There is a little industrious, just the right amount of business activity. The demand for tobacco is all the year round. They are bound to keep their factories open when they have the tobacco. There is a tendency to raise prices. But they have a law that makes it difficult to raise prices. This seems to be the approach to a solution of the problem. But a few wise men and another organization can work together against a commodity. They can get together and fix a price for tobacco.
