THE MURRAY LEDGER.

VOL. 30, NO. 2

MURRAY, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, MAY 14, 1914

$1.00 PER YEAR

ROOSTER DAY

Produce Dealers Will Pay Extra Price for Roosters to Improve Egg Crop.

Saturday, May 23, will be known throughout the states of Kentucky and Tennessee as "Rooster Day." On this day the different members of the Southern Poultry and Egg Shippers' Association will buy direct from the farmers all the old roosters offered them for sale, paying for them the same price as they pay for hens on that day. The object in buying old roosters at a price that will net the produce dealers a loss of 5 cents to 6 cents per pound, is to have the farmers produce infertile eggs during the hot summer months.

In order for the farmers to secure the extreme price for old roosters on Rooster Day, it will be necessary for them to carry out the following agreement with the produce dealers:

The farmer on Rooster Day must bring to the produce dealer every old rooster he has on his premises and must sign an agreement with the produce dealer not to allow an old rooster on his premises or to mingle with his flock of hens from May 23, 1914, until October 1, 1914.

During the hot summer months thousands upon thousands of dollars' worth of eggs are spoiled by the simple fact that they are fertile and commence hatching within twenty-four hours after being laid. This entire loss can practically be eliminated if the farmers will dispose of their old roosters on Rooster day, and produce infertile eggs during the hot months.

Without any question of doubt a hen will lay just as many, or more, eggs without a rooster in the flock, than she will with him. The hatching season is over in the month of May, so it is asked: "Why should a farmer keep an old rooster on his place and feed him for several months at dead loss and in addition to that have all the eggs fertilize so that they will spoil quickly and consequently cause the eggs to be handled at low prices, when he can get rid of feeding the old rooster and produce infertile eggs that will keep a reasonable length of time?"

The produce dealers in these states do not buy heavily of eggs during the hot summer months for the simple reason that most of the eggs are fertile and spoil before they reach the consumer. The large eastern cities refuse to buy eggs from these two states during the summer months as the quality is inferior. The quality can be made equal to that of any state in the Union, if the farmers will only dispose of their old roosters and produce infertile eggs, and it is said that every farmer should be interested in increasing the price of his product, and that he can easily do it if he will sell, kill or confine his old roosters after Rooster Day.

The young roosters that are hatched this spring will be large enough for service before next hatching season, so it is an easy matter to replace the old roosters without additional expense to the farmer.

T. J. Holcomb Company, the local produce dealers, have agreed to pay for old roosters the same price as they pay for hens on Rooster Day.

Thrown From Horse Onto Train.

A story has just been told and got into print, which is almost incredible, but as the scene of the plot was at Martin, that likely little village over in the good old county of Weakley, we are going to accept it as the truth until we hear it denied by Brother Lee Turner, of the Martin Mail, the "George Washington" of Weakley.

Here is the story: "While Ralph, the seven year old son of Esq. J. L. Wood, was riding on horseback near a railroad track his horse became badly frightened and ran headlong into a passing freight train that was running at the rate of about 30 miles an hour. The horse struck the train such a terrific blow that the lad was thrown several feet over the horse's head on to an empty flat car, on which he rode for several yards and jumped off."

"The horse was instantly killed, while the boy escaped with only a few bruises."

Brakeman Killed.

C. A. Wynne, a brakeman on the N. C. & St. L. Railroad was instantly killed at Lexington Saturday by a switch engine. His foot became fastened in a guard rail, from which he was unable to extricate himself. Both legs were severed. Wynne's home was at Hazel, Ky., and he was 25 years old.

Have Record Wheat Crop.

Washington, May 11. — Kentucky's winter wheat yield will be ninety-eight per cent of the possible crop, on an acreage of 745,000 acres, it is estimated here by the Department of Agriculture, in a bulletin just prepared.

The bulletin estimates that the production of wheat in Kentucky will be 10,200,000 bushels. That this year's will be the greatest crop of winter wheat ever grown in the United States, one-fifth again as large as the record crop grown last year and more than half as large again as that harvested in 1912, is the prediction in the bulletin.

In all 630,000,000 bushels will be produced if the highly favorable weather conditions existing since the crop was planted last fall continue until harvest time. The acreage abandoned through unfavorable conditions of winter weather amounted to only three and one-tenth per cent of the area planted—an unusually low area. This makes the area to be harvested the record, one of 35,387,000 acres.

Indications in Kansas are that that state will have a crop of 132,000,000 bushels, and in Oklahoma the indications are for 35,000,000 bushels.

Decoration.

The M. W. A. Camp, of New Concord, will decorate Neighbor Claude Edwards' grave Sunday, June 7th, at 2 o'clock. Every body is invited. The W. O. W. Sovereigns are invited to take part in the exercises. R. A. Abritten, Clerk.

IN CONVENTION

1,500 Baptist Messengers Already in Nashville to Attend Big Meeting.

Nashville, Tenn., May 12. — The advance guard of the 1,500 messengers to the Southern Baptist convention, which convenes for a five-days' session today, is now in Nashville. Among those here now is Dr. Lansing Burrows, of Americus, Ga., formerly of Nashville, pastor, who is considered by many as the convention's possible choice for president. A number of foreign missionaries will be among the visitors at the convention. Particular interest attaches to what those who have been stationed in Mexico will report on conditions there.

Nashville is particularly interested over agitation that has been going on looking to bringing the Home Mission Board and the Foreign Mission Board to Nashville, where the Sunday school Board has just completed a building costing $160,000, one of the handsomest in the city. Leaders in the convention who are here now, believe however, that the two boards will be removed from their respective locations—Atlanta and Richmond.

Other matters of interest that the convention will hear of will be the report of the committee to consider establishing of a theological seminary for the negro Baptists. Dr. E. Y. Mullins, of Louisville, is chairman of the committee. Another special committee will report on ways and means of improving the financial conditions of the pastors of the church.

Chamberlain's Liniment

This preparation is intended especially for rheumatism, lame back, sprains and like ailments. It is a favorite with people who are well acquainted with its splendid qualities. Mrs. Chas. Tanner, of Wabash, Ind., says of it, "I have found Chamberlain's Liniment the best thing for lame back and sprains I have ever used. It works like a charm and relieves pain and soreness. It has been used by others of my family as well as myself for upwards of twenty years." 25 and 50 cent bottles. For sale by all dealers.

Trigg County

As the result of a misunderstanding over a settlement for some land, J. W. Porter, a native of this county, shot and killed Hugh Talbott, a real estate dealer, recently at Hypoluxo, Fla. Mr. Porter is a brother of I. B. Porter, who lives several miles south of here, and the facts of the trouble, as reported in a paper from that place, are about these: Talbott represented a real estate company which had bought Porter's land near Hypoluxo and had divided it up into lots and sold same, and in the settlement with Mr. Porter for this land some misunderstanding arose as to the amount due Porter, which resulted in Porter shooting Talbott one time, and death resulted the following day.

Porter's trial is set for some time in June, but his brother, I. B. Porter, left here Sunday for Hypoluxo to render what assistance he could to his brother, and it is sincerely hoped by his many old Trigg County friends that it will develop in the trial that he was justifiable in doing what he did.

After an illness of six weeks of pneumonia, coupled with other complications, Mrs. Eliza

White Harper died here Sunday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Sam Boyd, on East Main Street. She was a native of Trigg County and was the oldest daughter of the late Rev. John F. White, who died in this county a number of years ago.

Miss May Birdsong, formerly of this county but who has been living with her sister, Mrs. F. M. Franklin, in Marshall County, for the past year, was married last Saturday in Cairo, Ill., to L. L. Nelson, of Paducah.

James T. Wood died last Saturday morning at his home, two miles east of Cerulean, of dropsy and other complications.

A religious debate, to last four days, began at Newton's Store, in the southern part of the county, Tuesday. The debaters are Rev. Boyce Taylor, Baptist, of Murray, and Rev. Nichols, of the Christian Church who is from Texas. A large tent has been procured, and the debate is being held in this tent.

Lynn Bell, who lives on Phil Thompson's farm, three miles south of here, happened to a very painful accident Tuesday afternoon while making ties. His axe glanced and struck his left foot, cutting the big toe and next toe entirely off, along with a part of the right side of the foot.

Emma, little 4-year old daughter of Burley Broadbent, who lives on Sinking Fork, above Cadiz, died Sunday afternoon about 5 o'clock of brain fever. She had been sick for ten days.

Dr. Sires Married

Last Tuesday afternoon at the pleasant country home of C. M. Green one and one half miles south of town Miss Burrell Rufus Wood and Dr. D. H. Sires, of Murray, were united in marriage. Rev. J. B. Pearson officiating. The wedding took place at 5 o'clock and was beautiful in its simplicity.

Refreshments were served and immediately the couple left for Murray where they will make their future home.

Only the family and near relatives were present. — Benton Tribune-Democrat.

Whooping Cough.

"About a year ago my three boys had whooping cough and I found Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the only one that would relieve their coughing and whooping spells. I continued this treatment and was surprised to find that it cured the disease in a very short time," writes Mrs. Archie Dalrymple, Crooksville, Ohio. For sale by Dale & Stubblefield.

Veterans Have Returned

Nearly all of the Confederate Veterans and visitors from this section who attended the reunion at Jacksonville, Fla., returned home last Saturday. Both in the point of attendance and hospitality dispensed, the veterans state, the reunion at Jacksonville was one of the most successful ever held. Col. Bennett H. Young, of Louisville, was re-elected commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, defeating Gen. Felix Robertson, of Texas.

Richmond, Va., has been chosen for the 1915 reunion. The present departmental commanders, Gen. Theodore S. Garrett, Norfolk, Va., commander of the Army of Northern Virginia; Gen. Geo. P. Harrison, Opelika, Ala., commander of the department of Tennessee; and Gen. W. E. Vandever, Ft. Worth, Texas, commander of the department of Trans-Mississippi, were re-elected by acclamation.

WILL CLOSE

Next Week the Last of the Present Term of the Murray School.

MISS LENA POOL
MISS MARY McELRATH
MISS HILDA WILLIAMS
MISS OLA EDWARDS
MISS MARY CUTHIN
MISS ADRIAN BARNETT
MR. HUGH MELUGIN
MR. LOYD BYRD
MR. HAYDEN ROBERTS
MR. HAL JENNINGS

Next week will witness the close of the 1913-14 term of the Murray High School, and a class of eleven graduates will result from the labors of the year. The closing exercises will take place next Friday night in the auditorium of the school building and will consist of an address to be delivered by the Hon. Jas. Wheeler, of Paducah, and a musical program by the high school chorus.

The closing term has been one of the most successful in the history of the city, and the results are very gratifying to the faculty and the patrons of the school. The average attendance for the year has been very good and the enthusiasm of the pupils in their studies evidences splendid training and close application to work. The final examinations in some grades are being held this week and will be completed entirely by the middle of next week. The department for the year was above the average, there occurring only a few unpleasant incidents during the entire term.

The Ledger extends to the class of 1914 its warmest congratulations, its best wishes for a future with as few difficulties as have been encountered in reaching the present goal, and may each one yet realize that "Every life has pages vacant still."

"Whereon a man may write the things he will."

Three Games Scheduled

The Paris base ball team arrived here today at noon for three games with the Murray team. They will play today, Friday and Saturday afternoons at 3 o'clock. The Paris team is a salaried bunch and a strong aggregation. The local team is one of the strongest here the past several years and the fans are promised a real run for their money. Large crowds should attend each game and root the home boys to victory.

Warriors To The Last

The spirit of '76' still lives in America, and its dying embers are the brightest. If one doubts this let him read the telegram sent to President Wilson from remnants of Forrest's brigade, that famed cavalry of the civil war. The telegram said:

"We read with indignation of repeated results offered to American citizens by Mexican and, imbued with the patriotism derived as a heritage from our ancestors, we hereby tender the president of the United States, if called upon, a company of 100 men to be selected from our companies."

"We hereby guarantee to be among the first to plant the American flag on the battlements of Mexico City or any other fortress within her bounds."

No one who knows aught of civil war history can doubt for a moment that what is left of Forrest's brigade would fight until the last dog is hung, for the stars and stripes, certainly no one in Paducah, where some of the flowers of this command was recruited, could or would doubt it. Forrest's was the finest cavalry on either side in the war of the states. For this we have no lesser word than that of General U. S. Grant, who with others conceded Forrest's men the greatest fighting body in existence.

The country may well look with pride upon the gallant veterans, grown old and gray but still imbued with that fire and spirit which made them such contenders before, who burying every vestige of sectional feeling, clamor to be allowed to bear the arms of our country, whether she asks and without question.

All hail to the bravery of Forrest's brigade living, all honor to the memory of Forrest's brigade, who have passed the last review. — Paducah Sun.

FABLES FOR THE FAIR

BY JOSEPHINE DODGE DASKAM

THE WOMAN WHO BRIBED HER NIECE

There was once a Woman who had Two Nieces. One Day she Called them Both to her and Spoke as follows:

"If you will Remove those Birds from your Hats," she said, "I will give Each of You a beautiful Live Bird in a Neat Cage. They will Carol and Twitter all Day, and you will Not have the Debasing Consciousness of having Destroyed the Life of a Living Creature. Moreover, by Trimming your Hats with Ribbon Loops you will Present a far more Attractive Appearance. If anything Disgusts a Man, it is the Cruelty of Women in this Regard."

"I shall be Glad to Do as you Suggest," said One Niece.

"And I shall do No Such Thing," said the Other. "To Begin with,

BEGGED THE AUNT TO INTRODUCE HIM TO HER NIECE.

I did Just as Soon adorn a Hat as a Cage, if I were a Bird. And what is More to the Purpose, the Hat is very Becoming to me As it is."

"Then I will Give your Sister Both the Birds," said her Aunt.

Later on a Young Man begged the Aunt to Introduce him to her Niece.

"Which one?" said she.

"The One with the Yellow Wing in her Hat," replied the Young Man.

"I did Not Notice any Other."

"My Other Niece has a far Better Disposition," said the Woman, "and a much Kinder Heart. She would Not take the Life of Harmless Birds, but keeps Hers in a Cage, and is Devotedly Attached to Them. Would you not Prefer to meet Her?"

"I think Not," replied the Young Man. "I Especially Admired the One with the Yellow Wing. And Personally I do Not Care for Birds as Pets. I Think they are Noisy and Messy."

This teaches us that a Bird in the Hat is Worth Two in the Cage.

THE WOMAN WHO DELIBERATED

There was Once a Woman who Endeavored to Please her Husband in Every Particular. This is a very Difficult Thing to do.

"Among the Many Faults of your Sex," he was Accustomed to Say, "is Flightiness. You Jump too Hastily at Conclusions. If you would Devote the Mature Consideration of a Business Man to Your Affairs, they would Meet with Better Success. I Wish you would Remember This."

On one Occasion he Informed her that he was About to Present her with a Fine Piece of Fur for a Christmas Present. He Invited her to Accompany Him and Make her Own Selection.

When they Reached the Fur Shop the Woman Said to Herself, "Now is the Time to Delight Him with my Mature Consideration. I will Not Jump too Hastily at That Coat, but Weigh the Merits of the Other Pieces."

Accordingly she Reasoned as follows:

"I will Not take the Long Coat, for it is Too Expensive, but I will

"FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE, WOMAN, MAKE UP YOUR MIND!"

Try it On. I will Not take the Collarless, for it would Not be Warm Enough, but I will Try it On. I will not take the Stole, for it will Not Look as if it Cost Enough, but I will Try it On. I will Not take the Cape, for it is Not Fashionable, but I will Try it On. And she did So.

Her Husband could Contain himself No longer. "For Heaven's Sake, woman, Make Up your Mind!" he cried. "You will Drive Me to an Insane Asylum with your Diddling Ways! I should Have Had the Garment half Worn Out by Now. I will Cure you of Shopping if I Cure you of Nothing Else. Take what you Have On and Let Us Go Away!"

When they had Reached their Home he Addressed her Thus: "That Stole is Not Nearly so Becoming as the Coat would Have Been!"

This teaches us that the Woman who Deliberates is Bossed.

Melancholy Days.

"Don't you feel melancholy when autumn days are gray and chill?" asked the poetic young woman.

"No," replied the square-jawed young man. "What makes me melancholy is to be prepared for gray, chill weather days, and then experience week after week of hungry warmth."

Peeling.

Reporter: "We are so interested in your book, 'We Wish to Be Admired Off by Our Brethren,' that we would like to publish your photo in our paper."

Madame: "Heaven! Wait a moment while I put on another hat. This one is so unbecoming."

TAKES EXCEPTION TO ADDED FACES

HUERTA CONSIDERS ARMISTICE BROKEN BY U. S. CHARGES BREACH OF AGREEMENT.

THANKS THE MEDIATORS

Message to Mediation Board Is Considered Nothing Less Than a Polite Dismissal—Will Fight to Last.

Mexico City, via Galveston, Texas.—That Gen. Huerta considers the armistice between the United States and Mexico as having been violated by the order from Washington authorizing the landing of the Fifth army corps and larger numbers of troops at Vera Cruz was indicated by a high official of the Huerta government.

Gen. Huerta's advisers are urging him to declare the armistice broken and to prepare for a renewal of hostilities.

A prominent foreign diplomat said that Gen. Huerta considers the military activities of the United States army at Vera Cruz and reports received here that large reinforcements will probably be sent to Gen. Funston as a breach of the agreement entered into between his government and the United States, and that he has instructed Senior Roberto Esteva Ruiz, Mexican minister of foreign affairs, to cable a protest to the A. B. C. mediators' commission, complaining against the action of the Washington government.

Neither Gen. Huerta nor Senior Ruiz would discuss the situation.

Senior Ruiz said, however, that Gen. Huerta had instructed him to cable the mediation commission and express to its members his thanks for their efforts to avert a war between the United States and Mexico.

When asked if that meant that Gen. Huerta considers the action of the United States in landing the Fifth army brigade at Vera Cruz and the subsequent landing of field guns as having brought to a sudden termination the work of the mediatory board and that the A. B. C. powers cannot now arrange a peace pact, Senior Ruiz said: "It would not be proper for me to answer."

Senior Ruiz's reply, however, gave the impression that Gen. Huerta's message of thanks to the mediation board was nothing less than a polite dismissal of the good offices of the A. B. C. powers in arranging a settlement of the differences between the United States and Mexico.

"I can say that the position which Gen. Huerta will take in connection with the matter will be in accordance with the laws of civilized nations," Senior Ruiz concluded.

Senior Ruiz declared categorically that Gen. Huerta is not considering resigning the provisional presidency of Mexico.

"Gen. Huerta will not deliver Mexico City over to the rebels or to any other forces," Senior Ruiz declared. "The element of society that represents law and order in Mexico is with him and he is fighting for the future of Mexico. To force Gen. Huerta to leave the capital it will be necessary to drive him out."

"He will fight to the last," Other officials of the government supported Senior Ruiz in his declarations, and one of them said that "Gen. Huerta will see Mexico City in ashes and ruins before he will leave it."

BELL TO COMMAND IN TEXAS

Major-General Arrives in San Francisco From Philippines—Hurries to Texas to Take Charge.

Washington.—The unexpected arrival of San Francisco of Maj. Gen. J. Franklin Bell, who recently relinquished command of the Philippine division, and his hasty departure for Texas City to assume command of the remaining troops of the Second army division has created a situation which may require a reworking of plans recently perfected for the utilization of the second division in a possible Mexican campaign.

REPORT VILLA IS CHANGING

Rebel Leader Angry at United States For Putting Embargo on Arms. May Join Huerta.

San Antonio, Tex.—Pancho Villa's attitude toward Americans is undergoing a change. Advice from the south and parties arriving from Chihuahua say Villa is becoming irritated and ugly over the embargo maintained by the United States on arms and ammunition. Villa needs ammunition greatly.

Demand Money of Americans.

El Paso, Texas.—The manager of Gen. Rodriguez Quidado that three large American cattle companies give him $10,000 under threat that he would stop the windmills on their land, has not been complied with.

Transport Chartered.

Boston.—The steamer City of Memphis of the Savannah line was chartered by the government and ordered to proceed immediately to New York. It is supposed that she is intended for transport service.

VICTORIANO HUERTA

New photograph of General Huerta, the defiant dictator of Mexico, in his military uniform and wearing all his medals.

MOB KILLS TWO AMERICANS

Story Told By Arrivals at Vera Cruz. Consul Works Hard to Release Others Who Are in Danger.

Vera Cruz.—Two Americans named White and Williams, were killed and three others wounded at the El Favor mine, in the Hostotipaquilla district of Jalisco, by anti-American mobs, according to refugees from Mexico City who have just reached here. Their stories cannot be confirmed.

Consul Canada has sent Philip Walker to seek the release of twelve Americans held by Gen. Navarrete. Walker will first go to Mexico City and get credentials from the Brazilian minister. Consul Canada has also sent Antonio Vasconcelos, a Cuban, up the Papaguan River to try to save twelve other Americans being held at Tlacoatalpan. Two Americans, named Hill and Gibson, are being held at Montepio and there is no way to rescue them.

A. A. Welmer, former manager of Bradstreet's agency in Mexico City, and now chief of the section of statistics of the National Bank of Mexico, who has arrived here, declares that there is no doubt that Huerta is preparing to flee to Central America.

"There are more than 10,000 Americans in the capital, most of whom are unable to leave on account of lack of money, they having lost everything during the four years of revolution," Gen. Funston appointed the first military commission. It will sit for trial of five snipers who, during the first and second days of fighting, were caught shooting at United States sailors while they were concealed in boats in the harbor.

The commission is empowered to impose penalties, including the death sentence. The rulings of the court will be subject to execution by the civil agencies under the military control.

Four Americans, 22 British and 127 Mexicans, refugees from Mexico City, arrived here.—John Young, master of the El Oro Mining and Railway company, with his wife, who is the daughter of Mrs. Martin Wald of 3702 Robey street, Chicago, has nothing but praise for Huerta. Although Americans, they are staunch Huerta admirers.

"We left El Oro, which is 100 miles from Mexico City, a fortnight ago," said Mr. Young. "We have been in Mexico City ever since, the recipients of every courtesy at the hands of Gen. Huerta."

REBELS CLOSING ON CAPITAL

Reports of Successes Against Federals Reach Washington—Will Attack From Three Sides.

Washington.—While the Mexican situation is outwardly calm pending the formal opening of the conference of South American mediators at Niagara Falls, Canada, there continues an active undercurrent of discussion and preparation for the peace plans, and the Constitutional headquarters here of sweeping victories of their forces near San Luis Potosi and other points far south of Saltillo, where it was thought their next big battle would occur.

British Subject Released.

Vera Cruz.—Gen. Gustavo Maas released G. H. Cox, manager of the Vera Cruz Street Railway company, whom he had held prisoner at Soledad. Mr. Coxon, who is a British subject, arrived here.

Huerta's Flag Down.

El Paso, Texas.—Huerta's flag has come down in El Paso and the Vera Cruz Street Railway company, whom he had held prisoner at Soledad. Mr. Coxon, who is a British subject, arrived here.

HUERTAS REGIME IS NEARLY OVER

GENERAL IN CHARGE AT VERA CRUZ SAYS THAT DICTATOR IS LOSING HIS GRIP.

PREPARE FOR THE ADVANCE

About 50,000 Troops Will Be Mobilized at Vera Cruz So as to Be Ready for Dash to Mexico City. Anarchy Feared.

Washington.—Upon receiving a long cipher cablegram from Gen. Funston, the Vera Cruz Secretary Garrison called into conference at the war department Maj. Gen. Waterspoon, chief of staff, and the entire general staff of the army.

Later Secretary Garrison said Gen. Funston had transmitted information that Gen. Carranza had agreed to conditions in the Mexican capital. The secretary declined to comment on them. He said, however, that no aggressive movement by the American forces had been ordered.

It was understood that the refugees from Mexico City had informed Gen. Funston of the critical aspect of affairs in the Huerta regime; that a collapse might be expected momentarily, and that conditions of anarchy might ensue.

The purpose of Gen. Funston in making known these reports to the war department was believed to be to advise the Washington administration of the possibilities that might develop from a fall of Huerta, in order that if an American army is compelled to rescue foreigners or restore order it will be fairly equipped for such an expedition.

Though not officially stated, it is known that high officials of the war department were anxious to place at Vera Cruz or on transports within striking distance a large enough force, perhaps 50,000 or 60,000 men, to make an expedition to Mexico City if it becomes necessary.

Officials of the war department are known to believe that if an advance on Mexico City is ordered, it will be necessary to guard every mile of the railway as the army moves forward, and that a large force would show the natives the futility of resistance, whereas a division of 15,000 men might be subject to several attacks along the route, with possibly big losses.

American army officers also regard the situation at Vera Cruz as likely to become desperate in the event that the army breaks out in Mexico City, or the forces of Gen. Maas should make an attack on their own initiative. Irrespective of the Huerta government's promise of a suspension of hostilities against the United States.

A HOTBED OF CONSPIRACY

Twenty Different Juntas in Mexico City Plan Huerta's Downfall. Has Much to Contend With.

Vera Cruz.—The highway from here to Mexico City is free to all, but the Americans have imposed one restriction—that those who pass either way shall not be permitted to return.

Refugees arriving here from the capital report that the Huerta was relatively quiet, but the other day they say two American women were caught by the mob in the Zocalo, beaten, their clothes torn from their backs and forced to watch a procession, the principal feature of which was a donkey wearing a mask representing President Wilson's face, while attached to and trailing from the animal's tail was the stars and stripes.

Huerta recently sounded all the rebel leaders relative to their willingness to combine forces against the United States. He is said to have offered to submit to another election, the voters to be men enlisted under any recognized leader. His offer met with no enthusiasm and gained him no support, except on the west coast, where various small bodies of rebels have joined the federal garrisons. In this light Carranza's decision to accept the American occupation of Vera Cruz is no surprise.

Mexico City is now the hotbed of conspiracy. Twenty different juntas are working to bring about an uprising which would compel Huerta's retirement in favor of their different candidates.

"Conquer" Coronado.

San Diego, Cal.—Several wealthy men from Colorado Springs and Coronado, Cal., went out in a yacht to the Coronado islands and scaled one of them, raising the American flag on a 100-foot pinnacle. They claimed the islands by right of "conquest." The islands are Mexican territory.

Americans in Danger.

Washington.—Ten members of the Smith family in jail at Tonala are in danger of their lives because of Mexican resentment of their part in the recent killing of three Mexicans at San Pedro, according to a report from Minister Leavell in Guatemala.

Withdraws Men.

Anahuac, Tex.—Gov. Colquhoun ordered all state troops withdrawn from the Mexican border.

MAJ. SMEDLEY BUTLER

Maj. Smedley Butler of the marine corps was in command of the forces that extended the operations of the Americans beyond the city of Vera Cruz. He is a son of Representative Butler of Pennsylvania and has seen service in Cuba, China and the Philippines.

MEDIATORS TRYING HARD

Washington.—Gen. Carranza and the Constitutionalists were practically eliminated from the proceedings of the three South American envoys who have undertaken to solve the Mexican problem by diplomacy. In a telegram to Gen. Carranza the mediators announced that in view of his refusal to agree to an armistice with Gen. Huerta they withdrew their invitation to him to send a personal representative to participate in the mediation negotiations.

Too mediators told the Constitutional leader that as long as he maintained his attitude they must decline to treat with him. Gen. Carranza had inquired in a note to the envoys what subjects a special representative might be required to discuss, pointing out that if the general problem of pacifying Mexico were to be approached he could not authorize any one to participate in the negotiations.

He reiterated that he would consent to mediation only on the incidents which had brought about a controversy "between the United States and Mexico," holding that he was the constitutionally chosen leader to whom complaint about the insult at Tampico and other offenses originally should have been made.

HUERTA FEARS VILLA MOST

Vera Cruz.—Francisco Villa, the rebel commander, may not make his intended descent on Mexico City before the lapse of another three months, according to a prominent business man who arrived here from the capital. The refugee says Gen. Huerta is still sending Federal troops northward, as he apparently dreads more the possible approach of Gen. Villa than an advance of the Americans.

Gen. Villa is proceeding leisurely, said the refugee, if he has the intention of moving on the capital. Both Monterrey and Saltillo are believed in Mexico City to have been evacuated by the Federals, who are said to have fallen back on San Luis Potosi.

Gen. Huerta, he asserts, has done nothing to show he anticipates a forward movement of the American army or expects in the event of such a movement to offer serious resistance.

The government powder factory is reported to be turning out daily some 6,000 dynamite bombs. These are understood to be intended for defense against Gen. Villa or Emiliano Zapata, the southern rebel. The refugee said that except for shipping a dozen or more cannon to the headquarters of Gen. Gustavo Maas and a like number to Gen. Guillermo Rubio Navarrete at Jalapa and supplies of dynamite for mining the railroad bridges, nothing further has been done by Gen. Huerta to prepare for resistance on the road from Vera Cruz to the capital.

Rebel Paymaster Arrested.

Laredo, Texas.—With a large sum of Mexican and American money in his possession, the paymaster of the Mexican constitutionalist army Major Manuel Calhazero, was arrested by the United States cavalry patrol near San Ignacio.

Tuxpam Quiet.

Galveston, Tex.—Tuxpam is quiet again and anti-American demonstrations there have ceased, according to refugees returning here on board the torpedo boat destroyers Henley and Warrington, which came up from quarantine.

Demand Surrender.

Washington.—Another fruitless demand by Mexican soldiers for surrender of the water works just outside Vera Cruz was reported to the war department by Gen. Funston.

nomination for Congress from the

The Ledger is authorized to announce the action of the democratic primary,

Gov. McCreary says that in event of war with Mexico, he wants to lead the Kentucky militia. He is only 77 years old, and bids fair to round out at least forty more.—Ex.

Yes, the governor is willing to lead the Kentucky boys to war with Mexico, but it is a cinch that he will take the big fat test and leave the dry bladders for the boys in the trenches. He also bids fair to live always, provided he is kept feeding from the public trough.

When O. J. (with the accent on the "J") Jennings, editor of the Murray (Ky.) Ledger, was a little boy, it is said of him that he never told a lie, but remember, stranger, it has been a darned long time since he was a boy.—Ed P. Crowe's Dexter, Mo., Statesman.

It is indeed a sad commentary that we must submit to the incessant pecking of a crow, and it is our disposition just at this hour to forever stop this constant nagging. "Quoth the Raven Never More," says the poet Edgar Allan Poe, not Crowe, of Dexter, Mo. The Ledger editor is free to admit that at this time a few "silver threads appear among the gold," and further, and it is a fact, wear still young in years but Oslerized in experience, but just why these unpleasant matters should be recalled to our fading memory by an old man in his dotage is beyond our comprehension. We do not recall just at this time that we ever did tell a lie in our youth, (only a few years past) especially when the truth suited the occasion better, nor is it our intention, since we have reached the estate of young manhood, to depart from the teaching and reputation of our boyhood days.
In explanation of the few silver threads we have entwined among the golden locks that adorn our uppermost extremity, we plead that we have in the past been subjected to Crowe's
"salmagundi," a mixture,
as Webster puts it, of "chopped meat, pickled herring, with oil, vinegar, pepper and onions,"— to say nothing of the Budweiser that is usually an adjunct. Now, if this would not make any man depart from the ways of his youth, tell a lie or even violate one of the other commandments, we are at a loss to know just what could be brought to bear in the way of further temptation.

A BABY ATTRACTION.

Our neighbor city of Mayfield is nothing if not original, and what we are about to relate comes from the columns of Jim Lemon's paper, the Messenger, and we always like to believe that Jim tells the truth as often as possible. Mayfield is blessed or afflicted, as you choose to see it, with a picture show concern, and in order to stimulate the attendance at the home of the movies, the management made proclamation that a real genuine, live, pretty, bred in the old-fashioned-way girl baby would be given away absolutely free to the person holding the lucky number. Here is how the Messenger describes the occasion:

"Last night there was a great scene at the Princess Theatre, the audience being the largest ever known there, and the place was inadequate to accommodate all who clamored to get in for the first show.
"The feature attraction was on account of the giving away of a real live baby, the fact having been announced several days ago and published daily in the columns of the Messenger. People were anxious to see who would be the lucky person.
Many were in hopes of getting the beautiful little girl, while others went with the crowd and to get their curiosity appeased.
Many were skeptical, declaring that it would be something else besides a real beautiful, bouncing baby.
"The program was carried out as announced, for a real, big, handsome baby was given away to the person holding the number as called out by Mr. Mc-Gary, who has had charge of the big week at the Princess.
The person who drew the baby was Miss Ethel Pewett, trimmer in Mrs. Taliferro's millinery store.

Just think how appropriate the result. A real, live milliner lady drawing a real, live baby girl. No trouble at all. Now, suppose some old he-bachelor had held that baby ticket. Poor thing would have starved to death in three days.

NO DISCOMFORT FROM DODSON'S LIVER TONE

Violent Purgatives Need No Longer
Be Used for Constipation, so Why Run Risk of Their Disagreeable After-Effects.

To overcome constipation and sluggish liver pleasantly, easily and safely, Dodson's Liver Tone is guaranteed by Dale & Stubblefield, who will cheerfully refund purchase price (50c.) at once if you are not entirely satisfied with it.

Dodson's Liver Tone is made to take the place of calomel and other strong purgatives. It has none of the disagreeable and often dangerous after-effects of calomel, which is in fact a poison, a mineral, a form of deadly mercury.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a strictly vegetable liquid, containing nothing harmful. It not only leaves no bad effects, but works easily and naturally, without pain or gripe and without interfering at all with your regular habits, diet or occupation. A trial may benefit you greatly, why not see about it today?

Bond Issue Voted.

By an overwhelming vote, the proposition to bond the Benton High and Graded School District for $15,000.00 to build an addition to the school house, was carried Wednesday. This is as it should be, as the people of Marshall county are entitled to the very best that can be had, in the way of schools and school buildings. Let every man connected with this enterprise see to it, that there is no shoddy work done, by any contractor, of flimsy material furnished by any dealer in building material.

FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

John W. Skillen of Sidney, Ohio,
Has Found a Remedy.

Experts declare that the reason stomach troubles are so common in this country is due to faulty and careless habits of eating. Stomach troubles and run-down conditions usually go together.

John W. Skillen of Sidney, Ohio, says: "I had a bad stomach trouble for years and became so weak that I could hardly walk or do any work.
My appetite was poor, and it seemed impossible to get any relief. Since taking Vinol I find a remarkable improvement in my health, my digestion is much stronger, and I have gained in weight. I would not be without Vinol."

Vinol makes weak stomachs strong because it strengthens and tones up the weakened, tired and overtaxed nerves of the digestive organs. Vinol is easily assimilated by the weakest stomachs, and is delicious to the taste.
Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you.

Suburban Home Burned.

The handsome bungalow residence of E. N. Holland, west of the city on the State Line road, was destroyed by fire Wednesday morning at about 7:30 o'clock by fire that originated in the roof near the chimney. The building was a total loss while all the contents were removed.
This home was one of the handsomest places on the road and the loss to Mr. Holland is quite a heavy one. He carried $1,500 on the building and contents.
While his loss will reach fully $2,500.

Carefully Treat Children's Colds

Neglect of children's colds often lays the foundation of serious lung trouble in later life. On the other hand, it is harmful to continually use delicate little stomachs with internal medicines or to keep the children always indoors.
The ideal way to avoid colds is to keep plenty of fresh air in the bedroom and at the first sign of trouble apply Vick's
"Vapo-Rub" Croup and Pneumonia Salve over the throat and chest, covering with a warm flannel cloth. The body heat releases antiseptic vapors that are inhaled all night, soothing the air passages and healing the inflamed membrane. In addition, Vick's is absorbed through the skin, taking out the sore-ness and tightness. Vick's contains no harmful drugs whatever. At druggists

VICK'S CROUP AND PNEUMONIA SALVE

In Memory of Our Darling Leo

On the morning of March 27,
the death angel visited the home of C. B. Fair and wife, and claimed for his own the oldest boy, Leo. He was 6 years 7 months and 26 days old. When he fell asleep to awake in brighter home, Oh, you precious darling, how sad and lonely our homes are without you, though our heavenly father knows best, his will not ours be done. Leo was a jewel too bright for this world and God has called him home where he is safe in the arms of Jesus, safe on his gentle breast. There by His love o'er shadowed, sweetly his soul is at rest. Dear parents, let us dry our tears and be cheerful, we have another darling to cheer and brighten our homes. Leo has only gone on before to welcome us on that Golden Shore.
We know he said just a few days before he was taken sick, that if God called him home to heaven before He did us, he would be at the gates watching and waiting for us, and oh, what a consolation to know that he is there and we can meet him again, and many other loved ones on the sunny banks of sweet deliverance, where part-ings are unknown. Yes, one by one, we are gathering home.

The funeral services were conducted at Martins Chapel Saturday afternoon by Revs. Castle-berry and Green, after which our darling was conveyed to the grave and with sad hearts he was placed in his last resting place to await the Resurrection morn. Yes Leo, again we are going to meet you when the days of life are fled. There in Heaven with joy to greet you, where no farewell tears are shed.—His Grandmother.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by continually failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Honesty, Energy and Ambition Depend on Physical Condition.

An eminent German scientist has said, "Honesty is a state of mind dependent on the physical condition." Everyone knows knows that energy and ambition depend on "how one feels." The liver plays an important part in one's feelings. If it is performing its natural functions we feel energetic and ambitious. When it is not working right we feel depressed and lazy. Headaches, indigestion, constipation and backache are the signs.

Calomel used to do, but it proved so dangerous that medical science had to find another course.

John C. C. Mayo

Kentucky has cause to mourn the death of John C. C. Mayo. No man of the present generation has done so much for the material and substantial prosperity of the State.

Mr. Mayo was not always a man of wealth. He began life as a rural school teacher in the Kentucky mountains. It was while engaged in this honorable but far from lucrative occupation that he realized the possibilities of Eastern Kentucky. He saw what many others did not see—the buried wealth of the hill country. He saw lands underlain with great and far-reaching veins of coal of the finest quality. These lands were selling when they sold at all, at nominal prices, some as low as a dollar an acre.

Mr. Mayo had a vision of industrial development and he began buying these mountain coal lands. When he had bought to the extent of his financial ability he began taking long-term options on other lands. In this way his operations ran over a long period of years, in all of which he was increasing his holdings. This was no small attainment for a man of meager resources, but it was a simple process compared with what Mr. Mayo accomplished later on. To interest outside capital in these rugged mountain fastnesses was a task of Titanic proportions. He undertook this important work, patiently, quietly and unremittingly; and eventually he succeeded.

Through Mr. Mayo's influence millions of dollars have been invested in Eastern Kentucky. Towns have been built, coal mines have been opened, new railroad lines have been constructed and new enterprises of various kinds have been put in operation. Trackless forests have been penetrated and uninhabited regions have been peopled. Busy industrial cities have risen out of the wilderness and old and unprosperous towns have been re-created.

As a result of Mr. Mayo's efforts the map of Eastern Kentucky has been made over. The State's importance as a producer of coal has been greatly enhanced. The wealth of the mountain countries has enormously increased. The entire region has taken on new life and with it all the development has only fairly begun. In all the history of that empire of mineral wealth no one man has been so powerful a force for industrial progress as John C. C. Mayo. He made no great noise about it, but while others talked Mr. Mayo worked, and he did it so effectively that he had amassed personal wealth and acquired financial prominence long before the great majority of Kentuckians had heard of him and before the story of his endeavor had been heralded in the public prints.

It is a matter of profound regret that so potential a man of affairs should be stricken in the midst of his activities, in the prime of his life and at the zenith of his accomplishments. And whatever may be Kentucky's loss by reason of his passing the work that he has done will sur-

HAPPY MOTHERHOOD

The happiness of motherhood is too often checked because the mother's strength is not equal to her care, while her untold devotion neglects her own health. It is a duty of husband or friend to see that she gets the pure medicinal nourishment in Scott's Emulsion, which is not a drug or stimulant but nature's concentrated food tonic to enrich and revive the blood, strengthen the nerves and aid the appetite. Physicians everywhere prescribe Scott's Emulsion for overworked, nervous, tired women; it builds up and holds up their strength. Get Scott's at your nearest drug store.

SYNOPSIS.

John Vallant, a rich society favorite, suddenly discovers that the woman who has been his mistress for years, and who has been the principal source of his wealth, has fallen. His entire fortune is gone. He is left with a small sum of money and a broken heart. He is forced to leave his home and go to a small town in Virginia. There he meets a young woman named Shirley, who is the daughter of a poor farmer. Shirley is kind and generous, and she helps John in his time of need. John falls in love with Shirley, and they are married. John works hard to make a living, and eventually becomes a successful farmer. Shirley is a good wife and mother, and they live happily ever after.

Till the sun was high John Vallant lay on his back in the fragrant grass, meditatively watching a buccaneering chickadee hawk draw widening circles against the blue and listening to the vibrant tattoo of a "pecker-wood" on a far-away tree, and the tinorous wet whistle of a bobwhite. The whole place was very quiet now. For just one thrilling moment it had burgeoned into sound and movement: when the sweaty horses had stood snorting and stamping in the yard with the hounds, snarling between their legs and the riding-coats whirling like rubies in the early sunshine!

Had she recognized him as the smugged tinker of the stalled cart? "She saw me drop that wretched brute through the window," he chuckled. "But she didn't give me away, true little sport that she was. And she won't. I can't think of any reason, but I know. Was she angry? I wonder!"

At length he rose and went back to the house. With a bunch of keys he had found he went to the stables, after some difficulty gained access, and propped the crazy doors and windows open to the sun. The building was airy and well-lighted, and contained a dozen rooey boxstalls, a spacious loft and a carriage-house. The straw bedding had been removed, mite-gnawed sacks and rotted hay lay in the mangers, and the warped harness, hanging on its pegs, was a smelly mass of mildew and decay. He found a stick, moved away the festooning cobwebs, and moved the debris piece-meal.

"There!" he said with satisfaction. "There's a place for the motor—if Uncle Jefferson ever gets it here."

It was noon when he returned, after a wash-up in the lake, to the meal with which Aunt Daphne, in a costume dimly suggestive of a bran-meal poultice with a slingshot apron on, regaled him. Fried chicken, corn-bread so soft and fluffy that it had to be lifted from the pan with a spoon, browned potatoes, and to his surprise, fresh milk. "Ah, done druv cash!" he said. "Ah, done druv cash!" Aunt Daphne, who had been milking, or she run dry ez de Red Sea fo' de chillen ob Izrl!

"Aunt Daphne," inquired Vallant with his mouth full, "what do you call this green thing?"

"Dat! Dat's jes' turnip-tops, suh, wid er hunk er bacon in de pot. Lawd!"

She Bit Her Lips as He Snapped the Offending Bole Short Off.

erms, et cern'y do me good ter see yo' git arter it dat way, suh. Reck'n yo' got er appetite! Hyah, Hyah!"

"I have. I never guessed it before, and it's a magnificent discovery. However, it suggests unwelcome reflections. Aunt Daphne, how long do you estimate a man can dine like this on—well, say on a hundred dollars?"

"Er hunned dollars, suh? Dat's er right smart heap of money, ded et let well sub, pen's ob what yo' raises. Ef yo' raises yo' own garden-sass en chick'n en aigs, Ah reckon yo' kin live longah dan dat er Methusalem, en still haf mos' of it in de ob stock."

"Ah! I can grow all those things myself, you think?"

"Yo' cert'n'y kin," said Aunt Daphne. "Anybody do, de chick'n do peck ter deyves en de yuddah things—yo' stay arter toppers, suh, en de yos stows."

Vallant ate his dessert with a thoughtful smile wrinkling his brow.

As he pushed back his chair he smote his hands together and laughed aloud. "Back to the soil!" he said. "John Vallant, farmer! The miracle of it is that it sounds good to me. I want to raise my own grub and till my own soil. I want to be my own man! And I'm beginning to see my way. Crops will have to wait for another season, but there's water and pasture for cattle now. There's timber—lots of it—on that hillside, too. I must look into that."

He filled his pipe and climbed the staircase to the upper floor. There were many bedrooms with great four-posted, canopied beds and old-fashioned carved furniture of mahogany and curly-maple, and in one he found a great cedar-lined chest filled with bed-linen and napery. In these rooms were more evidences of decay. The bedroom he mentally chose for his own was the plainest of all, and was above the library, fronting the vegetable garden. It had a great black desk with many glass-knobbed drawers and a book-rack.

He lingered longest in a room whose door was painted The Hilarium. It had evidently been a nursery and schoolroom. Here on the walls were many shelves wound over with networks of cobwebs, and piled with the oddest assemblage of toys. There were schoolbooks, too, thumb-nail and dog-eared, from First Reader to Carver's Gallic Wars, with names of John Vallants scrawled on their fly-leaf. He carefully reached the door of this room, he wanted to dust those toys and books with his own hands.

In the upper hall again he leaned from the window, sniffing the far-flung scent of orchards and peach-blown fence-rows. The soft whirling sound of a bird's wing went past, most brushing his startled-face, and the old oak seemed to stretch their bent limbs with a faithful brute-like yawn of pleasure. In the room below he could hear the vigorous sound of Aunt Daphne's hard-driven broom and the sound flooded the echoing space with a comfortable commotion.

He went to his trunk and fished out a soft shirt on which he knotted a loose tie, exchanged his Panama for a slouch hat, and whistling the barcarole from Tales of Hoffmann, went gaily out. "I feel tremendously alive today," he confided to the dog, as he tramped through the lush grass. "I see you see me dandle his muck out of that fountain with my own fair hands, don't have a fit. I'm liable to do anything."

His eye swept up and down the slope. "There probably isn't a finer site for a house in the whole county," he told himself. "The living-rooms front south and west. We'll get scrumptious sunsets from that back porch. And on the other side there's the view clear to the Blue Ridge!" He skirted the lake. "Only to grab out some of the lilacs—there's too many of them—and straighten the rim—and weed the pebble margin to give those green rocks a show. I'll build a little wharf below them to dive from, and—yes, I'll stock it with spotted trout."

He was but a few hundred yards from the house, yet the silence was so deep that there might have been no habitation within fifty miles. All at once he stopped short; there was a sudden movement in the thicket beyond—the sound of light fast footfalls, as of some one running away.

He made a lunge for the dog, but with a growl Chum tore himself from the restraining grasp and dashed into the bushes. "A child, no doubt," he thought as he plunged in pursuit, "and that lubberly brute will scare it half to death."

He pulled up with an exclamation. In a narrow wood-path a little way from him, partly hidden by a wind-fall, stood a girl, her skirt transfixed with a wickedly jagged sapling. He saw instantly how it had happened; the windfall had blocked the way, and she, had sprung clear over it, not noting the screened spear, which now held her so effectually as any railroad spike.

In another moment Vallant had reached her and met her face, flushed, half defiant, her eyes a blue gleam of smoldering anger as she desperately, almost savagely, thrust wild tendrils of flame-colored hair beneath the broad curved brim of her straw hat.

At her feet lay a great, arnful of cape jessamines.

A little thrill, light and warm and joyous, ran through him. Until that instant he had not recognized her.

CHAPTER XIII.

John Vallant Makes a Discovery. "I'm so sorry," was what he said, as he knelt to release her, and she was grateful that his tone was unmixt with amusement. She bit her lips, as by sheer strength of elbow and knee he snapped the offending bole short off one of those quick exhibitions of reserved strength that every woman likes.

"I don't know how I could have been so silly—thank you so much," said Shirley, panting slightly from her exertions. "I'm not the least bit hurt—my dress—And you know very well that I wasn't afraid of that ridiculous dog!" A richer glow stole to her cheeks as she spoke, a burning recollection of a rose, which from her horse that morning at Damory Court, she had glimpsed in its glass on the porch.

Both laughed a little. He imagined that he could smell that wonderful hair, a subtle fragrance like that of sun-dried seaweed or the elusive scent that clings to a tuft of long-plucked Spanish moss. "Sham! stands! absolved, then," he said, bending to sweep together the scattered jessamines. "Do you—do you run like that when you're not frightened?"

"When I'm caught red-handed. Don't you?"

He looked puzzled. She pointed to the flowers. "I had stolen them, and I was trying to 'escape off wild' em' as the negroes say. Shocking, isn't it? But you see, nobody has lived here since long before I was born, and I suppose the flower-thieving habit has become ingrained."

"But," he interrupted, "there's acres of them going to waste. Why on earth shouldn't you have them?"

"Of course I know better today, but there was a—special reason. We have none and this is the nearest place where they grow. My mother wanted some for this particular day." "Good heavens!" he cried. "You don't think you can't go right on taking them? Why, you can 'escape off wild' em' as the negroes say. Shocking, isn't it? But you see, nobody has lived here since long before I was born, and I suppose the flower-thieving habit has become ingrained."

"It Won't Hurt," Reassured the Would-Be Operator.

"What will the owner say?" He bent back one of the long jessamine stems and wound it around the others. "I can answer for him. Besides, I owe you something, you know. I robbed you this morning—of your brush."

"Yes," said Vallant. "Sanctuary. His two beady eyes begged so hard for it. Twenty ravens bound," they said, "and a dozen galloping horses. And look what a poor shivering little red-brown morsel I am!"

For just an instant the bronze-gold head gave a quick imperious toss, like a high-mouled pony under the flick of the whip. But as suddenly the shadow of resentment passed; the mobile face under the bent hair brim turned thoughtful. She looked again at him. "Do you think it's wrong to kill things?" she asked gravely.

"Oh, dear, no," he smiled. "I haven't a singleism. I'm not even a vegetarian."

"But you would be if you had to kill your own meat?"

"Perhaps. So many of us would. As a matter of fact, I don't hunt myself, but I'm no reformer."

"Why don't you hunt?"

"I don't enjoy it," he said. "I should enjoy it if I had a rifle. I don't know why. I always have a rifle. But I shouldn't care for hunting, even with bows and arrows. I would kill a tiger or a poisonous reptile, or anything else, in case of necessity. But even then, I should hardly enjoy it. I know some animals are pests and have to be killed. Some men do, too. But I don't like to do it myself."

"Wouldn't that theory lead to a wholesale evasion of responsibility?"

"Perhaps. I'm no philosopher. But a blackbird or a red fox is so pretty, even when he is thieving, that I'd let him have the corn. I'm like the Lord High Executioner in 'The Mikado' who was so tender-hearted that he couldn't execute anybody and planned to begin with guinea-pigs and work up. Only I'm afraid I couldn't even manage the guinea-pigs."

She laughed, and you wouldn't find many to practice on here. Do you raise guinea-pigs up North?"

"Ah," he said ruefully, "you tag me, too. Have I by chance a large letter 'N' tattooed upon my manly brow? But I suppose it's the accent. Uncle Jefferson catalogued me in five minutes."

He said he didn't know why he was from de North, but he "knowed" it. I've annexed him and his wife, by the way. "You're lucky to have them," the Jefferson and Aunt Daphne might have slipped out of a plantation of the last century. They're absolutely, ante-bel-lum. Most of the negroes are more or less spoiled, as you'll find, I'm afraid. She turned the conversation bluntly. "Had you seen Damory Court before?"

"No, never." "Do you like the general plan of the place?"

"Do I like it?" cried John Vallant. "Do I like it?"

A quick pleasure glanced across her face. "It's nice of you to say it that way. We ask that question so often. It's become mechanical. You see, it's our great show-place."

At that moment a patter of footsteps and shrill shrieks came flying over the last-year's leaves beyond the lilac bushes. It's Ricky Snyder, she said, peering out smilingly as two children, pursued and pursued, burst into view. "Hush!" she whispered. "I wonder what they are up to."

The pair came in a whirl through the bushes. The foremost was a seven-year-old negro girl, in a single short cottonade garment, wizened, bareheaded and bareheaded, her black wool parted in little angular patches and tightly wrapped with bits of cord. The other was white and as frocked like a boy's, with hair cropped like a boy's. She held a carving knife cut from a shingle, whose edge had been deeply engraved by poke-berry juice. The pursued one stumbled over a root and came to earth in a heap, while the other pounced upon her like a wildcat.

"Hold still, you limb of Satan," she scolded. "How can I do it when you won't stay still?"

"Oh, lawd," moaned the prostrate one in simulated terror. "oh, Dootah, good Dootah Snyder, has Ah gotter hab dat operation? Is yo' sho' gwine ter twittler arter mah insides wid dem knives en saws en things?"

"It won't hurt," reassured the operator, "no more than it did Mr. Poly Gifford. And I'll put your liver right back again."

"Wait er minute. Ah jes' remembah Ah forgot ter make mah will. Ah leave—"

"Nonsense!" objected the other irritably. "Yo' made it yesterday. They always do it beforehand."

"No, suh; Ah done clean forgot-er. Ah jes' mah thimble ter de Melodias church, en mah black en white kitten ter Ricky Snyder, en—"

A twig snapped under Vallant's foot. Both scrambled to their feet, the black girl to look at them with a wide self-conscious grin. Ricky, tossing her short hair back from her freckled face, came toward them.

"My goodness, Miss Shirley," she said, "we didn't see you at all. She looked at Vallant. "Are you the man that's going to fix up Damory Court?"

"Yes," said Vallant. "Well," she said critically, "you've got your job cut out for you. But I should say you're the kind to do it."

"Ricky!" Shirley's voice tried to be stern, but there was a hint of laughter in it.

"What did I say now?" inquired Ricky. "I'm sure I meant it to be complimentary."

"It was," said Vallant. "I shall try to deserve your good opinion."

"But what a ghastly play!" exclaimed Shirley. "Where did you learn it?"

"We were playing Mr. Poly Gifford in the hospital," Ricky answered. "She's got a whole lot of little pebbles what they cut out—"

"Oh, Ricky!" expostulated Shirley with a sigh.

They did, she keeps them in a little pasteboard box like wedding-cake, with a blue ribbon around it. She was showing it to Miss Mattie Sue yesterday. She was telling her all about it. She said all the women there showed each other their cuts and bragged about how long they were."

"You certainly have a highly developed taste for the dramatic," said Shirley. "I wonder what your next effort will be."

"It's tomorrow," Ricky informed her. "We're going to have the duel between Vallant and Sassoon."

The smile was stricken from John Vallant's face. A duel—be duel—between Vallant and Sassoon? He felt his blood beat quickly. Had there been such a thing in his father's life? Was that what had blighted it?

"Only not here where it really happened, but in the Meredith orchard. Ah ain't," contradicted Greenville. "Ah ain't gwine ter be dat Vallant, no how!"

"You are, too!" insisted Ricky. "Gratiously. You needn't be so picky and choosy—and after she kills Sassoon, we put the bloodhounds on her trail!"

Greenlie giggled. "They ain't no dawg aroun' heah'd tech me," she said, "en 'sides—"

"But, Ricky," Shirley interposed, "that wasn't a murder. That was a duel between gentlemen. They don't—"

"I know it," asserted Ricky cheerfully. "But it makes it more exciting. Will you come, Miss Shirley, deed and double? I won't charge you any admission."

"I can't promise," said Shirley. "By the way, isn't it about time Miss Mattie Sue had her tea?"

"It certainly is, Miss Shirley!" said Ricky, with penitent emphasis. "I clean forgot it, and she'll row me up the gum-stump! Come on, Greenville, and she started off through the bushes."

Shirley looked at Vallant with a deepening of her smile. "Ricky isn't an aristocrat," she said. "Ah's what we call here poor white, but she's got a heart of gold. She's an orphan, and the neighborhood in general, and Miss Mattie Sue Mabry in particular, have adopted her."

He hardly heard her words for the painful wonder that was holding him. His father had taken a man's life. Was it this thought—whatever the provocation; however justified by the customs of the time and section—that had driven him to self-extermination? He recalled himself with an effort, for she was speaking again.

"You've found Lovers' Leap, no doubt?"

"No. This is the first time I've been so far from the house. Is it near here?"

"I'll show it to you." She held out her hand for the bunch of jessamines and laid it on the broad roots of a tree that were mottled with lichen.

"Look there," she said suddenly; "isn't that a beauty?"

She was pointing to a jessamine-wood on which had settled, with glassy wings vibrating a long, ungodly, needlelike insect with an odd sword-like beak.

"A snake-doctor. If the Jeffersons were here he'd say, 'Bettah watch out! Dah's er snek run' er bout heah, sho'!' He'll fill yo' full of dark superstitions."

Suddenly the slim path between the trees took a quick turn, and fell away at their feet. "There," said Shirley. "This is the finest view at Damory Court."

THE SERVANT QUESTION SOLVED

So Far as This Lady is Concerned—She Doesn't Seem to Need One.

Pollock, La.—Mrs. T. S. Blair, of this town, has the following to say, which should be of interest to women generally: "For months, my health was very bad, and the medicines I took did not seem to do me any good."

"I was very weak and nervous, and some days, I could not be up. I asked my husband to get me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, to try, and before I had taken one bottle I was up and doing my work. Before I commenced taking Cardui, I had some spells I was not able to do anything. Now, I have only taken three bottles of Cardui in all, and I feel fine."

"A few months ago I weighed 135 pounds. Now I weigh 105, and I do all my own work, cook, wash and milk—and feel like I did when I was 'sweet sixteen.'"

"Cardui has cured me." "As a relief from the distressing symptoms of womanly ailments, nothing has been found during the past 50 years that would take the place of Cardui."

Its superiority is still unquestioned as a mild, building tonic for cases of womanly weakness where tired nature needs help. Made from purely vegetable ingredients, Cardui has no bad after effects and can do you nothing but good.

"Some people in my business," he said blandly, "don't like particular customers, but I sure do. It's my delight to serve them and get them what they want. I will attend to you in a minute, John."

"Right," said John, "and be sure to get Mrs. Dallam's. A lot of my wife's relatives are visiting at my house and I don't want them to come back again." Dearborn (Mo.) Democrat.

Lucky Thirteenth Man. "Frederick, I'm sure you will forgive me," said the beautiful girl, bowing her head, "when you know the true reason of my breaking our engagement so soon. But when I became engaged to you I forgot—"

"What is it, Gladys?" he murmured. "Be not afraid. Is it that you love another?"

"No, indeed," responded the girl indignantly, her eyes flashing at him through a veil of tears. "But you know how superstitious I am—I forgot that you would be exactly the thirteenth man I've been engaged to."

CAUSE AND EFFECT Good Digestion Follows Right Food. Indigestion and the attendant discomforts of mind and body are certain to follow continued use of improper food.

Those who are still young and robust are likely to overlook the fact that, as dropping water will wear a stone away at last, so will the use of heavy, greasy, rich food, finally cause loss of appetite and indigestion.

Fortunately many are thoughtful enough to study themselves and note the principle of cause and effect in their daily food. A N. Y. young woman writes her experience thus: "Sometime ago I had a lot of trouble from indigestion, caused by too rich food. I got so I was unable to digest scarcely anything, and medicines seemed useless. A friend advised me to try Grape-Nuts food, saying it might help, and as a last resort, I tried it. I am thankful to say that Grape-Nuts not only relieved me of my trouble, but built me up and strengthened my digestive organs so that I can now eat anything I desire. But I stick to Grape-Nuts." Grape-Nuts food, prepared by Postum Cereals, Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pages. "There's a Reason."

WASTED WEALTH OF COUNTRY

All Kinds of Game Has Been Indiscriminately Slaughtered Throughout Labrador.

The fish, fowl and fowl of Labrador, writes Dr. Grenfell in the Wide World, have been exploited to the last degree, and no scientific or practical effort has been made for their protection or rehabilitation. Our seals, caribou, ducks and many other birds have become either extinct or dangerously depleted. Our deer, owing to forest fires caused by carelessness and unrestricted slaughter by Indians, as well as white settlers, have so far diminished as to bring semi-starvation to doors where once there was always plenty. The destruction of seal herds has brought families once affluent to miserable poverty. For some reason or other, the herds of muskoxen have been left us altogether. The salmon catch is only a shadow of what it once was, and even the returns of our still valuable cod fishery show increasing uncertainty in quantity and distribution.

The growing number of trappers, the lack of protection, of the destruction of their food supplies, has made the annual winter hunt insufficient to maintain in comfort all the prospective hunters and the immigrants who increase in the price of pelts. Seals you."

To the Point.

A lawyer residing in Washington and noted for his laconic style of expression, sent the following wire and sixty note to a refractory client who would not comply with his reiterated demands for the payment of his bill: "Sir, if you pay the enclosed you will oblige me. If you do not I shall oblige you."

STOP THAT BACKACHE

There's nothing more discouraging than a constant backache. You are lame when you awake. Pains pierce you when you bend or lift. It's hard to rest and next day it's the same old story.

Pain in the back is nature's warning of kidney trouble. Neglect may pave the way to dropsy, gravel, or other serious kidney sickness.

FIGHT PLAGUE IN THE ORIENT

American Anti-Tuberculosis Society Has Been Active in Movement for Health Preservation.

Tuberculosis is one of the most serious public health problems of the Orient. Active organizations to fight this disease have been formed in Japan, the Philippines, India and Australia. A movement is on foot for a national organization in China and in a number of cities local work has been started. While no accurate figures are available, those who are in position to know claim that consumption takes annually from 500,000 to 1,000,000 lives in China alone. In India the death rate is fully as high, and the count of caste distinctions and native superstitions, the problem of prevention and treatment is peculiarly difficult. The Japanese government has taken a hand officially in the control of tuberculosis, and is co-operating with two well-organized private associations. The death rate, while very high, is lower than in China and India. Under the direction of the United States public health service a movement for the prevention of tuberculosis in the Philippines has also been organized.

The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, with headquarters in New York, although organized especially for work in this country, has been largely instrumental in the establishment of anti-tuberculosis movement in most of the oriental countries, as well as in Africa and South America.

JUDGE BY RESULTS AFTER SUFFERING TWO LONG YEARS

People Will Take Their Own Measure of the President.

Realize That It is Always Possible to Make Minor Criticisms of Any Energetic Executive—Big Things to His Credit.

In his interesting analysis in Collier's of the record of President Wilson to date, Mr. Peter Clark Macfarlane attempts to summarize the things creditable as well as the things creditable to the president. It is worth while to have, both sides thus presented. According to Mr. Macfarlane the president is the greatest aboriginalist in our history; he has made the White House the seat of power. He has "mangled" the Baltimore platform. For instance, he declared for free tolls for American ships at Panama, but Mr. Wilson has called on congress to repeal the free tolls provision. The president said he could make no recommendation on equal suffrage because the subject was not in the platform, and then he urged the building of an Alaskan railroad on which the platform was silent. Before his election he said the door of the executive office should always be open, but instead he is the least accessible president of a generation. He was always an advocate of publicity in government, but all his designs are shrouded in secrecy. And so on.

Now, all these things may be true. But what do they really amount to? The president is able to be an "absolutist" only so far as he represents public sentiment. That is the sole source of his power with congress. Every president who speaks forcefully for the whole nation in opposition to the demands of congressmen, is bound to be called an "absolutist."

As for the Baltimore platform, the president has maintained its spirit. It would be absurd for him to follow its details when convinced that those details were wrong. It was evident that on suffrage Mr. Wilson was not ready to commit himself. He chose a way of escape that seemed easiest. It happened to lead into a blind alley, and the result was embarrassing. But who falls to make mistakes? As to accessibility and the amount of publicity possible, experience has made the president change his mind. These are mere details of methods of working.

It is always possible to make minor criticisms of any energetic executive. But a president must be judged in a large way by the big things in his record.

Thus far Mr. Wilson's great achievements have outweighed in the public estimation all the minor criticisms that have been brought against him.

All Americans New.
Colonel Nelson of the Kansas City Star, when asked by the New York Herald for his opinion with regard to the president's attitude toward Huerta, replied: "We are not furnishing advice to the president of the United States; we are supporting him. We commend Colonel Nelson's reply to congress. He talks like an American."

Not only Colonel Nelson, but many other men not of the president's political party, the Herald is pleased to serve, are supporting him. Republican editors, business and professional men, including no less a personage than Mr. William H. Taft, until lately himself president of the United States, are sustaining Mr. Wilson as enthusiastically as ever.

It is now too late to talk about mistakes or what might have been. Those are past; the future is before us—New York Herald.

Republicans and Meat Prices.
According to President Wilson of the National Association of Fanners, "it is a fact that today we are paying more per pound for hides than the American people paid for a corresponding weight of sirloin steak 35 years ago." And still our Republican friends oppose any legislation that would bring an occasional sirloin steak within the buying power of the average American. Doubtless they think that a bit of hide, expensive as that now is, is good enough for him.

Democracy's Task Well Done.
The Democracy has revised the tariff. It has scrupulously kept its promise in so doing. And in spite of the fact that an inopportune drought and serious financial troubles in Europe have combined to make the change risky, this has been accomplished with no serious effects and with the minimum of disturbance of commercial conditions.

Next Duty for Democrats.
The tariff has been reformed without regard to special interests affected in Democratic states. Now the Democracy has to do the next thing. It can reform and systematize the bit-of-mis financial practices of our government. This is the next great task. The Democracy should pick up the glove which one of its distinguished representatives has thrown down. It should do that thing which needs President Taft so clearly saw, the performance of which the practice of his party for a half century had made so impossible.

Mrs. Aselin Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Minneapolis, Minn.—"After my little one was born I was sick with pains in my sides which the doctors said were caused by indigestion. I suffered a great deal every month and grew very thin. I was under the doctor's care for two long years without any benefit. Finally after repeated suggestions to try it we got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After taking the third bottle of the Compound I was able to do my housework and today I am strong and healthy again. I will answer letters if anyone wishes to know about my case."—Mrs. JOSEPH ASSELIN, 628 Monroe St., N.E., Minneapolis, Minn.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy we know for women's ills. If you need such a medicine why don't you try it?

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

SMARTING SORE LIDS

Had Made a Good Start.
In a certain family there is one of those rare old maid—a type almost extinct. Two and love affairs have made life appear rather dull, and she's about as cheerful as a rainy day at the seashore. A five-year-old grandchild is her one confidante, because she's the "only one who understands me." The other day at dinner, after casting a reproachful glance at the other members of the family, she murmured: "Yes, darling, I never thought enough of myself. I'm only now beginning to. I hope when you grow up you'll think something of yourself!" "Oh, auntie!" exclaimed the little one, "I don't have to wait 'till then, 'cause I think a whole lot of myself now!"

HUMOR DISFIGURED BABY
Clarendon, N. C.—"My baby was broken out with a red, thick and rough-looking humor when about two months old. It would come in patches and went almost all over her in that way. The places were like ringworm and as they would spread they would turn red and make sores and itch. The trouble went to her face and disfigured her badly. Her clothes irritated it."

"I saw the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I got a sample and in one night's time I could see a change in the redness and in two days the places would be nearly gone. I sent and got one twenty-five cent cake of Cuticura Soap and two fifty-cent boxes of Cuticura Ointment, which cured my baby. She was well in three months." (Signed) Mrs. Bertha Sawyer, Oct. 11, 1913. Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free with 32-Skin Book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

Sun for a Blotter.
It is only within recent years that we have been able to obtain any reliable information regarding the social, political and religious conditions that surrounded the great founder of the Hebrew race while he dwelt in the East. Here he married Sarah and here he was surrounded by his friends and relatives, including Lot, his nephew, who was his companion in his later journeys. Here he was surrounded by a heathen population worshipping the (Baal) and Belshazzar, his consort, and other gods. Here he must frequently have seen the splendor of Babylonian royalty and the glories of the worship of the heathen gods. Here also he must have been conversant with Babylonian literature and familiar with the wedge-shaped cuneiform writing in which all business and official correspondence was then conducted. These writings were done with a stylus of hard wood or metal with a square end. This was pressed on the soft clay, which was then hardened either by sun-drying or baking. These tablets were the standard writing materials—the stationery—of that far-off age.—Christian Herald.

Spiritual.
The new minister in a western parish was making his first call, and when he reached the home of the Peevys he said to Mr. Peevy: "I don't think that I have seen Mr. Peevy at church yet, have I, Sister Peevy?"

"Well, no, you ain't," replied Sister Peevy. "The fact is, Peevy likes to lay about late of a Sunday morning, and time he gets up he has his breakfast and gets through the Sunday papers and does his Sunday shaving and maybe an hour or two of tinkering around the house that he allus puts off to do of a Sunday, and then has a smoke an' maybe cuts some of the children's hair or beats rugs for me, or even mops up the kitchen if I'm hurried—time he's done all that it's too late for church. Fact is, Peevy ain't a real spiritual-minded man now—'at least not the same as I am."—New York Saturday Evening Post.

Young Love's Rivalry.
The following conversation between two little girls, Agnes and May, six and seven years old, respectively, was overheard one day:
Agnes accused May of having a little playmate, John by name, for a "tallow."

May said: "You do, too."
"Why do I?" asked Agnes.
"You let him walk under your umbrella," replied little May.
"So do you, May. I have seen Mr. Peevy at church yet, have I, Sister Peevy?"

RESINOL WILL HEAL BABY'S ITCHING SKIN

Resinol ointment, and resinol soap are absolutely free from anything of a harsh or injurious nature, and can therefore be used with perfect confidence in the treatment of babies' skin troubles—eczema, teething rash, chafings, etc.—where you wouldn't dare use ordinary "skin cures." Resinol stops itching instantly and speedily heals even severe and stubborn eruptions. Doctors have prescribed it for the past nineteen years.

Resinol soap and resinol ointment clear away pimples, blackheads and dandruff, and is an invaluable household remedy for sores, burns, boils, piles, etc. Sold by every druggist.—Adv.

Restful Exercise.
A hint for the tired housewife when there's no time for napping: Lie flat on the floor—a bed or couch won't do—for 15 minutes.

His History of Mexico.

In Woodrow Wilson's text book, "Division and Reunion," written in 1892, when he was president of Princeton University, he described the war of 1846 to 1848 with Mexico. What the historian and scholar had to say then has a peculiar interest in view of the author's attitude now. He tells how Taylor took Monterey, now the scene of battle between Mexican factions, and of the capture of the City of Mexico. The Mexicans he describes as "a race full of courage, spirit and subtlety." An extract from the book follows:

"Congress accepted the assertion that Mexico had begun war as convenient, whether true or not, and provided for the expenses of the conflict as for any necessity. A formal declaration of war was resolved upon on May 13, 1846, before the news of Palo Alto and Resaca de la Palma had reached Washington, and the president was authorized to call for 50,000 volunteers for one year.

"September 19 to 23 the Americans, by slow and stubborn fighting, took the strongly placed and heavily fortified city of Monterey some nineteen miles south of the Rio Grande; February 22 and 23, 1847, Santa Anna with a force probably numbering at least 12,000 men, attacked Taylor's force, which then numbered 5,200, on the broken plain of Buena Vista, but failing to gain any advantage, withdrew to the defense of his capital, the city of Mexico. He had thought to destroy Taylor while he was weak, for in November, 1846, Gen. Winfield Scott had been appointed to be the chief commander in Mexico, to which his military rank entitled him, and January had brought a call for the greater part of Taylor's troops to assist the commander-in-chief in an invasion of Mexico from Vera Cruz, on the coast. The operations in the north ended with the battle of Buena Vista.

"General Scott began his operations with a force of about 12,000 men. He had chosen a hard road to the Mexican capital but the dogged valor and alert sagacity of his men made everything possible. The fleet which carried his troops came to anchor near Vera Cruz on March 7, 1848, and on the 27th of the same month Vera Cruz had surrendered, having been taken without great difficulty.

"In the middle of April began the march of two hundred miles northwestward to the City of Mexico. On the 18th Scott forced the rough mountain pass of Cerro Gordo. On August 10, after a delay caused by fruitless negotiations for peace, the City of Mexico was in sight from the heights of the Rio Frio mountains. Selecting the weaker side of the city which lay amid a net work of defenses and surrounded on all sides by marshy ground, which could be crossed only on causeways, the Americans slowly by dint of heroic courage and patience, drove the Mexicans from one portion of the defense to another until finally the great fortress of Chapultepec was taken by storm (September 13) and the city captured.

"The occupation was complete by the 15th, and there was no further resistance anywhere by the Mexicans. At every point the American troops had fought against heavy odds. They were most of them volunteers, and they had fought against a race full of courage, spirit and subtlety. Their success was due to their moral qualities—to their steady pluck and self-confidence, their cool intelligence, their indomitable purpose, their equal droments of patience and dash."

IN PADUCAH

Statements of Paducah Citizens Are Always of Interest to Our Readers

To many of our readers the streets of Paducah are almost as familiar as those of this town, and we are naturally interested to read the happenings there. The following report from a well-known and respected resident will be helpful to numbers of men and women here in Murray.

T. J. Loyd, 824 Clark street, Paducah, Ky., says: "One of my family was troubled by an acute attack of kidney trouble and severe backache. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box and found them to be a fine remedy. They acted immediately and removed the trouble. I highly recommend them to anyone suffering from backache or other kidney disorders."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. J. Loyd recommends.—Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

KENTUCKIANS SWIFTLY RELIEVED OF STOMACH ILLS BY MAYR REMEDY

First Dose of Wonderful Treatment Shows Results After Years of Suffering.

Many Kentuckians have found swift relief from disorders of the stomach and intestinal tract by the use of Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy.

The first dose gives results. It is not a long treatment.

Here are statements taken from the letters of two Kentucky people who have used the remedy.

W. H. Clarke, Central City, Ky.: "The medicine has done my wife a world of good and she has been suffering from stomach trouble for years."

Mrs. Belle Hawkins, Eminence, Ky.: "I have taken all of the medicine I don't think I need any now, as I think I am well. I never felt better in my life."

From all over this country come effects.

thousands of just such letters. This wonderful remedy shows results, safely, and with the first dose. It is not a long treatment.

Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy clears the digestive tract of mucoid accretions and removes poisonous matter. It brings swift relief to sufferers from ailments of the stomach and bowels. Many declare it has saved them from dangerous operations and many are sure it has saved their lives.

Because of the remarkable success of this remedy there are many imitators, so be cautious. Be sure it's Mayr's. Go to Dail & Stubblefield's drugstore and ask about its wonderful results it has been accomplishing.

Or send to Geo. H. Mayr, Mfg. Chemist, 154 156, Whiting St., Chicago, Ill., for free book on the medicine.

I don't think I need any now, as I think I am well. I never felt better in my life."
