RUSSIAN

Troops Barely Escape Being Hobsonized by Togo's Fleet.

Four Vessels Laden With Stone Sunk In Entrance to Harbor.--Bears Escape.

ONE RUSSIAN TORPEDO BOAT SUNK

St. Petersburg, March 27.—It is stated that one Russian torpedo boat was sunk in the engagement at Port Arthur this morning, but it is thought the vessel can be refloated.

TO HOBSONIZE PORT ARTHUR.

Chefoo, March 27.—The Japanese have made another attempt to block the entrance to Port Arthur. At 3 o'clock this (Sunday) morning four stone-laden steamers escorted by eight torpedo boats approached the harbor. They were discovered by the Russians and as they drew nearer the Russian forts and the ships which were anchored in the roadstead opened fire on them and sunk them.

The Japanese fleet, which consisted of sixteen ships all told, remained off Port Arthur until daylight. At this hour the Russian vessels weighed anchor, whereupon the Japanese vessels disappeared.

The fate of the crews on the stone-laden steamers is not known.

Since the arrival at Port Arthur of Vice Admiral Makaroff the Russians fleet has been more active.

St. Petersburg, March 27.—It is stated, on apparently good authority, that Vice Admiral Makaroff's report of the reconnaissance of the Elliot Islands yesterday contained the startling statement that he captured a junk filled with Chinese regular troops which was being towed by a Japanese gunboat.

St. Petersburg, March 27.—A report from Vladivostok says a mine has been discovered under the fortress, with wires leading to a Chinese house in the town.

Reported Better.

Mr. J. J. Beadles, who fell from a tier in his barn Friday and was severely hurt, is reported better today. It was thought at first that he was fatally hurt.

A Correction.

In Friday's issue of the Daily Messenger under the head of "not indicted" was the following item:

"Francis Pittman, who killed

Nat Phillips at her house in southwest Mayfield some months ago was not indicted. A motion has been made to exonerate her bondsmen."

This item contains a mistake from the fact that Francis Pittman never killed Nat Phillips and never was accused of the killing. Francis Pittman awaited the action of the grand jury upon another charge and the grand jury failed to indict her so her bondsmen were exonerated. We are sorry that this mistake occurred and hasten to make the correction.

YET IN DOUBT.

Both Davis and Wood Claim to be Elected Governor but Returns are Slow.

NOBODY KNOWS WHO WINS.

Little Rock, Ark., March 26.—Returns are coming in slowly, and the result of the democratic primary election today for State officers and congressmen cannot be announced. At the headquarters of Governor Jeff Davis and Judge Carroll D. Wood, candidates for governor, confident claims were made by each at midnight.

Only two of the present congressmen have opposition. In the First district Bruce Macon, of Helena, is opposed for a second term by Eugene Parrish, of Jonesboro. In the Third district, J. C. Floyd, of Yellville, is again opposed by H. A. Dinsmore of Fayetteville.

In sixty counties the nominees for county officers will also be selected, the other fifteen having chosen their tickets already or deferred their primaries to a later date.

An egg hunt will be given the children at the Christian church next Monday, the day after Easter. Tickets of admission will be sold for which a nominal sum will be charged. Remember this kids and save up our pennies. You will sure want to go for it will be something great.

SHOOTING AFFRAY

PART OF THE SKULL GONE.

A shooting affray occurred in the bottom of East Meyfield this morning in which two negroes were severely wounded. Jack Kelley was the marksman and although he wounded two birds, that no more damage was done was on account of his bad marksmanship.

Herbert Rice and a man by the name of Biggers were the wounded ones and all are negroes.

Jack says he told Rice Sunday night to stay out of his yard and Rice left and said he would get him. Jack says Rice came back this morning and he warned him to stay out of the yard and Rice did not heed the admonition but kept coming and he shot him with a shot gun.

Rice says he was going down to Kelley's to buy some whiskey and did not know why Kelley shot him. He says that Kelley first shot him with a double barrel shot gun and the second barrel failed to go off and that Kelley shot at him with a pistol.

A part of Rice's skull was cut away. He was taken to Drs. Dismuke's office where the wound was dressed.

Biggers was cutting wood for Kelley in his yard and a stray bullet hit him in the side.

Colds Cause Pneumonia.

One of the most remarkable cases of a cold, deep-seated on the lungs, causing pneumonia, is that of Mrs. Gertrude E. Fenner, Marion, Ind., who was entirely cured by the use of One Minute Cough Cure. She says: "The coughing and straining so weakened me that I ran down in weight from 149 to 92 pounds. I tried a number of remedies to no avail until I used One Minute Cough Cure. Four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me entirely of the cough, strengthened my lungs and restored me to my normal weight, health and strength." Sold by Leon Evans.

CASH FOR MEAT.

The dear school of experience has taught us that we cannot succeed in the meat business and sell on a credit, and to avoid a long list of bad accounts and to give our customers the very best meat at very lowest cash prices, we have decided that on and after April 1, 1904, we will begin a cash and coupon system and for the information of our friends, will say that we have a lot of coupon books which we can furnish them.

Remember when you do business at a cash store, you do not help pay the debts of the other fellow. We expect to handle the best of meats and invite everybody to give us a trial. We are certain that our friends will be glad of this change in our business, because it will be better for all parties concerned. Yours for trade,

WRECKED BY OVERLOADING.

Many Vessels in Coastwise Traffic Lost Through Unwise Handling of Cargoes.

The congress of the United States has recently made a move in the direction of protecting life and property at sea. Several bills have been introduced in the house for the establishment of a load line similar to the Pilsoll mark of the British marine.

It does not appear that American coastwise traffic is suffering very heavily from improper loading. For obvious reasons an oil tank steamer, if suitably constructed and in good repair, is not troubled in this way, since its load can be so easily lessened in case of danger.

The principal cargoes of American seagoing sail vessels of over 100 tons burden are lumber carried past Cape Hatteras, which is a real danger point, to Philadelphia, New York and Boston, and coal between points north of Hatteras and the north Atlantic states.

In a review of this subject Eugene T. Chamberlain, the commissioner of navigation, says: "Of the 74 sail vessels and barges lost and hulls of 30 were over 26 years old, or beyond the age entitling them to remain a class in the record of American and foreign shipping and subjecting them to the examination of that society's officers."

"Of the 13 lumber-laden sail vessels missing or abandoned one was lost on the Pacific, 11 were lost in the north Atlantic or gulf between October 31 and April 16 and the remaining one on April 27. All lumber-laden vessels carried deck cargoes.

Curious Old Handkerchief. A very old handkerchief, of English design and manufacture, has been in the possession of the family of Mr. James C. Colman, of Newburyport, Mass., for nearly 70 years, and is evidently much older than that. It measures 19 by 24 inches, and is in excellent preservation.

Work for Wood Carvers. The work of the independent wood carver has greatly changed since the days when the wooden figurehead was a necessary part of every ship that sailed the seas, yet work for the wood carver has not decreased in quantity as much as might be imagined.

The Hoodoo of the Crossbar

By IZOLA L. FORRESTER

WHEN Don Travers brought a brand new wife home from Kansas City the second time he went down with 2,000 head of sound stock, there was a favorable ripple of public opinion from Sunrise to the Crossbar.

The Crossbar had been a white elephant on the hands of several until Travers took it in hand. He sold off the old herd at a sacrifice, and filled up the ranch with fine, new picked stock. His ideas of breeding and grazing were somewhat ahead of Sunrise, and its environs, but he persevered, and prospered in the face of the Crossbar hoodoo.

"You may come out fair and square the first year, sonny," old Hickson told him the first time he showed up in the social circle on the front stoop of the "Rough Diamond." "We'll get an easy winter anyhow, but wait till an eight-day blizzard strikes you in that shack, with hundreds of your finest dropping under the drifts, you'll wish the whole Crossbar in Tunket. There ain't a decent weather shed on the place, and the last two fellows there settled the hoodoo on it for sure. Rocky Davis and his brother Jim. We found Jim froze stiff with the cattle last March, and Rocky's going to the dogs. Better look out for Rocky. He isn't very sweet on the Crossbar."

Travers nodded with a grin of determination. He had bought up the ranch cheap from Rocky Davis, and believed modern methods would go far towards chasing the hoodoo. The pasturing was good. He made new fence divisions on his own judgment, against the advice of Rocky, and cut down the stock 500 head the first year, to run no risk of over crowding.

When he went to Kansas City the second year he took along the finest herd Sunrise section had ever seen, and it brought his own price. Rocky heard of the sale with sullen moroseness, but Hickson and the rest averred mildly that the youngster had mighty good stuff in him.

So when along with his business enterprise, Travers returned with a pretty wife, public opinion sided with Hickson, and admired the hustling qualities of Travers, without regard for Rocky or his failure.

As for Betty herself, she was more than pretty. There was a poise to her carriage, and a style to her dress that set the pace among the feminine element of Sunrise.

At first she was said to be "stuck up," Bunny Pierce said so when she suggested that he lift his hat when he said good-morning, but when she pitched in and made Minnie Hickson's wedding dress by the pattern of her own, and sent her off to Sioux Falls on her wedding trip with Bunny, looking like somebody, the verdict was reversed, and she was held to be worthy of Travers.

It was in February that the big blizzard came. After a week of clear skies, and wind-swept wastes, the clouds closed in, and by the first nightfall, old ranchers were driving in all they could of their herds.

HIS FATHER'S TIN LARK.

It Had a Cover and a Handle and His Father Got Beer in It.

One day Miss Bailey brought her Shelby down, relates a writer in McClure's, and read his "Ode to the Skylark." "Now, don't you think that's a pretty thing?" she asked. "Did you hear how the lark went singing, bright and clear, up and up into the blue sky?"

The children were carefully attentive, however, but not responsive. Morris Mogilevsky felt that he alone understood the nature of this story. It was meant to amuse; therefore it was polite that one should be amused. "Congestion of the teacher's brain," he chuckled. "Larks ain't singin' in skies."

"Go in, Tramp," said Betty. Tramp howled louder and longer, and turning from the door, pushed her out doors and plunged into the snow.

For an instant she hesitated, her heart beating fast with dread, then slipping on the high rubber boots which Travers had laughingly insisted belonged in the trousseau of a North Dakota bride, she followed the trail of Tramp.

The snow had stopped falling. It lay in huge drifts around the house like a frozen sea. The air was sharp and bitterly cold. It stung her face like the cut of a whip, and left a path behind. Now and then he stopped, lifted his head, and sent out the long howl that found echo in her own heart.

"Don't!" she cried. "Don, husband, answer me." "It was Travers. From head to foot he was bound with his own larriat, and in an instant the truth flashed on her. Rocky had lied about the herd, and had taken his revenge, leaving Travers helpless at the mercy of the blizzard, as his brother had met his death."

She knelt beside him, her head on his breast to catch the hutter of life. It beat faintly and irregularly, and when she pressed her lips to his with eager, tender pleading there was a drowsy lifting of his eyelashes.

The sharp crack of a pistol broke the stillness of the frozen prairie. As it came again Tramp set up an answering howl of alarm and there came a long-drawn shout.

"Heral!" called Betty. Through the drifts came two ponies, breasting their way sturdily, and the riders were Charlie Hickson and Bunny Pierce, standing in their stirrups, and letting out yells of joy when they saw the group in the snow.

"It was Rocky who did it, though he didn't just exactly do it with any good intentions," Bunny said later, when they had reached the ranch and the color was creeping back into Travers' face.

"Did he tell you what he had done?" demanded Betty, passionately. "What did you boys do to him? I think I could have shot him myself."

She bent over Travers with the fierce protective love of a panther mate, and Bunny looked at her approvingly.

"We didn't have to do nothing to him, ma'am," he said, regretfully. "He was all done for. He must have struck out for Sunrise with the two horses and lost his way, but the horses knew theirs, and they landed him safe at the north division bunkhouse."

New Excuses.
 In the Portland municipal court recently a woman got to the limit of excuses by saying that an apparent drunkenness was in reality only a desperate attempt on her part to break in a pair of new shoes and at the same time to walk on ice. Judge Hill smiled but gave her 30 days.—Bangor News.

A severe case of Ovarian Trouble and a terrible operation avoided. Mrs. Emmons tells how she was saved by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I am so pleased with the results obtained from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I feel it a duty and a privilege to write you about it. I suffered for more than five years with ovarian troubles, causing an unpleasant discharge, a great weakness, and at times a faintness would come over me which no amount of medicine, diet, or exercise seemed to correct. Your Vegetable Compound found the weak spot, however, within a few weeks—and saved me from an operation—all my troubles had disappeared, and I found myself once more healthy and well. Words fail to describe the real, true, grateful feeling that is in my heart, and I want to tell every sick and suffering sister. Don't dally with medicines you know nothing about, but take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and take my word for it, you will be a different woman in a short time."—Mrs. LAURA EMMONS, Walkerville, Ont.—45000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

A BICYCLE PROPOSAL

BY JOHN WICKLIFFE GRAY.

Until that summer I had never believed that I was a timid man. But the happenings of a few weeks led me to the conclusion that I had my share and more.

A girl with blue eyes did it. As in most cases where a man has found himself face to face with himself, it was a woman who held the mirror.

It was the old story of scouting at love until I met the one girl, and then I wanted to propose. But what with the doubts that assailed me as to the probable reception of a proposal, and my new-born timidity, I could never gather together sufficient courage at the proper time to give expression to the thoughts that kept me awake at night. I carefully formulated plan after plan to rid my mind of its burden, but one after another they came to naught through my disgusting shyness—cowardice, if you will. I am half inclined to believe that Beatrice knew my condition all the time. But she had a keen sense of humor, and I dreaded that sly laughter more than a whole regiment of regulars. She could grow serious in a moment, and it was this mood I liked best. But, until that sunny day, when my bicycle helped me through, I had always missed the point. It lacked but four days of my departure from the springs, and I knew to delay might mean to fall altogether.

Delay and defeat were the words that hummed through my brain like a sprocket wheel as we spun down the lane that morning. We were out after an early breakfast, and on that short journey a-wheel I had determined to throw all my chances in the balance and find their intrinsic worth. Just how I was going to begin I had not determined, and I thought that for once I would leave the matter open for the seizure of the first opportunity.

The morning air was crisp and cool. The roadside flowers seemed nodding us a cheery good morning in the light breeze. Now and then from the trees came the call of a bird, and making a shiny black streak in the air, a crow would bend his flight to a lonely tree in the fields, calling to his mate.

Bee and I had said little until we reached the broad pike.

"Want to race?" she called back to me from her point of vantage a few lengths ahead. Now I knew what that meant. Bee was the better rider, for instead of taking a course of indoor physical culture she had adopted golf, tennis and a bicycle as the most enjoyable method of obtaining exercise and health.

"Trying to tease," I said. "But go ahead. I'll do my best. Want to bet anything?"

"No, not when I am certain of the result," she laughed.

I grinned appreciation and asked: "How far?"

"The two mile post," she cried, and we were off.

Bee sprinted, and so did I. But the distance between us remained about the same, and precluded conversation, even had not the pace attained the same end.

Soon the sprockets were singing a steady song to pebbles that spun backward from the rubber tires. We were running at 20 miles an hour down the best piece of road in the section.

I settled to a steady speed, not quite my best, and Bee did the same, saving strength for the last half mile. The wind whistled a merry tune to the time we kept with our pedals. A covey of partridges fed with sharp chirps at our whirlwind advance. I felt and noticed little else beside the trim figure, with flying wisps of brown hair, just ahead of me.

Of a sudden Bee began to draw ahead of me.

"Put your heart into the game," she called back to me, with her head half turned as she spoke. She was laughing out of pure enjoyment of the exercise, and perhaps my probable discomfiture. My pride was nettled, and it must have increased my strength to a considerable degree. Soon I was close behind her, and with the wheels buzzing like mad things, I was even. One more spurt, and by a tremendous effort I was ahead!

"Get your hand in the game," I called back, paraphrasing her own slang. "My heart and your hand," I added by the force of an inspiration, "a match race!"

The second mile post was not more than a hundred yards ahead, and I was beginning to believe I should win. I had no time to look back, fearing a loss of my little gain.

But neither was to have the victory. Bee's front wheel advanced slowly, but surely, until it was even with my handle-bars, and as we arrived opposite the post, we were side by side.

It was a tie!

"You got your hand in," I laughed later under the trees where we were seated.

"Yes," she agreed.

"And my whole heart was in it," I added, cautiously.

The blue eyes looked into mine and seemed to read what was there. And then in the fear that my shyness would return, I said quickly, incoherently: "Your hand, my heart, a match, the tie—Bee"—and—

Well, our bicycle will accompany us on the honeymoon, even though it be as excess baggage.

PRIMITIVE FARMING

SPAIN WOEFULLY OUT OF DATE IN AGRICULTURAL METHODS.

Labor Is Far Too Cheap in That Country to Justify the Purchase of Labor-Saving Machinery.

Spain continues to disregard her natural advantages in agriculture as well as in other directions. Agriculture is too often left to the poor to eke out a precarious existence, unsupported by those who ought to be the first to devote their capital to the improvement of the soil. Irrigation, too, is neglected, and practically the only irrigation works are those constructed by the Moors during their occupation of the country, which have brought such prosperity to the districts of Valencia and Granada.

The cost of hand labor in all parts of Spain is very cheap and does not seem to justify the farmer owning very small farms using even the modern plow. However, on some of the larger farms agriculturists not only can but do use labor-saving machinery of the most recent types.

In the northeast portion of Spain, comprising a section where the farms are all small and labor extremely cheap, the sale of labor-saving agricultural machinery would be almost impossible. Labor is so cheap that there is not much inducement to lay out money on what is looked upon as costly machinery.

The daily wage of a laborer in the fields varies from 1.50 to 5 pesetas (22 to 70 cents), according to the locality and the season of the year. The landed proprietors also take little interest in their estates, which are parcelled out and sublet to small farmers in return for payment in kind. These farmers are, as a rule, entirely dependent on the result of the crops for their livelihood and have no capital to spend on improvements. The country, too, is mountainous, and there is no wide extent of arable land. In the province of Almeria the farms are small and the area suitable for cultivation is extremely limited. The single vega is small in acreage and can only be used for the production of garden truck. Again, a great deal of the available soil which might possibly be employed for the raising of wheat and barley is given over to grapes, and these form the great source of income to the farmers.

Most of the wheat and barely used in this province comes from the district of Granada and Jaen. Even with more attention paid to legitimate farming, modern implements would be of no use, owing to the mountainous conditions and the entire absence of any large farms. In the interior of the province the mountain sides are spotted here and there with small cultivated spots, usually barley or wheat, where it would seem as if man or beast had a hard time in working.

The land in Asturias is divided into small holdings and farmed by the owners and their families, outside help being very seldom required. In cases where help is needed laborers are hired at 2.50 to 4 pesetas (37.5 to 60 cents) per day. Modern agricultural implements are in this province coming into use, and the primitive methods which have prevailed are gradually giving way before the newer and better methods.

In 1868 a law was promulgated with a view to inducing capitalists to found agricultural colonies in different parts of the country for developing its natural resources. This law allows all implements used by these colonies in cultivating the soil, harvesting the crops, and preparing the fruit to be imported at the nominal duty of one peseta (19.3 cents) per 100 kilograms (220.4 pounds). In spite of the inducement thus offered, the scheme for establishing these farming colonies has not met with the response that was expected.

Until 1900 modern agricultural machinery was practically unknown in this country, and reports from all parts of the agricultural districts show the larger farmers and experimental farms are all commencing to use modern machinery.

REGINALD CLEAVER.

Ready for Her Second.
 Mrs. Caffrey—And how is that pretty young widow? Is she reconciled to her loss yet?
 Mrs. Malaprop—No, she ain't exactly reconciled yet, but they do say she's got the man picked out.—Tit-Bits.

Maw No Chicken.
 Mother (at a party)—Why did you allow young Sapphead to kiss you in the conservatory?
 Daughter—Why, maw!
 Mother—Oh, you needn't "why, maw," me. One side of his nose is powdered, and one side of yours isn't.—N. Y. Weekly.

What Wealth Would Do.
 Barney—What would you do, Pat, if you had a cool thousand?
 Patrick—A cool thousand, is it? Bedad, I guess it would burn a hole in me pocket.—Boston Transcript.

HOW TWO BEAUTIFUL WOMEN ESCAPED DREAD CATARRH BY USE OF PE-RU-NA.

Catarrh Robs Women of Health and Beauty. Pe-ru-na Makes Women Healthy and Beautiful.

Miss Amanda Johnson.

Miss Flora Hauser, 1033 S. New Jersey street, Indianapolis, Ind., writes:

"I think I must have been troubled with catarrh ever since I was very young, aggravated each time I caught a cold. This did not prove sufficiently serious to be obnoxious until last winter. Then my head and nose were so stopped up that I felt I must do something. Peruna was recommended to me by a friend. I used it for four weeks, and found to my relief that it cured me. I have not had a bit of trouble since. My head is clear, and I can safely affirm that Peruna cured me."—Miss Flora Hauser.

Miss Amanda Johnson, Fairchild, Wis., writes:

"I write to tell you how much Peruna benefited me. For a number of years I had pain in my head around my eyes, and I thought it was because my eyes needed treatment, so I went to an oculist and had glasses fitted to my eyes and wore them for some time, but felt no relief whatever. In fact, I felt worse than before, and came to the conclusion that the trouble was not with my eyes, but with my head and that it must be catarrh. As so many of my friends had used Peruna with benefit for this trouble, I thought I would try it. I was not sorry that I did so, for in a short time I began to improve, and in four weeks my eyes were in splendid condition, my general health was much improved and all the catarrh of the head was gone. I was glad to get rid of this trouble and am glad to endorse such a good medicine as Peruna."—Miss Amanda Johnson.

Miss Flora Hauser.

Hundreds of Women Cured by Pe-ru-na of Annoying Catarrh.

DR. HARTMAN has probably done more than any other physician toward popularizing a means of escape from the facial deformities, such as watery eyes, twisted nose, offensive breath, dry cracked lips, due to the ravaging effects of catarrh.

He has made chronic catarrh a life-long study. His remedy, popularly known as Peruna, is the most famous remedy for catarrh in existence.

Probably there is not a man or woman, boy or girl, within the bounds of the United States that has not heard of Peruna. By far the largest majority have used Peruna.

The multitude of people that have been cured of chronic catarrh by using Peruna can never be known.

No Woman Afflicted With Catarrh Can Be Either Beautiful or Attractive.

Do You Want Strength?

If you want to increase your strength you must add to and not take from the physical. In other words, the food that you eat must be digested, assimilated and appropriated by the nerves, blood and tissues before being expelled from the intestines. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure adds to the physical. It gives strength to and builds up strength in the human system. It is pleasant to the taste and palatable, and the only combination of digestants that will digest the food and enable the system to appropriate all of its health and strength-giving qualities. Sold by Leon Evans.
