Many Voters Undecided On Constitution

Kentucky Poll Reveals 45 Per No Opinion

38% YES—175 NO

With the election less than three weeks away, a new poll about how they will vote if the voters will decide in November whether the Constitution of Kentucky should be amended.

This was revealed today by the Kentucky Poll, a nationwide political research organization. The poll was made by telephone interviews with voters throughout the state.

The exact wording of the question, which asked those respondents to indicate how they would vote if the voters would vote, included the following: "Are you in favor of amending the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Kentucky until the 1879 Constitution can be amended?"

The poll also revealed that 175 respondents said they had no opinion.

The arguments over the causes and cure of the business boom take on a more heated character. Labor leaders operate with the same vigor as the business leaders. The government takes a middle ground, urging caution but not outspokenly favoring the policies of either side. And a good many consumers seem to feel that the price hike is the fault of labor.

Greece Is Dangerous

The productivity of labor is all important. And the cure, if there is to be one, can be found only in the fundamental changes that must be made in the economic system. The truth is that the guilt must be shared by all. In the long run, the capital and capital blames labor. Various attempts have been made to establish a relationship between the two groups. But the attempt of some businesses to earn excessive profits comes into the same category. And the same.

For many reasons, this condition is a dangerous one. The fever of patriotism is raging over the whole of Western Europe. The training grounds for war are fertile fields. And it is not surprising that the whole world seems to be preparing for a new war. The only hope lies in the creation of a new economic system that will provide for a more equitable distribution of wealth and a greater degree of social justice. And yet, we find advocates of capitalism who argue that it is the only system that can work. It is a dangerous and misleading argument. The system of capitalism is based on private ownership of the means of production, and this system has created a class of wealthy landowners who control the economic life of the nation. In such a system, the profits of the business leaders are not limited to the workers alone. They are also shared by the rich and the powerful, who control the government and the banks. The system of capitalism is based on the belief that the market will regulate itself and that competition will bring about a fair distribution of wealth. But this is not true. The market is controlled by the wealthy few, and competition is a disguise for the exploitation of the working class. The system of capitalism must be replaced by a new economic system that will provide for a more equitable distribution of wealth and a greater degree of social justice.
