Ammons Trial Ends 8th Day Of Testimony

Five prosecution witnesses took the stand Friday as the eighth day of the trial of Dr. James Ray Ammons concluded in U.S. District Court in Paducah.

First on the stand was pharmacist Darold Keller who had begun his testimony Thursday afternoon. Thursday Keller had identified several prescriptions entered into evidence by the prosecution as being filled at the Houston-McDevitt Clinic Pharmacy. Some of the prescriptions which Keller said were filled at the Clinic Pharmacy designated Judy English as the patient and bore the designation "for office use."

Keller explained Thursday that as he understood the law, prescriptions which bear the designation "for office use" must be used in the doctor's office and only for treatment of the named individual on the prescription.

Under questioning Friday, Keller said "There's nothing strange about the prescriptions as long as these people (named on the prescription) got the medicine."

Defense attorneys, during cross examination, introduced one prescription, written by a doctor other than Dr. Ammons, and asked Keller if it had been filled at the Clinic Pharmacy. The prescription in question, defense attorney said, did not specify a particular patient but had the words "for office use" in the blank for the patient's name.

Keller testified that he had never before seen that prescription. He indicated that it appeared to have been filled at the Clinic Pharmacy and said that if it had been so filled, it should not have been because it did not bear the patient's name. The date of the prescription was not made known.

Ms. English, who worked as Dr. Ammons' office nurse from August 1975 through October 1976 was next to take the stand Friday.

She was questioned at length by attorneys for the United States as well as defense attorneys about prescriptions written in her name marked "for office use."

She said that she was only aware of one such prescription being written and that particular medication had been kept in the drawer used for keeping medications in the doctor's office.

Ms. English explained that Dr. Ammons, like most other doctors, kept a supply of medications in his office for use on patients. She said the controlled medications were separated from other drugs and that they were kept in a locked drawer in the office.

John Charles Raidt, age 27, who has been implicated along with Dr. Ammons in the crash in Texas of a plane carrying a load of marijuana last year, was the next witness called by the United States.

Raidt testified that in May of 1976 he had discussed the storage of marijuana with Dr. Ammons in the Ammons home.

"He asked me where should you store marijuana," Raidt said, "I told him the best way to keep it is in the freezer because it would keep it from losing its potency."

Barry "Bubba" Hughes, the next witness to take the stand, was asked about prescriptions Dr. Ammons had written for him for sleeping medications.

Hughes explained that Dr. Ammons was his personal physician and that he had been treating him for a neck injury sustained in a car accident that occurred while Hughes was in the ninth grade since the time of the wreck.

Under questioning by prosecutor Fred Partin, Hughes admitted that he was at the Ammons home on the day of Ammons' arrest last October and that he and Ammons had smoked marijuana there.

Hughes was asked by defense attorney Richard Heideman if he knew Bill Boyden, Jr., a previous prosecution witness. Boyden's testimony earlier in the trial linked Dr. Ammons with a scheme to buy marijuana and other drugs in Florida.

Heideman, in an attempt to discredit Boyden's earlier testimony, asked Hughes if Boyden could be trusted to tell the truth.

"I don't believe too many people trusted him," Hughes replied.

Hughes also testified that he was concerned when his cousin, Carl Scarborough, went to Florida with Boyden. Scarborough's testimony earlier in the trial has also linked Dr. Ammons with the Florida drug purchase scheme.

Dr. Larry Green of Bowling Green, who has had considerable experience in the drug abuse field, took the stand late in the day Friday.

Dr. Green, who described the effects of various drugs, is expected to be recalled as a witness when the trial resumes Monday morning.

Dr. Ammons was indicted by a federal grand jury on 11 separate drug violations last January. The first five counts of the indictment concerned an alleged conspiracy by Ammons and

Short Circuit Pinpointed As Club Fire Cause

ATLANTA (AP) — An investigating team has concluded that a short circuit in an electrical cord for a fountain pump caused the Beverly Hills Supper Club fire in Kentucky that killed at least 161 persons. The Associated Press learned Friday.

The private investigating team from Atlanta told Kentucky fire officials Thursday night that last Saturday's fire began in a wall by a decorative stone fountain just outside the Southgate, Ky., club's Zebra Room.

The team of three investigators estimated the fire began as early as 7 p. m., EDT, Saturday, and much of the club's attic was ablaze by the time an alarm for the fire was placed at 9:02 p. m.

A wedding reception was moved out of the Zebra Room before 8:20 because of heat generated by the fire inside a heavily plastered wall, the team reported.

The team was allowed into the scene after Kentucky state investigators and out-of-state experts spent Wednesday and Thursday trying to track down the cause.

The fire, which traveled up a steel I-beam at the corner of the Zebra Room, was trapped in the attic by the building's steel roof, investigators said.

The high resistance electrical short in the pump's power cord probably was caused by vibrations chafing the cord's insulation as it passed through an unprotected hole in the fountain's metal trough, investigators said.

They added the fire ignited wood in the walls with the I-beam acting like a chimney.

The wedding reception was moved because the Zebra Room became too warm. The occupants thought the air conditioning had failed, the team reported.

However, they said, one side of the room was found to be cool and the other side—located against the fountain—was hot, indicating a fire inside the wall was causing the high temperatures in the room.

The first word of the fire came at 8:45 p. m. when a waitress handed a message to busboy Walter Bailey, who was in the crowded Cabaret Room, where several hundred persons were waiting to hear entertainer John Davidson.

Bailey, who later was credited with saving many lives, rushed to the central corridor, where he saw smoke near the Zebra Room, located down the hall from the Cabaret Room.

Hold Out For A Better Offer

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 24-year-old woman who has had enough bad experiences with men to fill a book. I've always had a good figure and a pretty face, and I never had any trouble getting dates. The trouble is I want to get married, but none of the guys I've gone with has wanted to marry me. They all want affairs, but not marriage.

I have had two abortions and have promised myself that I will not go to bed with another man unless he marries me first.

Sex never gave me much pleasure. I just gave in to please the guy.

I'm going with a man now who keeps trying to get me into bed, but I'm holding out. He promised that if he gets me pregnant he will marry me.

Now I'm wondering if maybe that isn't the way to get him to marry me. I'd really like to marry him.

I'm so mixed up I don't know what to do. Can you help me?

WANTS MARRIAGE

DEAR WANTS: With regard to the man in your life: His promise to marry you if he gets you pregnant is about as worthless as he is.

Stick to your decision. You're beginning to get it together. Don't permit yourself to be used.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has been having an affair right in front of my face for more than two years. His "mistress" is a bit out of the ordinary. It's a set of golf clubs.

I married a golf nut. When he's not working or eating, he has an imaginary golf club in his hands, which he continually swings back and forth. His practice area ranges from my parents' home to our bedroom.

He has left the house in a rainstorm to go to the driving range to practice!

Other than his all-consuming obsession with golf, he is probably the most perfect husband a woman could imagine.

JEALOUS

DEAR JEALOUS: I wonder if you know how lucky you are. If you aren't already a golfer, I urge you to develop an interest in the sport. Take lessons from a pro, keep your head down and keep your eye on your husband.

DEAR ABBY: Did you know that some people actually can hardly wait to get the newspaper to read the divorce column.

I think I will gag if I hear once more, "Oh, did you see in the newspaper that so and so is divorcing her husband?"

A piece of news like that seems to make some busybody's day.

Abby, is there any good reason for publishing the names of those who have received divorce decrees? Personally, I think it's an invasion of one's privacy.

GAGGING

DEAR GAGGING: Laws in every state require the registration of births, deaths, divorces and marriages. This is for both the public's information and protection. In areas where this "public record" is not too extensive, newspapers publish it as a service to their readers. A public record, mandated by law, can hardly be considered an "invasion of privacy." But if you think it is, why not challenge the law?

Some unforeseen situations in business matters. Beware of instability, overemotionalism. Consult with others as to the best way of getting back in the groove.

You could also shine in the theater (as actor, dramatist or director), or in any profession involving travel. However, you are an extremely restless individual and your eventual success will depend upon the steadiness and stamina for routine which you must develop yourself since, inherently, you loathe tedium and the humdrum so necessary at times. You are an extremely gregarious person, can meet and captivate people without even trying, and you are an expert at handling novel situations. You can pick brilliant ideas "out of the blue," put them in a nutshell and make them saleable. Traits to curb: extravagance and hypersensitivity. Birthdate of: John A. ### Productivity Key Word, Carroll Says

An AP Analysis
By SY RAMSEY
Associated Press Writer
FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Gov. Julian Carroll seems to have hit on another idea on how the state administration is going to cope with rising costs without increasing taxes. "We simply increase our income... through increased productivity throughout the Commonwealth, which results in added revenues without raising taxes," he said. "Productivity. That's the key word."
He apparently meant that more production would increase employment and prosperity, thus providing a greater base for current tax receipts without the need for new taxes.
That comment is in a weekly column the governor sends to newspapers around the state.
Productivity has not been emphasized previously in talking about how the 1978 Legislature is going to deal with the financial press of when its revenue is limited.
"Sounds simple doesn't it?" Carroll said. "Well... it's taken us 2½ years to get to this stage."
Up to now, in a less folksy manner, the governor has been explaining the concept of zero-based budgeting as one solution to the fiscal dilemma.
Zero-based budgeting involves telling state agencies that—in drawing up budget requests for the next two fiscal years—they must start from scratch and justify every program or activity instead of beginning as traditionally from the level of the previous biennium.
Carroll has said the concept would be used on a limited basis for the 1978-80 biennium. He has called at least three gatherings of state officials and aides to outline the idea and provide some details.

Apparently the latest economic statistics have prompted Carroll to use his productivity theme.
First, he said, is the report that Kentucky ranked sixth in the nation last year in the percentage of growth in per capita income.
Secondly, he said, is the fact that Kentucky's unemployment level now is at its lowest since 2½ years ago.
The rate for April was 4.4 per cent or 2.4 per cent below the national average.
"Of course, Kentucky's unemployment has traditionally stayed about 1.5 points below the national average, but this is a level that puts us near the lowest unemployment level in the nation," the governor said.
So, seven months before the next general assembly, the Governor has embraced the notion of productivity as well as zero-based budgeting.
But there is a third idea on which he elaborated in a speech to state program managers recently—the "Kentucky Agency Management System" (KAMS).
That, Carroll said, will include planning, budgeting and evaluation to strengthen all other concepts.
As an example of planning, he cited his request to the Council on Public Higher Education "to take a look at the total system of higher education... to make sure that when we attempt to do something (it is for) a need."
Budgeting is self-explanatory, but it includes a look at where the state is heading fiscally—such as the recent discovery that later this fiscal year state expenses will exceed revenue.
As for evaluation, Carroll described that process as "did you get it done?" in relation to what an agency sought to accomplish during a biennium.

FROM THE GOVERNOR'S DESK

What is it that Kentucky is best known for: Our bluegrass, tobacco, Kentucky bourbon, our southern hospitality, or maybe basketball?
Kentucky is well known for all these things, but I believe she is best known around the nation and around the world for her dominance in the thoroughbred horse industry. To put it another way, most people naturally associate the home of the Kentucky Derby with horse farms, miles and miles of white-fenced and rolling bluegrass countryside, and sunny summer days with graceful mares watching over their awkward and wobbly new-born foals.
The Derby is Kentucky's showpiece. The world is watching, and whether you are a racing fan or not, whether you know the difference between a furlong and the finish line, you are proud to be a Kentuckian on Derby Day.
For Kentucky, the Derby is our main attraction. It seems everything points to the Derby all year long. Like eager children waiting impatiently for Santa Claus and birthdays, Kentuckians prepare for the Derby.
Most Kentuckians watch the race on television and watch every rerun as if their life depended upon it. Many may not even know how to place a bet but somehow they get a friend who's Derby-bound to put two dollars on their favorite horse.
That's because as Kentuckians we are proud of our Kentucky Derby. That's right, I said our Derby. It's our Derby because the Kentucky Derby means the horse industry and the horse industry means a great deal to Kentucky's healthy economy. And I don't need to remind you that what's healthy for Kentucky's economy is healthy for Kentuckians' pocketbooks. It all goes together.
Every now and then we read or see on television accounts of public thoroughbred auction sales in the Bluegrass. Many of us probably relate those kinds of activities to high-priced art sales where if you need to know the value of an item, you're in the wrong place. Well, these thoroughbred auctions are a bit like that, except that they are a vital part of the industry. In fact, without them, there would be no thoroughbred industry. Breeding and the sale of offspring is what it's all about.
At public auction last year, the Kentucky thoroughbred sales totaled more than $80.5 million, and that does not include private sales.
The total worth of the thoroughbred industry in Kentucky is estimated at $1 billion. That includes farms, sales, the racing and services and supplies.
There are 414 thoroughbred farms in the Commonwealth, 75 per cent of them located in the Bluegrass and near Lexington. These farms range in size from 10 acres to 6,000 acres.
There are some 400 stallions standing at stud in Kentucky and there are an estimated 7,000 mares from which are born 4,000 foals each year. Kentucky derives about $1 million in tax revenue from the sale of stallion breeding.

Kentucky's share of the foal crop is the highest in the nation, 15 per cent.
It is estimated that, nationally, the thoroughbred industry is a $13 billion business, and it's certainly easy to see that Kentucky enjoys a lion's share of this enterprise.
It's also easy to understand how the Kentucky Derby and the thoroughbred industry in this Commonwealth are necessary to one another, and how one thrives because of the presence of the other.
But the thoroughbred industry is just a part of the horse and racing scene in Kentucky.
A rapidly growing element is the standardbred industry, the business dedicated to the business of harness racing — trotting and pacing. Harness racing is a growing part of Kentucky's overall racing scene with an increase in the past five years alone of 50 per cent in the number of persons who annually attend harness racing at Kentucky's four pari-mutuel harness tracks.
Standardbred sales in Kentucky last year brought more than $13 million for 1,100 horses.
The mutuel handle at the harness tracks in the Commonwealth has doubled in five years to $60 million last year, with the state realizing almost $3 million annually in revenue from the mutuels at the harness tracks.
The tracks themselves realized $8 million, with more than $4 million being paid out in purses to the horsemen.
So, there's probably no one who doesn't identify that familiar bugle call to the starting gate with horse racing, who wouldn't identify a high school band's rendition of My Old Kentucky Home with the Kentucky Derby, who wouldn't identify those familiar twin spires at Churchill Downs with the world's best known horse race, and the most exciting two minutes in sports.
Sure, the identity is excellent public relations and good public relations means added popularity and fame for the Derby. But there's much more.
The quarter horse industry is also on the move in Kentucky, with 45 racing days this year recently granted for quarter horse racing at Louisville's Commonwealth Race Track. There will be some stakes races during the quarter horse dates that run through the months of September and October.
Two additional important segments of the horse industry are, of course, show horses and pleasure horses. The Kentucky State Fair is the site of the annual World Championship for Show Horses, always an exciting and colorful event for thousands of owners, fans, and fairgoers.
Meantime, 1978 looms large on the horizon for the Commonwealth. The brand new Kentucky Horse Park will be the site that year for the World Championship Three-Day Event, held for the first time ever in the United States. The show is expected to attract more than 100,000 fans to Kentucky, many from other countries, and will feature Kentucky in worldwide television broadcasts.
The Kentucky horse industry is big business — I mean big, big business. Millions of dollars of income, millions of dollars in state revenue, thousands of jobs depend on its health.
And who can deny that any industry that has an enterprise like the Kentucky Derby going for it is anything but healthy? That is why this administration is such a substantial supporter of the Kentucky Derby and all its attendant events and the Kentucky horse industry in general.
It is a one-of-a-kind business and I am proud of it. Its value to Kentucky's economy is really immeasurable.

Echoes From The Past

(A Column of historical and genealogical anecdotes, stories and family notes.)

The Assassination of President McKinley
Recently I came into possession of a copy of the Louisville Courier for September 18, 1901. The date may not have immediate significance to the reader, but the headline for that day was the death of President William McKinley. It is a very different thing to see history on the front page of a newspaper than it is to read it in a history book; when one sees a headline such as this, you realize that there is some value in being a pack rat and saving everything.
McKinley's assassination was the third presidential murder in a generation, the other two being Abraham Lincoln and James Garfield. The entire issue of the Courier is devoted to the death of the president, the role of the new president, Theodore Roosevelt, and an article on assassination in general.
Leon Czolgosz, alias Fred Nieman, was the man indicated with the slaying of President McKinley; the deed took place at the Temple of Music in the Pan-American Exposition Grounds, at 4:15 p. m., September 6, 1901. Evidently the police had difficulty in getting any statements out of the assassin, because at the time of McKinley's death, 12 days later, a motive still had not been established.
There were many small articles in the paper which alluded to the assassination in oblique ways, such as "The President's Insurance," "Tar and Feathers for an Indiana Preacher who Denounced President McKinley from the Pulpit," accounts of the proposed funeral, description of the casket, the President's last words, and one article about a theory that there was poison on

Let's Stay Well

Self-Examination Needed

By F.J.L. Blasingame, M.D.

Q. Mrs. H.C. wants to know why greater emphasis is not placed on self-examination in the discovery of diseases in their early stages. She asks, "Wouldn't such a practice, if done by most people, greatly reduce the cost of health care and add to less suffering and disability?"
A. Your questions are most timely and important. Self-examination, if widely practiced, would detect diseases in their early stages when treatment could be more effective, and less expensive. The overall cost might not be reduced, but the investment would bring better, earlier benefits.
Americans are responding to educational programs on self-examination and are less self-conscious about doing so. Perhaps the most successful program has been regular breast examinations by women. Tests of public opinion show more understanding of this procedure.
Similar programs could be effective and include:
— Examining by men of their genitalia, noting particularly nodular growths in a testicle or a sore or discharge from the penis.
— Detecting growths in the skin. These are common (300,000 skin cancers per year in the United States) and may develop anywhere, but most of them occur in areas exposed to the ultraviolet light of the sun, especially in persons who work out of doors, such as farmers, ranchers, and fishermen. The pigmented growths (melanomas) are highly dangerous and require early, extensive treatment.
— Watching or feeling for swellings or ulcerations of the lips, mouth, gums, tongue or throat. While many are benign and slow growing, others spread readily into neck and chest. If treated promptly, favorable results can often be achieved.
— Feeling for enlargements in the neck, armpits and groins. These can be felt by gentle palpation with the fingers. The thyroid gland in front of the upper windpipe and below the voice box is a frequent site of nodular growths. The lymph nodes in the neck, armpits, groins cannot usually be felt unless enlarged. Their increase in size may be due to inflammation (often tender) or to new growth, as in Hodgkin's disease. Such enlargements should be respected and given prompt attention.
Periodic examinations by a physician, especially in persons over 50 years old, can be safeguards in detecting other sites of trouble in the rectum, prostate, ovaries, uterus or other internal organs.
The time is ripe for more emphasis on self-examination. Education on what to look for and when to seek help is needed. Prevention or early treatment pays big dividends.

Rogers Hurls One-Hitter As Expos Blank Cards 2-0 Friday

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Steve Rogers wouldn't take the pitch back, even if it cost him a no-hitter.

"I had no regrets about that pitch," he said. "He could've hit it at the shortstop."

But Mike Tyson didn't. He grounded the ball up the middle with one out in the third inning—and it turned out to be the only hit off Rogers as the Montreal Expos posted a 2-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Friday night.

Rogers, one of the hottest pitchers in the National League, struck out 10 batters to bring his league-leading total to 83. Not incidentally, he lowered his earned run average to 1.92 and improved his record to 7-4.

In other National League games, the San Diego Padres blanked the Los Angeles Dodgers 1-0 in 11 innings; the Cincinnati Reds turned back the Houston Astros 4-0; the Pittsburgh Pirates trimmed the Chicago Cubs 5-0; the Philadelphia Phillies edged the New York Mets 1-0 and the Atlanta Braves took a two-inning doubleheader from the San Francisco Giants, 5-3 and 8-7.

Rogers was staked to a 1-0 lead in the first when Dave Cash scored on Ellis Valentine's forceout grounder. St. Louis starter Eric Rasmussen, who surrendered only five hits, retired the next 13 men he faced before Larry Parrish clouted his sixth homer of the season in the fifth. It was Parrish's first homer at the Olympic Stadium.

Rasmussen struck out five and walked none before he was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth.

Padres 1, Dodgers 0

Dave Winfield belted an 11th-inning home run to boost San Diego over Los Angeles, as four Padres pitchers combined on a two-hitter. Winfield's homer, his 11th, came off loser Charlie Hough. Hough had relieved starter Tom Sutton after nine innings.

Randy Jones started for San Diego, giving up two hits through six innings, and was followed by Rick Sawyer, Dan Spillner and Rollie Fingers. Fingers pitched the final 21-3 innings to earn his fourth victory in five decisions.

Reds 4, Astros 0

Fred Norman pitched a two-hitter and Johnny Bench lashed a two-run homer as Cincinnati whipped Houston. Norman, the winner of his last four decisions, was plagued with wildness. He walked six batters in the first four innings, and later walked two batters in the ninth before pitching out of trouble.

Pirates 5, Cubs 0

Jim Rooker pitched a five-hitter and Dave Parker drove in two runs to lead Pittsburgh over Chicago. The triumph moved the Pirates within a half-game of the first-place Cubs in the National League East.

Purcell, Outland And Jackson Reach Finals

Mel Purcell coasted into the semifinals of the singles while Kathy Outland and Candy Jackson reached the finals of the doubles Friday in the Kentucky State High School Tennis Tournament at Lexington.

Purcell, who has been in the state tourney every year since the fifth grade, is the favorite to capture the title today.

The just-graduated Murray High star won by default in his first round match over Tommy Morton of Bowling Green then in the quarterfinals, won 6-0, 6-1 over John Watson of Richmond Model.

Purcell will go against Whit Jones of Jefferson Waggener in the semifinals today.

Outland and Jackson won two matches to gain their berth in the championship.

They won 6-2 and 6-1 in the quarterfinals over Shawn Watson and Sheryl Rouse of Owensboro then in the semifinals, blasted the Louisville Central duo of Elizabeth English and Blanche Burton 6-0 and 6-0.

Outland-Jackson will go against the Sacred Heart duo of Laurie Montgomery and Nina Howard today in the finals. Montgomery and Howard are the top-seeded team in the tourney while the Murray pair of Jackson-Outland are seeded second.

The only major upset in the tourney came in the girls' singles where Murray's fourth-seeded Jill Austin was stunned 6-2 and 6-1 by Suzanne Kuhlman of Covington Notre Dame.

Also in the girls' singles, freshman Robyn Burke of Murray won her first round match, defeating Rita Olin of Jefferson Stuart, 6-2 and 6-1 but then lost in the quarterfinals to top-seeded Whit Stogdill of Atherton 6-0 and 6-2.

Also in singles action, Brent Austin of the Tigers picked up a win before finally being eliminated in the boys' quarterfinals.

Austin won 6-4 and 6-0 over Dale Randall of Faridale before losing 7-6 and 6-4 in the quarterfinals to Tim Clark of Waggener.

In the boys' doubles competition, Murray High's Raymond Sims and Brad Boone were heavy underdogs against Henry Clay's Whitney Bradley and Charles Wilkerson but yet lost only 6-3 and 7-5.

The finals play in the singles and doubles begins at noon today.

Eckersley Misses Hitless Inning Record By Two Outs

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

Dennis Eckersley missed Cy Young's 73-year-old record by a mere two outs, which was one less out than the Baltimore Orioles picked up when they pulled off one of the strangest triple plays in baseball history.

Eckersley, the 22-year-old Cleveland Indian right-hander, pitched his third straight gem of a game, but it wasn't enough to overtake the legendary Young, a Hall of Famer.

After 22 1-3 hitless innings covering three games—one a no-hitter—Seattle's Ruppert Jones tagged Eckersley for a home run with two outs in the sixth inning Friday night. Jim Kern relieved at the start of the seventh and didn't allow a hit, preserving the Indians' one-hit, 7-1 victory over the Mariners.

What's over for Eckersley is a sensational streak of 22 1-3 innings of hitless pitching and 23 2-3 straight scoreless innings.

Young remains in the record books with the 23 hitless innings he pitched in 1904 with the Boston Red Sox. And Johnny Vander Meer of Cincinnati remains alone in the record books for his two straight no-hitters.

But the Orioles are probably alone in baseball history for their weird triple play, which started as a routine sacrifice fly then ended with shortstop Mark Belanger making two putouts.

Down 7-5 entering the ninth, the Royals loaded the bases against Oriole reliever Tippy Martinez on Al Cowens' double, Dave Nelson's walk and Fred Patek's single.

Pinch-hitter John Wathan lofted an innocent sacrifice fly to right fielder Pat Kelly, scoring Cowens. Then the fun began.

Nelson went to third and Patek broke for second when he saw second baseman Billy Smith in short right field and second base unprotected. Belanger took Kelly's throw then tagged Patek after an exchange of tosses with Smith in a rundown.

Nelson, representing the tying run, dashed for home but was caught midway down the line as Belanger turned and ran with the ball toward him, tagging him about 10 feet from home plate.

White Sox 9, Yankees 5
Alan Bannister and Jim Essian drove in two runs each in a seven-run fourth inning that carried Chicago past the Yankees, whose manager, Billy Martin, was ejected in the fourth. It was his first early departure of the season.

Bannister, who earlier had driven in a run with a sacrifice fly, tripled in two more in the fourth after Essian had singled with the bases loaded.

Rangers 15, Brewers 8
The Rangers shelled four Milwaukee pitchers for 18 hits. Bert Campaneris and Juan Beniquez each knocked in three runs in support of Steve Hargan, who was recently picked up from Toronto.

Hargan, 2-3, relieved starter Mike Marshall with one out in the third and went the rest of the way, surrendering six hits.

Twins 6, Red Sox 2
Rod Carew, who has had eight hits in his last 10 at-bats to raise his average to .383, tripled twice and singled to back the strong pitching of Dave Goltz and lead Minnesota to victory.

In three games this season, the Twins have roughed up the Red Sox for 46 hits and 28 runs. Goltz, 5-3, fanned eight and walked one, scattering nine hits.

A's 3, Blue Jays 2
Dick Allen delivered a pinchhit sacrifice fly in the ninth inning to lift Oakland over Toronto.

With runners on first and second, Wayne Gross sacrificed the runners along and Tony Armas was walked intentionally. That brought in reliever Pete Vuckovich to face Allen, who hit his second pitch deep to center field.

Reds, Twins Winners In Little League

The Reds and Twins picked up victories in Little League play Friday night.

In the first contest, the Reds got only three hits but took a 10-4 win over the Cards, who had four hits.

The win left the Reds with a 3-1 season mark while the Cards are now 2-2.

For the Cards, Wade Smith, David Seaford, Stefan Reed and David Denham all had one hit.

In the nightcap, Jimmy West and the Twins won a 2-1 pitcher's duel over Eddie Burgess and the Pirates.

The Pirates were held to just two hits by West who fanned five and walked two. Charles Cella and Craig Darnell had the Pirate hits.

The Twins won the game by snapping a 1-1 tie in the home half of the fourth as Tim Brown led off the inning with a double and scored when West singled with one out.

West had two hits and two runs batted in while Ronnie Byran and Tim Brown each had one hit. Burgess struck out 13 Twins.

The Twins are now 3-1 while the Pirates are 2-2.

Action in the Little League resumes Monday with a pair of games.

Portland Takes Lead In NBA Playoffs With 110-104 Victory

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Portland Trail Blazers, expansion ragamuffins who suffered through six losing seasons, are just one game away from the National Basketball Association championship in their first year under Coach Jack Ramsay.

They'll try to wrap it up Sunday (CBS, 3 p.m., EDT) on their home floor, where they have been virtually unbeatable this year, winning their last 17 in a row and 44 of 50 through the regular season and playoffs. And they'll have the added support of the vocal legions who have made Blazermania a phenomenon in the Pacific Northwest.

The Blazers produced something less than their best Friday night but nonetheless moved within one victory of the NBA crown, beating the Philadelphia 76ers 110-104 to take a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven playoff finals.

It was a strange game that ran in spurts and produced an unlikely hero—Bobby Gross, Portland's unassuming 6-foot-6 forward who came into the series as "the other guy," the unknown whose job it would be to try and stop the brilliant Julius Erving of Philadelphia.

Gross helped the Blazers take the lead at the start, contributing eight points, two assists and a steal as Portland jumped out to a 16-9 advantage while Philadelphia was missing 11 of its first 14 shots.

The rest of the first half was miserable basketball which Ramsay described as "not an artistic masterpiece." Neither team could get anything going, and although the Sixers hit only 29 per cent of their shots from the field, they trailed by just 45-41.

Hollins had 14 points and Johnny Davis 11 points and eight assists, while Twardzik came off the bench to tally 16.

Lake Barkley Information Now Toll-Free

Public use of the system will be monitored to determine if such a service could be justified at the other eight lakes in the Cumberland River basin operated by the Army Corps of Engineers.

Pirates, Cards Win Kentucky League Games

The Pirates and Cards took high-scoring wins in Kentucky League games played Friday.

In the opener, the Pirates crushed the Twins 25-2.

Watson had four hits for the Pirates as did Crutchfield while Thurmond, Crawford and Wilkins all had two hits. Crawford drove in six runs. The Pirates are now 1-1, the Reds 0-2.

Wilkins, who struck out eight, was the winning pitcher.

For the Twins, Lackey had two hits while Prescott had one.

In the second game, the Cards whipped the Reds 13-7. Starks was the winning pitcher for the Cards.

Starks and Rich Grogan had three hits apiece while Malone, Morton and Mitch Grogan each had two hits. Newsome and Jones added one hit for the Cards.

For the Reds, the only hit in the game came from Wright.

All Insurance Agents are about alike - until you have a claim.

Most insurance agents look pretty much alike. But some work for only one company while others (like us) are independent, working only for you.

An agent working for one company must satisfy the company. If he doesn't his job may be in jeopardy.

With us we must satisfy only you. If the insurance company doesn't make good, they will lose all our business, not just yours. So they can't afford to cross either of us up.

How does this work when you have a claim? Simple, we're always on your side.

Thinking about buying a house?

Make sure you ask all the right questions to be certain you're getting a good deal. To help you know what to ask, the Department of Housing and Urban Development has a free booklet. For your copy of Wise Home Buying, send a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 636E, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

When you think you've discovered the house that's really "it", check it very carefully. If you've got any doubts about the soundness of the house, find a reputable inspection firm to examine the house and give you a detailed report. It'll be a $50 or $100 fee well spent.

Also, for an older house, if you've got any doubts about termites, the wiring, plumbing, or the heating plant, the owner may let you have it checked by an expert (at your expense.)

And, ask some questions. Ask if the attic and the space between the interior and exterior walls has been filled with insulation and how much. Find out what kind of roofing material was used and how old it is. Check inside the attic for water stains and discolorations from leaks. A basement that looks dry in summer may be four inches under water in the spring. Are there signs of water seepage around the foundation walls? Be sure all windows and doors operate and are in good repair.

If you've decided that a new home will best meet your needs, don't let yourself be overwhelmed by a glittering model home. Pin down exactly what features are provided with your new house and which are "extras" on the model just for show.

Be very sure the contract is complete and that there is agreement on all the details of the transaction. Don't assume an item is included and later discover you've misunderstood.

Check the lot site in advance. Is it the size and setting you want for your home?

And don't be afraid to check construction progress regularly while the house is being built. And the day before you take title to the house, make a thorough inspection trip. Check all equipment, windows and doors. This will be your last chance to request changes.

When you take possession of the house, insist on getting the warranties from all manufacturers for equipment in the house; also certificates of occupancy and certificates from the Health Department clearing plumbing and sewer installations.

Wise Home Buying (free) is one of over 200 selected Federal consumer publications listed in the Spring edition of the catalog, Consumer Information.

You can get a free copy by sending a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Wildlife Violators: A Personal Responsibility

By KIRK H. BEATTIE

We trudged through the narrow two-foot deep channel that would lead us to our assigned waterfowl blind in the flooded hardwoods. Glancing at my watch I noticed it was 5:45 a. m., still 45 minutes before legal shooting time. We could hear other hunters making their way to assigned blinds. We finally reached a two-acre flooded opening in the woods which was to be our hunting location. We had made it with time to spare; it was still a half hour before legal shooting time. We rested our guns on some stumps surrounding the perimeter of the opening and began placing mallard and pintail decoys over the area. Since there were three of us happened was a freak occurrence, but I knew better. Who has the responsibility for controlling the actions of persons who violate wildlife statutes? Your immediate response would probably be "the wildlife enforcement officer." Should we blame the enforcement officer for failing to apprehend most wildlife violators? I think not. You would be hard-pressed to find a group of men more dedicated to their profession. A 16-hour working day is probably the rule rather than the exception among wildlife enforcement officers. The wildlife agent is only human and can cover a limited amount of terrain. He cannot be everywhere at once.

I think we would agree that there are not enough wildlife officers to control the vast number of wildlife violations that occur. What if it were possible to double the number of wildlife officers in the field? Would that solve the problem? Again, I think not. Studies in Idaho and Maine have suggested that wildlife officers detect approximately one per cent of the violations that occur. It would logically follow that a doubling of officers might allow a two per cent detection of wildlife violations.

Wildlife law enforcement is a very costly business. The average state wildlife agency spends about a third of its operating budget on wildlife law enforcement. Large increases in wildlife officers would drastically cut into funds needed for habitat management, public hunting area acquisition, wildlife research, and endangered species management.

Most popular anti-poaching articles stress that wildlife violations seriously harm wildlife populations. There is some truth to this. Frankly, we do not know what effect most types of violations have on wildlife populations, but we can make professional judgments. Populations of grizzly bears, bighorn sheep, mountain goats, wolverines, and even the California Condor are very unstable. Poaching in any form would seriously threaten the existence of these species. On the other hand, most small game animals such as cottontail rabbits, bobwhite quail, and mourning doves are very resilient because of their high breeding capacity. Poaching of these animals probably does not result in decreased numbers from year-to-year but may result in reduced local populations during a given year. For example, the daily bag limit on cottontail rabbits in most Western states is 10. If someone were to hunt a 100-acre tract occupied by 50 rabbits at the start of the season and were to harvest 30 of the rabbits in one day (20 over the limit), the next person hunting the tract would find it difficult to harvest his legal limit of rabbits. Continued hunting of the area would result in fewer rabbits harvested. A female cottontail is capable of producing up to 28 young a year and, in all probability, there would again be 50 rabbits present on the 100-acre tract at the start of the next hunting season. Hunting seasons and limits are set to produce a certain harvest and cheating can certainly increase this harvest beyond safe limits. One of the primary functions of laws, regulations, and wildlife law enforcement is to prevent an inequitable distribution of the harvest.

WHOPPER — Jannette Storey, Murray, landed this monster rockfish last weekend at Cherokee Lake in East Tennessee. Jannette's fisherman husband, Charles, is surely proud of her. Using an Ambassadeur 5500, casting rod and a small bluegill for bait she pulled this 24 lb. 2 oz. fighter from 30 feet of clear water.

The recent airing of "The Guns of Autumn" grossly misrepresented the hunting experience of the average hunter and the positive contributions of wildlife management. For all its faults, biases, and un-truths it may have done some good. We realize that among our number there are those who do not respond to the sportsman's code of ethics. We should stop relying totally on a relatively small number of dedicated wildlife law enforcement officers to control the actions of millions of sportsmen. They cannot do the job alone; they need your help.

The next time you observe early shooting in the marsh or hear about someone taking more than his fair share of game, do something about it. Use your personal judgment when entering into a potentially dangerous situation. It is contrary to our nature to "inform" on someone. If you do not feel right about reporting a violation committed by a friend or acquaintance, simply tell him what you think about his illicit behavior. Tell him that you have been waiting two years to see the excitement in your child's eyes when he bags his first rabbit, quail, or duck. The extra rabbit or quail he so nonchalantly bagged could have been your child's first trophy.

The incident I described at the beginning of this article was not faked or trumped-up; it actually happened. Last December I again persuaded my wife to go duck hunting with me. We arose at 4:30 a. m. on a bleak morning in December. We hunted on a different marsh in a different state. The situation was different this time; the early shooting began 20 minutes before legal shooting time instead of 15 minutes.

I fear my wife will no longer accompany me on future early morning duck hunts. She has had enough. Her first two duck hunting "experiences" were ruined by the actions of others. I no longer try to "explain away" the actions of a small minority of my fellow sportsmen.

Twenty one members of the club dispersed from their clubhouse at midnight and returned at 6:30 a.m. with their flippered quarry. Using bow and arrow only the teams brought in 50 pounds of frogs which were cleaned and cooked later that day at a club family get together at Kenlake. Trophies were awarded those bowfingers who brought in the most pounds of frogs within the legal limit of frogs. First place (from left) team with a total of 12 pounds 4 ounces of frogs was Owen Norsworthy and Ray Wilford; 2nd place going to Danny Paschall who was odd man and teamed with himself to bring in 5 pounds 15 ounces of frogs and third place went to Rick Norsworthy and Steve Cathy who dragged in 8 pounds 13 ounces. The Largest Frog trophy went to Randy Dodd for his 14 and fifteen sixteenths inch bullfrog.

While bass tournaments abound on Kentucky Lake, another kind of lake-area recreation is on the upswing. Ralph Jackson of Murray displays some of the carp and gar taken during a "carp shoot" last weekend. Ralph is a member of the Jenny Ridge Bowhunters Society of Western Kentucky and earned a trophy for having taken the longest carp with a bow and arrow. The sport of shooting rough fish with archery equipment falls under the regulations of the Dept. of Fish & Wildlife Resources. Shallow water in the back end of grassy or brushy lake coves and bays produce good "hunting grounds" for carp and gar. These fish can be hunted from a boat or by wading. A special barb-pointed fish arrow and reel with fishing line attached is used to prevent loss of arrows and a method to prevent fish from getting away. The fight of rough fish is explosive. Other winners in last weekend's Carp Shoot were Rick Nor-sworthy (Most Fish), Bill Settle (2nd), Danny Paschall (3rd), and Randy Dodd (Longest Gar).

Now Is The Time For Landowners To Stock Their Ponds

A farm pond can offer many hours of pleasant "backyard" fishing, but it takes some attention to make sure that the pond remains a good fish producer. The Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources offer free stocking of bass, bluegill and channel catfish as well as technical advice and assistance to pond owners.

Although the deadline for stocking applications is October 1, now is a good time to start working on getting fish in your pond, says Pete Pfeiffer, assistant director of the fisheries division for the department.

For one thing, most folks are thinking about fishing now and are more likely to remember that their ponds need some attention. In September, most outdoorsmen are getting ready for hunting seasons and may forget about that pond until after the deadline has passed.

Previously stocked ponds which offer poor fishing may need extensive and time-consuming work before they can be restocked, Pfeiffer says. So it's a good idea to get in touch with the local conservation officer now to see what work your pond needs before it can be restocked this fall.

The Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources is happy to offer assistance to pond owners and to make recommendations about pond fertilization, weed and algae control or how to restore or maintain the proper balance between bass and bluegill in the pond.

If you are catching only small bluegill and no bass, chances are your pond is out of balance, Pfeiffer says. Often the only solution, particularly for a pond of one-half acre or less, is to completely renovate the pond by removing all the existing fish and starting over.

If your pond does have a good balance between bass and bluegill populations, it is important to catch enough bluegill to keep it that way. Pfeiffer recommends that five to seven pounds of bluegill be harvested for each pound of bass.

This means that for every 13-inch bass removed from the pond, between 50 and 75 five-inch bluegill should also be caught. If this ratio is not maintained, the bluegill will often overpopulate and become stunted because of insufficient food.

The man to see for stocking applications or about pond problems is the conservation officer in your county. He can answer your questions himself, or he may request that a fishery biologist visit your pond for further investigation. If you don't know your conservation officer, call the county court clerk or the local sheriff's office and ask for his name and phone number.

One final note - having your pond stocked by the Department of Fish and Wildlife does not obligate you to open the pond for public fishing or in any other way interfere with your right to control access to your land. As a pond owner, you may also place more restrictive size and creel limits on your pond than those in force on public waters.

Steel Shot Reload Shells Not Recommended

The Winchester-Western Division of Olin Corporation has issued the following statement of its position regarding the use of steel non-toxic shot loads:

The use of shotshell loads containing soft steel shot (hardness not to exceed 90 DPH) in most shotguns will eventually result in barrel damage through expansion, or forcing out, of the choke. This damage usually takes the form of a ring on the outside of the barrel near the muzzle. Damage will vary from gun to gun, depending on the type of steel used in the barrels, the type of choke, and the number of steel shotshell loads fired. Such damage may or may not be visible to the naked eye, and has little effect on pattern performance or the useful life of modern, high-quality slide action and semi-automatic shotguns.

The currently produced Winchester models 1200 slide action and 1400 semi-automatic shotguns with and without the Winchester system of interchangeable choke tubes, and the Super-X Model

1 semi-automatic shotgun have been extensively tested. After 5,000 rounds of steel shot factory loads of known hardness (90 DPH) were fired through each of these guns, only minimal changes occurred. These Winchester shotguns are recommended for use with Winchester factory steel shotshell loads, and the models 1200 and 1400, with their replaceable Winchester tubes, are especially practical for use with steel shotshell loads.

WARNING: DO NOT USE STEEL SHOTSHELL RELOADS: SUITABLE COMPONENTS AND TESTED DATA ARE NOT YET AVAILABLE. We recommend that steel shotshell loads not be used in high-quality, expensive side-by-side or over-under double barreled shotguns, or in lightweight thin-walled doubles and tightly choked shotguns of foreign manufacture.

Kentucky is not one of the states designated as a steel shot zone for the 77-78 waterfowl season. However, Tennessee will fall under the new restrictions during the upcoming season. Those areas that will affect local waterfowlers include Camden and Big Sandy Wildlife Management Areas.

National Wild Turkey Federation Membership Reaches 25,000

EDGEFIELD, SC — National Wild Turkey Federation Executive Secretary Jerry Allen has announced that membership in the national, nonprofit conservation organization has reached an all-time high of 25,000, with 1,800 new applications per week flowing into National Headquarters as a result of a special introductory offer promotion recently sent out.

"Likewise, NWTF chapter development has again skyrocketed, with over 50 chapters having organized since August 1976. Another 20 are in the development stages," Allen reports.

State and local chapters in the 4-year-old Federation are now active in projects to aid the American wild turkey's survival from New Hampshire to California, and from Florida to Minnesota.

"Americans are becoming more and more aware of the plight of the wild turkey," says Allen, "and we intend to see that this valuable game bird is included in every wildlife management plan." For further information about chapter involvement or

Deer Hunters Need To Plan Ahead

By John Wilson

Kentucky's deer hunters need to plan ahead — especially those who like to hunt on one or more of the wildlife management areas or military posts which require advance reservations.

Four popular deer hunting areas, in addition to a new deer-area this year, require that hunters participate in drawings to determine who gets to hunt, or in some cases when. So if you want to hunt in one of these areas, circle the application dates on your calendar so you won't forget them.

But don't get too anxious either. Four of these areas won't accept applications before certain dates, so being early is just as bad as being late. To be considered, an application must be received within the specified time frame.

The Ballard County Wildlife Management Area, in far western Kentucky, will be opened to deer hunting for the first time in many years. This area has a good deer population — too good, in fact. Biologists want to reduce the deer herd size to lessen the chances of disease and overbrowsing, so six weekend hunts will be conducted there, three with firearms and three with bow and arrow.

The dates for the gun hunts are Oct. 21 and 22, Oct. 28 and 29 and Nov. 5 and 6. The archery hunts will be held Oct. 16 and 17, Oct. 23 and 24 and Oct. 30 and 31. Applications for the drawing to determine who will hunt (each two-day hunt is limited to 120 hunters) will be accepted by letter during the period between July 1 and July 14 only.

Mail the application (more than one from an individual will disqualify that applicant) to: Manager, Ballard County Wildlife Management Area, Rt. 1, LaCenter, Ky. 42056. Write "archery" or "gun" in the lower left corner of the envelope, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Letters must contain: the name of each applicant (limit 2), address, age, telephone number, hunting license number, method of hunting (gun or bow) and first, second and third choice of hunting dates. All persons submitting applications will be notified whether or not they were successful in the drawing. Those whose names were drawn will have 14 days to mail back the $10 fee.

At the Higginson-Henry Wildlife Management Area (Union County), the gun deer hunt will be held Nov. 15 and 16. Applications are required for gun hunting and requests will be accepted only between Aug. 13 and Noon Sept. 3. Requests received before or after these dates will be discarded. Mail requests for application to: Manager, Higginson-Henry Wildlife Management Area, Rt. 5, Morgantown, Ky. 42437. All requests for applications must be accompanied by a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

At Land Between the Lakes in Western Kentucky, applications for gun hunts (Nov. 7, 11, 16 and 19) and for the special youth hunt (Nov. 5) must be postmarked no later than midnight, Aug. 10. You can write for an application for the computerized drawing to: Kentucky Deer Hunt, Land Between the Lakes, Golden Pond, Ky. 42231. LBL will also send you a complete rundown of their hunting regulations, which often differ greatly than statewide rules.

Those wishing to hunt at Ft. Knox during the Dec. 3, 4, 10 and 11 gun season should mail their applications between Sept. 6 and Sept. 16. Bow hunting will be permitted from Oct. 1 through Oct. 31, and applications for archery permits must be received between Aug. 1 and Aug. 20. Separate applications are required for each hunt, and each application must be accompanied by a $10 certified check or money order payable to the Treasurer of the United States. Mail applications to: Ft. Knox Conservation and Beautification Committee, P. O. Box 1052, Ft. Knox, Ky. 40121.

The Bluegrass Army Depot, Madison County, will hold both gun hunts (Dec. 3, 4 and 17) and bow hunts (Oct. 15, 16, 29 and 30) this year. Applications must be postmarked no earlier than Aug. 15 and no later than Sept. 15. More than one application from an individual will disqualify that hunter. Applications must be mailed on a postcard and include name of hunter (one person only) address, age, telephone number and method of hunting (gun or archery). The depot charges a $10 fee, payable only after the hunter is notified of his selection and specific hunting date.

Ft. Campbell (Christian and Trigg Counties), generally does not announce specific details of its reservation procedure until sometime in September. Hunters wishing to visit this installation should write directly to: Hunting and Fishing Unit, Outdoor Recreation Branch, Ft. Campbell, Ky. 42223.

More than 100 boys and girls participated in the third annual Junior Fishing Rodeo held in Land Between the Lakes, TVA's public demonstration area in western Kentucky and Tennessee, May 14, 1977. Pictured (l. to r.) are the winners: Jennifer Walker, Paducah; Bobby Chestnut, Calvert City; J. L. Hendricks, Jr., Cadiz; Mike Bucy, Murray; Todd Wharton, Cadiz; Lori Oakley, Cadiz; Eddie Frazier, Kirksey; and Elizabeth Marquardt, Murray. Reckless Homicide Charges Filed In Boating Incident

CAIRO, Ill. (AP)—Charges of reckless homicide have been placed by Kentucky state officials against two Cairo men involved in the death a week ago of another man in a boating incident near here. Raymond Crump surrendered Friday on the charges at the Ballard County Courthouse in Wickliffe, across the Ohio River from Cairo. The other, Eddie Herndon, was picked up by police in Alexander County and refused to waive his rights to extradition, authorities said. The body of Ernest L. Jones, 25, was pulled from the Ohio River on the Illinois side the night of May 27 after a boating party with Crump, Herndon and another man, Dicky Bauer of Cairo, authorities said. Two witnesses at a coroner's inquest in Alexander County on Wednesday, Robert Johnson and Hubert Pirtle, testified that Jones appeared to have been thrown from the boat by Crump and Herndon, Coroner Thomas Bradshaw said. He said, however, that the witnesses said it was difficult to see the incident from their vantage on the Kentucky bank and they were unsure of exactly what happened. About 100 persons attended the inquest. Jones was black and the other three are white. Bradshaw said that Crump testified at the inquest that Herndon picked up Jones playfully as if he intended to throw him into the river and that Jones appeared to slip out of his arms into the water. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of death by shock at the hands of one or more persons in the boat, Bradshaw said. He said, though, that the jury was unable to determine if the death came by accident, homicide, suicide or natural causes. Officer Tom Throgmorton of the Kentucky Transportation Department said that the reckless homicide warrants were issued in Ballard County because the death evidently occurred in water that is legally part of the State of Kentucky. Throgmorton said that Crump is scheduled to appear in court for a preliminary hearing on July 11. He said that no court date will be set for Herndon until after action by a Ballard County grand jury.

Crump was the only participant in the boating excursion to testify at the coroner's inquest. He and Herndon are linemen with the Cairo Public Utilities Commission. Jones was a meter reader for the commission. Bradshaw said that when the occupants of boat were questioned on the night of the incident, they said that Herndon had been swimming in the river and that Jones leaned over to help him aboard and slipped overboard into the water. He said they changed their story after they were asked about discrepancies. Bradshaw said that Crump testified that the men had been drinking before the incident. He said that a pathologist's report showed that the level of alcohol in Jones' blood was measured at .24. The level at which an individual legally is regarded as drunk is .1, he said. The boating excursion was a birthday celebration for Jones, the men said.

Because the electric heat pump is both a heating and cooling system in one efficient unit. And pumping heat is the basis of both cycles. The electric heat pump is the most efficient home heating system on the market today. It can cut heat bills up to 50 percent, because it extracts heat from outside air and pumps it into your home. In warm weather the heat pump reverses its cycle and pumps heat out of your house, cooling it like central air conditioning. The electric heat pump. It provides year-round comfort for less energy and money. And that's something to think about.
