Twenty-Three

FULTON'S "BIG 4" — in the hitting department are pictured above. They are rightfielder Howie Weeks, first baseman Ned Waldrop, second baseman Paul Abraham, and centerfielder Hal Seawright. Weeks had 1 for 8, Waldrop 6 for 10, Abraham 4 for 9, and Seawright 3 for 8 but their club dropped two games to the Dodgers Monday. The current averages are pictured with each man.

Strong Senate Wing Backing Clements For Chief Of Party

Word was received in Kentucky that a powerful wing of Senate Democrats is lining up behind Senator Earle C. Clements to succeed Stephen A. Mitchell as Democratic national chairman in what may develop into a battle for control of the party machinery.

Mitchell has announced that he will quit sometime after the November elections. Maneuvering is already under way to pick a successor to serve until the 1960 presidential nominating convention.

Party factions have brought forward several names, including those of Paul M. Butler, Indiana; Michael V. DiSalle of Ohio, former price administrator.

Clements has remained in the background in this early speculation, but he has been chairman of the Senate campaign committee since the spring of 1952. And, when Congress was reorganized in 1953, he was given a key position as liaison man between the national committee and Senate Democrats.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson of Texas assigned the Kentuckian to this post. And there is every sign that Johnson and some other Democrats who go along with him would be happy to see Clements installed later as national chairman.

Clements, 58-year-old resident of near Morganfield and former Governor of Kentucky, and a former congressman, has been in the Senate since November, 1953. (Continued on Page 4)

"Wealthy people miss one of the greatest thrills in life — paying the last installment."

Monday morning I called Roma Satterfield and asked her if I might publish her wonderful valedictory address. While talking with her I told how truly great I thought it was, and that in all the years I had covered commencement I had never enjoyed an address as much as I did hers. When I asked some of the technical points about the article, which I had before me, I exclaimed: "How did you do it?" She said: "It's because Mrs. Burrow was my English teacher." This remark I've heard so many times this past year, and what is more I have seen lots of the work to prove the students are right. Mary Hughes, is one of those teachers you remember long after you've closed the books at High School, because the things she teaches and the way she teaches them are the things students point to with pride when they tell the old college professor, "now I had an English teacher in High School that was tops." That's Mary Hughes Burrow.

Fulton unquestionably will get some mighty fine publicity over the State soon when the Monday morning businessmen's devotionals get publicized. What a wonderful suggestion for Mr. Al Owens to make and how nice it is for them to be started. It was Mr. Owen, you remember, who publicly promised that he would hold Monday morning "beef" sessions when he was a candidate for Mayor.

Community prayers, like the public expression of community problems are among the great things our American Constitution affords. We must never allow them to be abused. Congratulations to Mr. Owen and the Chamber of Commerce for bringing about the Monday morning devotionals.

JAMES WARREN APPEARS BEFORE MISSOURI JURY

Local Attorney Surprises Court By Appearance

James H. Warren, Fulton attorney, surprised a Greene County Missouri grand jury Thursday morning when he appeared to testify before them in another investigation of a sewer system project for Springfield in which Russell and Axon, Consulting Engineers were interested.

The grand jury was called into session on June 1 by Judge William Collins at the request of Greene County Prosecutor Douglas Greene who said he had "certain accusations of certain persons committing crime against the laws of the State of Missouri." The jury went into session on Wednesday morning and Warren appeared there on Thursday morning. He was closeted with the jury for three hours on Thursday morning and went back into the chambers immediately after lunch.

Prosecutor Greene visited former City Commissioner Charles Ray Brown in the State Penitentiary at Jefferson City, Missouri two days before he called the grand jury into session. Brown was convicted and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary for accepting a $1000 bribe from Mr. Warren. The State of Missouri contended that the bribe was given to Brown by Warren for Russell and Axon for Brown's favorable vote on a sewer project.

It was rumored in Springfield this week that Brown was reported to have said that he would not talk to Prosecutor Greene, but that he would talk before a Grand Jury. Mr. Brown was in the county jail at Springfield Thursday awaiting to testify before the grand jury.

Meanwhile, the trial of James Warren, charged with perjury in connection with the Brown hearing and trial has been continued until another term of court, his attorney William Moon, said. Warren is out on a $7500 bond. The trial was scheduled to begin Monday, June 7.

It could not be determined at press time Thursday why Mr. Warren appeared before the Greene County grand jury.

Milk Consumption Is Important Here

JUNE IS DAIRY MONTH and this year it is of more importance than ever to Fulton County Farmers, first, because of the educational work needed to be done in connection with the new dairy law which becomes effective on June 19; and second, because of the unusual efforts being made to increase the consumption of dairy products.

DAIRYING is one of the most important industries in Fulton. It is a progressive enterprise. Where dairying thrives the whole community thrives — farm income is relatively high and the good pastures and meadows that go with cattle help reduce erosion and improve the soil. The benefits spill over into the town and cities because the production and distribution of dairy products uses more high class labor than that of any other beverage and brings in cash rather than sending it out.

Right now dairy farmers are at the cross roads. They must either create a greater demand for their products or they must curtail production. They simply cannot continue to produce more than is consumed and to pile up surpluses without materially reducing their income. Increased consumption seems the logical course to take. It would be most unfortunate for Kentucky if we had to restrict our dairy production program.

There are great opportunities to increase the use of dairy products. This year the value of milk for adults is being emphasized. Research has shown the need of milk for grownups and especially for those of middle age or better. An adult should drink 3 or more glasses a day. The consumption of this amount induces tension, prevents calcium deficiencies, builds strength and improves complexion. Milk, in itself, is not fat producing. It is the most healthful and least advertised of all the popular drinks.

Farm folks throughout Kentucky can aid the dairy industry in two ways: first, they can study the provisions of the new dairy law and help with the educational work in connection with the referendum; and second, they can promote the use of more dairy products in their homes and those of their friends and neighbors.

MCDADDE CONSTRUCTION BREAKS GROUND FOR NEW U-TOTE-EM GROCERY STORE

First stages of construction were begun this week on the 60 by 115 store building that will house the U-Tote-Em Grocery store here. Maxwell McDade Construction Company is erecting the building that is being built on a corner lot in the area that was formerly Carr's Park.

The building will have a modern glass front and all other up-to-the-minute building appointments. Plenty of parking space will surround the building. Mr. McDade said that the building will be completed in about three or four months.

The story of U-Tote-Em, a family affair, is a success story. Nine years ago the bottom fell

New Law Requires All Dogs Must Be Vaccinated July 1

All dogs, six months of age or over must be vaccinated on or before July 1, 1954. The requirement is made mandatory by House Bill 139, made into law in the last session of the Kentucky General Assembly. The law relates to rabies control, the licensing and regulation of dogs and the protection of dogs and livestock. The vaccination must be done each year.

Violation of the law provides that the owner of the dog shall be fined not less than ten dollars nor more than $100 as a penalty. Each day of violation constitutes a separate offense.

Moreover, the owner of any dog not vaccinated according to the provisions of the Act shall be liable to pay all damages for personal injuries resulting from the bite of an unvaccinated dog, if rabid.

The dogs must be vaccinated by a veterinarian or any qualified person granted a permit by the State Board of Health to vaccinate animals against rabies.

Meanwhile Dr. H. C. Connaughton, a licensed veterinarian in Tenn. and Kentucky has set up a schedule of dates on which he will vaccinate dogs in this section. They are as follows:

Monday, June 7
Crutchfield . . . 9:00 to 9:45 a. m.
Cayce . . . 10:00 to 10:45
Middle Road . . . 11:00 to 11:45 (4-Way Service Station)
Riceville . . . 1:00 to 1:45 p. m.
Missionary Btms . . . 2:00 to 2:45
Fulton City Hall . . . 3:00 to 3:45

Wednesday, June 9
State Line . . . 9:00 to 9:45 a. m.
Also Balance of western part of county.

Dr. Connaughton will charge $1.50 for each dog vaccinated. He will furnish the owner of the dog a vaccination certificate in triplicate, with a copy being retained by the owner, the veterinarian and the local health department. The veterinarian will also furnish each owner with a metal tag bearing the certificate number and the year of vaccination. (Continued on page 4)

R. L. DACUS TO CELEBRATE 90TH BIRTHDAY, JUNE 5

Grand Old Man Remembers the Good Ole Days

Mr. Dacus

A grand old man reaches his ninetieth birthday on June 5. He is R. L. (Bob) Dacus who remembers quite well when horse-drawn carriages bogged down many a day on the once muddy thoroughfare, now called Lake Street. As a matter of fact he remembers when Loggston was the main shopping community around here and Fulton was a place you went when you had a lot of time and a lot of courage. HEARING SATURDAY FOR MAN CHARGED WITH MOLESTING

Wayne Rhodes Out On Bond On Charge He Detained Minor

Preliminary hearing for Wayne Rhodes, 51, who was arrested Monday evening for detaining a 13-year old white girl, will be held Saturday morning at ten o'clock, Chief of Police McDade advised the News Thursday. Rhodes, a caller for the Illinois Central Railroad, was released after posting a $2000.00 bond.

The South Fulton girl told the police on Monday she was walking along Fourth Street near the picture show and was accosted by Rhodes who asked her to come to his car, that he had some books to show her. The girl refused to go and Rhodes, according to the girl's story, took her by the arm and attempted to force her into the automobile.

She broke away from him and went to the local police station and reported the incident to the police. Officers Hassell Williams and Roy Nethery went to the parked auto to investigate and did not find any copies of comic books, but did find many obscene photographs. "The worst I ever saw," Chief McDade said.

The girl reported that she had noticed Rhodes following her many times. At the hearing Saturday morning another young girl will testify that Rhodes had accosted her, McDade said.

Rhodes, according to the Chief, has not been arrested previously on a morals charge, but he has been arrested previously for drunkenness, he said.

If convicted of the charge Rhodes faces a penitentiary sentence.

It Ain't No Fun, To Go Courtin' With A Gun, Suh!

Brother, put them shooting irons away. Kentucky may be a he-man, maybe a she-man, State, but the wimmin folks is gun-shy.

Last week the News received a letter from a Gent in New York. Said he: If I send you an article will you publish it." Said we: "Shore'n we will, but we will reserve the right to pass judgement on its contents."

This week the letter came. Its from a good resident of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. who no doubt has heard of the gals from the Bluegrass State. He wants to marry one.

He sent the following letter, together with his photo, which we publish. The News takes absolutely no responsibility for its contents, nor for the identity, the character or the proposal of the writer. But he says the whole matter is very serious to him and because of the pride we take in Kentucky damsels, and the fact that he wants to share his life with one of them, we reprint his letter and photo herewith.

Gentlemen,
I am sure you don't know me, but I shall endeavor to give you all an idea as to my character and ideals in life. I was born here in the East and all my days have been spent here.

I am a young gentleman of twenty-five years, a God fearing man, tall and lean and operate with my Dad, a hundred acres of the most beautiful land that lies along our Hudson River Valley here. It has been in our family for three generations now and in the course of my life naturally wish to see it continue on in the family name. We have mostly sheep here as they are better suited to the hills and valleys than other livestock. Along with this, we have many forms of recreation, such as a spacious dining hall and museum that contains thousands of various collections, dating back to earliest prehistoric man and a golf driving range that has a setting and background equalled by no other golf practice field in the entire nation, our own landing field for light aircraft and numerous other activities. The place attracts many tourists and visitors throughout the course of a year.

I would like and am most

willing to share these humble possessions with someone of good mind and heart so that after I go it will continue on as it is now. I was born here in the East and have lived here all my days, but the folks I like the best live further to the South and that is why I am writing to you.

Think of this letter you are now reading as no joke friend. It is sincerely me, casting my bread out upon the waters. I am looking to you for help in finding a mate, or my kind and type that does not exist in or around our towns or cities here.

I have put together a few words with the hope that you will put them in your good newspaper. If you possibly can't, perhaps you might see fit to insert a few words of your own choice, to the same effect as my own.

Single, man, Protestant, twenty-five, not bad looking, desires good woman for life companion. Someone interested in ranching. Object matrimony. Write.

Thanking you all, however it goes.

Respectfully yours, (Name furnished on request)

Graduation Is A Beginning and An End, Roma Satterfield Tells '54 Graduates

Last week in this area, the accent was on graduation. In dozens of schools around us, students donned caps and gowns and gathered in various auditoriums and sat as dignified as never before, to listen to baccalaureate, commencement and Honors Day programs. In many instances the speakers dusted off the platitudes and spoke of milestones reached, goals to be set, preparations for more serious endeavors to be made.

The students were attentive. They were impressed with the solemnities surrounding the occasions. But it was our opinion all during the several programs that we attended that this year's graduate does not need to be told about the milestone they have reached. They know.

The boys in the senior graduating classes know that as they prepare for further education that an aura of uncertainty hovers over their futures. There are war clouds. The little fellow that we knew as the mischievous kid who threw paper wads in study hall is not the same fellow who packed his cap and gown and put away the joys of High School. He is a young man, mature in his thinking and pretty much prepared for the future that lies ahead of him. In his future is a patriotic duty in the not too distant future to put away his higher education to give service to his country in a world torn with a cold war to secure peace.

A few of the young men who finished high school this year can see a clear picture ahead. He is the fellow who volunteers for the service on graduation and tends to "get his military service over with." The young man who enters college to study for the professions surely sees an interruption in his studies. But he's game and young and courageous and he'll take the chance. That's the American spirit in both instances.

As for the young ladies who graduated, their future, too, is uncertain. They look forward of course to careers, either in the home or in the professions. Their careers in marriage are not as secure as they have been. They face the possibility of being wives with two responsibilities to shoulder... one as the dutiful wife, the other as a bread-winner to help supplement the income of the husband called to service.

Her career in the professions is accented with the possibility of carrying many responsibilities that once were exclusive in a man's world.

But the happy part about any future that today's graduate might face is that fact that they are so well qualified, so competent, so sure that they can surmount any obstacle that comes their way. This attitude is deserving praise to the faculty of the schools which graduate them and the fact that today's graduate is, in their own lingo, "on the ball."

We can say without reservation, that of all the talks we heard this year in connection with graduation, one that truly sums up the whole picture is the valedictory address made at Fulton High School last week by Roma Satterfield. In a clear, confident, and sound address Roma stood before a huge audience and talked to the graduates on a graduate's level. She used terms that they knew and that they understood. The News is proud and privileged to have the opportunity to publish Roma's address. It is short, to the point and tells the whole story. We'd like for you to read and re-read this valedictory address as we have done. Then when you have digested and enjoyed the many thoughts and sound advice that it gives, save it. No person, regardless of race, creed or color could fail to be a better and happier person after having read it even once.

The address follows: FULTON HIGH SCHOOL 1954 VALEDICTORY

Tonight will go down in history! Not in world or American history but in the personal history of each Senior present tonight.

This night represents both an end and a beginning. It is the end of twelve years of childhood education. During that time, we have grown physically, spiritually, and mentally. We have forgotten much, but we have learned much more. Most important of all, we have learned the value of education from our teachers, parents, and friends. That is why tonight must be not only an end but a beginning as well. It is the beginning of a life in which we must continue to grow mentally and spiritually through different teachers and various experiences. It will broaden our outlook on life. Even now, we can see how much wider our outlook is than it was four years ago. If we continue to learn, our power of understanding will increase. We shall learn to know our fellow man better. Intolerance, avarice, and ignorance will vanish. Therefore, can we ever afford to stop learning?

We must put into practice the things we have learned in our classrooms. We must apply them in our lives. We must learn to solve our personal problems in the same way that we solved our algebra problems. No matter how difficult they may seem, we must remember that there is a correct answer which may be easily obtained if we study the problem carefully. In the chemistry lab while solving an unknown solution, we patiently tried one test after another before finding the true identity of the solution. We could not jump to conclusions and say that this solution was a sulfate. We had to check and double-check to make sure. This process, too, must be applied in life.

In the English classes we learned to express our thoughts and feelings through the medium of themes and grammatical exercises. This is one of the prerequisites for a successful career in any field of life. In American history we learned about this great country we live in and her abiding principle — DEMOCRACY. We learned that democracy depends on the fruits of democracy. I could go on, but instead, briefly, what we have learned during the past four years is this:

In our biology and science classes we learned the "why." In our history and Latin classes we learned the "when." In our English, algebra, and home economics classes we learned the "how."

All these things will be useful to us throughout life. All these things we owe to our Alma Mater, Fulton High. And so may we proudly say tonight, "Vale, Fulton High. We who are about to graduate salute you."

Kentucky Windage

By P. W.

In case you ever happen to add a little young puppy to your household, like we did this past winter, and are bothered with his nightly whimpering and barking because he is not used to being by himself, you might try out this remedy for keeping him quiet.

Just get an old alarm clock that will still run, wind it up in the evening, and place it in his bed with him. Evidently the peaceful ticking gives him the necessary companionship, because he shuts up at once and sleeps peacefully from then on.

At least it worked that way at our house. Back last January Linda (Sams) Adams gave our youngsters a young puppy, and he promptly began a series of night howling that disturbed us much that we suggested returning him to his mother until he was a little older. But Linda, always ready with all the answers, came up with the alarm clock deal. "I thought everybody knew about that," she grinned.

We were reminded of all this last night, when we cleaned up the basement, came across the old clock, washed it up and restored it to service upstairs.

In case some of you folks think that government concern over crop acreage is a new sort of thing, you will be interested in knowing that 29 years ago the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture was asking farmers for a listing of "prospective acreage of crops" each year in order, as the report sheet stated, to afford farmers an opportunity to modify their planting plans to prevent serious overplanting or underplanting of particular crops, after they had studied the resume compiled from the returns.

We found one of the old crop report plans last week in browsing thru some of the old papers that were taken out of the ancient 1916 Ford sedan that J. V. Cash is now restoring to "active duty."

This time of the year, TV set owners often run into fantastic things as far as reception is concerned. While normal TV reception is supposed to be limited to about 100 or 150 miles, atmospheric conditions sometimes, in the late Spring, provide freak reception for 1000 miles or more.

Such was the case with Jack and Wanda Baldwin here at the News, who picked up Cheyenne, Wyoming so strongly last week that they were unable to "tune in" Memphis on the same channel.

In talking to Cecil Wade about the matter, we learned of the freak of all freaks in TV reception: getting a test pattern from a station that had been off the air for four years! Cecil didn't get it himself, but he told us that the electronics industry has a verified, authentic group that DID, and has been puzzling over the thing ever since.

Evidently the signals went out into "outer space and must have bounced around from planet to planet for that length of time, finally returning back to earth, the fill, and each succeeding shift of clerks attempts to get him to accept the letters until the original one gets back on duty.

With light (and TV waves) traveling at the rate of 186,000 miles a second, it would take only eight minutes for a TV station located on the sun to be received on earth. If it's possible for a wave to bounce around for four years, it would therefore travel the astronomical distance of 23 trillion miles, which, by way of comparison, is seven trillion less than the 30 trillion pennies in the National debt, which may account for the increasing kinship we feel these days for things colossal.

When Robert J. Graham visited Memphis recently and registered in at the Wm. Len Hotel, he was immediately handed a packet of letters addressed to Robert J. Graham, marked "Hold for Arrival." The letters were from Mrs. Robert J. Graham, elsewhere in Kentucky. Robert handed the packet back to the clerk, advising him that apparently another Robert J. Graham was on the way. Mrs. Graham concurred.

This is only the latest in a series for Robert, who has found that there are several more Robert J. Grahams in Kentucky. All episodes follow the same pattern: the desk clerk, nonplussed, returns the letters to the fill, and each succeeding shift of clerks attempts to get him to accept the letters until the original one gets back on duty.

Same thing happened at the Morrison in Chicago several years ago, said Robert. When he registered, he was handed letters from Mrs. Robert J. Graham, also from Kentucky. Surviving the 24 hours with three different clerks attempting to give him the mail, he was delighted to have the other Robert Graham arrive and clear up the puzzle. A day or two later he changed hotels in order to be nearer the Furniture Mart and the mixup started all over again. The other Robert Graham had also changed... to the same hotel.

A worried-looking man walked into a florist shop and asked for potted geraniums. The clerk, out of geraniums, suggested a pot of begonias. "No," said the man. "They won't do. I promised my wife I'd water her geraniums while she went to her mother's." Lion tamer: "There's nothing to be frightened about. The lion won't hurt you. He's been raised on milk."

New assistant: "So was I, but I eat meat now!"

Sermonette of the Week

The Family That Prays Together Stays Together

(By Clare Boothe Luce, Ambassador to Italy)

IF PRAYER IS "the sword of the saints," it is also the anchor of the family.

All love between human beings — husband and wife, parent and child, brother and sister — is a process of growing and grafting. Each person in a family has his own roots in self and soul. But, in time, the nerves, mind, heart and spirit of each member mingle and intertwine with those of the others. In the end, the family seems to be one great plant.

SOMETIMES DIVERGENT interests and loyalties loosen those intertwining selves. Jealousies and hatreds rip one grafted heart from the rest. Or, divorce tears the whole growth apart and uproots each member from one

Each member in the thousands of broken American homes suffers the pains of domestic lesions for a lifetime. And there are not enough good doctors and psychiatrists to repair or patch up the mental and physical wreckage of the shattered home.

SELDOM IS THERE a lasting cure for the spiritual distress that follows when grafted hearts are torn loose from one another in anger, in selfishness, in pride, in folly, in whim or in sin.

Most of these miserable home wreckers were never told one simple yet sublime truth: "The family that prays together stays together." God has instituted the cure to prevent ripping away of heart from heart and flesh from flesh that follows the family crack-up. God's cure is family prayer.

THE FAMILY THAT PRAYS together will never be downhearted. Not that prayer will spare a family all pain and suffering. That is the lot of men.

HUSBAND AND WIFE, parent and child, should never forget that it takes three to stay in love — oneself, the other, and God.

Those who love one another stay in God's love by prayer. And God's answer to their prayer is to keep them always in love.

The days are getting warmer but the nights are still cool, guess everyone is glad to see it warm up so what has been planted will grow.

The decoration and singing at the Pilot Oak Baptist Church Sunday was well attended. Two Quartets and several soloists did the entertaining.

Sunday was also decoration day at the Good Spring C. P. Church, had singing in the afternoon. The Weekly County Rangers were the special guests.

Meedames Cassie Taylor and Julia Williams were guests of Mrs. Hattie Travis Thursday. The men of the community met and planted Mr. Travis's corn crop. He is not able to do much farming.

All people admitted to the clinic must be referred by a licensed physician. Examinations will not be conducted in the white truck which contains x-ray equipment only, but will be done in the health department.

If you have any one of the seven danger signals, see your family doctor immediately:

1. Any sore that does not heal, particularly about the tongue, lips or mouth.
2. A painless lump or thickening especially in the breast, lip or tongue.
3. Progressive change in the color or size of a wart, mole or skin tag.

1950. He is known as a smooth political operator who has gained the confidence of most of his party colleagues in his role as Democratic whip, or assistant leader.

An effort to put Clements over for the national chairmanship would involve a departure from the modern tradition of picking Roman Catholics for that job.

Clements Has The Assets
But the Clements rosters contend that unwritten rules of this sort have to be broken some time and they think this year is one of those times.

On the asset side, they list Clements as a man likely to be acceptable to both North and South factions of a party that achieved a new kind of unity in its minority status only to have that unity shaken somewhat by the Supreme Court's ruling against segregation in the schools.

no matter what sacrifice or trouble he encountered to get it done.

Mounds of floral offerings were sent to his bier, a mute testimony of the love and esteem his friends felt for him. Hundreds of friends paid a final tribute of respect to him at the funeral services.

The death of this fine man leaves a place hard to fill in the daily working lives of his co-workers, who were his loyal and devoted friends, just as Paul was their friend and constant companion.

Besides his wife, he leaves a son, Joe Workman of Fulton; a daughter, Patsy Workman, of Fulton; his mother, Mrs. Lee Workman of Detroit; a brother, Leslie Workman of California; and two sisters, Miss Lena Workman of Detroit and Mrs. Blanche Cole of McGee, Ark.

The active pallbearers were Bonus Callihan, Jack Callihan, Jack Foster, Raymond Lynch, Clyde Omar and Winfred Shepherd.

ation. The tag must be put on a collar or harness and worn by the dog.

Dog owners in the twin cities may take advantage of the provision in the law that says that a dog vaccinated in another State by the proper authority in that State shall not be required to have the dog re-vaccinated when brought into Kentucky. The owner of a dog reading in a State other than Kentucky must see that his animal wears the metal tag denoting vaccination in another State.

The approaching summer months, when rabies becomes more possible among animals, is the period when citizens should become informed in the methods to report rabies. The law stipulates several simple cautions. They are:

1. Every physician shall, within 12 hours after his first professional attendance of a person bitten by a dog, cat or other animal report to the local health department.
2. If a child is bitten and no physician attends the incident should be reported by the parents or guardian.
3. If an adult is bitten, he or the person caring for him should make the report.

STATUTES 'CONFUSING'

Frankfort, Ky., May — Zoning laws of the State, particularly those applicable in areas such as Jefferson County, are in a state of "considerable confusion".

Assistant Attorney General Walter C. Herdman held that one statute apparently gives to fifth class cities in such areas the right to zone and assume jurisdiction over the subdivision of all lands located within its limits and for five miles beyond — while another attempts to vest such control in the Louisville and Jefferson County Planning and Zoning Commission.

● U-Tote-Em

ness. County agents were frantic. They met repeatedly with farmers and produce men in an effort to unscramble the mess. It was unthinkable that in the middle of history's direct war with 12,000,000 uniformed Americans breakfasting at least every second morning on powdered eggs and with other millions in war-ravaged lands dependent upon this nation for whatever eggs the army and navy left uncooked, the hens of West Tennessee should be fricasseed simply because they were giving their all for the war effort.

When Glen King sat down with the county agents, produce dealers and farmers, the U-Tote-Em grocery company was not in the wholesale egg business. Twenty-four hours later it was not only in the business but for nearly two months it was the only wholesale egg business in West Tennessee. To make a long story short, Mr. King saved the day.

The service cost the U-Tote-Em company time, work, headaches and $2,000. Nevertheless it was the sort of investment in good will that has helped the business grow from a single corner grocery store on the McKenzie town square, with an operating capital of $3,000, into a two-state, 24-county enterprise.

"The rise of... the U-Tote-Em stores is certainly a romance which should occupy a permanent niche in the hall of American industrial successes," an executive of one of the nation's major food corporations said.

U-Tote-Em's 40 branches are part super-market and part cracker barrel crossroads store. The stores got their start when a one time book and Bible salesman went into partnership with a Missouri-born farm boy turned bookkeeper in a country store at Jarrell, Tenn., a flagstop on the L and N railroad six miles south of McKenzie.

The year was 1918. The Bible salesman was John Chandler Everett of Carroll County. The bookkeeper was Glen A. King of "swampeat" Missouri, Everett's son-in-law.

The country store venture lasted only a year but three years later, in 1921, the two men tried again. This time they bought out a corner grocery store in McKenzie and on an operating capital of $3,000.

ment, since the happy trip was started seven years ago. This year she attended because her son Al, assisted with the stage direction of the Cub Scout minstrel. In years past it has been both Al's and Nancy's participation in Cub Scouting that made her eligible to make this trip.

The trip this year as always was highly successful. The mothers I believe had as much fun as the youngsters. The camping trip was a busy one with all sorts of activity every minute to keep everybody happy and busy. The food was good, the handicraft periods were fruitful, the devotional services were well attended. I look forward to the day when I may have the opportunity to go on such a trip. If it were left to R. Paul he'd been in Cubbing long ago. Every birthday he wants to know if he's old enough to be a Cub Scout. It doesn't seem possible that he only has one more year to go after this October. He'll be the proudest little boy who ever wore the blue and I'll be right there beaming with him.

With a rumbling chuckle, George put aside the magazine he was reading.

"So what's so amusing?" Mrs. Rimer asked.

"Well, it seems that this man on the train had finished reading his copy of the Chicago Tribune, and so he leaned across the aisle and asked the little old lady, who was just sitting there doing nothing, if she'd like to read it."

"Just being friendly, I'd say," Molly interrupted. "What's funny about it?"

"The little old lady asked the man what paper it was, and he said it was a Chicago paper—maybe she'd like to look it over. 'No, thank you,' she said. 'I don't know anybody in Chicago.'"

The Mrs. forced a faint smile. "Well, maybe it isn't an up-to-date joke," George admitted. "But it struck me as amusing. The lady was from one of our small towns, I suppose, and used to reading about her friends and neighbors in the home-town weekly."

"So?"

"So the Chicago paper had all the national and international news about wars and crises—but the little old dear just wanted to read about the doings of plain unimportant people, the sort of news the home-town weeklies specialize in. Lord bless 'em, I say, and may their tribe increase!"

ONLY 39 PER CENT OF FULTON PUPILS DRINK MILK DAILY

Only 39% of the children attending the Fulton schools have three glasses of milk a day, the fact was revealed in a recent survey made by the Fulton Health Department. It covered a three-day period when records were kept on 107 children in grades four through six. The survey was made during March of this year.

In a community where dairying is such an important industry, the milk consumption of the children surveyed was distressing. The percentage is below the national average. The local department officials, and Miss Mary Murphy from the State Department of Health were similarly distressed to learn that during the 3-day period the children spent a total of $14.25 for candy and drinks other than milk.

Taking the findings as a whole, however, the health officials said that the percentages shown were a little above the average.

"How We Eat", a comprehensive and revealing chart prepared by the local health department, also shows that 84% of the pupils surveyed had one or more servings of lean meat a day, but this consisted mainly of hamburger and hot dogs. Twenty-seven percent of the children in the Fulton schools drink coffee.

Dried beans, however, when put in a grouping with meat, eggs, cheese and nuts took the highest percentage of all in the

However, the diet was mighty low on green and yellow vegetables, with 29% of the pupils surveyed having one serving a day of the important food. Just a little over half of the children had one serving of fruit, raw cabbage or tomatoes a day.

House Cleaning Kit Stands Time-Tests

A house cleaning kit which Mrs. K. N. Yeiser of Daviess county has been using for the past six years was the object of much interest to members of the Sutherland Homemakers Club, noted Miss Kitty Bess Dodson, UK home demonstration agent.

Mrs. Yeiser made the kit when she was a leader in the home management project in 1949. Once a sturdy tomato basket, it was lined with oilcloth, then fitted with numerous articles to make house cleaning jobs easier. Small repair jobs, too, can be quickly taken care of when screw driver, hammer, tacks, nails, and the like are at hand, observed Mrs. Yeiser.

Leaflets from the University on house cleaning and on making dry suds were indispensable, she said.

Dairy products are wholesome, health-giving, energy-producing, nutritious and essential in the proper diet of all people of all ages.

2. They are Community Builders...

An aggressive Dairy farming population is an asset of great worth to the prosperity and well-being of the whole community. The Dairy Farmer spends many dollars which contribute to the welfare of all business people in the area.

3. They are Soil Conservers...

The well-being of our entire nation depends upon the conservation of our natural resources, especially our soil. There is no better medium for saving our soils than through the dairy cow. The grass crops she needs, the fibers and other natural fertilizers which are returned to the land by dairy farming, are soil conservers, not soil depleters.

The Dairy cow creates wealth and prosperity when other types of farming may fail because of drought and other reasons. By diversifying the farming operation, good times are provided for the farmer and for the merchant from whom buys the merchandise.

The Welfare Workers met Wednesday, May 26, at the home of Mrs. Robert Rucker at 1:30. The house was called to order by the president, Mrs. Karl Kimberlin. The song, "You are my Sunshine" was led by Mrs. Birdie Phillips. Devotional was given by Mrs. Addie McDade.

The club creed was read by Mrs. Guy Finch. Roll call was answered by a household hint. The minutes were omitted. Mrs. Birdie Phillips gave the treasurers report.

A report of the work day at Mrs. Oliver's, honoring Home Demonstration Week, was given. Quite a lot of stenciling was done and several pieces finished. One stool, one apron, one luncheon cloth, two pillow cases and one hat were made and a demonstration of hair styling was put on.

Plans were made for another work day at Mrs. Oliver's in the afternoon on June 3.

The club then voted to send Johnnie Oliver to 4-H Club camp.

Arrangements to attend the county council Saturday afternoon at Dresden were planned. Plans were also made to visit the county home June 17 and a committee was appointed to make the arrangements.

A sale, sponsored by the financial committee, was staged, adding several dollars to the treasury.

After a delicious luncheon, reports of the following leaders were received: Mrs. Palmer, lighting the home; Mrs. Bettie Watts, home furnishing.

The leaders' subject was pictures in the home, demonstrating proper hanging, illustrating by pictures of proper and improper methods.

Mrs. Irene Yates reported on poultry. Mrs. Brooks Oliver, clothing leader, planned a visit to the O. K. Laundry, where Mr. Terry so graciously took them over the plant explaining the various phases of cleaning clothes, moth proofing, etc.

Sixteen members and one visitor, Mrs. Harold Sheridan enjoyed this meeting. Miss Odom was unable to be with the group. The meeting adjourned to meet with Mrs. Karl Kimberlin June 28.

HAVE MAY MEETING AT THE COMMUNITY HOUSE

The Palestine Homemakers Club held their first half-day meeting at the Community House Friday, May 21, with three visitors, Mrs. J. H. Patterson, Jr., Mrs. John Thompson and Miss Ida Pligam.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. Clyde Burnette, president, conducting the business session. The devotional was given by Mrs. Harry Murphy, who read Mark 5, 26-32, followed by prayer. Twenty-two members answered roll call, with a favorite wild flower. Mrs. Burnette gave a report of the Advisory Council meeting, telling the club the project chosen for the next year.

It was also announced that Fulton County will observe its 25th year in the Homemakers organization, and will be having a special annual day program in October.

The club welcomed Mrs. J. H. Patterson, from Fulton, who in her most charming manner gave a book review on "Forty Acres and No Mule". This was enjoyed very much by the club.

A nominating committee, composed of Mrs. Fred Brady, Mrs. Avery Hancock and Mrs. Leslie Nugent, was appointed to suggest nominations for the next year's officers.

A demonstration was given by Mrs. Frank Stroud and Mrs. Roy Bard on new ways to weave bottoms for baskets and place mats. A work day will be planned as soon as material can be obtained.

Landscape notes on the care of blooming plants were given by Mrs. A. M. Browder.

Refreshments of cold drinks and cookies were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Harry Murphy, Mrs. Thomas Bruce, and Mrs. Bertha Nugent.

The club adjourned to meet in June in an afternoon meeting.

SCHOOL CHILDREN
NEED VACCINATION

School districts were urged today to co-operate with public health officials to see that all children entering schools submit to smallpox vaccinations.

The warning came from Wendell P. Butler, Superintendent of Public Instruction who pointed out that a number of school districts had not been requiring the vaccinations.

Butler in a letter to all city and county school superintendents, reminded the officials that practically all counties now have public health departments with services and facilities to give the vaccinations.

leads a tranquil life with his daughter Mrs. Oma Puryear on Taylor Street. He spends his time, he says, remembering his past life and often gets a good chuckle about some of the pranks he played on his family and friends when he was a lot younger than he is now.

Many Fulton residents will remember the Dacus Dry Goods Store, which he operated on Lake Street many years ago. The business was in the location now occupied by the A and P Food Store. He closed the store in early 1900 and started travelling for a St. Louis Clothing firm. He retired from that position some years ago.

Probably one of the memories in more recent years that gives Mr. Dacus a lot of pleasure is the lovely honor paid him in 1952 by the members of the Union Presbyterian Church. The church dedicated the morning services on June 23 of that year to Mr. Dacus. He was reared near the Union Church and can remember attending services there, many, many times and a long time ago, too.

Mr. Dacus was married to the former Miss Annie Donoho, who passed away sometime ago.

Mr. Dacus is not much on hobbies he says, but he's a real enthusiast when it comes to raising tomatoes. This year he has 14 sturdy plants. In years past he has cultivated the ground for the plants, but this year his daughter put her foot down on such strenuous work, so Mr. Dacus spends a lot of his time seeing that they grow right.

Mr. Dacus goes to church as often as he can and oftentimes makes a greater effort than he should to be there. But, he says, it's his most cherished pastime and he loves to go.

The News congratulates Mr. Dacus on his ninetieth birthday and may he have many more just like them.
