War Memorial Site Dedicated

Mayfield Hears Army's Major General Gavin In Ceremony Tuesday

Mayfield—Maj. Gen. James M. Gavin, the Army's youngest general, dedicated the site for the Graves county World War II memorial yesterday afternoon at a ceremony held just outside the western city limits of Mayfield.

Mrs. Allie Pogue, mother of one son killed in the war and of another who was injured, dug the first shovelful of earth as a climax to the ground-breaking and dedication ceremonies.

Gen. Gavin made a strong plea for preparedness against another war. "The security we so proudly desire and our people unceasingly seek must be provided by defense from assaults without our country and defense from assaults within," he declared.

The present memorial site includes 40 acres, and 50 adjacent acres are under option. Proposed features of the project are a municipal stadium for football and basketball, a municipal auditorium, a swimming pool and a park and playground.

Roy D. Williams, president of the Graves county War Memorial Association, opened the program with a brief tribute to the war dead.

Waterfield In Campaign Talk At Fancy Farm

Publisher Making Tour Of District Through Friday

Harry Lee Waterfield, Clinton newspaper publisher who is seeking the Democratic nomination for governor of Kentucky, spoke at 3:30 this afternoon at the annual Fancy Farm picnic to one of the largest crowds ever to attend the annual event.

Earlier today, the candidate had visited Kevil LaCenter, Barlow, Wickliffe, Bardwell, Arlington and Milburn. A number of Fulton countians heard Waterfield ask his First District audience to help him become governor of the state at the Fancy Farm festival.

His principal opponent in the Democratic primary, Congressman Earle C. Clements, also spoke at Fancy Farm this afternoon.

Speaking yesterday at Carrollton, Ky., Waterfield declared: "If the Kentucky Utilities Company succeeds in electing Earle C. Clements governor, every consumer of private electric power can expect a sharp increase in his electric light bills within 90 days after Clements takes office."

The Kentucky Utilities Company is ready now to file an application for a blanket state-wide increase of electric-power rates in Kentucky if my opponent becomes Governor next December," Waterfield charged.

Waterfield continued his pledge to work for the Kentucky Education Association's recommendation for an increase of $16,000,000 a year to provide the minimum needs to lift Kentucky's educational system to the national level.

The Waterfield-for-Governor motorcade will tour Marshall, Livingston, Crittenden, Lyon, Caldwell, Christian and Trim counties tomorrow, and the candidate will return to his home counties of Fulton and Hickman Friday afternoon.

Johnson was scheduled to meet first with Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett and others at noon and begin drafting two possible alternatives for again tackling the Balkan problem within the United Nations.

District Education Association Backs Harry Waterfield

Mayfield—Members of the board of directors of the First District Education Association meeting at the Hall Hotel here yesterday through their president, Dennis McDaniel, endorsed the candidacy of Harry Lee Waterfield for the Democratic nomination for governor.

The resolution passed by the group cited Waterfield's records in front of the City Drug store to form a motorcade to tour portions of the district on Thursday in his behalf.

Durbin Motorcade Will Be Organized Thursday Morning

Friends of Paul Durbin, candidate for the Democratic nomination for railroad commissioner of the First District in the Aug. 2 primary, will gather tomorrow morning at 8:30 o'clock in front of the City Drug store to form a motorcade to tour portions of the district on Thursday in his behalf.

It's important to cut off the rat's source of food, Barry explained, because a well-fed rat reproduces more rapidly and in greater numbers than a poorly fed one. Also, hungry rats will eat the poisoned bait more readily, he said.

Barry said other Fulton clubs and organizations would be contracted within the next few days in an attempt to obtain sponsorship for the city-wide war on rats.

Washington, July 30—(AP)—Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) said today he will call on former Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones to tell what he knows about the $18,000,000 government contract Howard Hughes holds for a 200-ton flying boat.

Ferguson heads the Senate War Investigating subcommittee which is trying to find out how the multi-millionaire Hughes and Henry J. Kaiser got approximately $40,000,000 worth of wartime plane contracts.

The committee already has heard from Kaiser that Admiral William D. Leahy, presidential chief of staff and the late President Roosevelt's top adviser on military matters, had a hand in the negotiations.

Kaiser and his aide, Chad F. Calhoun, testified yesterday that they went to the White House at the suggestion of Donald Nelson, then War Production Board chief. There they conferred with Leahy who was "very much for the idea," Calhoun said.

Who's Extravagant?

There is a note of desperation in the campaign of Congressman Earle C. Clements. Nothing could testify so eloquently to the truth of independent reports which show Harry Lee Waterfield taking the lead in the same stretch of the Democratic primary. Clements headquarters meets this challenge with an old political weapon, a campaign of fear.

Thus Mr. Clements seeks to brand his opponent as "extravagant" and utters dire threats of new taxes which would result from the Waterfield program. Again, this must be proof that the Waterfield program has impressed the voters. The only escape seems to be to raise a storm among business interests and other conservative groups. A "Citizens Taxpayers Committee" in Clements runs an advertisement in the state press raising a cry of "bankruptcy" as the State if Waterfield is allowed to carry out his program of aid for education, welfare, public health, and other services close to the hearts of Kentuckians.

Let's examine this charge of Waterfield extravagance. Allan Trout took the campaign planks of Waterfield and Clements and laid them alongside each other a month ago, in a series of articles in this paper. He analyzed the promises the candidates had made, and put a price tag on each. His conclusion was that "the total program of Mr. Clements would be just as expensive as would Mr. Waterfield's."

The difference between the two candidates is that Waterfield has been honest enough to say just what he would propose spending for specific services, while Clements has clung to general statements. Thus Waterfield speaks on education: "I have taken the request of K. E. A. at face value. I believe it to represent the needs of education. I shall recommend its adoption by the 1948 General Assembly." That is a pledge of about $20,000,000 additional funds a year. But Mr. Clements declares: "I have endorsed the objective of the K. E. A.'s program." He further advocates "a minimum wage for teachers," "decent buildings and first rate equipment," "adequate supervision," and "a system of higher education second to none." Where does this differ from Mr. Waterfield's pledge? All of these objectives are a part of the K. E. A. program, and they would cost money under Clements as well as under Waterfield.

As another example, Waterfield definitely pledges $2,500,000 to match Federal and local funds for building hospitals. Clements declares for "full participation" in the Federal-aid program. What does that mean except the same pledge his opponent gave, without the honest price tag attached? And so the story goes all through their list of pledges. The Clements way is the old-fashioned political way, to promise much without getting committed to specific figures. The Waterfield way is the new way, to tell the voters what it will cost to achieve the objectives they want for their State. When the fog is strained off from the Clements statements and the true meaning brought to light, he is found to commit the State to expenditures every bit as heavy as those he condemns in his "extravagant" opponent.

One other difference is the position of the two men on sources of new revenue. Waterfield is plainly pledged to a five per cent tax on the winning tickets on pari-mutuels. Clements will not identify himself with any new tax, though his promises are just as expensive. The furthest he will go is to assert that "the secret of increased appropriations is increased income." He then proposes an adoption of the Mississippi Plan, as a means of increasing income by bringing new industry into the State.

Kentucky needs industry. It must be pointed out, however, that a counterpart of the Mississippi Plan could bring little new money to the State during the next administration at Frankfort. For one thing, the plan calls for a five-year exemption of new industries from certain State and all local ad valorem taxes. For another, it could not be adopted in Kentucky without a change in the State Constitution. A fundamental point of the Mississippi program is the financing of plants for private industries by counties and municipalities. Such a practice is forbidden by Section 179 of our Constitution.—Courier-Journal.

Labor Party Troubles

By Dewitt MacKenzie, AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

England's exceedingly brave economic crisis has produced—after the manner of this affliction—a political storm which has the country by the ears and is causing Prime Minister Attlee's Labor (Socialist) government much concern.

The great Conservative party, which was thrown out of power two years ago by the Socialists, charges that labor has divided the country at a time when unity is paramount. Newspapers of all complexions have been lambasting the cabinet. Even the Daily Mirror, long a staunch supporter of the Attlee regime, now declares that the premier has failed to cope with the pressing economic problems. The Mirror goes so far as to demand that he resign.

Whether this storm will clear up quickly remains to be seen. We may get some clarification when Attlee meets with the Labor members of Parliament in caucus to explain to that critical gathering just why the goddess of fortune seems to be mad with Britain's experimental Socialist government.

Mr. Attlee most certainly will maintain that the good lady really isn't angry but that the country is suffering from a heavy hangover for which his government isn't responsible and which it hasn't been able to overcome as yet. One doesn't venture to predict what further he will say, but it will have to be plenty to satisfy all quarters of his party because the question of leadership is heavily involved.

The crux of the situation actually is the badly lagging industrial production, and that in turn is due to low coal production as I pointed out in yesterday's column. The solution of the difficulty depends in large degree on persuading the coal miners—who finally won their five day week—to surrender that cherished prize for a time in the interests of the country and return to the old grind—temporarily, to be sure, but still to turn the clock back.

That's where the question of leadership enters in, and way British newspapers are suggesting that Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin may succeed Mr. Attlee in event of the latter's resignation. Bevin is credited with being the country's most powerful leader of the labor masses. He himself came up through union ranks, and he thinks the thoughts and talks the language of the laborer. The union members love him.

Bevin is one of Britain's most forceful personalities, and a born leader. He has astute judgement, and is a good executive. Though sometimes rash in his bluntness, he is a brilliant and colorful speaker, capable of dealing either with an audience of workers or a conference of international statesmen. He is a fighter and likes a good scrap.

Small wonder then that many of his party should think of him as being the right man to inspire the workers of the country to undertake the production needed to put England on her feet, especially since he is exceedingly strong with the miners. Small wonder, too, that there are many who feel sure he would like to be prime minister, although the question of his loyalty to his present chief doesn't arise.

However, Bevin isn't the only fighter among the labor leaders. Prime Minister Attlee is one of the sturdiest of the lot, and is sure to battle to retain his leadership—unless he becomes satisfied that he has lost the support of the Labor party. But Attlee has a universal reputation of being a sincere and loyal servant of the state, and few doubt that he would resign if he found that he had lost the confidence of his party. Then he might recommend to the King that Bevin be named prime minister.

followed by the song "The More We Get Together." After a brief business session, the meeting adjourned for a delicious noon-time lunch. At 1 o'clock the meeting resumed, with the project leaders as follows: Mrs. Robert Rucker, home management; Mrs. Louise Muzzall, health; Mrs. Maude Holliday, garden; Mrs. Mabie Nabors, poultry; Mrs. Bettie Watts, family life; and Mrs. Madge Connor, nutrition.

BETTER HEALTH FOR BETTER LIVING

The last three decades have brought many changes in matters pertaining to health. The normal span of life has been increased materially. Consider diabetes, for example. Diabetes was first recognized about the time of Moses, or 200 years before the birth of King Tut. Yet, it was not until 1922 that a specific remedy was discovered. Today, through the use of Insulin and a balanced diet, the diabetic can reasonably expect to live about as long as anybody. Your physician will promptly recognize the symptoms of diabetes. He knows all about the treatment. And remember this, all advertised cures for diabetes are questionable. Don't be victimized by the swindlers.

Knoxville, Tenn., July 30—(AP)—Lack of a meeting place may cause postponement of an address scheduled here tonight by Dr. Samuel Green of Atlanta, Ga., Grand Dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, according to J. A. Lynch, a member of the Society of Southern Traditions. Lynch told the Knoxville Journal last night that use of a theater had been refused the Knoxville chapter of the society, and stated that City Manager Robert L. Wall Street Report

New York, July 30—(AP)—Leading stocks made a feeble effort at a comeback today, after the sharpest market relapse in more than three months, although there were enough offerings to keep many pivots in losing ground. Dealings slowed appreciably after an active opening and narrow irregularity prevailed near midday. In the resistant area were Chrysler, General Motors, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, Standard Oil (N.J.), Wesson Oil (on a pleasing year-end disbursement), Dow Chemical and General Electric. Occasional stumblers were Godeyer, Montgomery Ward, J. I. Case, American Telephone, Anaconda, Kennecott, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, Union Carbide, Southern Railway, Union Pacific, Norfolk & Western and Pennsylvania Railroad. Bonds were mixed and cotton futures lower.

"Backward Glances" At Fulton

By Ouida Jewell

Two votes! Yes, indeed, that was all that was needed for Fulton to have been a part of the District of Columbia today! You see, back in 1812, when those mean old Britkers burned our White House at Washington, a group of angry citizens got together and agreed that the capital of these United States should be elsewhere—some place farther away from the coast. So what was the people's choice? Our neighbor, Columbus, Kentucky!

Well, some didn't agree; so they put it to a vote—Washington or Columbus. Here we lapsed out, mind you, just by two votes. So, if only two more people had voted our way, we would have been part of the District of Columbia today. Can you imagine that? By the way, have you ever thought about how Fulton's streets were named? The name of Lake Street, Fulton's oldest street, came about in this manner: J. A. Collins had a small store, with a residence adjoining, on what is now known as Lake Street—then unnamed. One day a traveling salesman—known in those days as a drummer—sold Mr. Collins a bill of goods. After making his purchase, Mr. Collins said, "Well, address this to J. A. Collins, Fulton, Ky." The salesman replied, "You forgot to give me your street address."

Mr. Collins turned, looked out the window at the big mud puddle, where bull-frogs were jumping in and out of the water that was the road. Mr. Collins turned again and said, "Lake Street." The name stuck. This old Collins building was later moved to a spot near the village, where it now stands next to Ford Liquor Store. Other familiar streets in Fulton derived their names in the following manner: Carr street was named after Ben Carr, on whose farm West Fulton was built. Norman street gained its name in honor of the Norman family whose farm was once located where East Fulton is now built. Cedar street got its name from a big cedar tree, which stood at the corner of what is now State Line and Cedar. And Eddings street—after Bruce Eddings, at one time a very prosperous Fulton merchant.

Some schools of yesterday were the "Sarah Welsh Select

School for Girls

"The Seminary" and "Prof. Phipps School for Boys." Sarah Welsh, an aunt of Mrs. W. W. Morris, was a widow. Her Select School for Girls was in the big brick residence adjoining Butts Grocery (the old store). Adjoining the school was a big two-story frame house which was used for a dormitory. Girls from the country and adjoining towns boarded here. Fulton girls attending the school usually lived in their own homes. Because of ill health, Mrs. Welsh closed her school some 60 years ago. In those days "The Seminary" was a very popular school. It was a two-story frame building, located near Smith's Cafe. It burned and was never rebuilt. Prof. Phipps School for Boys was a low one-story brick building located on Norman street, now the site of Mrs. F. R. Hillman's residence. Prof. Phipps was a large man. He was very dignified and always wore a shiny stove-pipe hat, and a "Prince Albert" coat, with its long tails. He invariably carried a gold headed cane. Prof. Phipps was a bachelor, but was in love with Mary Mont Ayer, a young widow. One day while passing her—being the perfect gentleman that he was—kept watching her as he passed. Not noticing where he was going, he stepped into one of Lake street's big mud puddles and fell.

Jews Execute Two Tommies

Sergeants Are Hanged In Reprisal For Killing Of Three Jew Terrorists Jerusalem, July 30—(AP)—Irgun Zvai Leumi issued a "communiqué" today asserting that two British sergeants whom it kidnaped July 12 had been hanged in a forest near Natanya in reprisal for the execution of three Irgun members at Acre Prison yesterday. Shortly after the "communiqué" was issued from Tel Aviv, a police source there reported that the bodies of the two soldiers had been found. Official government sources, however, were not immediately able to confirm that the sergeants—Clifford Martin and Nordin Paice—had been slain. In issuing its "communiqué," Irgun Zvai Leumi also disclosed that it had received an appeal for clemency for Paice's father, but said it had been ignored because it should have been directed "to those who refused clemency" to the executed Irgunists. "We cannot do anything about it," Irgun said the elder Paice had been told. At times as many as 125,000 Moslems have visited Mecca in a year.
