Number-Two

Sometimes there are weeks when I hear lots of funny little stories that I like to pass along to you, but somehow I lose my notes from my notebook and I never get around to writing them. This week I found a couple of funny stories, that is, they were to me, and I want to tell you about them.

For instance I had a letter from our good friend Captain Tom Gibson, who lives in Mississippi. He said he had just returned from a little trip where he sold a graveyard. Said he: "I was mighty glad to sell it too." The thing that has me puzzled is... just how do you go about selling a graveyard?

Then in talking to Ruth Johnson the other day about the bank robbers who met their Waterloo in Fulton on May 13, 1953 I learned that when the late Justin Attebery, then Circuit Court Clerk was asked to describe the bank robbers, he said: "Not much to say about them except that they were all wearing St. Christopher medals around their necks." St. Christopher is the patron saint of safety.

Talking to a Fulton boy, home for a furlough with his family I learned that he was in such top-secret military work that he couldn't even tell his rank. He is stationed in a large city and when I tried to give him the third degree about his position he still said nothing. I finally asked him if he was in any position to get himself any purple hearts to which he answered: "Well, the traffic is awfully bad in the city."

This story isn't funny, but it is in the category of being amusing the way those little boys in blue, the Cub Scouts, take a job with all the enthusiasm that is in their little minds and bodies. Last Saturday the little boys sold peanuts at ten cents per bag to boost the Polio fund. Maybe it was the circus atmosphere of those "salted in the shell peanuts" that made the kids get in there and sell like mad. You know what they did? They not only sold the 1000 bags allotted to Fulton, but they went over and got the 500 bags allotted to Hickman and sold every last one of them. The sale netted more than $180 and brother that's a lot of peanuts.

One little boy came in the office Saturday afternoon and said that he had three bags left and wanted to sell them all to me. I had eaten my share of peanuts that day and I couldn't see eating any more so I told him that he ought to sell them to more than one person. The refusal didn't bother him at all. He collected the time for the one bag and a couple of customers had the misfortune of coming in the office about that time and bingo... they cleaned out the boy's inventory.

Those Cub Scouts do worlds of good. They like to get patted on the back too and this is our way of showing appreciation for their wonderful work last Saturday and for the wonderful work they will do in the future. The den chiefs, the den mothers, the pack committee and everybody connected with Cub Scouting deserves far more praise than we can ever give them. It isn't hard to see why Fulton's Cub Pack is rated among the top in the Nation. Shucks, it is the "tops" in the Nation.

Seven Freight Cars Derailed At New Yards

A derailment in the I. C. new yards around midnight Tuesday night caused seven loaded tank and box cars of the fast NC-2 Northbound freight to leave the rails, tearing up some 200 yards of track on the northbound main line.

Traffic was resumed late Wednesday after the cars, severed with understructure completely ripped off, were removed by special crews, and the line rebuilt.

The wreck was believed caused either by a burst air hose or a faulty switch.

SOUTH FULTON CONTINUES TORRID BASKETBALL PACE

Whips Hickman Tuesday; Plays Rives Friday

The boys basketball team of South Fulton continued its torrid pace as second-rated quintet in western Tennessee this week, whipping Hickman there Tuesday night 63-52, and annexing No. 17 for the season against no losses.

And now all coach Ed Phipps has to worry about is to prevent his spotlight team from being victims of over confidence, he told the News Wednesday, stating that such was very nearly the case Tuesday night, when the Red Devils trailed Hickman up through half-time.

Tomorrow night (Friday) the Red Devils will travel to Rives, Tenn. to play a return engagement with the team that stalled its way to the amazingly low score of 9-2 last time the two teams played.

South Fulton retains its rating at the No. 2 team, second only to Paris, Tenn., and then only because the Paris team has won a game or two more.

The girls team at South Fulton has a current record of eight wins against three losses. The three losses include two to the strong Woodland Mills team and one against Hornbeak, which has won 20 straight. In losing games only to these top-rated teams in West Tennessee, Coach Phipps feels that the girls have also amassed an excellent record.

Kitty League is Dead, At Least For This Year

The Kitty League is now officially dead, for 1956 at least.

Shelby Peace, president of the Kitty who made every effort to keep the league going through last fall, and again at the minor league meeting at Columbus, Ohio, in December, has thrown in the sponge officially.

Peace went to Columbus at his own expense, armed with a plea from four Kitty league towns for more financial aid for the Kitty teams from the major leagues. He got a flat turn-down from major league farm club heads. They said $3,000 would be the top figure in aid to the teams.

Dyersburg, Clarksville and Paris, Tenn. were not interest-

Nall, operator of a state boat dock at Kentucky Lake State Park under the Wetherby administration, will be assisted by Bobby Clow of Mayfield.

Operated under the new system will be Kentucky Dam Village Park at Gilbertsville, Kentucky State Park at Eggers Ferry and Pennyville Forest State Park near Dawson Springs.

Robbery Suspects To Appear In Court At Opening Here

Having recently completed prison terms in Federal penitentiaries at Leavenworth and Atlanta four bank robbers captured here in an attempt to rob the Fulton Bank will return here for trial.

Anthony Ozzanto, James Vincent Torrello, Ernest Infelise and Theodore Valentine Ziemba are scheduled to appear in Circuit Court on charges of carrying burglary tools and concealed weapons.

The four men, who gave Chicago as their addresses and who were foiled in their alleged attempt to rob the Fulton Bank were placed under bonds totaling $240,000. Federal charges, which brought about the prison terms in the Federal penitentiaries took precedence over the local charges. Infelise and Ziemba served prison terms at Atlanta while Ozzanto and Torrello served terms at Leavenworth.

On May 13, 1955 this community was startled at the daring robbery attempt and the courageous manner in which local policemen foiled the attempt. The men traveling in a "souped up" Ford with a high-powered automobile motor were apprehended by Officers Hassell Williams and Carmi Page who found a virtual arsenal of firearms in the automobile.

Failure of the men to appear will undoubtedly bring a motion before the court for forfeiture of the bonds.

Besides the bank robbers the docket for circuit court to be held in Fulton is otherwise light.

The grand jury will be selected from the following group, which has been called for Jan. 16. The ones left over, along with the group called for Jan. 17, will comprise the petit jury for this term of court.

Those persons called for Jan. 16 are as follows:

Mansfield Martin, O. C. Croft, Clifford Patey, Joseph H. Newton, George Tillman Adams, James Dawes, Paul E. Boaz, Guy M. Johnson, R. W. Burrow, W. O. Kaufman, John W. Ward, J. R. Cardwell, Felix M. Gossum, Jr., Roper Fields, L. B. Wheeler, Ruben Grissom, William Scott, Johnny Stayton, G. C. Covington, Flynn Powell, Raymond Harrison, Roy Carver,

Governor Chandler said Tuesday: "The state's financial situation does not at this time justify any reduction in revenue. In fact, conditions indicate we will need more revenue."

The Governor's statement was the first he has made publicly of the need for additional revenue to carry out the programs advocated during his election campaigns.

His statement also touched off a major controversy on the subject of cigarette taxes, since it came in response to this direct question from reporters:

"Are you for, or against, bills to reduce the State tax on cigarettes from 3 cents to 2 cents a package?"

His reply, in effect, dealt a death blow to several bills that have been introduced in the 1956 Legislature to lower, or repeal, the State's 3-cents-a-package cigarette tax.

Chandler's statement drew fire from Senator Clarence W. Maloney, Madisonville Democrat, who has 20 other sponsors of his bill to reduce the cigarette tax from 3 cents a package to a cent for each dime of the selling price.

Maloney criticized the Governor for having "led everyone to believe during the campaign that he was for repeal of the tax."

"If he isn't sincere on this matter," Maloney said, "how can he be sincere about any of his program?"

During fiscal 1954-55, the 3-cent-a-package cigarette tax brought in about $2,000,000 more revenue than had the old tax of a cent on each dime of the selling price.

Revenue Department officials said today, however, that reducing the cigarette tax to its former level would cost about $2,500,000 a year.

Chandler's comment on the cigarette-tax bills, and on the need for more revenue, was made just as he was leaving for a trip to Louisville.

No Time For Questions
Meanwhile Sen. Wayne Freeman of Mayfield, has introduced legislation that if passed into law would curtail some of the anticipated revenue measures Chandler is counting on to meet already committed obligations of State Government.

Does Kentucky Need A State Medical College

Governor Chandler, in a 40-minute address to the opening session of the General Assembly called for the establishment of a medical school at the University of Kentucky as a means of meeting an "appalling" lack of public health facilities in the State of Kentucky.

His request did not meet with the unanimous approval of many leading medical men in the State. On the other hand the Kentucky Medical Foundation, made up of leading citizens all over the State, distinguished physicians, surgeons, dentists, farmers, educators and businessmen says there is an urgent need for the establishment of such a college.

Governor Chandler told the lawmakers:

"There is now a shortage of about 1,400 physicians in the State. The situation is made more acute by the fact that the larger communities have more than their share of qualified medical skill."

The Governor pointed to repeated surveys made by medical groups which pointed to the need for added services, and all of which had recommended such a course.

"Shall more time be spent in more committees making more studies and more recommendations? It has been three years since the last committee made its final recommendations. The time has come for action."

Opponents of the medical college at the University of Kentucky point out that the University of Louisville's School of Medicine has openings for 25 more students. The Louisville school, maintained in part by State funds, has an exceptionally high standard of scholastic requirements, which results of course in the acceptance of only top-flight students to pursue the important study of medicine. They say, too, there is an unusually high concentration of medical men in the Lexington area who perhaps are more interested in securing a huge medical center to do research and specialized practice than they are in recognizing the true feasibility of establishing another medical school in Kentucky.

The Medical Foundation however, dispels any such personal enthusiasm on the part of the doctors in the Lexington area. They point out that there is a critical shortage of doctors in Kentucky. Among other things they say that:

1. The shortage is the root cause of such manifest evils as Kentucky's excessively high mortality rate.
2. In 1949 over 5000 births, the greatest majority in rural areas, occurred with no physician in attendance.

3. In infant deaths per 1000 population, the Kentucky rate exceeds that of all but three States.

4. More than one out of every three Kentuckians, examined for military service during World War II were found to be physically or mentally unfit to serve in the armed forces.

5. That once the leader of the nation in many fields Kentucky now sits at the second table and eats humble pie with the most backward States of the Nation.

Statistics don't lie, we've often been told, and we have no reason to doubt the fact that there is a critical shortage of doctors in the rural areas. And therein lies the problem.

The Medical Foundation admits that the larger communities have an ample supply of medical talent and they point out that in rural counties, the ratio is one physician to 1976 persons. In one county, they say, there is only one doctor for its 13,101 residents. All true facts, no doubt.

But is the foundation of another medical college the answer to the shortage? Is there any assurance that a graduate of the new medical college will feel the pioneering urge to settle in a rural area? Will not the graduate of the new college be just as eager to settle in a community where fees are stable, where working conditions are comfortable and where he can begin right away to earn the tremendous amount of money he spent to secure that medical education?

It has been pointed out that Kentucky has not kept pace with the progress of the nation in medical education. That fact we regret. We would regret even more to learn at some later date, that after the establishment of another medical school in Kentucky the State is over-run with doctors, that competition for practice is stiff, that such competition has lowered the standards of the profession and that after all that outlay of cash for a new school, you still can't keep the shingles hanging out on the farm.

The Medical Foundation says that it will consider it a continuing obligation to see that physicians are placed in rural areas. That's fine. One last thought to remember however is that after a student completes his education at the new medical school he will choose to practice wherever he darn well pleases . . . and if his choice is not the rural areas, you'll still have that blessed event in the hinterlands giving with the first last squall at the hands of a mid-wife, and Private Hargrove's feet will still be flat.

Kentucky Windage

By P. W.

1955 has now passed into the history books and bright new calendars are hung on all the walls, and it's time for the annual New Year's resolution, made every January just after buying new license plates. Not one single year more will pass before I replace those cursed, rusty bolts holding my license plates. This I say as I take a whole hour, ransacking a job that ought to take about five minutes.

After twenty years changing license plates, I have come to the conclusion that one never buys new bolts to hold them on while the old ones still work. You just keep on using the old bolts and nuts and about every fifth year they finally freeze so solid you have to break them off and then you have no choice. You have to buy a new set.

Incidentally, you will notice on our page one masthead that we are now in volume 25, which should mean our twenty-fifth year of publication and call for a celebration, but it ain't our 25th year yet. The News began publication on June 28th, 1933 and we're supposed to be in the middle of volume 22, but somewhere in the past dark days of our earlier life over on Fourth Street, when the entire shop used to be lighted by a single 150-watt bulb and type was probably a little hard to read from a far corner, we evidently skipped a volume or two. After all, one often didn't know what was printed, back in those days, until he took the finished newspaper out in the bright sunlight and for the first time had a good look at it.

So bear with us, we'll celebrate our twenty-fifth anniversary in the middle of Volume 28.

A "Volume," as you should by now gather, means a complete year's publication, twelve months from the day you started, with the number changed every twelve months thereafter, on the publication's "birthday." Normally you can tell a paper's age by looking at its volume numbers. Volume 74, for instance, should mean that the paper is 74 years old, etc.

We had wondered, just before Christmas, if the Lions' Club might again pull their little Christmas stunt of "arresting" a passing tourist family and hailing them into "court" at Smith's . . . only to have them surprised by a bountiful Christmas dinner and plenty of gifts with the compliments of the Club, as was done in 1954 with such pleasant results. The family of five who were brought in on the deal were very happy and pleased as they left, laden with gifts and everything.

At least, everybody thought so. But to this good day no one has heard so much as a chirp out of them, and that sort of dampened the sentiment for doing it again.

However, Howard Adams DID come away from Christmas with a card from far-off Germany . . . from a customer that he had befriended one cold, dark night when he and Lucille had just turned the lock in the front door and started for home, around midnight.

Just about that time an Army Master Sergeant, his wife and five children came running up to them, stated that they were enroute to Keesler Field (Miss.), had driven all day, and begged them to open up for something erly society. The Supreme Court, in decision, emphasized that "both religion and government can best work to achieve their lofty aims, if each is free from the other within its respective sphere."

WHILE THE FEDERAL and state governments are forbidden from meddling in religion, however, the question has been raised frequently in recent years whether they are also barred from cooperating with religious authorities and assisting our religious way of life. Does our Constitution require that the state and religion shall be alien to each other—to be hostile, suspicious, or unfriendly to each other? Obviously it does not.

We are a deeply religious people whose institutions presuppose a Supreme Being. We have chaplains in Congress and in the armed forces. Our coins bear the inscription "In God We Trust." An act of Congress last year added to the Pledge of Allegiance the words "Under God." The Supreme Court upheld a law on the ground that it respects "the religious nature of our people and accommodates the public service to their spiritual needs."

TODAY WE ENJOY the blessings of freedom of religion in the fullest sense of the word. We also recognize the corresponding duty of not interfering with the rights of worship and the freedom of conscience of others. We have learned how contagious the corroding efforts of religious intolerance are. And we have learned from the experience in totalitarian countries that when a nation becomes contemptuous of religion and the rights of man, it is not long before all freedom is lost.

to eat. Tired as they were, the Adams' took one look at the children, opened up, got everybody comfortable, donned cooks aprons and dished up seven meals for seven big appetites.

The family ate heartily, paid their bill, thanked the Adamses and left. Just as the door was locked for a second try at the trip home, the car came dashing back into view and a very distressed father caught Howard as he was getting into his car and confessed that one of their children was missing, and could they please look around the restaurant for the little boy.

So they unlocked again and sure enough, found the youngster in the men's rest room.

"I shudder to think what would have happened if that fellow had been just a minute later getting back," said Howard. "He didn't know me, I didn't know him, he didn't know where I lived, and that little fellow might have had a long, long, wait in the place before we could finally have gotten him out."

Anyhow, Howard and Lucille have received a Christmas card from the couple every year since from wherever in the world they might be stationed.

As you read in last week's paper, Hugh Rushton is off this week-end to a 9-day cruise from New York to Jamaica and Nassau, having won the trip in a television competition among Cincinnati dealers.

In looking over the descriptive brochure on the cruise, we noted that there are several ports of call where cruise members may visit the islands' mainland during the daytime, but all were warned that they must not miss the last boat back to ship or they will be left there.

"Gee, that would be tough," we argued with Hugh. "You miss the last boat (on purpose) have to stay in Nassau an extra week or so, and stretch a 9-day trip out to three weeks." This being January in Kentucky, we think that would be a pretty good swap.

Don't know whether we sold him on the idea or not, but if he doesn't get back here by the 22nd don't be worried, just be jealous.

Back around Christmas, noting a little story in the Courier-Journal to the effect that Capt. Charles Crutchfield of the Kentucky State Police was promoted to major and appointed executive officer of the whole State organization by the new commissioner.

This is the same red-headed Sergeant Crutchfield who used to be up at the Mayfield headquarters several years ago, and is such a fine fellow.

Up in Missouri they don't make molasses a darn bit better than they do here in Kentucky, but they seem to be prouder of it: all the restaurants up there serve it with their hotcakes, while down here, more often than not, we are served watered maple syrup.

Wonder why we can't eat some of our good home product at our restaurants around here??

Thank You, Mid-America for a busy year

More people than ever depended on the Illinois Central Railroad for transportation during 1955. The result: one of our busiest years.

Being a common carrier, our job is to handle everything for everybody at all times. This takes many kinds of freight cars and lots of them, particularly in a busy year. To keep our supply of cars at a peak, we put extra time and money into car maintenance. The result: a record of nearly 98 per cent of our cars on the job.

Those occasions when we were pinched for cars reflected the nation-wide shortage that kept too many of our cars off our own lines. This we worked hard to correct.

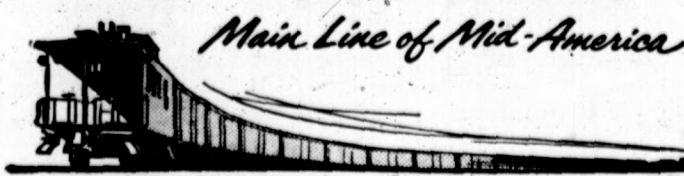

To keep our railroad abreast with the needs of Mid-America, we have spent a total of $228 million for improvements—plus $760 million for maintenance of operating property and equipment—during the past ten years.

This year we plan to build 2,000 new box cars in our own shops. All told we will spend $35 million for new equipment and improvement of the railroad. For we are firmly convinced that our friends throughout Mid-America will continue to grow and prosper. We are determined to meet their transportation needs.

Faith, Hope And Charity Combine To Defeat Polio

The cardinal virtues of faith, hope and charity have a front seat at all March of Dimes performances. In its war against the people of Kentucky polio has claimed more than a score of victims in the last seven years.

Our faith in the Salk vaccine and in continued scientific progress, our hope for a sure cure one day and for the alleviated suffering for the thousands who must always be crippled, our charity in our voluntary contributions, coupled with the limitless giving of the National Foundation—all three—faith, hope and charity—are combining to defeat a costly and sinister enemy.

Americans have been more than generous in supporting this cause. Thanks to that help, we stand today on the threshold of final victory. We must finish the job.

In Fulton County citizens have always responded generously and graciously to the annual March of Dimes drive. Hardly a person has ever failed to contribute in some manner, either through the popular auctions of Station WFUL, the Mother's March, personal solicitations or through the little canisters that are placed in busy down-town stores.

It is heartening to know that for every dollar that is contributed in this county, fifty cents of that amount remains in the county to give help to our polio victims. The other fifty cents is sent to the National Foundation for research and education. It is well to know that through such research the Salk vaccine has been developed, which has given hope and possible life to many a child and adult who might otherwise have died had it not been for this life-saving immunity from the dread disease of polio.

Robert Burrow, county polio chairman advised us that nearly $3000 was spent last year for the treatment and care of the several polio victims in this county. We were fortunate indeed last year that not one new case of polio was reported in Fulton County and for that we feel blessed.

During January the accent will be on the drive for funds to continue the wonderful work undertaken by the March of Dimes. You will be called upon in some manner to contribute to this fund.

Be generous . . . Give to the March of Dimes.

Miss Joan Hamra Weds Mr. Bill Homra Of Fulton

In a setting of striking beauty, marked by dignity and exquisite simplicity Miss Joan Hamra of Steele, Missouri became the bride of Mr. Bill Homra of Fulton on New Year's day in Blytheville, Arkansas. Miss Hamra is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hamra of Steele and Mr. Homra is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Homra of Fulton.

The impressive wedding vows were exchanged before a large assemblage of friends and relatives of the bride and groom and was one of the most significant social events of the mid-winter season.

Rev. Marvin Niblack, pastor of the Steele Methodist Church and the Rev. Harold Eggenberger, pastor of the Blytheville Methodist Church officiated.

The Church was a bower of loveliness for the wedding ceremony.

Placed in the choir loft of the church were baskets of white chrysanthemums. A crescent arrangement of the same flowers was used on the altar.

Illuminating the church were seven-branched candelabra which held Cathedral tapers.

The priest dieu on which the couple knelt for the blessing the bateau neckline was completed with a baby fold.

The gowns featured shirred French push-up sleeves and gathered ballerina skirts.

The bouffant skirts joined the bodices with minute folds which ended in a soft flat bow center back. Their velvet pompadour triple headbands complimented their dresses in color.

Each attendant carried a crystal white velvet finger muff with cover bows of red velvet. Placed on each muff were sprays of red carnations.

Father Gives Bride

The bride entered the aisle on the arm of her father wearing an original gown of white crystal and chintilly lace by Lillian Gates. The molded bodice was fashioned with a V neckline.

Her full skirt was worn over period hoops and crinolines. The graceful skirt was accented with a front lace panel and three-tiered back which fell into a long formal train.

Her veil was secured to a matching lace crown. She carried a side cascade of white bridal roses and feathered carnations.

The flower girls wore floor length white net and tulle formal over crinoline petticoats. They threw rose petals from small white baskets.

Red carnation corsages were pinned in their hair.

Michael Homra of Fulton, brother of the groom, served as best man. Groomsmen were: Jerry Hamra and Lt. Sam Hamra, Jr., brothers of the bride; Eddie Noffel of Portageville, Charles Homra of Ridgely, Tenn.; James Naifeh of Tiptonville, Tenn.; Dr. J. T. Jabbar of Ridgely and James Rashid of Manlius, Ill.

Jack Goodman, Tom Morgan and Donald Micky, all of Steele, served as ushers.

Mrs. Hamra wore for her daughter's marriage an after-noon dress of powder blue peau de sole banded with motifs of lace.

With her dress she wore long white kid gloves and her hat repeated the same blue of her iridescent sequins. She pinned a lavender orchid at her shoulder.

Mrs. Homra wore a champagne chintilly lace over Italian silk original dress by Jimmy Herbert. She wore matching accessories and a purple orchid corsage.

Reception Given

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained with a reception in Plantation Room

Have you noticed how beautiful a nylon curtain shows up with light? Windows are our light source during the day, why not have them continue to transmit light the same way at night? You never need dread a rainy or cloudy day, for with valance lighting you can always turn on the sunshine.

Now, let's look at our draperies. With the daylight streaming in, our window is charming with these yellow velvet hangings, but at night much of the beauty is lost, until we add of Hotel Noble in Blytheville.

The bride's table was centered with a traditional tiered wedding cake. Encircling the cake were candy striped carnations nestled in beds of Canadian spruce.

Silver branched candelabra holding white tapers were used on either side of the cake.

Red lace satin bows with floor length streamers were attached to the corners of the bride's table. The punch table held an arrangement of white gladioli, silvered with Canadian spruce and red baubles.

Mrs. Bill Kenley of Holland and Mrs. Pat Harris of Steele were in charge of the guest book.

Reception assistants were Mrs. Robert Naifeh of Norman, Okla., aunt of the bride; Miss Beverly Homra of Ridgely and Miss Carol Hogan and Miss Sue Williams of St. Louis; Miss Jean Langos of Chicago and Miss Mary Tenholder of St. Louis, all college friends of the bride.

These assistants were presented candy striped carnation corsages.

For traveling, the bride wore a Buddy Yates original costume suit in a shade of beige featuring a pearl beaded collar. She wore matching accessories and completed her outfit with a yellow orchid corsage.

The couple left on a trip to Mexico and upon their return will make their home in Fulton.

Saturday Miss Yvonne Hastings and Miss Marietta Ann Wilson entertained with a luncheon for the bride and Saturday evening a rehearsal dinner at Hotel Noble was given by Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Homra and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Homra of Fulton.

A one o'clock dinner at the Hotel Sunday honored out-of-town guests and members of the wedding party.

Diary of Doin's

—Around Fulton—

The News writes social happenings about you and your friends.

A day or so ago we were visiting in one of our downtown ladies' shops when we found ourselves in a group of DOTING grandmothers. Each grandmother was extolling the precociousness of her own grandchild -- and believe me -- the competition was stiff! So, the Diarist sat there patiently waiting for a chance to get the floor for just one minute to talk about her great-nephew, Steve Baird, -- but no chance! Well, to make a long story short -- the grandmother who really GOT the floor was Mazie (Mrs. Felix Gossum, who told a story about Mike, the five year old son of Mary Louise and Felix Gossum, Jr.

It seems that a few months ago Mike's parents and grandparents were preparing him for the "Blessed Event" which was to take place in their home -- so they told him that MOTHER was going down to the hospital and buy a baby from Dr. Ward Bushart. Now Mike wasn't TOO impressed with this plan -- so one day he came forth with the following solution. "Mazie," he says, "I don't see why Mommy has to go buy a baby at Dr. Ward's when all in the world she'd have to do is to go down to the A&P Store -- Why they're rollin' babies out in those carts and sellin' 'em down THERE every day!" -- See what we mean? -- NEVER underestimate a GRANDMOTHER!

We saw a nice expression of friendship out at the Derby last Friday. Over at a table in the corner there was a beautifully decorated birthday cake on a table surrounded by feminine pulchritude and when curiosity got the best of us, we went over to the table and found out that Virginia Holland had made the nice cake to celebrate Mozelle Sams' birthday. Virginia, Mozelle, Maude Celia Kizer, Vivian Paul and Sarah Brown were all having lunch together and they had also given Mozelle a lovely gift.

Another luncheon was in full sway across the room. At a T-shaped table several ladies were seated together and they were having much fun. Petite Bonnie Dewese was being complimented by friends from Siegel's, with a "Going Away" party. It seems that Bonnie is leaving Fulton to take a position in Clinton. The girls not only had the nice luncheon to let Bonnie know how much they will miss her -- they also gave her a beautiful brass fireplace set. We know how much that set will add to Bonnie's cozy fireplace in her lovely home out on the Clinton Road. Good luck, Bonnie! Aren't FRIENDS a wonderful thing to have? Those who attended the luncheon were: Sammie Powers, Louise Ruddle, Hilda Byrd, Helen Ruth Howell, Mavis Yates, Mabel Laird, Frances Laceywell, Louise Hutchens, Ruth Jones, Sara Stevens, Jackie Whitlock, Lad-atha Fuller, Lavonia Gossum, Estelle Brann, Jewel Morgan, Alberta Owens, Nellie Williams and the honoree.

We are happy to know that Beverly Hill was able to go back to school this week after a recent appendectomy. Bev. goes to Southwestern at Memphis. She was one glad little girl when all of her Chi Omega sorority sisters gave her such a welcome "home."

Members of the Junior Woman's Department were hosts to the Fulton Woman's Club in their first meeting of the new year at the club home Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Arch Huddleston, president, opened the meeting by reading the club collect. Mrs. Paul Boyd gave the secretary's report, and the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Frank Brady. Plans for beautifying the city were discussed. Mrs. Huddleston announced that the club home would be used for the Polio Drive. The nominating committee was announced. It is comprised of Mrs. Ernest Fall, Sr., chairman, Mrs. William Hassell, Mrs. A. B. Roberts, Mrs. Clint Reeds and Mrs. Milton Callahan.

Miss Mary Martin, program chairman for the club, reported that Mrs. C. S. Lowry of Murray will be guest speaker for the February meeting. The club is happy to recognize the following new members: Mrs. Joe Kasnow, Mrs. F. D. Phillips, Mrs. Lou Weather and Miss Ouida Jewell. Fred Wahl, a member of the Paducah Sun Democrat, was guest speaker. He was introduced by Mrs. Charles Walker. Mr. Wahl gave an interesting account of his recent visit to ancient Rome. After the program the members and guests were invited to the beautifully appointed tea table where the hostesses, Mrs. William Hagan, Mrs. David Homra, Mrs. Walker and Mrs. William Hassell served delicious refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Bradford were pleasantly surprised last Friday when the Russell Bradfords and their two little grandsons, Jack and Joe, of Detroit, stopped by on their way to Florida. (See picture).

The lovely suburban home of the H. W. Connaughtons was a gay place last Thursday night when the Homemakers Sunday School Class of the First Baptist Church gave a going-away party honoring Sue (Mrs. William) Locke and (Mrs. Elton) Holland. As most of us know, Sue will leave in the near future to join her husband M/Sgt. Locke, who will be stationed in either France or Germany. Sally and Elton Holland will have Portageville, Mo. for their new home as Elton has been transferred as manager of the Orpheum Theatre here to a theatre there.

During the evening games were played and the class president, Martha Phelps (Mrs. David) presented both honorees with nice gifts. Mary Lou Connaughton and Martha Phelps were co-hostesses.

Delicious punch and dainty cookies were served to the following: Mrs. Holland, Mrs. Locke, Mrs. Hubert Wright, Mrs. Neil Fields, Mrs. Ruth Sutherland, Mrs. Alma Mansfield, Mrs. J. D. Hobbs, Mrs. Pete Peterson, Mrs. J. D. Simpson, Mrs. Shel-ton Owens, Mrs. Otis Crutch-field, Mrs. M. W. Blankenship, Mrs. Buel Carlisle, and Mrs. Monroe Wilkerson.

Congratulations are in order to Doris Jean Roberts, a sophomore at U.T.M.B., who has been chosen to be a member of the College Sextette during the second quarter. Miss Roberts is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Roberts of South Fulton.

Things were buzzin' down at Trinity Episcopal Church met the past few days. Ethel's visitors were Mrs. H. E. Tyrrell and Mrs. J. H. Hebrew of Knoxville. Saturday night they had a bridge game over at Emily Nell's, then Sunday they went to Keniake Hotel for lunch. They were also over at Helen and Glenn Lugh's for dinner one night. There really wasn't a dull moment during their entire visit. Mrs. Torrell and Mrs. Lugh returned home Monday.

Mrs. W. L. Durbin, president, opened the meeting with greetings for the new year. Mrs. Clarence Reed, Worship Chairman, led the group in the auxiliary prayer and offered a most appropriate prayer for the continuance of work, growth and welfare of the Women's Auxiliary, through the new year.

Dues were collected, with 17 members answering the roll. The minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. Daisy Terry, and the treasurer, Mrs. Hortense Johnson, gave her report. Both were approved.

After the business had been completed, the president turned the meeting over to the program chairman, Mrs. Clarence Reed, who presented a well-prepared and interesting article on the United Nations, which is celebrating its 10th year.

The program was concluded with the hostess serving delicious refreshments.

Mrs. Kelly Jones complimented Mrs. Kenneth Mizell, nee Shelby Lawson, with an attractive gift tea at her home on Church Street, Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Refreshments were served from the beautiful appointed dining table overlaid with a lace cloth and centered with flowers. Crystal candleholders held glowing pink and blue tapers. Mrs. Mizell looked lovely in the winter white brocade faille dress which she had chosen for the delightful occasion.

Chandler also promised during his campaign and his reiterated his support of the measure to exempt Keene and from the pari-mutuel betting tax.

Chandler, during his campaign for the governorship, roundly attacked the Wetherby Administration for pressing the cigarette-tax increase.

But Chandler never committed himself publicly to seek a reduction to the 2-cent-a-pack level despite strong implication that he would.

There was no opportunity to ask the Governor how his statement squared with two of his campaign promises — to repeal the so-called lien law that affects public-assistance recipients, and to exempt betters at

The Fulton News Thursday Jan. 12, 1956 Page 6

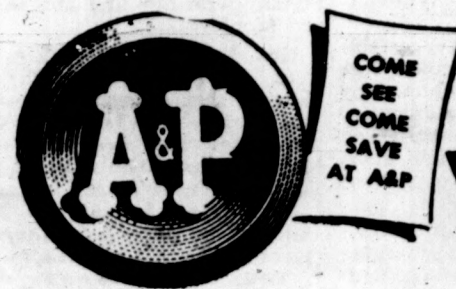

Keeneland Race Track from payment of the State's 4 per cent pari-mutuel tax.

The Keeneland exemption would cost the State about $300,000 a year in revenue.

The cost of repeal of the lien law, as estimated by Vego E. Barnes, commissioner of economie security, was used during the 1954 legislative debates on repeal of this statute.

Barnes then said it would cost $1,600,000 a year in State funds and $4,000,000 a year in federal funds to maintain public-assistance payments at the present level if the lien law was repealed.

Survey Of Doctor's Fees Ends Secrecy

Everyone has to buy medical attention at some time or other and it is a major item in many budgets. Yet no one ever knows in advance how much it will cost or what scale of prices he is paying. Organized medicine has built a screen of secrecy around fees, which sometimes frightens off patients who really need attention. To help you estimate what your doctor should charge, Redbook Magazine conducted a nationwide investigation, bringing to light for the first time reliable figures on medical fees in all sections of the country. This important medical news is published in the magazine, complete with charts that show doctors' charges for the most common treatments and operations in 11 large cities.

"Most patients seem to be as much aroused about the mystery surrounding medical charges as they are about the fairness of those charges. Doctors perform a vital service, and they have a right to be well paid. But do they have a right to expect their patients to pay blindly, any more than doctors would be willing to pay blindly for the cars they drive or the homes they live in?

"A former president of the American Medical Association, Dr. Edard J. McCormick of Toledo, Ohio, told the AMA House of Delegates almost two years ago: 'The profession should consider the creation of average fee lists or fee schedules that would prevail on an area for regional basis. But nothing has been done about the suggestion.' The AMA has a Bureau of Medical Economic Research with a staff of 30 people. The Bureau's director, Dr. Frank G. Dickinson, told us: 'Fees are a matter for local and state societies. The AMA wouldn't touch the problem.'

"Has the AMA taken any real initiative to encourage local and state medical societies to draw up and publish such fee schedules? No. Relatively few societies have even discussed the subject, and most have heatedly refused to do anything about it. A very few, however, have started to face up to the problem. But even where schedules have been drawn up, the mystery about fees often persists. Redbook's investigation of medical fees, however, has brought out the first authoritative information on what doctors are charging from coast to coast. The 11 cities were carefully chosen to make the charts meaningful to young families in every section of the country, section of the country.

The starting point for establishing these elusive medical fees was a survey just completed by a reputable medical publication in which 800 doctors were asked to list anonymously their average fees for certain operations and treatments.

"Before using the charts showing what doctors are charging from coast to coast which Redbook has prepared for the January issue, each family should take these points into consideration: The charts apply to middle income patients. Those in the $5,000 - 6,000-a-year bracket. In addition to income, there are four other important factors that can affect medical bills. Here is how to take all five into account:

"1. The income level of the area. Like all other prices, medical fees are higher in wealthy communities, lower in poor communities.

"2. The patient's own income. Doctors set their fees to some extent by how much the patient can afford to pay.

"3. The size of the city. Fees are almost always higher in large cities than in rural areas.

"4. The doctor's training and status. Naturally doctors with great skill and experience can be expected to charge more than others.

"5. The complications of the case. If complications result in longer than usual on the operating table or extended post-operative care, doctor's fees will have to be higher than for a routine case.

"The following is a summary of the list of the most common operations and treatments covered in Redbook's chart. The average charge in each of 11 cities throughout the country is omitted here. Instead, the lowest and highest fee is quoted in each case, showing the range in price: Normal delivery of baby, $75-$135; Caesarean section, $125-$250; treatment following miscarriage (dilation and curettage), $35-$75; removal of tonsils and adenoids, $40-$75; operation for crossed eye (one eye, one muscle), $125-$200; setting simple fracture of forearm, $50-$100; removal of benign breast tumor, $50-$80; appendectomy, $125-$175; surgical removal of hemorrhoids, $75-$125; repair of hernia (one side), $125-$150.

"Eventually, it seems, the medical profession will face up to the problem of publishing fair fee schedules. Meanwhile, here is what you can do to cope with the problem: Discuss fees with your doctor in advance of surgery or any prolonged medical treatment. Ask your doctor to itemize his bill instead of lumping the total charge under the heading 'For services rendered.' Check with your county medical society when a bill seems excessive."

Sowing a crop of telephone convenience...

Many new, improved construction methods are helping Southern Bell to extend telephone service in rural areas. For example, the cable plow shown above can lay 30 miles of cable a week to a maximum depth of 30 inches, leaving no unsightly trenches.

Also, a small new-type cable which carries several telephone lines has been developed. Of light, inexpensive construction, it is strung right alongside wires on pole lines.

These new and improved techniques helped make possible the installation of about 86,000 new rural phones in 1955 in our nine-state area at a total cost of 16 million dollars. And there's still a big job to do. We'll spend over 18 million dollars in 1956 to bring even more telephones to farm folks who want and need them.

Parents: Let Child Develop At Own Speed

Babies may differ widely in the rate at which they develop walking and talking skills in the first two years and still fall within the normal range. It is normal for growth to vary thus from child to child and even to go along unevenly in any one youngster, says Irma Simonton Black, teacher and author of books about and for children. Writing in Redbook Magazine for January, she warns parents against pushing their youngsters ahead of their natural schedule.

"Sally took her first step at ten months. By the time she was a year-old, she was running a round the house full speed ahead. Ted didn't even try to stand until the ripe old age of 18 months. Which of these babies was normal?"

"The answer is both, of course. The neat tables that inform you that babies 'stand alone—13 months,' or 'say five or more words—18 months,' are based upon the average progress of thousands of children. Every baby does not have to walk at 13 months or talk at 18 months in order to be normal.

"Other yardsticks may measure your child's development as well as walking or talking. Your child may be literally more interested in other projects. The child may be literally more in-14-month old child who does not try to walk may be content to manipulate objects with his hands. The baby who does not say five words on the morning of his eighteenth month, may simply prefer action to articulation of the most elementary kind.

"Furthermore, growth does not go along evenly. Your baby may listen and babble for two years and then burst into a stream of talking practically overnight. In any case, your child will walk and talk when he is ready, and no amount of coaxing or helping on your part will speed him up one bit. Indeed, such attempts as regularly helping him to walk by holding his hands or insisting that he say 'cookie' before he can have one create more problems than they solve.

"Very late development, particularly if it is combined with apathy, listlessness and general lack of interest in the environment, may be a sign of physical or mental deficiency. If, by the end of his second year, a child has made no attempt to stand or say single words, parents should discuss the situation with their family doctor.

"Early walking and talking, however, imply no future superiority in either baseball or Latin. Look at your child as an individual and don't expect him to perform in accordance with a dot on a chart. If he is happy and interested in his surroundings, relax and enjoy him.

CRUTCHFIELD W. M. U. ENJOYS MEETING THURSDAY NIGHT

The "Nell Hardy" W. M. U. of the Crutchfield Baptist Church met for the regular meeting on Thursday night, Jan. 5, 1956.

The President, Miss Winnie Veatch, presided over a brief business session.

The program was presented by Mrs. Harry Pittman and Mrs. Delma Shelton.

The Scripture reading was given by Mrs. J. R. Elliott.

Those taking part in the program were Mrs. Lewis Patrick, Miss Marie Moore, Miss Winnie Veatch, Mrs. J. R. Lell and Mrs. Ira Sadler.

Eleven members and one visitor participated in a brief fellowship, which closed with prayer.

GOVERNOR NAMES WORKMEN'S BOARD

Governor Chandler named a new Workmen's Compensation Board to replace the one which recently resigned.

To head the new body, the Governor named former State Senator Clay Shackelford, 43, a practicing lawyer for 18 years. Other members are Charles Fennell, Cynthia, a former Assistant District Attorney and Commissioner of Conservation during the previous Chandler and Keen Johnson term of office, and Herbert L. Segal, Louisville, considered a specialist in labor-management relations law.

"Our only instructions are to handle all cases with dispatch and decide cases promptly," said the new Chairman. The Board handles cases arising under Workmen's Compensation disputes.

Jennings Kearby, Fulton, attorney, and member of the 1952 and 1954 General Assemblies, was named secretary of the Board. He succeeds the post vacated in September by Lewis D. Jones, New Castle.

HONOR SYSTEM ABANDONED

State Police Commissioner P. A. B. Widener discarded the so-called "honor system" of handling out-of-state motorists who violate traffic laws, directed that those guilty of gross violations be taken immediately before a judge or magistrate for disposal of their cases.

The honor system had resulted in a huge "back-log" of cases in many courts, Widener said. "Practically, the plan seemed unworkable, despite the good intentions of its sponsors. The new plan puts us in line with most other states."

PAYMENTS STOPPED

Commissioner of Agriculture Ben J. Butler announced removal of indemnity payments for cattle infected with Bang's disease and sent to slaughter—and lifting of the requirement for blood testing calves before they are vaccinated, as an economy measure.

Butler explained that he expected to save approximately $13,000 for the remainder of the year.

"The practical situation is this: We have only about thirty per cent of our federal money available to last us for one-half the fiscal year."

Rate of payment for diseased cattle could not exceed $25 a head for grade cattle and $50 for purebred cattle. Average payment was approximately $28.

EFFICIENCY TO KEY FOOD COSTS IN '56 A&P HEAD DECLARES

There should be plentiful supplies of food for America's record level appetites in 1956 with retail prices continuing about as low as in 1955, Ralph W. Burger, president of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, said today.

Mr. Burger said that food prices in 1955 were 1.50/0 lower than in 1954 and 5.80/0 below the post-World War II peak reached in 1952. The over-all cost of living in 1955, he noted, was down, only four-tenths of one per cent.

"Present forecasts show that food production during the new year will come close to the record 1955 level and that prices to consumers will remain about the same. With average weather, there should be adequate food supplies to meet consumer demand," Mr. Burger said.

"This is a record and an outlook that the food industry can be proud of," Mr. Burger declared. "It shows that the orderly downward trend of food costs continued without interruption in 1955. It also shows that the nation's farmers and food distributors are meeting the heavier food demands of our rapidly expanding population."

The A&P president warned, however, that "if we are going to continue to hold the price line and at the same time assure farmers an adequate return, we must be alert to resist inflationary trends developing within the industry."

"Food is one of the largest expenses of the average family. Overexpansion and the unhealthy competitive practices of the 'Boom Psychology' can raise the cost of eating in every American home."

In 1955, he said, the nation's families ate better than ever before and made heavier purchases of what were once "luxury foods." Per capita meat consumption, one example he cited, exceeded 160 pounds—this was five per cent more than in 1954 and the highest for any year on record since 1908.

"Some price reductions may have gone beyond the point where farmers can get a fair return for their investment and labor. Pork is a dramatic example of a food that got so low in price that the producers actually suffered a loss."

Mr. Burger added that the food industry is aware of the problem and is trying to correct it through drives to move surpluses into consumption. It is also trying to narrow the spread between farm and retail prices through increasing the efficiency of its own operations, he said.

Although retail prices were lower in 1955, said Mr. Burger, people spent more money for food. This was because of the greater demand for higher priced items and for goods with "built-in" services, such as cake mixes, frozen foods and frozen meats, ready-to-cook and pre-cooked items, he explained.

The A&P president said the food industry will continue to meet the demand for convenience services and that the coming year will see more product improvements designed to save the housewife's labor.

"However, these items will not be of real benefit to consumers," he continued, "if they add unreasonably to the cost of eating or if the services cannot be performed efficiently in the industry."

"The Food industry operates in the public interest, therefore, efficiency must be its main concern," Mr. Burger declared. He noted that while food costs to consumers went down in 1955, the cost of food distribution went up.

Increases in wages, taxes, rent, transportation and other fixed costs cannot be controlled by the industry, whereas certain other costs the industry imposes upon itself, he said.

"Food merchants are merely purchasing agents for America's consumers. Loose control over costs, along with over-expansion and unsound competitive practices amount to speculation with the consumer's food dollars, which account for one-fourth of the average family's income."

"The industry operates on a volume of billions of dollars a year and it must not forget that nearly one-fifth of all the families it serves have incomes of less than $2,000 a year, and that more than three-fifths earn less than $5,000 a year."

One danger in over-expansion cited by Mr. Burger was the trend toward larger and larger super markets. "In general," he said, "the larger a store is, the harder it becomes to keep its operating costs low."

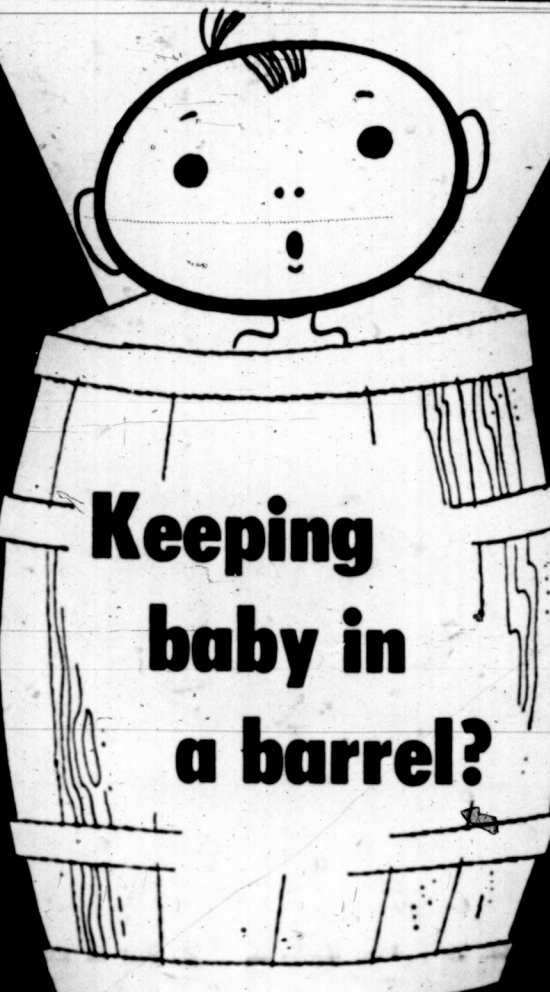

"Consumer buying habits have changed and there is no question that stores must be operated for the convenience of their customers. But neither long store hours nor the new 'built-in' services should be allowed to raise the cost of food."

"Long store hours with night and Sunday business, 'give-aways' and premiums were scrapped by the food industry years ago, because they raised food prices," he continued.

"Now, however, we are in danger of reviving old costly patterns."

One service the consumer is entitled to can be improved without cost, according to the A&P president. "The cost of courteous service is part of the prices charged the customers."

Well-known expert of Indianapolis will personally demonstrate his method without charge at the Davy Crockett Hotel, Union City, Friday, Jan. 20th from 11 a. m. to 6 p. m. Evening by appointment. Ask for Mr. Howe at desk.

Mr. Howe says the Howe method contracts the openings in remarkably short time on the average case, regardless of the size or location of the rupture and no matter how much you lift or strain and puts you back to work the same day as efficient as before you were ruptured.

The Howe Rupture Shield has no leg strap; waterproof, sanitary, practically indestructible and can be worn while bathing. Each shield is skillfully molded and fitted to the parts under heat which gives a perfect fit and satisfaction.

Large and difficult ruptures following operations especially solicited. Do not overlook this opportunity if you want gratifying results. Mailing address: 431 E. Washington St., Oakland City, Ind.
