Jottings from Jo's
Note Book

Wasn't it P. T. Barnum, the great circus owner who said something about people and fooling 'em some of the time, but not all of the time. I'm getting to feel much like Barnum except with a variation of his old saying. You can please some of the people some of the time, and you can please half of the people some of the time, but never, but never can you please all of the people all of the time. You just take that from me, but sure.

One thing Barnum and I have in common and that's the circus, because here of late, I've come to see this newspaper business as something of a circus and I'm always on the merry-go-round. It isn't often that I catch a gold ring either although I did get a ring of a wreath recently. But that's history and the wreath is posterity. And politics is something else, too.

I'm talking particularly about a kind of a newspaper that tries to print both sides of the news not just the side that pleases the most people but too long ago, some of you will recall, I printed a letter some folks brought in to me about a situation that prevailed hereabouts. I wrote what most newspaper people would call a factual news story and I let it go at that, the chips fall where they may.

Chips did I say. What fell on my head were not chips. They were railroad ties, boulders, mountains of fire and brimstone. Ye gods, I thought, was I voicing the wee small voice of just one individual or two, or was I truly airing the sentiments of a lot of the people interested in that particular project as I was led to believe. For days and nights the deluge of vociferous indignation was heaped upon me until Paul and I thought that perhaps we had put our faith in a few people and we were sorely misled. We weren't and have never been, yet.

Came one bright sunny morning when this world of ours was bleak with despair a call from the wilderness. "Don't worry," they said, "you have done the community a real service. The service I thought they had in mind was something I anticipated from the undertakers. That being the case, Paul and I decided that the service would be simple, but dignified. No flowers. No eulogies, just a simple inscription on the tombstone. "The old hag is dead. Her friends and enemies failed to comment."

As the day went on and the particular situation became more heated and more controversial, we saw something develop that was very healthful for a community. Everybody was mad about the whole thing and the folks who got the maddest decided to do something about their wrath. They went out and proved to themselves and to the community that what they wanted was needed and they fully intended to get it. They did. In less than 24 hours and the folks who were not quite as mad as the maddest ones are probably now pleased that they all got mad in the first place.

But where does that leave us. Right back where we started. The ones who threw the boulders, snub us, and the ones whom we pleased are right proud of what they did. Reminds us of another letter we saw printed hereabouts lately. Fellow says people do too much talking and too little work. Says he: "Let's quit talking and get something done." Now what that fellow ought to do is get durned mad at the newspapers, the Chamber of Commerce and the merchants around him. He just ought to go right out and find some folks who are as mad about things as he is and show up the folks who say it can't be done. And if he gets mad enough, and wants to tell some folks off, without being libelous, I'll print the letter and let's see what happens.

Newspaper editor said once: "If you run a good newspaper and print all the facts all the time, you'll have at least forty per cent of the people mad at you all the time." It's not the same forty per cent all the time. It just means that at some time or another in the life-time of an editor everybody will have their grand opportunity to cuss him out and threaten to stop the paper and cancel their advertising.

Nation Gets View of Ward, Parks, Owen In National Weekly

Kentucky's state park system and $500,000 a year tourist business is featured in a full-length article in the issue (August 27) of The Saturday Evening Post, which went on sale Tuesday.

Entitled "Kentucky Strikes It Rich," the article was written by Falcon O. Baker and gives chief credit for the tourist bonanza to Henry Ward, Kentucky commissioner of conservation, and to former Governor Earle C. Clements and Governor Lawrence W. Wetherby.

VERNON OWEN IS GETTING FAMOUS

Nobody has more fun than Vernon Owen earning a living. Vernon is making "fishing" (the love of his life) pay off and besides that is getting famous at his trade. Vernon is a fishing guide on Kentucky Lake and has toured around there with the experts and still is able to show them a thing or two.

Recently Vernon went on a fishing trip with Earl Ruby, Dutch is this week featured in the State Park story in the Saturday Evening Post.

sports editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, something of an expert at the business. But Vernon out-did him and this is what Ruby had to say about Vernon after that trip.

The article appeared in the August 12 issue of the paper. It follows:

"A tip for mid-summer anglers: You can bring in a limit catch in black and white bass or crappie almost any day on any of the big lakes if you go deep with big minnows in the right spots."

"Vernon 'Dutch' Owen, a professional guide in Murray, has convinced me. He said here last week he was tired of people saying fishing was no good in August. He said that if he ever failed to bring in a limit he not only would give back the $12.50 guide fee, but hand over an extra ten spot to boot. . . . I took him up on it."

"We fished three hours and brought in 15 nice-sized fish of several species. . . . I am sure that if he had remained on the water all day we would have had limits in all varieties."

"We fished within one mile of Eggers Ferry Bridge on Kentucky Lake. . . . What is possible there certainly should be possible at Cumberland, Dale, Dewey or Herrington."

"Owens Technique—We got on the water shortly after 4 a. m., which was a little early for live-bait fishing. . . . So we loafed along and I trolled one of those new lures called 'Spoon-plug.' Just as we approached the shallows in mid-stream where Owen planned to drop

The article relates how Kentucky's great boom in tourism has come about in the last seven years and tells of Ward's efforts to build up the state parks.

The parks program has mushroomed until today Kentucky operates more parks cottages and cabins than any other state except New York," the article states. Seven years ago, when Kentucky began to invest in recreation facilities, the parks attracted fewer than 500,000 visitors annually. A million came the next year, and by 1950 there were 2,000,000. Last year around 4,000,000 visitors were entertained."

The Post writer explains that when Clements became governor he appointed Ward commissioner of conservation and gave him a free hand to develop the state parks. "If Kentucky was to become a vacation land, Ward believed, the great outdoors would have to be padded with homelike comforts," Baker's story continues.

The article, illustrated with seven full-color photographs, reviews the development of the state park system and tells how Ward modernized the parks to the point "where the entire family could have fun doing something."

The story points out how $9,000,000 has been spent in park development in the last seven years and continues, that "Kentuckians today are fishing, swimming, camping, sailing boats, playing golf and riding horses, and water skis in parks all across the commonwealth."

The Post feature relates that "strangers can't understand how such a recreational bonanza (continued from page four)

Wetherby, look over an article telling of the state's park system and tourist business, in the August 27 issue of The Saturday Evening Post. The full-length feature relates what Kentucky has done in the last seven years to build up the park system and credits Ward, Wetherby and former Governor Earle C. Clements with providing the tourist bonanza.

DOC HUGHES, MYSTERIOUS LITTLE MAN WITH THE CANE LEAVES FAVORITE SPOT

The "mysterious little man with the cane is gone from Commercial Avenue. The stooped, frail little character who knew the customs and habits of Fulton as though it was a goldfish bowl vacated his favorite spot on the Commercial Avenue bridge Tuesday morning. In Spring and Summer, in Fall and Winter the man sitting in the chair propped against the bridge railing was as familiar a sight to Fulton as was the creek that flowed beneath it.

Doc Hughes died early Tuesday morning. He told some friends Monday night that he had not been feeling well lately. He made the rounds of his familiar haunts, visited a little while with his neighbors, picked up his chair and turned in about nine o'clock.

At nine o'clock Tuesday morning "Where's Doc?" was heard all along the busy street, for it was an extraordinary occasion for Doc not to have passed the time of day with every person who passed Commercial Avenue since almost before dawn of a morning. Sure he was an early riser. He was somewhat of a night owl, too, but not in the sense that such a phrase is generally spoken. Doc just liked to know, before he turned in, that all was well with his Fulton; that there was no tragedy, no unhappiness, no trouble. It was then that he closed the door of his office-home and rested.

His full name, for the record was Dr. Nolen Webster-Hughes. He was an osteopath. He was a former football coach at Fulton and South Fulton. He was active in Boy Scouting and never lost his interest in any of these activities.

But the Doc Hughes that Ful-

Second Polio Shots To Be Given Locally After School Starts

The second round of polio vaccine shots will be administered soon after local schools start, the health department advised today. The vaccine will be given to those first and second graders who received the first inoculations in April of this year.

At a recent meeting of health department officials held in Paducah, the local health department personnel were told that sufficient vaccine would be available to give the second inoculations, but it is not known whether vaccine would be available for other first and second graders who have not been inoculated.

It is reported that the vaccine will be from the Eli Lilly Laboratories. A storm of controversy over the vaccine became a national situation when nearly 100

SCOUT CARNIVAL TO BE "BIG TOP" EVENT OF SEASON

Fifteen Booths On Board Walk Are Planned

Step right up folks and save your money. The Cub Scout Carnival is on its way. Date for the big sawdust trail on Carr's Park is September 29 and tickets for the big shin-dig go on sale September 17.

Taking some cue from the "big-top boys" Nelson, Tripp and his corps of workers are working feverishly to make this year's carnival the big event of the season. Fifteen booths will form the board-walk, and there'll be everything along the way from cake-walk to an Annette Kellerman high-dive plunger. There'll be a pony-riding for the kids and a big concession stand where hot dogs, hamburgers and cold drinks will be served so that folks can make the affair an "evening out."

At a meeting held at the Methodist Church Tuesday the committee made more plans for the carnival and all indications point to the fact that it will be a sell-out, knock-out, bang-up affair.

The Pack Committee announces that four new den mothers were appointed to serve next year. They are Mrs. Harry Hancock, Mrs. Martin Henry Warren, Mrs. Russell McMorris and Mrs. Paul Westpheling.

Thursday Last Day For Free TB X-Rays

The Tuberculosis Mobile X-ray unit, sponsored locally by the Elks Club continues its free examinations of adults on Lake Street. Today (Thursday) is the last day to get the examinations at no charge. Friday the unit will be stationed in front of the Siegel Factory to give the examination to the workers there. The Elks Lodges of Kentucky have donated four such units for this worthwhile work and local citizens should avail themselves of the opportunity to get the x-ray examinations.

HE'S COMING HOME!

Mr. and Mrs. Hendon Wright motored to Memphis Thursday to meet their son Petty Officer Don Wright who flew into the Bluff City from San Diego where he has been stationed in the Navy since July. Don will be home for several days before leaving for Bainbridge, Md. where he will be stationed for nearly a year.

STATION WFUL TO BROADCAST SERIES OF F'BALL GAMES

More Than 35 Stations Receive Ashland Schedule

Announcement was made this Monday by officials of Ashland Oil and Refining Company and Aetna Oil Company, that the Kentucky Wildcat football games would be broadcast by the largest number of radio stations in one network ever to broadcast UK games over 35 and that Jim McIntyre will be the play-by-play announcer, succeeding J. B. Faulconer for all UK football games carried by the Ashland-Aetna Oil Sports Network. WFUL, Fulton will carry the schedule.

McIntyre's skill at sports-casting is known to thousands of radio listeners, who have heard him describe the football and basketball games of the University of Louisville Cardinals, for the past six seasons; the Louisville Colonels, baseball games, and numerous other important sporting events such as horse racing at Churchill Downs, Davis Cup tennis matches, PGA golf tournaments, boxing bouts, hockey games, and many special events.

A native of Ohio County, Kentucky, Jim McIntyre has been active in radio announcing and sportscasting since 1945 and has been associated with Radio Stations WAVE, WKIX, WKYW, and Station WINN, Louisville, where he has been Sports Director for the past five years. He is married, and has two daughters, ages 8 and 4.

Letter Is Like A Trip On Magic Carpet

Mrs. John Wilkey, a former Fultonian, has arrived in New Delhi, India where she and her daughters joined Mr. Wilkey who is on an economic security mission for the United States. Mrs. Wilkey's story of her travel to India was told in a letter to her friend Mrs. Horace Reams of Fulton and the letter sounds all the world like a "real" trip on a magic carpet through the Mediterranean. Through the beauty and history of Italy, through the primitive customs of Egypt to the shores of Bombay Mrs. Wilkey took Mrs. Reams, and the local lady was good enough to let us print the letter so that we too, could take that wonderful trip.

Last week we ran the first part of the letter and ended it where the party had just reached Italy. Today we conclude that interesting and fascinating imaginary voyage. The letter follows:

Sue does not agree with the wonders of sightseeing. Every time she hears the words "sightseeing tour" since then she makes an awful face and emits a heartbreaking groan. But to Carol and me it was a wonderful experience. We landed in Genoa first, where we remained long enough to take a sightseeing tour of the city. The most interesting to me was seeing the tiny house all covered with ivy, where Columbus once lived. It was no larger around than a small room, but was two stories high, giving it an odd, quaint look.

Next of interest in Naples was the cemetery. It was divided into two parts. First were the rows and rows of pauper graves, with very simple markers all alike, but well apart and most attractively decorated with bright gay flowers. In contrast to these simple graves were the tombs of the wealthy families inside a cathedral like structure. Over each of these graves were carvings and statues, often life sized and quite elaborate, carved by the outstanding sculptors of the time. They mostly depicted Biblical scenes, but one of the most famous is of a little old lady who had worked all her life, it seems, sewing, selling things on the street, etc. to save enough money so that she could be buried inside and have a monument carved in her honor, and it seems that this statue of the little old lady turned out to be the most famous of them all.

The next day about noon we arrived in Naples and that afternoon drove out to see the ruins of Pompeii (not too far from Naples) I had been so fascinated by the story "Last Days of Pompeii" as a young girl, that I actually got to see the ruins was a great thrill. Both Carol and I were greatly impressed with it, and with the bleak, majestic Mt. Vesuvius in the distance overlooking it, which had been the cause of its destruction.

One wealthy home had been largely left standing and gives very good idea of the plan of the wealthy homes of Roman days. The wall of the living room and dining room were largely covered with paintings depicting various scenes of Roman life - athletics, chariot races, many statues (I mean these were painted right on the wall all over it).

The next morning early we took a train to Rome, arriving about noon, where we remained three nights. Every morning and every afternoon (except one) we went on sightseeing tours. That's why Sue says "Ugh!" everytime she hears the word sightseeing, though she really did enjoy a lot of it. She especially enjoyed the (continue on page two)

"Doc" Hughes, the editor-emeditus of Commercial Avenue, the historian deluxe of Fulton and the unofficial but accepted critic, censor and inspector of anything coming and going in the little neighborhood in which he was confined during the past few years, is no more.

Doc's little canvas folding stool is standing against the wall of his bedroom today, its travels over. For many summers it had been accustomed to find a shady spot every warm day somewhere on Commercial Avenue, be it in the shade of the big tree beside McDade's shoe shop at the bridge, or in front of Doc's residence in the late afternoon, or on one of the nearby grassy lawns in the evening.

But no more. Doc Hughes was found dead in his bed Tuesday morning, after several neighbors, concerned at his non-appearance, forced the back door of his quarters and discovered his body.

Even though we haven't been members of the friendly little Commercial Avenue community but the last three years or so, we are going to miss Doc as much as anyone. Early in the morning or late at night, a trip to our office usually always found Doc around, with all the latest news about fires, accidents or goings-on at his fingertips. Everybody knew "Doc" and everybody feels that the Commercial Avenue neighborhood has lost its citizen number one.

The annual farm bureau picnic out at the Fulton park was the first big opportunity for the area to show itself off to a big crowd, and the several thousand men, women and children found that there was plenty of shade, plenty of parking space, plenty of exhibition space for implements and stock, plenty of recreational space for all. It surely was a vast improvement on the weed-grown, muddy, crowded area that the Farm Bureau picnic on two years ago.

The new 1956 Lincoln has added several new wrinkles, in automotive safety features, we note from publicity releases this week. Among other optional seat belts for front-seat passengers, so one can be "fastened in" at high speed, just like airplane passengers during landings and take-offs.

The only problem that may arise is that of telling passengers when to "fasten belts". We suggest a little red light above the rear vision mirror, that will automatically flash when the speed exceeds 65 miles per hour.

Sermonette Of The Week

Criminals Are Not Always Poor

By Hon. Alexander Holtzoff, U. S. Judge for the District of Columbia. VISITING A JAIL is a sad experience. Not just because you find men locked behind bars. But because today you find so many young and youthful faces behind these bars. For today juvenile crime is greater than ever before.

Young boys are committing armed robbery and even murder. There are many causes for this. I could mention the tension resulting from the last war, and so on. But I am convinced that the ultimate cause for the increase in juvenile crime is to be found in the home.

JUVENILE CRIMINALS are not just boys searching for excitement. Boys will be boys of course. But boys will not be criminals unless there is something seriously lacking in their home training.

In an exclusive Washington, D. C. suburb recently a gang of youthful criminals was arrested for stripping cars and selling their loot. On examination they were found to come from well-to-do families. When questioned, their parents had to admit

FROM THE FILES:

TURNING BACK THE CLOCK

Sept. 26, 1930
Nine students from Fulton County were on the honor roll of Murray State Teachers College for the summer semester of 1930.

Students making all A's and B's were: Jessie Fleming, Fulton; Fannie Lee Nix, Fulton; LaVerne Gossum, Fulton; Mrs. J. C. Suggs, Fulton; Jean Moon, Fulton; Capitola McNeely, Fulton; Mrs. Hubert Wilkins, Fulton; Louise Self, Hickman; and Elizabeth Kelly, Hickman, made all A's and B's except one C.

conditioning, because of the great thickness of the stone and the very high ceilings.

We were quite lucky to be in St. Peter's when a special service was being held (down in the front part of the Cathedral) this doesn't often happen, a guide said, on regular conducted tour days. The candles lit up all over the huge Cathedral, and the choir of beautiful resonant Italian voices singing was a most thrilling experience.

Of course the church was so large we could walk all about in the back and go into the various wings, discussing the architecture and carvings without in the least disturbing the service taking place.

Another thing I wouldn't have missed for anything was the Coliseum. This was one of the most impressive sights I've

ed. Their are 105 enrolled in the high school; 317 in the East Hickman grades, and 240 in Tyler school in West Hickman.

The second week of the Fulton Circuit Court opened here Monday morning with Judge J. E. Warren presiding.

ever seen. One reason, no doubt, was because of the history back of it where the gladiators fought and the emperors thumbs turned down or up meant life or death to the contestants. Add to that my study of it in art class back in school days, and even more, perhaps, the fact that my first view of it in Rome was on a moonlight night as we approached it in a horse carriage. Also a floodlight from across the way showed the contrast of lights and shadows in a most spectacular way (the shadow, of course, appearing in each opening or arch).

We got out of our carriage and our driver guide, (who spoke very broken English) escorted us through one of the dark archways inside the Coliseum (which of course has no roof). It was a little spooky at first - I didn't know anything about our driver, we just picked him up outside our hotel.

But inside we found several other people looking, and there was just enough moonlight to give the whole thing a sort of eerie, unreal appearance. I can't describe the wonder and majesty of it, but I'll never forget it.

We saw it the next day on our regular sightseeing tour, and it was still very interesting, but in a more down to earth sort of way.

That same night we saw standing out in bold relief in the moonlight the white marble ruins of the ancient Roman Forum - parts of columns standing, partly lying, scattered over the ground. Somehow those ruins seemed to impress me almost more than those standing - the majesty and grandeur of a civilization that is gone.

Much of all this - the archway of Constantine, various columns, the Appian way, I remembered from my studies in school and that made them mean all the more to me.

We visited Vatican City, saw the Pope wave from his window at noon to the crowd assembled below, saw the Cistine Chapel, the ceiling of which you recall was painted by Michael Angelo, lying flat on his back for 2 1/2 years. That was certainly a marvel to see! An interesting fact one guide told us, which I did not know was that a rival sculptor of Michael Angelo had persuaded the Pope (or ruler) to have Michael Angelo paint this ceiling in the belief that it would greatly lessen his prestige as an artist since he had never painted before. Instead, that ceiling remains one of the great marvels of all times.

I guess, I've touched the highlights of our journey in Italy. I wish we could have stayed longer and gone about sightseeing in a more leisurely fashion, but I was most pleased with what we saw in the short time we had.

Oh, I almost forgot to tell you of the outdoor opera we attended our last night in Rome. It was at the Ancient Baths of Caracalla. The setting was so impressive and the opera so well performed. It was not one of the well known operas, but we enjoyed it.

One last note before we leave Italy. I've decided you have to go to America to find Italian spaghetti - at least good Italian spaghetti! They automatically serve spaghetti before each noon and evening meal, but usually it is just spaghetti with a rather tasteless tomato sauce. When it does have meat in it it's rather tasteless - at least to me. I might add I don't care for Italian food.

After leaving Italy our next stop was for a few hours in Port Said, Egypt. There we began to see turban a little and camels. Few women on the street, as I remember. On leaving Port Said (about 10:00 p. m.) we started through the Suez Canal, which lasted until the next afternoon. This was interesting to see.

Our next stop was Arden, Arabia, and that was the bleakest, most God-forsaken looking port you ever saw. Black hills of sheer rock seemed to dominate the place and it was hot and sunny! No shade or greenery anywhere. Here for the first time we saw the men wearing skirts and turbans in large numbers. We saw practically no women, but what few ventured out on the street had their faces completely covered with a veil just thin enough they could see through. I wondered that they didn't smother in the heat.

Our next stop was Karache, Pakistan, and the sight that impressed me most there, I believe, was the large majestic camel trains. Somehow the camels there seemed much larger than any I had seen before. I did a little shopping, though there was very little to select from.

Our next and final stop of course, was Bombay where you can imagine the feeling we had as we looked down from the boat over the mass of strange faces. We saw one "strangely familiar" face and he saw us about the same time. So we felt that at last our journey was over. Although we still had about a four hour plane ride on to New Delhi. But that was two days later. We relaxed in Bombay for two days and saw the sights there.

As I said, India is the second part of my story. I've already made this too long. Hope I haven't bored you. Do write and tell me all about yourself and family and the happenings there about.

the minnows. I got a nice striped bass. We turned and troiled back. I got another. On the third run the lure hung and I lost it. I tried a Bomber and lost it on the first run over the brushy shallows. Shouldn't have risked it.

By then Owen had his spots picked out. One he recalled from previous success was on a line between a light in the water and a dead tree on shore. Another lay beyond a buoy on a line from a yellow rock shelf.

These spots marked sharp drop-offs from a depth of about 5 feet to 10 feet and more. "We baited two-hooks rigs (one for Crappie) having heavy lead sinkers. Owen makes the rigs himself and is very proud of them. Using long cane poles we tapped the sinkers on the bottom as we moved slowly toward the drop-off. Our power was one of those small electric trolling motors. As we passed the drop-off and the minnows floated downward, the strikes came.

"Several boats of fishermen collected as we pulled one fish after another out of the water. "None of them caught a fish while we were there, although Owen graciously explained what we were doing. The trouble was, none of them had cane poles of sufficient length. Only a few carried any heavy sinkers. Only one had an electric motor or small paddle for sculling. Most wanted to use bobbers, which is not good. You must use a tight line so you can feel the bottom and the bites."

60 BAND DIRECTORS ATTEND UK WORKSHOP

Sixty band directors from Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia took part last week in the University of Kentucky's School Band Workshop. The week-long workshop was conducted under auspices of the UK Department of Music. Warren Lutz, member of the music faculty and director of the University's "Marching 100," served as co-ordinator of the workshop. The group spent the week discussing directing techniques and other plans for next year's programs.

COMMISSION RULES

The Kentucky Railroad Commission, by vote of two to one, granted permission to the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company to drop two of its passenger trains from its daily schedule of four running between Louisville and Ashland. The order is to take effect September 10. Trains to be dropped are the Westbound Train, the Fast Flying Virginian and the eastbound Sportsman.

The Commission also authorized Glasgow Railway Company to discontinue its passenger service between Glasgow and Park City. Revenue losses were assigned in each instance as the reason.

Have you tried your deep-fat frier as a warmer? It is wonderful to keep rolls hot throughout the meal. This is one advantage of a frier of which many people fail to take advantage. It does not harm a frier to turn it on when there is no liquid in it.

In the spring do you use your deep-fat frier when blanching vegetables for freezing? The wire basket makes for a convenient way to drain the vegetables, since you do not want any water in the package. Also, the wire basket prevents splashing when putting the vegetables in the hot water, since they can be put into the basket, then lowered gently into the hot water.

Do you dislike making chili and soup because you do not have a convenient container? Try using your deep-fat frier. Because the frier is thermostatically controlled, you can be assured of no sticking and burning in the bottom of the frier.

Do you take a basket of cooking utensils on a fishing trip? Try cooking the fish in your deep-fat frier and you will have eliminated washing the old black skillet.

Do you refrain from cooking onions in the oil used in the frier? Should the onion leave a slight odor or taste in the oil, cook a potato in the oil and this will absorb any off-flavor or odor.

We are trying to impress upon you that a deep-fat frier can be used for more than just french fried potatoes. French fried potatoes are wonderful—but so is your deep-fat frier.

Read the booklet that comes with the frier and let's take advantage of all the possibilities given us by our frier.

Good Lighting Not Hit Or Miss Job—It Must Be Planned; Guide Is Given

BY IRA MILLER
Farm Electrification Bureau

Good lighting is not a hit or miss job. It must be planned. And this goes for the farm, particularly, where scores of after-dark accidents happen regularly because of poor illumination.

A dark farmyard can be a pretty formidable place in which to take a walk. It becomes even more dangerous when the farmer is hurrying to wind up his chores following a long tiring day. All of us work better, faster and safer if we can see what we're doing, and where we're going.

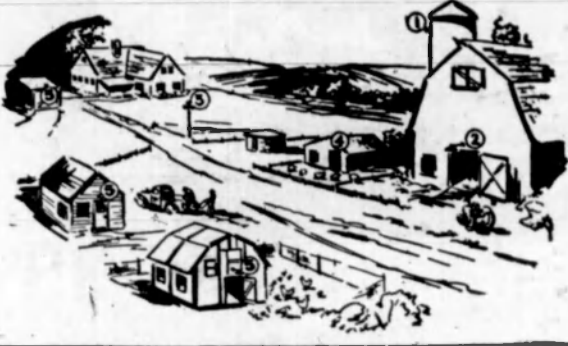

A combination of conventional yardlights and floodlights for locations over entrances to service buildings, and a cluster of floodlights on a yard pole to illuminate areas beyond buildings will do an adequate exterior illumination job. As a guide to how this can be accomplished we refer to the illustration below, which suggests:

Floodlights on side, near top of silo (1); cluster of three floodlights mounted on pole for three-directional general yard lighting (3);

Conventional yard lights over entrance to dairy barn (2), and over entrance to poultry house (5)—in foreground.

Floodlights or conventional yardlights, whichever is more efficient for individual farm layouts, at entrance to hog house (4); at the three other No. 5 locations shown—poultry house, utility building and garage—as well as entrances to such buildings as machine shed, farm shop, milk house, drive-through granary and storage structures.

The foregoing represent general recommendations only—but they are tied directly to nation-wide safety statistics that prove conclusively that injuries can be prevented and work speeded up if farmers will follow the simple practice of putting plenty of light on the job—and lighting their paths to the job.

DEATHS

MRS. URIEL MULLINS
Services for Mrs. Uriel Elizabeth Mullins, who died last Thursday at noon at her home in Wingo, following a lengthy illness, were held Saturday afternoon at 2, at the Little Obion Church. She was 62.

Mrs. Mullins leaves her husband, Bill Mullins of Wingo; a daughter, Mrs. Harlan Craven of Fulton; a brother, Bertha Owens of Detroit; and a sister, Mrs. Dolie Gray of Detroit.

She was an employee at the Henry I. Seigel plant here for eight years.

THE SCOREBOARD

More than 75 candidates for berths on Memphis State football team will suit up on September 1, when the Tigers open for the approaching grid season.

Coach Ralph Hatley will intersperse a period of two-day drills with concentrated attention to blackboard work on the split-T offense. This popular formation will be the Tiger's stock in trade for nine tough games, including meetings with three Southeastern Conference opponents. Opening game is Sept. 24 here vs. Trinity University of Abilene, Texas.

After eight years of single-wing attack Hatley will stick closely to the T this fall, although he indicated he wasn't intending to completely abandon the Tennessee style attack.

The changeover aided in recruitment of new players, who number about 35. Most of these boys have high school backgrounds in T-formation play.

SEC champ Ole Miss headlines the home card of five games. The Rebels close the home stand on Nov. 5. Tennessee Tech follows Trinity in on Oct. 15; then come Mississippi Southern on Oct. 21 and Arkansas State on Oct. 29.

Games away from home include Mississippi State on Oct. 1, Murray State on Oct. 8, Kentucky on Nov. 12, and Chattanooga on Nov. 24.

Tennessee Tech is reported to have its finest team in years, and MSC had to scramble for 25-25 dogfall last year. Mississippi Southern (a perennial power) needs little introduction.

NEGROES TO BE ADMITTED TO ALL TRADE SCHOOLS

Negroes will be admitted to classes in all State Area Trade schools this year, thus starting desegregation in this field in Kentucky, Harold G. Wilson, Director of Industrial and Distribution Education, reported today.

Wilson said he could make the announcement only for State-operated schools. "Admittance in other trade schools will depend upon the action of local boards of education," he added.

State schools are in Paintsville, Paducah and Covington. July enrollment in both state and local trade schools was 2,774 according to Wilson.

ion, and Arkansas State may field a team of surprising ability. Trinity boasts a 16-game win string, Chattanooga is ever-dangerous, and the SEC teams are once again on the prowl with Kentucky considered a threat to an Ole Miss repeat. Murray State — in the midst of a building job — can't be counted out.

This kind of schedule plus a new formation to learn and a shortage of seasoned players — only 17 lettermen — returning doesn't make Hatley jump with joy. But he looks for two units of comparable strength with an edge in ability to the first eleven.

Keystone of the first unit, and probably the outstanding team.

SAFETY MONTH PROCLAIMED

Gov. Lawrence W. Wetherby proclaimed the month of September as "No Accident Month" in Kentucky and called on all citizens to "enlist in the army that is being recruited to fight in the crusade to make fatality and injured lists shorter year by year."

For the past four years, the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals, in co-operation with other groups connected with the mining industry, has sponsored a special safety drive and designated the month of September as "No Accident" month in coal mines of Kentucky.

This year the scope of the drive is being broadened and a concerted effort made to eliminate death, injury and destruction of property not only in our mines but in all phases of work, on highways and in our homes.

Your church is still open every Sunday, if you hadn't noticed.

lineman on the team, should be Joe Billings, a mobile 215-pounder, standing 6-2. Hatley rates Billings, "perhaps the finest tackle MSC has ever had" and "definite All-America timber. Billings played first string right tackle last year and seeks his fourth letter."

Bulwarmed by additional husky operatives Memphis State may field a surprisingly stout team.

Black And White Store Celebrates New Opening This Weekend In U. City

The Black and White Store in Union City has just completed another expansion program, making the firm "the largest department store in this entire area" according to the management.

The new expansion included 2500 square feet additional, formerly occupied by the Piggly-Wiggly grocery.

The new addition includes a fabrics and home furnishings center and an appliance department, in addition to enlargement of each of the old departments.

The store is celebrating with a 3-day "grand opening" this week end, featuring free prizes for the children and a free refrigerator given away Saturday night . . . and in order to accommodate a large throng of visitor, the store will be open Thursday evening until 8:00 p. m.

MERGERS

With business mergers on the increase, the Government, seeking to prevent combinations which it thinks are harmful to free enterprise, often finds itself, as business does, in a "shadowland" of statutory interpretations.

* Doc Hughes

Because his own door was closed Tuesday morning his friends became apprehensive. They had a right to be. No Fultonian ever found that door closed and especially in the middle of the morning. Removing the door from its hinges Bob Binford and others found Doc Hughes dead in his bed. He had not been dead long and apparently became ill while cooking his breakfast. The burner on the stove was still burning when his body was found.

Funeral services for this little gent whom all loved and respected were held Wednesday morning at ten thirty a. m. from the Paul Hornbeak Funeral Home. Burial was in Paducah.

Dr. Hughes was born in Fulton and had lived here all of his life. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Hughes.

He was graduated from Fulton high school and from the Brannan and Hughes School at Springfield, Tenn., which was operated by one of his uncles.

Dr. Hughes was a member of the First Methodist Church.

He leaves a brother, W. B. Hughes of Laurel, Miss.; and several first cousins, among them being Mrs. Boyd Bennett and Will Adams of Fulton, M. B. Nolen of Chagrian Falls, Ohio; J. R. Nolen of Dexter, Mo. W. I. Nolen of Dunedin, Fla.

and Lloyd Emery of Paducah. His only sister, Mrs. Lloyd Emerson, Sr. of Paducah died in March of this year.

WORLD WAR TWO VETERANS HAVE ONE MORE YEAR TO STUDY UNDER GI BILL

World War II veterans were reminded by Ray R. Adams, Manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Louisville, that they have one year from today in which to complete GI training. He stated also that the GI loan program will terminate two years from today.

July 25, 1956, marks the end of the educational program for all but a few of the World War II veterans now in training under the original GI Bill, Adams stated.

GI training payments to schools and veterans will stop on that date even though a veteran may still have unused training entitlement or be in the middle of a course.

The GI loan program, now at peak activity, has two more years to run, coming to end for practically all World War II veterans on July 25, 1957.

The small group of veterans exempted from these two deadlines are those who enlisted or reenlisted under the Armed Forces Voluntary Recruitment Act between October 6, 1945, and October 3, 1946. These veterans have nine years from the end of their enlistment of reenlistment to finish GI training and ten years to apply for GI loans.

Kentucky veterans have secured over $5,000 GI loans of which 89 per cent were for the purchase of homes. Farm loans accounted for 6 per cent and business loans 5 per cent. The principal amount of these loans totals over $212,000,000.

The VA has guaranteed or insured over 4,150,000 loans throughout the nation. These loans totaled almost 29 and one-half million dollars.

Over 115,000 veterans of World War II trained in Kentucky under the GI Bill. This is about 43 per cent of all World War II veterans in the State.

Only about 600 World War II veterans are still in training in Kentucky.

Thy modesty's a candle to thy merit.

Woman's Home Companion

Vacationers who prepare their own picnic meals along the way enjoy all the comforts of home plus a "sunny lift" from eating outdoors, says Woman's Home Companion. In an article giving menus, recipes, ideas, tips, and news, the magazine explains that modern equipment is "designed to make life simple whether you pitch your tent in one spot for a camping vacation or pack up daily to travel on." Picnic hamper and Coleman stove, cooler, and folding table and stools are key pieces of equipment pictured.

STATE EMPLOYEES GIVEN COVERAGE OF SOCIAL SECURITY

More than $3,000,000 a year is being paid by state and local political subdivisions for social security coverage on their employees, H. B. Fithian, director of the Division of Personnel Security in the State Department of Economic Security, reported today.

The first quarter of 1955 found 19,682 employees of 130 state agencies including education institutions and regular government activities on which contributions of $516,846 were paid. In addition, 18,693 employees of counties, cities and independent groups were included on which contributions of $336,412 were paid.

Employees of all state agencies already are under social security, but a number of those in other political subdivisions are not yet covered, according to Fithian.

Coverage of separate political units includes 84 of 120 county school districts; 78 of the 106 independent school districts; 89 of the 120 counties; 79 independent groups such as electric and water plant boards, public libraries, housing commission, and hospitals.

U. S. MILITARY CAPABILITY
Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson recently issued a formal statement that said the United States was maintaining "a military capability superior to that of any potential enemy." With the Senate demanding a reappraisal of American air power, the statement, perhaps significantly, claimed an air power "lead" rather than "superiority."

PUBLICITY DIVISION CITED FOR GREAT SERVICE TO STATE

Kentucky's Division of Publicity has swept the field in receiving awards on printed promotional literature entered in competition for judging by the Southern Graphic Arts Association. Two first place awards and a second place award were extended to the three publications entered by the Kentucky promotional agency.

In Kentucky Travel Annual, a four color forty page tourist promotion piece, was awarded the Highest Award of Merit by the Southern printers group as the outstanding printed area promotion piece. The Kentucky State Park Rate Book received the same award for top excellence among hotel, motel, and park rate books. In addition, the official Kentucky Tourist Map received the second place certificate in the maps classification.

The awards were announced at the 34th Annual Convention of the Southern Graphic Arts Association at Hot Springs, Arkansas. Framed copies of the award certificates were presented to Mack Sisk, director of the Division of Publicity. The awards were adjudged in recognition of general excellence of content, photography and art, layout, and general appearance, and printing quality. All of the publications were lithographed by the Courier-Journal Lithographing Co.

June is the traditional month of weddings, but it seems as if Fulton has changed the trend to August and September. At 3:00 that afternoon Judy Harding became the bride of Earl Pierce, at 4:00 Jane Hawks became the bride of Johnny Thompson, and at 6:00 Vivian Matlock became the bride of James Carter. Then on Sunday Thelma Carol Counce became the bride of Virgil Covington.

Simple

"It's surprising," said the professor to his wife at breakfast, "to think how ignorant we all are. Nearly every man is a specialist in his own particular line, and in consequence we are all as narrow-minded as it is possible to be."

"Yes, dear," said his wife.

"I, for instance," he continued, "am ashamed of my failure to keep abreast of modern science. Take electric light, for example, I haven't the least idea how it works."

His wife gave him a patronizing look, and smiled.

"Why, Hubert, I'm ashamed of you, too. It's so simple! You just turn on the switch."

In the early part of the Civil War, Warren County was the pivot of all Confederate forces in Kentucky. Heavy fortifications ringed Bowling Green. Though the Union Army was never too far away, no major battle was ever fought in Warren County.

Today, Warren County is a prosperous agricultural area, with fine dairy herds, excellent tobacco and prize cattle. Industries there produce automotive parts, dry cleaning equipment, underwear and axe and hoe handles.

In the park-like setting of Bowling Green, so named because the original settlers liked to bowl, are located Western Kentucky State College and Bowling Green Business University.

Many citizens of Warren County, past and present, have always enjoyed an occasional glass of beer - the beverage of moderation. The sale of beer under orderly conditions is an important objective of your brewing industry. Our continuing educational program helps beer retailers maintain their high standards.

DAIRY PROMOTION DURING JUNE IS VERY SUCCESSFUL

Sales of dairy products during June Dairy Month showed significant gains. This was reported to the executive committee of American Dairy Association, headquarters for the June campaign, by Dr. Dwight Seath, U. of K. Chairman of the June Dairy Month Committee of Kentucky.

"From all viewpoints, June Dairy Month was a success," he reported. "Sales of point-of-sale materials showed a 500 per cent increase over the previous year, but perhaps more important, the dairy industry showed a new spirit of cooperation which made possible important gains in sales of dairy products."

All reports of sales of dairy foods during June have not been compiled, but preliminary studies had the effect of counteracting the usual decline in butter sales from May to June. The same situation developed in sales of American and other natural type of cheese which in past years have shown sales decline from May to June.

The sales campaign for the 1954 June Dairy Month is now being prepared and will be presented to the sponsor committee in October.

Many Kentucky communities had special dairy month celebrations with the main emphasis on raising a greater consumption of all dairy products. These included parades, milking contests, milk and ice cream eating contests and many other types of milk promotion.

Several local newspapers had highly successful dairy sections during June.
