Electric Co-Op Offers Service Of Specialists

TVA Experts Aid In More Efficient Electricity Use

THERE'S NO CHARGE

The Hickman-Fulton counties Rural Electric Cooperative Corporation, which furnishes low-cost TVA power to Hickman, Fulton and Carlisle counties, has made available to its consumers the services of specialists to help them make the most effective use of electricity.

This new service, Co-Op Manager H. C. Schimmel said, is another step forward in making Hickman, Fulton and Carlisle counties a part of the "Electrical Center of America," a description now being applied to the Tennessee Valley area because of its record-breaking generation and use of electric energy.

This new service has been obtained through contract with TVA, which puts its division of electrical development at the service of Hickman-Fulton counties Rural Electric Cooperative Corporation.

Included on TVA's electrical development staff are specialists in home economics, agricultural engineering, industrial engineering, wiring, house heating, air conditioning, refrigeration, commercial cooking and allied fields. These specialists are available on call from a member through the Rural Electric Co-Op.

The activities of the electrical development division are financed jointly by TVA and the power distributors, and no charge to the customer is without charge to him, Schimmel pointed out. The division works in cooperation with dealers, suppliers, and private engineering firms.

"We signed this contract to see that our members receive the greatest possible benefit from the low-cost electricity available to them," Schimmel said. "Any member, whether a homeowner, farmer, or businessman, should feel free to call on us to help solve his electrical problems."

The electrical development division maintains a general office at Chattanooga and district offices in the five TVA division offices. The western division office is at Jackson, Tenn. Schimmel cited the electrical development program as an example of the type of cooperation practiced by the distributor and TVA. The organizations are separate, but united by a common aim—better service to the electrical consumer.

Maritime Service Still Undermanned

Although enlistments for the United States maritime service have shown a slight increase, the figure is still too low to meet the needs of the service, Lieutenant G. W. Cross, enrolling officer said today.

"If we are to maintain an adequate merchant marine and sustain a strong merchant fleet, more volunteers are needed for training by the maritime service. A merchant marine cannot and does not exist of ships alone, but requires trained crews to man the ships carrying supplies to war-torn areas of the world."

Wife Admits Hammer Death

Chicago Woman Says She Was Beaten By Spouse; 'It Was Him Or Me Then'

Chicago—(P)—A little, plump, graying woman went to a West Side Police Station and related, Capt. George Homer said, that she had beaten her husband to death, sliced up his body with hacksaw and knife, wrapped the parts in several neat packages, and tossed them into the Chicago River.

The fearful account given by Mrs. Anna Sosnowski, 54, the captain said, dispelled the mystery that had confronted his investigators since Tuesday when packages containing parts of the body were found on the riverbank.

"I figured it was him or me this time," the policeman said the woman told him as she described frequent quarrels during her three years of marriage to Tony Sosnowski, 58, a ship-ping-room laborer in a manufacturing plant.

Asked if she were sorry he was gone, Mrs. Sosnowski cried: "I'm not sorry he's dead, the dog. That man, he beat me. I've been black and blue for weeks from some of the beatings he's given me."

Fulton Pilot Hurt In Crash Near U. City

Jack Irvine, 37, Forced To Land On Obion Farm IN HOSPITAL HERE

Jack Irvine, 37-year-old farmer whose home is on Route 5, Fulton, was painfully injured at about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon when the Aeronca Champion monoplane he was piloting cracked up in a forced landing in a field near Union City.

He received a fractured ankle, lacerations on the face and head, and bruises. A Horbeak Funeral Home ambulance brought him to the Fulton Hospital for treatment.

Irvine, a licensed private pilot, had rented the light plane at the Tom Stewart Field, Union City, from the Chester Reed Flying Service. Reed reported that the plane's motor quit due to icing conditions, while Irvine was flying at about 3,000 feet.

Irvine landed in a smooth pasture on the farm of Leonard Stoval, about four miles from Union City. Stoval said the plane circled the field and came down rapidly, and that one wing tip struck the ground and caused the plane to nose over. Reed added that the plane was almost a total loss, and estimated the damage at $1,500.

Stoval helped Irvine out of the plane and drove him to Union City to await the ambulance from Fulton.

U. S., Britain To Let German Industry Expand Despite French Plea, With Some Reservations

London—(P)—The United States and Britain have decided to go ahead with their plan to raise the ceiling on industry in their zones of Germany despite French objections. It was announced at the conclusion of a three-power conference which opened six days ago.

The British-American plan will be announced tomorrow, said a French-British-American conference communiqué. Authoritative sources said it called for the production of 11,500,000 tons of steel annually, compared with the present ceiling of 5,800,000 tons fixed by the Allied Control Council for Germany in March, 1946. The French were understood to have asked that the ceiling be held to a maximum of 10,000,000 tons.

Dispatches from Berlin said this figure of 11,500,000 tons was

Over 150 Stores, Manufacturers Plan Exhibits At Kentucky Fair

Louisville, Ky.—Over 150 exhibitors have reserved space in the Merchants & Manufacturers Building for the 1947 Kentucky State Fair Sept. 7 through 13 in Louisville.

Under direction of Fred Hengst, superintendent, the M & M building exhibitors will include Louisville's major department stores and refrigerators and many out-of-town manufacturers. The homeowners or prospective homeowners attending the fair will find many exhibits of particular interest.

Household appliances, including deep freeze units and refrigerators, will be shown along with exhibits of water heaters, plumbing fixtures, weather stripping, insulation and latest types of roofing materials. Built-in kitchen cabinets and model bathrooms will also be featured in the household section of the M & M building, along with window shades and cleaners.

Farmers will see exhibits of portable saws for saving trees, exhibits of feed manufacturers, demonstrating the profitable and increasing use of grain products and farm feeds for balancing farm rations. The Bourbon Beef Show will be held Dec. 11 and 12 at the Bourbon Stockyards in Louisville. The grand champion single steer or heifer will receive $1,000 as will the champion carload of 15 head. $500 will go to the reserve grand champion single steer or heifer and to the second prize carload. Forty-three other prizes totaling $2,000 more make the $5,000 offered the richest fat stock show in the South.

All cattle entered in the Bourbon Beef Show are being fattened on balanced rations containing either distillers dried grains or distillers dried solubles.

After his inspection trip in this county Rash said: "Mr. S. J. Reed of Samjo Farm, Fulton, died so well with one Short Horn steer last year that he has two entered in the show this year. They are doing nicely."

Union City—Edward Douglas Wallace, 82, died at his home at Jordan, Ky., Wednesday at night after a brief illness. Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Mt. Zion with the Rev. J. B. Underwood officiating. Burial was in the church cemetery.

Farmers Told To Seek Advice About Anthrax

Dr. Connaughton Says Home Cures Are Dangerous

"SEE VET. OFFICIALS"

Commenting on the outbreak of anthrax livestock disease, on some Fulton county farms, Dr. H. W. Connaughton, Fulton veterinarian, today advised farmers not to become excited by the many rumors now current and not to attempt to immunize animals against the disease without professional advice.

Serum is available locally at a cost of from $3 to $5 per head of stock. Dr. Connaughton said. The protection it gives will last for about seven to 10 days. It should not be used unless it is known that the animals have been directly exposed to anthrax.

Some vaccines will afford immunization for a period of one year, he continued, but it requires a week for them to take effect. Once such an immunization program is started, it must be continued each year.

Dr. Connaughton said he advised against any type of vaccination unless the disease reaches epidemic proportions. He cautioned stock owners not to use "home" remedies, and stated that anyone who thinks his animals might have anthrax should contact a veterinarian, county or state health authorities immediately.

Dr. John Miller, Clinton veterinarian, echoed Dr. Connaughton's warning against unsupervised vaccination.

Incidentally, anthrax germs are reported to be among the longest-lived and most resistant germs in existence. Anthrax germs taken from the tombs of the Pharaohs in Egypt have been found still active after 2,000 or more years.

Fat Beef Show Manager Visits

Bourbon Beef Director Sees Steers To Be Shown By Samjo Farm, Fulton

The general manager of the $5,000 Bourbon Beef Show, James R. "Buck" Rash Jr., recently visited Fulton county to inspect the cattle entered from here in this year's show. The Bourbon Beef Show will be held Dec. 11 and 12 at the Bourbon Stockyards in Louisville. The grand champion single steer or heifer will receive $1,000 as will the champion carload of 15 head. $500 will go to the reserve grand champion single steer or heifer and to the second prize carload. America Must Remain Strong, President Tells Legionnaires

Strength Proof Against Attack, Truman Declares

DEWEY ENDORSES UMT

New York—(P)—President Truman told the 29th national American Legion convention that in a world where "war remains a dread possibility," the nation "must be so strong that no aggressor, however rash, can persuade himself that we are open to conquest."

In a message to the opening session at jam-packed Madison Square Garden, Mr. Truman expressed optimism, however, about the state of American armed forces, asserting they "are now on a volunteer basis high in morale and with increasing military efficiency."

Earlier, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey had told cheering Legionnaires he was solidly behind their drive for a universal military training law and a strong military establishment.

In welcoming the Legion convention to the state, Dewey declared "to win the peace we must remain strong and become stronger," adding:

"I urge that it is our duty to provide a program involving participation by all able-bodied young American men under universal military training."

The titular Republican party leader, considered a top contender for his party's presidential nomination again in 1948, thus joined with Mr. Truman, head of the Democratic party, in espousing the training program. It was the first time Dewey had thrown his full backing behind the Legion's campaign for military training.

The President, who originally had been scheduled to address the convention today but failed to make it because of the "unremittent pressure of official duties," said in his message that a training law—"the foundation of the security structure"—still was lacking.

Unification of the armed forces was achieved in the last session of Congress with strong Legion support, Mr. Truman pointed out.

Turning to veterans' problems, the President said World War II fighting men "have made long and rapid strides toward readjustment," but declared two obstacles remain to "full readjustment."

"These are high prices and insufficient housing," the President said "the country will await an expression of your considered judgment on this serious problem of insufficient housing."

In advocating a universal training program, Mr. Truman said "against the possibility of total war, we must have the certainty of total defense, using every resource of our being in the effort."

Only universal "military training can assure that sufficient forces will be available in the critical initial phase of another emergency. The weight and speed of war have multiplied its weapons have become horrible in their destructive power. But the effectiveness of defense and offense is still dependent on the skill and courage of men."

The blue-clapped Legionnaires, who met for the initial session of their four-day convention, listened to a full afternoon of speeches by military leaders and other dignitaries before adjourning and turning to fun at the parade of 40 and 3, the organization's honor society.

James V. Forrestal, named by Mr. Truman as the nation's first secretary of national defense, joined the President and Dewey in urging universal military training, which he said was necessary to complement the unification program.

The final speaker at the opening session, Forrestal said the unification plan should give the United States "the most effective force for the maintenance of peace in our own—and I dare say—in the world's history," but he added its purpose was "not to start the country on the dangerous road of conquest."

This country wants no additional territory or domination of other peoples but only "a just and durable peace," the secretary declared.

One of our first objectives, he said, is the securing of peace treaties with "our late enemies" so they may go back to work.

Reid Installs X-Ray Machine

Local Chiropractor Adds Modern Diagnostic Aid

Dr. T. M. Reid, Fulton chiropractor with offices in City National Bank building, has installed a modern shock-proof x-ray machine to diagnose maladjustments of the spine. Installation was made by Harmon E. Baker, Memphis.

Dr. Reid, who has had extensive training in use of x-ray equipment, states he is now in position to give patients better diagnostic service and invites his friends and patients to see the new machine.

The compact apparatus is a far cry from the equipment with which Dr. Wilhelm Conrad Roentgen made his epochal discovery. The latter would completely fill a large room and required extreme caution in handling, but the modern x-ray equipment is so safe that the doctor or patients could touch the machine while in operation without danger of shock or injury.

The type x-ray equipment Dr. Reid now has was used by the Navy on ships in World War II. It was used in the case of "The Human Bomb," a sailor who was shot with a 20 mm. shell which lodged in the pelvis and failed to explode. Because of the danger to the patient, surgeons hesitated to operate. Finally, after the position of the shell was established with the x-ray, a steel screen was erected before the operating table and surgeons extracted the shell. H. G. Fisher & Co., manufacturers, received a commendation from the surgeon-general on this efficient x-ray apparatus.

Security Council Needs A Vacation

By Francis W. Carpenter
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The Security Council needs a vacation—and a new start.

How can the 11 members of the key United Nations organization, charged with the responsibility of keeping the world at peace, take a rest now? There is trouble in Greece, fighting in Indonesia and strife aplenty elsewhere.

The reason is this: The delegates have done everything they can do at this stage in the game.

They must find a new approach to the situation. Several are hoping the General Assembly will provide that approach. The assembly convenes Sept. 16.

This has been the most active summer in the United Nations' short history. It is evident that the delegates are getting tired of looking at the same old faces every day and that they need a change of scenery.

There are some iron men on the council but even these would like a rest. The prospect now is a brief council vacation beginning today (Friday).

The United States has turned to the assembly as a sort of last resort to deal with the Balkans case.

Every move by the United States to set up a semi-permanent UN committee in the Balkans to help settle the troubles there has been resisted by the Soviet Union, with a Russian veto capping the final moves in that respect.

Balked in the council by the veto, the U. S. is determined to air the whole thing in the assembly and try to bring to bear the weight of world opinion.

The veto, too, is another matter on which the UN needs a new approach. That device, brought up originally by the United States and eagerly grasped by Soviet Russia, has come into some disrepute by frequent usage—18 times by Russia and two by France.

But with all the furor from the small countries, the big powers are reluctant to yield that prerogative. The most that the opponents of the veto can expect now is to get the whole thing out of their systems on the assembly rostrum. For it is just about sure the veto as now constituted will not be changed this year.

The lack of the police force is another detriment to the council which must be overcome eventually.

So far the council can do nothing but issue verbal edicts, even when all powers agree, which is not often. The delegates and the planners of the UN look forward to the day when the council will have an international force which can be used to back up its words. That day appears far off.

So they all agree at Lake Success now that they need a vacation and some new ideas about how to preserve world peace.

Nipper Won't Enjoy Heaven Unless He Can Mix It Up Often

By Arthur Edson
(For Hal Boyle)

Washington, Aug. 29.—(AP)—This is the story of a dog who thought he was Joe Louis.

His name was Nipper, and he was a black scottie.

All scotties have delusions of grandeur. Nipper's delusion was that no dog in the world was quite so tough as he was.

Lady dogs nipper gallantly ignored, but as far as I know, he never passed another male without a growl.

We used to load the kids in their wagon, and stroll to the store for groceries.

For awhile, after we first got Nipper, it was painful. Almost every house had a dog, which meant every shopping trip was a continuous dog fight.

But things quieted down at last—when Nipper had them all either fleeced or buffaloed.

Obviously, though, a dog no bigger than a scottie won't win every fight.

So Nipper hit on a doggy idea. A Boston bull, an obnoxious creature with a horrible wheeze, lived across the street. This creature couldn't fight a lick.

As an aviator who cracks up renews his courage by immediately climbing into another plane, so Nipper kept his fighting ego.

When he lost a fight, he hastened home and practiced on the unfortunate Boston.

Once, when grocerying, a near tragedy happened.

Nipper was so busy showing off he didn't notice the street car. He was hit, and was rolled over and over beneath the car, all the way to the end.

There was an awful moment while he lay there stunned. Then he got up, shook himself groggily—and lit out.

"He's gone home to die!" cried my wife, who has read too much romantic literature.

He hadn't. He had just gone back to lick the daylight out of the Boston bull.

Of course, the inevitable happened. One of the hounds of the Baskervilles moved into the neighborhood.

He was a huge creature, with a steamshovel for jaws. Yet for all his bulk, he was mild mannered. I think he was as embarrassed at Nipper's tactics as we were.

For every couple of months or so Nipper would choose him. The routine never varied. Baskie would put up with it for awhile, and then, resignedly, he would roll Nipper over on his back and slice him where his hair was short.

We'd take Nipper to the vet's to be sewn up, he'd whelp the Boston while he was recuperating, and we would all wait for the next attack.

I suppose this silly business would be going on yet. But Nipper died at the dirty hands of a dog poisoner. The real shock of his death was that, with his habits, he should live so long.

If there's a dog heaven, I hope there are lots of dogs ready, willing, even eager, to mix it.

Otherwise, I'm sure it isn't heaven for the dog who thought he was Joe Louis.

Papers in Berlin Get More Newsprint, Enjoy Biggest Circulations

AP Newsfeatures
Berlin—In the non-stop political tug-of-war between East and West in Berlin the Western Allies are badly outpointed by the Russians in the daily newspaper field.

The Russians control nine dailies against a combined total of six for the other three occupying powers.

The Russian-controlled papers have a total press run of 3,100,000 copies daily against a combined total for the American, British and French papers of 1,250,000.

And during the first half of 1947, while the two American-licensed papers here had to take a fifty percent reduction in newsprint, the Russian-controlled papers gained more than 110,000 in total daily circulation. Against this gain the six papers controlled by the Western Powers could show a circulation gain of only fifteen thousand, as a fifty percent gain by the British-licensed Telegraph more than made up for a cut imposed on the French-licensed Kurier.

Editors of the western-controlled papers say it's all a matter of newsprint. Given the paper, they say, they could send their circulations and advertising volume "through the ceiling." In this the Russians are at a decided advantage, because their zone of Germany surrounds Berlin and is richest of all the zones in paper resources.

Minutes of the last meeting, held April 24, were read by the secretary, Mrs. Harry Richards.

A committee was appointed to take care of band instruments, to spray the lunch room, and to appeal to the proper authorities for school improvements. Three new teachers were introduced: Mr. Slayden, Douthitt, principal, Mr. K. M. Winston, and Mrs. R. M. Kirkland.

Several subscriptions were sold for the National and Tennessee PTA magazine.

Berlin Zookeepers' Gardens Are Envy Of Hungry Germans

AP Newsfeatures

Berlin—Thousands of Berliners who visit the zoo these days to see what's left of its once-great animal collection remark that the zoological gardens are doing a good job as a vegetable garden.

With its animal population down nearly 90 percent due to wartime losses and dispersals and postwar starvation, the big zoo has lots of vacant yards and pens. But enterprising keepers are permitting very little wasted space.

Wetting The Beans
In what were once wolf pens they are raising healthy-looking crops of cabbage, tomatoes and beans. The former giraffe house has a yardful of corn, beans and beets. Food-conscious adults admire nearby tomato patches while their chattering children cluster about the monkey cages.

"Who harvests it?" said an attendant. "Why, we people who work here get it. We planted it and we guard it against thieves."

Despite its decimated population, the zoo is still a popular place, especially on week-ends. Located in the British sector of the city, at the end of once-glimmering Kurfuerstendamm, it is visited also by hundreds of occupation troops and their dependents. On a summer Sunday one frequently sees Soviet army officers and their wives and children strolling the zoo paths or sitting listening to a band concert in the open air restaurant.

Animals Mangle
Foreigners, and Germans too, find the once-gaudy zoo a pretty tawdry place now. Some of its buildings were bombed and the surrounding panorama visible over its walls is one of bomb-blasted buildings. Most of the remaining animals are scrawny and mangy. The beer and the served at the restaurant are weak.

In a city where several hundred people are reported afflicted with "Chinese Beggar disease," attributable to eating certain wild herbs, zoo-goers smile wryly at the signs which remain on cages from former days: "Please don't feed the animals."

But the children still love the zoo, though many go away disappointed because it no longer has an elephant. Huge "Slam"—the elephant—died last winter, some said of hunger.

But he wasn't the only victim of the savage winter. The zoo has only one goat now and a lot fewer birds. Thieves got the others and they landed in the cooking pots.

American Woman, 34 Others Killed In Norway Crash

Oslo—(AP)—Thirty-five persons, including an American woman, were killed today when a Norwegian Airlines Sandringham flying boat crashed against a mountainside in northern Norway.

Norwegian Airlines headquarters here reported tonight that the bodies of all the victims had been recovered from the wreckage.

The crash occurred during fog and rain near Loeingen on Lofoten Island above the Arctic Circle. The plane was en route from Tromsø to Stavanger.

Pity The Poor Scorekeepers! Clothiers Edge Chicks 17-16

The man with the comptometer nearly caught up with the Chicks at Mayfield last night as they went down before the Clothiers in a wild melee of hits and errors and what bordered on an orgy of base runs. The score was 17-16. Mayfield collected 22 hits and the Chicks got 13. The visitors made four errors and the winning home team bobbled twice.

The loss left the Chicks with only a bare mathematical possibility of finishing in the money, as they now trail the fourth place Miners by two and one-half games with only five games remaining to be played. They are three games behind Hopkinsville and four games behind the second place Clothiers.

To get into the playoff they must win all of their remaining games while one of the clubs trailing the Oilers loses three. It is almost too much to hope for.

Last night the Chicks broke into the lead in the first inning with two runs. The Clothiers came back in the same inning and scored seven times. In the second inning the Chicks put together nine runs, but they were still behind at the end of the inning after Mayfield had tallied five more times.

The Fulton team forged ahead in the fourth with two runs and added two more to their lead in the sixth, holding the Clothiers scoreless in the fourth, fifth and sixth. The seventh was a draw with each team making one run. That was all until the bottom of the ninth when the Clothiers came from behind with three runs to win the ball game.

The Chicks return to Fairfield tonight for the first of a three-game series with Cairo.

Ex-Pilots Reach London
On Leisurely Journey

London—(AP)—When George Truman of Los Angeles and Cliff Evans of Washington, D. C., arrived here today on their leisurely round-the-world trip in two light planes, they confessed acquiring a healthy respect for the Atlantic ocean.

"It's wide and wet and, at one stage, it nearly had us licked," Truman said.

"Our close call came over Iceland, which we knew was somewhere down below us, tucked away in the clouds. We had to come down to 500 feet to find a hole that enabled us to get our bearings. If we had missed Iceland, there just wouldn't have been any second spot to choose."

Truman and Evans, both former United States airforce pilots, started their circumnavigation of the globe from New Jersey on Aug. 8.

George Washington was an Episcopalian.
