California Blaze Guts 200 Houses

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — A brush fire fanned by gusty winds roared down from the Santa Ynez Mountains today, destroying expensive Spanishstyle homes and threatening businesses in this picturesque coastal city.

Hundreds were forced to flee, and as man and home acr introved. Officials said the fire was man-caused, but would not speculate whether it was

The blaze, which started shortly after 7 p.m. Tuesday night, raged out of control in the northeast section of the city, less than one mile from the city's courthouse area and about two miles from the Pacific Ocean.

Shortly before dawn, the winds which had been blowing from the mountains, behind the fire, shifted to a sea breeze, raising worries that the fire might burn back on itself and hit areas which escaped the first siege of flames. There were conflicting reports on how many homes burned. The U.S. Forest Service said at least 150 houses had been destroyed and the blaze had blackened 600 acres. But Ken R. Bishop, a city fire department spokesman, said the fire had burned "at least 200 homes," many costing at least $250,000 to replace. "We will be lucky if that's all we lost.'

There was only one reported injury, but numerous persons were unaccounted for.

"It happened so fast we don't know how many people may be missing," Bishop said. "We do know there are a couple of 8-or 9-year-old kids up there unaccounted for. But there are probably a hell of a lot more."

Anguished homeowners used garden hoses to wet down their wood shingle roofs as fierce winds blew a storm of sparks and ashes ahead of the advancing flames, which could be seen more than 20 miles away.

PROCLAMATION PRESENTATION — Kentucky author and poet Jesse Stuart (center) is presented a framed proclamation designating Aug. 8 as Jesse Stuart Day in Kentucky in honor of his 70th birthday. Making the presentation to Stuart and his wife Naomi on behalf of Gov. Julian M. Carroll is Terry McBrayer, commissioner of the Kentucky Department of Commerce. McBrayer and Stuart are both natives of Greenup County in Eastern Kentucky. The presentation was made at Murray State University, where Stuart is directing the Jesse Stuart Creative Writing Workshop for the seventh year.

August 8 Proclaimed Jesse Stuart Day By Gov. Carroll

Jesse Stuart Day in Kentucky has been proclaimed by Gov. Julian M. Carroll Aug. 8 in honor of the 70th birthday of the world famous writer and teacher from Greenup County.

A presentation of the framed proclamation was made Tuesday at Murray State University where Stuart is directing the seventh Jesse Stuart Creative Writing Workshop on the campus.

Stuart's short story class in the threeweek workshop was interrupted for the short ceremony. Making the presentation to Stuart on behalf of the governor was Terry McBrayer, commissioner of the Department of Commerce and, like Stuart, a native of Greenup County.

McBrayer, after noting that his mother was a high school student of Stuart's and that he grew up knowing Stuart was a "close friend and almost a member of my

The proclamation noted that Stuart's stories, novels, and poetry about Kentucky and her people have been translated into many foreign languages and described him as a truly loyal and enormously talented Kentuckian.

It concluded in proclaiming the day in honor of the lasting contributions Jesse Stuart has made, not only to his native state, but to the enlightenment and enjoyment of his readers throughout the world."

Stuart's class of about 50 students gave him a standing ovation and he, obviously moved, responded simply: "It's hard for me to believe this — but I thank you. And I thank all the teachers in my past and my parents."

Stuart, Kentucky's Co-Poet Laureate for several years, has won numerous awards and has been recognized by the prestigious American Academy of Poets.

MCBRAYER INSPECTS ROAD—Kentucky Commissioner of Commerce Terry McBrayer, observed road conditions on Ky. 94, Ky. 497 and the Cross Spann Road while in Calloway County Tuesday. McBrayer concurred with the Department of Transportation in proposing that the state and county share costs in upgrading the surface of these roads that carry traffic into the MSU Biological Station, a TVA recreational area, the Hutson Chemical Company barge terminal, residences and land development areas. Area officials have expressed the feeling that the road should be upgraded so that the weight load limit can be raised for the benefit of industry and residents of the area as well as the farmers who transport crops in the terminal in heavy vehicles during harvest season. Accompanying McBrayer (second from right) were County Judge Robert O. Miller, Z. Enix and Dan Hutson of Hutson Chemical.

How many times have you heard, "My, but it is hot." But with the temperature flirting with 103, it is the general topic of conversation.

There is little we can do about it, but I can tell you this: it isn't gardening weather. About all we can do is to set a sprinkler going on parts of the yard that are in the shade and then watch it from a window.

I hate to yield to the weather, but I have conceded defeat. I will just have to wait until the heat recedes somewhat, and then I will make raids on the weeds and grass that are somehow flourishing in spite of the temperature.

Some few plants are doing well and with some added moisture can hold their own. I have a big hydrangea that is thriving and even putting out new growth, but I have had to * keep it well watered. I have a bed of Carved Ivory Zinnias that have not had a drop of water put on them and they are beautiful with huge blooms, so frilly and pretty. Some plants simply don't need the same amount of moisture. So we will have to adapt ourselves to the weather, if the pattern has been set for the time being.

It is a good idea to check your plants and shrubs. If any of them look slightly wilted, start pouring the water to them. Then add more mulch to help keep the roots as cool as possible. We are fortunate in having a good supply of water. Let us hope that the blessed rainy season will come before we feel any shortage. The new catalogs are coming in with their usual luscious supply of Tulip, Daffodil and Lily bulbs. Some of the new hybrid Daffodils are simply amazing.

One nice thing about bulbs is that they are there to stay and take so little attention. About every five or six years they can be thinned out and they will grow in almost any sort of soil. If the ground is cultivated properly before bulbs are set out, they will give more reward than most any other

Try some of the big, flat Collar daffodils, or some of the smaller types. They are all beautiful and now come in a great variety of colors and shapes, so that it is hard to make a choice. Pick out a few of the new sorts and you will find that they will exceed your expectations. Stick a few in little pockets around the yard and reap a tremendous reward next spring.

SUMMERTIME AND FOOD SAFETY - Special care is needed for ham sandwiches, turkey and chicken salads. And deviled eggs: But you could prepare the sandwiches - freeze - then thaw as needed. If you're planning to serve chicken salad, why not freeze the cubes of chicken and use them in preparing the salad? They will thaw as the salad stands, keeping it as cold as possible. All salads should be prepared carefully under sanitary conditions. Mixtures of foods that require several steps and handling such as meats, fish and salads are most likely to be contaminated. Food poisoning does not necessarily have a bad smell or taste. Just because the food doesn't seem spoiled doesn't mean it is all right to eat.—Maxine Griffin, Clinton, Ky. 42031.

With a little effort now you can create your own dried floral arrangements later in the fall. The simplest method of drying flowers is hanging. Tie flowers in loose bunches and hang head down, until they dry. Use a rubber band for tying bunches for best results. As the stems dry and shrink, the rubber band will contract and continue to hold them firm. Plants that can be preserved by hanging include baby's breath, bells of Ireland, blue sage, chinese lantern, chrysanthemums coxcomb, dock, goldenrod, hydrangea, milkweed, money plant, poopies, pussy willow, straw flowers, yarrow, bittersweet berries and nandina berries. Try placing fox glove or johnson grass upright in a pop bottle to dry. This can be effective in dried arrangements. - Mildred get labor unions to go along.

Labor leaders, for their part, oppose any such proposal on grounds that it puts the burden of solving the nation's economic problems squarely on the shoulders of workers, letting government and business off the hook.

Proposals such as Wallich's often go under the label of a social contract. Great Britain had a social contract under which labor unions agreed to annual wage increases of a fixed percentage, but the compact collapsed earlier this month.

The consensus in Britain seemed to be that the contract did work in helping reduce inflation while it lasted. Consumer prices increased 17 per cent in Britain during the 12 months ended in May, but that was an improvement over the 20 per cent-plus rates of previous months.

Wallich believes, as do most other economists, Democrat as well as Republican, that rising wages are the chief cause of higher prices, since wages account for the bulk of the costs of production.

Wage increases averaged 8 per cent in 1976 and may be about the same this year, while the nation's underlying inflation rate is about 6 per cent.

As long as wages keep rising at a rate of about 8 per cent, there is little hope of ever reducing inflation below six per cent, Wallich argues. A two per cent increase has long been considered about right because that has been the average increase in worker productivity in recent decades.

Wallich, who was appointed to the Federal Reserve Board by former President Richard M. Nixon in 1974, said if workers would agree to, say, a two per cent to three per cent annual increase in wages, or even no increase at all, the inflation rate should be reduced to near zero, and everybody would gain in the long run.

He acknowledged there would be a temporary loss in buying power for workers as the adjustment process took place, but he said this happens anyway, because inflation erodes wage increases as fast as workers get them.

Should the reduced wages not restrain price increases, with the result that business profits would increase, Wallich said the government could tax away corporate profits above a certain

Wallich's idea is unlikely to be put into effect, if for no other reason than labor unions wouldn't trust the government to tax away higher

Have you ever had a legal problem and needed to talk to an attorney but did not know who to contact, or if you could afford the service? The Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's Office receives many calls a day from consumers with legal problems requesting personal legal assistance.

However, the Kentucky Attorney General's office has no authority to act as a private attorney for individuals with personal legal problems. But there are two organizations in Kentucky that you can turn to for assistance.

Bait And Switch Still Happening

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)- -Bait and switch—a selling practice as old as business itself-is still going on in Kentucky.

Just this month the attorney general's Consumer Protection Division obtained a permanent injunction prohibiting a Henderson meat market from engaging in the practice of bait and switch.

Sellers who engage in the practice are subject to a fine of $2,000 per violation of state law if convicted and $25,000 per violation afer an injunction has been issued.

How do you know if a salesman is pulling the gimmick on you?

Robert Bullock, head of the Consumer Protection Division, said some salesmen are so expert at bait and switch they may be able to con a customer without the customer realizing what's going on.

Bullock characterizes bait and switch as an "attractive but insincere" offer to sell merchandise at a good price.

The low price is used as a lead to get people into the store, where they are persuaded to buy more expensive merchandise. The key tactic in the bait and switch game is that, once you're inside the store, the seller knocks the product, saying it isn't any good-although the advertising made you believe it would be a great bargain.

But the salesman disparages the vertised item and tells you you'd be better off with a higher priced product. There's a fine line between bait and switch-which is prohibited by state law-and a practice known as "move up," which is legal. In the latter case, the salesman legitimately points out your needs for a better or more expensive product than the one advertised.

For example, you go in to buy a toaster that's been advertised, but the salesman tells you he thinks you'd be better off with a larger model that holds more slices of toast because of your large family. That's legitimate, because the salesman didn't fault the toaster that the store advertised.

Most of the bait and switch cases

Division under the state law have involved meat sales, Bullock said, although there's a case pending involving sale of carpeting. One of the cases successfully prosecuted by the Consumer Protection Division involved a Louisville company known as Consumer Beef Outlet.

Bullock said people came into the store believing from advertisements that they could buy a side of beef for 49 cents a pound. What they saw hanging behind the counter was a piece of meat with big globules of fat hanging off it, a slice cut out showing darkened red and blackish meat, with gray mold growing on it, Bullock said. In that ease, the meat seller didn't need to orally disparage the item advertised for sale-it was enough just to display it.

However, Bullock said one witness reported having an exchange with the outlet owner in which he said he was going to buy the advertised beef.

The salesman asked him what he was going to do with it, and when he said he would feed it to his dog if he had to, the salesman told him he might as well dig a hole because the dog wouldn't survive afer eating the meat.

That's a classic case of bait and switch. Not all are so obvious.

Consumers should keep their eyes open and ask themselves if something is a come-on, or isn't it, Bullock said..

If a consumer has any doubts he can call the Consumer Protection division in Frankfort to find out.

The state law also requires stores advertising sale items to have a reasonable quantity on hand, or to note in the ad that quantities are limited. Bullock said cases have been successfully prosecuted on the basis of the evidence of minimal sales: the store would spend a lot of money advertising one item, but would sell many more of a higher priced item and few of the lowercost sale item — an indication of bait and switch tactics. - Many stores now offer rainchecks to customers if they run out of a product, to protect themselves from charges of bait and switch selling. The law does prosecuted by the Consumer Protection not require them to issue rainchecks.

an attorney to handle your particular problem. This is not free legal aid. The service is for persons who are capable of paying a reasonable fee for a lawyer, but do not know who to contact in their town. The request for an attorney's name from the service is at no cost to the client. The initial one-half hour appointment with the attorney whose name was given to you by the service is $10. This appointment will enable the attorney to tell you if you have legal grounds for your problem.

The Kentucky Referral Service has a toll free number - 1-800-372-2999, which will be answered by the Frankfort office staff from 8 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., Monday through Friday. Any Kentucky resident can call this number and receive the name of a local attorney that will handle his-her particular legal Another legal assistance organization is Kentucky Legal Services. These organizations are private, non-profit corporations established to "provide equal access to the system of justice" for poor people that otherwise would not be able to afford an attorney. Five of these organizations are currently in operation in Central, Northern and Eastern Kentucky.

The Legal Service Corporation provides free legal counsel in civil cases to eligible Kentuckians that meet specific guidelines based on income, family size, and locality. The maximum income allowed for these free services varies according to each person's circumstances. To find out if your area is covered by one of these programs, or if you are eligible for legal assistance, contact the Office of Kentucky Legal Services, 800 Lexington Building, 201 West Short Street, Lexington, Kentucky, 1-606-233-

If you need legal services, and don't know which attorney to turn to, contact the Lawyer Referral Service on their toll free number, or the Kentucky Legal Services office in your area.

For further information on legal services in Kentucky, or if you have a consumer complaint, write: Office of the Attorney General, Consumer Protection Division, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. The office has found that it can most effectively deal with written complaints and encourages you to write if you have a consumer complaint. ANSWER: Most hearing aids carry a guarantee for repair within the first year of purchase, although they usually last for several years. They are usually replaced when the cost of repair becomes excessive, when the user's hearing changes or when the manufacturer brings out an instrument with improvements that appeal to the Many factors might influence your choice of hearing aids. Cosmetic factors may be a reason for deciding to wear one aid rather than an improved aid. The elimination of receiver cords may be another factor.

Audiologists endeavor to persuade the hearing aid user to purchase instruments most suitable for overcoming his or her problem. In some instances, a compromise has to be made between what is found to be the most efficient aid and what may be the most effective aid in terms of the person who seeks the advice.

The private purchaser can pick and choose as he or she desires while a person receiving governmental financial assistance is subject to the rules and regulations of the assisting agency. Fortunately, a wide range of models is available under these

In reality, it is not so much which aid can be purchased as whether the person needing help will actually use the aid. In order for good results, you must put a lot of faith and trust in your audiologist. You should base your confidence in him on the following

1. Do I trust the person I've questioned? Is he experienced in hearing aid evaluations? Has he kept up with past and recent developments in amplifying devices?

2. Is the hearing aid used satisfactorily by others who have my type of hearing problem?

3. Is the hearing aid manufactured by a company that has been in business for some time and is known to spend considerable time and effort in improving its products?

4. Is the hearing aid sold by commercial people who will give me the right to a trial period if I am uncertain about its benefits?

5. Although the hearing aid sounds good to me now, will it break down frequently?

HEARTLINE: I have worked in the railroad industry all my life and have heard about the 'two-tier" system for railroad retirement. Can you explain what this means? C.T.

ANSWER: A person's railroad annuity consists of two components. The first is a tier of annuity that is calculated roughly the same way as Social Security benefits are determined and is based on the employe's work both inside and outside the railroad industry.

The second tier is a staff-type benefit based solely upon the employe's work in the railroad industry.

HEARTLINE: A 68-year-old man I know recently told me he had not received anything from Social Security because his earnings had been quite high since he applied at age 65. Why did he even bother to apply? T.J.

ANSWER: He was wise to do so for several reasons. First, he was eligible for Medicare coverage at age 65, regardless of his work and second, if he would have had to have stopped work unexpectedly he could have notified the Social Security office and his benefits would start at once. Also, even though he had already filed a claim, Social Security checks his earnings record each year to see if his income is such that his benefits, when payable, could

Business Group Offers Social Security Plan

The National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB), the largest small business organization in the country, has proposed an alternative to the Carter Administration's plan for bailing out the nation's troubled Social Security

William J. Dennis, Jr., NFIB Research Director, outlined the NFIB proposal in recent testimony before the Committee's Senate Finance Subcommittee on Social Security.

The NFIB proposal would divide the current Old Age and Survivors Insurance (OASI) program into two parts, Dennis said. Part A would resemble the existing insurance program, but with some conceptual changes. Under Part A, each individual would receive as a benefit his or her accumulated employee-employer contribution, plus interest.

Since the Part A benefit may not be enough for some individuals or families to exist at reasonable standards, Dennis said, there is also a need for Part B, patterned after the existing Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program. Part B beneficiaries would receive two checks - their Part A entitlement based on employment contributions and their Part B benefit based on family need. Since Part B benefits would be social subsidies and not earned entitlements, they would be financed from the general revenues, subject to annual appropriation.

Dennis said NFIB's proposal "places rationality and equity into the benefit structure from the beneficiaries' perspective. That is not now true. Persons who contribute don't necessarily receive benefits; persons who don't contribute may receive benefits. Some are 'docked' for working after retirement, while others having a greater income receive the full benefit. It simply doesn't make sense."

One obvious inequity which the plan would solve, Dennis pointed out, involves working wives. Under present law, a wife who never works outside the home is entitled to a Social Security benefit equaling half of her husband's benefit when he reaches retirement. Thus, in order to get any Social Security benefits resulting from employment outside the home, a working wife must have earned a Social Security entitlement equaling more than half that of her husband's. Under the NFIB plan, Dennis explained, both husband and wife would be entitled to the full amount which they and their employers had paid into the system. NFIB's proposal also forces persons not contributing to Social Security to pay part of the subsidy given low income retirees, Dennis said. "Since Part B benefits will be financed from general revenues, no person can escape paying his fair share. The largest group affected will be the approximately two million civilian Federal government businesswoman across the country.

employees and the approximately three million state and local government employees who now contribute virtually nothing to the maintenance of the low-income elderly."

Dennis noted that a phase-in period would be needed to insure adequate benefits to current retirees. "It is important to recognize that we are not advocating the reduction of benefits to any current retiree or those planning to retire," he said. "Our plan is tailored to meet the future needs of the system.'

The Carter Administration's plan includes several proposals which would directly affect small businesses. One proposal calls for a phased-in elimination of the wage ceiling established for Social Security taxes. Currently, an employer must pay Social Security taxes only on the first $16,500 of an employee's wages, with this "wage base" increasing automatically as average wage rates rise. The Administration's proposal would require employers to pay tax on the full amount of their employees' wages by 1981. The Administration also proposes increasing the payroll tax rate levied on self-employed persons from 7 to 7.5 per cent, and moving up by several years the scheduled date for imposing an additional one per cent increase in the payroll tax rate for employers and employees.

Wilson S. Johnson, NFIB president, said 15 to 20 per cent of small businesses would be affected by the wage ceiling proposal, but the typical small firm would feel the greatest impact from the proposed tax rate increases.

"While the dollar increase per se may seem relatively small for the individual firm," Johnson said, "it must be viewed in historical perspective and in light of other government-mandated fixed cost increases." Johnson said a $100 or even a $1,000 fixed cost increase "probably will not in and of itself kill any small firm or forbid entry of new firms. But it is this $100 or $1,000 increase repeated ad infinitum that is driving small business to the wall.

"This trend simply cannot be sustained, but here we see the President's Social Security proposals doing precisely that." Johnson said NFIB does not wish to criticize the Carter Administration's plan too severely since "Social Security problems are not of its making and it : was forced by circumstances into immediate action. "Our complaint lies with an unimaginative response and a failure to utilize this enormous opportunity to review the entire Social Security program."

NFIB is a nonprofit, nonpartisan organization representing more than 515,000 small businessmen and

GENERAL

LOUISVILLE, Ky. William M. McCandless, wanted in connection with the run a 1:50.8 for the 880-yard theft of a broodmare in foal to Triple Crown winner Secretariat, has surrendered, the FBI announced.

Benjamin Cooke, special FBI agent in charge of Kentucky, said the 30-year-old McCandless arranged to give himself up in Lexington.

Cooke said the 10-year-old broodmare, Fanfreluche, valued at $500,000, still was missing. The horse was taken June 25 from Claiborne Farm

Sly, who will be coming to Murray this fall from a university in England, is from Hounslow, Middlesex. Cornell had tried to recruit him a year ago but he turned the offer down. But after hearing of the success of Dave Warren at Murray, Sly decided to transfer. At the time of the agreement to come to Murray, Sly had dash and a 4:06 for the mile. But this past weekend, Sly recorded a 3:41-plus in the 1500 meters and that is equal to a sub-four minute mile.

Hernandez Gets First Inside-Park-Homerun

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Keith Hernandez was all set to apply the brakes at third base when his coach's signal caught his Waved on by Jack Krol, the St. Louis Cardinals infielder churned on rubbery legs to his first inside-the-park home run Tuesday night — just barely.

"It was a long 90 feet," said Hernandez while relaxing in a uniform coated with dirt following a 4-2 Cards victory over the Atlanta Braves.

"I just ran out of gas," he explained of an inartistic belly slide needed to reach home plate. "I'd never hit an inside-thepark home run in my life. I figured the outfielders had muffed it up or else the ball bounced back toward the infield."

Hernandez' homer, his ninth, highlighted a three-run St. Louis uprising in the opening inning at the expense of Braves right-hander Dick Ruthven, 3-7.

Lou Brock opened with a single and stole second base, the 883rd of his major league career, later scoring on Ted Simmons' two-out single.

Hernandez then worked the count to 1-1 and walloped a Ruthven change-up over the head of Rowland Office in center

The drive caromed off the base of the wall, skipping away from Office's grasp. Leftfielder Gary Matthews finally retrieved the ball but was too late to nail the Cards' runner. Hernandez' aggressive running and similar daring by Hector Cruz while scoring in the fourth from first baseman Mike

Phillips' double were lauded by Cards Manager Vern Rapp. "It reminded me of one of those airplanes that used to come in with their fuselages on the ground and their noses up," said Rapp of Hernandez' slide.

"I want to congratulate Jack Krol for his third base coaching," added Rapp. "They (Hernandez and Cruz) were two big runs. I think it showed that both baserunners weren't just satisfied to stop at third."

After Cruz boosted St. Louis' lead to 4-0, reliever Clay Carroll was hammered for Atlanta infielder Willie Montanez' 14th home run of the year, a mammoth solo shot in the sixth Junior Moore doubled and Darrel Chaney and pinch-hitter Brian Asselstine both singled off Carroll to produce another Braves run in the seventh, but Buddy Schultz came on to check the rally with the aid of a double play.

Cards starter Bob Forsch, 13-4, departed with a recurrence of strained lower back muscles after pitching a two-hitter through five scoreless innings.

"I'm sure it won't hinder his ability to make any other start unless something happens that's unforeseen," said Rapp. "He's had this condition on and off all the time."

Martin was asked whether Tuesday night's 5-4, 10-inning victory over Baltimore had solidified his position at the helm of the Yankees.

He repeated the question rhetorically, then answered: "That's the understatement of the year."

"But I don't want to talk about that situation any more," he added after the Yankees moved to within two games of the American League East Division - leading Orioles. "I just want to concentrate in winning the pennant."

Ironically, it was Reggie Jackson, the team member with whom Martin has most openly feuded, and pinchhitter Cliff Johnson who won the game for the defending AL champion Yankees.

Jackson, after singling home a run in the fourth, led off the bottom of the 10th with

Trade Deficit Doubles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The hation's trade deficit more than doubled in June to a record $2.8 billion, the 13th deficit in a row, the government reported today.

The United States sold $10.1 billion in goods abroad, a decrease of about 3 per cent, while buying $12.9 billion in products from other countries, an increase of 11 per cent, the government said.

That put the trade deficit for the month at $2.8 billion, a sharp rise from May's $1.2 billion deficit, which was the smallest of the year.

Recipe For Losing Weight: Diet And Exercise

By ANN UDDBERG

Carolyn Adams has been participating in the Weight Watchers program since January and has lost 45 pounds. This summer she has relaxed a bit, but plans to return to the program in the fall. Her husband E. Ken Adams will go on the diet part of the program with her.

The program emphasizes fish and chicken, allowing a bit of beef and no pork. This has changed Carolyn's eating habits. In addition to the diet she works out daily for 45 minutes to an hour at a local figure salon. This regular exercise in addition to her housework and gardening has helped her feel better, firmed up her body and given her more energy.

program is the only one that Carolyn has consistently lost weight under and been able to adhere to for long periods of time. Partly because the program stresses a variety of foods, Carolyn doesn't get tired of it.

She uses home canned tomato juice and a bowl of raw vegetables in the refrigerator for part of the diet and for snacking. Also, the recipes are so good that the family eats the same meal, with a few additions, that Carolyn eats and doesn't feel deprived because Mother is dieting.

Mrs. Perry Harrison, Carolyn's mother and neighbor, felt that every one should learn to cook and sew. Carolyn started cooking as soon as she was tall enough to reach the stove. Her very first effort

Carolyn likes to try new recipes frequently. Most of the time she favors French and American cuisine. She is enjoying the challenge of converting her favorite recipes to Weight Watcher approved ones. Her main trouble she feels is in notcooking too much both in quantity and number of dishes. Part of this probably comes from raising a family of five children, four of whom are boys, all now living away from home.

Mac, manager of a telephone company in Ooltewah, Tenn., still likes his mother to make her chocolate cake when he comes home. Duane, with Crown Oil in Houston, Texas, feels that no one can make barbecue like his mother, especially when she has coconut pie for dessert.

Alan, who has accepted a preaching position at a school in Pensacola, Florida, likes anything and everything, but most often requests chili. Donna, the only daughter, is a good cook who's main interest at the moment is raising show horses. She lives "down the road" from her parents out R. R. 2 Murray.

Ken, who is with the West Kentucky Rural Telephone Co-Op, enjoys and recommends highly his wife's chocolate pie. He is also the guiding force behind the garden. He selects, plants, and cares for the garden. It is up to Carolyn to take care of the bounty.

Over the past few years the garden has been reduced from 1/2-acre to enough space for corn, squash, tomatoes, cucumbers, beans, and green peppers.

Both Carolyn and Ken enjoy finding and restoring antiques. If they are family pieces rescued from corn cribs or the like so much the better. Carolyn also is an owl collector, sews, and does crewel work. One of her favorite possessions, however, is neither antique nor an owl. It is a wooden-decoupaged recipe box filled with all the favorite family recipes beautifully written out on. matching cards. It was done by a daughter-in-law and is treasured for itself and the many happy occasions the recipes represent.

Today Carolyn shares some of her favorite Weight Watcher approved recipes and one "all caution to the wind" dessert. We know you will enjoy trying them all.

Doesn't Need More Problems

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who calls me every evening and tells me her troubles. One hour is a short conversation with her. Only it's no conversation because she does all the talking.

I have plenty of troubles of my own. My husband spends the whole weekend in front of the TV drinking beer and smoking one cigarette after another.

We have three teenage boys. They're all on drugs and can't get along with each other or their father. Our daughter is 22, out of work, divorced, and she has three kids which I take care of while she runs wild.

I am ready to put my head in a gas oven but I never tell mỹ troubles to anyone.

This friend with all the problems says she is seeing a psychologist and he tells her it's good for her to talk about her problems. Well, it may be good for HER, but it's bad for ME. What should I do?

PROBLEMS OF MY OWN

DEAR PROBLEMS: Tell her that you wrote to Dear Abby, and SHE said it's bad for YOU to listen to somebody's problems every evening for an hour. And if that doesn't help, cut her short in self-defense.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a college-educated couple who, instead of hiring a sitter for their 3-year-old son, take him wherever they are invited? I don't mean on casual bridge evenings, but to a late dinner party to which six other couples had been invited. We don't have extra bedrooms as yet, and Mr. and Mrs. S. show up at the door with little Johnny all ready for bed. (Our bed!) They didn't ask us if we minded, nor did they make any excuses for

Naturally, the child fusses a little, being in a strange bed and all, and his parents take turns running in and humoring him, which disrupts the entire party. These people can afford a sitter just like the rest of us, but they have taken the child with them ever since he was a month old. Any comments?

PARTY SPOILED

DEAR SPOILED: If this couple spoiled ONE of your parties, shame on them. If they spoiled TWO, shame on

Your complaints are valid, but if you want action, I suggest you address your complaints to the offending

DEAR ABBY: There's nothing wrong with keeping your Christmas tree up all year. It's a good conversation piece, and it helps to keep the dog in the house.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope please.

Eligibility For Lump Sum Benefit Is Variable

A lump sum death payment of $255.00 may be payable upon the death of a worker and sufficient earnings covered by the Social Security program. The question then arises as to who can receive the lump sum benefit. A certain priority exists as to who is eligible to receive the payment. Assuming that the deceased had sufficient work covered by Social Security, the lump sum death benefit will be paid to the surviving spouse without regard to payment of the funeral expenses; however, the couple must have been living in the same household at the time of the death. An application must be filed no later than the second anniversary of the worker's death. In certain cases, payment is automatic to the surviving spouse.

If there is no living spouse, the lump sum may be paid to the person or persons who paid the funeral expenses. The benefit may be paid to the funeral home to the extent of the unpaid burial expenses. An application is necessary from the person assuming responsiblity for payment of all or part of expenses incurred. When the funeral expenses have been paid, the lump sum may be payable to the person equitably entitled to the extent he or they paid on the burial. An equitably entitled person, for example, includes relatives, friends or the estate of the deceased that paid on the funeral expenses. If, after 90 days, no one assumes responsibility for payment of the burial expenses, the funeral home may apply for burial expenses incurred.

Diet And Large Bowel Cancer

By F.J.L. Blasingame, M.D.

Q: Mr. D.C. writes to ask whether a diet, principally of vegetables, can prevent cancer of the lower bowel. A: While the cause of cancer is unknown, circumstantial evidence indicates that diet can lessen the incidence of cancer of the lower bowel (colon and rectum), the most common type of internal malignancy. However, diet cannot prevent such cancers from occurring. When world-wide studies of diseases are made, their occurrence varies in certain areas. Cancer of the large bowel is less common in Africa and Asia where the diets are more primitive and contain more fiber or bulk. This form of malignancy is most common in the more modernized. industrial nations, such as Great Britain and the United States. In addition, in nations which have taken on more recently the Western life-style, as Japan and Italy, deaths have increased from cancer of the colon and rectum.

The bulk in intestinal content encourages the retention of more moisture in the stool and increases its volume and softness. Such composition makes the stool less irritating and encourages one or several bowel movements a day. Any chemicals which may have a tendency to produce cancer (carcinogens) are less concentrated and moved along more rapidly through the bowel, reducing the exposure of the bowel lining to any irritants that may contribute to cancerous changes.

Fats have been implicated as contributing to the increase in large bowel malignancy and can be reduced by a low fat diet. While beef and pork are highest in fat, fish is lowest, and poulty is in between. When any of these are eaten as a part of a balanced diet, their residue may be less concentrated and moved through the intestinal tract more promptly when combined with leafy vegetables, fruit, and wheat bran.

In spite of any benefits from diet, cancer of the bowel may occur, and requires periodic checkups, especially in persons over 40 years of age - particularly in those in whose family there is a history of cancer of the large bowl. Changes in bowel habits recurrent diarrhea or constipation, especially with passage of mucus or blood - require prompt diagnosis and appropriate treatment. If found early, the rate of cure of colon or rectal cancer is high with less likelihood of disability.
