HON. A. W. BARKLEY

Present Congressman Makes Formal Announcement of His Candidacy For Re-Election.

This issue of the Ledger contains the official announcement of Hon. A. W. Barkley, congressman from the First Congressional district, as a candidate to succeed himself. In the first race for this very important office Calloway county gave Mr. Barkley splendid support, attesting his popularity among the people of this county. That he has fulfilled the expectations of his constituency is attested by the splendid record made during the present term of congress. The Ledger knows no better way to present this fact to the voters of Calloway than by reproducing a brief synopsis of his record as congressman as set forth by one of the leading district papers, and which follows:

Congress has been in almost continuous session since he became a member, and on account of this fact Mr. Barkley has been unable to be at home and see the people, as has been possible with other representatives from this district in the past, and it is possible that he will not have the opportunity to come home before the primary in August, as congress may not adjourn for some time yet. It is safe to assert, however, that knowing his record as they do the people at the First district will see to it that his interests in no wise suffer because of his inability to give them his personal attention.

The record of the present administration with which he has been in full accord has been one of uninterrupted progress along those lines of Democratic faith which were promised by the Democrats before the election of President Wilson and which have been carried in every instance to the full and complete satisfaction of the people. Congressman Barkley's part in this labor was of no small proportions, as he had been one of the acknowledged leaders in the splendid battle which has been won for the people.

Mention may be made of the passage of the new Democratic tariff in which Mr. Barkley was an important factor, supporting the measure and assisting its passage through the house. Equally important was the currency reform which the people have been demanding for years but

IN SIGHT

Compromise Is About To Be Reached In The Insurance Muddle.

Louisville, Ky., June 15.—Settlement of the Kentucky fire insurance tangle, caused by the wholesale withdrawal from the state of foreign insurance companies following enactment by the last legislature of the Glenn-Greene amendment to stringent state supervision and taxation of premiums, is predicted as a result of conferences here between representatives of several large insurance companies and state officials.

A proposition submitted by the insurance representatives is declared by members of the conference to be satisfactory to the state officials except in a few minor details, and possibly will receive official approval. Under this proposition the insurance companies agree to the principles of the state regulation and will return to the state at once.

The state officials are to suspend operations of the new law and refrain from putting certain heavy expenses entailed by the law upon the companies. A test of the constitutionality of the measure will be made.

A commission will be named to frame a new bill to be introduced at the next legislature to take the place of the Zorn law and the Glenn-Greene amendment. One of these commissioners will be named by Kentucky business organizations, another by the state insurance board and the third by the insurance companies.

The companies also agree to make certain reductions in rates in accordance with orders issued by the state rating board, were unable to obtain until a Democratic administration came into power. In the passage of this Mr. Barkley was deeply interested and supported a provision in the bill placing agricultural and industrial power on the same footing as commercial power and authorizing long term loans on farm lands.

Ninety Days Having Expired Since Adjustment of Legislature, New Laws Are Operative

Frankfort, Ky., June 15.—Acts of 1914 went into operation to-day, ninety days after the adjournment of the General Assembly, but Gov. McCreary will not issue his commission as Senator to Johnson N. Camden to make perfectly sure.

Gov. McCreary has appointed Mrs. Thomas J. Smith, of Frankfort, a member of the State Library Commission, succeeding Miss Mary Stone, of Hindman, and reappointed Dr. W. B. Doherty, of Louisville.

KILLS SELF

L. W. Holland, Former Sheriff and Present Chief of Police Shoots Self and Dies Instantly.

L. W. Holland committed suicide at his home in this city last Wednesday afternoon at about 5:30 o'clock by shooting himself with a pistol. Mr. Holland had been in very ill health for the past several months and made several visits to Louisville where he underwent an operation for cancer each time. In the afternoon before the deed was committed local physicians were called to the home and performed another slight operation and at the time advised Mr. Holland that he had better again visit Louisville and consult the specialist who had been treating him.

Soon after coming out from under the influence of the anesthetic administered during the operation Mr. Holland fired the pistol shot into his head and expired within a very few minutes.

The announcement of his death was a shock to the entire city and county and the news of his death spread rapidly. The city was filled with out of town folks attending the debate, chauntauqua and the ball game and hundreds of people visited the home on Institute street soon after the deed was committed.

Mr. Holland was one of the most widely known citizens of the county. He served the city of Murray for several years as chief of police and was afterwards elected sheriff and served for four years. The first of the present year he was again elected chief of police and was serving in that capacity at the time of his death. He was a fearless officer and built a wide reputation for his ability as a peace officer. He numbered his friends by the hundreds and much sadness results from his death.

He is survived by his wife and three children and many relatives throughout the county.

The burial took place Thursday afternoon in the City Cemetery, and was attended by a very large crowd.

Get Rid of Your Rheumatism.

Now is the time to get rid of your rheumatism. You can do it if you apply Chamberlain's Liniment. W. A. Lockhard, Homer City, N. Y., writes: "Last spring I suffered from rheumatism with terrible pains in my arms and shoulders. I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment and the first application relieved me. By using one bottle of it I was entirely cured. For sale by all dealers."

Baby Boy "Drowns" in Can of Lard

The little one year old son of Selmore Osburn, residing just this side of Spout Springs, met death in a peculiar and unusual manner Monday. The parents had left the little fellow for a few minutes and were only about 30 yards from the house. Upon their return they found their baby in a lard can dead. In the can, of five gallon capacity, were probably two gallons of lard. Evidently the little fellow fell into it head first and in his dying struggle the can was overturned. It might be said he drowned in a can of lard. Hickman Courier.

A SUCCESS

First Chautauqua Held in Murray Pronounced Grand Success by Promoters and Spectators.

The Murray Redpath Chautauqua closed Wednesday night a success.

Increasing audiences at performances during the last few days indicated enhancing appreciation and caused the decision to have the performance return next year which it will.

During the week of the Chautauqua a number of noted speakers and players have been presented and the Magazine Club under the auspices of which the Chautauqua has been given, feels delighted with the educational results that were accomplished through the performance.

Many of the players and speakers who have entertained on the Chautauqua platform are nationally known. Among these were Bohumir Kryl and his famous band, G. D. Alden, W. B. Amsbury, Everett Kemp, Dr. W. A. Colledge, Strickland Gillilan, E. A. Ott, Montaville Flowers and others.

Mr. Flowers is one of the leading men in the Progressive party, and he is a close friend of Gov. Hiram Johnson, California. In discussing the Japanese question he avoided all references to the possibilities of war, but did give an account of the entire discussion, which interested the audience.

He reviewed conditions in Japan which made emigration desirable to the subjects of the mikado. He told how the tide of immigration steadily had increased in California until the menace was apparent, and he charged that the Japanese now were subtly at work in an endeavor to create national public sentiment for themselves. "So," he added, "that they may play upon the feelings of Americans who do not know them by working on the desire to aid in universal brotherhood."

The Kellogg-Haines Singing Party brought the Chautauqua to a close. One of the features of their presentation were songs of the early '60s. Those were sung with old-time vigor and the audience relished them. In fact, one of the most pleasing features of the Chautauqua has been the revival of those old songs which make an attractive contrast to the oceans of rag-time and wind which go with most modern songs.

"Lovely Gallatea," a satire upon classic performances, was well put on by the company. Excellent voices in the singing and a neat workmanship handling of the playlet itself marked the performance. The performers were clad in classic robes, spoke dialect, used the terms "isch ga bibbel," "skiddoo" and other choice bits of modern slang, which contrasted humorously with the costumes. There is no use giving the plot of "Lovely Gallatea." As far as could be seen that was the only thing lacking about it, but it got along very successfully without one, without.

Indigestion and Constipation.

About five years ago I began taking Chamberlain's Tablets after suffering from indigestion and constipation for years without finding anything to relieve me. Chamberlain's Tablets helped me at once and using them several weeks I was cured of the complaint," writes, Mrs. Mary E. McMullen, Phelps, N. Y. For sale by all dealers.

MODERN METHODS

Employees of E. Guthrie Co., Will Be Given Part of Earnings in The Plan Adopted.

A national movement that is receiving wide attention throughout the land is that of profit-sharing, a method which brings its measure of profit to the employees as well as the employer. Paducah has joined the list of other cities in this worldwide plan. The progressive firm which has adopted the plan in Paducah is none other than the old and established firm of the E. Guthrie Co., which for more than a quarter of a century has enjoyed a period of progress and success. This firm has announced to an assembly of all their employees that, effective January 1, 1914, a system of profit-sharing would be in force.

Perhaps a system of "sales-sharing" would more accurately describe the Guthrie plan, for briefly the idea is to set aside as a fund to be distributed annually among all employees, one per cent of the firm's cash sales for that period, the portion each is to receive being based on their proportion of the total pay roll; this bonus being, of course, in addition to the usual salaries. Some idea of the magnitude of the plan may be gained when it is stated that the amount each will receive for the year will probably be from $40 to $100, distributions being made June 1 and January 1.

One member of the Guthrie sales force says: "You see this is even better than actual partnership, because we participate in the profits of the business without suffering any share of its losses, should there be any." Profit-sharing institutions throughout the world are to-day receiving the close study of the business community; their economic value is becoming gradually recognized, some of the greatest concerns in the United States having found various profit-sharing plans highly effective.

For Calloway County Only

The Board of Directors of the Calloway County Fair Association have voted to confine the premiums in the Agricultural and Farm Department, to Calloway County only. This should be a great incentive to our farmers to get busy.

The Live Stock and other Departments will be open to the world as in the past.

Secretary Holton of the Fair Association advises us that he expects to get the catalogue out at least six weeks earlier than usual.

Merchants and other intending advertisers would do well to get their "copy" at once.

Want Youtsey Pardoned

Petitions prepared for signatures asking the pardon of Henry E. Youtsey, the only one of Gov. Goebel's assassins ever punished, have been sent all over the state, by an organization at the instigation of which Mrs. Kate Brown is at the head. It sets forth that Youtsey has served 13 years, has been used by the commonwealth as a witness in three trials, and that he was only a boy stenographer when implicated in the conspiracy, has now thoroughly reformed and has for years made himself a moral force in the prison. The further statement is made that such men as Gen. Bennett H. Young, Judge J. H. Harbison, and Gen. Dan D. Lindsey have signed petitions for his pardon.

HON. A. W. BARKLEY

CARRANZA SILENT ON AGENTS' POWERS

STATEMENT BY HIM MIGHT BE MISCONSTRUED—OPTIMISTIC REGARDING RECEPTION.

SILENT ABOUT AN ARMISTICE

Speaks Freely About Military Affairs. Claims to Have 100,000 Men in Army and 120 Pieces of Field Artillery.

Saltillo, Mexico.—Gen. Carranza declined to discuss the scope of action or the powers which will be delegated to the representatives of the constitutionalist army to be sent to Niagara Falls. He also declined to discuss the possibility of an armistice, declining in diplomatic affairs, as in military matters, it was inadvisable that certain matters be made public.

He asked to be excused from discussing these matters, saying that he preferred to remain silent in regard to them than to have any statement he might make give a possible misleading construction.

Gen. Carranza, however, seemed most optimistic regarding the reception of the constitutionalist representatives and the success of their mission. He reiterated the fact that he previously had accepted the good offices of the A. H. C. mediators in principle for the discussion of international questions.

About the military affairs of the constitutionalists Gen. Carranza spoke more freely. In reply to a question as to the number of men under arms in the constitutionalist army, Gen. Carranza estimated them at 100,000. He said there were in his possession also 120 pieces of field artillery, all captured from the federalists; 175 machine guns and ample ammunition.

On March 15, 1915, when Carranza held a review in Saltillo of the constitutionalist troops, he had less than 200 men and one machine gun.

Before the majority of the 16,000 troops now here leave for the south Gen. Carranza will hold a review of them all with "them all" that are left of his first little band in the place of honor.

REPLY TO THE MEDIATORS

Gen. Carranza Announces That He Sent Note to Niagara Falls—Will Send Delegates.

Saltillo, Mexico.—Gen. Carranza announced that he had returned an answer to the note of the Niagara Falls mediators stating that he would appoint representatives to the conference at Niagara Falls.

The names of the representatives would take part, it was announced, however, that the agreement to attend the conference would not serve to check the campaign now being waged against the federalists in any respect and the advance to the south will be continued with vigor.

The federalists attempted to escape from Mazatlan through the constitutionalist forces, but were driven back with heavy losses. Two thousand citizens of Mazatlan, who were destitute and without food, came into the constitutionalist camp and were fed by Gen. Carranza, although the latter had to take the food from his own soldiers to do so.

Mediators to Change Rule. Transfer of Authority from Huerta to Provisional President Will Not Be Made by Huerta.

Niagara Falls, Ont.—An important point in plans for the pacification of Mexico was gained by the United States through the conciliatory spirit displayed by the Mexican delegation. What had been a stumbling block for several days, was passed in safety.

In a full conference of the mediators and the delegates of both countries it was agreed that the transfer of authority from the present administration to the new provisional government should be accomplished in some other way than by Gen. Huerta's appointment of a minister of foreign affairs to succeed to the provisional presidency. This method, provided for in the Mexican constitution, will be abandoned because the United States insisted that to assent to it would be tantamount to a recognition of Gen. Huerta's right to exercise constitutional functions.

Can't Reach Carranza. Washington, March 29.—An agent here, announced that he had been unsuccessful again in his efforts to get into direct telegraphic communication with Gen. Carranza at Saltillo.

Delay Carranza's Policy. El Paso, Texas.—Today is the last day of Carranza's policy. At least, none to this supposed plan was the rumor partially admitted, that the long expected estrangement between Carranza and Gen. Villa is near a crisis.

PRELIMINARY PAPERS SIGNED

First Part of Peace Protocol Signed by Delegates from United States and Mexico.

Niagara Falls, Ont.—Delegates from the United States and the Huerta government formally affixed their signatures in the presence of the mediating representatives of Argentina, Brazil and Chile to the first protocol of the series through which it is hoped to restore peace in Mexico. The agreement as to the manner of transferring executive power from Huerta to the new provisional government stood the acid test of reduction to writing. It provides that:

A government is to be constituted in Mexico of a character to be later provided, which shall be recognized by the United States on (date to be fixed), and which from that day forward shall exercise public functions until there shall be inaugurated a constitutional president.

The brief protocol was significant of two things:

It makes no mention of Gen. Huerta as the provisional president and it omits the method of transfer which the Mexican delegates and mediators suggested and to which the United States objected on the ground that its retention would be tantamount to recognition of the existing regime. The Mexican plan, provided that Huerta should name as minister of foreign affairs the man agreed on here for provisional president.

WOULD CUT OFF HUERTA

Rebels Cutting Railroad Communication With Capital—Federals May Attack Vera Cruz.

Washington.—Railroad communication between Mexico City and Vera Cruz is menaced by constitutionalist forces, Brig. Gen. Funston reported to the war department.

From sources in touch with the constitutionalist agency here it was learned that the particular object of the activity of Carranza's troops in Vera Cruz state is to cut off all means of retreat for Huerta and his cabinet in case they determine to quit the capital.

The constitutionalist forces in Vera Cruz state, numbering about 3,000, are said to be disposed so that they might cut not only the railroad between Mexico City and Vera Cruz, but also the line between the capital and Puerto Mexico. The forces are under command of Gen. Aguilar. Interruption of communication between the capital and the eastern seaboard has been in contemplation by the constitutionalists for the last several months. It has been understood here that the South American mediators are prepared to make an appeal for Huerta's personal safety in the event his government collapses before the conclusion of the Niagara conference.

Gen. Funston reported that rumors of a contemplated federal attack on Vera Cruz persisted to the point where they could not be entirely ignored. War department officials, however, were not inclined to regard the rumors seriously.

HUERTA FILLS VACANCIES

Three New Members of Mexican Cabinet—Appointed—Claim Victory Over Zapata at Morales.

Mexico City.—There is a persistent rumor in Mexico City that the three vacancies in Gen. Huerta's cabinet have been filled and that Dr. Emilio Rabasa, one of Gen. Huerta's envoys extraordinary to the Niagara Falls peace conference, has been appointed as minister of foreign affairs. Los Sucesos, a Mexican daily newspaper published here, gives full credence to the rumor and published an article to the effect that it is rumored the appointments have been made.

According to Los Sucesos, Senor Luis Elguero has been appointed minister of communications and public works and Dr. Augustin Rodriguez, minister of agriculture. The newspaper also says that it is reported that Gen. Jose Refugio Velasco will enter the war department.

Reports received here indicate a great victory for the federal troops over the Zapatistas in the state of Morelos and it was said that more than 1,000 Zapatistas were killed.

NO ARMS TO EITHER SIDE. Gen. Mondragon Says to Stop Influx of Ammunition for Two Years and Peace Will Enforce.

Vera Cruz.—If President Wilson is acting in good faith he will not permit another stand of arms or box of ammunition to enter the country for either rebels or federalists. Halt the influx of arms, whether from American or Japanese sources, and Mexico will be peaceful in two years.

Thus exploded Gen. Lorenzo Mondragon, brother of the former minister of war.

Villa Carranza Clash. Juarez, Mexico.—A situation which which the mediators and others who are struggling for restoration of constitutional government in Mexico by peaceful methods may now have to cope is the rapidly widening breach between Gen. Carranza and Gen. Villa.

Washington.—The Washington government was an optimistic view, prospects for the success of mediation through cabinet members fairly radiated jubilation when they left the white house after a conference with the president.

AMEND CANAL REPEAL BILL

Assert Absolute Control of the United States Over Big Ditch—First Test Vote Was 50 to 24.

Washington.—The senate adopted the Simmons-Norris amendment qualifying the canal tolls exemption repeal bill by a vote of 50 to 24.

This was the first test vote after six weeks' debate on the repeal bill. The most optimistic senators who favored repeal had not expected the amendment to carry by so large a majority. It is not believed, however, the bill itself can be put through by so great a margin.

Nine democratic senators—Ashurst, Martine, O'Gorman, Pomeroy, Mansfield, Reed, Shields, Walsh and Williams—voted against the amendment. Several, however, are expected to vote for the repeal bill, while several republicans who supported the amendment are expected to line up against the repeal.

The Simmons-Norris amendment would provide that though the repeal shall not be construed to hold as a waiver or relinquishment of any right the United States may have under the treaty with Great Britain ratified the 21st of February, 1902, or the treaty with the republic of Panama, ratified February 28, 1904, or otherwise to discriminate in favor of its vessels by exempting the vessels of the United States or its citizens from the payment of tolls for passage through said canal, or as in any way waiving, impairing or affecting any right of the United States under said treaty or otherwise with the respect of the sovereignty over or the ownership, control and management of said canal and the regulation of the condition or charges of traffic through the canal.

The amendment reads: "Provided, that the passage of this act shall not be construed to hold as a waiver or relinquishment of any right the United States may have under the treaty with Great Britain ratified the 21st of February, 1902, or the treaty with the republic of Panama, ratified February 28, 1904, or otherwise to discriminate in favor of its vessels by exempting the vessels of the United States or its citizens from the payment of tolls for passage through said canal, or as in any way waiving, impairing or affecting any right of the United States under said treaty or otherwise with the respect of the sovereignty over or the ownership, control and management of said canal and the regulation of the condition or charges of traffic through the canal."

Volcano in Action. Redding, Cal.—The fourth and greatest eruption of steam and smoke from the new opening near the peak of Mount Lassen, at the foot of the Shasta range, has occurred. The smoke column reached an estimated height of 2,500 feet.

SHRIEKS IN THE COURT ROOM. Birmingham, England. Miss Bertha Ryland, the suffragette, who destroyed with a butcher's knife George Romney's "Portrait of a Boy" in the Birmingham art gallery, was committed to jail. During the hearing she shrieked without cessation and quoted Scripture.

She used the text, "I came not to send peace but a sword," as justification for her act.

JAP HANGED FOR MURDER. Seoul, Korea. Tomitaro Watanabe, a Japanese, who, March 29, killed Dr. Edgar de Mott Straker, American surgeon, was hanged here. Watanabe, who had previously strangled his wife, went to the hospital at Hoko, where Dr. Straker was in charge, and shot the American doctor. He was tried and sentenced to the imprisonment, but appealed. The superior court sentenced him to death.

ANOTHER WAR IN BALKANS FEARED

TURKS ARE REPORTED TO HAVE ATTACKED AVALIK—MASSACRE OF 25,000 FEARED.

GREECE SENDS ULTIMATUM

Premier of Greece, in Statement in Chamber, Accuses Turks of Persecuting Greeks, and Declares War is Imminent.

London.—An official dispatch from Mitylene, an island off the coast of Asia Minor, says that Turkish regulars with machine guns and a force of Bushi Inzouks attacked the town of Avalik, on the coast of the mainland. As the town is inhabited by 25,000 Greeks, a massacre is feared.

Threats of another Greco-Turkish war did not come as a surprise to diplomats here.

Greece accuses Turkey of the wholesale expulsion, with great cruelties, of Greek Christians from the province of Thrace, while Turkey accuses Greece of oppressing former Turkish subjects in the region of Saloniki, which was taken by the Greeks in the recent Balkan war.

Messages from Athens state that one class of the Greek naval reserves has been called out, ostensibly to participate in fleet maneuvers.

Greek ship owners have telegraphed instructions to their commanders of their ships in the Black Sea to return immediately to Greek waters. A conference between the Russian and Hellenic ministers has been planned to take place at Bucharest, Rumania, to endeavor to prevent war.

BALLOONS CAUGHT IN STORM

Lightning Strikes—One During Race in Northwest—Pigeon Brings News—Location Uncertain.

Portland, Ore.—Anxiety prevails here regarding the fate of three of the four balloons which started from here in the first national balloon race ever held in the northwest. Shortly after their departure the aircraft were caught in a terrific wind, and knowledge of the storm's treatment of the balloons is confined to a single case.

The Uncle Sam, piloted by Capt. Honeywell of St. Louis and carrying as a passenger Dr. W. L. Stewart, was driven to earth near Oregon City. Honeywell and Stewart were not injured. Later a carrier piece fluttered into its cage here. Tied to it was a bit of paper and on it was written: "Balloon struck by lightning. Berry hurt. Come quick. Morrison."

The balloon of which Capt. John Berry is pilot is the Million Population club of St. Louis. The passenger was George C. Morrison.

Morrison made no mention of the balloon's location. It is thought here that it was not wrecked in the dense forests of the Cascade mountains it may have been stranded in the sparsely settled plateau that stretches beyond the western slopes.

An hour after the first carrier arrived another pigeon, minus its tail feathers, flew in. There was no message attached to it. It, too, is believed to have been loosed from the Million Population club.

Nothing has been heard from the Kansas City III, piloted by John Watts, and the Springfield, piloted by Roy Donaldson. Every possible effort has been made to locate the missing balloons.

George C. Morrison is a frontiersman from Lexington, Idaho, and it is believed he will be able to find his way out of the mountains and bring aid to his injured companion unless he, too, is injured. Capt. Berry is one of the most experienced aeronauts in this country.

Students Killed. Ithaca, N. Y.—Holland T. Heitzman of Muskogee, Okla., a junior at Cornell, was drowned. Heitzman, in company with several companions, was swimming in the George pond. His body was recovered.

TWO ARE BLOWN TO ATOMS. Fifty Shacks Destroyed When 600 Quarts of Nitroglycerin Explodes on Ferry, Glenmore, Okla.

Glenmore, Okla.—Two men were blown to atoms and over fifty shacks in the oil fields destroyed here when 600 quarts of nitroglycerin exploded while being ferried across the Verdigris river, twelve miles south of this city.

The ferry boat was blown across the river and flung more than half its length in the opposite bank.

Naval Bill Deadlock. Washington, Senate and house conferees on the naval appropriation bill reported inability to agree on several features, including the senate amendment permitting the sale of a foreign nation of the battleship Idaho and Mississippi.

Aeronaut Killed. Richmond, Ind.—J. O. Gill, an aeronaut, died here today. He was killed when his parachute failed to open after he cut loose from a balloon 2,000 feet in the air.

PHILIP C. HANNA

Philip C. Hanna, American consul general at Monterey, is one of the country's agents who suffered at the hands of the federalists. He was put in jail and left there until released by the constitutionalists.

MILITANTS ARE ON RAMPAGE

Dynamite St. Edwards Church in Westminister Abbey—Two Women Arrested—Parliament Halted.

London.—Militant suffragettes have staged one of the most dramatic acts of their campaign, exploding a bomb in Westminster Abbey at the very moment the Right Hon. Reginald McKenna, secretary of state for home affairs, was delivering an oration.

The house of commons nearly regarding the government's method of dealing with the "wild women."

The bomb was placed beside the famous coronation chair in Edward the Confessor's chapel. Although it did little damage, its report penetrated to the house chamber, interrupting Mr. McKenna's oration and bringing members into the street to learn what had happened.

The explosion started a hundred or more visitors who were being conducted about the abbey and women ran screaming for the doors. A great cloud of dust filled the chapel and those within first thought lightning had struck the building.

Two young women who were nearest the chair were taken to the police station, but were released when they proved they were foreigners.

Reginald McKenna, the home secretary, announced in the house of commons that he hoped the government had obtained sufficient evidence to enable it to bring suit against subscribers to the funds of the militant suffragette organization. He added the further hope that the government would be able to make the subscribers liable to the full extent of the damage done by "arson squads," destroyers of mail and picture slanders.

THAW TO GO TO PITTSBURGH. Will Be Allowed to Testify in Matter of Father's Estate—Time Limit Will Be Specified.

New York.—Counsel for Harry K. Thaw and William Travers Jerome, counsel for the state of New York, announced that it had been agreed to allow Thaw, who is now in New Hampshire, to go to Pittsburgh to testify in the matter of his father's estate.

At the same time Merrill Shurtleff of counsel for Thaw announced that in consideration of this concession on the part of the state the application to the United States supreme court for Thaw's admission to bail temporarily would be withdrawn.

Thaw's status, said Mr. Jerome, would remain the same.

While Thaw is being taken from one state to another all state authorities will be enjoined from interference with his custody. A time limit for his stay in Pittsburgh would probably be specified by the supreme court, said Mr. Jerome.

Mine Wage Conference. Kansas City.—The biyearly wage conference between coal operators and miners of Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas began here.

James Elliott, McAlister, vice chairman of the Southwest Operators' association, presided. John P. White of Okaloosa, Iowa, national president of the United Mine Workers of America, attended the conference in company with representatives of the miners' organizations of four states.

Approximately 30,000 men work in the mines involved in the session.

"BOO" FISHER'S WIFE HURT. New York.—Mrs. Pauline Fisher, 23, wife of "Bud" Fisher, the cartoonist, was severely injured when two motor cars collided here. Five other passengers of the cars were less seriously injured. First reports said that Mrs. Fisher had been fatally hurt. Later it was said that she was not hurt.

One of the cars overturned, plunging Mrs. Fisher beneath it.

LORIMER NEAR A COLLAPSE

Approximately $4,000,000 in Deposits Tied Up in Lorimer Institutions. Trouble Caused by Holding Certain Securities.

Chicago.—A fifth state bank, the State Bank of Calumet, was closed by the state bank examiner in connection with the disclosure of conditions in the LaSalle Trust and Savings bank. According to the examiner, the State Bank of Calumet was the last in the chain of what were known as the string of Lorimer-Munday banks in Chicago. In addition, another state bank was forced to endure a run and a private bank went into the hands of a receiver.

William Lorimer, president of the LaSalle Street bank, was said to be near a physical collapse from the strain of the developments of the last twenty-four hours.

The examiners worked steadily on the books of the LaSalle Street bank, the Broadway State bank, the Illinois State bank, the Ashland-Twelfth State bank and the State Bank of Calumet.

Approximately $4,000,000 of deposits are tied up in the institutions.

Deposits in the State Bank of Calumet amounted to $144,924.93, according to its latest report. Its capital stock was $200,000 and its surplus $100,000.

Scores of children were depositors in this institution. They had organized a "Christmas fund."

ADLAI E. STEVENSON DEAD

Former Vice-President Had Been Ill Several Months—Was Born in Kentucky.

Chicago.—Adlai E. Stevenson, vice president of the United States through the second Cleveland administration, died at a hospital here after an illness of several months. His three children were at his bedside.

Adlai Ewing Stevenson, once vice president of the United States, had a long and honorable public career. He was vice-president Cleveland, in 1893, under President Cleveland. In 1898 he was again nominated by the Democratic party for vice-president and with William J. Bryan, the party's candidate for president, but was defeated.

He served as member of the forty-fourth and forty-fifth congresses, and as postmaster general under President Cleveland.

Mr. Stevenson was born in Christian county, Kentucky, October 11, 1835, of Scotch-Irish parents. In 1852 his parents moved to Bloomington, Ill. He attended the public schools and the University of Illinois.

SUFFRAGETTES ARE ACTIVE. Put Bomb in Church at Hanover Square—Famous Painting Saved.

London.—A bomb was exploded in St. George's church, Hanover square. Evidence tends to show the explosion was the work of suffragettes, and coming so close on the bomb outrage at Westminster abbey, the desecration of the famous edifice has increased the alarm as to how far the militants intend to go.

Three pews and three stained windows were damaged by the explosion. The famous painting of "The Last Supper," by Sir James Thornhill, which hangs over the altar, was not damaged, although the window above it was shattered.

While judges of the high courts and the lord mayor were attending service in St. Paul's cathedral suffragettes interrupted with protests against the torturing of women.

The service was delayed several minutes while two women halted 3 seats were removed.

Train Wrecked. San Bernardino, Cal.—Two passengers were killed and seven injured when eastbound California limited of the Atchafalaya, Tempeka & Santa Fe struck the rear end of a freight train at Badland, Cal., 100 miles east of here.

Aviator Hurt. Hartford, Conn.—Lincoln Beachey, aviator, while preparing to make a flight here, fell forty feet (200 ft.) and, narrowly escaped being crushed under his machine.

Call Off Celebration. Petersburg, Va.—Plans for celebrating the thirtieth anniversary of the battle of the Crater, July 30, were abandoned. No reason was given for the decision by the local camp. Some Confederate Veterans.

Indian Banker. Tulsa, Okla.—Thirty-two Indian bankers were returned here against George Alexander, president of the Oklahoma Alexander & Co. bank, which failed at about $500,000.

TINY, ALGY AND MINNIE GET IN WRONG

Tiny O'Toole (of the Dancing Dolls)—Say, Algy, you can't tell me you came over here because the king's cousin wanted to marry you and your family objected.

Algy (late of the 'Alls)—Why can't I? I'll give you the lady's name in a minute. Don't look as if I had some romance connected with me! Why do you suppose I'm idling myself with a lot of am actors and actresses?

Egbert Vancover (small parts)—How dare you, sir, to speak of us as hams? I'd let you know I'm from an old and respected family in New York. Then father lost his fortune and we children were cast out on the cruel world. I thank heaven I had a voice, but my brother Wallie wasn't so gifted.

Tiny O'Toole—Lucky you, there's nothing to keep him from going regular work.

Egbert Vancover—He's only a business man getting $10,000 a year. Poor Wallie O'Toole—Just 9,500 more than you, huh? Kid, your voice ain't a gift. It's a misfortune.

Algy—Es got a ripping voice. Sounds like some one ripping something. Es never on key.

Minnie Mintz (property man's wife)—He's got a combination voice; you don't need no key. Fritz, my husband, told me our show would be out yet if that frog wasn't with us.

Algy—Why did you keep the boundary?

Minnie Mintz—The producer in his angle, and his fiancée thinks he's an actor.

Tiny O'Toole—His fiancée? Who?

"Es Got a Ripping Voice. Sounds Like Someone Ripping Something. Es Never on Key."

gon't to marry a chorus man without a cent?

Egbert Vancover—Without a cent, maybe, but wait, m' dears.

Algy—Es full of pipe dreams, th' liddle is, no mo word.

Dad Wadell (who knew Booth—by sight)—Millions were within my grasp one time—but let us pass on.

Ena Claire (comedienne)—You had a chance at the coln, Dad? Tell us about it.

Dad Wadell—It was back in the early days when I was the idol of the hour in 'Henry the Eighth'.

Tiny O'Toole—One nighters?

Dad Wadell—No, madam. In New York we had a run of half a fortnight.

Algy—Some run, I should say not!

Dad Wadell—At that time the Princess Palais, a close relation of Napoleon, was seeing our country incognito. She saw me in my part at the Casino one night and her heart was lost. We met again at a reception given at the home of the wealthy gentleman who owned the horses that drew the Broadway street car at that time. It was love at first sight.

Algy—She must 'ave 'ad a cinder in each eye.

Dad Wadell—I was smitten with her charm and she with mine. I proposed and was accepted. Our plans were laid for the future and the place of our honeymoon was to be her chalet on the Seine.

Tiny O'Toole—This sounds like a scenario in three reels.

Dad Wadell—The emperor, through his system of espionage, heard of our attachment—and Minnie Mintz—Was he going to kill you right away?

Dad Wadell—I think that was his intention. He wanted me to lead his army at Sedan.

Minnie Mintz—That's just like my Fritz! He was a bareback rider with old man Robinson's show when he seen me at Evansville as I was standing by my father's butcher shop. When the parade was back at the lot he come over to the shop, got acquainted with father, gave him two passes and told him to bring his hand some daughter with him, as I was standing by my father's butcher shop.

Algy—Did y' see a sister, Minnie?

Minnie Mintz—At the show that night Fritz fell off a horse and broke his leg.

Algy—The 'orse's name?

Minnie Mintz—My Fritz! He had a name, but I forgot it. He was married at the Catholic church across from the orphanum. I forgot the name of it. Fritz would never have met me, only in Germany they wanted him to join the army like Dad.

Algy—E wasted 'is life. 'E might be a general now. Why didn't 'e join?

Minnie Mintz—He was so proud he was ashamed to be seen as a private in public. That's what he told me, but I think he's a nobleman of some kind. I can hardly wait till he dies to find out if he's got a secret.

Dad Wadell—It wouldn't surprise me if he is the son of some proud miller or shoemaker.

Ena Claire—Say, crowd, don't we run across a lot of romance in this game? It seems everyone has a story buried somewhere. Here's Minnie don't know but maybe Fritz will spring it that he's a duke or something like that, and Dad Wadell had a princess gone on him.

Algy—Wat about me own little 'istory?

Tiny O'Toole—Maybe y' think mine wouldn't sound like L. G. Libby in a paper cover. But Steve was only a soft shoe dancer.

Egbert Vancover—Dear me, I don't say much, but the tangled threads of my romance could be woven into...

Tiny O'Toole—A ten-minute act for a sidewalk comedian. I'll bet you're making that and you're engaged to be believe you're heading your own company. She's in Boston, she has no way of findin' out.

Algy—It's a shame. Get a piece of paper an' we'll write 'er now. Tiny, fancy 'er throwin' 'erself away. Some time when I'm in Boston I may meet 'er if she ain't gone an' married.

Egbert Vancover—Beast! If you and I ever meet in France it shall be pistols for two.

Ena Claire—Egbert, don't you dare

FARMERS DUE FOR GOOD YEAR

REPORTS ON KENTUCKY CROPS ARE SHOWING UP GOOD—HARVEST BEGUN.

RECORD BREAKER EXPECTED

Commissioner of Agriculture Newman Issues Statement—Corn Acreage Is Given at 96 Per Cent.

(Special Frankfort Correspondence.)

Frankfort, Ky.—Taken as a whole, the wheat, hay and blue grass seed crops are assured, while the corn and tobacco crops are not injured to an irreparable extent. Seasonable weather can make this year a prosperous one to the farmers in Kentucky. Such is the encouraging report of Commissioner of Agriculture Newman. He says that the wheat cutting has begun in the southern portion of the state, and the indications are that there will be a record-breaking crop in Kentucky. Its condition is given at 96 per cent at the beginning of the harvest, and it is too late for weather conditions to prevent the maturing of a large yield of wheat of splendid quality. The crop has but one danger to run, and that is an excessive rainfall while in shock. Rye has held its own. Another crop that is made and ready for harvest is the blue grass seed crop, which will be large and of good quality. The condition of blue grass is given at 96 per cent. The corn acreage is given at 96 per cent, while the condition is stated at 87 per cent. Tobacco has suffered from the drought. Lack of moisture has prevented the transplanting of plants and there are complaints of the plants getting too large for transplanting. This damage cannot be considered as serious. Condition of burley tobacco is given at 86 per cent and that of dark tobacco at 81 per cent. Cut worms are doing considerable damage to both corn and tobacco.

Will Test Ruling.

The ruling of the state railroad commission that potential river competition, where a city is situated on a navigable stream, whether there is actual competition between rail and steamboat lines or not, gives that city the right to river rates, probably will be tested in the courts. The commission held in the complaint of the Central City business men that that city is entitled to the same rates from Louisville via the Illinois Central as Owensboro gets, plus seven and one-half cents for drayage from Green river, three miles away, to the town. In the order just entered the commission provides that in case the railroad refuses to comply with the order no information will be filed with the grand jury, but civil suit instituted by the commission to enforce the order.

To Eradicate Disease.

Henderson county has been accepted by the department of agriculture at Washington for an experiment in the hog cholera experiment in Kentucky. H. R. McNally will be sent to that county by the government to attempt the complete eradication of hog cholera. It is probable that the rest of the state will be quarantined against it to protect Henderson county from outside infection; the stock yards in the county will be protected.

Library Commission.

Dr. J. W. Doherty, of Louisville, was elected chairman of the state library commission, at the annual meeting of the commission. Mr. George Flournoy, of Paducah, who has been chairman since the organization of the commission, surrendered the chair, when the election of officers was reached in the order of business, and nominated Dr. Doherty, who was unanimously elected.

Contract Is Made.

The state text book commission, let the contract for furnishing geographical for the common schools for the next five years to the American Book Co.; and a supplemental geography contract to the University Publishing Co. The domestic science contract went to Little-Brown Co., Boston, and a supplemental book on the same subject to Wooten & Co.

Reduce Rates.

The question of the validity of the two and a half cent fare law, which lacks an enacting clause, may not be determined by the courts as three of the railroads most interested in its terms have revised their tariffs to conform to the law.

Kentuckians Talk Some.

In the United States census bureau giving statistics of telephones in the various states for the year 1912, the report shows that in Kentucky that year there were 287,807 messages, or 124,881,062 talks over the Bell line and 164,196,540 over all other systems. In Kentucky the Bell, according to the report, has 199,451 miles of wire and all other systems have 1,115 telephones in Kentucky and all other systems have 7,666 telephones.

Many roads affected.

The Chesapeake & Ohio should not be exonerated from the operation of the two and a half cent fare law was far as its tickets included transportation over the Ashland Coal & Iron railroad is concerned; is the opinion of Assistant Atty. Gen. M. M. Logan. The Chesapeake & Ohio has a traffic arrangement with the Ashland Coal & Iron road for the use of its track between Ashland and Denton. It is less than 50 miles long and the Ashland Coal & Iron road may charge three cents fare. By the traffic arrangement the C. & O. must pay over to the A. C. & I. 50 per cent of its passenger fares on the line based on the rate charged by the A. C. & I. If the C. & O. charges only two and a half cents the mile, it must give to the A. C. & I. more than 50 per cent of what it collects for the portion of its passenger traffic over that line, and it applied for permission to charge three cents the mile for the mileage between Ashland and Denton; but Mr. Logan said that mileage must be considered part of the main system of the Chesapeake & Ohio as far as the sale of tickets is concerned points on the Ashland Coal & Iron.

Many Improvements.

Out of funds saved from the income from the farms under its management the state board of control is undertaking expensive improvements. The equipment of all the institutions within tubercular wards is the first consideration. Western Kentucky and Lake land hospital already have them, one is under way at the Eastern hospital, where new floors in the colored ward and chairs for that branch also will be provided. The surplus from the Western State hospital will take care of the cost of erecting a tubercular ward at the Institute for the Care of the People Minded here. Contract for this will be let soon. The construction of a new boiler house, resetting of the entire battery of boilers and stackers and installation of a new 300-horsepower boiler at Lakeland will require six months' time and will cost $20,000. The board has adopted plans for the industrial building, at the Western State hospital and work will be started on it at once. The board has purchased a big motor truck for use out there. The institution is two miles from Hopkinsville and the truck is expected to save considerably more than its cost the first year.

D. of A. Make Gain.

At the 14th annual state council of the Daughters of America a gain of 800 members during the year was reported. The states of Maryland and Kentucky are having an exciting race for the second place in membership in the union. Ohio leads by nearly twice the number in the other states. Mrs. Fannie Dinsley, of Newport, was elected state councillor, and Mrs. Emma Whiting, of Newport, will be secretary and geological officer. The most important officers of the organization will go to Newport. Eleven new councils have been instituted during the year, making a total of 78 in the state. The next place of meeting will be Mammoth Cave. Albert S. Hosson, of Cincinnati, national secretary of the funeral benefit department, is among the delegates. The most distinguished visitor at the state meeting is Mrs. Lala Thompson, of New Egypt, N. J., national councillor.

Prepares Map of Soil.

H. C. Jones, who has for the past two months been engaged in the work of collecting data on Franklin county for the Kentucky Experiment Station and Geological Survey. Co-operative work, finished his task with the exception of collecting samples of the different soil types found in the county. Mr. Jones will prepare the samples within the next two weeks which will be sent to the Agricultural College at Lexington. Mr. Jones has compiled a map of Franklin county which shows in colors the location and area of each of the 15 different soil types found. This map, together with the data previously collected, will be used in the report to be issued about this time next year by the experiment station for the benefit of the farmers of this section.

May Land Watch Works.

A watch and clock factory, employing 600 hands, may locate in Frankfort within the year. State Senator G. Speer, temporary president of the Commercial club, has received overtures from the concern, said to be flourishing, but seeking a more advantageous location. According to information in the hands of Senator Speer, the owners look favorably on Frankfort as a site.

The Literacy Test.

The Dillingham-Burnett bill, restricting immigration and requiring the literacy test for immigrants coming to this country, was favored by the Daughters of America in convention in this city. A resolution endorsing the bill will be passed. A resolution to be issued about this time next year by the experiment station for the benefit of the farmers of this section.

Commission Plans Action.

The new question, whether potential river competition with railroads in fixing rates, probably will find its way into the courts via civil proceedings instituted by the state railroad commission to compel the Illinois Central to obey an order requiring that road to lower its rates on the same route from Green River, three miles away, into Central City.

The very young lady was showing her school friend from another city about her native town. Presently the pair came to a little square adorned with a statue of the local Civil war hero.

"It isn't very much to boast of as art," said the sophisticated young chit, "but it's important to know about it because one usually asks one to meet one here."

Her Explanation.

"Uncle Hank" Barnhart, member of congress from Indiana, tells of a young woman he had not seen for many years.

"I thought you were dead," was the young man's greeting.

"No," insisted the girl, "but I'm married."

"To whom?"

"Oh, some Englishman."

EYE STRAIN Relieved by Quitting Coffee.

Many cases of defective vision are caused by the habitual use of coffee. It is said that in Arabia where coffee is used in large quantities, many lose their eyesight at about fifty. Tea contains the same drug, caffeine, as coffee.

A N. J. woman writes to the point concerning eye trouble and coffee. She says:

"My son was for years troubled with his eyes. In the trial several kinds of glasses without relief. The optician said there was a defect in his eyes which was hard to reach."

"He used to drink coffee, as we all did, and finally quit it and began to use Postum. That was three years ago and he has not had to wear glasses and has had no trouble with his eyes since."

"I was always fond of tea and coffee and finally became so nervous I could hardly sit still long enough to eat a meal. My heart was in such a condition I thought I might die at any time."

"Medicine did not give me relief and I was almost desperate. It was about this time we decided to quit coffee and use Postum, and have used it ever since. I am in perfect health. No trouble now with my heart and never felt better in my life."

"Postum has been a great blessing to us all, particularly to my son and myself."

Given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum now comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum is a soluble powder. A teaspoon dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

There's a Reason for Postum—sold by Grocers.

WILLING TO GIVE AWAY PAPA

Youthful Legislator Met Appeal to His Generosity With a Crushing Answer.

A mother was urging her little son to be generous, specifically in the case of a small comfort not well endowed with worldly goods.

"I wish you'd give your little wagon to Melville," she suggested. "He has so few toys and you have so many."

"I don't want to, ma'ma. I like my little wagon. Why doesn't his papa buy toys for him?"

"He has no papa, dear. That is the reason why I want you to be so particularly nice to him. It would be no virtue in you to give him what you don't want anyway. We should always be careful to share what we really prize. Now, as I say, Melville has no papa and—"

"Well, why don't you give him papa, then?" was the youthful legislator's reply.

AN APPEAL TO WOMEN

Bud, Ky.—"I want to urge all weak women," says Mrs. Lizzie R. Barker, of this place, "to give Cardui, the woman's tonic, a fair trial, for I believe it will do for them what it has done for me."

I was a sufferer for 12 years, with such pain I could scarcely walk or stand on my feet. I had headache, dizziness and fainting spells.

After many treatments failed to help me, my husband persuaded me to give Cardui, the woman's tonic, a trial, and I did so. Now I feel like a new woman. I am well of all those troubles, and can do all my housework, with pleasure.

When I commenced taking Cardui, I was not able to sit up. Now I am enjoying good health and do all of my work.

I shall keep Cardui in my home all the time. There is not any medicine that equals it for women."

We, also, urge you to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, for your troubles. It has helped so many thousands of women in the past half century that we feel sure it will help you, too.

Prepared from perfectly harmless, vegetable ingredients. Cardui is the remedy for you to use. It can do you nothing but good.

A WINNING FIGHT.

(Louisville Post)

Contemplating with a mournful air the irresistible Beckham wave that is sweeping Louisville, a lone Louisville supporter of Gov. McCreary opines that Mr. Beckham must be losing ground in the country districts because his friends are making such efforts in his behalf in Louisville.

There is nothing in this, Mr. Beckham is stronger in the country districts than was the case of two weeks ago—stronger, if for no other reason, because of the collapse of the opposition. A well informed looker on in Kentucky politics stated Saturday that Mr. Beckham will carry 110 out of the 120 counties in the state. This may be disputed, but there is no reason to doubt that Mr. Beckham will carry three counties out of four and probably ten of the eleven Congressional Districts.

The sudden evidence of the strength shown by Mr. Beckham in the cities, and notably in Louisville, is not hard to understand. In the first place, Mr. Beckham has always had many friends here, and the party treachery that made Mr. Bradley Senator in 1908 was as keenly resented in Louisville as in any other section of the state.

In the next place it has been known for months that the Mayor and his associates were determined to keep the August primary free from fraud, and this insured to Mr. Beckham the strength he has always had. In the last place, dozens of the strongest political factors inside the Democratic party in Louisville have declared for Mr. Beckham because they were tired of these eternal conflicts between the city and state, and were determined to support the man the state wanted for Senator, partly because they realized the advantage of such a step to Louisville and partly because they believed Mr. Beckham the best man offering for Senator at this time.

These facts make it as certain as anything in politics that Mr. Beckham will carry Louisville by a handsome plurality in the August primary. If anybody doubts this we refer them to the Courier-Journal and Times. These papers are not full of statements in regard to Mr. Beckham's strength or weakness; on the other hand there is a gloomy silence, an unwillingness to even refer to Democratic Senatorial politics, which speaks to the satisfaction of Mr. McCreary's and Mr. Stanley's friends, that those journals do not propose to go forward with a hopeless fight.

Monday morning when they opened up, B. W. Oliver and Noah Garner, who operate Dowdy's grist mill, which is in the rear of The Statesman office, found a pair of lady's slippers, about number fours, almost worn thru the sole and slightly run down at the heel. The said slippers were found on the upper floor of the mill, and were kept company with four soda pop bottles, two of which were filled and two empty.

The gentlemen named are asking who owned these Trilbys, while we are admiring the nerve of that female who can go alone thru a cellar window of a mill, run a labyrinth of belts, wheels and shafts, and fearlessly of rats and mice, ascend to the top floor of a mill, just to change shoes and drink a bottle or two of pop. —Dexter, Mo., Statesman.

A mysterious Missouri mystery indeed. But did the gentlemen see any man-tracks in the dust roundabout?

It isn't always the love of sport that causes a boy to become a professional baseball player; nay verily. The example of Christy Mathewson, premier twirler for the New York Giants, doubtless influences many of them. Mathewson receives a bigger hourly salary than either Wilson or Bryan. Mathewson's hourly salary is $187.50 an hour for 80 hours during the baseball season. Johnson, another ball player, gets $156.50 an hour, while President Wilson receives $20 an hour, and Gray of Steel Trust fame gets $40 for every 60 minutes of time he puts in.

One of the best musicians in Trigg county is Mr. R. Peyton Thomas, who lives in the Donaldson country, about ten miles south of Cadiz. How To Remove Fruit Stains

In the "Exchange" department of the July Woman's Home Companion—a department devoted to household suggestions made by contributors out of their practical experience—appear the following suggestions as to the best ways of removing fruit stains. The first is contributed by a New York woman and the second by an Iowa woman.

Whenever I find a fruit stain on tablecloths or napkins, I wet it with a little camphor. If this is done before the stain has been wet with water, the stain will entirely disappear when the articles are laundered.

To remove fruit stains from table linen easily and surely, simply moisten the stain with pure glycerin before sending clothes to the laundry. Twenty-five cents' worth of glycerin will last an ordinary family a year or more, at least.

Crop Report of June 1st.

The month of May was an unusually dry one in Kentucky. The crop reports coming to this office as of June 1st, show that there was practically no rainfall in Kentucky from May 8th to June 1st. Almost every report speaks of the drouth, but the damage up to June 1st has not been serious. Since this time copious rains have fallen in many portions of the state. The best rains have occurred in the central and eastern portions of the state, and showers over limited areas have occurred in the western sections.

Wheat cutting has begun in the southern portion of the state, and the indications are that we will have a record breaking crop in Kentucky. Condition is given at 96 per cent at the beginning of the harvest, and it is now too late for weather conditions to prevent the maturing of a large yield of wheat of splendid quality. The crop has but one danger to run now, and that is an excessive rainfall while in shock. Rye has held its own, and the condition is given at 96 per cent. This crop is practically made. Another crop that is made and ready for harvest is the Bluegrass seed crop, which will be large and of good quality. Condition of Bluegrass is given at 96 per cent.

The corn acreage is given at 96 per cent, while the condition is stated at 87 per cent. The drouth to a certain extent has affected both the planting of the corn and the condition of that planted. The damage to corn, however, is probably not very great, as the rains that have fallen since the first of June will remedy much of the trouble indicated by the reports. Cuts, however, with an acreage of 80 per cent, has suffered materially in condition, the latter dropping to 74 per cent. A rain would help the cuts crop some, but this can not possibly be a heavy crop this year.

Tobacco beds have suffered in a measure from the drouth. Lack of moisture has prevented the transplanting of plants at the proper time, and there are complaints of the plants getting too large for transplanting. This damage, however, cannot be considered as very serious. Condition of Barley tobacco is given at 86 per cent, and that of dark tobacco 81 per cent. Cut worms are doing considerable damage to both corn and tobacco.

Alfalfa and orchard grass are both given at 86 per cent, and have not suffered as much from the drouth as young clover and timothy, which show a condition of 78 per cent. Potatoes have suffered materially, dropping to a condition of 74 per cent. Garden conditions are given at 80 per cent. The prospects for a large fruit crop remain good, but the strawberry crop was cut to about 60 per cent of a crop as a result of the dry conditions at maturity. Indications are for a large blackberry crop, this being given at 94 per cent; grapes at 87; apples, 78; peaches, 84; pears 72, and plums 78 per cent.

All five stock is in good condition, comparatively speaking, with lambs beginning to show the effects of short pastures. Condition of horses is given at 95 per cent, cattle 94; hogs 91; and sheep and lambs at 90. Young turkeys have suffered

COD LIVER OIL AND IRON

Two Most World-Famed Tonics Combined in Vinol

Cod Liver oil and Iron have proved to be the two most successful tonics the world has ever known—iron for the blood and the medicinal curative elements of cod liver oil as a strength and tissue builder for body and nerves, and for the successful treatment of throat and lung troubles. Two eminent French chemists discovered a method of separating the curative medicinal elements of the cod livers from the oil or grease which is thrown away, but to these medicinal elements iron is now added, thus combining in Vinol the two most world famed tonics. As a body-builder and strength creator for weak, run-down people, for feeble old people, delicate children, to restore strength after sickness, and for chronic coughs, colds, bronchitis or pulmonary troubles we ask you to try Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you.

Calloway county was visited during the past week by local showers in different sections. While the precipitation was very light it tended to revive suffering crops in sections where it fell and was followed by several days cooler weather. Unless a general rainfall comes before the first of next month, the tobacco crop will be cut very short. Wheat is all out and in fine shape while the corn is not damaging yet still is in need of a general rain.

BAKER & GLASGOW

The VALLANTS of VIRGINIA

By HALLIE ERMINIE RIVES

ILLUSTRATIONS BY LAUREN STOUT

COPYRIGHT BY HODGINS-MERRILL COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

John Vallant, a rich society favorite, suddenly discovers that the Vallant fortune, which his father founded and which was the principal source of his wealth, has failed. He voluntarily turns over his private fortune to the creditors for the corporation. His entire remaining possessions consist of an old estate and a white bull dog and Damory Court, a neglected estate in Virginia.

Damory Court has been the home of the Vallants for many generations. It is a large, old-fashioned house, with a garden and a park. The Vallants have lived there for many years, and it is a place of great beauty and interest.

John Vallant, who is now a poor man, goes to Damory Court to see his father's old home. He finds that the house is in a state of neglect and that the garden is overgrown. He decides to take possession of the house and to try to make it a home again.

He sat down on a mossed boulder, breathless, his eyes sparkling. He had found himself almost a beggar, and here in his hand was a small fortune! "Talk about engagement rings!" he muttered. "Why, a dozen of these ought to buy a whole lot."

At length he rose and climbed on, presently turning at a right-angle to meet the strip to its boundary before he paused to rest. "I'm no timber-tucker," he said to himself as he wiped his brow, "but I calculate there's enough in this to keep me going for a while. Why, suppose they're worth on an average only a hundred apiece. That would make—Good lord!" he muttered, "and I've been mooning about poverty!"

The growth was smaller and sparser now and before long he came on the hill's very crest, to the edge of a ragged clearing. It held a squalid settlement, perhaps a score of dirt-daubed cabins little better than hovels, some of them mere mud-walled huts with thatched roofs and window-panes of bark. Fences and outbuildings there was none. Littered paths rambled aimlessly hither and thither from chip-strewn yards to starved patches of corn, under-cultivated and blighted. Over the whole place hung an indescribable atmosphere of disconsolate squalor, of unredeemed squalor and violence.

With one hand on the dog's collar, hushing him to silence, Vallant, on seeing looked at the wretched place with a shiver. He had glimpsed many wretched purlieus in the slums of great cities, but this, in the open sunlight, with the clean woods about it and the sweet clear blue above, was a different thing. It was a place of contrast that was doubly sinister and forbidding. He knew instantly that the tawdry corner was the community known as Hell's Half-Acre, the place to which Shirley had made her night ride to rescue Ricky Snyder.

A quick flash of realization of her courage rushed through him. On its heels came a feeling of shame that a spot like this could exist, a foul blot on such a landscape. It was on his own land! Its denizens held place by squatter sovereignty, but he was, nevertheless, their landlord. The thought bred a new sense of responsibility. Something should be done for them, too.

As he gazed, an uproar in a cabin reached a climax. A red-bearded figure in nondescript garments shot from the door and collapsed in a heap in the dirt. He got up with a stealthy oath—a fox thrown at him—grazing his temple as he did so—shaking his fist behind him, staggered into a near-by lean-to.

Vallant turned away with a feeling almost of nausea, and plunged back down the forest hillside.

CHAPTER XX.

The Gardeners.

He saw them coming through the gate on the Red Road—the major and Shirley in a blue muslin by his side—and strode to meet them. Behind them Ransome propelled a hand-cart filled with paper bundles from each of which protruded a bunch of flowering stems. There was a flush on Shirley's cheek as her hand lay in Vallant's. As for him, his eyes, like a wifely drunkard, returned again and again, between the major's compliments, to her face.

"You have accomplished wonders, sah! I had no idea so much could be done in such a limited time. You have certainly pruned the old place up. I could almost think I was looking at Damory Court in the sixties, sah!"

"That's quite the nicest thing you could have said, Major," responded Vallant. "But it needs the flowers." He looked at Shirley with sparkling eyes. "How splendid of you to bring them! I feel like a robber."

"With your baskets of flowers?" she asked, looking at him. "Have you got out the others?"

"I've, indeed. Every one has rooted, too. You shall see them," he led the way up the drive till they stood before the porch.

"Glad!" chuckled the major. "Who would think it had been unoccupied for three decades? At this rate, you'll soon be giving dances, sah."

"Ah," said Vallant. "That's the very thing I want to suggest. The tournament comes off next week, I understand, and it's been the custom to have a ball that night. The tourney ground is on this estate, and Damory Court is handier than the Country Club. Why wouldn't it be appropriate to hold the dance here? The ground-floor rooms are in order, and if the young people would put up with it, it would be a great pleasure to me, I assure you."

"Oh!" breathed Shirley. "That would be too wonderful!"

The major seized his hand and shook it heartily. "I can answer for the committee," he said. "The'll jump at it. Why, sah, the new generation has never set eyes inside the house—let alone the garden to them."

"When I'll go ahead with arrangements," he said.

He led them around the house and down the terraces of the formal garden, and here the major's encomiums broke forth again. "You are going to take us old folks back, sah," he said with real feeling. "This garden in its original lines was unique. It had a plan and a picturesqueness that thank God, are to be restored! One can understand the owner of an estate like this having no desire to spend his life phylandering abroad. We all hope, sah, that you will recur to the habit of your ancestors and count Damory Court home."

Vallant smiled slowly. "I don't dream of anything else," he said. "My life, as I map it out, seems to begin here. The rest doesn't count—only the years when I was little and had my father."

The major carefully adjusted his eyeglasses. His head was turned away. "Ah, yes," he said. "The last twenty years, continued the other, "from my present viewpoint, are valuable mainly for contrast."

"As a consistent regimen of pate de foie gras," said Shirley, "it makes one value bread and butter."

He shook his head at her. "As starvation makes one appreciate plenty. The next twenty years are to be here. But they hold side-trips, too. Now and then there's a jaunt back to the city."

"Contrast again?" she asked interestedly.

"Yes and no. Yes, because no one who has ever known the peace and blessedness of a place like this. No, because there are something which are to be found only there. There are the galleries and the opera. I need a breath of them both."

"And semi-occasional longer flights, too," the major reflected. "A look-see abroad once in a blue moon. Why not?"

"Yes. For mental photographs—impressions one can't get from any other place. There's an old cloister garden I know in Italy and a particular river bank in Japan in the cherry blossom season, and a tiny island with A Greek castle on a hill in the Aegean. Little colored memories for me to bring away to dream over. But always I come back here to Damory Court. For this is home!"

They walked beneath the pergola to the lake, where Shirley gave a cry of delight at sight of its feathered population. "Where did you get them from?" she asked.

"Washington. In crates," he exclaimed. "That explains it," she exclaimed. "One day last week the little dorkies in the village all insisted a circus was coming. They must have seen these being hauled here. They watched the whole afternoon for the elephants."

"Poor youngsters!" he said. "I'll take all the circus I want, getting the five stock installed."

"They won't suffer," said the major. "Ricky Snyder'll set them up in three days. They'll be as fat as hogs. Why, it seems like yesterday that Shirley was only a little girl, and they can't wait on that. I see you've dredged out some of the lilacs."

"Yes. I take my dip here every morning."

"We used to have a diving-board when we were little shavers," pursued the major. "I remember once, your father—"

He cleared his throat and stopped dead.

"Please," said John Vallant. "I—I like to hear about him."

"It was only that I struck my head on a rock on the bottom—and stayed there!" The others were frightened, but he dove down again and again till he brought me out. It was a narrow squeak, I reckon."

A silence fell. Looking at the tall, gaunt form before her, Shirley had a sudden vision of a determined little body clearing the dark water, over and over, now rising panting for breath, now plunging again, never giving up. And she told herself that the son was the same sort. That hard set of the jaw, those firm lips, would know no finching. He might suffer, but he would be strong.

Half unconsciously she spoke her thought aloud. "You look like your father, do you not?"

"Yes," he replied, "there's a strong likeness. I have a photograph which I'll show you sometime. But how did you know?"

"Perhaps I only guessed," she said in some confusion. To cover this she stooped by the pebbly margin and held out her hand to the bronze ducks that pushed and gobbled about her fingers. "What have you named them?" she asked.

"Nothing. You christen them."

"Very well. The light one shall be Pezzerlee and the dark one Pilgrimage. I got the names from John Jasper—he was Virginia's famous negro preacher. I once heard him hold forth when he read from one of the Psalms—the one about the harp and the psalter—and he called it Pezzerlee."

Vallant's laugh rang over the lake—to be answered by a sudden sharp screech from the terrace, where the peacock strutted, a blaze of spangled purple and gold. They turned to see Aunt Baphine issue from the kitchen, twig-broom in hand.

"What for?" she exclaimed. "What for you kyanin' on like a wif' gyan' we'll make you go 'trifin' of fan-tail, yo' Git, outen heath!" She waved her weapon and the bird, with a raucous shriek of defiance, retired in ruffled disorder. The master of Damory Court, looking at Shirley, said, "We shall we name him?"

"I'd call him Fire-Cracker if he goes off like that," she said. And Fire-Cracker the bird was christened forthwith.

"And now," said Shirley, "let's set out the rambles."

The major had brought a rough plan, sketched from memory, of the old arrangement of the formal garden. "I'll just go over the lines of the beds with you," he said. "The beds are big, and the paths are over these rocks." So Vallant and Shirley walked back to the slope beneath the pergola to gether.

With Ransome, puffing and blowing like a black porpoise over his creaking go-cart, they planted the rambles—crimson and pink and white—Vallant much of the time on his knees, his hands plunging deep into the black spongy earth, and Shirley with broad sequins, the clinging thread-like roots and her small arched foot tamping down the soil about them. Her hair—the color of wet raw wood in the sunlight—was very near the brown, and sometimes their fingers touched over the work. Once, as they stood up, flushed with the exercise, a great black and orange butterfly, dazed with the sunlight, alighted on Vallant's rolled-up sleeve. He bent his arm protectively still and the butterfly on the wavering pinions till it swam away. When a redbird flitted by, to his delight she whistled its call so perfectly that it wheeled in mid-flight and tilted inquiringly back toward them.

As they descended the terrace again to the pergola, he said, "There's only one thing lacking at Damory Court—a sundial."

"Then you haven't found it?" she cried delightedly. "Come and let me show you."

She led the way through the maze of beds at one side till they reached a hedge faced thickly with Virginia creeper. He parted this leafy screen, bending back the springing fronds that thrust against the flimsy muslin of her gown and threatened to spear the pink-rose hat that cast an adorable warm tint over her creamy face, thinking that a picture as she made framed in the deep green.

Some such thought was in the major's mind, too, as he came slowly up the terrace below. He paused, to take off his hat and wipe his brow. With the place all fixed up this way," he sighed to himself, "I could believe it was only last week that I was a poor, shabby, and shabby-looking fellow, looking around this yard, wondering how I was to get on. Why, it seems like yesterday that Shirley was only a little girl, and they can't wait on that. I see you've dredged out some of the lilacs."

ran through hell bareheaded. I'm about a thousand years old, I reckon!"

Meanwhile the two figures above had pushed through the tangle into a circular sunny space where stood a short round pillar of red onyx. It was a sundial, its vine-clad disk cut of gray polished stone in which a motto was inscribed. Round in the outer edge of the disk ran an inscription in archaic lettering. Vallant pulled away the clustering ivy leaves and read: "I count no hours but the happy ones."

"If that had only been true!" he said.

"It is true. See how the vines hid the sun from it. It ceased to mark the time after the Court was deserted."

"I'll put moonflowers at its base and where you are standing, Madonna lilies. The outer part of the circle shall have bridal wreaths and white lilies, and they shall shade out into heliopes, oh, I shall love this spot!—perhaps sometime the best of all!"

"Which do you love the best now?" he leaned slightly toward her, one hand on the dial's time-notched rim. "Don't you know?" he said in a lower tone. "Could any other spot mean to me what that acre under the hemlocks means?"

Her face was turned from him, her fingers pulling at the drifting vine, and a splinter of sunlight tangled in her hair like a lace of fireflies.

"I could never forget it," he continued. "The thing that spoiled my father's life happened there, yet there we two first talked, and there you—"

"Don't!" she said, facing him. "Don't!"

"Ah, let me speak! I want to tell you that I shall carry the memory of that afternoon, and of your brave kindness, always, always! If I were never to see you again in this life, I should always treasure it. If I died of thirst in some Sahara, it would be the last thing I should remember—your face would be the last thing I should see!"

In the silence there was the sound of a slow foot fall on the gravel walk, and at the same moment he saw a magical change. Shirley drew back. The soft gentian blue of her eyes darkened. The lips that were never before had been trembling, parted in a delicious laugh. She swept him a deep courtesy.

"I am beholden to you, sir," she said gaily, "for a most knightly compliment. There's the major. Come, let us show him where we've planted the rambles."

CHAPTER XXI.

Tournament Day.

The noon sun of tournament day shone brilliantly over the village, drowsy no longer, for many vehicles were hitched at the curb, or moved leisurely along the leafy street, big, carved-topped country wagons drawn by shaggy-footed horses and set with chairs that bumped and jostled their holiday loads from outlying tobacco plantation and stud farm; sober, black-coated buxoms, long narrow, spring-less buckboards, frivolous side-bar runabouts and antique shays resurrected from the primeval depths of cobwebbed stables, cellars of tarnished grandeur and faded fortune.

At midday vehicles regaled them

FINANCIAL PANIC OF 1837

Year That Many Banks Failed and Specie Payments Were Practically Entirely Suspended.

Political rancor was at its height when Andrew Jackson, vetoed the bill renewing the charter of the United States Bank and removed the treasury deposits, under which opposition the bank collapsed and a vast number of state banks competed for the business, which included the issue of bank notes. In 1837 there were 624 banks, with an aggregate capital of $291,000,000.

In the history of banking the year of 1837 is prominent for one of the worst panics that was ever known in America, which resulted in the failure of many banks and a universal suspension of specie payments throughout the country, which were not renewed until over a year and a half later, says the National Magazine. During the trying period, when banking operations were practically wiped out of existence, all the banks but three continued business in Boston. There were temporary suspensions of specie payments in New York, as in the case of the Bank of New York, since it was evident that further attempts selves into luncheon booths—hampered away beneath the seats, disclosing all manner of picnic edibles—the court-house yard was an array of grass-spread tablecloths, and an air of plenty reigned.

Within Mrs. Merryweather Mason's brown house hospitality sat enthroned and the generous dining-room was held by a regiment of feminine out-of-town acquaintances.

The yard, an hour later, was an active encampment of rocking-chairs, and a din of conversation floated out over the pink oleanders whose tubs had achieved a fresh coat of bright green paint for the occasion. Mrs. Polly Gifford, a guest of the day—here she remembered—

"The young folks are counting tonight on the dance tonight," observed Mrs. Livy Stowe of Seven Oaks. "Even the Buckner girls have got new ball dresses."

"Improvident, I call it," said Mrs. Gifford. "They can't afford such things, with Bank Hill mortgaged up to the roof the way it is."

Mrs. Mason's soft apologetic alto interposed. "They're sweet girls, and were never young but once. I think it was so fine of Mr. Vallant to offer to give the ball. I hear he's mortgaged to Charlottesville three or four times for fixings, though I understand he's poor enough since he gave up his money as he did. What a princely act that was!"

"Yes—yes," agreed Mrs. Gifford, "but a little—what shall I call it?—preposterous! If I were married to a man like that I should always begin terror of his adopting an orphan asylum or turning Republican or something equally impossible."

The doctor shut his office door with a vicious slam and from the vantage of the wire window screen looked sourly across the beds of marigold and nasturtium.

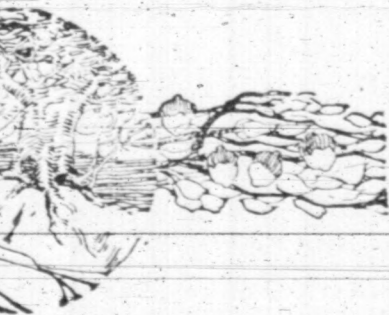

"I reckon if Mrs. Polly Gifford shut her mouth more than ten minutes hand running," he said malevolently, "the top of her head'd fly from here to Charlottesville!"

The major, ensconced with a cigar in the easy chair behind him, flourished his palm-leaf fan and smote an errand fly.

"Speaking of Damory Court," he said in his big voice, "the dance does us a happy thought of young Vallant's. I'll be surprised if he doesn't do it to the queen's taste."

The doctor nodded. "Such place can't teach him much about such fold-erlins, I reckon. He's led more cut-throat than I've got hairs on my head."

"I'd hardly limit it to that," said the major, chuckling at the easy thrust. "And after all, even fold-erlins have their use."

MR. SMOOT NOT FAIR

Serious Flaw in Senator's Recent "Calamity Howl"

If Inevitable Business Depressions Are to Be Attributed to Party in Power, Republicans Must Take Their Share.

If the sluggishness of business at the present time—though the volume of trade continues large—is to be attributed to the Democratic tariff, to what is to be attributed the panic of 1907? With any intelligent man, who is not making a stump speech, pretend that business depressions are due to the government when that is Democratic, and are wholly independent of it when it is Republican?

Senator Smoot's entire "calamity howl" was based on facts, the volume of trade exports in April, 1914, than in 1913. The smaller exports cannot possibly be attributed to the tariff, and greater variations in imports and exports than are worrying Mr. Smoot have within recent years occurred when there was no tariff change to attribute them to.

The exports in April, 1914, were less than in April of the last two years, but greater than in April of 1911, 1910 or 1909. The imports in April this year were substantially larger than one year ago, but the increase over two years ago was not great, and if the growth of imports from 1913 to 1914 is to be attributed to the Underwood tariff, will Mr. Smoot hold the Payne-Aldrich tariff responsible for an increase of $13,000,000 in imports in April, 1912, over April, 1911?

When an adverse balance of trade occurs under a Democratic administration Mr. Smoot sees that the cause is political. But there were adverse balances in June, July, and August, 1909; in February, March, April, and August, 1910, during which periods Theodore Roosevelt was in the White House, and the Dingley and Payne-Aldrich tariffs were in operation.

If the cause of trade fluctuations is to be political when the Democrats are in power it must be when Republicans are in power. If the Republicans will not take their own medicine they may save themselves the trouble of offering it to Democrats.

Unfair to Leave Lorimer Out.

Now that Senator Aldrich has been drawn again into the limelight through Mr. Miller's statement that he was largely instrumental in fastening upon the New Haven railroad company the $20,000,000 trolley system worth not over $14,000,000, it will not be surprising to hear that he is planning to return to his old place in the senate. "Uncle Joe" Cannon, now verging upon eighty years of age, has already made announcement of his candidacy for congress, and ex-Senator Foraker is making a great fight in Ohio to return to the senate. In this prospective reunion of the Old Guard is Lorimer to be left outside the breastworks?

Would Seem to Be Wasted Time.

Col. Roosevelt is now coming in for condemnation because he admitted that during the great coal strike of 1902 he was prepared to send the Federal troops into Pennsylvania with orders to seize the anthracite coal fields and operate the mines. Instinctively it is stated were actually issued to Gen. Schofield that he was not to pay attention to any court orders or any other authority than me. As there are still many things which the colonel actually did or did not do left to criticize, what the excuse for becoming on these things which he merely intended to do?

Great Prosperity in Sight.

Chairman Gary, of the United States Steel Corporation, feels that we are "approaching the door of prosperity" and he gives good reasons for his belief. A great many Republican politicians are trying just now to shut that door and to keep it closed until after the election, but they are likely to find this an impossible task. Improving railroad earnings, increased bank clearings, weather that stimulates buying and record crops in view are all factors that are going to push the door of prosperity wide open.

Will Be a Hard Task.

Possibly the unworried Republican and the erratic Progressive can agree on the principle that what is wanted for 1916 is a man who can beat Woodrow Wilson, but can they unite votes on such an individual?

Different Now.

In the Roosevelt days the government did not get a chance to inspect the books of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Sign of Business Revival.

The pig iron business has been dull for some time, but the announcement in the trade papers that several steel companies had bought an aggregate of 75,000 tons is encouraging. One swallow may not make a summer, but it is to be remembered that the steel companies are large producers of pig, and if they have to go into the market and buy 75,000 tons of iron, it means that there are more orders for steel than there are mills to produce it, and that there are indications of more business for the rolling mills.

CONGRESSMAN KEATING'S ANCESTORS

Representative Keating of Colorado, when a small boy, was taken from Missouri to the Centennial state. The family settled at a small place called Greeley, in honor of the great Horace.

The inhabitants were all prim New Englanders, whose ancestors had come over in the Mayflower, and whose talk was only of their lineage. Keating was the only kid at school who was Irish and not long on American forefathers who had fought in the Revolution. And this fact was a cause of constant humiliation to him, for the other children at school boasted daily in history lessons of an uncle at Bunker Hill or a grandfather at Yorktown.

So one day young Keating made up a story. He invented a wonderful forefather and his glorious deeds, and when he told it to the breathless, admiring class, he was the hero of the recess hour. His mother upbraided him for telling a falsehood in school. "Those other boys are always bragging about their ancestors and I had to have some to keep up with the rest."

Yet the fact is, Keating is of ancient Irish lineage, and of its "bluest" blood.

KETNER IS ON THE MOVE

"I'm thinking of breaking into poetry and writing a philosophic ode on the mutability of mundane affairs, with metaphors and similes and things in it," confided Representative Ketner, from the San Diego, Cal. district. "I'll have something to say about being new a leaf afloat on the changing tides of fate and how, just as you've gotten your little car house nicely built, something joggles your elbow and spills the milk—or whatever the poetry for spilling the milk."

"It's experience that inspires me," continued the representative from the time of climate. "Nine years ago I said to myself, 'Come, I shall pick out a suitable spot, build me and my family a home there and settle down for the rest of my life.' So, after carefully weighing a score of localities, I determined on Visalia, Cal."

"I bought me a ranch near by, built me a house that will outlast the monument, put up fences, barns and other improvements so permanent that they will echo to Gabriel's trumpet. Then we planted ourselves there and cried aloud: 'Behold us! This is our home forever and aye!'"

"Three years from that day I was in the insurance business in San Diego."

"And then I said, 'Now, I am fixed for good. I shall tie myself in a hard knot to my business here and nothing but a universal cataclysm shall remove me!'"

"And three years later I was in congress."

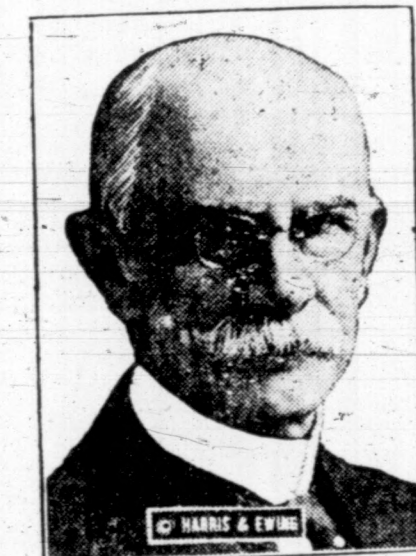

"Are you going to stay in congress?" queried his visitor.

"That depends upon a higher power," replied Mr. Ketner. "A greater than I, in whose hands I am but as an atom—my constituents!"

HARRIS & EWING

SENATOR THOMAS TELLS OF BIG TUMBLE

HARRIS & EWING

"To tumble down a mine shaft to a depth equal to the height of a fifteen-story skyscraper is a trick anybody can turn if he is careless enough around a mining camp," said Senator Charles S. Thomas of Colorado, who is one of the most eminent mining lawyers in the West and also one of the early settlers in the Centennial state.

"But to come through such an experience alive is a feat few can achieve," he continued. "Yet that is just what happened to a man I know in Colorado. A fellow named Jim Dorris of Leadville performed this feat of man act in 1881 and went through an experience enough to kill ten men, yet came out as chipper as though he had been lying in a feather bed."

"Jim slipped at the top of the shaft of the Colma mine and fell a sheer 297 feet to the hard rock bottom, while a 300-pound ore-bucket came clattering down on top of him. Of course, we all thought he would have to be brought up again in a box, but Jim came out with only a few severe bruises."

STEFANSSON'S ARCTIC PARTY SAFE

Brief cable dispatches from St. Michael and Nome indicate that when Vilhjalmur Stefansson's exploring ship Karluk was crushed in the Arctic Sea, January 16 last, the men saved all their instruments, supplies, dogs and food and left only the crushed hull and its coal cargo when they headed east over the ice to camp on Wrangell Island.

The experience of the Karluk proves that the drift of the ice sheet from Point Barrow is not northerly, as had been supposed, but westerly. Both Stefansson and Amundsen had believed that a ship entering the pack at Point Barrow could be carried cross the pole and to Greenland. Probably the shipwrecked men passed the winter in comfort, having dogs to carry them on hunting expeditions.

It is expected that the Canadian government will authorize Capt. Robert A. Bartlett, who is at St. Michael, where he arrived after a dog team and sea journey from Wrangell Island, to engage a ship to go to the island and bring off the 18 men marooned there.

Cleveland, Ohio—"My left side pained me so for several years that I expected to have to undergo an operation, but the first bottle I took of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound relieved me of the pain in my side, and I continued its use until I became regular and free from pain. I had asked several doctors if there was anything I could do to help me and they said there was nothing that they knew of. I am thankful for such a good medicine and will always give it the highest praise."

What joy and happiness it is to be well once more. I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for the Compound."

R. F. D. No. 1, Critz, Va.—"I had tetter on my hands so badly that I could hardly do anything. It would begin to come in clear white blisters, then they would burst and peel off all over and crack and bleed. My hands were so sore and itched so badly I could not rest day or night. I could not put them in water nor do my regular work."

"I tried medicine and several different kinds of cream on them but they got worse instead of better. Nothing did me any good until I tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment. And now my hands are perfectly well and all right." (Signed) Miss Ellen Tudor, Nov. 19, 1912.

"Come, come, old man, don't let it knock you out. There are plenty of other girls in the world. In six months from now you will have forgotten her."

"Yes, I suppose it is as you say; but it isn't six months from now. Everything I see reminds me of her. When I look at other women I can't help thinking how much more beautiful she is than any of them. When the wind blows I am reminded that it is probably adding to the color of her cheeks. Whenever I pass a corner where she and I have stood together I have a strange empty feeling as if something had gone out of my life."

"When I look up at the sky, I can't keep from remembering that it is above her. If I could forget her for only a day, for only an hour, I think I might learn to hope again; but I can't get her out of my mind. It seems to me that the whole world is changed since she told me that I was never to see her again. I can't understand how anybody manages to keep as being happy. I would give almost anything to forget her."

Pets and Broken Hearts.

The dog of Mistral, the Provencal poet, died the day after Mistral's recent death. It is a fairly common thing for dogs, cats, canaries and other pets to die a few days or even hours after their masters. But do they die of grief? It is not likely.

Manayunk physician examined the corpse of a canary that had succumbed with its little mistress. The canary's death, the examination showed, was due not to a broken heart, but to scarlet fever, the malady to which its little mistress had herself succumbed.

From this and from kindred post-mortems it is surmised that pets, when they die simultaneously with their owners, have become infected with the disease that carries off their masters. The death from grief story is pretty, but, alas, it won't wash.

Why Not Armor for Every Bullet?

An ingenious New York doctor has invented a bicarbonate of mercury tablet in which the antidote is combined with the poison, so that a person may swallow corrosive sublimate, intentionally or accidentally, with impunity. William H. Hamby, short story writer and novelist, is a great lover of folks and makes friends with all sorts and conditions of men. The two men spent the day in the woods together and returned to camp old friends, and then Mr. Hamby learned that he was not the only one on the expedition who had been studying his companion. As they shook hands in parting the hill billy said: "I taken a likin' to yuh, but yuh shore be the queerest man I ever see. The Source of Uric Acid

Eating too much is a common habit that does a lot of harm. Meat, especially, forms uric acid and the constant filtering of acid-laden blood weakens the kidneys. Uric acid causes rheumatic and nervous troubles, weakens the eyes, forms gravel and leads to dropsy and Bright's disease. Kidney weakness gives early warnings, however, such as backache and urinary disorders and can be stopped by prompt treatment. Use Doan's Kidney Pills, the best recommended and most widely used kidney remedy.

A Mississippi Case

"I thought I was going to die from pain in my back," says Mrs. A. H. H. of Jackson, Miss. "I had to go to bed and I kept getting worse. The kidney secretions became unnatural and I lost weight. Finally I was taken to a hospital and in three weeks I came home, not much better than before. A neighbor gave me a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and they soon relieved me. In a month I passed four kidney stones and was cured."

Drouth Inures Short Tobacco

The tobacco situation is growing more serious every day. Nothing from now on can prevent a short crop. The season last week was by no means general and many neighborhoods had no rain at all. Farmers are growing despondent.

ate and there are grounds for the fear of a very short crop. It is getting very late, and the plants are overgrown and the hills are baked dry and hard and weeds are springing up. The plan of setting out plants with planters, using water, has been tried all over the county with weather conditions very unfavorable. One house handling the hand planters has sold over 200 in the last 30 days and probably 300 are in use in the county. Some have set out small crops by watering plants in the old-fashioned way and some fields set out before the rains last week are doing well as the plants were given a good start to growing.

The farmers are now rushing wheat harvest to get the grain in the shock before a possible rain falls. A general rain for Sunday would come as a blessing long to be remembered. Hopkinsville-Kentuckian.

How He Could Tell

A Georgia "cracker" tells this story on his own people. He says a northern man who had settled in Georgia was visited by a friend who asked him how he liked the place and the people.

"Oh, all right," replied the man.

"Now, tell me," asked the friend, "what is a 'Georgia cracker'?" How can you tell him from another person?"

"Well," replied the northern settler, "you see out in that field a black object?"

"Yes," said the friend, "that may be either a 'Georgia cracker' or a stump. Watch it for half an hour, and if it moves, why, it's a 'stump.' Ladies Home Journal.

Adlai E. Stevenson Passes Away

Chicago, June 16.—Adlai E. Stevenson, Vice President of the United States through the second Cleveland administration died Saturday at a hospital after an illness of several months.

His three children were at his bedside. Mr. Stevenson was seventy-eight years old. His last illness followed a five months' vigil at the bedside of his wife, who died about six months ago. Mr. Stevenson suffered a nervous breakdown and a month ago he came to Chicago from his home at Bloomington Ill., for treatment. His condition gradually became worse and he entered a hospital. The burden of his years and the oppressive heat of last week contributed to the fatal termination of his illness.

Remarrying at Forty-seven

In the July Woman's Home Companion a widow tells why she is going to marry at forty-seven. She opens her article with the following somewhat

Capt. C. W. Jetton was born March 6, 1838, and died August 19, 1913, aged 75 years, 5 months and 13 days.

In early life he was married to Miss Nancy Martina Wheeler, by whom he is still survived, together with two daughters—Mrs. J. D. Eaker and Mrs. J. S. Rodgers, several grand children and one great-grand child (Charlie Jetton Eaker). Four of his children preceded him to the other world, two died when small, the other two were Mary Jetton, who died about twenty-seven years ago, at the age of 16, and Chas. W. Jetton, who practiced law at Murray for a few short years, but was called away in early life.

Shortly after his marriage, Capt. Jetton enlisted for service with the soldiers of the Confederacy, where he fought for four years, never shrinking from duty's call, and ever noted for his courage and his acts of bravery.

He professed faith in Christ in middle age and has ever since broozy statement of the facts: "I am forty-seven years old and I have been a widow seven years. I have wanted to marry again full fifteen years of my widowhood, but I didn't have the courage to do it till Stevenson suffered a nervous breakdown and a month ago he couldn't be more shocked if the minister's daughter had eloped with an actor. Almost to a woman my neighbors have said: 'Well, Louisa, I suppose you have your reasons, but it does seem strange at your age.' 'What's the matter with my age?'

I'm just in the prime of life, stronger than either of my daughters when it comes to housework. There's not a gray hair in my head and my skin is like a girl's. Not that looks count so much, nor that I am vain, but I rather object to their laying me away on a shelf at forty-seven, when, if I follow the example of my ancestors, I'll probably live till I'm seventy-seven—thirty years more."

Damage by Hailstorm

Union City, Tenn., June 15.—A phenomenal hail storm, accompanied by wind and rain, struck Union City this afternoon demolishing the tent in which the Redpath Chautauqua was being held, injuring Mrs. Mary Page, who was in the audience, and damaging offices and business buildings on First and Second Streets. The hailstones were the largest ever seen in this vicinity, some of them weighing from four to ten ounces. Poultry and birds were pelleted to death in the surrounding country.

Considerable damage was sustained by the Redpath Company here. Their concert piano was crushed by the falling tent. The escape from smothering by the audience was miraculous. The injuries of Mrs. Page were not serious. Manager Alfred of the Chautauqua Company announced that the afternoon and evening assemblies, which completes the Chautauqua here this season would be held at the court house and Reynolds Theatre tonight.

and usefulness of the parcel post and opposed any crippling or curtailment of the functions of the parcel post when an effort was made to prevent its extension in the house. He introduced a measure giving to the different states and counties government aid in the construction and maintenance of public roads, believing as he did, that good roads were necessary for the prosperity and happiness of the people engaged in farming as well as other callings where the use of roads was an important matter to them.

He also supported a measure in the house, which passed, giving government aid in the extension of agricultural training and co-operation among the states for the betterment of conditions of farm life in the United States. He has urged the passage of and is continuing with all his strength to advocate and work for a comprehensive measure providing for rural credits, in other words, legislation making it easier for the farmer who needs money to obtain it for a long term of years and a lower rate of interest.

As an evidence of the estimation in which he is held at Washington it is only necessary to call to mind the fact that in the first session of this congress he was placed upon the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce—one of the most important committees in the house, which handles much of the important legislation of that body. Congressman Barkley assisted in framing two of the three anti-trust bills which have just passed the house the bill creating the Interstate Trade Commission and defining its powers, by which it is expected that the observance and enforcement of the anti-trust laws will be made more definite and certain and also the bill regulating the issue of stock bonds and other securities of railroads carrying interstate commerce, so as to prevent other capitalization and the watering of stock of other corporations. These two bills were a part of the president's anti-trust program.

He supported the Clayton anti-trust bill, which has just passed the house also, and strongly advocated the provision of that bill exempting laborers and farmers' organizations from the operation of the anti-trust laws, which provision was adopted overwhelmingly in the house and is a part of the law as it passed the house on last Friday.

Neglecting County

The "Missouri Near and Far" man of the daily Republic throws a holy fit over what he terms, "A negroless town in Missouri." "W'y honey, if you'll trot this way, please, we'll show you a county of 30,000 human beings, and every one a 'pa's face'." All cones in the free state of Stoddard are quadrupeds. Rebuilding strength is a great need for forty years has been the real need for taking Scott's Emulsion after any sickness, pneumonia, influenza, and other diseases, and this is the only reliable nourishment to be from food material through the blood, strengthening the nerves and lungs to avert tuberculosis.
