Success Of Library Tax Proposal Bright Spot In Dark Post-Election Day Gloom

"Every cloud has a silver lining."
Never has the old saying been as true as it was on Wednesday morning.

Having fought hard and lost two political battles for Vice-President Hubert Humphrey and Katherine Peden, the disappointment was softened more than a little bit by the success of the library tax proposal.

Somehow the victory in the hazardous fight to keep our libraries in Fulton and Hickman is blatantly enigmatic. While the City of Fulton was voting heavily for George Wallace, an opponent of high taxes, government spending, unnecessary luxuries like the Supreme Court, the Department of Defense, etc., the very same people were voting for a small tax to maintain some cherished community assets.

Beats us!

But thank heavens that's the way the cookie crumbled in Tuesday's election. Our very sincere appreciation goes out to Joe Sanders, chairman of the library campaign, to members of the library board who fought what often looked like a losing battle to hold on to our fine libraries and to all the folks in Fulton County who opened up their hearts and the dark clouds of confusion to bring us a ray of sunshine to brighten our post-election day gloom.

Disgraceful Heckling Of Vice-President During Campaign Depressing Spectacle

One of the most depressing things about the presidential election campaign was the subjecting of Vice President Humphrey to systematic heckling as he moved about the country. This is a conclusion that surely must be shared by all, regardless of partisan loyalties, who cherish America's honored tradition of open political debate.

Those who attempted to disrupt the vice president's appearances, seeking to shout him down and distract his audiences, spit on that tradition. Though some of them acted out of what they regarded as high and idealistic motives, this did not excuse their behavior. They were bent on denying another the right of free speech, and that is not defensible no matter what their motives may have been.

This destructively negative approach to the political dialogue has been manifested before. Secretary of State Rusk, former Secretary of Defense McNamara, Draft Director Hershey and other prominent government figures have from time to time been heckled and interfered with. Ostensibly this has been done as a form of protest against administration policies with regard to Vietnam and the military draft.

Protest against the administration and against Humphrey as its apologist also seemed to underlie much of the heckling and interference to which he has been subjected. This form of protest was deplorable enough when directed against men in high office addressing public groups in the course of their duties. It is intolerable in a presidential campaign, when the electorate has a solemn obligation to listen to the candidates and make judgments on the basis of what they say. If a candidate is constantly interrupted, the democratic process is frustrated.

Those thus engaged may smugly feel that they have accomplished their purpose — the purpose of publicizing dissent against administration policies and the man who had, in large measure, defended the administration record. Were they more intelligent, and more perceptive about the role of free discussion in this country's development, they would not have felt triumphant but thoroughly ashamed of themselves.

If Smoking Is Hazardous To Health, Auto Advertisements Are Invitation To Suicide

ANYONE WHO has been buffeted by this year's round of automobile advertising must have noticed Detroit's new concern for safety has worn paper thin.

Power and speed are back as Detroit's golden idols and Madison Avenue is bowing low before them.

American Motors is promoting the capability of its AMX to do 125 miles per hour. Ford touts its Cobra's ability to peel rubber "right out to the horizon." General Motors calls its Chevelle "the class bully." Chrysler's Charger is described as "the Wailer ... no kiddy car."

"If you want to sell cars today, you have to show the younger generation something that impresses them," says E. M. Estes, of G. M.'s Chevrolet Division.

Others in the industry are a little more anxious about their role in selling speed to the young. "When I see an 18-year-old with a car that will go from a standstill to 100 miles an hour in 14 seconds," one executive told a reporter for The Wall Street Journal, "and he's trying to do just that on the street, I feel pangs of guilt for making him want to."

Apparently the pangs aren't as powerful as the profit motive, however, and the same man added cheerfully, that "I'm realistic enough to know that if I don't give him this car, someone else will."

A staff member of the Federal Trade Commission says that the new ads "aren't going unnoticed." If this means that the commission is preparing to do something about them, we must hope that its action will have a little more impact than its pious complaints of the past. The net result of these has been today's crop of incitements to suicide, and there is no evidence to indicate that a voice of conscience is going to be heard even at a whisper within the industry itself. If the Trade Commission can't call a halt to the trend, there is no reason to suppose that the complaints of such industry gadflies as Ralph Nader, let alone those of ordinary citizens, can accomplish much.

FULTON'S

Library Corner

By Brenda Rowlett

The flow of new books coming to Fulton County is constant and continually bringing new faces to the shelves of the Fulton County Libraries.

Let's look at a few of the juvenile fiction books that were received here last week.

RAMONA THE PEST by Beverly Cleary. At last Beverly Cleary has given Ramona Quimby a book of her own. No longer is she the nemesis of Henry Huggins or the exasperating responsibility of Beezue. Instead she is a five-year-old with spirit—and a rare opportunity to explain her side of things. The story deals with Ramona's entrance into kindergarten, a memorable event for all concerned. Whether Ramona is proving what a good refter she is by snoring delicately during quiet time or whether she is pulling Susan's tempting curls, she makes her presence known.

Most of the time Ramona loves her teacher, Miss Binney, wholeheartedly. How Miss Binney feels is anyone's guess. Mrs. Quimby tells her daughter, "She will never forget you as long as she lives." Nothing seems quite so funny to children as the tales of what they did when they were little. Here then is an account of kindergarten days for readers who have passed that awkward stage.

Many will find Ramona's escapades hilarious, others will be moved by her struggles to make a place for herself in an uncomprehending world.

BIG PLAY IN THE SMALL LEAGUE by Paul Jackson. Mark had a problem. He would be out on the field playing really good ball. Then, all of a sudden, he would bumble the simplest play. He just seemed to fall apart. The coach told him to keep on trying and, like many other boys, he would beat those moments of awkwardness and reach a higher playing "level." But that never seemed to happen. And Mark knew that his errors could cost the team the Small League championship. When it comes to fast action sports books, Paul Jackson's batting average is tops.

IN BIG PLAY IN THE SMALL LEAGUE he tells a story about an average boy with a problem many young players share, and shows how time, experience and confidence overcome it. The book features the kind of team competition that keeps sports fans on the edge of their seats.

THE ZERO STONE by Andre Norton is well known as one of America's best writers of science fiction. In this book, the author takes the reader once more to remote galaxies which reveals their strange secrets only to the adventurous. A mysterious stone, born of worlds long extinct, is the key to powers unimaginable to man—powers that could enable its owners to control the universe.

Murdock Jern, gem trader, finds that possession of the stone has led him to the center of a web of intrigue and murder. With his companion Eet, an inscrutable feline mutant with phenomenal esp powers, he is hunted through space.

YOUTH FOR TRUTH
November 1, 1968

Gentlemen:

The fourth annual "YOUTH FOR TRUTH" campaign at Benton, Kentucky, October 26th and 27th, was a tremendous success. More than 1,200 teenagers from several mid-western states registered at the two-day event. More than 1,500 were in attendance Saturday evening, October 26.

We feel that a significant measure of this success was due to the very generous, unselfish, and excellent coverage given the event by those of you in the mass media field. We are deeply grateful for your interest in furthering high ideals and principles among the youth of our land.

We trust that the quality of the program, the impressions for good made upon young people, and the ultimate fruit of this effort merit your invaluable contribution.

Sincerely,

DOES GLYCERINE STAIN? Glycerine is often recommended for removing grease stains from durable press fabrics and you may have if the glycerine itself is likely to leave a stain when used in this way. Although glycerine is derived from fat, it is chemically an alcohol that is completely soluble in water. Therefore, you can use glycerine for stain removal without worry.

Six UK Coeds Adopt Youths From Village

Six University of Kentucky coeds are "adopted mothers" to 15 youngsters at Kentucky Village.

The boys are residents of a youth cottage at the rehabilitation center near Lexington and are from throughout the Commonwealth. They range in age from 9 to 13 and have been sent to the Village for a variety of offenses—mainly truancy and petty thievery.

The coeds explain that they adopted the boys "to show them someone really cares." They visit the boys on Sundays for an afternoon of sports, games and talk.

"We hope to build genuine friendships," one girl said.

The six Kentucky girls include Mary Ann Noel and Cheryl Hendren, both of Paint Lick; Linda Shockey, Jeff (Perry county); Jean Beatty Newell, Bronston (Pulaski county); Janet Warren Cummings, Louisville, and Barbara Jean Johnson, Lexington.

This new bulletin has pictures and plans with exact dimensions for building six types of gardens.

How is the food dollar of the typical family divided? If yours is a typical family, very likely more than one-half of your money for food goes for milk, meat and eggs. About one-fifth is spent for vegetables and fruits. The rest is nearly equally divided among the grain products; the fats, oils, sugar, and sweets; and such miscellaneous items as spices, leavening agents, coffee, tea and other beverages.

Whatever the interior decorating task that needs to be done next spring, color is a leading question. Because of the importance of light, and the effect light has on color, soft lights tone have proved more satisfactory than dark bright colors. Any individual color selection, when carefully considered in relation to all other colors, creates a room-to-room color harmony. Too many colors can produce confusion. Homemakers who have selected one or two colors with a third for accent have secured a more pleasing effect throughout the home.

— Mrs. Juanita Amoneit

Honesty, like other attitudes, is developed in the daily life of the family. When it comes to building attitudes, all the building blocks must be sound.

Little children are not prejudiced and intolerant. They learn these attitudes from the groups in which they live. Respect for an individual, "whatever his differences may be," comes from a deep sense of personal self-respect, respect for individuals, and a respect for differences.

If your family members have mutual respect and forbearance; forgive the thoughtless expression of others; are honest and sincere in family relationships; understand and are cordial to those outside the family who are "different," you are laying a foundation for good choices and lasting values.

What causes uncooked spots on the bottom crust of a pie?

There are several possible causes: Inadequate blending of fat and flour, insufficient mixing after the addition of the water to moisten the dough evenly—especially if too much water is used; combining warm dough with cold dough. Uncooked spots on a bottom crust may result also from drops of water in the piepan.

The News Reports . . .

SCATTERED PATTERN

About People and Things

The campaign of 1968 is now history. It doesn't take a lot of time these days for today to become yesterday and for tomorrow to become today.

In this vein it might do all of us a lot of good if we cease to ponder the might-have-beens and concentrate on the things that really were.

There are so many important items that we have set aside these last few months for more urgent matters of the moment that we feel it therapeutic at this time to delve into some interesting matters that might absorb our attention in constructive channels.

Not too long ago Bill Burnette, a native son, wrote us to assist him with a project to gather some area history to incorporate in a Murray State University project observing the 175th anniversary of the Jackson Purchase.

In discussing the matter with Bill we learned that the most fertile source of area history is contained in the old records of churches in the area, and we agree. It has come to our attention that the history of Methodism in the Jackson Purchase, and in the West Tennessee area, might be contained in the early minutes of the Walnut Grove Church, which we understand was a part of the one-time Richland Circuit.

Some historians believe that these minutes are in the possession of residents in the South Fulton area. If this is so, we would be ever so much obliged if we could borrow them so that they can be micro-filmed at Murray State University, and certainly returned to the owners post-haste and in the same precious condition that they are now.

Can we call on you for help leading to this information and perhaps to the use of the valuable documents?

Speaking of history, which we were, reminds us to comment on the fact that as members of the Kentucky Historical Society we are finding ever so much pleasure in reading the interesting publications that come to us at frequent intervals.

This week, for instance, we received Volume 4, Number 2, of the booklet entitled "Kentucky Ancestors." This study of genealogy is certainly an intriguing and fascinating endeavor. As an individual who finds it extremely difficult to comprehend the relationship beyond the first cousin level or the "own uncle" kinship, it is truly a challenging process to find out who "begat whom" among Kentucky's pioneers.

With a little more time for chatting with old friends these days we learned with a great deal of pleasure that "one of our favorite boys," Glenn Ray Bradley is on his way up with United Airlines in Chicago. And we mean that literally, too.

Glenn Ray, who was our man Friday when we worked at WFUL was in the Air Force, while doing his Army Service. He really took to flying like a big bird and has done some extensive training with United to become a commercial jet pilot.

Glynn Ray and his wife Brenda have a beautiful little red-headed gal by the name of Debbie Lynn and all seems right with them and the world. Glynn Ray's parents, Bill and Adelle visited with them in Chicago recently and do you know what? Bill just happened to have some pictures of the young lady in his purse and she is indeed all Bill said she was . . . "the cutest little girl you ever saw in your life."

Traveling with the vivacious and gregarious Toni Peabody of Washington and Boston last week certainly afforded this reporter some good laughs and some spirited camaraderie, besides some "inside" information on how the "beautiful people" live their hectic lives.

Toni's sister-in-law, Marietta Tree is one of the most popular members of the jet-set. When we weren't shaking hands and giving out literature we kept Toni talking about high society's goings on. Though their lives sound so exciting and glamorous, we came to the conclusion that it must be a simply exhausting, competitive ordeal.

And expensive too!

Toni told us about this shop in Georgetown and Falls Church called Lowman's where the "rich kids" take their slightly used garments to be sold to other rich kids and the bargains are simply fabulous.

"Sometimes," Toni said, "you can pick up evening dresses made by the famous designers, that cost as much as $5000, for just a song."

"I'll bet you can get them for as low as $2000," someone countered.

"That's right," Toni said, her eyes sparkling as though she were talking about a $3.98 blouse in a discount store.

We've just GOT to go to Lowman's when we're in Washington next time.

We're certainly proud of Rita Craven and Carolyn Allen for having been selected cheerleaders at Murray State University. Seems no time at all that they were going through all those gyrations in our basement even before they got to be cheerleaders at Fulton High.

This week we are publishing a little more-than-usual school news and it is proof positive that the training that our students get in the area schools is superior enough to have their individual talents noticed when they go away to college, even the best of them.

What do we think of Jacqueline Kennedy's marriage to Aristotle Onassis?

No doubt the lady got sick and tired of living in a goldfish bowl. But we don't think being married to one of the richest men in the world is the best way to acquire anonymity.

One thing is for sure, the world made a semi-goddess out of her and she in turn, proved that semi-goddesses, or demi-goddesses, do indeed have feet of clay.

Seems to us though, that with all that folding money, Tell ought to be able to afford private guards for his two step-children. Uncle Sam spends a lot of money foolishly, but spending $10,000 annually to guard the children of an ex-President whose step-father doesn't even know how much money he's got appears to be going just a little too far.

Here 'n There . . . Irene White and Lillian Blagg were visitors in Nashville on Tuesday . . . Mary Nelle and Doc Wright have returned after an extended trek through the New England States and Canada . . . they visited Ruth and Don Wright and other Fulton folks in Washington while away . . . Ethel Westpheling made a quick visit to Fulton over the week-end . . . she was accompanied by Mrs. Ken Hunt, formerly of Union City who also lives in Carmel, Indiana . . . Anna Belle Edwards had as her guest Sunday her long-time friend Annabelle Bledsoe of Jackson, Tenn.

Operation Santa Claus Brings Out The Good In Our Twin Cities

Through the generosity and hard work of literally hundreds of people of all ages in and around Fulton and South Fulton, approximately 3500 pounds of Christmas gifts and goodies will be mailed this week-end to local servicemen in far-off Vietnam.

Some seventy servicemen from this area will have their Christmas a little brighter and happier this year, as "Operation Santa Claus", now in its third year, expects to reach each of them with a huge 50-pound Christmas gift box full of all of the little things that a fellow appreciates in that far-off corner of the earth.

The post-box alone, for the 50-pound boxes to Vietnam from Fulton amounts to nearly $840 (that's $12 per box), but the effort and expense are all worth it, as the January letters back home always indicate, and so "Operation Santa Claus" is happily revived year after year, and probably will continue as long as the war in Vietnam lasts.

This year, around $2000 in cash and untold amounts of bakery treats and other merchandise have been gathered to stock the boxes and pay the postage.

Headquarters for "Operation Santa Claus" is the Chamber of Commerce office on Main Street, and an "open house" showing the unwrapped gift boxes on display will be held Thursday (today) afternoon from noon until 6: p. m.

Weather permitting, the wrapped boxes will again be displayed on Lake Street Saturday morning just prior to their mailing, as they were last year; in any event, the load of huge boxes will be turned over to Uncle Sam's postal service Saturday afternoon to begin their 10,000-mile journey westward with Christmas Eve being their target arrival date.

HISTORIC EVENT—

150th anniversary of the Purchase.

One hundred fifty years ago on October 19, 1818, the Chickasaw chiefs, Governor Isaac Shelby of Kentucky and General Andrew Jackson of Tennessee signed a treaty that settled all Indian claims to the territory west of the Tennessee River in Kentucky and Tennessee.

President James Monroe on January 17, 1819, proclaimed the treaty. The Chickasaws received $300,000 plus some individual payments for the land.

Dr. Elder, as president of Jackson Purchase Historical Society, hopes to enlist the schools, colleges, and civic organizations in presenting historical programs during the year 1968-69. He has his Ph.D. and M. A. from University of Illinois, and B. A. and M. A. from Murray State. He is also Evangelist for Pryorsburg and Bethel Churches of Christ in Graves County. A Kentucky Colonel, he is a member of the Mathematical Association of America and the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics. He is a member of Pi Mu Epsilon, Phi Delta Kappa, and Kappa Delta Pi, honor societies.

The November dinner meeting of the Historical Society will be held at the Triangle Restaurant in Murray. Prof. William Burnette, assistant librarian at Murray State University, is receiving and assembling material on the Jackson Purchase that will be useful in observing the anniversary.

The society has been informed that some of the counties in the Purchase will proclaim the year beginning October 19, 1968, as the Sesqui-Centennial year.

Members of a special committee appointed to help make plans for the Sesqui-Centennial are: Dr. Elder, Dr. L. J. Horton, Mr. Burnette of Murray, Lon Carter Barton of Mayfield, and Hall Allen of Paducah.

Operating Still Seized At Madrid Bend; First In Twenty Years Here

Three Fulton County residents were arrested Sunday afternoon and charged with operating a moonshine still in Madrid Bend.

Those arrested were Jessie Ewing (Jimmie) Whitson, 38, Billy Joe Whitson, 36, and Leola (Bant) Scott, 56. All three are residents of Fulton County, Ky., although their mailing address is Tiptonville, Tenn., Route 2.

According to Kentucky State Trooper Joe Hill, the three men were arrested Sunday at 4:45 p. m. while they were operating a still located behind a vacant house on the Mississippi River levee on the large farm of Jessie Floyd Whitson, father of the Whitson brothers, an extensive land owner.

Trooper Hill reported that the elder Whitson knew nothing about the operation of the still on his farm. Scott is a farm hand on the Whitson farm and lives near the vacant house where the still was located.

When Trooper Hill and other arresting officers arrived at the scene, the men had bottled six gallons of moonshine and were running off a seventh, the officer said. They offered no resistance.

The Whitson brothers and Scott were charged with operating an illegal still and were taken to Hickman Sunday afternoon. They were released on appearance bonds.

The case was turned over to federal authorities Monday morning and the three Fulton countians were taken to Paducah by officers of the Internal Revenue (ATU) Service. At a hearing, the trio waived to the federal grand jury which convenes in April. They were released on $1,000 bond each.

Trooper Hill said that, according to federal officers, this was the first moonshine still found in Fulton County in 15 or 20 years. The whiskey and the still were taken to Hickman.

Besides Trooper Hill, the other arresting officers were Fulton County Sheriff James (Buck) Menees, Deputy Sheriff Jimmy Simmons and Commonwealth Detective Milford Jobe.

College Costs Are Soaring, But There's Proof Of Good Investment

College costs are rising but "every year, in every way, college education becomes a better investment," writes Robert O'Brien in the February Reader's Digest.

Recruiters swarm over college campuses each spring with job offers that may start with $600 a month for holders of bachelor's degrees and range to $1200 and more for holders of master's degrees and doctorates. By the time they are 60 years old, graduates will have earned from $140,000 to $200,000 more than their high-school classmates who didn't go to college.

Intangible rewards can be even more significant—the lasting friendships, the broadened capacity to serve family and community, the deeper understanding of our modern world, the richer appreciation of life.

The Digest article, "How to Get Through College on Less Money," explains how jobs, scholarships and loans can help meet college costs. And the average student does need help, for costs are high: the 1966-67 school year cost about $1640 in public and $3100 in private colleges. For 1970-71, the figures will be around $2500 and $3600.

O'Brien urges consideration of the ROTC program, of the service academies "that pay you as you learn" and of colleges with campus work programs that enable students to earn much of their tuition and living expenses, such as Berea College, Berea, Ky.; Berry College, Mount Berry, Ga.; and Blackburn College, Carlinville, Ill.

There are numerous loan possibilities; for example, the National Defense Education Act makes loans available on 1600 campuses. And last year, 2439 students earned National Merit Scholarships, averaging $800 per student.

Veterans still qualify for special educational assistance, and service after high school could make a college education possible. Applicants must have served on active duty only 180 days.

The most expensive colleges are not necessarily the best. In all parts of the country, there are very good low-tuition colleges and universities. However, college counselors warn against selecting a college solely on the basis of cost: one that doesn't satisfy your needs—social and cultural, as well as educational—is no bargain.

"But don't ignore the cost factor," writes O'Brien. "No student can get the most out of college if he is constantly worried about money, if he can't afford to keep up socially with his classmates, if he's working too hard to make ends meet, or if he's gnawed by guilt because his family is plunging into debt to keep him in school.

"If the family and the student both start their planning early," concludes O'Brien, "any good and dedicated student who is willing to work can earn a degree. At times it may be a difficult and lonely struggle, but see it through. It will be worth it."

Fulton High School Students May Register For Scholarships

Fulton High School students who expect to complete their secondary school requirements and to enter college in 1970 can register now to participate in the 1969-70 National Merit Scholarship Program, Principal Bobby Snider announced today.

The first step for all students who wish to enter the nationwide competition is to take the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (NMQST). The test will be given in the school at 9:00 a. m., Saturday, February 15, 1969.

Participating students pay a $1.25 fee. When the test is given on a Saturday, the school may charge an additional fee of up to $1.25 for special administrative costs of testing on a nonschool day. If an unusually promising student is unable to pay the $1.25 test fee, it will be paid by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC) at the request of his school.

When his NMQST scores are reported, each participating student will receive a handbook to help him evaluate his scores and compare his performance with that of other high school students across the country. The handbook also contains information about choosing a college and financing college education. The handbook and other interpretive materials are furnished as a part of reporting the test results.

The highest-scoring students in each state will be named Semifinalists and will be eligible for Merit Scholarship consideration. In addition to the National Merit Scholarships financed by NMSC, more than 370 business corporations, foundations, colleges, professional associations, unions, trusts, other organizations, and individuals offer scholarships through the Merit Program.

About 18,750 students have won Merit Scholarships in the thirteen Merit Programs to date. Approximately 2,900 new winners of Merit Scholarships entered college in the fall of 1968.

Two Fulton High Grads At Centre

Mike Campbell and Jimmy Treas, both of Fulton, have enrolled for the Fall term at Centre College in Danville, Ky.

Campbell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Campbell, 200 Norman, Fulton. Treas is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe W. Treas, 609 Green Street, Fulton. Both are graduates of Fulton High School.

Centre recently announced plans for a sesquicentennial celebration to officially begin next January and continue until October 1969. The college was chartered on January 21, 1819.

Centre College is a private, liberal arts college with a selective admissions policy. The college has an unique $1,600,000 library-instruction building (Grace Doherty Library) which combines the main library, most classrooms and faculty offices, and other facilities within a single building.

A new swimming pool (Boles Natatorium) was completed early this year. A new $2,000,000 science facility is to be ready by September 1969.

Six Students From County At Western

There are six students from Fulton County among the 10,570 regularly enrolled students at Western Kentucky University for the 1968 fall semester.

This marks the largest enrollment in the history of the University. Last year 10,197 enrolled for the fall semester.

The total of 10,570 students enrolled in college classes for the fall semester does not include students in the Western Training School, in the Western Area Vocational School, or in extension classes conducted away from the campus.

Debbie June Watkins Pledges Murray Club

Debbie June Watkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Basil Watkins of 208 Thedford, Fulton, is one of nine students pledging Sock and Buskin Drama Club this fall at Murray State University.

Miss Watkins is a freshman majoring in English and minoring in drama and psychology.

Murray State University Plans FM-Radio Operated By Students

Murray State University will soon have its own student-operated FM radio station.

A license application to the Federal Communications Commission is pending approval, according to Tom Morgan, director of radio television at the university. He said the agency is expected to take action on the application at any time.

To be known as WKMU-FM, the 5,000-watt station will cover a 50-mile radius and have a listening audience in five states. It will be broadcasting at 91.7 megacycles.

Initial approval by the FCC must come in the form of a construction permit, allowing Murray State to proceed with the installation of a transmitter. Then the university will apply for permission to conduct program tests on the air.

Morgan and Dr. Ray Mofield, chairman of the communications department at Murray State, have been working for more than two years to get approval for the station.

Studios now in existence at the radio center will be used in the operation of the station, Morgan said. A hook-up will be made to the Kentucky Educational Television tower at Farmington. Programming will be scheduled from 4 to 10 p. m.

Morgan, who will be station manager, added that the station will provide a unique laboratory experience for communications students. "They will have the opportunity to learn all facets of operating a radio station," he noted. "Then when they go out into the industry, very little transition will be necessary."

Two County Educators In Study Group

Supt. Charlie Thomas of Fulton and Supt. Harold Garrison of Hickman will be among about 65 Kentucky school superintendents and other educators who will study educational programs described as "outstanding and innovative" in three states during an eight-day trip.

This was announced today by the State Title III, ESEA, Office. The "traveling seminar" is sponsored by one of the Kentucky projects financed under ESEA (the U. S. Elementary and Secondary Education Act), headed by Dr. Morris Osburn.

Most of the group will assemble at Louisville and leave there at 9 a. m. Nov. 9 in two (Greyhound) buses. Others will join the tour at Elizabethtown and Bowling Green.

The educators will visit schools at McComb, Miss.; New Orleans, La., and Houston, Texas. The project sponsoring the tour is designed to improve administration and the management of curriculum in Kentucky schools.

The annual directory of distinguished students has been published since 1934 and carries only the names of students whose academic standing, service to the community, leadership, in extracurricular activities and future potential are decidedly above average.

Majoring in chemistry and biology at Murray State, Voepel is a member of the ROTC Advanced Corps and of Lambda Chi Alpha, social fraternity.

Voepel Named Outstanding At Murray State U

Stuart Voepel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Voepel of 704 Vine Street, Fulton, has been named in this year's national listing of America's most outstanding university and college students.

Voepel, a senior at Murray State University, is included in the 1968-69 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges," a listing of the campus leaders from more than 1,000 of the nation's institutions of higher learning.

Puckett, Engel Class Officers At Murray U

Dana Puckett and Lee Engel of Fulton have been elected class officers at Murray State University.

Miss Puckett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Puckett, Jr., formerly of 410 McCall Street, was elected secretary of the freshman class. An English major, she is vice-president of the fall pledge class of Alpha Omicron Pi social sorority.

Engel, majoring in chemistry and biology, was the winner of the junior class president's race. Last year he served as treasurer of the sophomore class.

He is a member of the Student Affiliates of the American Chemical Society and Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity.

Hope all has settled down now that your "queens" have returned to warmer climates. We are up to our you-know-what at this very moment and will be for the next few weeks getting a successful campaign behind us. Everything looks good for the Governor and I'm hopeful that our other Constitutional Candidates will be as successful. I, for one, will be delighted when November 5th arrives. ME, CASSIE by Anita Feagles. This is the story of my life and how I grew up and decided to be just me, Cassie Spencer, and not some kind of phony or something. At least I hope I'm pretty grown up even if I haven't reached voting age. I know life in the suburbs isn't usually considered terrifically exotic, but some pretty peculiar things have happened to me.

Everyone is bound to run into a lot of unusual people because there are so many of them in the world, but believe me I know more than my share: like foreign students, a hip grandmother, a little cousin who is a girl monster, a famous singing group, and a doe who's a king-size nervous wreck. I've also encountered a sullen male model, an Italian designer, and a passel of TV people. Then of course there's my square dad and my liberal mother and my crooked little brother.

Most important is my boyfriend. And although it's true the two of us have had our problems with the communicating bit, I'm looking forward to spending a lot of time solving it.

Get well wishes are extended to Mrs. Jack McClain, who is a patient in Hillview Hospital and we hope she will be very soon recovered. She is the wife of Rev. Jack McClain and a teacher, well known in this area, and a likable young matron.

Our leaves over the whole countryside have been coming down rapidly now for a week or more. The leaves are blanketed to some depth and we regret to give them up; however, it's good reminder that we had plenty of shade during the spring and summer months. 'Tis sad, indeed, to see things go. Nature is beautiful to all of us.
