house this morning, and practically told me the same thing, and also that he thought father would grieve terribly at leaving Kentucky. He has been a staunch friend of father's, and has done everything possible for him."

"He is a fine old physician, but Wood, I have a proposition to make you, that I have been thinking over, and I want you to take lunch with Jean and I tomorrow to talk it over."

"You are very kind, Colonel, I shall be glad to come over."

It was nearly a mile to the Castlewain home from Major Shelby's cottage, but the distance did not seem so long to Wood, as he walked over the next morning. He was happier than he had been for years, for his estrangement with his father had thrown a cloud of sadness over his life. Even the fact that the fields he passed, now level, now rolling into smiling little valleys reflecting on that spring morning the blue of the cloudless sky, had once been the property of the Shelby's, did not sadden him. Major Shelby's financial condition had necessitated the mortgaging of various parts of his property from time to time. All of these mortgages had been foreclosed, and Colonel Castlewain had acquired the property from various purchasers; and had remodeled the old Shelby homestead for his own use. Wood's boyhood days were vividly recalled to him as he passed each familiar spot, and entered the well known driveway that led through a beautiful parkland to his former home. Beneath a group of fine old forest trees he saw Jean picking Jonquils.

"Can I help you, Jean?"

As she heard Wood's voice she turned and replied, "I would be delighted to have you Wood, but I believe I have enough of these yellow beauties."

And as she walked toward the drive to greet him, she was to Wood a picture fair indeed, in her simple gown of white, the gold of the Jonquils nestling against her shoulder, and her fair white arms like ivory against the green of their stems.

They walked to the house together, and as they neared it she said to him, "does the place seem changed much to you, Wood?"

"Not much, but whatever change there is, is for the better."

"Father is out at the stables," said Jean, "but he instructed me to entertain you until he returns, so if you will sit on the veranda until I arrange my flowers, I will endeavor to carry out his instructions."

Jean soon rejoined Wood, and said to him, "since mother's death I have been managing the household, but," she said, "I do not believe father regards me as a success."

"It is said," replied Wood, "that a man's temperament is largely regulated by his home life, and your father has every appearance of being happy and contented. Here comes the Colonel to speak for himself," and as Wood greeted the NATURE smiles fair upon Spring Hill. Surrounded by a beautiful park, where noble elms and mighty oaks, majestic monarchs of the forest, lift their mighty heads from the greensward, is the Kentucky home of J. N. Camden. The house designed after the colonial period, with porticos and wide verandas, embowered in ferns, palms and evergreens is an ideal home.

Spring Hill, which is a family name, has been in the possession of Mrs. Camden's family since the days of the Indians. The old homestead was destroyed by fire a few years ago, and was rebuilt by Mr. Camden on almost similar lines. The property is about two miles from Versailles and fronts for more than a mile on the Versailles and Frankfort Pike. It comprises over 1600 acres, of which about 400 are under cultivation, the balance is used for pasture land, and here graze those monarchs of the turf, Ben Brush, Peter Quince, Helios, and other thoroughbreds, that have made the Camden stables famous.

The chief natural beauties of the place are the park and the cave. It would be hard to conceive of anything more beautiful in nature than the park. It consists of some forty acres of closely cut Blue Grass, with abundant forest trees, and well kept drives, smiling knolls rolling away into little valleys and shady nooks, tree embowered vistas of long level stretches of greensward. Many of the old forest trees covered with clinging vines stretch out their knotted and gnarled limbs, as though to extend a helping hand to their younger brethren. While Nature has been bounteous in her gifts, the artistic touch of the landscape gardener is seen everywhere. About a hundred yards to the right of the house is the natural cave from which flows waters from never failing springs, and which is the fountain head of the lake. The cave is in a cliff some forty feet high, on the face of which are beautiful ferns and climbing vines. The cliff is at the upper end of the lake, which is almost surrounded by trees, which mirror their leafy reflection on its placid waters.

To the left of the house is the sunken garden where many varieties of flowers are planted. In the center of this garden is a miniature lake, floating on the surface of which are numerous beautiful species of water plants. In the spring and summer, this garden with its thousands of flowers blooming profusely is one of the most beautiful sights imaginable. Just beyond this garden are the tennis courts and about a hundred yards over from them are the conservatories.

With all its splendid beauties Spring Hill is essentially a home, and a home wherein there is naught but refinement and good taste. Here Mr. Camden, a man of quiet force and active mind, directs the course of his many enterprises. He is constantly lending assistance to movements for public good. It has been his effort for years to assist the agricultural and cattle raising industries in Kentucky. Well knowing the absolute necessity for concerted action on the part of the Kentucky farmers to improve their condition, he months ago conceived the idea of gathering all of the farmers together in order to formulate a comprehensive line of action. The results of his efforts is given in another portion of this magazine.

Mr. Camden was born at Parkersburg, West Virginia, January 5, 1865. His father was Johnson N. Camden, for twelve years United States Senator from West Virginia. Mr. Camden was educated at Phillips Andover Academy, and the Virginia Military Institute at Lexington, Virginia, afterward attending the Columbia Law School, New York City.

He entered upon his active career as treasurer and paymaster of the Ohio River Railroad, a line which had been built by the elder Camden. This position he resigned to become president and treasurer of the construction company which was engaged in the building of a road later known as the Monongahela River Railroad, and extending from Fairmount to Clarksburg, West Virginia. In this work he continued until the completion of the line. Mr. Camden's father took an active part in the development of the West Virginia coal interests. After his death the son associated himself with John C. Mayo and W. Watson, for the purpose of developing the coal fields in eastern Kentucky. Through the efforts and influence of these gentlemen the Louisville & Nashville, the Chesapeake & Ohio, and the Baltimore & Ohio Railroads were induced to build branches into this territory, so that much of its wonderful development is due directly to Mr. Camden's energy and ability.

He has always been fond of horses, and a number of years ago he purchased from James R. Keene the noted stallion Spendthrift, with some thirty choice mares. He later added to his stud a number of famous horses, among whom were Esher, Albert, Oddfellow, Mazagan, St. Simonian and Peter Quince. As a result, the Spring Hill Farm has contributed many great thoroughbreds to the turf; and the history of the American horse owes much to Mr. Camden for the time and energy he devoted to this avocation, as well as for the important service he, with a few others, rendered in having drafted, and largely through his untiring efforts, having enacted into law a bill creating the Kentucky racing commission, of which he is now a member, a body which has succeeded in placing the sport on a high plane and thereby safeguarding racing in Kentucky from danger of legislation, following the lead of other states, which would prohibit the sport, and discourage, if not doom, the breeding of thoroughbreds in the Blue Grass State.

Mr. Camden is president of the Monongah Coal Company, and of the Woodford Bank, of Versailles, Kentucky, and is a Director of many other corporations. He was also one of the prime movers in assembling the electrical properties in and about Ashland, Kentucky, Huntington, West Virginia, and Ironton, Ohio, which were organized as the Camden Interstate Railway, of which he was the first president.

Mr. Camden's interest in his farm is not confined to agriculture and his splendid thoroughbreds by any means. Spring Hill has acquired an enviable fame for its pedigreed Hampshiredown Sheep, Berkshire Hogs, and Shetland Ponies, and numbers among them many prize winners. The time and attention he has given to the development of his thoroughbreds has been amply rewarded by results. He has now a number of fine youngsters in training, and his stud is headed by Peter Quince and Ben Brush.

Peter Quince.

There are few better bred stallions in the history of the American turf than Peter Quince. He was foaled in 1905, out of Fair Vision, by Commando, and comes of a long line of distinguished ancestors. He is chestnut in color, and one of the handsomest stallions in the United States. Peter Quince only started once at two years old, finishing second. At three he won five races, was six times placed, and but three times unplaced. He won at 7 furlongs from seven others, won at the same distance in 1:25 4-5 from Dreamer, Roseben, King Cobalt, Falcada and four others; ran second to Priscillian at 1 mile in 1:37 3-5; won over the Gravesend 6 furlong course in 1:09 1-5, and won at 6 1/2 furlongs at Sheepshead in 1:19 from Brookdale Nymph and Nimbus and at Gravesend won the Culver Handicap, about 6 furlongs in 1:09, from King Cobalt, Field Mouse, Ben Ban, Baby Wolf, DeMund and Fountainblue, by four lengths.

Peter Quince has every requisite to make a first-class sire, having size, style and finish, with a great turn of speed and could carry weight, and comes from a great sire family. He is a half-brother to the stake winner and sire Horoscope, who died early, but showed his merit as a sire. Imp. Fair Vision, dam of Peter Quince, is a full sister to Juggler and Necromancer, both successful sires in England. His great grandam foaled the good sire Letnoxlove, while the next dam was a half-sister to the Derby winner and sire Daniel O'Rourke.

Commando, sire of Peter Quince, was a high-class stake winner and sire of many winners, including Peter Pan and Colin. Commando was the best son of the great Domino, he the best son of Himyar, who was in turn the best son of the very speedy Alarm, the best son of imp. Eclipse, a sire of great speed.

Imp. Fair Vision, dam of Peter Quince, only started once, winning the Troy Stakes at Stockbridge. She also foaled Miss Tenny (who won fourteen races, including the Castleton Stakes, 5 furlongs in 58 1-2, the Saragossa Stakes, a mile in 1:40 1-2, and the Test Handicap, a mile in 1:40 1-4, and dam of Gold Ten, a stake winner of four races, including the Rose Stakes, half a mile in 46 2-5, and Miss Ogden, also a winner), and Horoscope, a horse of extreme speed, who won among his races the Grass Inaugural Stakes at Coney Island and was a good sire.

Imp. Fair Vision also foaled the very speedy Trance (who won sixteen races at 2 years old in 1908, including eleven stakes, among them the Ozone, half a mile in 46 2-5; Rose, half a mile in 46 1-5; Gaiety, 4 1/2 furlongs in 51 3-5 and Bouquet, 5 furlongs in 1:00, and

the Hindoo family, whose in the history of the American turf. The sire of Helios was imp. Star Shoot,

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT

The Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station and its Work

Edited by Thompson R. Bryant, Supt.

EDITORS NOTE—This is the second of a series of articles on The Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station and its Work, written by Mr. Thompson R. Bryant.

IN striving to illustrate to the farmer the work that is being done in the State Colleges of Farming much space is being given to the different departments in the college proper. The field work will be taken up later, and the result of demonstrations, and experiments will be given. These experiments are being made all over the United States, and the results are proving of inestimable value. There is no better soil in the world than can be found in Kentucky, but even the richest soil becomes nonproductive in time, when not properly treated.

DEPARTMENT OF ANIMAL HUSBANDRY IN THE COLLEGE PROPER

The purpose of the Department of Animal Husbandry is to teach the older farmers of Kentucky how to properly manage and feed their various classes of live stock, and to offer courses of instruction in the College to the young men who expect to become the farmers of Kentucky. The courses of instruction are intended to acquaint the young men with proper methods of examining a horse to determine his value and his soundness; to judge whether a dairy cow is of the proper type, and like instruction is given dealing with beef cattle, sheep, hogs and poultry. The students make an extended study of the value of the different feed stuffs offered for sale in Kentucky. The value of corn silage and the proper way to go about building a silo is discussed along with various other matters, relating to the live stock industry of this state.

Students Learning to Judge Registered Jersey Cattle, College Farm.

The Department endeavors to cooperate with the farmers by having judging schools in various sections of the state from time to time. A large correspondence is carried on in answering inquiries that are received daily from farmers in all sections of the state, relating to the feeding and management of live stock.

The students who take instruction in this department are taken on trips frequently to see the best horses, cattle, sheep, hogs and poultry that are owned in Central Kentucky. While visiting these farms the instructor discusses the points of perfection and imperfection possessed by each animal. In this way the students become expert judges of live stock.

The Department maintains a large dairy herd and retails milk to over two hundred patrons in Lexington. Also poultry are kept on exhibition at the poultry yard which includes over two hundred pure bred poultry of ten different varieties. The Elmendorf farm is made use of in instructing students through the kindness of Mr. Chas. H. Berryman, Manager. The largest dairy in the world is thereby placed at the disposal of the College in the instruction of students. This dairy plant includes four hundred milk cows and altogether twelve hundred Jerseys, and a $200,000 equipment in the way of barn and milk house. The Department has on test 125 of the finest imported Jerseys that are maintained on that excellent farm. The students of this Department are often sent to the dairy farms of Kentucky to make milk tests for the Advanced Registries of the various dairy breeds.

Most of the students of the Animal Husbandry Department return to their own home farms, but an occasional student desires to secure a position and the Department has placed two of its graduates as dairy experts with the Southern Railway; another one with the Heintz Preserving Company, and several with Experiment Stations located in other states.

Dr. J. H. Morgan, dairy agent of the Southern Railway system has said that when he wishes to secure a dairy agent, he selects a Kentucky student because the students here are so well fitted to give practical instruction to the farmers.

The Piggery and the $10,000 Hog Cholera Serum Plant afford excellent opportunities to acquaint students with the management of hogs, and with the treatment of these animals when diseased, and the excellent Shorthorn herd maintained at the Elmendorf farm, together with the sheep owned by that estate, furnish material for acquainting the students with the management of these types of stock.

The Department has been represented at the National Dairy Show by a dairy cattle judging team of three students, who came in competition with similar teams from fourteen leading state universities. The Kentucky boys in 1911 were successful in carrying away five out of seven trophies for which they competed. In the fall of 1912 milk and cream sent by the Department to the International Dairy Show at Milwaukee and the National Dairy Show at Chicago, was awarded a medal at each show, attesting its excellent quality. At Milwaukee these products came in competition with milk and cream from the best universities of the north; and at Chicago, the milk and cream was scored by the Government's expert judges in competition with similar institutions and with eighty-two dairymen who sent in exhibits from various parts of the United States.

ANIMAL HUSBANDRY DEPARTMENT EXPERIMENT STATION

The work of the Animal Husbandry Division of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, for the past five years, has been mainly conducted along the lines of endeavoring to discover the cause of infectious abortion in cows and mares, a disease which annually causes a large loss to stockmen of this State; the production of anti-hog cholera serum; feeding experiments with swine; dipping experiments with sheep; and forage poisoning of live stock.

The organism causing the disease of abortion in the cow and the organism causing infectious abortion in the mare have been discovered. We have determined that the disease in the cow and in the mare is caused by two distinct germs. Practical methods have been evolved of diagnosing this disease, by drawing samples of blood from the cow and mare. Bulletins have been published giving the results of these investigations. Experiments are now in progress for the determination of a method of controlling the disease.

During the past year, this Division has prepared some eighty thousand doses of anti-hog cholera serum. The equipment for the preparation of the serum, however, has been too small to keep up with the demand. A large brick laboratory and other buildings for the production of anti-hog cholera serum are now nearly com-

It is estimated that three hundred and sixty thousand dollars was saved the farmers of this state, last year, by serum obtained from this Station. The annual loss in this state from hog cholera exceeds the one million dollar mark. The amount that will be saved the commonwealth, next year, from an increase in the production of serum, will exceed one-half million dollars. A bulletin on hog cholera and the serum treatment is nearly ready for the press.

Some of the Lots for Feeding Experiments with Swine.

A bulletin will also soon be published by the Animal Husbandry Division giving the results of swine feeding experiments, conducted during the past four years at this Station.

From the results of experiments conducted by this Division in conjunction with the Bureau of Animal Industry, it was determined that flowers of sulphur does not enhance tobacco dips, in the curing of sheep scabies. As a result of this experiment, the Bureau of Animal Industry, Washington, D. C., discontinued the requirement of the addition of sulphur in tobacco dips, in the official dipping of sheep for scabies, a ruling which saves a large amount of money annually to users of tobacco dips.

A bulletin on forage poisoning, or so-called cerebro-spinal meningitis in horses, mules and cattle has also been issued by this Division.

AGRONOMY DEPARTMENT

Agronomy may well be defined as the art and science of crop production. This definition will give a good idea of the scope of work that is included under the head of agronomic investigations, and will show the fundamental importance of the work of this Division, for the study of crop production takes into account all factors which may have an influence upon the yield and-profitableness of a given crop, such as the soil, seed, culture, management and climate.

Undoubtedly the most important line of investigation of the Agronomy Division is the study of soils. The restoration and maintenance of soil fertility is one of the most important problems of the present time, and is so recognized by our best informed men.

Recently the acquisition by the Station of small farms in different parts of the state, representing different soil types in each case, offers great opportunities to learn more about the necessary treatment to bring these lands up to productivity and to maintain a high level of productiveness. This work will mean much to those sections of the state where the results secured on the Station farm do not apply because of the difference in type of land.

In crop work the Division is attempting by variety tests to find the best varieties of grains and seeds for the different sections of the state, and to provide for the distribution of such seeds. Efforts will be continually made to further improve by selection and breeding. Cultural tests with different crops are made in order to determine the methods that will give the best results, and at the same time be practical and economical in operation. Farm machinery is studied from the standpoint of economy of production, and the Division has a very creditable line of implements which it tests for different purposes.

In the College of Agriculture the Division of Agronomy gives instruction in soil physics, soil fertility, crops, plant breeding, farm mechanics and farm management. For the teaching of these subjects a splendidly equipped soil physics and soil fertility laboratory is provided and a well lighted and well equipped crop and seed laboratory.

The State Pure Food and Drug work is located at the Experiment Station, and is thus given the benefit of all of the elaborate scientific corps and equipment which the Federal Government maintains at the Station. This Department of the Station analyzed over 5,000 samples of foods and drugs in 1912, and handled 2,880 cases of adulteration or misbranding. These samples were analyzed by both chemists and bacteriologist, and covered a wide range of food and drug samples. Among the samples analyzed were artificial egg and fruit preparations used by bakers, and which contained no egg or fruit; vinegars made to look like apple vinegar, and which contained no apple; "apple" ciders which contained no apple; dried fruits containing sulphur dioxide; rice polished of its valuable phosphates, and coated with ground talcum or glucose. The drug inspector and chemist found freckle removers containing very poisonous drugs; a long list of ordinary preparations that had been either put up half strength or had deteriorated. They found a preparation being sold the farmers at an extravagant price, for feeding to cattle and hogs, and recommended to cure a long list of diseases, which was found to contain only salt, charcoal, and ordinary coppers. An investigation among pop factories found some of them to be purchasing used crown corks from the dumps, and using them again on the bottles of pop, with little or no washing. In some instances they found pops being made out of any kind of water, and in the majority of instances they found the pops containing little or no fruit.

This Department inspects the bakeries, grocery stores, slaughterhouses and dairies. The bakers have joined behind the work of inspection probably more than any other class of the trade, and the result of this work has accumulated into an experimental bakery to help in solving bakers' problems, and to help them estimate the value of various ingredients used in the products. The field inspectors have collected milk from most of the dairies, and the bacteriologist has examined it for contamination. This inspection not only includes finding a fault with the sample obtained from the market, but the following up and taking of samples from the various points in the dairyman's process, and showing just where the objectionable bacteria come into the milk, and how to correct it.

The Department regards the municipal abattoir as the best remedy for the local meat situation. It has made a study of the municipal abattoir system both in this country and abroad, and has drawn plans for any city or town wanting such advice.

One important feature of the work has been sanitary conditions in the preparation and sale of food, and the task of changing conditions among the numberless ice cream makers, pop factories, retail grocery stores, meat markets, poultry-killing establishments, slaughterhouses, and so on, has been a very difficult one. This Department of the Station states that the sanitary side of the food supply is one in which the trade, the consumers, and the local city and county officials must cooperate if substantial results are established and maintained.

The Kentucky Pure Food work has accomplished the putting of labels showing adulteration or substitution upon a large number of food products. These labels have been put on after many fights for the benefit of consumers. Consumers can now tell whether a drug contains a habit-forming or poisonous ingredient, or whether the foods contain an inferior substitute, or a preservative, by reading the labels.

about ranch life until I got here, and while I thought I was some rider in the East I soon found that riding a cow pony was an especial education in itself. I have spent most of my spare time, when no one was around, practicing with a rope and trying out a few of the milder bronches over in the back corral. I was getting along fairly well with my experiments till I struck "old Pete" yesterday and the result was rather disastrous. I gave the cook a dollar to patch me up last night, and he told me "old Pete" was the mildest mannered and "ornieriest" bronch that was ever touched by pigskin. "Hurt you, did he?" I asked. "Well, he bruised me up considerably and my arm is very sore." I made him take off his shirt, and his side was a mass of bruises. I tell you, I admired that boy's pluck. His right arm was so sore that he could barely raise it. His whole right side was black and blue. Nobody had known anything about it excepting the cook, whom he had bribed to keep quiet. I was out on range business all the next day, and when I got back the boys had had their supper. The cook told me that "Tex" had returned that morning, and that he was afraid there was going to be trouble between "Tex" and Dave. He told me that Dave's pony had disappeared, and that that afternoon the boys had kindly offered to select a new mount for Dave. They had insisted on his going over with them to the back corral, where they had roped and saddled "old Pete", and led him out for Dave to ride. Dave had refused to accept their selection and told them he would pick out a horse for himself the next day. Whereupon "Tex" had said, "What's the matter? Are you afraid of him?" in a sneering tone. Dave had answered, "No, but I'm not riding any man-killers for the education of friendly cowboys," and he turned away and went back to the bunk house. Now "Tex" was a powerful fellow with something of a reputation as a pugilist. On those rare occasions when a cowboy gets to town "Tex" would celebrate by getting very drunk, and for a week afterwards seemed to be possessed of an evil spirit (not meaning to pun), and it was very difficult to do anything with him. After that was over he was not a bad fellow, and well liked by the boys. Knowing his little peculiarities, I hastened over to the bunk house, for I feared trouble, as I feared it I heard "Tex's" loud voice, and Dave's calm tone, slightly raised, answering with cutting sarcasm. I knew what the result would be so I hurried in, just in time to see both of them on the center of the floor, to see "Tex" strike at Dave, and as Dave ducked sideways, to see "Tex" grasp him by the shoulders. "Tex" was some fifty pounds the heavier, with a grip like steel, and I knew the pain that that boy must have suffered. I jumped in and with some little effort, pulled "Tex" off, and said to him, "You big brute, in the future I want you and the rest of your gentlemanly companions to understand one thing, and that is that this boy is to be let alone. I turned to Dave, who meanwhile had recovered his composure, and said, "Take off your shirt, Dave, I want to show the boys something." "I shall do no such thing, Wood, I am amply able to deal with these gentlemen, myself." But I cut him short, and said, "Don't be a fool, if you won't show them, I will." So I reached over and tore open his shirt and showed the boys his side. "This boy got this yesterday, from trying to ride 'old Pete,' and you can easily see that he is in no condition to ride a bucking bronch, or to scrap with anybody." Despite all their roughness the boys were manly, and I could see that they were ashamed. I gave them a little lecture and they all shook hands with Dave, even "Tex", and it wasn't very long until he was the most popular man there.

"No wonder he thinks so much of you, Wood," said Jean, "but Betty writes me that there was some story about your shooting a man out West. Won't you tell me about it?"

Wood straightened up in his chair, and his voice trembled imperceptibly. "I never shot a man." "Then there was no truth to the story that you shot someone." "Yes," replied Wood, "I shot a woman."

CHRISTIAN MARTYRS GIVEN TO THE LIONS

CHRISTIANITY is the greatest fact in history. The early Christians endured martyrdom rather than forsake Principle. The picture shown herewith, from Ridpath's History, depicts 87,000 people assembled in the Coliseum at Rome to witness the Christians given to the lions. In such a scene may be read the inevitable doom of the Empire that ruled the world. The blood of the Martyrs is the seed from which Christian civilization sprang. Nine Beautiful Royal Octavo Volumes.

4,000 double column pages
2,000 superb illustrations

RIDPATH'S enviable position as an historian is due to his wonderfully beautiful style, a style no other historian has ever equalled. He pictures the great historical events as though they were happening before your eyes; he carries you with him to see the battles of old; to meet kings and queens and warriors; to sit in the Roman Senate; to march against Saladin and his dark-skinned followers; to sail the Southern Seas with Drake; to circumnavigate the globe with Magellan; to watch the Greek spearmen work havoc with the Persian hordes on the field of Marathon. He combines absorbing interest with supreme reliability.

RIDPATH in your home means you need never spend a lonely evening. You can associate with the world's heroes; you can cross the Rubicon with Caesar, after which Rome was free no more. You can sit at the feet of Socrates, the loftiest genius of the ancient world. It is ennobling to commune with these children of destiny. To be associated with great men and events is to be great one's self, and you will add to your store of knowledge, which is power, and to the richness of your life.

RIDPATH takes you back to the dawn of history, long before the pyramids of Egypt were built; down through the romantic, troubled times of Chaldea's grandeur and Assyria's magnificence; of Babylon's wealth and luxury; of Grecian and Roman splendor; of Mohammedan culture and refinement; of French elegance and British power; of American patriotism and religious freedom, to the dawn of yesterday. He covers every race, every nation, every time, and holds you spellbound by his wonderful eloquence. Nothing more interesting, absorbing and inspiring was ever written by man.

RIDPATH throws the mantle of personality over the old heroes of history. Alexander is there; patriot, warrior, statesman, diplomat, crowning the glory of Grecian history. Xerxes, from his mountain platform, sees Themistocles, with three hundred and fifty Greek ships, smash his Persian fleet of over a thousand sail, and help to mould the language in which this paragraph is written. Rome perches Nero upon the greatest throne on earth, and so sets up a poor madman's name to stand for countless centuries as the synonym of savage cruelty; Napoleon fights Waterloo again under your very eyes, and reels before the iron fact that at last the end of his gilded dream has come. Bismarck is there, gruff, overbearing, a giant pugilist in the diplomatic ring, laughing with grim disdain at France, which says "You shall not." Washington is there, "four-square to all the winds," grave, thoughtful, proof against the wiles of British strategy and the poisoned darts of false friends; clear-seeing over the heads of his fellow-countrymen, and on into another century, the most colossal world-figure of his time.

Great Opportunity Now In Buying and Pasturing Beef Cattle

Never in the history of the world, was there so great a demand for meat, and prices so high. In the last five years the number of cattle on the farms has decreased about 10,000,000 head. In the face of the above what may you expect? Higher prices for meat, of course; and it is already up some now. So get ready to reap the benefits of the approaching high prices by buying cheap lands for pasturing beef cattle, sheep, etc. You can pasture 200 head of cattle from March to November on 800 acres of land easily; and they should double in weight in that length of time easily. Say that they average 300 pounds to the head, then you would have 60,000 lbs. of beef in March, and if they double by November your gain would be 90,000 pounds. At the low price of 5c per pound they would net you $4,500, less the salt. Just the pasture off of the land, and then the land would be better also at the end of November.

Is there anything better in sight for you? The cattle can be easily bought, and can be had at a reasonable price. So what is in the way to hinder you from applying your time in pasturing cattle. You can buy the land on time or for cash. B. F. Schroeder, Murray, Ky., offers 800 acres of land for $4,000 or $5 per acre. This is fine pasture land, almost covered in Japan clover. This land has not failed to raise a peach crop in 20 years. The crop always hits. Suppose you had 1000 Alberta peach trees on this land and you was sure of a crop each year, don't you know it would net you a nice sum of money? This land is in easy access to river transportation and in Calloway county. See him.

Public Sale of Land.

Hughes, deceased, will offer for sale and sell to the highest bidder, on Saturday, September 27, 1913, one track of land containing 64 acres, located one mile southwest of Coldwater, on the Browns Grove road, known as the M. M. Hughes farm. Land is without improvements. Sale will be held on the land at 1 o'clock p. m. Terms made known on day of sale. 9111*
