Seen & Heard Around MURRAY

Smallest doesn't seem to be bothered by his chicken pox. In fact he seems to be proud of the fact that he has been mysteriously singled out of the bunch for the honor.

Green Wilson brought us some steak off of the deer that he and his son Fred killed in Michigan.

Explained to the family that it was rein deer. We shouldn't have.

Developed that Rudolph the red nosed reindeer is a deer also, and the question was quickly put to us whether this was Rudolph or not.

We hastily explained that this deer was not Rudolph or any other of Santa's deer, but some offshoot that Santa Claus didn't have anything to do with.

After that temporary interruption, we began to consume the steak which was very good.

Card from Ed Burken. Says he is getting along alright and should be home in a couple of weeks.

He is in the Good Samaritan Hospital room 339, in Lexington.

Ed reports he had a tough time, but feels better now.

Today is Freedom-Grant Day in the county schools.

Freedom-Grant are supposed to be signed by the parents of the kids and returned to the schools. Bill Solomon will pick them up and send them in to the Crusade for Freedom headquarters.

They will be dropped behind the Iron Curtain countries. The idea is to give hope to those folks who are kept under Red domination.

Today is part of International Golden Rule Week.

On this day in history: The United States declared war on Germany and Italy in 1941; way back in 1719 a group of New Englanders saw the first recorded display of the northern lights; and in 1891 the first short wave message to span the Atlantic flashed from Greenwich, Connecticut, to the town of Adrossen, Scotland.

Kentucky's Has Picture On Mu.

FRANKFORD, Ky.—The winter issue of the Commonwealth's official magazine, "In Kentucky", which comes off the press this week, contains an article about basketball in Kentucky, featuring such teams as Murray, Morehead, Eastern and Western.

The article describes basketball in Kentucky, whether played with a netless hoop tacked on the back of a barn or in the University of Kentucky's new Memorial Coliseum as the state's number one sport from the standpoint of spectator interest. The article is illustrated with action photographs of basketball games and top coaches.

The issue also contains articles about winter fishing in Kentucky's five major lakes, Kentucky's war against tuberculosis, and convention facilities at Kentucky state parks that remain open the year round.

The fishing article, illustrated with pictures of dock facilities and catches, reports on fishing at Kentucky Lake, Dale Hollow, Lake Cumberland, Herrington Lake and Dewey Lake.

In all, 17 features are carried in the winter issue of "In Kentucky."

Murray State Edges Aces By 84-81 Score

The Murray State Thoroughbreds masked by Evansville last night 84-81, to win over the Purple Aces for the second time this season. The victory made it three in a row for the Thoroughbreds.

The Aces had the game all tied up 81-81 with only a few seconds to go, when Garrett Beahar tossed in a goal and Crittenden made a free throw good.

The first quarter ended with Murray in the lead by a 24-21 score. The lead grew to ten points at the halftime after the Murray second platoon took over in the second period.

During the third stanza the first five for Murray came back into the game with the going rough. The Aces caught up and tied the score, but Murray pulled ahead at the third quarter end.

In the closely contested final period, Murray finally edged out the Aces with the 84-81 score.

AMERICAN FREIGHTER IS IN DISTRESS OFF FRENCH COAST

By United Press
An American freighter is in distress 800 miles off the coast of France.

The 7200 ton "Columbia Trader" has radioed that she has lost her propeller and is floundering helplessly in an Atlantic storm.

A sea-going tug, last left Brest, France, to go to the "Trader", said, but the tug is not expected to reach the wallowing ship before tomorrow night or Saturday morning.

Lloyd's register of ships lists the "Trader" as owned by the West Coast Trans-Oceanic Steamship Line, and gives her home port as Portland, Oregon. The "Trader" is believed to carry a crew of about 35 men.

General MacArthur Plans To Give His Plan To End The Korean War Only To President-Elect Dwight Eisenhower

By George J. Marder (UP)
General MacArthur will give his ideas on how to end the Korean war to President-elect Eisenhower, and no one else.

President Truman has laid down a challenge that MacArthur put up or shut up. But MacArthur won't bite.

The one-time Pacific commander was fired by President Truman for his ideas on how to fight the Korean war. MacArthur has no confidence President Truman would be any more inclined to accept his ideas now.

Of course, neither does MacArthur have any assurance that his plan would be any more acceptable to Eisenhower. Nevertheless, he'll be given a hearing, MacArthur and Eisenhower are to meet in New York after the President-elect returns from his Pacific tour.

The date apparently has not yet been set.

As put forth by MacArthur, his new plan to end the Korean war seems to be right down the Eisenhower alley. For MacArthur insists that his new scheme for victory could be MacArthur's words—be executed without either

Reds Launch Mass Assault, Hurled Back

By United Press
The Chinese Reds launched their biggest mass assaults in nearly a month today, but were hurled back after 13 hours of bitter fighting.

The Reds, pushing off shortly after midnight, Korean time, drove into four UN hill positions on the western front. By dawn, South Korean troops had blunted three of the attacks. But they lost ground in the fourth, at Little Nori Hill, which was pushed off it in 10 hours.

The ROK's withdrew to take the hill with air strikes and artillery, mortar and tank fire for two hours, then launched an attack of their own. Surging through two-thousand rounds of artillery bombardment, they pushed into the caves and trenches on Little Nori and one hour later battered the Chinese into retreat.

The Reds are reported to have suffered 170 casualties, and the ROK's strengthened their defenses. An American military adviser said the battle is stopped now, and added, "we hope it's finished for the day."

The Reds used an estimated two battalions, or 1500 men in the attacks. That's the most they've used along the 155-mile Korean front since late November, when the battle of Sniper Ridge on the central front was at its peak.

Allied officers estimate that the Reds fired more than 10,000 rounds of artillery and mortar during the 18-hour battle for "Little Nori."

But the Reds were on the re-argued and too-allied pilots made 200 attacks.

Elsewhere in the air, allied pilots roamed MIG Alley without sighting a Communist fighter.

Truman Fights Controls Battle

By United Press
President Truman is fighting the controls battle in the face of growing opposition from industry and labor.

The chief executive is expected to reaffirm his determination to keep wage and price controls this morning as he talks to newsmen this morning at 10:30 (EST). But he has a big task ahead of him.

Yesterday, industry members of the regional wage boards at Cleveland and Dallas quit their jobs, joining their counterparts on the national board and the Chicago and Boston boards in the battle over the coal case. All of them have blasted the President for allowing higher wages for miners.

The National Association of Manufacturers threw its weight in with the United States' Chamber of Commerce in refusing to recommend men to replace those industry members who walked out.

The new president of the CIO, Walter Reuther, will meet this afternoon with economic stabilizer Roger Putnam, and is expected to line up with industry in the demand for scrapping controls. Reuther says price controls are not unfair.

The NAM says wage controls are non-existent, and it asks: Why not get rid of price ceilings, too? Their reasons are different—but the combined opposition of labor and management may frustrate Mr. Truman's plans to continue controls.

Finis Futrell Succumbs Here Last Night

J. F. "Finis" Futrell, age 84, passed away at the Murray Hospital Wednesday at 10 p.m. His death was due to complications following a lengthy illness. He and his wife have been patients at the Murray Hospital for the past 17 months.

Survivors are his wife, Mrs. Eunice Futrell, Alto Route One and Murray Hospital; one daughter, Mrs. Alfred Keel, Alto Route One; one son, Ivan Futrell, Murray; four grandchildren; two great grandchildren.

Mr. Futrell was a member of the Elm Grove Baptist Church where funeral services will be held Friday at two p.m. with Reverends L. V. Henson, Leonard Cole and Paul T. Lyles officiating.

Active pallbearers will be Kevs Futrell, Stanley Futrell, Albert Lassiter, Dewey Ragdale, Labie Hale and Herman Futrell, nephews. Burial will be in the Elm Grove cemetery.

The body will be at the Max H. Churchill Funeral Home until the hour of service.

Russia Refuses To Pay Compensation For Downed Plane

By United Press
Russia has said "no, again..." This time, the negative came in reply to an American demand for damages for a B-29 superfortress shot down by Soviet fighters off the tip of northern Japan on October 7.

The note refusing to pay compensation for the bomber and its eight-man crew is understood to have been delivered to the American embassy in Moscow a week or 10 days ago. But it has just been made public.

However, Russia has not made use of the refusal for propaganda purposes, as is usual when the Kremlin answers an American note. The Russian reply is said to have followed the outlines of the previous Soviet stand on the matter—that the American bomber fired on Red air force planes after it "violated" the Soviet frontier over Yuri, near the Kurile Islands.

The United States has never recognized Russia's claims to the Kuriles, which were occupied by Soviet troops after World War II.

Un Fires Four More In Red Crack Down

By United Press
A reliable source says the United Nations has broadened its loyalty crack-down by firing at least four non-Americans on suspicion of Red activity.

The same source reports that a fifth has been fired by Secretary General Trygve Lie on moral charges. The five cases are said to involve nations of Britain, France and one or more Scandinavian countries.

The four pro-Communist suspects are the first non-Americans to be ousted under the UN's crack-down, which has resulted in the recent firing of 18 Americans.

A high state department official says 12 more Americans classified as security risks still are on the UN payroll. Shortly after assistant Secretary of State John Hickerson made that statement yesterday, Lie was visited by two members of a Senate Internal Security subcommittee.

Democratic Senator Herbert O'Connor of Maryland and Republican Senator Homer Ferguson of Michigan would not comment on their visit—except to say they had a "satisfactory" talk with Lie on what they call the "common problems."

Informed sources in Washington, meantime, say house investigators will begin hearings next week on charges that Justice Department officials tried to smother a federal grand jury's report on Communists in the UN.

The informants say members of the jury, who filed their report last week, December 1, will be called there for questioning behind closed doors. The House Judiciary subcommittee also plans to summon Justice Department officials to the stand and may hold public hearings later.

It's understood the subcommittee hopes to begin the hearings Wednesday. Although arrangements are not yet made.

The grand jury, in its report, criticized the state department for failing to take what was called "vigorous" action to keep the UN from hiring Reds. Jury members later told reporters Justice Department officials tried to hold up the report or keep it from being made public.

SEVEN YEAR OLD GIRL STARTS NEW STEEL MILL

A seven-year old girl has put a new steel mill plant into operation.

Nancy Fairless, granddaughter of the chairman of U. S. Steel, touched a torch to a six-foot fuse which led to the interior of a 230-foot high blast furnace. The ceremony formally opened the new Fairless Works in Monaca, Pennsylvania.

The plant cost an estimated 450-million dollars.

Letter To Editor

Dear Editor:
The chairman and her committee of the "Old Fashion Christmas Show" want to thank each of the several hundred persons who contributed to its success by their presence at some time during the two days of the show.

To the LEDGER AND TIMES and Radio Station WWSB, they are grateful for their time and space given so generously for publicity.

To Shirley Florist and Bob Thomas Florist, for their cooperation and exhibits at such a busy season of the year. Their interest was an inspiration.

The Christmas spirit was very evident among the workers as they prepared the Club House for the opening show. The committee hopes the suggestions offered may be helpful to those who make their own Christmas arrangements and decorations in the homes of the city and county.

The chairman of the show thought the decorations would be replaced after Saturday night, but Mrs. G. B. Scott called Mrs. Ollie Brown, the chairman, and asked if they could be left for the remainder of the Holiday Festivities. It was decided to leave them and the Garden Department of the Murray Women's Club is happy to share the decorations with the public and wish you all a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Generals In Top HS Cage Position

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI)—The Generals of Lexington High School have captured first place in this week's United Press-Disabled American Veterans Kentucky High School basketball ratings, with 20 of the state's top high school coaches naming them the best in the state.

The Generals swept into the top spot on the strength of a convincing 56-42 win over Clark County last weekend, thus shoving the Hindman Yellowjackets down to second spot, and Clark County into third place.

The remaining first-place nod goes to Caverna, with a total of 38 points to finish sixth, as Ashland and Campbellsville take the fourth and fifth places. The rest of the "top ten" is made up of Breckinridge County, Louisville Manual, University, and Louisville Flager.

The ratings are compiled each week by Lexington chapter number 1 of the Disabled American Veterans, leading high school coaches, state leading high school coaches.

Biggie Munn In Top Spot

NEW YORK, (UPI)—The man who led Michigan State to the mythical national football championship has been crowned "King of the Coaches."

A poll of 481 coaches, the largest in the history of the annual Scripps-Howard balloting, put Clarence "Biggie" Munn in the number one spot by a comfortable margin. Munn beat out Bobby Dodd, unbeaten Georgia Tech, by 46 votes. Jess Hill of Southern California's Rose Bowl team ran third in the voting. Munn received 139 first-place votes, Dodd got 99 and Hill, 85. Munn will receive a plaque as Coach of the Year of 1951 in Washington, D. C., next January 4.

Advised of the balloting, Munn said: "I am deeply appreciative of the honor but I hope I can share the credit with my assistant coaches and the players themselves who have turned in such a terrific performance."

Nation's Foods Are Getting Better Now

By United Press
An Agriculture department expert on food chemistry says the nation's foods are getting better every year. Dr. G. E. Hulbert, head of USDA's bureau of agricultural and industrial chemistry, says the improvement comes in two lines—better food processing, and better plants and animals.

Hulbert spoke in Washington yesterday to a session of the National Food and Nutrition Institute. He says chemists are finding out more about the factors in plants and animals that are important for growth and health. Plant and animal breeders, using the chemical knowledge, are breeding up the good elements and breeding out the bad ones.

Rubber gloves should be turned each time they are worn. It makes the gloves fit either hand and distributes the wear so they will last longer.

Grid Tempo Picks Up

By United Press
The football tempo is picking up again as the bowl games draw closer. Wisconsin, which will represent the Big 10 in the Rose Bowl, has begun working out in a "cow barn" on the Badger campus. Coach Mivy Williamson has scheduled five practice sessions before the squad leaves for Pasadena, California, on December 17. The Badgers will have two drills every day after reaching California as they get set for Southern California on New Year's Day.

Coach Red Drew of Alabama says his Crimson Tide should be in tip-top shape for the Orange Bowl game against Syracuse. Tackle Travis Hunt is the only injured Alabama player and even he is expected to be ready by January 1.

Grid Tempo Picks Up

In pro football, all signs point to Baltimore re-joining the National League for the 1953 season. The league has given Baltimore until January 23 to send or repledge for 15,000 season tickets. Today Baltimore officials report that almost half the amount has been sold or pledged. If Baltimore rejoins the league it will receive the personnel of the Dallas club which has dropped its franchise.

And there's good news on full-back Norm Standley of the San Francisco 49ers. Standley, who was stricken with polio two weeks ago, has been released from the isolation ward of a San Francisco hospital. However, he must remain in the hospital for treatment at least another month.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

EMILY ailed in the morning with a cold, and immediately after lunch she did over her hair and manicured her nails and changed her dress. In spite of the current trend away from mourning, she had worn black for some time after Roger died, not because she wished to perpetuate an outworn custom, but because it had seemed to her the most natural and suitable thing to do and because it had been in harmony with her own mood. Gradually she had changed into soft grays and lavenders, colors again, and she chose a green dress which was especially becoming, and which she felt sure David would like. He had once told her that she looked like the personification of spring, when he had found her in her little garden, wearing a green dress.

The dress she put on now was not unlike the one she had worn that spring afternoon so long before.

It seemed long to Emily.

"Major Salomont, Mrs. Field," she hastened forward, both hands outstretched in welcome, calling his name in a glad voice. She had expected that he would take her in his arms as soon as the doors closed behind the butler, but this time she was more than ready for the anticipated embrace. Instead, David clasped her outstretched hands in his, firmly rather than caringly, and regarded her with smiling approval without drawing her closer to him.

"Emily, how lovely you look! I never saw you when you were half so beautiful!"

"You look wonderful to me, David. But of course you would, anyhow."

"And of course you would, anyhow. But you really are a great deal more beautiful than when I left. And what a charming dress! My imagination isn't playing me tricks this time, either, is it?"

"You mean about the dress?"

"Yes. It reminds me of one you were wearing the first afternoon I came to your garden on Joy Street, the one I told you made you seem like the embodiment of spring."

"Oh! I'm terribly sorry! Of course, I like this sofa, don't you? Now start at the beginning and tell me everything."

She spoke with great cordiality, but with some confusion. All the time they had been standing, facing each other with clasped hands but at arm's length, she had been waiting, from one moment to the next, for him to tell her in a fond embrace, to tell her how much he loved her and to invite the response which would have been so immediate. It had made her happy to know that he thought she was beautiful, it was gratifying to find that he had remembered the other green dress and that he had noticed her diamonds; few men would have done so observing. But this did not fill her with rapture as the expected kisses and the murmured words of endearment would have done. Even the statement that he had come to see her, that all other meetings were secondary to this one, seemed to lack the ardor for which she had yearned. She felt both bewildered and frustrated, and she was not sure she had been able to conceal this, when she so lately invited David to be seated, after he himself had suggested it. Her feeling of bewilderment increased as he settled himself at one end of the sofa, with the obvious expectation that she would ensconce herself at the other.

"That's rather a large order, isn't it?" he inquired, picking up the thread of the conversation from my letters."

"Not nearly as much as I'd like to. Of course for a long while they were censured. And since then, they haven't contained much detail. Naturally, I know they couldn't," she added hastily. "I realize you haven't had time to write long letters. Also, that there are lots of things it's easier and better to say than to write."

"Yes, there are. Those are the things I want to concentrate on now. Is it all right if I smoke?"

"Of course I should have suggested that right away too. And I'm sorry I can't offer you a cigarette from your favorite cigarette box. It's in storage but I'm going to get it put almost immediately—that and a lot of my other things. I'll have it for you in a day or two."

She smiled, determined now that she had recovered from the first shock of his unexpected behavior, to show no more confusion and, above all, to betray no surprise or disappointment. Of course there was some explanation, which would soon be forthcoming; he would have something on his mind so important that, until he had understood himself, he could not be in the mood for love-making. She looked at him confidently, waiting for him to go on.

"Don't bother about the box. I remember that, too, and it was a collector's item. But I can enjoy a cigarette just as much if I take it

Consumer Attacks On Meat Prices

By United Press
The president of the American Meat Institute indicates consumer attacks on high meat prices shouldn't worry livestock men much.

Wesley Hardenberg says people have been griping about meat prices for years, even when meat was retailing at ten and fifteen cents a pound. Public concern about meat prices, he adds, appears to be a state of mind.

Hardenberg spoke yesterday to the convention of the National Wool Growers Association at Chicago. He told the meeting a one thousand pound steer is worth $14.20 less to the packer today than eighteen months ago.

This has helped force down the price of livestock on the hoof. And one important result, according to Hardenberg, is a drop in the price for livestock by-products. The meat institute head says the value of tallow has dropped 97 percent in eighteen months, and the price of hides has gone down 47 percent.

Carswell Gets Hitting Title

NEW YORK, (UP)—Official figures show that outfielder Frank Carswell of Buffalo was the toughest man to get out during the 1952 International League baseball season.

Carswell batted .344 to win the hitting title easily. Second place went to Don Richmond of Rochester who hit .329. Montreal's Carmen Mauro was third with a mark of .327.

Actually, manager Harry Walker of Rochester had the highest average. Walker hit .365 but missed the title because he did not bat the required 400 times.

The 32-year old Carswell also led in home runs with 30 and total bases with 300. The figures show Richmond had the most hits—190—and the most doubles—40, while Toronto's Ed Stevens won the runs batted in title with 113.

Two Montreal players who get trials with Brooklyn next spring also won individual honors. Second baseman Jim Gilliam scored 111 runs and third sacker Don Hoak hit 15 triples. Johnny Melovich of Ottawa stole 23 bases to lead that department while Chris Kotsos of Springfield drew the most bases on balls, 103.

The dubious title of striking out most often went to Johnny Elbak of Syracuse who fanned 93 times.
