Murray's Land Use

MURRAY'S LAND USE — This chart shows the percentage devoted to during classes of land use within the city of Murray. Of the 4,222 acres within the city, the largest uses are for residential and agricultural-vacant classifications.

Planners Receive Land Use Report

The city of Murray contains 4,222 acres of which 62 percent is developed in one fashion or another according to figures presented to the Murray Planning Commission by city planner Steve Zea Tuesday night.

Of the 4,222 acres within the city boundaries, Zea said, 2,616 have been developed. The developed acreage includes 1,506 acres for residential use, 345 acres for commercial use, 40 acres for industrial use, 478 acres for public and semi-private use and 247 acres for streets. The remaining acreage is either devoted to agricultural uses or is vacant, Zea said.

The 62 percent total (of developed land) is relatively small when compared to a lot of towns," Zea said.

"Another standout is the tremendous amount (of land) in public and semi-private use," Zea added. He said this figure (18.3 percent of the developed land) is due to the large parks, the number of churches and Murray State University and Murray City School campuses.

Considering the 2,616 developed acres only, Zea reported that 57.6 percent is devoted to residential use; 13.2 percent to commercial use; 1.5 percent to industrial use; 18.3 percent to public and semi-private use; and 9.4 percent to streets.

The land use figures were compiled as part of a study that will be submitted to the Department of Housing and Urban Development as part of the city's 701 Planning Study.

The commission decided to get the "latest thinking" from Murray State on its plans for land use in the future so those ideas can be incorporated in the overall plan for the city.

Also Tuesday, Zea told the planning commission that the city's bikeways plan is almost ready for implementation. The plan has been reviewed by the Kentucky Department of Highways and, following minor revisions arising out of that review, should be submitted in its final form in the very near future.

Zea said federal funds are available for implementation of such a plan and he expects work to begin on the bikeways this summer.

The city's flood insurance program is currently undergoing review, Zea reported, adding that he anticipates a public review of the proposed changes in the program within 90 days.

Zea said that the city is currently under an "emergency phase" for flood insurance which allows the federal government to subsidize premiums paid by property owners in the flood plain.

"The new phase will affect (flood plain) boundaries and flood insurance rates," Zea said, indicating that he anticipates an increase in the rates for the insurance partly due to the loss of the federal subsidy on the rates.

Zea said the new flood insurance plan will necessitate the adoption of amendments to the city's zoning ordinance as well as possible new ordinances to be recommended to the city council.

Planning commission chairman W. A. Franklin told the panel that a census currently being taken by students at MSU under his direction should provide valuable information to city officials.

Franklin said the census will not only tell how many people live in the city but will show where they live as well as their age, work status, etc.

Zea also announced that the city's Community Development preapplication is ready for public review and that the announcement date on the grants is March 15.

Guilty Pleas

Entered In Court

Three people entered guilty pleas today in Calloway County Circuit Court and were sentenced by Judge James M. Lassiter.

Terry Mason Churchill, charged with four counts of third degree burglary, received one year in the penitentiary on each of the four counts. The one-year sentences on counts one and two are to run concurrently, and the one-year sentences on counts three and four are to run concurrently, making a total of two years, according to court spokesmen.

Lawrence Ray Jones, also known as Larry Martin, received five years on each of three counts of second degree robbery, according to court records. The five-year sentences will run concurrently.

Larry Martin, charged with two counts of second degree robbery, was sentenced to five years on each count with the sentences to run concurrently.

All three men will appear Wednesday, Feb. 28, for final sentencing.

Trial dates have been set for the following cases:

— Camp vs. Grizzard, civil case involving an auto accident, Feb. 22.

— Commonwealth of Kentucky vs. Randy Lawson and Merritt Lawson, three counts each of knowingly receiving stolen property of a value over $100, Feb. 28.

— Jerry Musgrove, criminal case, Feb. 27.

— Bobby Brandon, criminal case, Feb. 28.

Dinner Theatre Production Designed To Please Audience

The Murray-Calloway County Community Theatre has been called a "Theatre of Ideas" and will certainly live up to that description with their Second Anniversary Dinner Theatre "You (Still) Ain't Seen Nothing Yet!" to be held March 1, 2 and 3 at the Murray Jaycee Center.

The 1,000-member organization, only two years old, is expanding with programs in education and entertainment.

This year's evening celebration has been carefully designed to please the audience from the moment they arrive. The comfort of the customer and top-notch service are priorities since the theatre plans to offer valet parking so that patrons can make their way safe and warm right from the car to the door of the theatre.

Once inside they'll find the aura of days gone by when greeted by hat check girls, young ladies moving in and out of tables offering "cigars, cigarettes," and even a picture girl to capture memories of the good times people will find that evening.

As with all of the best dinner theatres across the country, The Community Theatre will offer the finest buffet dinner available. Catered by Chuck Wynn's Dakota Feed & Grain, the spread will include roast beef, cornish hens with wild rice, a variety of salads and vegetables, rolls, beverage and a choice of desserts.

Special door prizes will be awarded to lucky ticket holders. Prizes include dinner for two, movie theatre tickets and art objects.

The show is sure to satisfy any theatre-goer's appetite. Songs are included from the Broadway shows "Gypsy," "Applause," "Sweet Charity," "Mame," "Funny Girl," and the current Tony Award-winning hit, "On The Twentieth Century."

All of the spoken material in the show is original and features the everpresent chorus girls along with baggy pants comics, softshoe dance team, singers and actors.

Mae West will return to the stage with all new material and the rest of the show will jog the memory of other vaudeville greats like Fanny Brice, Gypsy Rose Lee, Weber and Fields, and the Marx Brothers.

After the show everyone is invited to continue the celebration with the show's musicians by dancing to tunes like "Stardust" and "It's Been A Long, Long Time."

Dinner, dancing, show, tax and tip included, bring the ticket price to $9.50. Reservations are necessary and may be made by calling the theatre day or night at 759-1752. Doors open at 6 p.m. dinner is served from 6:30 to 7:30, and curtain time is around 8.

Educational Improvement Plan Hearing Held Tuesday

Approximately 50 parents and teachers attended the educational improvement plan hearing Tuesday night at Robertson Elementary School. The public hearing, required by 1978 legislation, was one of a series of hearings being held in the city school system.

The purpose of these hearings is to obtain input from all persons concerning a plan to assure student access to programs and services designed to improve performance in the basic skills. These skills include reading, writing, spelling, language arts, math computation and study skills.

Mrs. Margaret Franklin, curriculum director for the city school system and coordinator for the educational improvement plan, and Mrs. Mary Ryan, principal of Carter and Robertson Elementary Schools, explained the plan to those attending. Dr. Vernon Gantt, a parent, then told the purpose and guidelines of the plan.

During the time allotted for those wishing to testify regarding the plan's development, one parent expressed the hope that the study of a foreign language could be implemented in the elementary schools.

The development of the educational improvement plan has two parts — testing and writing of the plan. Students in the third, fifth, seventh and 10th grades will be tested in April. However, the improvement plan, which must be completed by May, will utilize last year's testing information. The plan will be written by Mrs. Franklin, principals of the schools, guidance counselors and a committee of teachers.

The spring testing will involve screening the students to determine those who are below par in the basic skills. Those students who are found to be lacking in these skills will be given diagnostic tests the following fall in order to help overcome their weaknesses.

The final hearing in the city system will be held at 7 p.m. Feb. 26 at Murray High School.

New Birth Date In Effect To Determine School Age

Planning to enter your child in kindergarten or first grade next year? Better check that birthdate again.

According to new legislation by the 1978 Kentucky General Assembly, a child must be five years old by Sept. 1 to enter kindergarten and six years old by Sept. 1 to enroll in first grade, under the new law. Prior to the new legislation a child's fifth or sixth birthday had to fall before Dec. 31 of that school year.

A method remains, however, for parents of children whose birthdays fall between Sept. 1 and Dec. 31 to have their children enrolled in school during that school year. To do this, the parents must make application to enroll their children with the local school district.

Applications for "early entrance" in both the Murray Independent and the Calloway County school districts are now available. The applications may be obtained at the Murray Board of Education building, 9th and Poplar, or the Calloway County Board of Education building, College Farm Road. The applications must be picked up before March 1.

Readiness tests, approved by the state Board of Elementary and Secondary Education, will be administered at a later date to determine if the child will be accepted in kindergarten or first grade. A charge of $5 will be made to defray the cost of the tests.

Any child whose birthday falls between Sept. 1 and Dec. 31 and who has attended a state approved kindergarten the previous year may be admitted into first grade at the discretion of the school system, under the law.

Pre-registration for kindergartners who will be five years old and first graders who will be six years old by Sept. 1 will be held April 5 in the Murray system. A pre-registration date for the county system has not yet been set.

Partial clearing tonight. The lows in the upper 30s and low 40s. Becoming cloudy windy and mild Thursday with a chance of showers by evening. Highs in the upper 50s to around 60.

Kentucky's extended weather outlook for Friday through Sunday calls for a chance of rain Saturday and Sunday.

Growers Not Happy, But Selling

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Dark-fired tobacco growers still are not pleased with the prices, but they apparently have ended a boycott which stalled the first three weeks of sales.

The growers "are prepared to go ahead and sell this year's crop," John Nowak said Tuesday. Nowak, of Hopkinsville, is spokesman for a delegation of growers which went to Washington in January in an effort to help raise prices.

"We can't eat the tobacco. It has to be sold. But we're going to keep on working for better prices next year," Nowak said.

Forrest Burchard of Graves County, the western Kentucky delegate for the American Agriculture Movement who helped make the appeal in Washington, had predicted earlier that sales would not again be halted by growers.

However, growers still may face a sales recess because of excessive deliveries to sales centers. One official said tobacco is piling up at warehouses awaiting sale or removal by buyers.

The season usually ends in early March. More than 40 million pounds has yet to pass over auction floors, according to sales figures.

However, several million pounds of the tobacco usually are sold at the growers' barns to private handlers.

Most of the dark-fired tobacco grown in the nation is produced in western Kentucky and West Tennessee. Growers in the area produced about 50 million pounds of dark leaf last year, creating an oversupply that decreased the price $8 to $10 per hundredweight below last year's top prices.

Growers refused to permit more than token auction sales until the group headed by Nowak went to Washington.

Farmers met Feb. 7, after the Washington trip, and voted to permit auctions to proceed on a trial basis. Auctioning has continued steadily since, although prices have not shown much of an increase.

Bergland Seeking To Cut Tobacco Research Funds

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — U.S. Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland is seeking to cut more than $500,000 from the University of Kentucky agriculture department's tobacco research program during the next fiscal year.

Dr. Wimberly Royster, chairman of the UK graduate school, disputed a published report Wednesday that the $505,400 cut was planned for the Tobacco and Health Research Institute.

That is impossible, Royster said, because the institute is funded solely by a state tax of one-half cent per pack of cigarettes and receives no federal money.

He attributed the mistake to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's ignorance of UK's organization.

But Royster said the proposed cut would severely affect the graduate school research program's genetic studies, which are aimed at producing a safe-smoking cigarette.

Bergland and Rep. William Natcher, D-Ky., tangled on the issue when Bergland appeared last week before the House agriculture appropriations subcommittee. Bergland told Natcher that the administration was trying to retain federal funding for research on tobacco production that related to health issues.

Much of the research done at the UK institute, Bergland said, is directed at increasing tobacco production and harvesting rather than at smoking and health questions.

Natcher, the third-ranking member of the House Appropriations Committee, replied that Bergland was mistaken.

He said a major part of the UK research has been related to health issues, particularly the nature of tar and nicotine content in tobacco and the attempt to develop a "safe cigarette."

Last year, a cut of $700,000 was proposed for the institute. The funds were restored when Natcher put the money back in the agriculture bill.

Natcher told Bergland last week that he intended to see that the missing $505,400 is put back into the agriculture appropriations bill again this year, at least in the House.

BEGINNING SCHOOL AGE CHANGES — Persons living in Kentucky with children who will be either five or six years old after Sept. 1 will not be able to send the child to kindergarten or the first grade this fall unless action is taken now. New legislation requires that parents petition the local school board and request a readiness test for the child by March 1. This rule applies to children born between Sept. 1 and Dec. 31. Children who will reach age 5 prior to Sept. 1 may be admitted to kindergarten and those reaching age 6 prior to Sept. 1 may begin first grade. The kindergarten students in the photo are Douglas Payne and Leigh Stickler.

Baldness not rare in women

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a professional woman in my early 60s. My hair on the sides is fairly thick, but it is getting a little thin on top. Please, where do I go for a hair transplant? Is it done by a plastic surgeon?

DEAR READER — Yes, plastic surgeons who do cosmetic surgery usually do hair transplants. If you have good thick hair on the sides of your head, he simply takes plugs out and transplants them to the area where the hair is thin.

If your family doctor doesn't recommend one for you, you might call the county medical society and ask for the names of plastic surgeons who do cosmetic surgery in your community. I see that you are from a large city so I am sure there will be a number in your city who do this type of work.

Baldness in women isn't all that rare. Of course, you might consider other cosmetic aids, depending upon how much hair you've really lost. You wouldn't be the first woman who has added extra hair to her natural tresses.

Balding occurs in about 8 percent of women. There does seem to be a familial characteristic in some instances. It's probably related, in other cases, to the changes in hormone balance that occur after menopause. Unfortunately, the situation can't be remedied by simply giving female hormones either.

To give you more information on what affects your hair, I am sending you The Health Letter number 12-6, Hair Care. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband suffers acutely from cold sores on his lips. They show up at once when he has a cold, the flu or simply when I kiss him on the lips. It is very annoying and painful. His lips swell, ache and it takes a long time for the cold sore to clear up.

We heard that a smallpox vaccination is effective in some people but not always. Our doctor recommended a series of a full dose of five smallpox vaccinations to be given once a week for five consecutive weeks. We are afraid of the possible side effects from such a massive vaccination within such a short period of time.

We've also heard there's a new medicine that can be used to cure the cold sores. Do you know of it? I would like to add that my husband has tried lemon juice, alum, baking sodas, spirit of camphor, alcohol, Dolomite, vitamins and other medications with no success.

DEAR READER — Those cold sores your husband has are caused by a virus that lives inside the cells on the lips and face area. The virus is called herpes simplex. It is completely unrelated to the virus that causes smallpox. Smallpox vaccinations will provide no help whatsoever. It was previously believed the smallpox vaccinations might be effective in helping reduce cold sores but subsequent research studies have proved this hope to be ill-founded. At the present time, no good treatment is available. The National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases does have a promising new anti-viral drug under study, called Ara-A. It has been effective against involvement of the brain with the herpes virus. If your doctor (not you) wants more information, he can write to NIAIS, Building 31, Room 7A32, National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, MD 20014.

A Wistful Widow

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: How does a decent, naturally passionate, deeply religious widow overcome her desire to be loved by a man?

After having been married 38 years to the only man in my life, widowed a year, not exactly ancient (61), I live with memories constantly revived by TV, movies, literature, all ending with sexual fulfillment that stirs up desires difficult to suppress.

Having once had pure gold, I couldn't settle for brass. No man could ever replace the one I lost.

I feel ashamed and unclean, and am miserable beyond words. Is there a solution?

HUNGRY FOR LOVE

DEAR HUNGRY: You have no reason to feel "ashamed" or "unclean" because your natural desire to be loved remains undiminished at 61.

Instead of trying to suppress your desires, look for someone who's in the same boat, someone to whom you can give love. And don't be so quick to evaluate "metal." You need an ALLY—not an ALLOY.

DEAR ABBY: My wife keeps a picture of her mother in our bedroom and I have to look at it more than I care to. In case you suspect that I am not too fond of my wife's mother, you are correct.

My wife has plenty of other places to display her mother's picture, but she insists on keeping it in the bedroom.

At first I hinted, then I moved it, but my wife always puts it back on my dresser. (It's not even nicely framed.)

Should I throw it, my wife, or myself out?

ANONYMOUS

DEAR ANON: Quit playing games. Tell your wife that if she doesn't find another permanent spot for her mother's picture, you will!

DEAR ABBY: I'm desperately in need of some suggestions. Having my father around the house lately is creating a bigger problem than my six-month-old daughter.

He recently had prostate surgery and "dribbles" constantly. Then he sits on my velvet-covered chairs with damp trousers.

I spoke to his urologist. He said it wasn't uncommon for a man to dribble that way following that type of surgery, but he didn't tell me what to do about it.

I don't think dad realizes what a mess he's making of my chairs. I wouldn't hurt his feelings for the world. He is a doll. What can you suggest? I just can't ask my father to wear a diaper!

DESPERATE IN N.Y.

DEAR DESPERATE: Call your father's urologist and tell him what you've told me. Surely he'll have a solution for this problem. In the meantime, protect your chairs with a temporary covering.

The teen years are the questioning years. Abby has the answers to all your questions in her booklet, "What Teenagers Want to Know." Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope.

Books Should Be Returned To Library

The policy of printing the names of those holding books that have been overdue for at least six weeks from the Calloway County Public Library begins today in The Murray Ledger & Times.

The policy has been instituted by the library board after careful consideration of measures to help insure the return of long delinquent books checked out from the library.

Staff members of the library are averaging $250 a month in time, postage and preparation of three reminders to those holding overdue books. This does not include the cost of the books that are lost or never returned.

Some of the names on the delinquent list are more than six months old and the board feels that this is adequate time to make a return of the books or notification to library personnel of what happened in relation to the overdue books.

The problem of overdue books is not only evident here but in other libraries in the state. The state library officials are looking at legislation that will send the habitual overdue person to the courts for action to retrieve books. This is not the person who is a little late in returning books but rather those persons who are holding books that are from 60-90 days or more overdue and ignore delinquent notices.

The library is a tax-supported institution and the taxpayers have the right to demand that monies spent by the library and rules that are made for the protection of the books are enforced. It may not set too well with some in making the names of the abusers public but all other methods have been tried with little success. At least it is working to a degree. Books that had been due for months began to come in to the library after the announcement was made that names of the long delinquent book-holders would be made public.

It is our feeling that eventually names will be processed through the courts and fines levied on those who abuse library privileges. We are told this is coming about through the process of library laws in our state.

We also feel that one who has a $10 to $20 book from the library and has held it for 90 or more days, after three notices, knows that the book is overdue and has no argument for not returning the books or seeking a settlement with the library.

Any circumstance beyond the patrons' control will be taken into account by the library and no person's name will be made public if patrons will contact the library and make an effort to work with the library in getting books back to the shelves.

Some persons holding books long overdue would be the first to demand that the laws of the city, county, state and nation be followed and yet may feel that keeping a library book for a long period of time or losing it and expecting the library to absorb the loss is just fine.

Libraries are not an independent business and taxpayers have the right to expect those at the library to cut down on the more than 500 books that patrons are keeping out of circulation for 60 to 90 days after three notifications. We support this policy and urge all those who have long overdue books to return them to the library.

They may be returned 24 hours per day.

Library personnel will be cooperative but we must make an effort to work with them in helping solve a serious problem and understanding the reasons leading to this new policy.

The Story Of Calloway County

1822-1976 By Dorothy and Kerby Jennings

The "good old days" is a myth in its rankest manifestation. Those days were hard as flintrock on the banks of Tennessee River. Mind and bodies were denied food essential for greatest development. Houses were barren of the everyday simple comforts found elsewhere in Kentucky for our people were frontiersmen searching for land and food, poor in every sense of the word, after service in wars—Revolution, War of 1812, Civil War, Mexican War. Land lacked the fertility of the great Mississippi River flood plain; native game that provided scant meat was hard come by. Men toiled, as did women and children, in cultivation of tobacco for the necessities of life in a labor equivalent to economic slavery. Wearing apparel was of the coarsest fabric, homespun from the wool of sheep and cotton. Sweets originated from bee hives, molasses, plus the meager commercial sugar purchased with the few pennies accumulated in coffee cans. Meat was rancid even in the winter time, slaughtered from animals sinewed on grass, with smoked hog meat providing summertime flesh, not overlooking the role of chicken fryers—a delicacy most common in season. For the bulk of these early folks life was a long, tedious, enduring process plagued by disease waves of smallpox, malaria, consumption, diphtheria that depleted our people to early deaths to a bare 35 years average. These were the "good ole days" recalled by this late messenger—reverently forgotten in the faded past.

From this background spring originated a dynamic people to forge a county envied by people over the entire state.

An agricultural pursuit to bring new life to a depleted topsoil was spearheaded by men like Duncan Holt and L. Y. Woodruff. A spiritual life led by the Rev. H. B. Taylor of the First Baptist Church which maintained as many as 35 foreign missionaries at one time. A tobacco industry endemic to farm life that merchandised its products of chewing and smoking tobacco over the states of Tennessee, Mississippi, Arkansas and Missouri, plugged and twisted by J. D. Rowlett, and James W. Gilbert in 1868. A hospital where a doctor performed miraculous pioneering surgery that commanded the personal presence of the famed Mayo brothers of Mayo Clinic of Rochester, Minn., to witness the art of Dr. Will M. Mason, Jr. The sagacity of the Carson brothers of Kirskey to found a giant bottling works at Paducah to refresh the palates of Western Kentucky. The efforts of Nathan B. Stubblefield to perfect the Marconi wireless art to successfully transmit the human voice over the air waves in about 1903. The courage of Prof. Jimmy Jones to teach the Darwinian theory of evolution in Murray High School years before the famed Scopes "Monkey Trial" in Tennessee, and to suffer the social humiliation of being dropped from the membership rolls of the Murray First Baptist Church. The sound judgment of Rainey T. Wells in his remarkable ability to organize Murray State Normal School and his outstanding efforts in the fraternal order of Woodmen of the World over the county, state and nation. The dynamics that drove these remarkable men, in addition to many more, to attain worthy recognition in the world of accomplishments must have had its wellspring in the Male and Female Institute. Perhaps, not directly, for in many instances indirectly.

Perception Of Khomeini Turns Around

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Ayatollah Khomeini was directing the Iranian protest movement from his Parisian exile last year, he was viewed here as a medieval obscurantist threatening a vital American interest.

Now, with Khomeini's followers in power, the American perception of the 78-year old Islamic chieftain has taken a 180-degree turn.

Khomeini is now seen as the last, best hope for a continuing cooperative relationship between Iran and the United States.

American officials who once derided Khomeini are now hopeful his forces can cope with the challenge posed by an array of leftist groups disappointed with the limited role given them in Iran's new government.

Just two months ago, when Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi was still on the throne, President Carter denounced Khomeini's "uncontrolled statements...that encourage bloodbaths and violence."

The prevailing view here was that only the shah could ensure that Iran would remain faithful to the West.

Khomeini and his followers were seen as anti-American, anti-Semitic and incapable of running a modern industrialized state.

But based on the brief period the provisional government has been in power, officials believe a working relationship — if not outright friendship — can be established with Iran.

Moreover, recent events in Iran hardly seem calculated to ingratiate Khomeini with left-wing forces in Iran. These elements fought shoulder to shoulder with Islamic militants to oust the shah but now have turned on Khomeini.

They have urged defiance of government orders to end the strikes, which have paralyzed the country's economy, and to return weapons seized 10 days ago when the constitutional government collapsed.

These events could sharpen one aspect of Khomeini's philosophy regarded here as a major asset for Washington: his anti-communism.

But the question being asked here is whether Khomeini and the inexperienced leadership of the new government can effectively confront the well-organized leftist opposition headed by the so-called People's Fedayeen.

It was the very situation Iran now confronts that American officials have feared all along — well before the shah's ouster.

According to this view, a continuation of the leftist-led strikes and attacks on government installations, combined with the steady disintegration of the Iranian military, could make conditions ripe for a leftist takeover.

Thus far, Soviet actions have not been reassuring to officials here. Soviet broadcasts directed at Iran have accused the United States of trying to provoke a crisis in Iran to justify American military intervention.

The result has been the most severe crisis of confidence between Washington and Moscow since the Carter administration took office.

Routine Items Make Reversals

NEW YORK (AP) — When assumptions and activities become routine and accepted, they will soon be attacked as being counterproductive or ineffective. You can almost bet on it. It might even be a law.

It leads to sudden reversals of behavior: to tax rebellion as an antidote to government spending, to regulation in reaction to free market abuse, to free instead of state-run enterprise in some of the socialist nations.

But in less important or lesser known ways, it occurs all the time in predictable sequence.

The Sunbelt, esteemed for livability, is becoming subject to adverse articles. Big cities, from which people fled, are said to be chic. The big supermarkets are seeding the rebirth of mom and pop stores.

And on even lesser matters, the action-reaction sequence evolves. Have you heard the latest on business travel, which so often is pictured in advertisements as restful, glamorous, luxurious, productive?

Don't believe it uncritically. "Executives are paying for it with heart attacks," says Richard Lewis, publisher of a new travel letter for corporate executives. It's gotten a lot tougher of late, he claims.

Lewis cited a study of 1,000 heart attack victims by Dr. Meyer Friedman, in which it was found that 25 percent of victims reported their illness occurred during a trip or immediately before or after.

Lewis describes a lifestyle that is grimly different from that depicted by the airlines, Chambers of Commerce, and hotels. In an article in The Travel Letter for Corporate Executives, he writes:

"The pace of business gets faster; more executives are insecure and pushing themselves; airplanes are crammed with tourists flying on cut-rate tickets, and, for U.S. travelers, the much-touted special class for full-fare businessmen is a fiasco."

Beware of jogging too — it might ruin your life. It can be addictive, it is said, destroying one's interpersonal relationships, and leading to a loss of interest even in one's family and work.

James Fixx and other authors who helped advance the jogging phenomenon, tended to stress the physical and spiritual values of running, such as the joy of health, the appreciation of life.

But, says William Morgan, a psychologist, many runners develop a dependence that is psychologically similar to a heroin addict's need for a fix. They persist, he says, despite devastating effects.

The reaction syndrome can be found continuously in various aspects of corporate philosophy.

For example, the rather recent demand for naming outsiders to corporate boards, supposedly to help the company keep in touch with the community, has already led to the reaction that insiders are better.

HEARTLINE

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 East Dayton Street, West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.

HEARTLINE: For a month now, my husband and I have had an on-going argument about Medicare. Your explanation could easily clear this up once and for all. I am going to have to go to the hospital here and have some tests done which my doctor ordered. My husband says Medicare will not cover the charges unless I am admitted to the hospital as a bed patient, which I will not be. The tests will probably take two or three days to complete, but I will be coming home each day. He's sure we will be stuck with paying the entire bill. I believe Medicare does cover this type of service, but I am not sure how much it will pay. Could you settle this for us and also tell us how much Medicare will pay on this? — R.U.

When people go to the hospital for diagnosis or treatment and are not admitted as bed patients, the services they receive are called "out-patient hospital services" and are covered by Medicare. Covered out-patient services, whether for diagnosis or treatment, are paid by medical insurance and are handled by the hospital intermediary, rather than the carrier.

Delinquent Library Patrons

Below is printed the list of Calloway County Public Library patrons who have not returned materials checked out of the library.

The list of names printed are those persons who have books overdue from the library since 1978.

Two and three overdue reminders have been sent either by phone or by mail, according to a library spokesman.

Persons who cannot locate the overdue material or who disagree with the library records should call the library immediately, 753-2288, the spokesman said.

The library board of trustees have found this measure is necessary to help reduce the number of books kept past their due dates and to insure all taxpayers of access to all library holdings.

Those having overdue material, according to library records, are:

Dr. Butwell's Article Appears In Journal

An article by Dr. Richard Butwell, vice president for academic programs at Murray State University and an internationally-recognized scholar in Southeast Asia, has been published in the December, 1978, issue of "Current History," a monthly world affairs publication.

Butwell's article deals with Indonesia and its stability as a "soldier-state."

"It is unlikely," he writes, "that the current Sino-Soviet, Vietnamese-Cambodian or Sino-Vietnamese conflicts will have much effect on internal Indonesian politics or on Indonesia's international relations."

Butwell, a native of Portland, Maine, and also a professor of political science at Murray State, went on to warn that "Indonesia politics is still likely to undergo significant change by the 1980's."

The political stage in Indonesia, he believes, is set for one of three alternatives:

The replacement in five years or less of the 56-year-old President Suharto and his fellow soldier-rulers by a younger generation of military politicians;

A new outbreak of political violence in which estranged Muslim elements directly or indirectly displace Suharto, possibly with a more pro-Islam soldier, and his odd coalition of traditionalist-mystical and modernist-secular military-civilian supporters; or

The development of a potentially violent impasse, in which some able and respected civilians like Vice President Adam Malik may negotiate a political compromise establishing genuinely free and open elections and a truly democratic government.

Butwell, who came to Murray State last June 1 from State University of New York at Fredonia, has written seven books and numerous articles and research papers, almost all on Southeast Asia topics.

He has been on the faculty at American University and the University of Illinois, and spent one year as a Fulbright Professor at Rangoon (Burma) University. He also spent a year as a Rockefeller Foundation field representative for the social sciences and as a visiting professor of political science at the University of Philippines.

He has been a visiting lecturer at the National War College in Washington, D.C., on several occasions, and served a year there as director of Asian studies. After earning degrees at Tufts and Indiana Universities, he earned the Ph. D. degree at Oxford (England) University where he was a Fulbright Scholar.

Last-Second Heave Spoils Calloway Comeback Bid, Earns Reidland A Victory

By TONY WILSON
Sports Editor

What looked like a Reidland rout turned into a Calloway County rally. Then what looked like a Calloway County rally came up short after a Cartwright came to the rescue for Reidland.

Chris Cartwright, a 5-9 senior guard, drove the lane and popped in a flying 10-footer with two seconds left to spoil a Laker rally and give Reidland a 60-58 victory last night in Jeffrey Gymnasium.

Calloway County coach Clayton Hargrove immediately called a timeout — "We had to call it, it was our only chance," said Hargrove. But the Lakers were out of timeouts, so Cartwright was given the opportunity to shoot a technical foul shot for Reidland.

He made it, and Reidland was able to inbound the ball on its ensuing possession to assure its sixth triumph against 13 losses. Calloway fell to 6-17.

The Lakers trailed by as many as 12 points during the contest, but a furious rally, capped by two straight long-range bombs by guard Kenny McCuiston, put Calloway ahead. Craig Rogers canned a 15-footer a moment later to put the Lakers on top 57-53 with 2:46 left.

2:22 later, junior reserve Gary Emerson went to the free-throw line with the Lakers holding a precarious 58-57 advantage. "I expected too much out of Gary," Hargrove said later. "He came in cold from the bench and wasn't in there more than 20 seconds."

Both Emerson's attempts rolled off the rim, and Cartwright followed with his winning basket seconds later.

"We played about as well as we could play," said Reidland coach Dennis Gourley, whose club got off to a rough 1-5 start this season.

"We don't have much talent, but my kids played up to their abilities about as well as they could," he said. "And we hit our free throws (12 of 15). That's a part of the game that has beaten more than I want to remember this season."

The loss was a bitter pill for the Lakers to swallow after the comeback that enlivened the crowd watching Calloway's last home game this season.

"We dug ourselves into a hole and waited too long to get out," Hargrove said. "We did a good job after falling behind, but it was too late. It's too bad it didn't work out like the last game."

Calloway had rallied from a 19-point deficit Saturday night to defeat Sedalia.

David Cohoon topped his team with 17 points, followed by Craig Rogers with 14, Scott Barrow with 9 and Kenny McCuiston with 8.

The difference came at the free-throw line. The Lakers hit just 6-of-14 attempts (43 percent), compared to Reidland's 80-percent showing.

"Their press bothered us a lot the whole game, especially in the second half," said Gourley. Calloway scored just eight points in the second period to fall behind 34-22 at the half but outscored the visitors 36-26 the rest of the way.

The Lakers close their regular season Friday and Saturday with games at Hickman County and Fulton County, respectively.

Terry Paschall and Richard Smotherman combined for 25 points as the Lakers won their 14th game in 17 outings.

Paschall scored 13 points, followed by Smotherman with 12, Gary Emerson with six, Larry Sanders with four and five others with two points each.

31-Point Fourth Quarter Caps 'Consistent' Murray Outing, Pounds Wildcats

FARMINGTON, Ky. — After Murray High fell to Hickman County on the road in a foul-marred contest this weekend, a Farmington roster may have thought the Tigers would be ripe for an upset.

But, playing what coach Cary Miller called one of his team's most consistent performances this season, Murray steamrolled past the Wildcats 88-61 last night.

"We weren't down at all after the Hickman County loss," said Miller. "But I didn't expect us to play this well." The win improved Murray's record to 12-8.

Nick Swift and Ed Harcourt each scored season highs with 24 and 19 points, respectively, but the scoring didn't stop there. The three other starters — Howard Boone, Jeff Karsave and Brad Taylor — also finished in double figures, chipping in 18, 11 and 10 points.

Swift hit 10 of his 12 shots from the field and pulled down 10 rebounds, one less than Harcourt's 11.

As a team, the Tigers sank 36-of-62 field-goal attempts for a sizzling 58 percent and hit 20-of-28 free throws for 65 percent.

"Our kids really enjoy playing at Farmington, but it was surprising to see how well we started," Miller said. The Tigers hit 11 of their first 15 shots in rolling to a 22-10 first-quarter lead in the matchbox gymnasium, which is several feet shorter in length than the

Indiana State Coach Bill Hodges Berates Organ Playing; Sycamores Triumph 76-68

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

They weren't playing Indiana State's song at the Drake University field house, but the Sycamores managed to make their own kind of music with the basketball anyhow.

Despite some minor harassment from the organist at hostile Veterans Auditorium, which greatly angered Sycamores Coach Bill Hodges, the nation's

Allison Responsible

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — Officials of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing, after reviewing films of the crash between leader Donnie Allison and Cale Yarborough on the last lap of Sunday's Daytona 500, ruled that Allison, not Yarborough, was solely responsible for starting the crash.

Allison, 39, was placed on six month's probation.

second-ranked team defeated the Bulldogs 76-68 in a Missouri Valley Conference game Tuesday night.

"It wasn't overall as good a game as I would have liked to have," said Hodges, "but they got the job done and did what I wanted them to do."

Hodges wasn't in such a good frame of mind during the game, when the organist played music each time an Indiana State player went to the foul line.

An enflamed Hodges finally jumped off the bench and got into a shouting match with Drake Coach Bob Ortgel. Hodges told reporters that he apparently surprised Ortgel and later apologized.

Only two other Top Twenty teams were in action Tuesday night, with No. 10 Arkansas defeating Texas Tech 66-65 and No. 11 Texas dropping an 81-66 decision to Southern Methodist.

Larry Bird, Indiana State's leading man, scored 27 points to move into sixth place on the all-time NCAA scoring list with 2,591. In addition, the 6-foot-9 forward collected nine rebounds.

The undefeated Sycamores, winning for the 25th time this year, took a 39-33 halftime lead and led by as many as nine points, but couldn't shake off the Bulldogs until near the end. Carl Nicks added 21 points for the winners.

Sidney Moncreif's 10-footer with one second remaining lifted Arkansas over Texas Tech. Moncreif led all scorers with 25 points as the Razorbacks finished the regular season in a tie with Texas for the Southwest Conference championship.

The Razorbacks shot a spectacular 79.4 percent from the floor against the Red Raiders.

SMU shook off an early scoring spree by Texas and went on to upset the Longhorns behind Brad Branson's 20 points. SMU, which lost to Texas 98-62 a month ago, outrebounded the Longhorns 47-34 and outshot Texas from the field, 47 to 44 percent.

In other games, Vinnie Johnson scored a career-high 50 points to power Baylor past TCU 109-72; John O'Connor scored 22 points and grabbed 13 rebounds to lead Holy Cross over Providence 75-65; Tom Sienkiewicz hit a 13-foot shot with 13 seconds remaining to lift Villanova over Pitt 75-73; Wagner defeated Drexel 90-75 behind Howard Thompkins' 20 points and 15 rebounds and Nick Galis contributed 24 points as Seton Hall whipped Catholic U. 88-64.

Also, Angelo Reynolds' jump shot with 3:11 left in overtime gave Penn a 42-41 victory over Princeton; Al Daniel and Johnathan Moore teamed for 33 points to pace Furman over VMI 80-65 and Chuck Mack scored 21 points to pace Brown to a 74-63 decision over Yale.

NCAA Says Study Proving Interesting

By DOUG TUCKER
AP Sports Writer

MISSION, Kan. — Two hotshot football prospects who mysteriously disappeared in a private plane four days ago must surely land today to sign a national letter of intent, figures the NCAA.

And the minute they show up they'll become the first case investigated in an aggressive new crackdown on recruiting violations.

"They haven't been seen around town or around their schools since they took off in the private aircraft," NCAA enforcement director David Berst said Tuesday, on the eve of national letter of intent signing day.

He declined to identify the prospects or say where they're from but added, "Their families say they don't know where they are and their friends say they don't know

Possibilities For Baseball Season Are Enormous

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Get ready for Baseball '79. The possibilities for the coming season are awesome. Here we are in February with the first ball yet to be thrown in anger and already we have had some verbal showdowns.

Consider the developments of the last few weeks:

—Carl Yastrzemski, age 39, has told the Boston Red Sox that he's sorry, but a $265,000 annual salary, to which he agreed just one year ago, won't be enough to lure him back for another summer. He'll just stay home and do some fishing until the Red Sox can come up with a fatter contract to replace the one he's already signed.

—Yaz's bleat hit deaf ears in Fenway Park's executive suite, but did strike a responder chord with Red Sox pitcher Dennis Eckersley, who chimed in with a hearty "Me, too."

—Rusty Staub, almost 35, has planted a chef's hat on his head at a jaunty angle and told the Detroit Tigers that unless they guarantee his future beyond the 1980 expiration of his contract, he'll become a fulltime restaurateur this summer instead of a fulltime designated hitter.

—Garry Templeton, considerably younger than either Yaz or Staub, informed the St. Louis Cardinals that he was prepared to find other employment unless they could turn more of Gussie Busch's beer profits over to him to play shortstop. The fact that his batting average dipped from .322 to .280 last year and that he led the majors with 40 errors was, of course, immaterial.

—Joel Youngblood, who has never been a regular anywhere and batted exactly .266 times last season, rejected the New York Mets' salary offer of $75,000. A $25,000 raise, he said, was insufficient. He is demanding $100,000 and will go after it in arbitration this week.

—And to top it all off, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn decided that it was perfectly all right for George Steinbrenner to turn over $500,000 of New York Yankee cash to Charlie Finley for a couple of Oakland minor leaguers. That was only two weeks after Kuhn decided that it wouldn't be right for Gene Autry to pay that kind of California Angel money to Minnesota for seven-time batting champion Rod Carew.

The question here is whether the cold and snow of winter has turned all of the gray matter in baseball to slush.

Kuhn's action was a study in conflicting decisions by the commissioner.

Olympic Trial

For Tracy Caulkins, Race For Gold Is Only Way To Swim

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

The road to an Olympic gold medal is paved with sweat and sacrifice, but 16-year-old Tracy Caulkins insists the ordeal is worth every ounce of it.

"If you want to reach the top, you must pay the price," says the Nashville, Tenn., schoolgirl, the new wonderkind of the water on whom Uncle Sam is depending to crack East Germany's domination and restore America's swimming superiority.

Take note of the name: Tracy Caulkins. She may be this country's most talked-about female athlete in the 18 months leading up to and including the 1980 Olympic Games in Moscow.

After tying or breaking 27 American and world records in a variety of events in 1978, she was elected "Woman Athlete of the World," beating out golfer Nancy Lopez and tennis stars Chris Evert and Martina Navratilova. The award will be presented at a New York luncheon March 8.

Swimming World magazine tabbed her the year's outstanding female swimmer. The European press named her "the top female athlete of 1978." She was the youngest nominee for the Sullivan Award, symbol of America's top amateur athlete, male or female.

"Ever since I was 6 years old, I have dreamed of winning an Olympic gold medal," she said from her home. "My whole life now is dedicated to it."

Her regimen is enough to break the back of a sturdy mule.

Six days a week she rises at 5 a.m., then swims two hours before rushing off to school where books get her attention until 3:15 p.m. Then there are three more hours of intensive practice, 4 to 7 p.m. That doesn't include the weights.

"It is a strength-building process which we copied from the East Germans," Tracy says. "Originally, I lifted weights 45 minutes three times a day. Now I do it four times a day — 30-minute sessions. It has improved my times a lot."

Tracy, who began swimming at the age of 8 at the urging of her brother, is a strapping girl at 5-feet-9 and 120 pounds.

Last summer in West Berlin, she set four world records and won five gold medals in the World Swimming Championships. Her greatest feat was soundly thrashing Olympic titleholder Ulrike Tauber of East Germany in the 400-meter individual medley, setting a world mark of 4:40.83.

"The East German girls are still tightly regimented but I found them relaxed and very comfortable around us," she said. "They are very well-trained."

Tracy said she believes the East German domination of women's swimming in the 1976 Olympics — winning 11 of 13 events — was due more to intimidation than superior preparation.

"I think our swimmers were frightened by all they had heard about the East Germans," she said. "All that weight-lifting and clinic stuff. They expected them to be super human. Our girls panicked."

"The young kids aren't afraid of the East Germans at all."

Cooper Was Mascot In UKIT

Two years ago, Tom Cooper, a close friend of UK coach Joe B. Hall, helped devise a plan to move memories and traditions from the old UK basketball facility, Memorial Coliseum, to the shining Rupp Arena.

He invented a character called Big Blue, a sort of mascot who would cavort around the court much like any mascot of a basketball team does.

To this, he added a character called Big Boo, who would represent the mascot of the opposing team, and the pair has gone through their antics during all of UK's home games.

Before the UK Invitational Tournament was held this year, Cooper decided another character could be used called Baby Blue. This part was played by Chip Adams, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Adams of Murray.

Chip was dressed as a childlike character with large cat teeth and the head of a baby Wildcat.

Dr. Cooper places the Baby Blue head on Chip Adams. The mascot was created as an additional attraction for the UKIT.

State Officers

Issue 1,625 Tickets

In Month Of January

FRANKFORT — State highway enforcement officers issued 1,625 citations in January compared with 1,777 in December, according to Department of Transportation figures.

Missing cab-cards drew the largest number of citations with 599 violators cited. The cards, which show vehicle registration, permission to operate in a particular area, payment of state fuel tax, and size and weight of the vehicle, are required to be kept in truck cabs at all times.

Col. Dick Horn, highway enforcement director, said that the slight drop in citations last month compared with December's figures is a result of poor road conditions which limited truck traffic.

Highway enforcement's 78 field officers are charged with policing truck and other commercial traffic on Kentucky's highways.

and Practices for Talented Learners: Some Practical Tips."

Cassidy is one of nine leaders who will be directing sessions in this year's program, named for Dr. Robert F. Alsup, retired director of the Division of Reading in the Special Education Department at Murray State.

The others leading the Saturday morning workshops include:

Marilyn Loyal and Doris Mills, teachers in the Daviess County Schools, who will be discussing "Developing Critical Reading Skills for Gifted Learners;" Peggy Reeder, Russellville High School, "Gifted and Talented Program in Communication Skills, 9-12."

Peggy Brown and Joan Wilson of the Murray City Schools on "Junior Great Books Program: Middle School;" Martha Bowen, Trigg County Schools, "Practical Ideas for Teaching Gifted Primary Students."

Joe Clark, Kentucky Department of Education, on "Really Reading! Directions for the Gifted Learner," and Larry Salmon, an associate professor in the Department of Special Education at Murray State, who will discuss "Constructing Questions for the Gifted Reader."

Registration for the program will be both Friday evening and Saturday morning. The registration fee for only the Friday evening program is $3, while the fee for only the Saturday morning sessions is $5, making a full conference registration fee of $8.

Dr. Yancey Watkins, an associate professor in the Department of Special Education at Murray State, is the campus coordinator for the program.

Children Hire Killer To Slay Their Strict Father

CLEVELAND (AP) — John White, a strict father who made his two teen-agers observe a 9 p.m. curfew, walked into his living room after work and came face-to-face with his killer, a man who police allege was hired for $60 by White's children.

"He wouldn't let us do anything we wanted, like smoke pot," a police detective, who asked not to be named, quoted the children as saying.

Police said the children — a 17-year-old boy and a 14-year-old girl — described how they hid their father's body in a back room after the slaying on Feb. 9, then cashed his last paycheck and used his credit cards to go on a 10-day spending spree.

They spent $2,000 on televisions, video games and other amusements, as well as food and entertainment, police said.

The teen-agers were arrested Monday when they returned to their home in a blue-collar neighborhood in southwest Cleveland. They were being held in a detention home Tuesday, police said.

No charges have been filed against the children, both juveniles, "because the investigation is still going on," the detective said.

The detective said investigators have no doubt the two were involved in the killing.

"You could call it a confession if you want to," he said. "They told police the whole story of what they did, how it happened, how they used the money and credit cards. They told the whole thing."

Police said each blamed the other for hatching the plot.

Officers have issued an arrest warrant for aggravated murder for Jerome Watkins, 19, of Cleveland, who they said was a friend of the White children. He remained a fugitive Tuesday.

Police said the children paid Watkins $60 to kill their father. Investigators said the killer apparently was sitting in the living room with a .38-caliber revolver in his lap when White walked through the front door from his job at a Ford Motor Co. plant.

The killer fired once, missing White and breaking a window, police said. Police said he fired again, striking White in the arm as he fled.

The killer followed White into the kitchen, where he was trying to open the kitchen door, and shot White in the head, police said.

Police said the son, nervous about the killing, left the house, but the daughter waited in another room until the fatal shot was fired.

White's body was discovered Sunday when his relatives called police after they were unable to contact him.

Divorced from the children's mother 10 years ago, White, 41, kept three Bibles in his living room, set the evening curfew and opposed his children's desire to quit school, police said.

Neighbors told reporters that White frequently took the children on outings and often walked them to school in the morning, only to have them return home after he went to work.

Kentuckians Have Cheaper Power Rates

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Kentuckians paid less for electricity in 1977 than the national average, a new report indicates.

State electricity profiles prepared by the Electricity Consumers Resource Council showed electricity prices were 23 percent lower than the national average for Kentucky residential customers, and 27 percent lower for industrial customers in 1977.

From 1976-77, Kentucky residential prices increased 11 percent compared with a 10 percent average national increase; industrial prices increased 10 percent in Kentucky and an average of 13 percent nationally.

Among all states, Kentucky ranked 43rd for average residential electricity prices, and 45th for average industrial electricity prices.

Noting that coal is the major energy source for electricity in Kentucky, the report said the state's higher-than-average use of coal contributed to its lower than average fuel cost.

Coal accounted for 94 percent of generation in Kentucky in 1977, compared with 46 percent for the United States. The average fossil fuel cost in Kentucky was 86 cents per million Btu (British Thermal Unit) in 1977, 35 percent less than the national average of $1.32 per million Btu.

Kentucky's use of electricity increased at a faster than average rate during the five year period from 1972-77. Overall growth in total kilowatt-hour sales was 38 percent in Kentucky, compared with a 24 percent growth nationally.

Commercial kilowatt-hour sales increased the most during the period at 142 percent, while industrial growth was the smallest at 20 percent. Nationally for the same five year period, commercial consumption increased 30 percent and industrial consumption 18 percent.

The number of residential customers and the amount of residential electricity use increased faster in Kentucky during the period than in the U.S. as a whole. Residential customers increased in Kentucky by 17 percent compared with 13 percent nationally, while the average annual residential use increased by 15 percent over the period compared with 13 percent nationally.

The Marxist People's Fedayeen said it would demonstrate Thursday in Tehran despite a ban by the 78-year-old Shiite Moslem leader on demonstrations.

WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Egyptian and Israeli negotiators, meeting in the seclusion of Camp David, were opening another round of secret talks today to see if a long-elusive peace treaty can be concluded. Far from public view, the two sides planned to meet at least until the presidential retreat in Maryland. President Carter is likely to join them at some point. And he may invite Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin later if he decides that would help.

NATIONAL

CLEVELAND (AP) — John White, a strict father who made his two teen-agers observe a 9 p.m. curfew, walked into his living room after work and came face-to-face with his killer, a man who police allege was hired for $50 by White's children. Police said the children — a 17-year-old boy and a 14-year-old girl — described how they hid their father's body in a back room after the slaying on Feb. 9, then cashed his last paycheck and used his credit cards to go on a 10-day spending spree.

NEW YORK (AP) — Detectives today searched the "bloody mess" of a Harlem brownstone for clues to who slashed the throats of six men and a woman in what police said appeared to be a drug-related massacre. A blood-encrusted 13-inch knife was found on a bed next to three of the victims, according to Chief of Detectives James Sullivan.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Mardi Gras season in New Orleans had a new look today — stripped of its gaudy parades by Carnival captains who said they wanted to keep the festival from being held "hostage" by striking police. Carnival captains canceled all remaining city parades Tuesday — the first such action since the Korean War — to eliminate them as a factor in negotiations with the Teamsters-affiliated Police Association of Louisiana.

Bible School Is Planned

The Seventh and Poplar Church of Christ has made plans for its 1979 Vacation Bible School with the tentative dates set for June 11 to 15, the second full week of June.

Last year the average attendance at the Vacation Bible School was 269, and this year a goal is being set to have 325 in attendance.

Mark Pugh, associate minister of the church, said there will be classes from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. for all ages with a guest speaker for the adult class. An attended nursery will be open.

The church bus will run a planned route for those needing transportation to the school which is open to all persons, a church spokesman said.

CPAs Advise On 1978 Taxes

To Itemize Or Not: That Is The Question

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of five articles from the Kentucky Society of Certified Public Accountants on preparing 1978 Federal Income Tax returns.

Many thousands of taxpayers with few deductions to claim face the same problem every year: having to decide whether to itemize those deductions or take the standard deduction (now called the "zero bracket amount.")

The decision hinges primarily on whether, if married and filing a joint tax return, your combined deductions exceed $3,200. If you are married but filing singly your zero bracket amount is $1,600, and if you are a single individual or unmarried head of household your deductions must exceed $2,200 to make itemizing pay.

Does that mean a taxpayer has to go through the chore of identifying and adding up all deductible expenses in order to reach a conclusion as to whether it's better to take the zero bracket amount? If you are close to the borderline, it probably does, but for most people a rough estimate of their deductions is enough to show whether it would be more profitable to itemize.

Where do you look for possible deductions? The Kentucky CPA Society advises that for people in all tax brackets the two biggest sources stem from ownership: interest paid and state and local taxes.

Where else can you look for deductions? Interest and taxes do not exhaust the possible deductions resulting from home ownership. Did a storm, flood, fire or theft or other casualty cause a loss in 1978? Was the loss more than $100 in excess of your insurance coverage? If so, there's probably a deduction there.

(Did you make capital improvements? No tax consequences for this year, but file away your receipts; they could save tax dollars in the future, when you sell.)

Do you have a second home — a vacation cottage, perhaps? Interest and real estate taxes are always deductible, and if you rent out the place you may also be able to take deductions for depreciation, maintenance, advertising, and other rental expenses, depending on the extent of your personal usage and the rental income involved.

The deductions for interest paid are not limited to interest on your mortgage. Time payment purchases of such big-ticket items as a car or a boat can also give important interest deductions. The same for bank loans, charge accounts and credit cards.

Also, don't overlook back taxes you may have paid during the year. If they were federal taxes, the interest is deductible (but not the penalty). If they were state or local taxes, the whole bill can usually be deducted.

In determining your deduction for sales taxes, you have a choice of using the actual amount paid during the year or a "table amount" provided by the IRS. If you use the tables, count all your income (i.e., municipal bond interest) not just that which must be reported in the tax return. Remember that you can add the actual tax paid on autos, boats, etc. to the table amount.

Don't overlook the deductible expenses, the only receipts for which are your paycheck stubs, such as health insurance premiums, union dues or charitable contributions.

In compiling your medical and dental bills, don't forget devices to overcome or correct physical deficiencies such as contact lenses, hearing aids or braces; travel costs in going for treatment; medically required trips or alterations to your home or car.

Your job might also bring deductions, such as the cost of work clothes, tools, union dues, trade publications and entertainment of customers. If you run your business out of your home, part of your household maintenance and depreciation costs could be deductible.

If you were lucky, your investments will have increased your tax obligations for the year, but they may also produce deductions: These would include the cost of investment advisory services, subscriptions to financial publications, travel to see your broker, a safe deposit box used to store securities, and in special circumstances even the costs of travel for the purpose of checking out an investment.

By now you will have a pretty good idea of whether your deductions exceed the zero bracket amounts listed above. If you have about average expenses, there is little doubt you will find it advantageous to itemize. And in case you do make that decision, don't throw away the list of deductions you have just compiled. It will be a big step ahead in the preparation of your tax return.

(In the next article, appearing next week, the Kentucky Society of CPAs discusses the "Marriage Penalty.")

The Dragons of Eden: Speculations on the Evolution of Human Intelligence, by Carl Sagan (Ballantine Books, 1977).

By J. Milton Grimes
Dept. of Foreign Languages
Murray State University

In an age of sensationalism and trite appeal to our emotions, it is refreshing to read a book whose author insists on applying clear scientific principles. The Dragons of Eden, written by Carl Sagan, an astronomer at Cornell University who has also made important contributions to the U.S. space programs, is primarily a scientific discussion on the evolution and function of the human brain.

Sagan views the proper use of intelligence as the key to human survival; to understand it properly we must study the nervous system of our prehuman ancestors.

There were, Sagan believes, three stages in the several million year development of the brain. The earliest brain, or reptilian complex, controls such human functions as aggressive behavior, ritual and the establishment of social hierarchies.

The next, or limbic system, is an invention of the lower mammals and is credited with generating emotions, moods, and even love.

The third portion of the modern brain or neo-cortex, developed in the higher mammals including man, controls cognitive functions, and permits such abstractions as language and mathematics.

How can such a scientific discussion relate to the general reader? The answer here is simple. Even an introductory understanding of the nature of the brain and its functions can help us, for example, make better value judgments in politics, medicine, psychology, religion, or ecology.

For example, Sagan believes that "human chauvinism" is scientifically unjustifiable. If we define creation's highest achievement as abstract thought, we must recognize the porpoise and a few other animals as close cousins to man. Do we then have the right to "murder" creatures with brains similar to our own?

Understanding the anatomical differences between the human brain and that of other animals can help us define "humanness," and therefore also the condition of death or the fetal age at which abortion should be permitted.

Knowing about the reptilian complex and limbic system helps us understand, and therefore control, basic fears (of snakes and of falling) and desires (e.g. for power) which have often been considered mysterious and even evil.

In one chapter entitled "Lovers and Madmen," Sagan explains the conflicting functions of the left and right hemispheres of the brain. A decision based only on intuitive "pattern" thinking, controlled by the right hemisphere, often seems vague and unrelated to facts.

On the other hand a decision based on critical thinking, generated by the left hemisphere, might seem too specific and "unsympathetic" to general concepts. Sagan believes that, "The search for patterns without critical analysis, and rigid skepticism without a search for patterns, are the antipodes of incomplete science. The effective pursuit of knowledge requires both functions."

Carl Sagan's brilliant scientific discussion of human intelligence warns us: if we do not support scientific inquiry fully and use its findings to make more intelligent and humane decisions, we are not meeting the challenge of our own nature. Reading The Dragons of Eden is definitely a worthwhile step toward meeting that challenge.

Local Members Attend Meeting Of Young Farmer's Association

The Kentucky Young Farmer Association (YFA) held its annual state convention in Owensboro recently.

The YFA is conducted through the Department of Vocational Education and is designed to develop and recognize outstanding leadership in agriculture. Those who attend from Calloway County include: Shea Sykes, Monty Wilson, Thomas Murdock, Bill Ed Murdock, Mike Burchett, Dale and Janice Outland, Richard and Becky Jo Jones, Jerry and Melissa Starks, Danny and Judy Cunningham, and Johnnie and Cathy Stockdale.

Dale Outland, president of the Calloway County YFA, was presented with the first place award in the New Chapter Contest, according to a spokesman. Calloway County YFA is in its third year of existence and is one of the most active chapters in the purchase region.

Richard Jones won first place in the state dark-fired tobacco production contest sponsored by the United States Tobacco Company. Mark Paschall was the regional winner in the soybean contest and had a 51 bushel yield. Max Hughes was the regional winner in the corn production contest with a 134 bushel yield. All winners received a check and a plaque for their accomplishments, the spokesman said.

Danny Cunningham, Richard Jones and Max Hughes won the Kentucky YFA degree which acknowledges leadership and participation in YFA activities. Danny Cunningham was the recipient of the Regional YFA Rural Leadership Award presented by Kentucky Farm Bureau. Danny and Judy Cunningham also received notice for serving as Purchase Region representatives on the State executive committee.

Danny Cunningham was elected secretary of the State YFA, according to the spokesman.

The wives of the YFA members were also involved in the convention. They constructed table arrangements and flowers and leis were used at a Hawaiian luau. There were several of our local YFAettes which excelled in the handicrafts contests. Becky Jones placed second in the miscellaneous category with two needle point pillows which she designed. Judy Cunningham placed second in both the sewing and wood-working contests. Southern States Cooperatives presented these contestants with their awards, the spokesman said.

"Calloway County YFA members would like to encourage any interested young farmers to become active in the Calloway County Young Farmer Association," the spokesman noted.

Council Officers Are Re-Elected To Terms

Officers of the Four Rivers Manufacturers Council, an organization of 36 companies in West Kentucky, West Tennessee, and Southern Illinois, have been re-elected and will continue to serve during 1979.

They are: Nugent Sharp, general manager of the Ingersoll-Rand Company in Mayfield, president; Dr. Rex F. Galloway, chairman of the Department of Management at Murray State University, vice-president; Ed Shinnars, vice-president and general manager of Vanderbilt Chemical Corporation in Murray, recording secretary; Jim Miller, administrative assistant to the president of Walker Boat Yard, Inc., in Paducah, corresponding secretary; and Paul Kiesow, plant manager of Fisher Price Toys in Murray, treasurer.

All of the officers who were re-elected for another year at the February meeting will also continue to serve on the board of directors.

The Four Rivers Manufacturers Council is made up primarily of chief executive officers or plant managers of manufacturing concerns. It meets monthly to discuss and deal with issues and problems relating to manufacturing and processing operations in the area.

Representatives of Murray State University assisted the group during its organizational phase and attend meetings regularly.

A major goal of the organization is to encourage and to develop conditions for constructive management practices in the industries it represents. Sharp said managers of firms which are not now members are urged to become part of the organization. They may contact him at the Ingersoll-Rand Company in Mayfield.

Other members of the board of directors are: Anthony Androski, mill manager of the Westvaco Corporation in Wickliffe; John Morgando, plant manager of Proform, Inc., in Paducah; and C. L. Woods, Jr., plant manager of B.F. Goodrich Chemical Company in Calvert City.

Craig Cole of Hayti, Mo., a music education major at Murray State University, will present his senior recital on the campus Sunday, Feb. 25. Scheduled at 3:30 p.m. in the Recital Hall Annex of the Price Doyle Fine Arts Center, the program will include selections for the trumpet by Gay, Hartley, Hovhanness, and Kreisler. Cole, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Cole of Hayti, is a member of Phi Mu Alpha men's music fraternity, Racer Marching Band, and Murray State's Brass Choir, Symphony Orchestra, and Wind Sinfonietta.

MORE ON FUTURE FARMERS — In addition to the many activities of the Calloway County FFA chapter depicted in the special section Tuesday is the horticulture phase of the program. In conjunction with FFA week, that phase, among other things, is depicted in these photos.

Jackie Parker is watering greenhouse plants which is a daily chore for horticulture students.

Pesticide applications are essential for greenhouse plant production. Connie Curd, Horticulture II student is carefully weighing a fungicide to be applied to Poinsettias.

Carol Watkins, a Horticulture II student is wrapping a poinsettia with florist foil and ribbon. Poinsettias were sold between Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Teachers of Vocational Agriculture at Calloway are Larry Gilbert, left, Jamie Potts, seated, and Eugene Chaney.

Hubbard And McBrayer Jumping Out In Front With Ad Campaign

By The Associated Press
For at least two candidates, Terry McBrayer and Carroll Hubbard, the radio and television advertising race for the Democratic nomination for governor is well under way.

The rest have firm plans to enter the advertising fray before the May primary.

McBrayer has been running television ads in which he dons work clothes to fight fires and talk tough about inflation with a group of farmers.

In Hubbard's ads the candidate promises to clean up government as he overlooks the "Valley of the Drums" hazardous chemical dump near Louisville.

In the next few weeks the other four major Democratic candidates will unveil their images via the airwaves.

Their campaign managers discussed some of their plans recently in interviews with the Bowling Green Daily News.

McBrayer began shooting television commercials Nov. 8, the day after the general election, said Mike Helton, his campaign manager.

In consultation with a New York firm, McBrayer has spent $210,000 for television spots that "show Terry for what he is — a small town Greenup lawyer," Helton said.

Six spots will be aired this month to stir name recognition for the former state commerce secretary, and then McBrayer will resume television and radio advertising in April after a month's hiatus, Helton said.

How much advertising McBrayer does immediately before the primary "absolutely depends on money," Helton said.

Hubbard's approach will be different, said his brother and campaign manager, Kyle Hubbard.

Two commercials now on the air — which cost about $55,000 — will be followed by others in March and still more in April, "as we create momentum steadily until the climax in May when the average person is going to decide who to vote for," the campaign manager said.

He said Hubbard's Memphis consulting firm advised that "TV ads are important at this time of year because studies have shown people watch an average of five hours of TV in the winter and only about three a day" in warmer weather.

Lt. Gov. Thelma Stovall will plan her end-of-campaign advertising first, said her campaign manager, Robert O. Miller. "We plan to start with May 29 and buy backwards. What you are able to do depends on the money flow. We plan to spend about $100,000 on her media campaign."

Miller said early advertising is not as important for Mrs. Stovall, who has a Louisville advertising firm, "since she is a household name by now. Besides, you can turn people off if you overplay the ads. I hope some of our buddies do that."

Harvey Sloane, who also consults a Louisville advertising company, also is concentrating less on early advertising because he is known from his tenure as Louisville mayor and his 1,000-mile walk across the state, said his campaign manager, Allen Bryan.

"That is one reason we went out and established ourselves in the walk. It is more effective and a lot less expensive," Bryan said.

He said Sloane, who has a Louisville advertising firm, has been filming television commercials for a few months, but would not comment on the cost except to say they are expensive.

George Atkins intends to hold off on radio and television advertising until about the second week of April and then "begin an intensive campaign," said his campaign manager, Tom Isaac. "By the time we're through if you're not deaf, dumb and blind there is no way you can escape George Atkins and his message."

Isaac said Atkins consults a South Carolina firm that specializes in political advertising and plans to spend about $100,000 on his media campaign.

"Gee whiz, it is ridiculously expensive to conduct a TV campaign," he said. "Eventually something is going to have to be worked out."

Expense is a problem for former local government commissioner Ralph Ed Graves, said his campaign manager, Clair Nichols. "We don't have the big money to spend like everyone else."

Graves will rely on newspaper advertising and "straight-forward news stories" and will buy some radio and 30-second television spots later in the campaign, Nichols said. "You have to tailor your campaign to the realities of the candidate and the amount of money you have."

TRAFFIC DISRUPTED
LEITCHFIELD, Ky. (AP) — Traffic along the Illinois Central Gulf line here was disrupted for several hours when a chemical tank car left the tracks but did not overturn, according to authorities.

State Railroad Commissioner L.H. Frymire said the car contained calcium carbide, which is potentially dangerous if mixed with water, but there was no leakage.

Frymire said the 24-car ICG freight was heading from Louisville to Memphis when the accident occurred Tuesday at Millwood, approximately six miles west of Leitchfield.

Hafford Clark Bennett Named To Baptist Post

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A veteran Baptist official who has seen service around the Southeast is to be the Southern Baptist Convention's next chief executive officer.

The Southern Baptist Convention's executive committee, meeting Tuesday night, unanimously affirmed the nomination of Dr. Harold Clark Bennett as the convention's next executive secretary-treasurer. In that position, he serves as its chief executive officer.

Robert J. O'Brien, news editor for the Baptist Press, said the executive committee adopted a motion unanimously affirming Bennett's nomination, which was made earlier Tuesday by a selection committee.

Bennett is presently executive secretary-treasurer of the Florida Baptist Convention.

O'Brien said Bennett of Asheville, N.C. is expected to come to Nashville in April from Jacksonville, Fla., where he has been for 12 years. Bennett is to take over officially Aug. 1, succeeding Dr. Porter Routh, who has occupied the executive secretary-treasurer's position for 28 years.

Bennett, 54, lived in Nashville from 1960 to 1962 when he served as superintendent of new work with the Sunday school department of the Baptist Sunday School Board.

A graduate of Wake Forest University, Bennett received his theological education at Duke University Divinity School and Southern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Ordained by First Baptist Church of Asheville in 1948, Bennett has served at churches in North Carolina, Kentucky, Louisiana and Arkansas. He occupied several Baptist positions before being named to the Florida Baptist Convention post in 1967.

The top Southern Baptist Convention executive is responsible for disbursing cooperative funds to the convention's general agencies and coordinating programs between the agencies.

Convention officials earlier Tuesday also approved an annual salary of $52,374 for the convention's executive secretary-treasurer. This includes a salary of $45,843 and benefits of $6,531, officials said.

The Southern Baptist Convention, headquartered in Nashville, has an estimated 13 million members nationwide.
