TANK CAR DERAILS HERE — This tank car containing an extremely flammable and highly toxic chemical derailed here shortly after midnight. Crews with L & N Railroad are on the scene working to get the tank car, filled with liquid carbon bisulfide, back onto the tracks. Local officials are urging citizens to stay away from the Industrial Road site of the accident.

Murray Mayor Melvin B. Henley said this morning that there appears to be no immediate danger since the tank car is not presently leaking in gas. But Henley added that the gas has such a low flash point (minus 20 degrees F) that it could burn spontaneously if the tank car does begin leaking.

County Fiscal Court Discusses Ambulance Service, Possibility Of Garbage Pickup

Calloway County Fiscal Court has agreed informally to continue an existing contract with Angels of Mercy Ambulance Service.

Preliminary contract talks between the firm that operates a countywide ambulance service in Calloway County are expected to begin early next week with a meeting involving Calloway County Judge-Executive Robert O. Miller, Murray Mayor Melvin Henley and Mercy personnel.

Calloway County magistrates Billy Erwin, Dan Bazzel and Tommy Bogard raised no objection to renewing an existing contract with the firm in a county fiscal court session Friday afternoon.

County taxpayers currently pay some $58,000 a year to subsidize the service. Miller told the magistrates, "It would probably take $135,000 to crank up a new (county operated) service and $85,000 to $90,000 to run it after you got equipment, a location and vehicles." Miller suggested the county continue the Mercy contract, and estimated subsidy costs will be higher next fiscal year.

Magistrates also took the first steps in investigating the cost of running a countywide garbage pickup service in Calloway County.

The fiscal court asked Calloway

County Attorney Max Parker to prepare figures on how much revenue a three or four cents per each $100 assessed refuse tax could raise in Calloway County.

No countywide, county-operated garbage pickup service currently exists in Calloway County. Miller told the magistrates that possible avenue may be a subsidize a countywide operation. But the judge-executive cautioned, "With the roads the shape they're in I don't believe we can handle it this year (next fiscal year)." At least one fiscal court member said he would favor putting a refuse tax question.

Miller estimated that it would require from $100,000 to $125,000 for the county to get into the refuse pickup business.

Murray city officials have often complained about the lack of a countywide refuse collection system claiming that some persons who live in the county bring their garbage to Murray and dump it in city collection boxes.

Calloway County Fiscal Court Friday entered into a "memorandum of understanding" with the Humane Society of Calloway County to operate the county dog pound now under construction. County taxpayers will pay to furnish feed for dogs and puppies housed in the pound, pay utilities, cleaning materials, furnish public liability insurance and a deep freeze for the facility located at 105 East Sycamore extended, while the humane society will feed cats and kittens at the pound, plus provide medical care, pay for telephone and office supplies and be responsible for euthanasia for all animals. Magistrates budgeted $15,000 to build the pound this fiscal year.

Calloway County Sheriff's Department has a new deputy 32-year-old Bobby Holmes of Hazel, following a fiscal court session and talks between Calloway County Sheriff Max Morris and Hazel city officials Friday afternoon. Holmes, who will work with the sheriff's department and under Morris' command, is expected to be paid from a Hazel police stipend and from county deputy hire money. He will be sworn in effective May 1.

County magistrates also Friday: —Accepted $3,812 in excess fees from Circuit Court Clerk Frances Shea for 1977;

—Re-appointed Harold Hurt, a Murray Attorney, to a four year term on Murray-Calloway Hospital Board; —Adopted a motion accepting a set of revised city-county hospital board by-laws.

—Agreed to lease two community buildings, one to a group in Hazel and another to Dexter for a nominal fee of $1 a year;

—Re-employed county treasurer Sue Outland for four years; —And lifted a seven ton load limit on Forrest Coleman Road.

Compromise Reached On Natural Gas Pricing; Bill Could Move

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional energy leaders are expressing confidence the president's bottled-up energy bill will begin moving again after a compromise on natural gas pricing that could boost what consumers pay by an extra $40 to $50 a year.

But the tentative accord reached Friday among key House and Senate conferees — after nearly five months of intensive closed-door negotiations — still faces several major hurdles.

The plan would lift price controls from newly found gas after Jan. 1, 1985 and allow the regulated price of gas between now and then to nearly double. Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger, who helped draft the proposal, said it would cost consumers about $10 billion more through 1985 than under the president's original plan for continued price controls.

Congressional aides claim the administration plan would have cost consumers between $2 billion and $5 billion over the same period. One "rough estimate" made by staff members is that the proposed compromise would result in an average yearly increase of $40 to $50 on gas bills.

The president had indicated in advance to conference members that he would accept the compromise to get his energy program moving again.

But first, the compromise must be ratified by the full 42-member conference committee working on a final version of the 10-year energy legislation. That panel is expected to take up the measure on Wednesday.

Then it must go back to both houses of Congress along with the rest of Carter's energy bill.

In both the conference committee and on the floor of each chamber, the legislation could run into trouble from an expected coalition of liberals — who think the compromise is too generous to the oil and gas industry — and conservatives — who feel it doesn't go far enough.

Only politically moderate conferees were included in the private negotiating sessions, including several held at the White House. That method of bargaining rankled uninvited conference members from both the left and right.

Nonetheless, conference leaders were predicting victory.

"I am confident that it can get through the conference," said Rep. Thomas Ashley, D-Ohio, one of the top House negotiators.

And Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., leader of the Senate conferees, predicted flatly that the conference committee would accept the measure. He called it a compromise which "offers the hope that Congress can complete action on the President's energy program."

The negotiators, who had seen several past attempts at compromise go down the drain, were particularly careful this time to shape the proposal until they were sure it could be supported by a majority of both House and Senate conferees.

Although the price of nearly all natural gas would rise under the proposal, only newly found gas would be eligible for deregulation.

However, the proportion of deregulated gas would increase steadily each year once the lids are lifted as more and more price-controlled wells dry up.

L & N Officials Work To Put Car On Track

A tank car containing a highly flammable and toxic chemical derailed here last night shortly after midnight near Hutson Chemical.

The chemical, carbon bisulfide, is "extremely toxic and explosive," Murray Mayor Melvin B. Henley, a professor of chemistry at Murray State University, said this morning.

Murray police and fire department personnel have sealed off an area for several hundred yards around the derailment which is located near the Kengas propane storage facility on Industrial Road.

Mayor Henley and Police Chief Brent Manning both urged local citizens to stay away from the scene of the accident.

"Even though it doesn't look as though there is any immediate danger," Henley said, "there is always that possibility. This chemical is highly toxic, extremely flammable and we don't want another Waverly (Tenn.) if something should go wrong."

Manning said that L & N Railroad spokesman told him the tank car was bound for an unidentified plant at Calvert City. Henley said the chemical is most likely used in the manufacture of polymers for the plastics industry.

The tank is not presently leaking and L & N crews have been on the scene since early this morning working to get the tank car back on the tracks. Speculation at this time is that the derailment occurred because of a malfunction in switching equipment, Manning said.

The train was only traveling about three miles per hour when the derailment occurred and quick action by the engineer in stopping the train is thought to have prevented more serious damage to the tank car. Wheels of two other cars were also shifted from the tracks in the accident.

L&N reportedly has crane equipment on the way that will be used to lift the still-upright tank car back onto the tracks.

People in the immediate area were not evacuated early today although Murray Police have an evacuation plan that could be put into action.

Workers successfully returned five derailed tank cars carrying hazardous materials to the tracks near here shortly after midnight, police said.

The Illinois Central Gulf Railroad cars derailed Friday, but the cars were not damaged and no evacuations were necessary, officials said.

A fire department spokesman said early today there were no problems with the cleanup operation.

State Vehicle Inspection Ends With Order

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Now you can drive around with that expired inspection sticker — or the one due for renewal — without worrying about police roadblocks or surprise citations.

Gov. Julian Carroll issued a directive Friday which in effect ends Kentucky's vehicle inspection program immediately — before the June 17 implementation of a legislative act which does so.

He ordered a 60-day extension of the time for cars and trucks to be inspected, which his office said eliminates the legal requirement for

Charity Horse Show Continues

The final evening of the Third Annual Kentucky State Charity Horse Show begins tonight at 7:30 in the West Kentucky Livestock Show and Exposition Center.

An enthusiastic crowd attended the opening night Friday at the center located on College Farm Road.

This year's event has attracted the largest number of entries of any previous show, according to Murray Rotary President A. W. Simmons. All available stalls at the $4-million indoor facility are completely filled, along with hotel and motel rooms in Murray, along Kentucky Lake, Mayfield and Paris, Tenn.

Murray Rotary Club and Murray Woman's Club sponsors the event.

Ticket gates will open at 6:30 tonight, and the public is asked to support the project which returns all funds to such community projects as scholarships, scouting, the Jackson Purchase Heritage Museum, local comprehensive care facilities and special education, Simmons said.

The show dates were changed this year from May to April, and this change appears to have created even more interest in the Murray event. Louisville and Morehead have the only other indoor horse shows in the state, Simmons explained.

Dear Abby

Thinks Her Parents Would Spoil Party

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 21-year-old female college senior. The week of graduation, I am giving a party for my friends and instructors in my parents' home. (I live at home.) I am going to serve food and plenty of beer to about 80 guests at my parents' expense.

My problem: How does one tactfully tell her parents when it's time for them to excuse themselves and go upstairs? Please don't get me wrong. I love my parents and want them to meet my friends and teachers, but I'm afraid my guests will be inhibited if my parents hang around all evening. Thank you.

PARTY GIRL

DEAR PARTY GIRL: If there is a "tactful" way to tell one's parents to get lost in their own home (and after footing the bill for a party of 80 yet!), I don't know what it could be. If any of your guests feel "inhibited" with your parents around, that's their problem. Of course, if your parents read this, you'll have no problem. (And possibly no party.)

DEAR ABBY: I am desperate. After 15 years of a very stormy off-again, on-again marriage, my husband has asked me for a divorce. It all started a year ago when, in the middle of a heated argument, I told him that his lovemaking did nothing for me—I had only been putting on an act. It wasn't even the truth. Knowing how proud he is of his masculinity, I said it because I knew it would hurt him. I never realized it would hurt him so much that it would destroy all his feeling for me. He hasn't kissed me or touched me since that terrible argument, and now he says he wants a divorce.

Abby, I'll do anything in the world to get my husband back. I don't want a divorce. Please, please tell me what to do.

RAZOR SHARP TONGUE

DEAR TONGUE: Unless you can convince your husband that you spoke in anger and didn't mean what you said, there may be no way you can get your husband back. This may not help you much, but it may serve to let others know that one seldom regrets unspoken words.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think a grandparent should ever spank a grandchild? What is a grandparent to do when grandchildren, ages 3 and 5, are visiting and both want to sit on the same chair? Or both want to play with the same toy? The older one appears to take advantage of the younger one. I have tried to teach them to share and be kind to each other, but it doesn't seem to mean anything to them.

Spanking always worked with my children, but my son, who is the father of these scrapping youngsters, insists that children should be "talked" to and made to obey without laying a hand on them. These two don't appear to be very well behaved to me. I still think a couple of whacks would straighten them out fast. What do you think?

GRANDPARENT

DEAR GRANDPARENT: When you hit a child, you teach him violence. There are better ways to discipline children.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

CHICKEN LIVERS
Chicken livers offer a good change of pace for a meal that's quick and easy and requires little energy to prepare. The National Broiler Council says simply saute chicken livers in hot butter in a skillet over low heat for about 10 minutes. Mushrooms and/or onions may be added if desired. Turn often to brown evenly and serve on toast points or rice with the pan juices added. Don't overcook the chicken livers; they should be brown outside and slightly pink inside.

KENTUCKY BUSINESS SCENE

Government Saying Cities Can't Grow?

Is the federal government telling Kentucky cities like Pikeville and counties like Marshall that they no longer have the right to seek prosperous growth?

The question is being asked in widening circles because of a list of 23 Kentucky counties and cities printed recently in the Federal Register, the Washington publication that tells everything happening under the federal sun.

That simple list has led to charges by leaders of the Kentucky business community that the state is being effectively forced into a "no growth" pattern that will prohibit expansion of even some very small industries now located here as well as preventing new industries from locating in parts of Kentucky.

Other counties on the list are Bell, Boone, Boyd, Campbell, Daviess, Fayette, Greenup, Henderson, Jefferson, Kenton, McCracken, Muhlenburg and Webster; other cities are Corbin, Hazard, Henderson, Louisa, Newport, Owensboro, Richmond and Shepherdsville.

These localities have been designated "non-attainment" areas in various types of air pollution, and are under strict new federal limits on the amounts of their allowable industrial emissions.

Local officials in some of the counties and cities have expressed alarm that industrial expansion is being severely limited in their jurisdictions; Chamber of Commerce leaders have blasted the "restrictiveness" of the designations; Kentucky corporate officers such as

Ashland Oil's president are saying the new law is "causing serious problems" and is "likely to stop construction of new plants or plant expansions."

A non-attainment area is a geographic area in which levels for various air pollutants exceed air quality standards. Amendments to the Clean Air Act in August 1977 require each state to designate these areas, and supporting regulations prohibit the areas from introducing new pollution without a greater decrease in pollution levels from existing sources.

According to George Risk, chief of the control strategy section for the state Air Pollution Control Board, the non-attainment regulations will indeed apply "to a whole lot of companies" in Kentucky, especially those that have coal-burning boilers or have painting processes as part of routine activity.

While the regulations permit companies to maintain pollution levels or emit some additional pollution if they can "offset" that pollution by other means — such as reducing emissions from other parts of a manufacturing process — Mr. Risk concedes that "someday, you're not going to have any more growth" among polluting business and industry, "when offsets become practically impossible to attain."

He also agreed that the new regulations will probably mean some relocations of the new or expanded industries to other parts of the state that don't have the non-attainment designation.

Both state officials and business-industrial spokesmen agree there is widespread misunderstanding and confusion about the new regulations concerning air pollution, and a series of meetings are being held in various parts of Kentucky to exchange information and to answer questions. The meetings are being variously sponsored by state government, chambers of commerce and other business groups.

But everyone agrees that even this won't end the dispute that has evolved between the business community's charges that the regulations are "a no-growth approach to a system of federal land-use control," as the state chamber puts it, and the state's position that the regulations are part of an overall strategy of "controlled growth... to clean up the air of the Commonwealth."

BEGINNING 50TH YEAR—The four Parker boys, left to right, David, James, Joe, and John, will begin the 50th year of business in Murray for the Parker family on April 28. David is the third generation of the Parker family to be with the firm that was started by his grandfather, Hafford Parker, in April 1928 in Calloway County. Their business, Parker Ford, Inc., is located at Seventh and Main Streets, Murray.

Parker Ford Celebrates 50 Years In Business

It was 50 years ago this month, April of 1928, when the late Hafford Parker opened his garage and car sales in Calloway County.

Now 50 years later with the third generation member, David Parker, the Parker family is still in the garage and car sales business at its modern garage, show room, offices, and used car sales at the corners of Seventh and Main Streets extending southward almost to Poplar Street, by the firm name of Parker Ford Inc.

The three brothers, Joe, James, and John Parker, and now with James' son, David, added to the executive staff, continue to operate the business that was started by their father and grandfather, Hafford Parker, 50 years ago.

The present modern office building, show room, and garage were built at the southwest corner of Seventh and Main Streets in 1945 about nine years before the present third generation member, David, was born. Since that time the business has expanded to add the used car sales lot and modern office building on the southeast corner of Main and Seventh Streets. Their modern car lot just south of the present main building and garage is designed to show the latest in styles of cars and trucks of the Ford dealership in Murray.

The four Parker boys, Joe, James, John, and David, along with their efficient staff of sales people, mechanics in all types of garage work, body men, clean up men, office personnel, etc., continue to serve the people of Murray, Calloway County, and the entire Purchase area with the same calibre of business and efficiency that was started by their father, the late Hafford Parker, in 1928.

Jerri Andrews Named General Manager Of Frim

Jerri Andrews, former district manager for Weight Loss Medical Center, has been named general manager of the Memphis Centers according to Larry Shairman, president of Lou-Mem Associates, holder of the firm's franchise.

A graduate of Murray State University Andrews began her career with Weight Loss Medical Centers as Supervisor of Nursing in October of 1977.

Formerly of Evansville, Indiana, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse L. Johnson of Murray, and is currently working toward a Master of Science degree in nursing from the University of Tennessee.

Ad Program Wins Award

A 1977 advertising program developed for the Master Charge credit card in the midwest area that includes west Kentucky has won the highest international marketing award of its kind from the Interbank Card Association.

Interbank, the parent company of Master Charge throughout the world, presents the Silver "I" Award each year to only one of the 250 eligible Master Charge plans in the international Interbank system.

The award was presented at Interbank's annual meeting in San Diego recently to Credit Systems Incorporated, the St. Louis-based operating center for Master Charge, which developed the campaign. The campaign utilized television commercials and outdoor boards while making direct reference to the competitive advantage of Master Charge over the other national charge cards.

The campaign's theme was, "Nothing's Changed With Us," and the Award cited the program as being "direct, hard-hitting and memorable... the speed with which the campaign was mounted was impressive... and the graphics themselves, effective!"

cost of building schools, roads, hospitals and other public works in Kentucky would be higher than it is now... David Silver, president of the Institute, said today.

Long-term borrowing by local governments throughout the United States last year jumped over 30 percent to a new record. Such as rapid increase would normally have meant an increase in borrowing costs through higher interest rates.

Yet during the year, long-term interest rates on municipal bonds fell from 5.83 percent to 5.66 percent, representing a 3 percent interest saving to tax payers. The decline was due partly to the advent and rapid growth of municipal bond funds, which have extended the opportunity to invest in municipal bonds to many investors who did not previously have easy access to this sophisticated form of investment.

Last year 24 municipal bond funds bought bonds issued by the State of Kentucky and local governments within the state. They included Louisville Water System, Kentucky Turnpike Authority, Kentucky Housing Corporation and Lexington Center Corporation.

During the year municipal bonds totalling $640 million were issued in the state.

Municipal bond funds pool the money of investors and buy an average of 40 or more tax-exempt bonds. They pass on interest free of federal taxes to shareholders.

For a typical married couple with a taxable income of $20,000 to $24,000, a 5 1/2 percent rate of interest free of federal taxes in equivalent to 8.1 percent. With a taxable income of $32,000 to $36,000, it is equal to 9.5 percent.

There are now 35 municipal bond funds with over 150,000 shareholders and assets of $2.5 billion. They own municipal bonds and draw their shareholders from all over the United States.

JFK Assassination Revisited

Like Banquo's famous ghost, the assassination of President John F. Kennedy will not rest; it continues to haunt the nation. More than 100 books have been published on the subject, as well as thousands of newspaper and magazine articles. As recently as last year, a Gallup poll indicated an astonishing 81 percent of Americans believed the assassin, Lee Harvey Oswald, conspired with others to murder President Kennedy.

Now, in the 15th year since that epochal event shook the world, a new and important book, "LEGEND, The Secret World Of Lee Harvey Oswald," by Edward Jay Epstein, has been published under the auspices of the Reader's Digest and is being distributed by McGraw-Hill.

In it, Epstein presents some fresh and startling insights about Oswald, ferreted out of tens of thousands of pages of intelligence material in the National Archives that has been made available by the Freedom of Information Act.

Even more important, he has recorded completely new information gleaned from more than 400 personal interviews during a two-year period with members of U.S. intelligence agencies and persons who had close contact with Oswald, some of whom have never been questioned before. In short, the book closes some of the numerous gaps left by the Warren Commission.

What emerges is a fascinating description of Oswald — a month-to-month recapitulation of his life leading up to the assassination. His activities have never been pieced together so fully.

Instead of an unhinged loner shooting the president of the United States, as the world would infer from the Warren Commission, we see Oswald as a highly intelligent, purposeful young man and a dedicated Communist who engaged in espionage even as an enlisted Marine during the late 1950s while stationed at a secret U.S. airbase at Atsugi, Japan.

It was from Atsugi that the famous U-2 plane took off for surveillance flights over Communist China and the Soviet Union. Indeed, Epstein makes a convincing case that Oswald, after he defected to Russia in the autumn of 1959, provided vital information about the U-2's flight characteristics that permitted the Soviets, after numerous failures, to bring down the U-2 piloted by Francis Gary Powers.

Thus, it is astonishing to learn that Oswald, who singlehandedly overthrew the Kennedy administration by murder, was probably responsible for the most stunning single episode during the Eisenhower years.

But for all the new information about Oswald, the book's greatest value is its insight into the deadly international struggle between the intelligence services of the United States and the Soviet Union.

For years after the deaths of Kennedy and Oswald in Dallas, the pulling and hauling between the two espionage networks concentrated around Oswald's connection with the KGB while in the Soviet Union. Central to this drama was a Soviet citizen, Yuri Nosenko, who presented himself to the CIA in Geneva as a defecting KGB agent.

Nosenko's mission, Epstein persuades us, was to convince the American government that, despite all the evidence to the contrary, Oswald had no connections whatsoever with the KGB. Nosenko's own KGB connection was so full of contradictions that the CIA placed him in confinement for several years in a vain attempt to break his cover.

A disturbing side effect of the convulsion that has shaken the CIA during the post-Watergate era is that Nosenko has been rehabilitated. Indeed, he is now a CIA consultant at $30,000 per year; his CIA accusers have all been purged, according to Epstein. We are told those who dismissed Oswald's Soviet and Cuban connections now hold the reins at the CIA. This seems a measure of how things have been turned inside out in Washington.

A bizarre postscript to this book was the shooting death of the Russian-born George De Mohrenschildt, a mystery man involved with four intelligence agencies as well as Oswald during the time preceding the assassination. One spring day in 1976 in Dallas, Mohrenschildt was found with his head blown off, apparently by a self-inflicted shotgun blast, during a lunch break in an interview with Epstein.

This shooting prompts one to reflect on another and more recent one. Pornographer Larry Flynt was gunned down a month ago in Georgia, and remains barely alive from wounds. Flynt had offered $1 million for information solving the Kennedy assassination and, moreover, the last issue of his now-defunct Los Angeles Free Press was devoted to a sensational expose of that event.

Whether there is some grotesque linkage between Flynt, his attempted murder, and the Kennedy assassination may never be known. But it is no more implausible than the strange web of international intrigue that Epstein has unwound for us in his book about Lee Harvey Oswald, the KGB, the CIA and the FBI.

A young playwright invited Sir Laurence Olivier to a preview of his new play. The actor, however, slept through most of the performance.

"How could you sleep," screamed the offended author, "when you know I asked you here for your opinion?"

"Young man," replied Sir Laurence, "sleep is an opinion."

The theatre audience in Amsterdam applauded the magician who had just wrapped three layers of cloth around a book and read a paragraph from any page that was called out. A woman in the third row nudged her husband.

"Let's get out of here," she whispered.

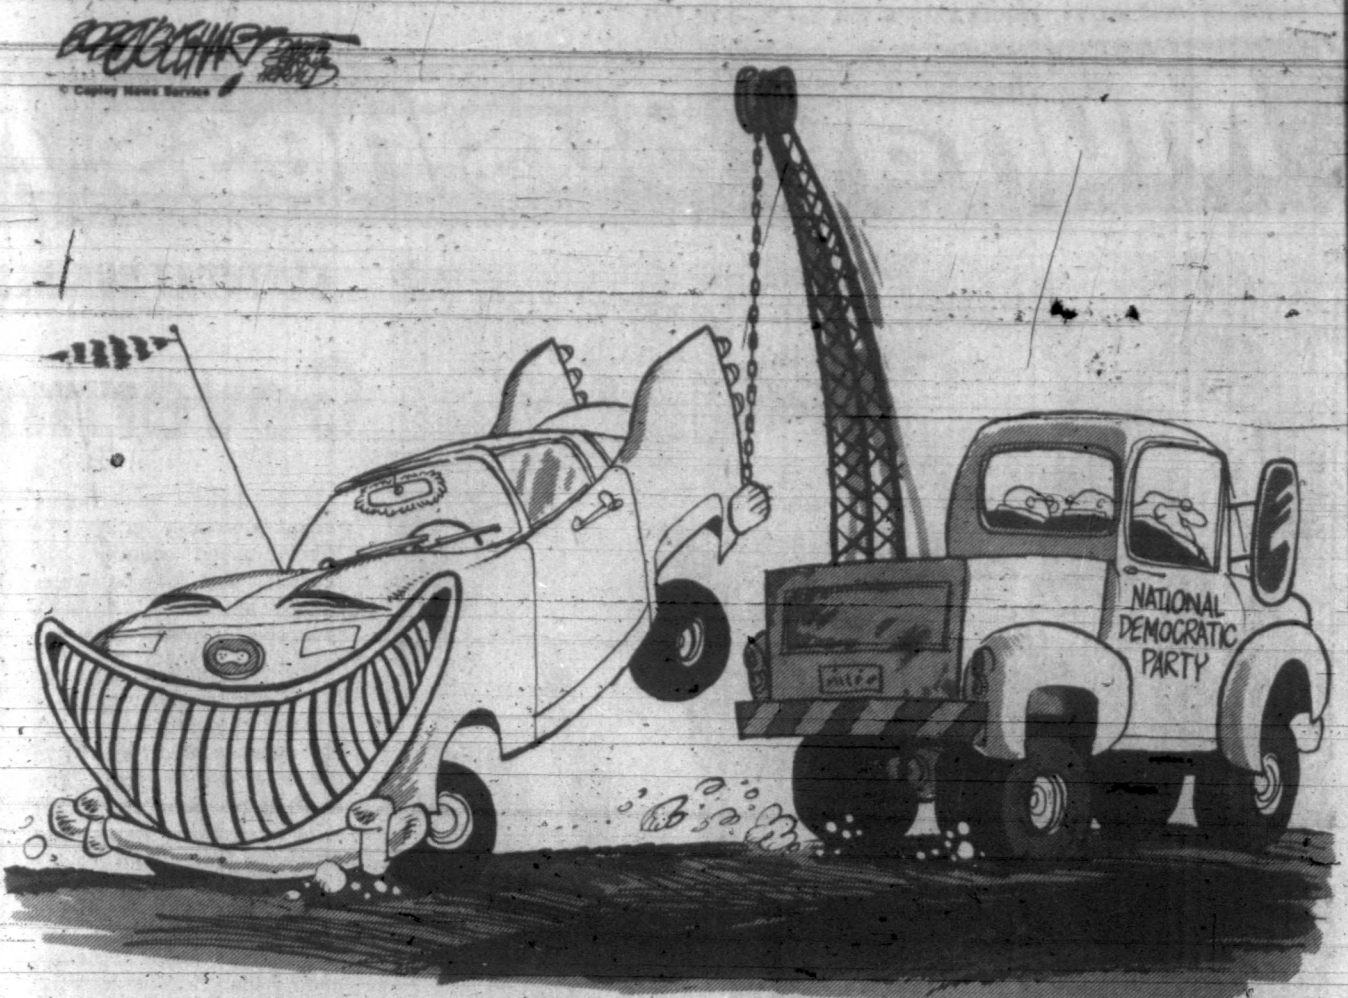

"No, now. This guy's good?"

"That's just it," she said. "With eyes like his, this is no place for a good woman wearing a thin silk dress."

Those TV shows that have the disclaimer, "Subject Matter May Be Too Mature for Children" do two things. They mature the children and it keeps them quiet.

A theater usher walked down the aisle and whispered to a man in the sixth row. Then the usher and the man walked toward the exit. "What's the matter?" one of the spectators asked her companion. "Do you suppose they're putting him out for laughing too hard?"

"No," he answered. "I guess the manager sent for him to find out what he was laughing at."

Echoes From The Past

By Judy Maupin

(A Column of historical and genealogical anecdotes, stories and family notes.)

More About James Ford

After the columns done recently on the Ford Gang and Cave-in-Rock, I received several comments from readers. Among one of these was an article done several years ago by Hall Allen, entitled "Mystery of James Ford Still Exists." He commented that Ford's Landing on the Ohio River had been on navigation maps from as long ago as 1822 and was still shown on some today.

From this column I quote the following:

The name of James Ford was one that would get you a log of arguments around Salem and Smithland. There were those who claimed that he was one of the outlaws that operated there for so many years. Others would insist that Jim Ford was a law-abiding citizen who chased away any highwayman who appeared in the community. Nobody can be sure who was wrong and who was right.

It isn't disputed that he was the first real advocate of good roads in this part of the state. But some were quick to point out that he was in favor of good roads when they led in the general direction of Ford's Ferry.

At the time Ford operated his ferry across the Ohio, settlers were moving northward into Illinois, and ferrying them across the river provided a good livelihood. Ford knew that a river crossing with the best roads leading to and from it usually got the most business. Through his influence, Ford was able to get the county to maintain a good road from Pickering Hill to the ferry. He was not so fortunate on the Illinois side. He was not able to persuade the authorities in Illinois to change the old Low Water Road running north from the ferry. Because it was covered with water during floods, he wasn't able to get many passengers on his ferry during high water.

So he opened up a new road, built at his own expense. He ran it over higher ground that did not flood, the 12 miles to Pott's Hill, and it became known as Ford's Ferry High Water Road.

Jim Ford was a firm believer in advertising. He placed signboards at crossroads throughout the area directing travelers over his good roads to Ford's Ferry. He also placed cards in taverns for miles around and was soon getting most of the business.

His two sons, Philip and William were suspected, along with their father, of being members of the local outlaw band. Both of them died in Crittenden County (then Livingston County) and were given "decent burials" in a little cemetery on the Old Ford Place.

On Philip's gravestone were the words: "To the memory of Philip Ford who was born November 25th, 1800 and departed this life November 22nd, 1831." William's epitaph was more complete and pictured him as a sort of Robin Hood of Western Kentucky backwoods. It said: "To the memory of William M. Ford, who departed this life on the 3rd day of November 1832, aged 28 years. Whose benevolence caused the widow and orphan to smile and whose firmness caused his enemies to tremble. He was much apprest while living and much slandered since dead."

It was said that Jim Ford wanted an epitaph like William's, but no stone was ever put over his grave after his violent death.

I also received a few calls concerning the "Infidel of Golden Pond," one from a Mr. Raymond Matheny who had been acquainted with the Mr. Rhodes who was the subject of that column. He supported the statement that Mr. Rhodes was a kind and benevolent man who was well liked by all who knew him, in spite of his religious beliefs, or lack of them. He said that he had gone to school with the son Darwin, and that he remembered the morning when the roses disappeared from the yard.

History is made up of the stories of people's lives, and these stories should be recorded for future generations. If there are any more people who read this column and feel that there is a story which should be set down for future generations, please contact me. I will be happy to listen and record anything which will help our progeny know what life was like before their time.

Racers Nipped In Close Track Meet

By MIKE BRANDON
Ledger & Times Sports Editor

How close can a track meet be? Try this one for size: Going into the last event, the mile-relay, one team had 59 points, another had 57 and the last-place team had 56.

That was the situation the Murray State University track team found itself Friday in a triangular meet at Austin Peay. Middle had the most points with Austin Peay 57 and Murray State 56.

And in a triangular meet, the winner of a relay gets five points and the second-place team gets three points. The last-place team gets none.

Murray didn't finish last in the mile-relay. They were last, but they didn't finish. The reason... they didn't start it. The Racers couldn't field a team.

As a result, Middle won the mile-relay and finished with 64 points while Austin Peay ran its total to 60 points and

Murray finished up with 56. "We just couldn't field a team. Marshall Crawley had a problem with his leg and we didn't have anyone else left to run," said Racer coach Bill Cornell.

As usual, the Racers had good efforts in the middle distance and distance events and did well in the field events.

The surprise of the day came from Bardonia freshman Jeff Hickman in the triple jump. Two weeks ago at the Florida Relays, he set a personal best with a 45-5½.

In the triangular Friday, he became Murray's second-best, all-time triple jumper by leaping 50-4 and earning second place. He's still a foot behind the record held by Patmore Chatham but since graduating from high school, Hickman has improved by over five feet.

Besides the mile-relay, there was another event which hurt the Racers. High-jumper Axel Leitmayr went to the meet but came down with a toothache and didn't participate. As a result, Murray got no points in the event.

In other field events, Stan Simmons won the discus with a 146-1 while freshman Englishman Andy Vince placed third with a 139-11. In the shot put, Simmons was second with a 53-1½ and Vince fourth with a 50-6½.

Simmons, a workhorse with the weight events, also participated in the javelin and placed second with a 161-0 while John Holloway was a close third with a throw of 159-8.

In the only other field events, freshman Everton Cornelius was fourth in the long jump with a 23-3½ and Keith Forton had a 14-0 for second in the pole vault.

Cornelius ran a 10.0 and managed to finish second in the 100-yard dash, ran against the win. The Racers were blanked in the 220, the 440, the hurdles and the relays.

But in the bread and butter events, the Racers laid it on thick.

MSU swept three of four places in the mile-run as Dave Warren and Marilyn Brewer tied for first in 4:09 while Jerry Odlin was fourth in 4:11.

In the 800, Dave Rafferty placed first in 1:52.1 while Pat Chimes was second in 1:52.4 and Mitch Johnston fourth in 1:54.8.

Murray's best performance came in the three-mile run. MSU took all four places. Brewer and Odlin crossed together in 13:59.4 while Richard Charleston was third with a personal best of 14:04 and Dave Warren fourth with a personal best of 14:07.

"We had the meet in atrocious conditions," Cornell said.

"It was very cold and the wind was strong. We had a couple of people who just weren't mentally tough and that let us down. Other than that, we had a good team effort."

"I still firmly believe we have a chance at winning the OVC Championship."

"There are going to be eight teams splitting up the points. And both Middle Tennessee and Austin Peay are two of the heavy favorites in the meet," Cornell added.

The Racers will participate in the Drake Relays next week, if the weather is warm up north. Otherwise, the Racers will take off next weekend and prepare for the OVC Championships which are set for May 5 and 6 at Middle Tennessee.

Racer Tennis Team Ups Season Record To 18-6

Murray State's tennis team, inching closer to a 20-win season, upped its record to an impressive 18-6 Friday afternoon with a 7-2 OVC home win over Tennessee Tech.

The Racers, hosting a weekend quadrangular, will play Louisville this morning before hosting Fort Campbell at 2:30 p.m. this afternoon.

Against Tech, the Racers won four of six singles matches and swept the doubles.

The losses came at one and at four. Ragnar Felix fell 3-6, 2-6 at number one to Tech's Craig Heinrich while at four, Roger Berthiaume lost in split sets, falling 5-7, 6-2 and 3-6 to Mike Price.

In the other singles, Jan Soegaard won 3-6, 6-4 and 7-6 (5-2 tiebreaker) at number two over Peter Neufeld; Chris Leonard won 6-2, 6-2 at three over Bob Spillman; Jeff Leeper won 6-2, 6-0 at five over Rod Humphrey; and at six, Tom Lie won a 6-3, 6-1 match over Charlie Jansing.

In an extremely well-played doubles match, Felix-Lie won a 5-3 tie-breaker in the first set over Heinrich-Spillman then in the second set, lost 4-6. But in the third set, Felix-Lie won another tiebreaker, 5-1, to take the match.

Soegaard-Berthiaume won 6-1, 6-3 at two over Neufeld-Price while at three, Leonard-Leeper won 6-2, 6-2 over Humphrey-Jansing.

The Racers will play at Austin Peay Monday.

Tennis fans will want to mark next Friday and Saturday on the calendar. With the victory over Tech, the Racers now stand at 5-1 in OVC play. Memphis State will be here and of course, playing number one singles is former Murray High standout Mel Purcell, son of MSU coach Bennie Purcell.

Dan Issel Sparks Denver Win Victory

By BERT ROSENTHAL

AP Sports Writer

Dan Issel of Denver and Bill Walton of Portland have been two of the most maligned centers in the National Basketball Association.

Issel has been criticized verbally for his inability to perform well under pressure and Walton has been rapped physically by opposing players, suffering numerous injuries in his four-year NBA career.

The presence of one — Issel — and the absence of the other — Walton — perhaps sparked their teams to victories in playoff games Friday night.

The burly Issel triggered a string of 21 Denver points as the Nuggets overwhelmed the Milwaukee Bucks 127-111 and took a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven quarter-final series.

The brittle Walton was on the bench the entire second half, after his injured left foot was stepped on in the second period, as the Trail Blazers, possibly spurred by his absence, rallied for a 96-93 victory over the Seattle SuperSonics, squaring their series 1-1.

In another game, Bob Dandridge, Elvin Hayes and Charlie Johnson combined for 77 points as the Washington Bullets blizzed the San Antonio Spurs 118-105 and took a 2-1 lead in their series.

In the other quarter-final series, the Philadelphia 76ers lead the New York Knicks 3-0.

The next game in each series will be played Sunday.

With Denver trailing 53-52 and only two minutes remaining in the first half, Issel scored seven of the Nuggets' 11 consecutive points before intermission, producing a 63-53 halftime lead.

Denver also scored the first 10 points of the second half, with rookie Anthony Roberts hitting the first two baskets, Issel tipping in a shot and Issel feeding Bobby Jones for two easy layups.

The spree gave Denver a 73-53 bulge and the Bucks never recovered.

"We lost our poise," said Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson. "We had a total breakdown. We were embarrassed. The size of the loss usually doesn't make any difference... but I would say this was demoralizing."

"I'm sure that a runaway like that in the second half, especially after they had played so well in the first half, has to have some effect on them," said Issel, who paced Denver's balanced scoring with 22 points and grabbed a game-high 14 rebounds.

"Earlier, we were playing at their tempo," added Issel. "If we can control the offensive boards, we can control the game."

"We played great," conceded Denver Coach Larry Brown. "I think it was only a loss (for Milwaukee), not an embarrassment."

Bobby Jones added 21 points for Denver. David Thompson had 20 and Roberts scored 19. Marques Johnson led Milwaukee with 22.

Trail Blazers 96, SuperSonics 93.

Portland, with Walton on the court, fell behind Seattle 49-40 in the first half. But the Trail Blazers, defending NBA champions, quickly caught up — with the injured Walton on the bench — scoring the first nine points of the second half.

The lead then changed often before Maurice Lucas' basket with 1:17 remaining put Portland ahead to stay 95-93.

Corky Calhoun's free throw with 32 seconds left was the game's final point. Then Seattle's Gus Williams, the game's high scorer with 31 points, was called for an offensive foul as the game ended.

"We win when we play tough defense and run our offense," said Portland Coach Jack Ramsay. "In the fourth quarter, I thought we showed greater tenacity and toughness on defense."

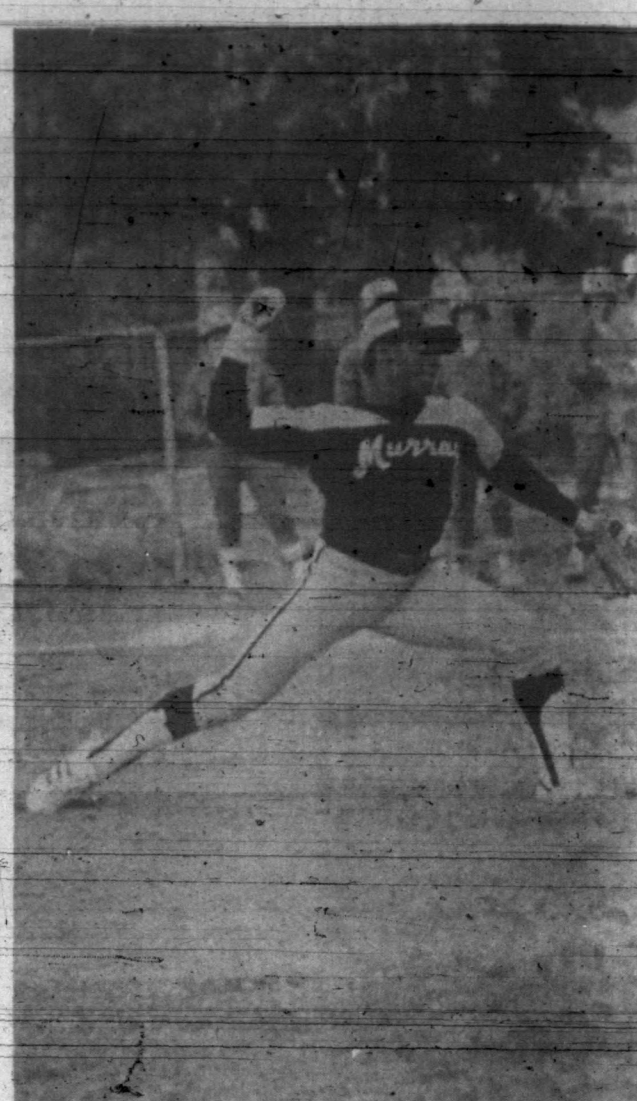

"The main reason we lost is because the players just got too anxious," said Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens. "We should have gotten better shots at the end."

Lucas led Portland with 19 points and 14 rebounds.

Bullets 118, Spurs 105

Dandridge, who finished with 28 points, and Hayes, who had 27, got Washington off to a big early lead, then Johnson, a reserve, scored 10 of his 22 points in the fourth quarter, putting a damper on any San Antonio comeback hopes.

"Our passing game is breaking down, but we've always been able to bounce back," said disappointed Coach Doug Moe, whose Spurs have not lost more than three games in a row this season. "We've got to get straightened out quick or we're out of this thing."

GOES DISTANCE — Thomas Kendall went the distance in the cold at Holland Stadium Friday as the Murray High Tigers won a 10-2 game over Calloway County. Kendall scattered four hits and struck out 10 batters.

Racer To Scrimmage Today

Friday was "comeback" day in the Murray State University football camp.

First of all, the team came back to participate for the first time since Monday as the weather conditions have hampered this week's activity.

Secondly, it was "comeback" day for several players. First-string quarterback Roger Rushing, injured in a scrimmage a week ago Thursday, returned to practice and defensive end Bill Shannon, out for well over a week, also returned.

"Both Roger and Bobby had guarded activity," said MSU assistant coach Tommie Liggins.

"We've had such a long layoff that we really didn't do much hitting. It was more or less a learning day."

"We put in some more new plays, both offensive and defensive. We're just trying to get back into the swing of things. We'll have a major scrimmage today," Liggins added.

The scrimmage will be held at the practice field at 1:15 p.m. and the public is invited to attend.

"Defensively, we had a pretty good workout. Roy Hackley had a fine day at his defensive back position. He's a hard worker and is very consistent. Linebacker Bobby Craig also had a good day. He's the type of guy who always gives everything he has and he's a real leader."

"Offensively, the same people who have been looking good played well. Doug Shelton looked tough at his wide receiver position and Danny Lee Johnson and Lindsey Hudspeth both played well. Lindsey is still learning but he's becoming more consistent each time out," Liggins added.

The Racers will have one more full week of work before the Blue-Gold Game which is set for May 4.

Tigers Rip Lakers 10-2 As Kendall Throws Gem

By MIKE BRANDON
Ledger & Times Sports Editor
If Scott Barrow can find the same control from 60 feet and six inches as he has from 127 feet, the Calloway County High School baseball team will be in good shape.

Playing perhaps the finest game of his career, Barrow rifled down three Murray High batters trying to steal second base. However, the rest of the Laker arms weren't as accurate and Murray High came away with a 10-2 win Friday afternoon in chilled Holland Stadium.

Neither team exactly tore the cover off the ball, though Murray did put a few more dents in the ball than did the Lakers who were held hitless through three innings by Tiger righthander Thomas Kendall.

The Tigers, who had not played since Monday, managed eight hits in the game while the Lakers finally found their hitting eyes and touched Kendall for four hits.

Kendall, keeping the Lakers off stride with a sharply-break curve, sent down 10 batters on strikes and showed fine control as he walked just three. One of the Laker runs was earned.

Meanwhile, Laker righthander Craig Rogers struggled with control problems. He had one whiff but walked 13 batters and that, along with errors, proved to be his undoing.

Calloway committed six errors in the game as Rogers gave up only three earned runs.

The Laker set the tone for their defensive game in the top of the first as Murray High scored four unearned runs. Kendall started the game with a single and after swiping second, scored when Bill Wilson rifled a single.

After a walk to Bob Thurman and a fly out by Brad Taylor, Tiger catcher John Denham hit a slow roller down toward third but Keith Edwards of the Lakers couldn't pull the trigger and everyone was safe. After Dean Cherry hit into a fielder's choice to score a run, Alan Gibbs ripped a two-run single into center for a 4-0 lead.

Gibbs also provided the fifth run for Murray when in the top of the third, he cannoned a long shot into the left-center power alley and wound up with a triple, scoring Denham who had reached on a fielder's choice.

The Lakers' first run came in their half of the third when Barrow walked, stole second, was wild pitched to third and scored on an error by Tiger second baseman Mickey Spann.

Murray made it 7-1 in the fifth and could have made it much more had not the Lakers come up with a fine play. David Stripling smacked a two-run single and was on first with one out when Alan Gibbs hit a wicked shot to freshman shortstop James Bynum who made the stab and fired to first for the inning-ending twinkling.

The Tigers upped the lead to 8-1 in the sixth with a run being walked in while in the last of the sixth, the Lakers scored their second and final run on a single by Keith Edwards.

Kendall slapped a two-run single in the top of the seventh for the Tigers to end the scoring.

Calloway County, which will play two today with South

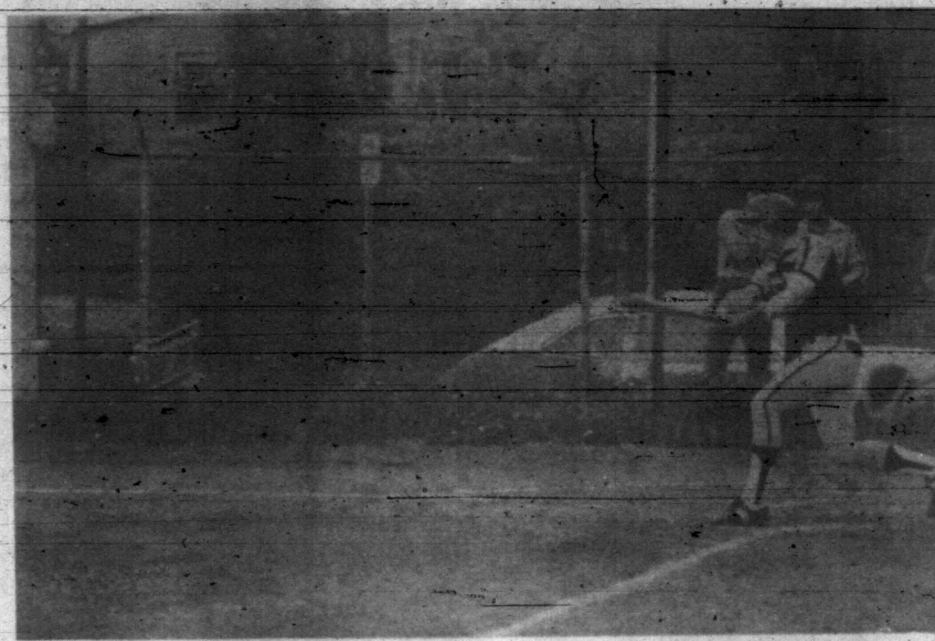

Hopkins, drops to 2-6 on the season. The doubleheader will get underway at 1 p. m. at the Murray-Calloway County Park.

The Tigers improve their record to an impressive 6-1 and will play at Paducah Tilghman Monday.

Joe Morgan Breaks NL Record, Cincy Loses; Astros Top LA

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Joe Morgan was perfect, even if his Cincinnati teammates weren't. Win or lose, the Reds can usually expect an infallible fielding performance from their fifty second baseman — and he didn't let them down Friday night.

Once again the indestructible Morgan was perfect as he handled five chances cleanly against the San Francisco Giants to set a major league record of 90 straight errorless games at second base.

Unfortunately, the Reds didn't have any hitting to go along with Morgan's flawless fielding and as a result lost a 3-0 decision to the Giants.

Morgan's accomplishment broke the old record of 89 consecutive games set by the Baltimore Orioles' Jerry Adair in 1964-65. Morgan did most of the work for the spectacular streak last year, when he tied the major league mark for least errors in a season with five. That record put more pressure on him than his latest one, he says.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Houston Astros beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-6; the Chicago Cubs blanked the New York Mets 5-0 and the San Diego Padres routed the Atlanta Braves 9-3. Two games were rained out — Philadelphia at Montreal and St. Louis at Pittsburgh.

While Morgan was establishing a major league mark for efficiency, the usually hardhitting Reds were being stifled by the three-hit pitching of Bob Knepper.

Knepper struck out 10 batters in winning a pitcher's duel with Tom Seaver, who allowed two hits over seven innings.

Astros 8, Dodgers 6
Joe Ferguson slammed a three-run homer in the eighth inning and Houston pulled off a triple play in the ninth to beat Los Angeles.

The Dodgers had gone ahead in the seventh 6-5, but relief pitcher Bobby Castillo walked Jose Cruz and Bob Watson to lead off the Houston eighth. Ferguson then hit his fourth homer of the season and second against his former teammates.

Cubs 5, Mets 0
Dave Kingman slugged a three-run homer and rookie Dennis Lamp earned his first major league victory with a four-hitter, leading Chicago past New York. Kingman's second homer of the year came on a 3-2 pitch from Craig Swan and highlighted a four-run rally in the sixth inning.

Lamp walked three and struck out one in pitching his first complete game in the majors.

Padres 9, Braves 3
Gaylord Perry's RBI double highlighted a two-run, sixth-inning rally which snapped a 2-2 tie and sparked San Diego over Atlanta.

Perry, who had been to the plate officially only twice since the 1971 season, when he was with the San Francisco Giants, also had another double and a single to help lead the Padres' attack. His second double knocked in a run for San Diego in a four-run eighth.

The California invader was Grenzen, the terror of her age and sex at Santa Anita this season. She won the Pasadena, Santa Ynez and Santa Susana stakes before being beaten by a nose April 5 in the La Habra Stakes.

From Canada came L'Alezane, that country's horse of the year last season. She won the Alcibiades Stakes last fall, then easily scored in a 7-furlong allowance last week.

Colt League Meeting Set For Tuesday
An organizational meeting of the Colt League will be held at 7 p. m. Tuesday.

The meeting will be at the Wilson Insurance and Real Estate Office across from the Murray Post Office.

All parents of 15 and 16-year-old Colt League prospects are urged to attend the meeting.

The League has openings for managers and coaches. Also, the league plans to hold a tourney at the end of the summer season.

Fenway Park Cozy To Boston, Sox Win; Orioles Edge Royals

By BERT ROSENTHAL

AP Sports Writer

Boston's cozy Fenway Park often has been referred to as "friendly."

The compact stadium, with its short left field and right field foul lines and its 33,502 seating capacity — the smallest in the major leagues — has been extremely friendly for the Red Sox, who have played seven games at home — and won them all.

The latest victory — extending their overall winning streak to eight games — came Friday night, a 9-7 triumph over the Cleveland Indians.

"The Red Sox can hit, really they can hit," Cleveland Manager Jeff Torborg said admiringly after Boston's marauders continued their remarkable bombardment of rival pitchers.

In the seven-game home skein, the Red Sox have produced 60 runs, an average of more than eight per game, blasted 11 homers — and collected 92 hits, more than 13 per game.

In other American League games, the Baltimore Orioles edged the Kansas City Royals

2-1, the Milwaukee Brewers whipped the New York Yankees 9-2, the California Angels defeated the Minnesota Twins 3-2, the Oakland A's downed the Seattle Mariners 5-3, and the Chicago White Sox trounced the Toronto Blue Jays 11-2.

One game — Texas at Detroit — was postponed because of inclement weather.

Orioles 2, Royals 1
The combined five-hit pitching of Jim Palmer and Don Stanhouse enabled Baltimore to snap Kansas City's winning streak at eight.

Palmer, after throwing 121 pitches in eight innings on a cold, blustery night in Baltimore, asked Manager Earl Weaver to replace him. The victory was Palmer's ninth in a row since last August.

Brewers 9, Yankees 2
Milwaukee tagged New York's Ed Figueroa for eight runs in the fifth inning, the last two on a homer by Ben Oglivie, in beating the defending champions for the third time in three games this season. Jim Wohlford and Don Money also drove in two runs in the decisive fifth — the biggest inning by any team against the Yankees in four years.

Angels 3, Twins 2
California, in handing Minnesota its fifth straight setback, snapped a 1-1 tie with two runs in the sixth on Don Baylor's homer, Ron Jackson's double and Dave Chalk's RBI single. Don Aase and Dave LaRoche held the Twins to six hits. Dave Goltz, a 20-game winner last year, suffered his third loss without a victory this season.

A's 5, Mariners 3
Gary Alexander slugged a solo homer and triggered a two-run inning with a single, helping surprising Oakland win its ninth game in 12 decisions. Seattle was scoreless with only four hits before breaking through for four hits and three runs in the ninth.

White Sox 11, Blue Jays 2
The White Sox battered four Toronto pitchers for 17 hits, including two-run homers by Chet Lemon, Eric Soderholm and Bill Nahorodny. Chet Lemon, hitting a robust .444, had three hits, drove in three runs and scored twice, while Junior Moore also collected three hits and scored three times.

Non-Profit A.W.A.R.E. Foundation Set-Up To Tell The True Story Of Wildlife Management

BASSETT, NEB.—The wail of coyotes at each end of the deep wooded canyon, the purr of the wild turkeys as they prepare to fly into the night's roost, the sudden warm breeze that sweeps over the prairie hillside just at sunset, the orange moonrise over the meandering Niobrara River. These and more are all part of America's wild resources. Protecting, managing and perpetuating this scene is the work of the professional wildlife and fisheries managers and their staffs around the country. More than 100,000 people labor at this task.

Up to now telling their story has generally been done on a state by state basis. Now, however, a national communications program has been developed to periodically keep the American public informed of the state of this nation's wildlife, fishes and other natural resources. Dr. John Gottschalk, Executive Vice President, International Association of Fish and Wildlife Agencies (IAFWA) has announced the formation of a new non-profit educational foundation to be known as A. W. A. R. E. — American's Wildlife Association for Resource Education.

The IAFWA is composed of our 50 state fish and wildlife departments, the Canadian Provinces and Mexico. Federal agencies belonging to the IAFWA include the U. S. Fish & Wildlife Service, U. S. Forest Service and the Bureau of Land Management.

In making the announcement Dr. Gottschalk, former director Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife, U. S. Dept. of Interior, stated, "The fawn, the eagle, the Coho Salmon, the disappearing wildlife habitat...all of them are concern of the professional fisheries and wildlife manager. Thousands of important research projects are underway every day of the year to help us protect these priceless and irreplaceable natural resources. We think the American Public deserves to know about this important work so that they can better understand the realistic problems and opportunities that face their state and federal natural resource trustees. We must depend on private donations to get our message across."

A. W. A. R. E. has been designated a non-profit foundation by the U. S. Internal Revenue Service. Donations can be made to help in this important public awareness program by sending check or money order to: A. W. A. R. E., Box 2954, Washington, D. C. 20013

Director of game management says

Don't "Adopt" Wildlife

This is the time of year when a camper, hiker or fisherman is most likely to encounter young wild animals in the woods. The first impulse, in many instances, is a desire to "adopt" the baby skunk, raccoon, fawn or whatever. But the best course of action, according to Joe Bruna, fish and wildlife's director of game management, is to leave baby animals, even those seemingly "orphaned," where they are.

Although this advice may at first glance seem hard hearted, it is actually kinder in the long run for both the animal and the human involved, Bruna says.

In the first place, the baby animal may not be orphaned at all. A fawn, for example, that seems all alone in the big woods probably has an anxious mother waiting nearby, but she will not show herself while a human is in the vicinity.

The care and feeding of a young animal is demanding and complicated, and most of those taken from the wild will die unless they are given the expert care that only a knowledgeable person can provide.

And if the animal does survive past infancy, other problems arise. Unlike dogs or cats, which have been domesticated for centuries, wild animals seldom lose their "wild" nature. An adult deer, particularly a buck, can be extremely dangerous and a raccoon, even one raised in the house, starts thinking he can whip anybody in the family when he gets to weigh about 25 pounds — and he's right.

Wild animals raised in captivity can seldom be successfully returned to the wilds, presenting their owners with the problem of what to do with an unmanageable adult fox, raccoon, skunk or deer. Often the animal must be destroyed, since it is almost impossible to get zoos to accept wild pets.

Then there's the problem of disease. Wild animals can carry and transmit to man several diseases, the most serious of which is rabies. Often, an animal which allows itself to be captured is diseased, and any animal which does not show a normal fear of man or displays signs of distress should be left strictly alone.

Skunks are particularly dangerous, since they can carry the rabies virus for six to eight months before symptoms appear. Even a skunk bought from a pet store and certified disease-free could develop rabies months after it is purchased.

Skunks and foxes probably represent the most common reservoirs for rabies in the wilds, although virtually all mammals are capable of carrying this disease and transmitting it to man. The danger of rabies, by itself, is reason enough to leave wildlife in the woods.

Finally, there's the legal aspect. To keep wildlife as pets, a permit from the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources is required, and a permit will be granted only for those animals taken during the open season for that particular species.

Without a permit, the animal is subject to confiscation and the owner can be fined. A conservation officer, upon application for a permit, will check to see if the animal was obtained legally and if the facilities for keeping it are sanitary and of adequate size.

The officer will also make periodic checks to make sure the animal is being well cared for.

So for both animals and people, the best course of action is to leave wildlife in the wilds. Although the impulse to adopt a wild creature can be great, it's better to enjoy birds and animals in their natural surroundings instead of subjecting both them and you to unnecessary hardships.

The leopard, once supposed to be a cross between the lion and panther, takes its name from two words — leo, meaning lion, and pardus, meaning panther.

Where to Canoe

Some of the most popular canoeing waters of the southeastern states are described in a new booklet, "Where to Canoe," produced by the Canoe Manufacturers Committee of the Boating Industry Associations.

The 16-page booklet lists 94 canoeing waters in Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and Delaware. Each state segment begins with a map indicating and numbering the waterways, and each waterway is described by mileage from head waters to finish, type of waters (whitewater or flat), point of origin, access points, proximity to cities and towns and highlighting any scenic, recreational and historical features.

"The 'Where to Canoe' guide is just one key to the wonderful world of canoeing—a back-to-nature world of solitude, peace and quiet, of breathtaking rapids and chutes, or exploring near and distant waterways that lead to places that can be reached only by water, of bird watching and wildlife photography, fishing and picnicking on sandbars," according to Leon Harkins, Committee Chairman.

"It also clearly demonstrates that canoe owners do not have to travel many miles to find ideal recreational waters," Harkins noted. "One of the big advantages of owning a canoe is that you can find great cruising waters just a few steps from your back door."

The guide presents basic information for planning canoe trips and list more detailed sources of information. Basic safety information also is included.

Brrr! The wife borrowed the heater for the camper last weekend and has done her usual prompt job of returning it to the doghouse where the typewriter resides and yours truly now attempts to etch out this week's thoughts amidst near arctic conditions. To those of you who think with a chuckle that the writer is well insulated and thus protected—may your four-wheelers sink deep.

What a week! Last weekend we had the privilege of tagging along on the first Twin Lakes Four Wheelers campout for the year down at Camp Energy. A truly beautiful weekend and a lot of fun besides. Charley and Mary Mariatte who have moved off up state were back. And they drove up in a brand spanking new 1978 Scout they had just received that morning. A very, very clean four wheel drive. It drew a lot of high praise from other members.

Remarks like "Farmall has stayed pretty close to the original thresher concept haven't they?" and "you mean that thing is really made in this country?" were heard. Just the sort of thing to really help a fellow who has just laid out umpteen thousand green stamps acquired from various sources. Well, it did have to be tried out. Come on Turkey Creek.

Now would you believe that upright respectable four-wheelers would dash on ahead of the pack; select a hewmongous triple whammy Grade A mudhole; drive a rig in at one end a short distance and back out; back a rig in at the other end a short distance and drive out; and then boast mightily in the presence of all others a few moments later that their rig had successfully negotiated the bottomless swamp in question? And wonder out loud if a Scout might not be able to do so? Having been one of the admitted greenhorns of the group for over a year previous, Charley was not totally convinced. Evidence of the fact he is learning! He insisted someone else perform the feat in his own view.

Junior Pittman fired off "old Blue"—a tried and true and sometimes broken Bronco with many, many Cheerio's under the hood and bodacious tires on all corners. It did manage to cross the goosy mess though I fully promise you that Revlon will never attempt to market the fragrant aroma clinging to it when the Bronco exited the far side. Phew! Off went Charley and the Scout, emerging with a first class undercoating that did not cost a thing. And was probably worth even less. The "new" smell was replaced with an even newer "smell." Long live four-wheeling. Nothing quite like that first time in the muck with a shiny new rig.

A fine Saturday evening meal of delicious barbecue was fourwheeled in from Big Joe's and it sure did hit the spot. A Plus. The tales that were traded across the campfire that night are not all in keeping with the standards of this fine newspaper but many were hilarious and some were probably almost true. A great weekend for everyone. The group conducted its own devotional Sunday morning and finally broke camp that afternoon for the journey home.

Had another first in the world of fourwheeling this past week. The chance finally arrived to drive a four wheeler that makes even a Chevrolet Suburban seem like a tiny "hobtail."

This particular rig had a eight-hundred and fifty-five cubic inch diesel engine producing well over three hundred fully grown horses. Duals were installed on all four corners. The flotation was somewhere up in the Okefenokee Swamp-Sahara Desert category. The beast had enough ground clearance to straddle a tall bird dog doing a tap dance on its back paws. There were ten forward gears and low was a genuine crawler gait. Fuel consumption was a miserly ten or twelve gallons per hour. It made tracks fourteen feet wide and knocked down limbs over twelve feet high. And the weight was a mere thirteen or fourteen tons. In a drag race it will never come in next to last if only two are racing, and in a pull it will absolutely intimidate mere trucks. The only chance of getting a speeding ticket is in a school zone and then you will just be three miles per hour over. The only adversary it encountered around Murray was the diesel choochoo and it did not seem to be particularly fearful of that even.

What was it? A Steiger four wheel drive tractor. If one of these things ever finds its way to Turkey Creek—look out! It is doubtful that you would find

Fishing Line

By Jerry Maupin

I attended the regular meeting of the Murray Bass Club this month and really enjoyed seeing two fine movies on bass fishing.

The stars were professional bassmen from all over the U.S. and they projected humor, stubbornness and just plain horse sense as they spoke about the nation's number one fish—the largemouth bass!

One fellow said he had trained his family to do the many household chores a husband usually does, so he could fish professionally. Another one uses a flyrod most of the time and he would say a lot about why he fished so much then added something like, "It's such a great thrill to catch a good bass. If you are ever in doubt about the thrill part—go with us some time and we will show you how your blood pressure climbs fast several times a day. You might also watch some of the pros on television and take special note on how excited they get when a fish is hooked.

It is a lot of fun, but there is a lot of work involved too! I think the rewards are just.

Local fishing conditions are really great as the lakes continue to rise slowly. The crappie are being taken at all depths from 18 inches to 10 feet in shallow brush piles to drop-offs. The water temperature is 68 degrees and warming steadily, causing the fish to prowl the bays and creeks looking for food and waiting for that magic moment when conditions are just right to start spawning.

Most people use minnows when crappie fishing shallow water but I would like to point out that there are several small artificial lures that will catch crappie as well as bass if you cast them and make a slow retrieve, just barely making the lure wiggle. I like the Heddon tiny run, 200 series white Bomber, 1/2 oz. white spinner bait and the small shallow R—shad color by Rebel. I have taken my limit several times on lures and it is a lot of fun on light tackle.

The bass are on the move also and will hit a variety of crank baits all through the day. A plastic worm or lizard will also work now.

Remember to take a youngster if you can get to the water and to—happy fishing!

(NOTE—The annual Stephen Underwood Memorial Tournament is scheduled tomorrow, Sunday April 23, by the Murray Bass Club. The event is a club members children's tournament which helps the kids develop a sense of sportsmanship and fair play. A cookout will culminate the day's activities.)

Tennessee Wildlife Resources Agency Bass Tagging To Resume

John Riddle, TWRA Fisheries Research Biologist in charge of analyzing data generated by TWRA's black bass tagging study, recently advised that TWRA field personnel will resume tagging black bass on several Tennessee Reservoirs during April. Riddle stated, "If all goes according to our schedule as it now stands, we will start tagging black bass on Ky. Reservoir the week of April 17. We will then move on to Watts Bar, Cordell Hull, Norris and Douglas Reservoirs." The tags will again have values of from $1 to $100 each randomly assigned to them by computer. Riddle stated further, "We hope anglers catching tagged bass will continue to promptly return the tags along with specific catch data (time, date, creek, reservoir, etc.) to the address shown on the tag."

Over 2,000 bass were tagged in Ky. Reservoir in 1977 and so far 620 of those tags have been returned. If all goes as hoped for, 2,000 or more bass will be tagged in Ky. Reservoir this year. The Ky. Lake tagging is but one part of a statewide bass exploitation study designed to yield results which will compliment ongoing creel surveys and other studies. Hudson Nichols, Chief of TWRA's Fish Management Division, recently stated that Ky. Lake not only had an excellent bass population but that it had more large bass in it than any other Tennessee reservoir sampled last year. Riddle noted that last year's tag returns had generally been some higher than had been anticipated, but that repeat tagging efforts are necessary to establish and verify any trends. In time, perhaps as much as two years from now, all the tag returns and other data will be fully analyzed. If at that point the facts in hand indicate changes in bass management approaches should be considered, THE PUBLIC will be made well aware of them. Chief Nichols stated, "We have to have some sound biological facts before we even began thinking about regulation changes."

New Catalog On Sporting Arms And Ammunition Is Now Available

The new 1978 sporting arms and ammunition catalog from Remington Arms Company, Inc., is now available for use and reference by sportsmen.

As in the past, the new catalog includes not only complete information on all sporting firearms and ammunition made by Remington, but contains as well a variety of other useful information for shooters.

Detailed specifications are provided on the broadest line of firearms now produced by a single manufacturer, including four different center fire rifle models, three shotgun models, seven rim fire sporter rifles and six center fire or rim fire target rifles. In all, the shooter has a total of 270 different options in choosing a Remington gun.

Among the firearms covered in the catalog are a number of new items—the Model 700 "Classic" bolt action center fire rifle, two new Model 870 pump action trap guns, new 20-gauge lightweight Model 1100 and Model 870 deer guns, a single shot adapter for the Model 581 bolt action rim fire rifle and several design changes in other guns.

In addition, the catalog lists all available loadings for Remington's broad line of shotshell, center fire and rim fire ammunition. Full-color cutaways show the interior construction and design of each of these types of ammunition, as well as the internal design of Remington center fire bullets.

As an invaluable aid to all rifle and pistol shooters, the rear section of the catalog contains extensive ballistic charts on all center fire rifle and pistol rounds made by Remington. For center fire rifle ammunition this includes velocity, energy and trajectory figures from muzzle to 500 yards; and, for pistol ammunition, comparable figures to 100 yards.

Free copies of the 1978 Remington catalog can be obtained from local retail dealers or by writing to Advertising Division, Remington Arms Company, Inc., Bridgeport, CT 06602.

Inspection...

Carroll's office said he took the action after learning that many service stations have discontinued inspections in the wake of the General Assembly's action which abolished the mandatory program.

The shortage of stations, especially in urban areas, left motorists with the problem of being required to get their vehicles checked but having no place to do so, Carroll's office said.

Some local police agencies also have stopped giving citations for expired stickers, the governor's office said.

Because April stickers need not be renewed until the end of the month, the 60-day extension pushes the new deadline past the date when the program ends under the new law.

The governor said he is working with State Police Commissioner Ken Brandenburg on plans for "an intensive, on-the-road" inspection program for automobiles.

Carroll said he pushed for that type of program during the session, in addition to voluntary inspection which would have given participating drivers a slight reduction in insurance premiums.

"While I remain convinced that the former mandatory inspection was a farce, I also remain convinced that there is a continuing need for insuring that the vehicles on our roads are safe," Carroll said in a statement.

He said details of the new road safety program would be announced in a few days.

The Louisville Automobile Club had urged the governor to halt statewide enforcement of the dying law, but police in major cities and state police were continuing to issue citations.
