35 chosen for 'Who's Who'

Thirty-five Murray State University seniors have been named for inclusion in this year's Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

From a list of over 100 nominees, these 35 were accepted after receiving at least eight affirmative votes from an 11 member committee. This committee was composed of six students and five faculty and administration members, all randomly chosen.

MSU vets exhibit apathy

Veterans Day Parade Monday

By ANNETTE BORDERS
Special Writer

"It is for us, the living, rather to...resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain--that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom--and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

So wrote Abe Lincoln in the Gettysburg Address more than a century ago. The words are particularly appropriate in Watergate-blighted U.S.A. '73, as the fourth Monday of October approaches and with it Veterans Day.

As the date rolls around, the atmosphere on campus and in the city is one of either hastened preparation or casual indifference. In Murray, the nearly 300 members of American Legion Post 73 have scheduled their traditional line-up of events. A parade will leave the city park at 4 p.m., winding from Eighth St. to Main and down to the south side of the Court Square.

Marching in the parade will be 200 Girl Scouts from 17 troops throughout Calloway Co. and a single, large Boy Scout troop.

Murray State University will be represented by a 40 member ROTC detachment. Leading the unit of Rangers and the Silver Stars will be the usual color guard. For the first time, the two male cadets who carried rifles will be replaced by female cadets bearing sabers. The girls will be flanked by the customary carriers of the nation's and the commonwealth's flags.

The tone at the MSU Vets Club is low-keyed. This reporter poked a head through the club door and asked what those inside thought of Veterans Day. "When's that?" came one response.

Gary Hovekamp remarked, "Vietnam's veterans didn't return as heroes. You just don't get all worked up about it, as opposed to the 'holy' wars." Another vet ruefully expressed his thoughts, "The only way to be honored on Veterans' Day is to be a dead vet. Living ones are ignored. Look at the pension we're receiving: $55 a week, if you're single."

Hovekamp asserted, "We probably would have participated in Monday's activities, had we been asked. Of course, we don't have the membership to plan something big, anyway. Only 30 of the 53 veterans enrolled on campus this semester belong to the club."

The Vets Club is currently working with the Kentucky Collegiate Veterans Association to persuade the state to pay veterans' tuition at state-supported colleges.

One Man's Opinion

By DAVE CURTIS
Student Organization President

Vindication is sweet, so sweet. This elation that I feel comes from reading an article in the Oct. 12 edition of the Courier-Journal. The article, written by Dick Wilson, reports the findings of the Legislative Audit Committee on a study of university housing and dining systems.

The report affirmed to administrators of higher education what students have been saying over the past three years. It suggests very strongly that state schools would stand a much better chance of attracting students to dorms if

Yarbrough quits, replacement M.D. due in November

Dr. Charles Yarbrough, director of health services and campus physician at Murray State University resigned from his post effective Sept. 14.

Norman Lane, dean of student affairs, stated that Dr. Yarbrough's resignation has been accepted with regret. In his statement of resignation, Dr. Yarbrough said that his reasons for leaving Murray State are "extremely personal." He stated that he had enjoyed his brief stay here and regretted that he felt it necessary to submit his resignation.

Dr. Yarbrough will be returning to private practice in Cairo, Ill. Before becoming director of health services at Murray State, Dr. Yarbrough was a physician and surgeon on the staff of St. Mary's Hospital in Cairo.

Dr. Judith Hood of Louisville will assume Dr. Yarbrough's duties in early November.

housing regulations were liberalized.

The report noted that both the University of Kentucky and the University of Louisville have experienced an increase in dorm residency attributed, to an extent, to liberalized housing policies.

The percentages of dorm occupancy dictates that the schools with stricter dorm policies are bringing in enough income to meet debate service payments but, because of a low dorm occupancy rate, the individual schools are losing from a low of $305,729 at Murray to a high of $617,869 at Western.

The occupancy rates, dorm spaces and percentage of occupancy for each school are:

Job applications for spring ready

Anyone interested in student employment at Murray State for the Spring Semester of 1974 who has not applied should submit their application to the Student Financial Aid Office at this time, according to Mrs. Joyce Gordon, coordinator of student employment. Applications and other information will be available in the Student Financial Aid Office, located in the basement of the Administration Bldg.

With an ever increasing fight for state appropriation to higher education, I would strongly recommend that particular attention be paid to this report and the application of its recommendation to Murray State.

The hope of democracy depends on the diffusion of knowledge

Which to believe?

Both assertions are found here at Murray State. If one is to believe the second one, MSU is apparently not overly concerned about the hope of democracy.

The first statement can be found inscribed on the east side of the University library. Like many gems of wisdom, it is an idealistic view, something to be nodded approvingly at and filed away for speech-making.

The second is found in the University's Statement of Policy on Freedoms, Rights and Responsibilities. It's the more realistic view and seems to reflect the general attitude of the University community.

Perhaps this sums up the many and various complaints by students about the regulations and practices of the University. These practices fall under the general premise that, after all, the student is privileged to be at Murray State. He or she, therefore, should be willing to accept any dictum from the institution. This may range from various housing and dining policies to restrictive attitudes on guest speakers to disciplinary action for student conduct.

The idea that the school stands in loco parentis to the student seems to be dying or is being ordered out in some places. This idea was that the school takes on the role of parent to its students. This included responsibility for and discipline of a student's actions. In other words, the school knows what is good for the student. What is good for the school is good for the student, up to and apparently including the ultimate, expulsion.

This philosophy may be tempering with age at MSU, but it likewise seems far from dead.

At age 18, an individual may legally do anything any other adult may do (except, in Kentucky, purchase alcoholic beverages). Unless, of course, that adult is a student at a public institution of higher education.

Most public schools say that students voluntarily agree to abide by its dictums. Voluntary in the sense that students sign an agreement to do so on entering the University. Not voluntary in the sense that such is a condition to admission.

By and large, courts have upheld the right of schools to set their own policies, restrictive or not. It has generally been held that a school may implement such rules as it deems necessary to achieve its institutional goal, which is education. But it has also been held that neither students nor anyone else loses his or her individual rights on entering the schools gates.

As with any legal question, there is no clear cut line. Since education is systematically the role of schools, however, courts have been reluctant to overturn their decisions in this realm. Subsequently, schools are still pretty much free to formulate and enforce their own rules and regulations.

It must also be said that the rules and regulations of at least a public school are often the thin line between that institution and the legislative sword. Like it or not, money talks, and currently the combined supportive dollars of the taxpayers, granted by the legislatures, is greater than the financial contribution of the students.

Recently it has been recommended that students be required to pay a larger proportion of the cost of education. Proposals which would more than double the tuition at most public colleges and universities have been set forth by various groups such as the College Entrance Examination Board and the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education.

Surely such a change in funding would force a school to end restrictive policies in order to entice the student and his dollars to its doors.

But would it?

First of all, under such funding, only the affluent could afford an education without a great deal of financial assistance. It is proposed that vast amounts of financial aid be made available on the basis of need. (Supposedly, low-income families would be given the bulk of the needed financing and middle-income families would receive at least some aid, either in grants or loans.)

As is now done, the individual school would probably handle most of the financial aid of its students. Again, it can only be expected that in order to receive aid from his chosen school, the student would agree to abide by the rules of the institution.

This is supposition, of course, since the proposal is still being debated. But whatever the future of higher education, one can hope it will include a change in attitude.

Is there no such thing as a right to a college education? Does the student have a right to live his style of life where and when he chooses, without the threat of expulsion or other reprimandation?

The venerable institution of higher education is, ironically, slow to change. But when the creaking wheels begin to turn, they may be forced to roll over this traditional but antiquated outlook.

PERSPECTIVE

The 'why' about who didn't make 'Who's Who'

The 35 seniors chosen this week as Murray State's representatives in Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges can give thanks to Lady Luck. She played a big part in this year's selection.

As last week's editorial explained, the 11-member selection committee is randomly chosen and makes every attempt to be objective. The main problem lies with the department heads who nominate the candidates.

Some departments nominate up to 10 students while others select only two or three. It seems quite unfair that a student ranked third in one department is not nominated while in another area the top eight students are entered. While this problem has existed for many years, no one has bothered to try and solve it.

There's another big problem, some department heads choose their top students and then fail to list all their activities. Selection committee members are asked during their sessions to add or clarify information about any nominee they know. Several of those chosen this year would probably have been vetoed if a committee member had not known their merits.

All this makes one wonder how many nominees with unlisted activities were also unknown by the committee. Dean of Students Norman Lane, who is in charge of Who's Who, said this problem crops up every year. And yet nothing has been done to try and solve this great inequity.

Some department heads supposedly fill out the nominee's form on their own. In this way, the whole thing will be a big "surprise" if he/she is selected. But who knows how often the "surprise" backfires because the student's credentials weren't all listed.

In many departments the chairman selects the students only he feels are worthy. Other departments pass out nomination slips to several students who are "in the running." There is virtually no guideline at MSU concerning how the nominations are made.

Since these problems have been recognized in the past it seems that it's time for some solutions. First, Dean Lane could request that departments set up faculty committees to choose nominees. After all, in many departments the chairman could not possibly be on a first-name basis with all the good students. A faculty committee would seem to be one logical answer.

As for the number nominated from each area, obviously the same quota for each department would not be equitable since some departments have only a few students while others have several hundred. Perhaps departments could open nominations to anyone feeling they are qualified. The faculty committee could reduce these names and turn in those they feel would have a competitive chance.

And as for the problem of unlisted activities, this could be very easily solved if department heads would remove the cloak of secrecy from Who's Who and not be ashamed or afraid to announce who they have nominated. Most department heads get quite a bit of pressure almost everyday. Surely this decision would not cause them much more.

These suggestions are only one route that could be taken. And they are not made to imply that this year's Who's Who recipients are not worthy. But how many students didn't make it just because the dice didn't roll their way?

A look at the Board-- Bob Long

Editor's note: This is another in a series of articles taking a look at the Murray State Board of Regents, their positions, backgrounds and ideas.

By JAYNE CLARK
Special Writer

Bob Treas Long, of the Murray State University Board of Regents says, "Being a member of the Board has given me a chance to see developments in the school and student body and it means a lot to know you had a vote in helping make the decisions."

The Benton native was appointed to the Board in 1960 and remained until 1968. Long served under former president, Dr. Woods, during his great building programs. He was reappointed in 1972 for another four year term.

After graduating from Benton High School and attending MSU for three years, Long began working at the Bank of Benton in 1936. By 1940 he had advanced to assistant cashier.

Long, a former ensign in the Navy, is now a director of both the Bank of Benton and the Valley Savings and Loan. He received his naval training for duty on an overseas ammunition ship from 1944-1946 at a Princeton University naval program.

The owner of Long Concrete Company, which has offices in Benton, Paducah and Calvert City, became involved in construction work and materials after being employed at a lumber yard which his grandfather Treas began in 1882.

Bob Long

Golfing, boating, water skiing and traveling are a few of the Kentucky Bankers Association member's special interests. Long has traveled to Germany, France, Switzerland, Denmark, England, Spain and the Caribbean. He has also toured most of the United States.

A successful 18 years in business seemed to Long a reason for his selection to the Board. But equally important was his involvement in civic affairs as a charter member of the Lyons and Rotary clubs, member of the Benton City Council and School Board and, former one-term Chairman of the First District School Board.

"We have a good Board," said Long. "But one of its greatest problems is getting to know faculty, students and other Regents members. Meeting only four times a year makes it hard for the Regents to get to know each other personally, unless they have served together previously," he said.

Faculty and student representatives on the Board provide excellent ways of knowing how feelings are running. "When Dave (student representative on the Board now) brings something from the students we listen," Long said.

Having two sons as alumni of MSU and one currently enrolled as a senior has provided a link for 58 year-old Long with students and their feelings. He and his wife Kitty have one other son.

As part of the screening committee for the President, it became Long's duty to travel to Curris' former school, West Virginia Institute of Technology in Montgomery, W. Va., and seek opinions from faculty, students and community on how they felt about him.

The real difference in Sparks and Curris is obviously age and Long feels this will be a good guide as to the kind of policy differences the campus can expect.

"More vocational training to attract the high caliber, quality students is what we need," Long said. He believes that quality is more important than large enrollment figures.

Finally, Long said that the Board is formed to deal with important school policies and finances, but if a student has a problem appropriate to the Board, they will be ready to listen.

And he's off and running down the field

When the majority of the college football teams run out onto the field at the beginning of each game, their mascots run out with them. And when the team scores a touchdown or kicks a field goal, the mascot in some way demonstrates his excitement and affection for the team.

Some of the more famous mascots of college teams are the trojan horse of the University of Southern California, the buffalo of the University of Colorado, the mule of the University of Missouri and the falcon of the Air Force Academy.

But there is no loyal mascot for Murray State University. We have no horse, real or otherwise, to come out on the field with the team and spark the spirit of the crowd.

Wait just a minute! We do have a horse, in fact, we have several at the University farm that could do the job. Not only do we have the horse, we have someone who is willing to train the rider. On his side of it, Orin Hull, the University farm manager, said it can be done and he would be glad to help. You might imagine giant hoof prints in our newly-acquired artificial turf or on the track. There must be some way, however, of getting a horse onto the field without destroying it.

One alternative would be to get specially made boots for the horse that would keep it from tearing up the surface. Another would be to lay plywood on one side of the track for the horse to run on. After all, if a buffalo can do it, a thoroughbred can.

We can get the horse and we can figure out a way to get him in the stadium, but who is going to ride him? Since a thoroughbred is the symbol of racing in Kentucky and our nickname is the Racers, how about a jockey dressed in blue and gold? It may sound funny on first impression but think about it for a minute. The sight of a sleek, racing animal streaking around the track after the team scores a touchdown with a jockey crouched low over his neck would be exciting.

Granted there are flaws in the plan, the biggest being getting the horse onto the field. However, we feel that the advantage of having this symbol of Murray State University out where the crowd could see him and respond to him would be beneficial to the spirit at the games and also to the football team itself.

Qui Nyugen represents international students

By ANNETTE BORDERS
Special Writer

Murray State's International Students Association decided this fall to celebrate the University's 50th Homecoming a bit differently from previous years.

As a result, when the 34 candidates for Homecoming queen promenaded before the football team last night in the preliminary competition, among the American girls was a Vietnamese coed.

Qui Ngoc Nyugen (pronounced KWEE KNOCK NEW-YEN. It's really not that hard to say. It just looks that way!) is one of roughly two million inhabitants of Saigon, which she describes as "full of motorcycles and pollution."

On August 21, she left the capital city of South Vietnam and her family of eight brothers and sisters to begin the two-day journey to Murray. From Saigon's airport she flew to San Francisco, and from there to St. Louis and Paducah.

When Qui finally arrived at Benton, an old friend was waiting to greet her. While working for the American government in an office back home, she had become acquainted with many Americans. One happened to be Capt. Bill Cunningham, a native of Benton who, along with his mother and sister, was a graduate of MSU.

In fact, Qui has so many friends scattered across the U.S. that, when the post office recently notified her of a mysterious package postmarked "Kansas," she couldn't remember who she was supposed to know in that state!

Part of Qui's remarkable command of English is due to her employment at the U. S. office. However, she had previously studied the language three years in a special school with a 90 per cent American faculty.

After graduating from high school, Qui enrolled in a correspondence law school. South Vietnam doesn't have many universities, she explains, and those that do exist consist of only two or three buildings. Since her country doesn't permit exchange students to study law abroad, she is majoring in economics. Besides the 14-hour load she carries this semester, she works 15 hours in the home economics department.

From a country where the staple foods are fish, meat, and rice drenched in soy sauce, Qui has a definite aversion to hot dogs, ham, and cheeseburgers. She does like chicken and spaghetti, though her size would never reveal it. Actually, to describe Qui as "petite" would still be an exaggerated statement. The pint-size coed stands 4'10" and weighs 78 pounds!

Asked what her most difficult adjustment has been, Qui replied, "Weather!" It seems that South Vietnam has two seasons (monsoon and sunny) with a year-round temperature of 70 degrees. Qui must certainly feel at home in Murray with its traditional rain, but wait until those first snow flakes start drifting down from the sky.

Campus activity affected by 'magic'

Autumn brings mystical mood

By STEVE W. GIVENS
Special Writer

It's an altogether too brief time of the year for most people when nature decides to change its costume and mood from the lazy days of late summer and the sharp, piercing coldness of winter.

Autumn has its own special magic that is sprinkled lightly over the land and signals the start of football season, falling leaves, and feverish activity in the wildlife kingdom.

At MSU.....it's walking through the crunching leaves of the "quad" enroute to class.

At MSU.....it's bundling up in blankets and sipping hot cocoa with that special someone while you watch the Racers battle.

At MSU.....it's walking through the shady lawn of Oakhurst and having an energetic chipmunk send an acorn crashing down on your head.

At MSU.....it's sitting on the library steps and watching the huge orange moon of Indian summer as it creeps its way across the sky.

At MSU.....it's slipping on a pullover sweater and walking out and breathing in the crisp, cool night air.

At MSU.....it's gathering up a huge pile of leaves, jumping into the middle and burrowing around underneath like a groundhog.

At MSU.....it's taking a trip to the Land Between the Lakes and taking in the splendor of the bright red, yellow and brown leaves.

At MSU.....it's wandering through the frost-coated grass, leaving a trail of damp footprints behind as you concentrate on the day's activities.

At MSU.....it's suddenly discovering a mutual friend whose interests are the same as yours as you poke through the woods watching and listening to the animals prepare for winter.

At MSU.....autumn is a very special kind of season.

Urbie Green to perform at Homecoming

By STEVE VIED
Special Writer

A new Homecoming queen, a jazz trombonist, animated cartoon characters and multicolored balloons will be part of the "production" planned for this year's Homecoming game scheduled for Stewart Stadium Oct. 27.

Featured with the Murray State Thoroughbred Band during the half-time show will be famous jazz trombonist Urbie Green. Green who has some 25 record albums to his credit and has received the Downbeat International Critics Award for "new jazz star," has performed with Benny Goodman, Tommy Dorsey, Tony Bennett and Frank Sinatra to mention a few.

He is primarily engaged in free-lance recording work in New York and recently has been most active in the educational field doing clinics and concerts. Also on Friday night before Homecoming, the Phi Mu Alpha "Men of Note" will present a concert featuring Green.

Jazz will be the word when Green, along with the MSU band, performs Hoagy Carmichael's "Stardust" and then an arrangement by Tommy Neusome of Tonight Show fame entitled "The Green Bee" - a jazz rendition of Flight of the Bumblebee.

As a treat to children of all ages will be the animated cartoon characters of Hanna-Barbara production, The Banana Splits, "Fleegle, Bingo, Drooper, and Snorky," Scooby-Doo, the Hair-Bear Bunch and animals from the movie "Charlottes Webb" will be included in the half-time festivities. The characters will assist in the release of 2,000 multi-colored balloons as a finale to the show.

Following the pre-game pageantry featuring the crowning of the new homecoming queen the 155-member marching band will be led by half-time by drum major Mike Longdo and assistant drum major John Goode in a new double corner entrance to the music of "Entry to the Coliseum." A salute to the first band at MSU will be the playing of "Blue Grass March," written by the composer of Murray's fight song, Conn Linn Humphries. He and members of Murray State's first college band will be at the game.

The Alma Mater will be sang by Miss MSU, Vicki Collison, and finally the band will play its old standby, "The Old Gray Mare", ending what promises to be a memorable half-time show. This will be the seventh performance for the band this year, having presented shows for all of Murray State's home games, a show at Martin and two other shows. Additional performances this season will include a show at the Austin Peay game and a trip to the Western game.

URBIE GREEN, jazz trombonist, who has 25 record albums to his credit, will perform during the Homecoming game half-time show.

Small-game hunter should beware mousetrap menace

By STEVE W. GIVENS
Special Writer

"If a man can make a better mousetrap than his neighbor, the world will make a beaten path to his door."

—Ralph Waldo Emerson, 1871

You've heard the sound late at night while lying in bed right before dropping off to sleep. It's a munching, crunching sound that strikes terror in your stomach!

There's a mouse in your room!

Sure enough, the next morning there's little crumbs lying around where that chocolate cake was last evening. It would be all right if only it were a little mouse. . . but unfortunately, little mice grow to be bigger.

So, you decide to catch the little devil. Hundreds of men have dedicated their entire lives to the relentless pursuit of the tricky rodent. . . and very few have really been successful.

An early attempt has a piece of cheese (what else?) placed on a trap spring inside of a hole in a foot-sized piece of wood. The mouse sticks his head inside and. . . snick, down comes the knife blade and friend mouse is suddenly a head shorter.

This little model is affectionately called the Marie

Antoinette and has a word of warning inside of each one sold: Use extreme care when baiting the trap and setting knife blade in position.

Of course, the only pitfall with the use of the guillotine in mouse extermination is having to remove each rodent in two sections. To combat this, the worried sleeper might employ the trusty Colonial Crusher, which originated in the early days of America's establishment.

It's 24 pounds of wallop! The greedy mouse spies the cheese under the large rock, scampers to it, trips the rope trigger, and. . .

If you have two mice, try the large, economy size, Double Trouble, with twice the weight.

All of the above mentioned traps are crude, barbaric contraptions that are very messy. One of the neater methods is to imprison the furry rodent.

Seduced by the odors of cheese, the nibbling of the delicacy trips a lever, slamming the bars shut behind him.

Inside the prison, our friend finds a small rotating wheel so he can exercise. You may later decide to use the recycling method and release him in a neighbor's yard. . . or make an anniversary gift of him!

With increasing practicality, man has advanced the art of the mousetrap to the spring-loaded stage. Who can't admire its simple efficiency? Or remember it snapping shut on a finger in your childhood?

So, the battle of man-against-mouse goes on. But, even as our arsenal of weapons grows more sophisticated, history seems to make one lesson undeniably clear. . . never bet against the mouse!

Squeak, squeak!

Strange fruit

By SUSAN CLEM

Gee John. We all miss ya, just sittin' around here in the newsroom. Gosh, we thought it was easy to write about enchiladas and coffee and doughnuts and toilet paper and stuff. But when we found out you couldn't be here this week, we knew we had to find someone else to write your column. And do you know what? Nobody wanted it. Being the editor of this section and all, the responsibility fell on me. Incidentally, I wanted this column to be called "Peculiar Vegetable" this issue, but my superiors said it was against policy and "simply not done" by we "seasoned journalists." So, since there are some things that have been bothering me for quite some time, I decided to get them off my chest this week.

The hot dog discrepancy.

Somebody tell me why the first and last bites of a hot dog consist of merely bread and mustard? It seems that two long-established industries, such as the makers of hot dog buns and frankfurters, could arrive at a satisfactory compromise without enlisting the aid of the National Bureau of Standards.

And how about so-called wallet size photographs? They never fit a window until you trim to the person's forehead and lapels. Ditto drivers licenses and other cards.

Another question that comes to mind is, with the Man from Glad and his accomplices running rampant, why continue to package crackers, cereal, and potato chips in wax paper that is totally unresealable?

Yes, ladies and gentlemen, we are the victims of a "dumb jones."

Contemplating such inconsistency, one may recall the many hours spent in the infirmary or a doctor's waiting room before a check-up, passing time and simultaneously acquiring every contagious disease known to man. Normally the average student would not be infected, but after the countless hours without food, fatigue sets in and resistance is lowered considerably. So, by the time you get in for the check-up you are sick and need a complete diagnosis (accompanied, of course, by an additional fee). But the big joke is when they tell you to "get plenty of rest," yet maintain a strict three hour dosage schedule around the clock.

Probably the major source of "pet peeves" is the public restroom. The problems literally meet you at the door which is, by the way, specifically designated "push" or "pull" but opens either way.

Immediately upon entering, you discover that the lock does not operate. But after deep contemplation you determine that it is worth the risk.

Too late you notice there is no tissue (it's all in John's kitchen) and no paper towels. However, you must realize that a minimum of forethought on your part, such as carrying a Fall-Winter issue of the Sears and Roebuck catalog in your wallet, would have kept you from allowing yourself to get in such a tough situation.

Sometimes life is like a limp paper plate. Come home, John.

Relation between body and soul deemed important by Rev. Brown

Gene Brown, director of ministerial service for the Christian Church was the featured speaker at the UCM luncheon Wednesday. His speech, entitled "Why be interested in the Church?", dealt with the relationship the church has as a vocation, has with man, his search for meaning, and commitment to society.

It is his theory that in the course of daily human experience with all its trials and complexities, "the body manages to follow where the soul leads." The soma or body and psyche or soul must interact with some degree of accord if the individual is to function effectively in society.

A pertinent example of the results of unsatisfactory interaction between the psyche and the soma may be found in the American body politic. Individuals are speaking about the current situation in terms of Watergate and related issues, with discontent and disrespect. The system, they say, is not as healthy as it should be.

Rev. Brown attributes this to the fact that the psyche dimension of society has been neglected, and the soma needs have taken priority. That these flaws have emerged at the executive level is a symbol, Rev. Brown believes, that society has gone askew—that the psyche has been neglected.

Rev. Brown also discussed human motivation, mentioning the theories of Freud, Adler and Frankl. Viktor Frankl, affiliated with the study of psychiatric medicine at Vienna University, believes that man's search for meaning is the primary concept which gives his life purpose. This philosophy is in accord with Rev. Brown's concept of the soma and psyche in which he believes the role of the church to be most significant.

Five standing ovations

Maynard Ferguson thrills large concert audience

By STEVE VIED
Special Reviewer

"Maynard Ferguson was out of sight!" This was the general reaction of a large and enthusiastic crowd that attended the Maynard Ferguson jazz concert Tuesday night in Lovett Auditorium. The exuberant audience gave five standing ovations and screamed for more when the band attempted to leave the stage.

Ferguson appeared to have the crowd in the palm of his hand from start to finish. The 12 members of the band took turns keeping the viewers on the edge of their seats and then on their feet as they seemed to get progressively better.

Coming on stage in a black velvet suit, Ferguson picked up his trumpet and began hitting high notes. The first number entitled, "Give It One" featured a fantastic saxophone solo by Andy MacIntosh backed up by Randy Jones on drums. In this song, Ferguson unleashed his viscous trumpet which, conservatively speaking, startled everyone in the house.

Next came a selection from their album, "M.F. Horn III," called "Pocohontas," featuring bass, baritone sax and trumpet solos. Following this, the beat was slowed down with "Love Theme" from the Valachi papers.

Following this, the band came right back with their version of "MacArthur Park." Ferguson played the trumpet and the trombone with slide and valves.

Then a triple trombone contest between Ferguson and two band members brought the crowd to its feet. The next song involved a trumpet duel. In the sixth number the entire band left the stage leaving only Randy Jones who excited the crowd with a long drum solo.

The M.F. Band seemingly got stronger on the next number featuring a baritone sax solo by Andy MacIntosh. Another standing ovation showed that the audience approved.

Finally, on what was supposed to be the last number, the band members went into the crowd and played a wild version of

"Hey Jude." With the crowd on its feet, the band was forced to play one more number, "Theme from Shaft" ending what can only be tabbed as a great concert.

MAYNARD FERGUSON, famous jazz trumpeter, blasts out a number with his band. They appeared in concert before an enthusiastic audience Tuesday night in Lovett Auditorium.

NONANCOURT (Wayne Britton, Mansfield, Ohio junior) exercises his authority as father of the bride by announcing that "the wedding is off." The bride, Helena (Jackie Smith, Petersburg, Ill. freshman), tries to calm her father as cousin Bobbin (Mark Atha, Owensboro) looks on.

Comedy opens season

By SUSAN CLEM
Campus Life Editor

"An Italian Straw Hat" by Eugene Labiche and Marc Michel has to be the most nonsensical play ever written. Try to picture a father-in-law who carries a potted plant, a young man who likes to kiss people, a musician with a fetish for women's slippers, and a deaf uncle, and you will imagine "An Italian Straw Hat."

Of course, Labiche's peers saw him as the writer of stories which appear "delightfully irresponsible" and stories which "make penetrating observations on human nature." "Straw Hat" definitely falls in the category of the former.

The lively colors, displayed in scenery as well as costumes, convey the mood of the entire play. The vocal soundtrack will probably never make the top 10, but it is more than sufficient for this play. Indeed, it appears that the actors were chosen on the basis of acting, rather than singing, abilities (good choices, I might add). The talent of the actors is positively the high point of this University Theatre production.

Charlie Hall gives a brilliant performance of Fadinard, a young 19th Century bridegroom who spends his wedding day (and most of the night) trying to replace (you guessed it) "An Italian Straw Hat" that his horse ate that morning. As if he doesn't have enough problems, there is already evidence of in-law troubles as he leads his wedding party through the mad fiasco of finding an identical hat.

Wayne Britton, portrays the ridiculous father-in-law, Nonancourt who rushes madly after Fadinard proclaiming repeatedly that the wedding is off. Again, a great performance.

Sue Milfelt gives a successful characterization of the sophisticated Baroness De Champigny who mistakes Fadinard for a famous musician when his hat hunt brings him to her estate. Remembering that the musician has a strange fetish for women's slippers, she imagines that he desires hers. The result is a conversation in which Fadinard and the Baroness unknowingly speak of two different topics, simultaneously. Then, she FINALLY MARRIED, Fadinard (Charlie Hall, Frankfort senior) instructs his new bride as to her wifely duties. Members of the wedding party listen as he relays his message in song.

CARRYING HIS pot of myrtle, which was planted on the day of his daughter's birth, Nonancourt leads the wedding procession, following who he believes to begins to become suspicious of dishonorable intentions on his part as she exclaims to herself, "I'm terrified, he's not looking at my shoes anymore!"

GETTING A HAT out of jail? That's what happens to "An Italian Straw Hat" as Emile (Brad Holbrook, Lexington, sophomore) tosses it to Anais (Sherry Sills, Murray freshman) and Fadinard.

And, I hope that Randy Powell doesn't take it personally, when everyone laughs each time he walks on stage. Uncle Vezinet (Powell) loves to talk, but is plagued by deafness. However, he doesn't realize that he possesses this handicap and, therefore, doesn't allow it to hinder his desire to be a great conversationist. Well done.

Grey Hurt, Paducah, Debie Shinnars and Hollis Clark, both of Murray, also are to be commended on their rolls. The entire cast, down to the most minor roll, was very good. This brings a question to the author's mind. The quality of the acting seems to overshadow the quality of the script. Not being a theater arts major, I will leave my comments at this: I believe they are capable of a more challenging play.

As has been noted in previous theater reviews, there are no bad seats in the University Theater. Careful coordination of lighting, scenery changes, and the closing of the stage curtain leaves little margin for the "surprises" that usually mark an unprofessional job. Roger Humphrey, stage manager, has done his job well.

Congratulations to director Robert E. Johnson and designer James I. Schempp on jobs well done (even though I question their choice of "Straw Hat").

If you've had midterm exams all week and need some relaxing entertainment, "An Italian Straw Hat" would be a good experience. This comedy-musical farce is definitely not heavy, and is probably quite a change of pace from anything you've seen at the theater in a long time.

Premiering last night, performances will continue tonight and tomorrow night with the curtain rising at 8 p.m. Admission is by season tickets or $2 at the door.

Sigma Chi to host annual Derby Day

Sigma Chi Fraternity will host their 15th annual Derby Day tomorrow at the MSU soccer field. The festivities began today at 9 a.m. with the Derby Chase, in which the sororities and dormitories try to steal the fraternity members' derby hats for points. The points will go towards winning the Derby Day Trophy.

Tomorrow the ribbon will be cut at 10 a.m. for the annual Derby Day Parade. Following the parade will be the tricycle race, better known as the Pee Wee 500, which is a relay race consisting of four-member girls teams. Following the tricycle race will be the following events:

The Balloon Toss which will require two girls from each team. The balloon will be filled with water and tossed in the air between the girls. Each time the girls make a toss, they will be required to step five yards farther apart.

Next will be the Egg Burst in which the girls will ride on their coaches backs, trying to bust eggs that will be tied to the coaches.

Following will be Skin the Snake which involves eight girls in a line, each holding hands with the girl in front and in back of her, through their legs. The last girl will crawl through the line of legs, followed by the second last girl. At no time may the hands be broken.

The next event will be the Bamboo Ramble. This will be a relay race with each team consisting of three members. Each girl will run holding a three foot pole between her legs. The poles must be passed without the use of hands.

The Zipped Strip will also be a relay race. The girls will run 25 yards to a sleeping bag which will have a set of clothes inside. The girl must change clothes in the bag then race back.

Two other events will be the mystery event, which will be announced at Derby Day, and Fit the Form when the Derby Day Darling will be chosen.

At 2 p.m. there will be a drawing for the balloon ride in which the lucky winner will get a free ride in a giant balloon with a bottle of champagne to toast the occasion. Tickets for this drawing may be purchased from any fraternity member.

The winner of the Derby Day Festivities will be announced at 4 p.m. The rock group "Clap Hands Here Comes Charly" will play during the festivities and for the dance that night.

From a field of 28 contestants

Thirteen freshman cheerleaders selected

Freshman cheerleaders were selected by a panel of five judges on Tuesday. A total of 13 cheerleaders were selected from a group of 28 competitors.

Girls chosen were: Gail Broach, Murray; Vicki Harned, Leitchfield; Sherry Holthouser, Louisville; Vicki Pat Lamb, Hazel; Darcy Stallings, Evansville, Ind.; and Cathy Thompson, Benton. Donna Grubbs, Vine Grove, was chosen as alternate.

Men chosen for the cheerleading team were: Philip Hoppe, Canonsburg, Pa.; Bruce Long, Centralia, Ill.; Alan Musto, Nashville; Terry Reed, Fulton; Eddy Scaggs, Paducah; and Mike Thalman, Arlington Heights, Ill.

The cheerleaders were chosen on the basis of their conformation in group and individual original cheers, as well as their rhythm and extra gymnastic abilities they demonstrated. Over-all appearance and spirit were also considered in assigning points to each contestants' performance.

Judges were: Walter Bumphus, adviser to minority groups; Jean Bennett, sponsor for cheerleaders; Ann Vinson, secretary in the student affairs office; Emily Edwards, Eldorado, Ill., a transfer student and former cheerleader; and Bonita Lykins, sponsor for Mayfield cheerleaders, none of whom were competing.

Mrs. Bennet said that there was an outstanding turnout, both competitors and spectators. "I want to make clear that those who were not selected, and the scores were very close, will be eligible to try for varsity cheerleading positions in the spring," she added.

Pioneer in mental health*Mrs. Edna Glenn donates 600 periodicals to library

Edna E. Glenn, a retired social worker residing in Paducah, donated approximately 600 periodicals and books to the MSU Library Wednesday, Oct. 10. The majority of periodicals are concerned with social work and psychiatry. The total donation is valued at about $675.00.

Mrs. Glenn attended Murray State her first three years of college. She later obtained her BA degree at Western. She has worked most of her career in social work and helped with starting the first mental health program in Western Kentucky.

Because she has been so dedicated to social work, Mrs. Glenn has high hopes for the social work department of MSU and therefore donated her collection to this institution.

Mrs. Glenn worked as a grade school teacher early in her career, later went into child welfare, and in recent years spent her time working in mental health programs. Her special efforts in social work have been recognized nationally and Mrs. Glenn was written up in Who's Who in American Women in 1968.

Even though she retired last year, Mrs. Glenn is still involved in some direct patient therapy, particularly with former patients.

A few of the periodicals donated were Social Case Work, Public Welfare, General Psychiatry, Child Welfare, Rehabilitation, and Psychology Today, along with many others.

Mrs. Glenn is also donating some of her material to Campbellville College.

The periodicals and books can be found at the MSU Library and duplicates will go to the social work department.

Grant will finance law program here

A federal grant of $5,304 has been awarded to Murray State University to finance the Law Enforcement Education Program. The money will be used for grants to students who are employed full-time in criminal justice work.

The LEEP award for the 1973-74 school year was authorized by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration and will be administered by the Student Financial Aid Office.

Johnny McDougal, director of student financial aid, explained that the grants assist eligible students in paying part of all of their registration fees and book expense up to a maximum of $400 per semester. Recipients must agree to remain in the service of a public law enforcement agency for at least two years following completion of their courses. If that condition is not met, the grant must be repaid at seven percent interest.

Presently, 12 part-time and full-time students are benefiting from the program.

Their full-time criminal justice employment includes state and local police, courts, and correctional responsibilities.

'Notations' is back, staffed

Notations, the campus literary magazine, is now staffed to handle manuscripts for a projected coming issue and is now a student organization, according to managing editor, Kathy Northington.

"By being officially recognized," said Mrs. Northington, "we hope to create the attitude that Notations is a magazine in which both students and faculty are encouraged to contribute their creative efforts."

Deadline for material submitted to Notations is Dec. 15.

Manuscripts and art work should be brought to Room 7B-3, of Faculty Hall. The office will be open from 11:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Submissions may also be mailed c/o Dr. Charles Daughaday, English department.

To insure the safety of drawings, contributors are asked to use some discretion as to size and method of matting. Notations is not equipped to handle color drawings but black and white drawings, photographs and photographs of sculptures.

James D. Strauss to speak about occult at 'His House'

The Murray Christian Fellowship at His House is sponsoring a lecture by James D. Strauss, associate professor of Christian doctrine and philosophy at Lincoln Christian Seminary, Lincoln, Ill.

To be held at His House on Oct. 24 at 6:30 p.m., Strauss will speak on "The Weird World of the Occult." On Oct. 25, also at His House, 6:30 p.m., Strauss will lecture on "The Order of the Towel." He will conclude that evening's program with "What we need right now for the Kingdom to grow."

After each speaking session there will be an opportunity for questions and discussion. Everyone is invited to attend all the sessions.

Strauss has had numerous occasions to study occultism in France, Germany, Switzerland, and England. He has visited many college campuses in the United States as well as those countries.

Post office plans quicker delivery service, afternoon mail to be processed the same day

Mail deposited in the afternoon can now be processed and sent out the same evening due to a recent change in local postal operations. The new procedure involves sending a portion of the afternoon mail to a central distribution center in Paducah.

Unlike the smaller post offices, Paducah's postal department operates an added shift for late night processing. This enables mail deposited in the afternoon, to be sorted and sent on to its destination the same evening.

Prior to using Paducah's distribution center, late mail stayed at the Murray Post Office overnight and was sorted the following morning. This process would often constitute an unnecessary delay in delivery.

"This new system allows smaller offices to cut down on extra personnel cost," commented Hal Kingins, director of the campus post office. "It also speeds up the delivery of out-of-state mail deposited here in the afternoon."

"To insure proper delivery, local letters should have the town address written out," noted Kingins. "If one simply addresses his letter 'city', it may be confused if processed in Paducah."

Children's theatre to hold auditions; 20 parts available

Auditions for the children's theatre production of "The Great Cross Country Race" will be held Thursday, Oct. 25, at 7 p.m. in the University Theatre, according to James I. Schempp, director.

The play, written by Alan Broadhurst, tells the classic tale in which the slow-moving tortoise is pitted against the quicksilver hare in a seemingly unequal contest. Parts are available for 20 actors and actresses. Scripts will be on reserve in the Library beginning Monday, Oct. 22.

Children from surrounding high schools are invited to view the performance which is to be held in Lovett Auditorium. Last year approximately 2,700 children attended the production.

Season ticket holders are reminded that their tickets are valid for "The Great Cross Country Race" which will be performed Nov. 29, 30, and Dec. 1.

MSU drops 1st league contest

It's slosh and slip as Middle skims

By STEVE W. GIVENS
Asst. Sports Editor

A steady downpour turned the artificial turf into a spongy marsh and a swift kick knocked Murray State from the unbeaten ranks last Saturday night as Middle Tennessee slopped to its first OVC win.

The 17-14 upset dropped Coach Bill Furgerson's Racers to 4-1-0 overall and into a four-team logjam for second place in the league with a 2-1-0 slate.

Ironically, the artificial surface which covered Horace Jones Stadium's field was the cause of the MSU downfall, producing three costly fumbles and a bobbled punt attempt.

Martin takes loss

Faced with a fourth-and-one situation on the Blue Raider 42 with just over four minutes to go and the score deadlocked at 14-14, Racer punter Steve Martin got a low snap from center.

The ball went behind the freshman punter, who grabbed it and made an attempt to run but MTSU defenders swarmed him at the Murray 34 for a huge 24-yard loss.

Three plays later, Archie Arrington calmly booted the second longest field goal of his career, a 46-yarder which barely cleared the crossbar and gave the Blue Raiders their final 17-14 margin.

Tom Pandolfi, who turned in a good effort with 10 completions in 21 attempts under harsh conditions, rallied the Racers with seven straight completions following the score, but failed when the eighth pass was intercepted with 66 seconds left to play.

Fumble causes score

A fumble set up the Racers'

first score with 9:49 to go in the first half after a scoreless opening canto. Defensive back Paul Coltharp pounced on the loose ball that was jarred from Middle's Dwaine Copeland when hit by a hard tackle.

With junior tailback Don Clayton, who led the nation in college-division rushing prior to the clash, picking up four yards in two trips, Pandolfi found tight end Bill Farrell with a 19-yarder to give the Racers a first-and-goal at the four. Clayton barreled over for the score and MSU went ahead 7-0 with Don Wright's conversion boot.

The Blue Raiders never made it past midfield until late in the second canto when they recovered a Clayton fumble which squirted from his hands on the MSU 31. On the next play, sophomore quarterback Tommy Beaver hit wide receiver Mike Finney at the goal line for the deadlocking touchdown.

MTSU misses field goal

Minutes earlier, the Racers had pushed the Blue Raiders from deep within their own territory to the MTSU 35-yard line where Pandolfi lost a slippery ball on a fourth-and-one situation. Middle then marched 40 yards in nine plays but also failed to score when Arrington just missed on a field goal attempt.

But as it turned out, the Blue Raiders gained the most from the wild exchange of the football in a five-minute span!

MTSU romped after half-time, moving 61 yards in six plays, with the key being a 34-yard bomb from Beaver to wide receiver Joey Graves. Dwaine Copeland scored on a two-yard run and Arrington's kick gave Middle a 14-7 advantage with 9:30 showing in the third quarter.

Die-hard Murray refused to roll over and stormed back with a 78-yard drive which required only seven plays to knot the score.

Pandolfi found tight end Bill Farrell and hit him with a 36-yarder to spot the ball near the Middle goal. Seconds later, fullback Jim Engel bulled his way over from the two for the score and Don Wright's conversion boot knotted the score for the last time at 14-14.

Then---minutes later---Arrington decided the issue!

Murray State had the edge in most of the figures after the battle, 118 yards rushing to Middle's 113, and 131 yards passing to MTSU's 96, and an overall offensive total of 249-209. Clayton with 97 yards in 21 carries was the leading individual rusher and Pandolfi's 10 of 21 completions outdueled Middle's six of 13 figure.

Martin, MSU's punter, had the best night's work of his Racer career when he booted five kicks for a 48.4 average, while the Blue Raiders

Loss to Blue Raiders, 17-14, drops Racers to 2nd place

By MARK HULTMAN
Sports Editor

Western Kentucky's Hilltoppers gained sole possession of first place in the Ohio Valley Conference by thumping Tennessee Tech, 41-0, while Murray State dropped into a four-way tie for second place with a 17-14 setback at the hands of Middle Tennessee Blue Raiders.

The Hilltoppers have shut out three of their five opponents this season, and have outscored their foes, 186-14.

Western's first score came when quarterback Leo Peckenpaugh tossed a pass to Porter Williams who rambed into the end zone from four yards out. Peckenpaugh himself scored when he crossed the goalline on a seven-yard run to give his team a 14-0 lead at intermission.

Tailback Clarence Jackson kept the Western ball rolling with a four-yard run in the third canto. Second-string signalcaller Dennis Tomek added another TD when he broke loose from Tech defenders and recorded a 30-yard score.

Van Pitman, a Mayfield native, took a five-yard pass from Tomek in the final period for six points, and substitute Rick Caswell intercepted a Tech pass and ran 29 yards for the 'Toppers' final score of the evening.

Eastern Kentucky Colonels withstood a final-quarter charge by the University of Tennessee at Martin to keep pace with the Racers and two other teams in second place.

Tailback Alfred Thompson posted both of the Colonels' touchdowns on runs of three and 18 yards in the first and third quarters respectively, as Eastern nipped UTM, 16-14.

After leading 16-0 in the third quarter, Martin fought back as Randy Cousar, Pacer quarterback, went into the end zone with six points.

Senior quarterback Dave Schaetzke was the man of the night for Morehead as he passed for three touchdowns and ran for another in leading the Eagles to a 42-7 drubbing of Fairmont State of West Virginia.

Schaetzke connected with split end Vic Wharton 11 yards), tight end Ray Graham (24 yards), and split end Mike Mattia (85 yards) for scores, and he successfully converted a quarterback sneak.

Sophomore linebacker Rick Fox added to the Morehead attack by returning an intercepted pass 17 yards for a touchdown in the third period, and junior fullback Frank Jones ran 34 yards for a score.

MSU coach remains believer after setback

By STEVE W. GIVENS
Asst. Sports Editor

It did not take long to get the mood of MSU Head Coach Bill Furgerson following the Racers' 17-14 upset loss to Middle Tennessee in a driving rainstorm.

"It seems hard to understand how you can hold a team to 209 yards total offense and still lose," a glum Coach Furgerson said. "They actually earned one touchdown and we gave them the other two scores by our ill-timed mistakes."

Gave MTSU the breaks

Murray State had the ball midway through the second period with a 7-0 advantage before junior quarterback Tom Pandolfi mishandled a wet ball and the Blue Raiders took over. A series later, MTSU missed on a field goal attempt, but MSU fumbled again and the hosts scored a play later. Then in the fourth canto, a muffed punt attempt by punter Steve Martin gave the hosts the opportunity to kick the winning points.

"When we fumbled that second time, it really gave them the break they needed to get their offense rolling," he said.

Rain hampers traction

"The rain was certainly a factor in the game's outcome. The football was very slick and difficult to catch, but Pandolfi managed to complete a good 10 of 21 for 131 yards."

Coach Furgerson indicated that the field conditions would have been just as bad or worse if the contest had been played in Roy Stewart Stadium. "With the amount of rain that fell, our Poly-Turf would've been even slicker than Middle's surface which was AstroTurf," he commented.

"It was an extremely difficult loss to take since we made the errors that enabled them to score. We're not out of the race at all since only half of the season is gone," he said.

Deciding factor in OVC

Currently, Western is alone atop the OVC with a 3-0-0 campaign and followed by a four team logjam in second place that includes Eastern Kentucky, East Tennessee, Morehead State, and Murray State.

It does not look any easier for the Racers tomorrow either.

Traveling to East Tennessee, MSU encounters the nation's third leading passer in college division schools of the NCAA, Alan Chadwick. The 6'2", 189 pound senior finished last season as the 17th ranked quarterback in the country and the 32nd position in total offense.

Matchless last week, soccer team to face Vandy tomorrow

By STEVE W. GIVENS
Asst. Sports Editor

A funny thing happened to Murray State's soccer team as they were preparing for their match with Ft. Campbell last Saturday afternoon.

Prior to leaving for the road match, coach John Polacek took a head count and discovered that he did not have enough men to field a team due to the long weekend break. Classes were dismissed Friday for a statewide educational meeting on campus.

"The layoff could hurt us because we had not played for nearly two weeks. Since we face Vanderbilt in our next match, we need to get ourselves sharpened up," he said.

Using his normal match-discussion time, the coach singled out one of his better starters, John Ryan, a native of Warwick, N.Y. "He is a dedicated athlete and goes out and gives 100 per cent in each game."

"I've played soccer on and off for about 15 years with two years college experience included in the total," John said, "while I was in high school, I played football, basketball, and baseball, but always loved soccer the most." He lettered in all of the sports.

John is reportedly to be a hard worker during the Racer practice sessions. He teams with Cuthbert Jacobs and Lou Turley to form the tough defense which has led to MSU's 2-1-1 overall slate.

"He has improved considerably in the last few matches, playing one of his best against Southern Illinois University. This was our first shut-out and his tough play really aided our defense," Coach Polacek admitted.

Talking about the team's success this season with relatively the same crop of people as last year, John explained, "The few new people on the team this year are really dedicated and the veterans want to win more than ever. But the coach has been the biggest factor in our good play since he always takes the time to help us and give us advice."

The final match of the Racers' home season will be played next Saturday at 7 p.m. (Homecoming) when MSU tangles with Ft. Campbell. "It's the last chance for the student body to see us play--and maybe the first chance for most of them," Coach Polacek laughed, "so come on out and see the team!"

'Super passer' leads ETSU

By STEVE W. GIVENS
Asst. Sports Editor

East Tennessee State University's super quarterback Alan Chadwick spent his summer vacation installing monorail equipment.

Evidently the tall blond senior learned something about air travel and speed because he currently is the third ranking passer in the nation. He has completed 82 of 139 passes for an unreal passing completion of 58.1 per cent.

And guess who Murray State plays tomorrow?

Although the Buccaneers support only a 3-2-0 overall slate and a 2-1-0 mark in the OVC, they're definitely in the race with a crop of 29 lettermen returning from last year's squad which led the league in total offense.

Led by their ace, Chadwick, who bombed for 200 yards against Appalachian State, the Bucs have a full house backfield of talent that has gained a total 1,783 yards in five contests this season.

Passing is not their only trick, however, as tailback Greg Stubbs, a 5'11", 170 pound senior, has run for 426 yards in 92 carries. Every time he runs with the ball this season, he'll set a new ETSU career rushing record.

When Chadwick throws to the other side of the field, it could be to 5'10", 150 pound Phil Reitz who had grabbed nine passes for a 107 yard total after four games. He also handles the Buc punting, supporting a good 40.4 yard average after 15 kicks.

Teaming with him is tight end Ron Hillman, a 5'11", 203 pound junior, who was the leading pass receiver in the OVC last season with 36 receptions for 427 yards to break the Buc record.

If ETSU scores, the extra point would come, most likely, from the toe of Buzzy Griffith, a senior who broke a Buc record last season with 24 of 27 conversions. He also boots field goals, which ranks him second with all ETSU scores.

Oops . . . !

The sports department incorrectly identified Pat Francis as attempting to score a goal during last week's SIU match. Actually, it was Cuthbert Jacobs who was taking the shot. MSU meets Vandy tomorrow on the road.

Last year, Murray State defeated the Bucs by a 17-6 margin as Mike Hobbie (who was starting in place of injured Tom Pandolfi) scored on a two-yard-run, George Greenfield crossed the goal line, and ace kicker Chuck Cantrell bombed a 50-yard field goal. The Racer defense limited the Super-Chadwick to nine completions in 18 attempts and one touchdown, which he scored himself on a run.

On defense, East Tennessee has not performed as well, giving up a total of 99 points in five games. Jeff Williamson, a big 208 pound senior, who plays end and has a team-leading two interceptions to his credit, and a sophomore, Pee Wee Brown, who has one interception and earned a starting position when he was a freshman.

Everything goes on the line in the 2 p.m. battle at Johnson City tomorrow for coach Bill Furgerson's 11 for another league loss would all but eliminate the Racers from the OVC title chase.

Farris and Chadwick selected OVC 'Players of the Week'

Murray State's Bruce Farris has been selected "Defensive Player of the Week" in the Ohio Valley Conference, while East Tennessee's Alan Chadwick took offensive honors.

The two will face each other Saturday when the Racers travel to East Tennessee for a conference battle.

Farris was chosen for intercepting a pass and assisting in 15 tackles. Chadwick completed 16 of 21 passes for 200 yards and three touchdowns.

Farris joins three other MSU players, Tom Pandolfi, Don Clayton, and Mark Hickman, on the star players' list this year.

Baseball is a funny sport.

There is no telling how many homespun anecdotes and stories have been passed down through the ages.

The ones I have heard are, in all probability, not as funny or priceless as the quips uttered by Casey Stengel, Satchel Paige, or some other person with comparable abilities.

The latest one heard that struck my funnybone was originated by a staff member of the NEWS. I will not say at this time if the person in question is male or female, but she is sometimes referred to as "Hudspeth."

Anyway, the story told by Hudspeth concerned a pitcher by the name of Mil Famey. Famey, as it was told, once set a major league record by tossing the most no-hitters in a season.

It seems that one Saturday afternoon, Famey and his team were all set to meet their opponents. The opposing team had arrived with little hope for a hit, much less a score.

The legendary Famey appeared to be in his regular groove as he began tossing strike after strike to every batter after batter.

This continued until he started taking regular breaks at which time he retired to the dugout. After each break, the opposing team and fans began to notice a startling difference in Famey's accuracy from the mound.

He grew steadily worse, and wound up eventually walking every batter that walked up to the plate.

The game ended, and the opposing team walked off the field, quite stunned by its surprise victory.

As one opponent walked by Famey's dugout, he paused and made a startling revelation.

Looking at a pile of empty beer cans in the dugout, he stopped to say, "Look guys. That's the beer that made Mil Famey walk us."

If there is any trouble understanding the punch line, just close your eyes, and say it to yourself.

I presume there are some readers out there in the newspaper land who think they can top this story. If there are, you are invited to send them to Fire and Fall Back, in care of the NEWS in Wilson Hall.

Any story submitted will be read and considered by myself, and at a later time, may eventually be printed with the reader's signature.

Women's volleyball team to enter Memphis tourney

By STEVE HALE
Sports Writer

Murray State's women's volleyball team will travel to Memphis this weekend to play in the 16 team Mid-South Invitational Volleyball Tournament.

The teams, some of which are the finest in the nation, come from five states and are grouped into four divisions. Division one includes Murray, Memphis State, Austin Peay and Lambuth. Division two features UT-Knoxville, Mississippi State College for Women, Union College, and Middle Tennessee.

The third division has Eastern, UT-Martin, Tennessee

Tech, and Southwestern with the fourth division including Southwest Missouri, Peabody, Florence State, and Jackson State.

The winner of each division will play one another with a trophy going to the winner and runner-up. The same will be done in the loser's bracket.

Eight players will be chosen for the all-tournament team.

Coach Nan Ward said, "This tournament will be the biggest we'll play in all year. It will be much stronger than the state tournament."

Before playing in the round-robin tournament, Murray and Eastern will pair off in a grudge match. For the past two years, Eastern has been state champions and last season participated in the Women's National Volleyball Tournament.

Murray has been state runner-up for the past two seasons.

Women netters overcome UTM

Murray's women's tennis team thumped the University of Tennessee at Martin last Tuesday by a 9-0 score.

In the singles competition Lois Holmes beat Liz Trinkler 7-5, 6-0. Patsy Beauchamp topped Gail Sutton 6-2, 6-0. Janie Ross crushed Debbie Pewitt 6-0, 6-2. Beverly Thurman beat Alison Smith 6-3, 6-1. Cindy Edwards defeated Melinda Soloman 6-2, 6-3 and Judy Shirrell slaughtered Marilyn Richter 6-0, 6-0.

In doubles action, Miss Holmes and Miss Beauchamp downed Miss Trinkler and Miss Pewitt 6-1, 6-0. The team of Ross and Thurman combined to beat Miss Smith and Miss Soloman 6-1, 6-0, and Cindy Edwards and Judy Shirrell topped the Bryant-Sutton team 6-0, 6-0.

The lady netters have matches today and Saturday, competing against Memphis State University, Louisiana State University and the Memphis Racket Club.

Holmes seeded fourth in tennis tournament

The first intercollegiate state tennis tournament for women will be held at Murray State University on Oct. 26-27, with approximately 50 players expected to compete.

The event was planned for singles and doubles winners which were previously determined at the small college level in Kentucky and also from teams of the five major universities—Murray, Western, Eastern, UK and U of L.

Trophies will be awarded in the single elimination tournament to winners in singles and doubles competition. A runnerup trophy will be presented in the singles class.

The top three women's teams come from Eastern Kentucky, UK and Murray State.

Eastern's Sue Brown is seeded first for the two-day tourney, while UK's Terri Tafel is second. She is followed by Eastern's Karma Whittington, and Murray's Lois Holmes, who is seeded fourth.

The leading contenders in the doubles class will be Miss Brown and Miss Whittington, Eastern; Miss Tafel and Jan Wheeler, UK, and Miss Holmes and Patsy Beauchamp, Murray.

Kitty Baird, Centre College tennis coach, is president of the Kentucky Intercollegiate Women's Athletic Association, which is sponsoring the tournament.

Play is scheduled to start at 8:30 a.m. on Oct. 26 at MSU's new tennis courts on Chestnut Street, and end at noon the next day.

Winners in the competition will be announced at the Murray State-Eastern Kentucky game on Oct. 27.

Murray splits baseball twinbill with Western

By MARK HULTMAN
Sports Editor

The Thoroughbreds of Coach Johnny Reagan gained a split of their doubleheader with visiting Western Kentucky

MSU suffers first setback of '73 season

managed a 42.5 yard average in six attempts.

The Racers stay on the road tomorrow when they battle East Tennessee and quarterback Alan Chadwick in a vital OVC clash marking the end of a three-game span of away contests. With a deceptive 3-2-0 mark (2-1-0 in the OVC), the Buccaneers will throw more passes than any team MSU will face this season and could be enough to destroy any MSU league title hopes.

Saturday by winning the second game, 8-2, after losing the opener, 6-1.

The split enabled MSU to remain in a second-place tie with Western in the Ohio Valley Conference's West Division. Both teams have a 2-2 mark, while Austin Peay brings up the pack in the division with a 1-3 record.

Murray could wind up as the division leader for the fall session if it takes a twinbill from visiting Middle Tennessee Saturday afternoon. The Blue Raiders currently lead their opponents with a 3-1 mark, and need only to win one of the two against MSU to claim the lead.

The 'Breds dropped the first contest as they could pile up only four hits against Western's nine.

MSU tallied its only score of the game in the third inning when outfielder Rick Weisman smacked a single to push David Hughes across the plate. Jack Perconte had moved Hughes to second and a fielder's choice put him on third base, setting the stage for Weisman's RBI hit.

Perconte, who added a single in the sixth, and Bob Mantooth, who had a second-inning base hit, accounted for Murray's other safeties in the contest.

The 'Toppers Grubb issued six harmless walks, while fanning three Murrayans, but he had two doubles and also stole a base.

SLIDING BACK into first base is Murray State's Jack Perconte, who just beat a throw from the Western Kentucky pitcher. The Racers split a twinbill with the visiting Hilltoppers, dropping the first game, 6-1, and taking the second game, 8-2. Action took place at Johnny Reagan Field Saturday afternoon.

Greg Englar started the game for Murray, and was replaced by Mike Thieke in the seventh inning.

In the second game, the 'Breds exploded for seven runs in the second inning in coasting to the win.

After Western had tallied two runs in the top half of the frame, Murray came back as shortstop Leon Wurth drew a free pass to open the attack.

Outfielder Richie White singled with one out, and Wurth crossed the plate when

The big blow of the inning came when 'Breds pitcher Mike Sims belted a two-run homer to give his team a lead it never surrendered.

Following an error by a Western defender, Perconte and Steve Barrett added base hits, and Weisman pushed two runs across the plate with the 'Breds' third consecutive single.

Murray added its final run of the game when Wurth, after reaching on a triple, scored on an error by the Western shortstop.

Sims went the distance for MSU in evening his record at 1-1. He struck out four, and issued two free passes.
