Lissen, heah, ladies, this we've got to stop. It's bad. It's downright frightening. Anybody who has one of the fellows around the house who balks at taking out the garbage, who hates to go to the grocery, who growls at breakfast time in danger and I do mean danger. That fellow who gives with the orders, and whom the dictionary describes as a "person who manages and directs with frugality" (humph) has gone and got himself organized into something called "Husbands Protective Association."

Not a word of lie. We received that kind of a notice in the mail the other day and if you could just read what they have to say about themselves just plum treason. You've all been reading in the papers about wives waking up dead of mornings and the husband ups and blames it on somebody else and then come to find out he did it himself. What do you think will happen now that some cluck has gone and started some organization to protect themselves... protecting husbands, mind you, when wives are having heap big trouble sleeping with a gat under the pillow with this open season all year round on the little lady of the house.

You want to hear what some fellow wrote Paul:

"Every single girl knows she's just got to have a husband. When the right man comes along, she goes all-out to let him know she thinks he is wise and wonderful. The man is sure she means it. They become engaged and set the date. Then what happens?"

"As soon as the man says 'I do,' the situation begins to deteriorate. He isn't wonderful any more. Somehow he isn't as wise as he used to be. In no time at all, she is telling him what to do, how to do it and then giving him hell for not doing it right. And she keeps right on doing it. And that isn't all..."

"He works hard to pay for all the things she wants and when she squanders the dough on something foolish, he's supposed to say he likes it; otherwise he is a brute. He must always pass out the compliments and how his appreciation, but compliments he doesn't get and appreciated he is not."

"THE HUSBANDS PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION understands the plight of the married man and attempts to make the going for him a bit easier. To help him bear up, the Husbands Protective Association publishes the Husbands Home Journal (not to be confused with the Ladies Home Journal)."

"THE HUSBANDS HOME JOURNAL contains some kind words for the man of the house, tips on how to get along with the little woman, useful alibis, sound advice and some humor to help him try to forget his troubles."

"Our membership drive is just getting started and we'd like to include you in."

Now let me tell you something! If we stand by and let this organization grow, we'll put the suffragette movement back one hundred years. We'll go back to the days of Molly Pitcher who was right handy with a musket and you know dresses these days aren't made with pockets big enough to carry gun powder.

Do you think I let Paul see that letter? I did not. Don't think I want to drum up business for Win Whitnel and Paul Hornbeak. Some days, that guy Paul gives with looks that would frighten an ape; any idea what he would do if he thought he was protected for thinking what he does. Why he'd do it, that's what. I'm not thinking of myself at all, just thinking of two lil orphan kids.

He's expected to pass out the compliments. Yes he is. We live in a world of expectations. Ever get all dressed up? Change the hair-do, the personality, the bonnet then walk out to go somewhere and you have to knock him on the head to notice that we're not in blue-jeans instead of the Sunday best.

And talk about squandering the dough. Why that critter is so close we have to buy a pound of bacon and a box of Lux, to fry the bacon in so he won't complain about the shrinkage. Every year for the past ten he

Standing Room Only Looks Like Fact At Fulton High School

"Standing Room Only" isn't just a sign that hangs out at the movies where the West Fulton P-TA is concerned. These ladies realize that it will be fact and not fiction soon if the chairs, used for activities in the school auditorium are not replaced soon.

The P-TA will inaugurate a drive this week to replenish the chair supply at the school. Kick-off of the chair-campaign will be made at the annual Dad's night supper at the school on Thursday, February 17. It will be a pot-luck supper beginning at 6:30 p. m.

The ladies of the P-TA surveyed the chair supply at the school and found that there were 200 chairs on hand. One hundred of the chairs were bought in 1932 and another 100 were bought in 1942. The chairs do not contain the rubber tips on the legs to protect the beautiful new gym floor. The chairs cost $5 each and each school patron will be asked to purchase as many as possible.

For the Dad's night event the hospitality committee will be in charge of the meal. The committee is composed of Mrs. Harold Newton, chairman, Mrs. Grady Varden, Mrs. H. L. Mil-

CLEMENTS JOINS IN SPONSORING BILL FOR HOMES

Act Enables Farmers To Build, Repair

Senator Earle C. Clement (D-Ky.) announced today that he had joined in sponsoring a bill to continue the Farm Housing Act of 1949. The Act enables farmers to obtain loans to build new homes, repair and modernize existing homes, and to construct or repair farm buildings, in cases where loans from banks and other lending agencies are not available.

Senator Clement pointed out that since the program began in 1950, approximately 20,000 farm families have been able to build and improve their homes and buildings under the program. Nearly 500 of these families are located in Kentucky. They have received more than $2,500,000 in loans. Repayments of these loans are 99% up-to-date or ahead of schedule.

Last year the Congress extended the housing aid but the Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson and the Administration did nothing to implement the program. The Budget Bureau submitted no estimates to the Congress.

Senator Clements said that "the failure of last year must be turned to success in this Congress. The farmers, who are suffering already from falling farm prices, must not have to bear additional uncalled for burdens."

Paul Choate Family Farms With Real Know-How

(The Paul Choate family was selected as a Master Farm family, the fourth family ever selected in this county)

(From The Progressive Farmer)

Starting as a tenant in 1912, Paul Choate now owns debt-free 2,975 acres of farmland. Most of it is Mississippi River Delta land accumulated from farming and farm investments. This is the story of Paul Choate's successful farming in a nutshell.

But to complete the story, it should be added that Paul inherited 66 acres of farmland, mostly woodland, and that he has been "aided and abetted" in no small way in the past 10 years by his son, Wendell. In addition, Mr. and Mrs. Choate have reared well and educated two fine children, Wendell Hoyt and Paula, both now married.

Happy's Days Aren't Here Again ???

At a meeting yesterday (Wednesday) at the Graves County Courthouse in Mayfield, courthouse officials are reported to have "left Chandler and gone over to Combs," in the spirited race for Governor, already gaining high pitch throughout the State. Judge Easley, County Judge, was reported named Combs campaign manager for Graves County.

This action, in the alleged Foster stronghold coincides with a similar action Tuesday in Louisville, when Louisville and Jefferson County officials pledged their support of Combs just as Chandler opened his state headquarters there.

CAYCE TO GET DIAL PHONES IN VERY SHORT TIME

Free Phones In County Due Here By April First

In just a few days, the community of Cayce will have a new dial switching unit in operation according to C. E. Hughes manager for Southern Bell. The Telephone Company has been working on this project since 1952 and this service should be very popular in this area.

In a dial switching unit, customers talk to each other by dialing the number desired just as in any dial office. But in the event they want long distance or the services of an operator, the call is brought into the office. Members of the committee will vote on one of the three where the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce will conduct a concentrated promotion program this year.

"We are sure that the subscribers in this area will like the new type service that is being furnished," Mr. Hughes said, "and that we were very glad to make it possible to bring good telephone service to this area, which is almost the first step in providing county wide service in Fulton County that will go into effect by April 1st."

PARK DIVISION LOOKING FOR NEW NAME FOR LODGE

Vacation Offered To Person Nominating Cumberland Hotel

The Division of Parks is looking for a name again - a name for one of its state park lodges. Three years ago the division asked the public to help select a name for its new hotel at Kentucky Lake State Park. Hundreds of suggestions were offered. The name finally selected was Kenlake Hotel - as submitted by Robert A. Blair of Corbin.

This time it is the lodge at Lake Cumberland State Park for which a name is sought. It has been in operation for two years, but is just called "the lodge."

"We would like to have a suitable name which does not contain the word 'Cumberland,'" Henry Ward said. "The area is Conservation Commission over-run with 'Cumberland this and Cumberland that.' There is too much confusion already to add to it. For example, there is a Cumberland Lodge at Jamestown, and it and the one in the state wind up with each other's mail, and bills."

The person who first suggests the name that will be picked for the park lodge will be invited to spend a week's vacation there - with a companion - as guests of the Division of Parks, Ward added.

He asked that proposed names be sent to him, to be screened by a special committee which will be set up for that purpose.

LOCAL SCOUTERS RECEIVE AWARDS AT PADUCAH MEET

Foad Homra Is Again Named As Officer Of Group

The 36th Annual Appreciation Dinner of the Four Rivers Council and the Boy Scouts of America was held February 10 at the Irvin Cobb Hotel in Paducah. Those attending from Fulton were Foad Homra, Bert Pigue, James Allen Willingham, and Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Tripp. The awards given were to Warren Anderson and Louis Weeks. Mr. Anderson received the President's Award and Mr. Weeks received the Three Year Training Award for his Cub Activity.

The Fulton Scouters that were elected as members of the Four Rivers Council Executive Board were: Warren Anderson, Maxwell McDade, Bert Pigue, Ward Johnson and Foad Homra. Following the dinner at 7 p. m. a program was presented. Dr. Athens Clay Pullias was the principal speaker.

One of the three Scouts, Foad Homra, presented Silver Beaver Awards to the Scouts. Mr. Homra is the Vice-President of the Council. There was a solo sung by David Locke, a Choir Director in the First Baptist Church in Paducah. He was accompanied by Mrs. Nelson Tripp of Fulton. Bert Pigue, Billy Blackstone, J. O. Lewis, Louis Marks, Foad Homra and Nelson Tripp all of Fulton have received the Silver Eagle Award before.

March 31 Final Date For Filing Corn Loans

T. E. Williamson, Chairman of Fulton County ASC Committee, announced today that the State ASC Committee has set March 31, 1955 as the final date for a producer to obtain a 1954 Corn Loan. The 1st eligibility required for this was that the farm must have been within his 1945 acreage allotment. He further stated that April 30th 1955 was the maturity date for all 1954 Corn Loans in Kentucky. This early maturity date being made because of the fact that Kentucky has been declared as being in the Anguimoth-infested area. Many Lewis county hillside too steep to farm will be set to locust and pine trees.

No Stammer In the Grammar In Teaching English At Fulton School

Does your child have stammer in the grammar? Is there a tendency for him to have "friction in the direction?" Do you have a young'un who just will say "I seen and I taken?" If you do, it's not the fault of the English Department of the Fulton High School. But what is more, because of the efficient English Department of the school there is less likelihood to have "diction-friction" than perhaps any other study that your child might pursue at the local Kentucky School.

In an attempt to acquaint patrons of the Fulton Schools with the methods of teaching, the News takes pleasure in starting today the first in a series of articles to be published explaining these methods. KNOW YOUR HIGH SCHOOL. This is the first of a series of articles reporting on current teaching practices at Fulton High School. These reports have been prepared through the co-operative efforts of the Fulton High School teachers, every member of the staff assuming responsibility for one or more sections of the report. The purpose of this report is to apprise the public concerning the curriculum followed in each field of study and the reasons for emphasis on certain aspects of the curriculum. The first article follows.

English

Generally speaking, the chief aim in English instruction is to increase the pupil's efficiency in reading, writing, speaking, and listening.

Freshman English

The first aim of the course in freshman English is to make the pupil feel at home in Fulton High School and to help him to get the right start in his high school career. With the aid of the English workbook and through class discussions the students soon become familiar with the regulations, organizations, and the traditions of the school. During the first six weeks of the school year each freshman spends a week studying the library.

Reading skills, dictionary usage, spelling, and oral composition comprise a large part of the work. The instruction in grammar, punctuation, and spelling is intended to be functional and is correlated with work in literature. The work in grammar includes a thorough study of the parts of speech and an emphasis on correct usage. The work is kept simple and basic, finer points of grammar being left for later years. Throughout the work in mechanics, the teacher stresses the fact that a knowledge of correct form is necessary before a person can express his thoughts clearly and freely, written composition consists of themes and letters.

The literature includes masterpieces of the past, and introduces the epics of Homer, the English medieval ballads, the romantic poetry of Wordsworth and Coleridge, the short stories of Washington Irving and similar classics. Contemporary stories, essays, poems, plays, biographies and special articles all help the young student to glimpse meanings of the ever-changing present.

English two

Through the study of poetry the sophomore student learns to read poetry for pleasure. Because poetry, like music and painting, contributes most to the one who understands something of the basis of the art, the sophomore year seems the opportune time for introducing the pupil to poetry. He is helped in an understanding of its diction, the various kinds and patterns and the underlying thoughts, moods and emotions.

Each six weeks the pupil chooses a book from the library, reads the book and reports on it. Of the six books the sophomore chooses to read through the year, two are reported on by a theme, two are given orally in class, and two are outlined with the outline being checked by the teacher and a short synopsis of the book being given in class by the pupil.

Prose is studied in this year, with the objective being to gain an appreciation of short stories and the authors.

The student is taught the function of words and the ways in which words are combined into sentences to give the desired meaning. If he is to understand sentence relationships, he must know the names commonly used to describe the parts of a sentence. This work on sentence building includes, insofar as they serve a useful purpose, the parts of speech, subjects, predicates, phrases, and clauses. The student is taught the kinds of sentences and how they are used.

The sophomore also learns the rules of capitalization and punctuation that will be of definite assistance to him.

Letter writing, which is a special unit in this year, emphasizes correct form in letters, and organization and desirable content in various types of correspondence.

Oral composition, in the form of newspaper reports, accounts of personal experience and book reports, trains the pupil to speak clearly and distinctly and to contribute to group discussion.

Spelling and word study are stressed in this year. The chief objective is to enlarge the pupil's vocabulary so that he may understand more clearly what he reads and say more precisely what he means. The teachers use specially prepared spelling lists for this purpose. A dictionary unit is included, designed for study of derivation and meaning of words and accuracy in their usage.

English three

The pupil-owned text in literature, a collection of material by American authors, serves not only the obvious purpose of familiarizing the pupil with the best in American literature, but enables him to recognize ideas demonstrated in the writing and in relating them to his own experiences and observation. Some attention is given to the lives of authors, but only to the extent that such material helps to explain why an author thought and wrote as he did.

About three weeks are allotted to the study of poetry with much of the class time devoted to oral reading. Reading aloud is essential for the study of poetry. Unless the pupil hears as he sees, he misses much of the meaning of poetry. Only thus will he appreciate the use of various meters for the various characters and types of incidents. In the study of the short stories the emphasis is on the relation of characters, setting, and plot. Selections are read from several novels, including Ellen Glasgow's Barren Ground and Pearl Buck's Dragon Seed. In drama, the emphasis again is on character as the determining factor in a person's action. Among others, one play by Eugene O'Neill is studied. Six book reports are required. Whether oral or written, the book report should stress understanding of the author's purpose.

The equivalent of six weeks each semester is devoted to composition and grammar. However, review and re-teaching of grammar, punctuation, spelling, and sentence structure must be almost continuous, even in English three. The obvious aim in composition is to teach the student to say exactly what he means. The "how" and "why" are taught in grammar as organization and evaluation of ideas are taught in composition. Letter-writing in English three emphasizes correct form in letters and organization and desirable content in various types of correspondence.

English four

Since 78.6% of Fulton High graduates later attend college, we feel that Senior English must be strongly college-preparatory.

English four presents a survey of English literature from Anglo-Saxon times down through modern times. The text supplies selections for intensive study of narrative, dramatic, and lyric poetry. A good deal of memory work is required. A minimum of four weeks is devoted to Shakespeare's Macbeth. Again, the emphasis is on character as the determining factor in a person's actions, regardless of how strong external circumstances may be. In the study of the essay, clever turns of expression, pointed figures of speech, fresh viewpoints of overworked subjects, and mechanics in language - all become valuable assets to the student in conveying his own ideas to a listening audience. Assignments are designed to lead students into a use of several books for a given assignment rather than just one book. Effort is made to broaden the vision, extend the viewpoint of the student. A minimum of six book reports is required.

Grammar for the senior year reviews the common errors in daily communication; for instance, distinctions in the use of the verbs "lie" and "lay" and other irregular verbs; agreement in number of subject and verb and in pronoun and antecedent; discrimination between the preposition and the conjunction, as in "like" and "as"; the element of time relations through tense, and the change of verb to denote contrary-to-fact statement. The senior year stresses application of mechanical knowledge of grammar to thought content. Emphasis, therefore is upon effective expression through parallelism, subordination, and coordination. Still another aim is smooth transition from sentence to sentence and paragraph to paragraph. A study of transitional phrase and effective devices for summarizing and directing thought relations aids in bringing the idea to a focus.

During the second semester one theme a week is required. Some of the types studies are the paragraph theme, with various methods of development, descriptive and narrative exposition, the process theme, the character sketch, the familiar essay, and the critical paper. At least one investigative or research theme is written, including footnotes and a bibliography.

For seniors, vocabulary study is also stressed. This includes drill in using words correctly as well as defining them correctly.

Visual aids, such as the opaque projector and the bulletin board, are used in the teaching of literature and composition.

The above curriculum will give adequate preparation for college English if the student is consistent and conscientious in applying himself to the task at hand.

—Around Fulton—

The News writes social happenings about you and your friends.

LaNelle and Art Roman are music masters from 'way back. Both of them live on a major scale of musical activities. Undoubtedly their two lovely children are more familiar with Bach and Beethoven than they are with Mother Goose. They couldn't possibly be busier or more interested in music than if they lived for nothing else.

Both of them teach in the schools of Fulton and South Fulton. They participate in nearly every musical program around here, and just as an extra-curricula activity Art is a member of the Melody Men Orchestra, a dance band that plays around here all during the year.

Art is band director for Fulton and South Fulton and that is a man-sized job, especially when one considers the wonderful work that he has done with the bands of both schools.

And LaNelle matches him note for note. Currently LaNelle is producing and directing a perfectly delightful operetta at Terry-Norman School, entitled "Dawn Boy." The musicale will be presented at the Woman's Club on Friday night, February 25 at eight p. m.

The operetta tells the story of an Indian tribe seeking the Rain God's favor so that rain might end a long drought. All boys and girls will be dressed in appropriate dress and will act out the story against the background of an Indian village.

Charles Willingham will play the part of "Dawn Boy," a young brave who goes out in quest of success in bringing the long-hoped-for rain, after all efforts have failed on the part of See-All, the Medicine Man, who is finally proved a fraud. The role of See-All is filled by Barry Roper.

Dawn Boy is urged to go on his mission by Storm Dancer, an old woman of the tribe enacted by Susan Stokes, and by the villagers—hunters, braves, water carriers, arrow makers, potters, and weavers, Silver Dew, the Indian maiden, played by Patsy Babb, bids Dawn Boy farewell, and the other maidens are Moonbeam, Wanda Cash; Shining Star, Joyce Owen; and Wild Flower, Julia Woods. One of the braves, Red Blanket, is portrayed by Danny Joe Robbins.

As Dawn Boy proceeds in search of the Rain God, characterized by Bill Leneave, he dreams of the rainbow spirits and the wind spirits, parts being played by girls of the first four grades.

The story comes to a climax with Dawn Boy's triumphant return to the village and ends with the pitter-patter rhythm of falling rain the closing song.

You just know that "Dawn Boy" will live up to all expectations with a background of music that will delight the audience and be much credit to LaNelle and to the many members of the Terry-Norman P-TA who are assisting her in the production.

Fulton is fortunate indeed to have such an expert man and wife team of musicians and if our young 'uns come up without appreciating the fine traditions of music, it certainly will not be LaNelle or Art Roman's fault.

While in the department of activity at Terry-Norman we surely want to tell you of the most interesting talk made there last week, when Mrs. Harry Allison gave a comparison of the schools in Liberia, West Africa to those in our own United States. Mrs. Allison, who lived in Liberia for sixteen years, while her husband was with the Firestone Rubber company there, can certainly appreciate American schools, no

At the Music Department last week Mrs. Hugh Pigue was having great times these days admiring the lovely chinaware their sons have sent them from the Far East. Viola Strong said that her son, Richard, selected a striking pattern of lovely china from that far-off country that came as a Christmas gift. Gladys Hyland has 90-piece set that Johnny sent her also as a Christmas gift and Mrs. Leon Hutchens is enjoying a tea set that her son, Kenneth, sent her. Peggy Adams has stored away, for some future date a beautiful set that Godfrey Binford sent her as a gift.

The thing to do ladies, is for all of you to have a real-oriental dinner with all that china and invite all of us. We can come go—don't worry about our getting away.

The type has already been set on our earlier Florida story, but Florence and Frank Beadles also left this week for the exodus South.

If you see folks going around town with a number on their wearing apparel be not afraid that it is some kind of identification for the police. Quite the contrary, it is an identification showing that the attendance at the Methodist Sunday School classes are growing each week and all are attempting to reach that 500 attendance goal each week. The number on the garment indicates the week number of the drive and denotes whether or not that person was present for the particular week. Think the folks are in the second week and they are lots of people who are wearing the numeral "2."

You can readily see that each of the meetings were most enjoyable and most informative and in each instance, following the business and program part of the meetings a group of hostesses served refreshments.

The trek is to Florida these days. Wednesday morning two foursofmes of Fultonians started out, "just going south" they said. Irene and Paul Boyd and Ruby and Maxwell McDade started out in the early morning and stopped at Jackson, Tenn., where they were met in another car about noon by Sara and Ward Bushart and Irene and Bob White. Their destination is unknown, but will no doubt end up in Miami where the men folks will do some fishing and the gals will go about getting those envious tans.

Funny thing about it all. They were hoping for beautiful weather, which they undoubtedly will have.

Sure do feel bad about an item we had in Diary last week. We said that a trio of Fultonians, Jane White, Nancy Wilson and Anne Latta enjoyed their stay in Florida. We left poor little Mary Davis Weak, a member of the party there, according to our story. Since we left Mary Davis out of the return trip, wonder if she minds our getting a ride home for her with the party that left Wednesday. (Ed's note: Mary Davis really did return, it was just one of those type errors that

Decorations in Valentine shades of red and white transformed the American Legion Home into a gala party scene last Friday night when a group of students from the sixth, seventh and eighth grades of Carr Institute enjoyed a very happy valentine dance. The parents of nineteen students were hosts and hostesses to the enthusiastic dance when the Melody Men played from 7:30 until 10:30 p. m.

Valentine enthusiasm everywhere and everybody was happy with the valentine lad lassie they selected. The table was covered with a red cloth and red candles were lighted to lend a soft glow to the scene. Even the lovely sandwiches served had a little more piment to them to carry out the red theme of Valentine. We know, we were sent a good batch of them by one of the Melody Men.

The young folks around town are getting in a dance-happy frame of mind and we know that the Melody Men have as much fun at the parties as do the guests.

The parents sponsoring the dance were—Dr. and Mrs. Glynn Bushart, Mrs. Hontas Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Tucker Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Max McKnight, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Newton, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holland, Mr. and Mrs. Billie Stephenson, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Seldon Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bushart, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jolley, Mr. and Mrs. Theo Kramer, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Andrews Mr. and Mrs. Edward Benedict, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Bud Davis, Mr. and Mrs. James Carter, Mr. and Mrs. John Covington, Mr. and Mrs. Elvis Babb, and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Latham.

Willie Foster, Mayfield Clothier, Cuts New Pattern For Political Sewing This Summer

Willie Foster, head man at the Merit Clothing Company in Mayfield cut himself a new pattern of political cloth when he announced Sunday that he would support Happy Chandler in the Governor's race this summer. This announcement is a major alteration of his political thinking for the past several years.

In his pontifical edict to Mr. Chandler he said that he believed in Mr. Chandler's ideas of good government and for that reason he would do what ever he could to help the candidate in the race this summer. Undoubtedly Mr. Foster has been living some kind of a life during his close, almost inseparable associations with the administration of Lawrence Wetherby, whose ideas of government will be continued by Judge Bert T. Combs, who no doubt will be supported by Wetherby, et al.

The rumor, has persisted in the First District for several weeks that Foster would support Chandler. Those of us who have watched Mr. Foster ascend great political heights in the Wetherby-Beauchamp-Clements camp could hardly believe the rumor. But its not rumor anymore, its fact. So what?

Foster will act in an advisory capacity to Chandler, the Sunday papers said. We believe that Foster will find many good advisory doors closed, since he has "broken" with his old friends Doc Beauchamp, Lawrence Wetherby and Earle Clements. True,

Mr. Foster, when he managed the successful campaign of Alben Barkley last year brought about a 72,000 majority for the beloved Kentuckian. It must be remembered though that his candidate was Alben Barkley, one of the greatest Kentuckians of all times, a former Senator, vice-president and always a great American.

But many people are not too worried about Mr. Foster's February pattern of support. There's some five months between now and election time and styles change quickly in this modern age of fashion, don't they Mr. Foster?

In Fulton County, oft-referred to as part of the First District, Mr. Foster's announcement has not had any world-shaking effect. Nor do we imagine it has had in other First District counties. And that includes all of them.

We still think that people make up their own minds about voting. And that is encouraging to all of us where Judge Combs is concerned, who as far as we know has not withdrawn from the race as a result of Mr. Foster's Sunday announcement.

The more Judge Combs campaigns the more friends he makes. The more friends he makes the more, will his platform be embraced. The more people who embrace his platform the more votes he will get. And the more the votes, the bigger the victory, and all the Merit-labelled votes in the United States can't beat that combination.

FROM THE FILES: TURNING BACK THE CLOCK

(February 14, 1930)

Members of the Chamber of Commerce met Tuesday night and elected the following Board of Directors to serve for the ensuing year:

T. M. Franklin, J. E. Fall, R. H. Wade, I. H. Read, Joe Browder, E. C. Hardesty, Paul DeMyer, Lon Jones, Dr. Seldon Cohn, Warren Graham.

In electing the board of directors, 45 members received votes, but the ten men listed above received the largest number of votes cast and was duly declared elected.

A. M. Nugent, who had served two years as president of the organization positively refused re-election, therefore his name was not considered by the directors when electing officers.

The directors met Wednesday afternoon and elected R. H. Wade, president, and T. M. Franklin, vice-president; J. D. Davis, temporary secretary.

Sponsored by the local drum and bugle corps and staged by the Universal Producing Company of Fairfield, Iowa, the big home talent production, "Corporal Eagen," will be given at the Science Hall next Wednesday and Thursday nights, February 19 and 20.

The play proper opens with reveille, with eighteen of Fulton's most prominent business men in the formation of an "awkward squad" of rookies. They are commanded by the hard-boiled top sergeant, played by E. N. DeMyer.

ed by E. N. DeMyer.

The characters around which much of the comedy revolves are "Red" Eagen, an Irish doughboy, played by Clarence Pickering and his Jewish buddy, Izzy Goldstein, played by Louie Kasnow. Sally O'Neil, Red's girl, played by Miss Elizabeth Ethridge. The old maid war worker, played by Miss Pauline Thompson and the Y. M. C. A. worker, played by Tobe Perce, elope after much difficulty. Abbie Goldstein, played by Cecil Weatherspoon, and Michael Eagen, played by Mayor Paul DeMyer, are the fathers of Izzy and Red.

Mr. and Mrs. Edd Work of Dredgen have moved to Fulton and are now permanent residents of our city.

Dr. Jones has opened a dental office in the Cohn Building on Walnut Street where he has the most up to date dental offices in Western Kentucky. He is a brother of our well known citizen, Dr. D. L. Jones.

John Earle, of the City Garage, was out looking over his lot on Fourth Street recently, perfecting plans to build a two-story garage building.

farms during the past 20 years, and Mr. Choate has helped finance each of them. As these tenants leave to operate their own places, some of the wage hands usually become tenants.

Although the Choate farm is not operated as a father-son or family partnership, Wendell, the Choates' only son, is active in the management of the business. In fact, he manages the operations in the Delta and takes the Polled Hereford show cattle to several state fairs. Also, in partnership with a brother-in-law, he supervises the operation of four cotton pickers which start in Louisiana and work north during the picking season. The Choates' only daughter, Paula, keeps the records for the farm and the books at the cotton gin. She also helps in planning the farm business.

Both Wendell and Paula have shares in some of the different sources of income of the business. They handle their own money and bank accounts.

Although the Choates have a highly commercialized farm business, a large part of the food supply for all families on the place is produced on the farm. All the workers have gardens and most of them have milk cows and meat hogs produced on the farm for family use. This is especially significant in increasing the income and standard of living of all the families.

In summarizing outstanding factors in the management and operation of the Choate enterprise, the following features are especially noteworthy:

Good farming, as indicated by the production of high crop yields at a low cost per unit, by the farm and home improvement program, and by the fine purebred Polled Hereford herd.

to be given many a workout that seems futile while peace is with us.

No city, however, waits until fire strikes to recruit its fire department, or to warm its citizens of the danger of fire. And as long as we have to live with the possibility that war or other disasters might strike without warning, civilian defense organizations have to be the firemen of this uneasy peace. We all devoutly pray that fires and wars will not strike. But this does not give us the right to live as though we know they won't.

We're inclined to agree, too, with Mr. Lindsey, that an alert of the type sounded throughout this region last week might just as well be made public. This one was denied so frequently that people who had not heard anything at all about it might have been belatedly alarmed at the denial. But an important phase of civilian defense is surely the working out a system which could alert people to the possibility of danger while not frightening them into panic. This is not always easy to do, but it is perhaps time to begin thinking of ways in which it can be done.

And in the meantime, to the cheerful workers who turned out on a cold night to man their stations, we offer our very real thanks. All of us depend on these few for direction when emergency comes, and the promptness of their response is a heartening indication that they will not fail us.

Now at 124 pounds he wonders if I can't take a piece of material out of the hem so I can put a strip down the back and make the coat a little larger. The sleeves fit at well above my elbow and everytime he writes a fashion ad he says that elbow-length sleeves are all the rage. "See, Jo, your coat is not out of style," says he. O, no, we've only been married 15 years.
And try telling 'em what to do. Bought 16 fruit trees in the late summer. Paul was going to put them out in the early fall. ### THE Past and Present of John Hunt Morgan and his Confederate cavalymen crossed the Ohio River at historic Brandenburg, county seat of Meade County, for their daring invasion of the North.

Today, Meade County is in the midst of another kind of crossing... toward industrialization and agricultural improvement. The Olin Mathieson Corporation has erected a multi-million dollar plant there. And Meade County farmers are being lauded for their accomplishments in improving Hereford cattle.

Many citizens of Meade County, past and present, have always enjoyed an occasional glass of beer—the beverage of moderation. The sale of beer under orderly conditions is an important objective of your brewing industry. Our continuing educational program helps beer retailers maintain their high standards.

Every lady that was contacted very willingly agreed to help for this effort even though at that time some of those were taking daily treatments from their doctor. If anyone failed to see these ladies when they called at your home they would be glad for you to send them any contribution. They are, Mrs. Ray Bondurant, Mrs. Harry Watts, Mrs. D. J. Jones, Mrs. Marion Jones, Mrs. Milburn Conner, Mrs. Roberta Westbrook, Mrs. Nell Reed, Mrs. Fannie Lon Elliott, Mrs. Valda Simpson, Mrs. Mike Nanney, Mrs. Virginia Clark and Mrs. Sue Pate.

Not Unreasonable

Pa is getting pretty tired of that new boy friend of Flossie's who brings her home so late every night.

"I don't want to be narrow-minded about this, Flossie," he expostulated the other day. "I don't care how long he stays here but I wish you would stop him from taking the morning paper off the porch when he leaves."

SOUTHERN FARM FORUM

I have just received a report from the two day meeting of the Southern Farm Forum in New Orleans. This is a very successful organization composed of farm leaders and agricultural leaders interested in agricultural advancement. They meet every year to discuss various farm problems and subjects. It is in its eighth year and it is reported to me that interest ran higher this time than in previous meetings.

The Forum is sponsored by the New Orleans Chamber of Commerce and has the cooperation of the business men of that great city. I always enjoy the reports of these meetings as you can hear from some of the outstanding authorities on many agriculture subjects.

There were many subjects reported on such as: livestock, cotton, dairying, rice, sugar cane, and forestry. Some of these subjects are not of particular interest to us, but we should know just what our neighbors are doing.

The outlook for agriculture was of interest to me and they predict many commodities and crops look brighter than others.

WATER PROBLEMS

There was a most interesting discussion by a panel who brought out water problems facing southern agriculture. The general consensus was that the south was facing another serious drought this year. Figures were presented to show actual costs of irrigating such crops as cotton. The panel gave figures to show that although the cost of irrigating cotton was costly, it paid big dividends to those who used it in 1954. Every indication was that more farmers would irrigate this year than ever before.

WATER LEGISLATION

Speakers stressed the importance of states having legislation pertaining to use of water by farmers and municipalities and urged that serious attention be given passage of water laws in various southern states and that when such problems were under consideration that proper authorities be contacted before definite steps were taken.

WATER MANAGEMENT

It was pointed out that proper management of our water supply is most important. There is no question but what this is one of the important phases of our

IN MEMORY OF MRS. MARY B. ABERNATHY (ABBIE)

Unselfishly, She passed our way So wise, true and strong Yet held a hand of Tolerance To right a path gone wrong. A neat bouquet from Life's patch-work quilt She lent her grace and charm Spreading a bit of loveliness To all who came along. With the bright-warmth of the evening star She ever let you share The happiness of Knowing Her heart of gentle-care Every seam was straight and smooth As she mended life's little tares A golden crown of Faith and Prayer Will brighten her way up there. Those misty Robes of the Angel choir Have gained the magic touch A little town has lost a friend For we will miss her much. Composed by Emma L. Roberson ques Fray, the concert public is responding with high enthusiasm. For Braggiotti's musical philosophy is basically a simple one. He is determined that his programs produce something for the enjoyment of every person in his audience.

Accordingly his recital programs follow a course of informality and cordiality as well of a large family. There were ten of us children—eight still living. My parents are O. N. and Lula Freeman, who still live on a farm in northeastern Graves County, where I was born (almost as poor as Abraham Lincoln). My family possessed very little worldly goods, making it necessary for all of us to work hard and to earn our living by the sweat of the brow. We, as a family, are still poor, but I believe no one will question that we are honorable folks and I know we believe in the principles of Christianity and have an unwavering faith in the American way of life.

As a poor boy I attended Bonds Grade School, near the Graves-Marshall County line. My teacher permitted me to build fires and sweep floors, for which she paid me 10 cents per day for five days a week. I used this income for the purchase of school books and supplies. After finishing the eighth grade I entered Symsonia High School, walking 3½ miles, each way. The teachers at Symsonia High School gave me the job of building fires and sweeping floors for $4.00 per month. This income was supplemented by my old faithful black and tan hound dog, "Old Rock", who caught "possums for me at night. I sold their skins and used the income for necessary school books and supplies.

Through the grades and high school I worked on my father's farm, many times suckering tobacco by hand in the moonlight at night, in order to attend school the next day. I know that many of you have done these things in order to further your education and that you understand the hardships.

In September, 1933, I left home for Murray State College with a small suitcase under my arm, a few clothes and a red basketball sweater on my back. I hitch-hiked to Murray and enrolled in college. Of course, I had to have a job and obtained one on the farm of Stanley Puleen through the efforts of my high school teacher, Slayden Douthitt.

as artistic worth. A typical program might open with early compositions of little known composers, often arranged in the Braggiotti manner. Then, possibly, a Beethoven sonata, a group of Debussy and a fiery Spanish selection. One of the Gershwin concerti, his own solo piano arrangement may follow, and then came his imitable caricatures in which he takes well-known American folk tunes and gives them new and humorous life in the style of many composers.

Braggiotti has raised the art of improvisation to new levels and his caricatures sparkle with subtle humor, just as the classics take on life and color and meaning under the fingers of an artist who approaches the piano with refreshing candor and establishes a wholly spontaneous friendship with his audience.
