Governor's Race Highlighted By Various Issues Of Candidates

Associated Press Writer

A call for more education spending, a major labor endorsement, another candidate's release of financial data, a soggy trip into an underground mine and a plug for gasohol were the highlights as the Kentucky governor's race headed into the weekend.

Democrat Harvey Sloane held news conferences Friday in Lexington and Louisville to announce his education

Democrat Terry McBrayer appeared at a Louisville news conference to receive the endorsement of a statewide Democrat Carroll Hubbard and his wife were in Frankfort to release their joint tax returns.

Republican Ray White toured a muddy coal mine near Hazard, and his rival, former GOP Gov. Louie Nunn, also was in Hazard to shake hands and rub elbows with prospective voters.

It was Democrat George Atkins, who Campaigned in Knott, Breathitt and Rowan counties, who said he was fueling his car with gasohol.

Democrat Thelma Stovall, touring Ashland and Boyd County, took a verbal slap at Gov. Julian Carroll, who has said her nomination would be a Democrat John Y. Brown and his camp were in an organizing flurry, announcing a number of campaign appointments

Most of the candidates planned to converge on Pikeville to circulate among the crowds and seek the mountain vote at today's Hillbilly Days celebration.

Sloane set forth an education platform calling for special attention to school funding, financial accountability and teachers' salaries. He said his proposals would cost $50 million more than is now committed to education, but would be the only major increases he

The former Louisville mayor said he would "streamline" the Department of Education, remove it from the Cabinet of Education and Arts and make the superintendent of education a cabinet

As for education financing, he said local districts must spend more. "The state has about reached its limit. If local districts don't want to do their share. I don't think the state should bail them out," he said.

Sloane said he saw no alternative to property taxes to finance education. "I don't see, realistically, how the property tax is going to be eliminated," he said. "The property tax in Kentucky is not a great tax, proportionate to other

McBrayer

McBrayer was endorsed by a statewide committee claiming to represent 100 local unions. Earlier labor support - at least in public commitments - has gone largely to Mrs. Stovall, endorsed by the state AFL-CIO and the United Auto Workers.

"She's the finest lady in Democratic politics, but she cannot win this fall.

(Solution On Page 10)

and I can ... You're going to live with Louie Nunn if she is nominated," he Supporters passed out a leaflet indicating McBrayer had helped unions on dozens of bills when a House member. Larry Clark, business manager of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, said the "Labor for McBrayer" organization represents more than 60,000 wage earners.

He said factors in the endorsement were McBrayer's performance as a legislator, his role as state commerce commissioner in attracting industry and his activities in trying to better labor-management relations.

The United Mine Workers, a third large state union group has given its support to Atkins for governor. A fourth, the Teamsters, has made no endorsement vet.

Hubbard

Hubbard and his wife made public their 1978 joint federal and state income tax rturns, reporting total income of $63,367, most of it from Hubbard's $57,500 congressional salary.

Hubbard took advantage of income averaging, reducing the federal tax owed to $10,988. The state return listed estimated income tax payments of $1,420 and $90 in additional tax due. Hubbard listed miscellaneous income totalling $8,075 from honoraria, trustees fees and other sources.

The only other candidate to release a copy of his 1978 tax returns has been McBrayer. Sloane has released copies of his 1977 federal and state returns and a current statement of his assets and

White

White slogged his way into a Perry County underground coal mine, the latest in a series of jobs he has spent time on during the campaign, saying he wants to get close to working people. He said when he emerged from the Long Branch mine on Kentucky 15 between Hazard and Jackson that he wished he had worn gumboots. "I'm mud from head to foot," he said.

The Bowling Green lawyer talked about how mining had changed with the addition of modern equipment since he spent his boyhood in Manchester in

Clay County. At that time, he said, flesh and blood ponies still were used in underground mines. Atkins

Atkins announced that he has been using gasohol in his campaign car. The state auditor said he is promoting the alternative fuel in an effort to help farmers. Gasohol is 90 percent unleaded gasoline and 10 percent ethyl alcohol, made from corn and other

"Gasohol, already widely used in the Midwest, is part of the solution to our country's energy problems," Atkins said. " ... while it may cost a little more, I say why not help Kentucky farmers rather than make the Arab oil sheiks richer.'

Atkins predicted that expanding use of gasohol will open up a new market for Kentucky farmers, and he said he would encourage its production and use if elected governor.

Stovall

Mrs. Stovall hit back at Carroll, who had said her nomination would be disastrous for the Democratic Party both in this year's governor's race and next year's presidential election. In remarks as she opened a Boyd County campaign headquarters at Catlettsburg, the lieutenant governor said Carroll would not have made the attack if "his candidate weren't in trouble." Carroll backs McBrayer.

Mrs. Stovall said she was "ashamed and sorry" for the governor and added that other candidates are making no such attacks because they are "good Democrats."

She named E.B. Lowman, son of Harry King Lowman, who was Kentucky House speaker for 20 years, and Ashland real estate broker Brooks Wells as her Boyd County campaign

Brown

At Brown headquarters in Louisville the multimillionaire businessman's round-the-clock organizing efforts led to several announcements of campaign appointments.

Frank Metts, 43, a Louisville real estate developer for 25 years, was named state finance chairman. And Robert T. Cobb. a Louisville businessman, was named state coor-

Al Barber Jr., 38, an Owensboro lawyer, and Larry Eugene Moore, 31, a 🤻 barber, were named co-coordinators for Daviess County. Dr. Robert E. Robbins, 45, a surgeon in Elizabethtown, was named Hardin County coordinator. Richard Archer Prewitt, of the law firm of Prewitt & Prewitt, was named coordinator for Franklin County.

DOUBLE TAKE - Justin and Jason Rouse, two-year-old twins of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Rouse of 1712 Plainview, seem overwhelmed by this 4-foot-5-inch flop-eared Easter bunny. Justin and Jason, like many local children are looking forward Sunday to the annual visit of Peter Cottontail. A drawing for the large bunny will be at 4 p.m. today at Begley's.

Large Corporations Fail To Abide By Guidelines

WASHINGTON (AP) - Fifty-three of the nation's largest industrial corporations - including big providers of fuel and food - have failed to pledge formally to abide by federal antiinflation guidelines, the government has indicated.

Among them are such well-known companies as Mobil, Standard Oil of Ohio, Kellogg and United Brands.

Others include Republic and Bethlehem steel corporations, Pet, GAF and Champion Spark Plug.

Their names became known Friday in a roundabout manner through an announcement by President Carter's anti-inflation advisers.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability, which oversees the voluntary anti-inflation effort, released a list of 447 large industrial corporations that "have made an explicit commitment to comply with the price standard."

The council refused to name companies that have not pledged support, explaining through spokesman Ed Dooley that "they're not necessarily in violation of the guidelines; they just haven't made an explicit com-

The 53 names were determined by comparing the council's list of 447 with the corporations identified by Fortune magazine as the biggest 500 in the United States. Those were the 500 companies the council had asked for commitments to agree to hold prices in

None of the 53, a council statement said, "openly opposed the anti-inflation program." The council said some have problems with parts of the complex price standard. Others may be unable to respond because of bankruptcy or merger proceedings, it conjectured.

The few corporate spokesmen available for comment this Easter weekend emphasized that absence from the council's list did not necessarily mean their companies were ignoring the guidelines.

John Flint, a spokesman for Mobil, said. "There's some discussion between Mobil and the council over interpretation of some of the regulations. In the meantime, Mobil is in compliance."

And Chuck Partidge of Standard Oil of Ohio said, "I don't know why we are not on" the list of companies in com-

MSU Classes Of 1929 and 1954 Will Be Honored At Luncheon

Both the Golden Anniversary Class of 1929 and the Silver Anniversary Class of 1954 at Murray State University will be honored with a luncheon and a reunion on the campus on Saturday, April 28.

Recognition of members of the classes is a part of alumni activities on that date that will also include the annual alumni banquet and a President's Reception for recipients of Alumni Association scholarships for

Recent Drug Arrest Brings Total Number In Calloway To 19

Another arrest has been made in Calloway County on charges of illegal drug activities, bringing to 19 the number of such arrests since April 4.

Mark T. Sisk, Box 4872, Hart Hall, Murray State University, was arrested and charged with trafficking in LSD, a Class D felony. Bond was set at $20,000, and he is presently out of the Calloway County Jail on bond.

Of the 19 local arrests, 11 have been students at Murray State. More than 70 warrants were issued last week, and several more arrests are expected in

The arrests are the result of a fourmonth-long under cover investigation in Calloway, McCracken, Marshall and Lyon counties by the Kentucky State Police, the Murray City Police, the Marshall County sheriff's department and the Paducah police narcotics

The luncheon is scheduled to begin at 11:30 a.m. in Winslow Cafeteria, with the reunions to follow from 2 to 4 p.m. Both the luncheon and the reunion are open to anyone who would like to participate in honoring members of the two classes.

Mike Peek of Nashville, formerly of Benton, a 1970 Murray State graduate who is now president-elect of the Alumni Association, will preside during the luncheon program. He will be installed as the new president at the conclusion of the banquet program that

A highlight of the luncheon will be the presentation of Emeritus Club membership certificates to 50-year graduates by District Judge Sid Easley of Murray, a 1962 graduate who is the current president of the association. The 1929 graduating class was the fourth in the school's history.

The luncheon program will also include a welcome by Dr. Constantine W. Curris, university president, and reflections and observations by Clyde T. Lassiter of Lexington, a member of

Bill Morgan of Benton, vice-president of the Alumni Association, will give the invocation, and Rev. Hoyt W. Owen of Paducah, retired First' United Methodist Church minister, will deliver the benediction. Kay Bates, a member of the music faculty, will present a recel cole, secompanied by James Ron Greene, Racer head basketball coach, will be the speaker at the banquet, which will begin at 6:30 p.m. in the Student Center. The President's Reception is also scheduled in the Student Center from 4 to 6 p.m.

Reservations are $4.50 each for the reunion luncheon and $5.50 each for the banquet. They should be made no later than April 20.

Anyone wishing to make a reservation for the luncheon or banquet may do so by calling or by sending name and address and a check for the proper amount made payable to Murray State University Alumni Association before the reservation deadline to:

KENTUCKY CHILDREN VISIT GOVERNOR'S MANSION - Kellie Berry, 7, of Calloway County, left, Robertson Elementary School, was among 120 children chosen to represent their counties during the "We Love You Kentucky" luncheon March 31. Kellie is seated next to Charlann and Elly Carroll, the governor's wife and daughter. The luncheon at the Governor's Manson was the kickoff of National Library Week, April 1-7, sponsored by the Kentucky Library Association, and was held in conjunction with Kentucky's observance of the International Year of the Child. Mrs. Carroll is the chairperson of the state Year of the Child event. Each child attending the luncheon was chosen to participate through local county sweepstakes drawings. Coach Joe Hall and player Chuck Verderber of the University of Kentucky basketball team, and Col. Harland Sanders were among special guests.

Jim was trapped into marriage by a girl who got herself pregnant so Jim would have to marry her.

A few years ago, when Jim fell in love with Joyce, he was all set to leave his wife and marry Joyce, but his wife deliberately got herself pregnant, and Jim was trapped

The only reason Jim is staying with his wife is because of his two children. Joyce understands the situation and accepts it, so she doesn't pressure Jim for a divorce. Jim's wife knows nothing about Joyce, so she's not getting

The first week I was really mad. I wouldn't speak to my parents. The nicer they were to me, the nastier I was - slamming doors, turning the radio way up just to bug them, etc. Then I had a talk with my favorite teacher. I gave the stuff I'd outgrown to the Goodwill, sewed on buttons that had been off a long time, etc.

I got way ahead in my history, science and English. I also read two good books and caught up on letter writing I'd put off for a long time.

I was still mad at my parents when I was around them, but inside I felt a lot better about myself. Hope you think it's worth passing along.

Congress Unreigned

Most Americans are suffering from the scramble to keep up with the cost of living — and of paying taxes.

But none of us enjoys the same ability to provide selfrelief as do members of

The Senate came under a bit of criticism recently when it scrapped the ceiling of $8,600 on outside income, voting to delay the restriction for four years. Now a subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee is working on a bill to allow each representative and senator a $50-per-day tax deduction for each day Congress is in session.

Members already are allowed a $3,000 deduction in consideration of their need to maintain a home in Washington as well as in their districts. But the proposed deduction, which could amount to as much as $14,000 annually, is designed to further offset the cost of living in Washington.

It could mean an average reduction in individual tax bills of about $4,600.

The American public is unlikely to view the scheme with sympathy. Approval by Congress two years ago of a $12,000-a-year pay raise for members drew cries of outrage and led to adoption in each House of the outside pay limitations.

Following as it does the Senate's reconsideration of the outside pay ruling, the tax dodge is certain to draw fire.

The lawmakers, we trust, will take another look at their self-serving handiwork.

Letter To The Editor

Strong Concern

With the strong concern that people are showing toward money it seems that altruism is appearing to be more and more sacrificed by what some people call "business" ignoring praiseworthy humanistic virtues.

A few days ago when for the first time I decided to take a short trip along with my company to Jackson, Tenn., I was optimistic about this trip. But calamity came when we needed to receive help from the (I was told this later) so-called not caring people of the city.

It was Saturday when we left Murray to go to Jackson, in the hope of enjoying from our trip to that city about which my friend had already told me good things. At night as I was driving on the highway something went wrong with my car so that I had to have it towed. When the man who was to tow it with his towing truck did so and charged me $20, I drew a personal check since I had already spent my cash for gas and, as a conclusion, I had no more money nor had any of my friends.

The man said he valued just money and a check was of no value to him. We had a dispute with each other and at times we tried to convince him of our situation and that we had come from Kentucky and had no access to anybody to get $20 cash to pay him. He was so stubborn that he payed no attention to my three I.D. cards or my begging to him to accept my personal check. It was like I was talking to the wall.

At last he took our car, carrying us in it and getting us off around his house leaving us in a remote area.

We had no idea about where we were and what to do. The only alternative could be a union to pay me cash for my check, but it was after midnight and all of the unions, as well as banks, were closed and also the following day, namely, Sunday, was a holiday.

As it was raining, we started to hitchhike to get to town. We asked for several persons who were driving on to the city but none of them gave us a ride.

Eventually a young guy felt pity for us and took us to Jackson.

It was after midnight as we were rambling around asking for people to help us solve our problem and come back to Murray, but it still remained to be an unsolveable dilemma.

Hungry, exhausted, desperate, and suffering from sleeplessness sitting down on a chair in the corner of a restaurant and again enlisthing others' assistance without getting any result, we spent that bitter sorrowful night to see what was going to happen on the

Our last effort brought us $20 cash. Two men working in a gas station, after hearing our sorrowful dramatic episode and making sure that there was no trick in our statements, paid us $20 to pay the man who had towed my car.

I wish I know the two men's names to mention here, those who helped us. Shame is to the man who for $20 cash caused us such desperation.

Sincerely yours, Cyrus Yassai Murray Manor Apts. J-4 Murray, KY 42071

Mini-University

For the past few weeks I have been teaching a class for Mini-University on early living in Kentucky. The kids in the class are all around ten years old, and we have had an interesting time learning about how people lived and visualize the trip from the east -Virginia or North Carolina, since that is where most of their ancestors came from - across the mountains to Kentucky. It proved difficult for these modern day children to imagine themselves in a world without automobiles and McDonald's, but they divided into groups, picked a group leader and began making lists of what would be really important to bring with them to the new country. I had tried to stress that since they would be traveling (on their imaginary trip) by wagons or flatboats, only the essential items should be brought along. They strained their imaginations to grasp what could be made or grown after. reaching their new homes.

This led to a discussion of what skills these pioneers should have. They finally decided that a carpenter, blacksmith, weaver, and a farmer would be absolutely necessary. It was really interesting to hear these kids discuss just what could be made from the raw products available in the new land, and what skills would be necessary to make these things.

The end of the first session was devoted to designing log cabins for their new homes in the wilderness. At first, these cabins were drawn complete with basements, upper stories, and bathrooms. Then we got practical and realized that the early shelters would

A few of the girls refused to admit that they would have had to go out into the dark, cold night; they conceded that bathrooms were a little too revolutionary for those times, but they put their outhouses right onto the cabins, so that they wouldn't have to make a long trip. Who knows, maybe some of the pioneer women had the same kinds of minds and did the same?

Our second session was given by two very nice girls from TVA who brought an interesting collection of old-time tools with them. The kids did their best * to figure out what these tools were used for; sometimes they guessed right, but many of those objects were so foreign to modern life that it was impossible to guess. It was a real lesson in tools that can't be plugged into an electrical socket or run on batteries. Many of them were hand-made. Our next session will be a trip to the Home Place at LBL, where we will all get a chance to actually see what it was like to live on a primitive farm. We will also get to see many of these tools in use. And the last session will be an oldtime school day, which will be held at the city park near the old courthouse. The kids will then find out a little about what a one-room school is like, complete with McGuffey Readers.

My group of fifth-graders were: Joey and Woody Hicks, Julie Edwards, Anne-Marie Hoke, Annamaria Clevenger, Connie Moore, Billie Weirdo, Libby Welch, Kim Bynum, Penny Futrell, and James Daniels. They hopefully have been able to take a little interest in Kentucky history by trying to live it for a few hours. And they have certainly made me realize that the contrast between life then and now is so great that modern children have trouble even imagining what it

Severest Penalties For Deer Poaching

Frankfort, Ky. — Warren cases where maximum pled guilty to charges of District Judge Henry J. Potter poaching fines have been illegal possession of deer. today levied what Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources officials are calling the severest penalties for deer poaching in state history.

Meted the maximum fine of $5,000 each were Larry Wholbrey (Route 5) and Harvey Bryson (1636 Curd St.), both of Bowling Green, and Lonnie McMillan of Maryville, Tennessee. In addition to the fines, each man was ordered to pay $333.33 in replacement costs for the five deer found in their possession and court costs of $27.50.

Judge Potter also sentenced each man to a total of 450 days in jail, but probated the sentence provided the men sacrifice their hunting rights for the next five years and pay the entire fine.

SCHOOLING FISH

The most commonly known aspect of social behavior in fish is their tendency to "school," to group together in large numbers.

Sport fishermen in the Spring look for schools of popular gamefish such as white bass, crappie and black bass, and take advantage of the abundance of fish in one place.

Not all fish school. Certain species such as largemouth bass, white bass and many saltwater fish travel in schools when young, but break up into smaller units and finally become solitary fish as they grow older and lar-

Interestingly, those fish which school for their entire lives are usually forage fish such as minnows and herring.

Safety in numbers may be their motto, suggests the staff at Mercury outboards' fishing department, but it's also possible that schools of small fish are nature's way of providing a quick meal for hungry predator fish such as bass, pike and mus-

Research has shown that schooling fish do maintain a definite awareness of each other.

This is evident in the way they keep a set distance apart and in their synchronized movements.

Most fishermen have seen this in the actions of minnows in a lake or stream. Disturb the water near them and they turn in unison and flee, never bumping into each other in their hurry to evade the danger.

No one fish is really a leader

What triggers the group to act in unison remains a mystery that biologists have yet to solve.

FOUR WHEELING BY Hamp Brooks Jr.

What Kind Of Gas Mileage Are You Really Getting

My four wheel drive is getting horrible gas mileage. What can I do about it? Many is the time we have heard those very words, and it seems probable that with the rising repeated even more frequently in the future.

Let's be realistic. Just what kind of mileage are you really getting? If you're not sure check it out carefully. Don't use your speedometer for the calculation because most rigs are notorious for error in such cases. Top of the tank; drive a known distance of miles and return; and then refill the tank.

Our experience with four wheel drives includes a range of three miles per gallon all the way up to thirty. We'll be surprised if you're not somewhere in between. Four wheel drives have not always been notorious gas hogs. Most of this has occurred in recent years to be truthful. Why? What brought it on?

Instead of two hundred and fifty cubic inches we're feeding four hundred or more to do the same job. Cubic inches eat gasoline. And in order to save the atmosphere we've had to detune the engine's efficiency wise, which meant it took lots of cubic inches just to get the job

This brought about the axle ratios of 3.08 to 1 and similar figures. But in a big motor and let it loaf was the policy. That would be fine if all fourwheelers retained the stock tires and drove a steady fiftyfive miles per hour on level roads. This does not occur. Most four el drives get big tires adde thereby further raising the axle ratio. In effect the rig thinks it's climbing a squatty tires; and you and I steep hill just going down the Phil Sumner and I had been talking up a bass fishing trip on Kentucky Lake for almost a month. But something always muddy and the bass are hitseemed to get in the way. His ting short, but that makes it brother-in-law got sick. The lake was high and muddy. I had a "request" on the home front to fix that leak in the pantry. It seemed like we never would get to go fishing.

But the recent weekend loomed with no major stumbling blocks. I got on the phone and got in touch with Phil. "Boy, you got any line on your reel?" I asked.

'Well, I don't know. What's on your mind?" he asked, jumping to learn the when and where, but not violating the "code of the cool."

> A short stack of pancakes and a couple of cups of coffee at a local restaurant bolstered my spirits. The rain slacked and the dawn skies were lighter than I'd anticipated. The wind was down, and the dreams of the previous night now turned to daydreams as I drove on to the marina.

What do you say, Wild Man?" I asked Philip, who was waiting dockside. He had on a heavy parka pulled down over chest waders. "Think it'll rain?"

Philip glanced skyward at the clouds and announced, 'We'd better get on the water. It's crazy to go fishing in the middle of a storm, but if you're already out there when the storm hits, that's another thing His logic seemed sound enough, and we made final plans. The west side of the lake, where we were was muddy from the sudden influx of rainwater. We wanted to fish something not quite so brown, and the east side of the lake normally doesn't carry as much color as fast. We agreed to trailer the boat across Eggher's Ferry Bridge at Aurora and launch from the ld airstrip in Land Between the Lakes.

It took a quarter hour to drive the distance and another ten minutes to get the boat off the trailer and the car parked. By this time the wind was regaining some strength.

We motored out of the launching area parallel to the riprap along the highway. We intended to turn north under the bridge and fish toward the Higgins, Sugar, Duncan Bay sector of the lake. 'Let's give these rocks a quick try," I suggested,

"Son! Get the net!" I could tell the fish was bigger than the "bank runner" category, and I didn't want to take a chance on letting him flop off near the boat.

The bass made a quick run and then surfaced, shaking' violently to throw the lure. It was a Kentucky bass, better than two pounds, and I kept my line tight while he played down. Then Philip made a scoop and the first bass of the year was in the boat.

"Nothing to it," I grinned and smugly went about the business of trying to match the When's the best time to go 'Right now," says Charlie

Bowers, director of the Kentucky fish and wildlife department's fisheries According to Bowers, the period from the first of April through the middle of May is the best time of the year to catch fish in Kentucky. Most game species spawn during this period, and spawning activity causes fish to concentrate in shallow water areas where they are easy to locate and catch.

'We've already had better fishing this year than we had by the end of April last looks like it could be a banner year for spring fishing. We have good population levels of game fish and they seem more active than usual, perhaps because their strength hasn't been sapped by extremely cold weather.' There have been more excellent walleye catches from the South Fork of the Cumberland River and white bass runs are just about to reach their peak. Bowers feels. Crappie are beginning to show up more and more on angler's stringers as the water continues to warm and good catches of bass have been reported from several lakes already this year.

The only dark spot on this otherwise bright angling horizon is the weather. Spring in Kentucky is almost always marked by unsettled weather spring," Bowers says. "This conditions - thunderstorms, cold snaps, strong winds, and other disturbances that make fishing less than ideal.

But, Bowers says, fish are miss more adaptable fishermen and will spawn under less than ideal conditions. Those anglers who wait for that perfect day might miss the peak spawning periods. So get out on the water whenever you can, even if it is a little cooler, cloudier or windier than you'd like. Of course, this doesn't mean that you should keep fishing during really severe weather. Our large lakes can get rough in a hurry when the wind gets up and it's extremely dangerous to be caught out in a open boat during a thunderstorm. So temper your desire to catch fish with a good dose of common sense and keep a watchful eye on the weather. But do go fishing - the way things look now, this spring is one you certainly don't want to

Personal Kentucky Income Up 14% In 1978

Two years ago, eight Kentuckians who reported yearly incomes of more than $200,000 paid no state income tax. Thirty-four others "who reported incomes of between $100,000 and $200,000 also paid

That's not a large number of people considering the fact that 1,412,043 tax returns were filed in Kentucky that year. And there are perfectly legal reasons - like various types of tax write-offs and loopholes or tax-free investments - for high-income Kentuckians to owe no tax.

Just as interesting for trivia buffs is the fact that there are three Kentuckians in tiny Bell County of southeastern Kentucky who have each paid in excess of $100,000 in yearly state income tax.

better in the aftermath of the 1979 income tax filing deadline. That same Kentuckian, though, may have discovered something this year while filing a return: that his or her personal income in 1978 was up substantially. According to figures compiled by Business Week magazine, total personal income increased 14 percent in 1978. Kentuckians' gains in personal income were tenth highest of all 50 states and were the highest of all states east of the Mississippi River.

According to William L. Short, secretary of the state's Development Cabinet, the growth rates in Kentucky are attributable to income booms in construction, manufacturing and farming. And he predicted that Kentucky will continue to outstrip most of reported to be worth between the rest of the country in $75 million and $100 million. personal income gains because of various economic development programs underway

That doesn't mean, of course, that everyone's income is up in Kentucky; it's the average personal income that has made new records. Kentucky countinues to have both poor people and millionaires, as well as the majority of taxpayers who fall somewhere in between. And Kentucky has its share of millionaires, mostly located in the coal counties, the urban areas and the bluegrass horse farm regions. At the top of the list, according to Fortune magazine, is coal executive an article titled "Who's Who of the Private Rich" he was

There were only about 9,000 tax returns filed in coal-rich Bell County that year, for instance, but 26 of them reported more than $100,000 income. In Jefferson County, containing the state's most urban population and where more than 316,000 returns were filed in 1975, three taxpayers reported incomes of more than $1 million each and 645 others earned in excess of $100,000. Low blood pressure

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Is if normal for an entire family to have very low blood pressure? Mine has always been low. I have no health prob-lems and I have lots of energy. I was very surprised to learn that my 17 year old and 19 year old both have low blood pressure.
DEAR READER — One of the statements of an early professor has always stuck with me. It was his advice = about what to do when you see a patient who has low pressure. He said, Tell your patient to go home, get down on his knees and thank God he's got it." What he meant was that healthy people with low blood pressure tend to live lots longer and continue to be healthier than individuals who have higher blood pres-

We've seen this in a variety of population studies. The Navajo Indians are less likely to have fatty-cholesterol deposits in their arteries even when they eat highfat diets because they have an inherited characteristic of low blood pressure. In general, if you're healthy and feel good and are without health problems, the lower your blood pressure is, the better your health will continue to be.

Let me give you a little illustration that happens in your own body. We hear about heart attacks and strokes and similar problems of the circulation all the time. These are caused by fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries. That part of the arterial system in your body is the high pressure circulation. Commonly the pressure is around 120 over 75. That's perfectly normal Of course, it can be higher. This entire arterial system is susceptible to fatty-cholesterol deposits and that's what causes all the prob-

Agriculture Department forecasts the average retail price of hamburger could rise to $1.60 a pound this summer, a 38 percent jump from the average price of $1.16 in the July-September period of last forecast, based on recent price trends, was included Thursday in a new "livestock and meat situation" report issued by the

Donald B. Agnew, who wrote the report, said his 'guesstimate' of hamburger prices in March was that they averaged around $1.53 to $1.55 a pound nationally. The exact March figures will be available later this month.

The report said the continuing rise in hamburger prices w'll lead to more use of 'extenders' made from soybeans and other vegetable products in special kinds of hamburger.

Agnew also said he could not yet predict what hamburger prices may average over all of 1979. The average price was about $1.11 a pound last year, a rise of 37 percent from 80.9 cents a pound in 1977

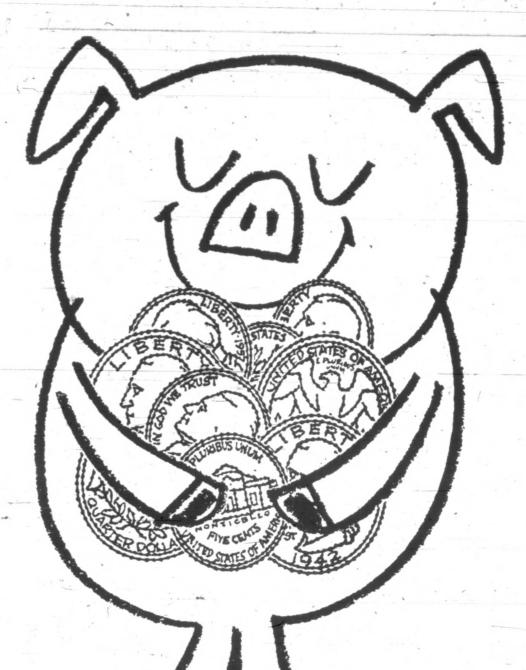

But if present upward trends continue, retail hamburger prices could average around $1.50 a pound over the entire year, a gain almost as great as 1978's in-

Agnew's report also said fastfood restaurants may adjust to reduced hamburger supplies and higher prices by increasing their menu offerings of poultry, pork and seafood items.

By CHARLES WOLFE Associated Press Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) -Democratic gubernatorial candidate Harvey Sloane has put forth an education platform that would cost $50 million more than what already is committed to education.

Sloane says that is the only major spending increase he will propose in the campaign, adding that the program is needed if Kentucky is to attain the educational quality of its seven neighboring states.

Education was the No. 1 concern voiced by those he met during his campaign walk across the state, Sloane said.

In a press conference here Friday, the former Louisville mayor unveiled an education platform which touched three major areas: school funding, financial accountability and teachers' salaries.

Kentucky is 38th nationally in per pupil expenditures, Sloane said, but second only to Hawaii in the amount spent by the state. Local districts must spend more on education, although several school bond issues have been defeated in the last year, he said. "The state has about reached its limit. If local districts don't want to do their share. I don't think the state should bail them out," he said, adding $350 million is needed for school construction. The state should abandon its classroom unit method of funding in favor of the weighted pupil formula, which focuses more on pupil needs, Sloane said.

Property taxes, the primary source of education funds, have themselves become a political issue, but Sloane said there was no immediate funding alternative.

"I don't see, realistically, how the property tax is going to be eliminated," Sloane said, The property tax in Kentucky is not a great tax, proportionate to other states." On accountability, Sloane said he would "streamline" the Department of Education, remove it from the Cabinet of Education and Arts and make: Teachers' Retirement Fund.

"The superintendent of education, who is an elected official, should not have to report to an appointee of the governor," he said.

Local school boards should be given greater autonomy, with the state setting only minimum standards and not dictating curricula, he said.

Sloane added he would veto any legislation that would mandate programs, but provide no additional funding for local districts. That included competency testing, he said, and the state should provide remedial assistance to pupils shown by the tests to need help.

Sloane praised Gov. Julian Carroll for improving teacher salaries to a No. 30 national ranking and helping retain qualified teachers.

He said he also would work to continue reducing the unfunded liability in the

Statewide Group Endorses McBrayer

Associated Press Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) statewide committee claiming to represent 100 local unions has announced it is endorsing Terry McBrayer as a Democratic candidate for

The move was an attempt to carve out a chunk of the labor support that has been going at least in public commitments - largely to Lt. Gov. Thelma Stovall, a McBrayer rival.

At a news conference Friday, McBrayer said he has done more for labor during his five terms as a legislator than merely "saying you can hang your hat in my office" - an obvious reference to Mrs. Stovall's long tenure in secondary state posts.

In a blunt comment, he said the real question is whether labor "wants to live with Louie Nunn another four years.

"Hell, no," one of the 100 persons in the crowd shouted. Nuan, a former Republican governor, is running again this year. McBrayer said he is aware

Mrs. Stovall is gathering labor endorsements. He added: "She's the finest lady in Democratic politics, but she cannot win this fall, and I can."

In the past few days, McBrayer allies such as former Gov. Bert Combs and Gov. Julian Carroll have been sounding the same theme, that the lieutenant governor would be defeated by Nunn because she is not perceived by voters as competent for the job.

"I have a good labor record," McBrayer said to vigorous applause. His supporters passed out a leaflet indicating he had helped unions on dozens of bills when he was a House member.

Mrs. Stovall's , main achievement has been the endorsement of the state AFL-CIO, and to a lesser extent the United Automobile Workers.

But McBrayer told a newsman that both endorsements were much less than they seemed. He said the state AFL-CIO

"wouldn't even let my name be put on the floor," while only 47 members of the UAW took that crucial vote; and that many merely were members, not delegates.

The "Labor for McBrayer" organization has filed with the Kentucky Registry of Election Finance.

Larry Clark, business Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, said the committee represents more than 60,000 wage éarners.

He said one factor was McBrayer's performance as a legislator, his role as state commerce commissioner in attracting new industry and his activities in trying to better labor-management relations.

McBraver already has received the endorsement of a number of individual unions.

State Auditor George Atkins, an anti-administration candidate, has won the support of the United Mine Workers, the third large state union group. The fourth, the Teamsters, have made no endorsement yet.

McBrayer shook hands and met people in two hospitals in eastern Jefferson County before attending the labor announcement. His activities today were to include a rally at Frankfort.

Carter Finding Rest, Solitude

SAPELO ISLAND, Ga. (AP) - President Carter is finding near-perfect solitude in a wildlife refuge here where his closest neighbors include snakes and alligators.

Carter had no announced schedule today, and his Thursday activities were hardly arduous.

The White House press office, headquartered more than 30 miles away on Jekyll Island, said only that the president had a lunch of sandwiches and soup after arriving from Washiington, and then walked on the beach with wife Rosalynn and daughter Amy.

They have been in the house the rest of the afternoon, reading and resting," the sparse announcement concluded. "They have no special plans for this evening."

The Carters are staying in a well-preserved 19th-century plantation manor house where President | Calvin | Coolidge once sojourned. The spacious residence, which looks something like the White House plopped in the center of a coastal forest, is owned by the University of Georgia Marine Institute.

The press office said the Carters are renting the place, but has been unable to provide a dollar figure. Deputy press secretary Rex Granum said simply that the Carters were paying "the going rate."

The president came here manager of the International principally to fish with his wife and two old friends. Brunswick, Ga., optometrist Carlton Hicks and attorney James Bishop.
