Jo's Notebook

Vanderbilt And Me!

If time and space permit I am going to write some trivia about a Christmas present I received, since I promised young Chuck Hyde that I would, but first... a message about some serious thoughts, especially about my beloved Vanderbilt University.

Sunday afternoon Mary Jo called to tell me that four scholars (and they were that indeed) from Vanderbilt were participating in the College Bowl program on television. I stopped what I was doing and sat motionless while I watched with growing sorrow that "my team" was trailing Connecticut University. (Vanderbilt came from behind to win by 95 points. They'll be back next week.)

At the outset let me remind you that the two teams were not engaged in a sports activity, but an exercise of the minds, which to my way of thinking beats any knock-down, roll 'em over, stomp upon 'em competition ever contrived in this world.

Well, back to Vanderbilt. Not a day goes by that I do not recall, with some pleasant and poignant memories, the year that I spent in academic endeavor at the university, whose very name has the connotation of the ultimate in academia.

Sunday as I watched the TV camera roll around the Vanderbilt campus, focusing on majestic Kirkland Hall, I could almost hear those chimes again emanating at noon from the tower while I, and hundreds of other students quietly walked the winding walkways to another class room building.

Right now, with a new blanket of snow resting softly on the stately old trees on the campus, and on the eaves of old Garland Hall and the new Law Building, glistening with snow and icicles, there must be thousands of students here, and far away who have the picture of an incomparable university, indelibly imprinted in their mind's eye, with a special niche in each personal Hall of Fame.

One day a man said to me, "What did you get from going to Vanderbilt? Did you get a degree? Did you get a diploma? Did you get some piece of paper saying that you had spent a year away from home at your age?"

I told him, as well as I knew how, about the ten "working newspaper people" the Ford Foundation selects each year for a year of study, in chosen fields, to enhance the status of journalism in these United States. I also told him how honored I felt to be selected since only ten, out of some 2500 applications, were chosen to receive the lucrative Fellowship.

I've thought about those questions a lot since I've come back to the News as still, a working newspaperwoman.

Each day I realize how much that Fellowship means to me; what a sense of security it gives me to write of government, of people, of the days of our lives because somewhere in the vast storehouses of learning there is compelling evidence that the policies of every newspaper, controversial or not, should be headed in the right direction on the avenue of the people's right to know.

I feel that I write with greater confidence about those subjects that must pass the scrutiny of learned craftsmen in the more discriminating readership of our newspaper.

Perhaps it is illusory, but I feel that there is a greater confidence among our readers that what they read here is thoughtfully conceived, thoroughly researched and accurately reported.

My fellowship year forcefully crystallized my concept of the grave responsibility a newspaper editor assumes when he or she is called upon to mold public influence in those areas where the validity of the written word is at stake; alas even where the very existence of a free press must be defended at all costs.

I feel that I am a wiser editor because for one full year I was able to communicate with the young students of this generation; to examine the destiny of their dissent; to learn from them their expectations of an older generation, steeped in tradition and somewhat "out" of the "in" generation who see things as they are, but reach for things that never were.

In several of my political science classes it was my privilege to be associated with several of Vanderbilt's leaders in the "freedom of campus activities" movement.

I learned from the machinations of their

Ralph Graves Replies To Critics Of New Judgeship

State Representative Ralph Graves pointed an accusing finger at former Representative Henry Maddox today for advertisements appearing in four-county newspapers opposing the proposed new Circuit Judgeship for Graves County.

Graves, of Carlisle County represents Fulton-Hickman-Carlisle and Ballard Counties in the Kentucky General Assembly, the only four-county legislative district in the State of Kentucky.

The freshman legislator and newspaper publisher (Carlisle County News) defeated Henry Maddox last May in his (Graves') third attempt to represent the district.

Graves takes sharp issue with an unsigned advertisement appearing in this week's News, which opposes the new judgeship on the basis that it is a costly and unnecessary expenditure.

This is the second vigorous attempt that has been made by area attorneys to establish a new circuit court district for Graves' four-county district.

Advocates of the measure contend that the sprawling geography of Judge Wood Tipton's five-county district, the growing number of lawsuits occasioned by the advent of large industries and added population in some sections of the district makes speedy disposition of litigation almost nonexistent.

Here is Mr. Graves' letter to the News:

Dear Editor:

Following is a statement made by State Representative Ralph Graves of the First District regarding an advertisement that appeared in a number of area papers last week criticizing him for sponsoring legislation seeking a division of the First Judicial District.

"Newspaper readers and others in the First House District were subjected recently to an attempt by an anonymously sponsored advertisement to make them believe that a proposal to establish a new Circuit Court in Graves County and retain the first district court for Ballard, Carlisle, Hickman and Fulton counties would somehow bring about an increase in taxes.

"Nothing is more untrue."

Ford Calls On Lawmakers To Oppose Taxes

Lt. Gov. Wendell Ford called on Kentucky's congressmen and U. S. senators to oppose increased federal taxes.

Ford's action was, in response to current news reports that President Nixon and his fiscal advisers are considering sales taxes on various items, including as much as 5¢ a package on cigarettes.

Calling these "mainstays of Kentucky's economy," Ford's letter said:

"The 1970 General Assembly currently is making a determined effort to reduce state taxes, and such proposals from the President, if made and enacted by the Congress, would strike hardest at Kentucky's principal industries.

"I encourage you to examine any such proposals carefully and, if Kentucky's principal products are to bear these sales taxes, I urge you to vigorously oppose this legislation."

David Bayer Wants No Monkey Business With Banana Festival

David Bayer, like many another Fultonian, is proud of his home-town and especially the local effort called the International Banana Festival.

Wherever David goes he brags about both with an unusual amount of gusto, vive la ciudad and mio muy bonito pais expressions.

Last summer David traveled for the May Company in Los Angeles, a department store in the class range of Macy's, Marshall Field, Neiman-Marcus and a few of the other giants.

Well, on his wide travels David gave the Banana Festival an untold amount of western exposure and that brings us to the heart of a real slick, little story of community pride that is really going to a-peek to the local Chamber of Commerce folks.

Recently David received in the mails a nice sized banana, give or take some decayed spots or more, from his old friends at the May Company.

Attached, or rather stuck to the unusually fragile fruit, was a card to David, bearing the aroma and specks of the commodity that has made these twin cities famous.

Said the note:

Dear Mr. Bayer:
It is the greatest concern of the May Company-Los Angeles that we be represented at the Banana Festival.
So here enclosed is our entry. Please let us hear from you on this project.
Thank you!

After discarding the "entry" into the nearest garbage pail, David took pen in hand and accepted the "entry" of the May folks, but not without a little chicanery of his own. Here is David's reply:

Dear Gentlemen of May Company:

You have my assurance that you and your company were well represented at the Banana Festival. Your entry of January 10th was well received and quite a surprise. I might add that it was in need of minor repairs after its long journey.

The item enclosed is first prize. It is given to the one who monkeys around with it most. I trust that you will not go ape over it.

Yours from the Banana Festival

David Bayer is right proud of his reply to his friends at the May Company in Los Angeles. He is showing a copy of the letter to Libby Green, office assistant at the News.

Don Wright, Lt-Commander USN, On Duty With Famed Enterprise

Lt.-Cmdr. Hendon O. (Don) Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hendon Wright of Fulton helped mark the 15th anniversary of nuclear power in the U. S. Navy while serving aboard the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier USS Enterprise at Newport News, Va.

January 1970 marks 15 successful years since the submarine USS Nautilus transmitted the famous message "underway on nuclear power." Since then the Navy's nuclear-powered fleet has grown to eighty-seven nuclear-powered submarines and four surface vessels.

Commander Wright and his wife, the former Ruth Caldwell, and two children Wendy and Hank, are presently stationed at Newport News where the naval officer is engaged in sensitive computer operations with the Naval Command.

A graduate of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis Commander Wright has received highly specialized training in computer analysis and data processing and received his Master's Degree in the program at the U. S. Naval Postgraduate School at Annapolis three years ago. Since receiving the degree Commander Wright has lectured on the subject on many occasions, among them the Air Force Academy in Colorado and the U. S. Naval Postgraduate School.

Presently Commander Wright is serving as assistant navigator of the U. S. Enterprise while it is in dry dock at Newport News. In August of this year Commander Wright will be assigned to

The Paramount Issue On Daylight vs Standard Time: Conformity With Our Neighboring States

Last week we aired a subject on a page-one story that caught many people around here by surprise: the very-likely fact that Kentucky will go on "standard" time this summer while every other state in the union except Arizona (and Hawaii, out in the Pacific) will change over to daylight time.

The realization that such could be a possibility here in Fulton stirred an immediate and angry response. A lot of people read about these things in the metropolitan papers and hear them on TV, but fail to translate them into at-home realities. We sought to point out the fact that near-havoc will be created here if the community is forcibly split into two "official" times.

All last weekend the News office was busy answering requests of what-address-to-use-in-writing leaders of the Kentucky assembly, and we feel sure that a lot of letters were sent. And that's good; one newspaper has a small voice when compared with a hundred or so letters from an enraged public. Its the "volume" that makes the greatest impression.

The bill has gone back to the House committee this week, and on one hand we are told that it may die there; but another very reliable source in Frankfort told us that the issue is very much alive and is still almost a sure thing to pass.

You can take your choice; but we would suggest that if you want to express your feelings on the matter now, it is a very good time to write to Frankfort and do so.

It seems a bit ironical that the whole legislation on the matter is being spearheaded by a group of central Kentuckians who managed to manipulate a change in the long-established Eastern-Central time zone running north-south through this State. This area fought long and hard to get the time zone just the way they wanted it, only to discover a very few years later that daylight time had messed them up good. Should the general assembly vote daylight time out, it is an acknowledged fact that it will be done so by the sheer expanse of territory that lies in central and eastern Kentucky, and NOT by the sheer numbers of population.

As far as we are concerned, there is one dominating reason why Kentucky should go on daylight time: all of the rest of our neighboring states have it and we should conform to the rest. We respect the feelings of farmers who work sun-up to sun-down every day in the summer and who do not get to eat their supper until as late as 10: p. m. when the day is so long, but 10 p. m. to 5:30 a. m. is just as long as 9:30 p. m. to 4:30 a. m. And be that as it may, no other state around us has gone so far as to seek legislative action on the matter.

So, as we stated last week, "why does Kentucky seek to be the odd-ball state in the eastern two-thirds of the nation?" We don't believe in conforming just for conforming's sake on anything, but on this matter of "time" we surely need to conform to the six or seven states which lie on our borders.

Do You Ever Consider A Gift To Your Community As A Lasting Family Memorial?

There are times in people's lives, we are sure, when they put aside all the gruffness, backbiting and petty things in their home town to reflect on the fact that it IS their hometown and in many cases has provided handsomely for them and their family insofar as making money and providing secure and happy place to live. In many cases, family names are well-established and have been for a generation or more (sometimes for a century or more). And in many cases there is a very strong and very honest hope that, somehow, the family name can be enshrined in the community long after the person has departed . . . in a kindly, pleasant sort of way that is detached and apart from inheritances and legacies to friends and relatives.

This kind of reflection goes on across the nation, in small towns and big cities and is transformed into reality in many ways. A nearby hospital was begun in a community that had none, as a result of the family's gift to their old hometown. A nearby library and community center was bequeathed a handsome sum for construction, maintenance and un-keep as a family memorial. Other handsome endowments throughout the mid-South have gone to worthwhile community buildings, funds and memorials that bear family names that will live on for generations to come.

If Fulton has not been blessed with many such endowments or bequests for such purposes, their yet exists the fond hope that someday, someone will help the community in one of the many ways that the community can scarce help itself: perhaps a handsome civic auditorium, a library endowment, a major improvement in the park, an art center, . . . there are many avenues to explore that could bring goodness and happiness to a community in giving it something that it does not have.

"Why," might one ask, "do you bring this topic to the surface at this time?" We have no particular reason at this particular time; this is just a little thought that has bounced around in our head for a long, long time and we are just now putting it in print. If it serves to start others thinking, perhaps quietly casting around for something worthwhile to consider that might not bear tangible results for the community until ten years from now, we wanted to suggest it nevertheless. The urgency here is no greater now than it was 50 years ago, although in the intervening half-century many have disbursed much to places all over the nation, while in their small home town there are many who wish for little extra blessings that never come. Perhaps the next fifty years will be kinder; already, small towns are beginning to emerge as the happiest and kindest and most worthwhile places in the nation.

POET'S CORNER

LIFE

They told me that Life could be just what I make it—
Life could be fashioned and worn like a gown;
I, the designer, mine the decision
Whether to wear it with bonnet or crown.
And so I selected the prettiest pattern—
Life should be made of the rosiest hue—
Something unique, and a bit out of fashion,
One that perhaps would be chosen by few.
But other folks came and they leaned o'er my shoulder;
Somebody questioned the ultimate cost;
Somebody tangled the thread I was using;
One day I found that my scissors were lost.
And somebody claimed the material faded;
Somebody said I'd be tired ere 'twas worn;
Somebody's fingers, too pointed and spiteful,
Snatched at the cloth, and I saw it was torn.
Oh! somebody tried to do all the sewing,
Wanting always to advise or condone.
Here is my life, the product of many;
Where is that gown I could fashion—alone?

Musings From The Philosopher

A great deal has been said in recent years about the fellow who feels left out, who doesn't belong. Many critics seem to think that this is a fault of our having grown so fast in building up big centers of population. The little fellow who does not fight a heavy battle, say they, is just left out. But to me the question of not belonging is by no means a new one. Even in the rural area where I grew up there were lonely souls, people who were never known to be a complete part of things. In general this sort of person was to blame, for my area and most other rural ones, were basically neighborly and broke all sorts of barriers to make everybody feel that he belonged. Nearly every neighborhood that I have known or known about has had one or more hermits, sometimes whole hermit families. If I had been a seeker after morbid stories, I could have collected a whole host of them about these human oddities, who somehow were in the world but not of it. In such friendly places as Fidelity it took a stout heart not to feel or desire to be a distinct part of things.

Because of the general friendliness of country people of other days, it seemed to most people that any one who did not want to be friendly must have something to hide, some unconfessed crime, some past that was being atoned for in silence.

Many people around colleges think that there is a great danger that a boy or girl who does not belong to something or other will fall to get the best out of college. Decades of living and working in college make me agree in the main with this philosophy. But I can truly say that there were relatively as many hermits in our college in proportion to the population in the days when the school was small as in later days.

I have taught a number of self-made hermits who went to class, attended all cultural or educational programs religiously, but who went through college without ever being identified with some club or organization. And, in general, when they graduated, they disappeared. But an occasional one outlived his age of self-sufficiency and became a wholesome part of the area in which he worked after graduation. Some years before I retired, I made a survey of my former majors, to see where they were and what they were doing.

Most of them wrote appreciative letters, just as they had done through the years; some of the students who had been most active in school affairs never took time to answer my rather personal letter. And one very memorable person, who was regarded as the queerest of the queer, a loner, wrote the best letter that I received from the hundreds of my former students. All those years of her retiring ways she had apparently been building up a store of good will for humanity and had really accomplished much as a rather woe-begone, run-down mining town.

She was no longer the young woman who sat to herself back in the corner of the room; she had found a new way of belonging, and all her neighbors whom I know say the same thing about her.

and loneliness. Though some of these hermits have been as shy as wild animals, some of them have been almost warlike in maintaining their aloofness.

More often there has been a clan or family that has withdrawn as much as is possible from the noise and even happiness of neighborhood affairs. Many old communities had a set of folks who "kept to themselves", in local phrase. They would get outside their local shell long enough to buy or sell enough to keep going, but they seemed to resent anyone's invading their privacy. Some of these old-time people were in no sense poor or lacking in common sense; some of the most clannish people I have known were actually well-off financially, sometimes lived in rather fine houses for their time and place, had no suspicious attached to them for questionable conduct; they just liked their own society and made no effort to take in wider areas in which to be a part of life and affairs. I have known a few such aloof ones who married inside the clan, hoarded their money, "had money in the bank," but just did not visit with people outside the clan.

Many people around colleges think that there is a great danger that a boy or girl who does not belong to something or other will fall to get the best out of college. Decades of living and working in college make me agree in the main with this philosophy. NOTEBOOK -- (Continued from page 1) brilliant minds that by and large most activist students are not revolutionaries as they are pictured to be.

They do not really rebel at or disrespect authority.

They are simply a new generation of Americans of whom the late President Kennedy spoke when he said they were "born in this century, tempered by war, disciplined by a hard and bitter peace, proud of our heritage—and unwilling to witness or permit the slow undoing of those human rights to which this Nation has always been committed."

I came to learn from them that their intentions are sometimes overshadowed by their impatience and that it is the responsibility of an older generation to grant them these freedoms, but caution them in their zeal.

If at some time an article in this newspaper has influenced young activists in their judgment; if some reader can learn more fully his responsibilities as a good citizen; if our readers might learn from our written words that we are grateful for the rights we share and enjoy in America, my fellowship year will have fulfilled the confidence that the Ford Foundation placed in me.

And nowhere else do I think this confidence could have been better served than at Vanderbilt University.

I envy the students who have studied and will study there for four years. But I am grateful for the wonderful months that I spent there, as fleeting as they were.

And Chuck, that just about wraps up the space allotted to me for this issue. Don't go away. I promise that I'll tell you about My Radio And Me in the next thrilling issue of this newspaper. I didn't intend to get carried away by my studies at Vanderbilt, but I did. And always do. And always will.

Chuck is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Hyde. The elder Hyde is manager of Cecil's Liberty Super Market.

● Chestnut Glade
By Mrs. Harvey Vaughan

In keeping with the spring like day, Mrs. Paul Reams, the Gardening leader advised that we should be thinking of the selection of seeds even though planting season is yet several weeks away when she gave the gardening lesson to the members and visitors of the Chestnut Glade Club. The club met in the home of Mrs. Harvey Vaughan for the regular January meeting.

Mrs. Laverne Owensby the vice president presided at the request of the president who was the hostess. The regular business and the garden demonstrations were given before the beautiful pot luck lunch.

In the afternoon the home agent gave a very informative lesson concerning "credit buying."

The clothing lesson was given by Mrs. Jimmie Westbrook, who gave helpful tips concerning the proper procedure in making satisfactory pleats in garments.

The Reading leader, Mrs. Harvey Vaughan, complimented those who participated in the reading project last year that resulted in the club being recognized as and receiving a Master Reading Club certificate. The requirements will be the same this club year as last year, even though the club year will end June 30. Books were distributed to those participating in the reading project.

Ten members, six visitors and Mrs. Prince enjoyed this first meeting of the Chestnut Glade club in 1970. Mrs. Bonnie Stoker, Mrs. Percie Brundage, Mrs. Elizabeth Roberts, Mrs. Katherine Pogue, Mrs. Class David A. Cook, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. To The Tax Payers Of The Five Counties Of The First Judicial District

Your newly elected representative, Mr. Ralph Graves' campaign platform was NO MORE TAXATION, to exempt food and clothing from all sales tax and repeal the two cents sales tax that was passed in 1968.

In an interview with Mr. Bill Powell of the Paducah Sun Democrat before the general election, Mr. Graves said he has another definite piece of legislation in mind which is to make two judicial districts of what he calls the sprawling First District. He says he hopes to make Graves County a district of its own and to cut Circuit Judge Tipton's huge territory down to Carlisle, Fulton, Hickman and Ballard counties. He said the Legislative Research Commission had recommended the move be made, and that his plan also has the blessing of the First District Bar Association.

In the latest bulletin No. 71 the Legislative Research Commission did not recommend establishing a new Circuit Court in any county, so we wonder where Mr. Graves got such a statement.

In the study of the circuit courts for the judicial system the LRC recommended consolidating and combining more of the counties so as to have fewer courts and less expense on the tax payers. When the LRC made their recommendation to the judicial system and the public a news reporter contacted the Circuit Judges in the western part of the state and they stated that the case load was not too heavy. We know most people have had jury duty and are aware of the workings of our courts.

In a national comparison the LRC reports that only six states in our USA have more circuit districts than Kentucky. Kentucky has 120 counties and 49 circuit districts, whereas Minnesota with a similar situation to Kentucky has 87 counties and only 10 circuit court districts.

When senators and representatives are sworn in and take the oath of office one of the obligations is to stay within the bounds of the constitution in making laws. As we are instructed there is a required population for a circuit court and no one county in the First Circuit Court District has this population.

With taxes as they are today, we as a group of taxpayers ask why burden the taxpayer with additional state and county taxes to maintain another circuit court. We feel there is enough tax burden already on the counties and state without adding more for a new created circuit court. So if you feel the same contact your State Representative or your State Senator and let them know how you feel. If this tax burden is ever imposed on the people it will be by your State Senator or your State Representative who SPONSOR the bill and get it passed through the Legislature.

If this bill should pass in 1970 session, we will have to classify it as another Lawyer's Bill, creating jobs at the taxpayers expense.

Carroll Says He Will Not Oppose Rep. Stubblefield

FRANKFORT, Ky. — House Speaker Julian Carroll of Paducah has said that "under no circumstances" will he run for Congress against Frank Albert Stubblefield of Murray, who is serving his sixth term in the House of Representatives in Washington. Carroll made the statement in a television broadcast here, while being interviewed by Sy Ramsey of The Associated Press and Dick Wilson of the Louisville Courier-Journal.

He reviewed his statements with other members of the press this afternoon. "I have no intention of running against Frank Albert Stubblefield. I am more interested right now in serving as representative from McCracken County and speaker of the House than anything else," he said.

He said, however, that he "might be concerned with other political aspirations" after the session ends in March.

"I am interested in and am taking a close look at the United States Senate in 1972," said Carroll.

Carroll announced for the U.S. Senate in 1968. He withdrew after 14 other candidates, including Miss Katherine Peden, former Kentucky commerce commissioner, announced for the office.

Miss Peden won the primary but was defeated by Judge Marlow Cook of Louisville in November.

Carroll also has been mentioned frequently as a candidate for governor next year—especially if Lt. Gov. Wendell Ford dropped out of the picture.

"I have no illusions, whatsoever, about this race," said Carroll.

Garrett's Bill Could Pave Way For Convention Center

By BILL POWELL
Sun-Democrat Roving Editor
FRANKFORT, Ky.

State Sen. Tom Garrett today introduced a bill that could pave the way for building of a major convention center in Paducah.

The bill would change a law permitting motel taxes for promotion of recreation, conventions and tourist activity to allow for capital spending necessary for construction of such a center.

The law now permits the motel levy of up to three percent and formation of a commission to execute the program. But the law prohibits such a commission from borrowing money beyond that excepted in receipts for one year.

It is this provision Garrett hopes to change so that a commission could enter into a long-range financing agreement for capital expenditures.

The bill would apply to cities of the second class and below. Garrett's bill originated in efforts by a Paducah citizens committee to improve the community on a broad front.

The convention center proposal is one of many by the committee headed by Paducah Architect James (Bob) Gresham.

Garrett said he assumed the committee plans to form the commission and seek levy of a motel tax as soon as a law would allow.

Gresham, in a letter to Garrett, said he thought the bill would lead to a Paducah convention center.

Also in today's Senate action, Sen. Carroll Hubbard of Mayfield introduced a bill to raise the pay of grand and petit jurors from five to $15 a day. The bill also would allow $5 extra a day for petit jurors who are kept in custody at night while considering a case.

"The pay of jurors is ridiculously low, and something must be done about it," said Hubbard.

J. T. Atkin of Paducah has arrived in Fulton to fill Bodker's position here.

School Integration Plan Approved By School Board

Despite the strenuous objections of Charles Miles III, other members of the Union City Board of Education adopted a new plan of integration Tuesday night which will require all students of each grade to attend the same school.

The plan, introduced by board member Stockton Adkins, was one of several being considered by the board.

Some action was required Tuesday night to satisfy the U.S. Health, Education and Welfare Department (HEW) which had demanded that Union City come up with a plan which would bring about total integration.

On hand to help explain what plans were acceptable was Bob Sharp, liaison man between HEW and the State Department of Education.

The plan, as submitted by Mr. Adkins, would require that all first graders attend the same school, that all second graders attend the one school and so on.

Under the new plan, for example, the first three grades next fall could attend Central Elementary School, the fourth and fifth could go to East Side, the sixth could be at Westover and the seventh and eighth at Mites.

Superintendent T.F. Wallace said today he will meet with all principals, supervisors and other members of the administrative staff, and with some teachers, in an effort to determine the best alignment of grades. He said he hoped to have a recommendation to make to the board at its next meeting on Jan. 26.

The demands of HEW, coupled with the fact that the proposed high school may not be ready within even two years, have made it necessary for the board to take action and to make complete use of the Miles school facility in order to provide adequate classroom space for students.

In support of his motion, Mr. Adkins said he felt his plan was best, despite the fact that many parents would have children in one, two or even more schools. (Mr. Adkins has three children himself).

He said he believed his plan is best because it makes the best use of buildings, teachers and teaching facilities.

"I think the plan will provide the best use of books and libraries. For instance, now we must have three first grade libraries while under the new plan only one will be required. We will be able to make the best use of teachers and I believe ungraded and team teaching will be simplified.

Furthermore, I do not believe transportation will be much more of a problem than it is now," Mr. Adkins said.

In objecting to the plan Mr. Miles said, "I am unalterably opposed to this foolish and unworkable plan. I don't think either the white or the colored people will like it and I feel it will require busing of students. Some black students will have to walk from their homes all the way to Westover or East Side which I believe is too far."

He also objected to the fact that the new plan will do away with the neighborhood schools.

Mr. Miles had favored another plan which would have sent the seventh and eighth grades, in their entirety, to Miles and left the other schools in the system under the freedom of choice plan.

Under this plan, if the freedom of choice did not provide a sufficient mixing of the races, students could be assigned to bring about a satisfactory ratio for HEW acceptance.

Superintendent T.F. Wallace said he could live with either of the plans but his choice was the one supported by Mr. Miles.

"It would be better if this community were allowed to operate its own schools, which it has done successfully in the past, but of course we are now told what to do from another source (HEW)," Mr. Wallace said.

Board Member Dr. J. Kelley Avery said he felt the Adkins plan would do much to eliminate the "academic gap" which now exists. He said he believed the advantages offered by group teaching, which emphasizes the use of teachers in their strongest areas, will be of much benefit.

"No longer will we have a group of students with a weak teacher all day long," he said.

About 20 citizens attended the meeting, which had to be moved from the school board building to the Central Elementary School library.

One parent, Barney Hoefler, spoke out in opposition of Mr. Adkins plan, while Dr.

Bob Young praised the board for its action.

Also speaking briefly in explanation of the team teaching methods being used at Central Elementary School was Mrs. Bill Hairston, voting for the Adkins plan were Mr. Adkins, Tommy Thompson, Pat Mitchell and Dr. Avery while Mr. Miles was in opposition.

Nunn Disputes Story About Resignation

FRANKFORT, Ky. "I think my integrity has been impugned," said Stevens, "and my newspaper is being used for a scapegoat."

The governor invited the former employee, James Butler of Frankfort, to the press conference he called to discuss the subject.

"This is what happens when you call up people and tell them Butler's been forced out of his job and blow up their comments to make it appear there is a rift between Nunn and conservatives."

But David Ross Stevens, the Louisville Courier-Journal reporter who wrote the first story alleging Butler had been forced out, told the governor he was standing by his account of what happened.

Advice for Travelers To Vibrant Mexico

By GORDON M. QUARNSTROM

MEXICO CITY: This capital city offers a wonderful introduction to the first-time visitor to Mexico, a colorful, infinitely varied country. Yes, do as we did on the advice of Paul Misic of Mexicana Airlines, and come here first. And include two or three of the other tried-and-true travel centers on Trip No. 1, such as Cuernavaca, Taxco, Acapulco and Guadala-jara. Get the feel of a vibrant, exciting land... and once you do, you'll resolve to come back again to see more of it. We know, for that is what we have done!

Don't worry about diarrhea, really, if the thought of illness makes you hesitate about the Land of the Feathered Serpent. You can get an intestinal upset, of course, from overeating, overdrinking and overexertion. But you can at home, too, and often do, I'll bet.

You won't have to worry if you eat and drink with care. Only drink bottled water, pop or beer. Make sure you open the bottle yourself from a tightly-sealed cap. Avoid drinks with ice in them, for freezing doesn't kill bugs. And be wary of water in swimming pools. We're careful of raw vegetables, unless we know they have been washed in chlorinated water. We don't eat fresh fruit unless we peel it ourselves, and we stay clear of cheeses, ice cream and other dairy products. You can do that easily, for there is a great variety of good things to order that won't upset your digestive process.

Four Seniors Are Recipients Of D.A.R. Good Citizen Award

Four senior girls in the area have received the D.A.R. Good Citizen Award presented annually by Reelfoot Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, it was announced today by Mrs. Dan C. Gary.

Miss Jill Seifert was the recipient of the honor at Union City High School; Miss Fairra Roddy was named at Obion County Central High; Miss Susan Carol Warren, at South Fulton High; and Miss Laura Janet Thompson, at Kenton.

Three candidates, having qualifications of dependability, service, leadership, and patriotism, were chosen by members of the senior classes at each school and from these the faculty members made their selections.

Mrs. Gary, Good Citizen Award chairman, said the girls now have been entered into State competition. Winners in this category will be announced the first of March and these will be submitted to the National committee.

Miss Seifert, daughter of Mr.

and Mrs. Robert Seifert of Union City, is treasurer of the senior class, a member of the Beta Club, and accompanist for the high school choral group, the Golden Tones. She has attended the Awards Banquet since her freshman year, representing the classes of Home Economics, English and French II. She served as president of the junior class and secretary of the sophomore class.

Miss Seifert is a member of the First United Methodist Church where she serves as pianist for the Youth Chorale Choir and is a member of the Senior Girl Scout Troop 92.

After graduation she plans to major in music at Baylor University.

Miss Roddy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Roddy of Route 2, Obion, is a member of the Beta Club, the National Honor Society and History Club at Obion County Central. She was the recipient of the service award for the Glee Club which she serves as vice president. She also has received awards in American History, biology, Algebra I, Home Economics II and III, and English II. She serves as church secretary and organist.

Miss Roddy plans to attend southern Missionary College, near Chattanooga, after graduation.

Miss Warren, an honor student at South Fulton High, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Warren of Route 2, South Fulton. She was chosen as an "Outstanding Teenager of America" for 1969 and 1970, was a delegate to Volunteer Girls' State and the National Convention of the Future Homemakers of America and 4-H Club and is president of the Obion Sub-region FHA.

She attends the First Church of the Nazarene in Fulton, where she is assistant pianist, president of her Sunday School Class, and past program chairman of the Nazarene Young People's Society.

After graduation Miss Warren plans to attend the University of Tennessee at Martin and major in education in the field of home economics.

Miss Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Thompson of Route 3, Kenton, serves as president of the Kenton High Senior class and president of the Beta Club. She is the recipient of the Merit Scholarship Certificate of Merit and the N.E.D.T. Certificate of Merit. She placed in the top ten in the UTM math contest and received the superior plus ratings for three years in the National Piano Auditions. She holds the titles of Miss Kenton and Miss Kenton High School, was selected "Most Ambitious" and "Most Studious" in the high school Who's Who and has earned her State Homemaker's degree. She has served as co-captain of the varsity cheerleaders, president of the Kenton FHA chapter, and vice president of the Sub-Region FHA.

Miss Thompson is a member of the Mason Hall Methodist Church. She plans to attend Lambuth College and major in accounting.

Don Frankel says he gave up on the Chicago Bears when he found that Coach Jim Dooley's bench phone was connected to Dial-a-Prayer.

Father Wolf Named Co-Pastor At St. Jerome

FANCY FARM, Ky. — Father Herbert Wolf, formerly of St. Francis de Sales of Paducah, has been named co-pastor of Fancy Farm's St. Jerome Catholic Church. The announcement was made by Father Charles DeNardi of St. Jerome.

Father Wolf replaces Father Dave Lindemann as co-pastor at Fancy Farm. Father Lindemann has been transferred to St. Mary High School in Paducah where he will replace the late Rev. Louis C. White.

Bletchley Bans Married Queen

BLETCHLEY, England —One thing Bletchley's carnival queen won't be this year is married.

Married women have won the title two years in a row and town fathers say it isn't fair to single teen-agers.

"Single girls haven't been able to compete against the self-confidence of a married woman," said Cecil Bowden, a carnival official, explaining why the contest is being restricted to unmarried entrants.
