City Rests Case In Sex Discrimination Hearing

The city of Murray, respondent in a Kentucky Commission on Human Rights public hearing concerning a charge of sex discrimination in employment brought by Rosemary Lamb against the city and its police department, rested its case Friday afternoon.

The complainant rested its case May 8 during the first part of the trial. Attorneys J. William Phillips, for the respondent, and Thomas A. Ebendorf, for the complainant, agreed to make final arguments and statements on the case after each has received a copy of the transcript. The court clerk has 30 days from the end of the hearing to prepare the transcripts, including all documents used in the proceedings. The lawyers then have 30 days to make their final statements.

Copies of the transcripts, documents and final statement will be sent to each member of the commission, consisting of seven males and three females. The commission members will make the decision on the hearing at a meeting scheduled for sometime this fall.

Lamb, currently employed by the Madisonville Police Department, was not present at the hearing.

After lunch, Phillips called Howard Koenen to the stand. Koenen is a member of the Murray Common Council and a former member of the Public Safety Committee, that interviews police candidates and makes recommendations for hiring.

Koenen said that he wanted to be certain that the department could get the value from a person before a recommendation would be made.

He testified that there was no certain written criteria for the recommendation of hiring applicants. He added that he looked for experience and knowledge in a candidate.

Koenen explained experience as work related to law enforcement. He added that he watched for nervousness by the candidates during the interviews.

In further testimony, he said that he could not remember any specifics of his interview with Lamb or several other candidates in 1978. Koenen added that he did not refuse to hire Lamb because of her sex.

Billy Balentine, a current member of the council and the public safety committee, testified that he looked for an education in criminology, law enforcement background experience and emotional stability as factors in recommending candidates.

Balentine stated concern that Lamb did not have intentions of being a career officer. He added that she became quite nervous when asked about a shooting incident she was involved in. The incident was discussed in previous testimony.

Also, he said he was concerned about Lamb, when given hypothetical situations, she stated she would try to talk the arrestee into compliance.

Balentine, who is employed by Fisher-Price Toys, added that he has recommended several women to be hired at the plant. He said he did not refuse to hire Lamb because of her sex.

Phillips called Steve Yarbrough as his last witness. Yarbrough is a councilman and a member of the public safety committee.

Yarbrough stated that career officers were looked for. He added that, in his opinion, officers have to perform a variety of services and emotional stability was an important factor to have in an officer.

Ebendorf called Treva Grogan as a rebuttal witness. Grogan was secretary to Brent Manning, Murray police chief in 1978. She stated that she worked with Lamb during her internship at the department from Murray State University.

She testified that she never saw Lamb look at a police entrance test. This contradicted testimony given by Police Capt. Dale Spann earlier Friday. Spann stated that he had observed Lamb looking at a copy of the test.

Phillips added a deposition from J. Hardiman Nix, a member of the council and public safety committee, to the documents of the case.

Gasoline Easier To Find This Weekend; Outlook For Rest Of Month Uncertain

By MARK POTTS
AP Business Writer

It's going to be a bit easier this weekend than last to get gasoline, government and industry officials say. But the outlook for the rest of the month is uncertain.

Oil companies have begun shipping June gasoline allocations to service stations. And that will let dealers refill tanks that ran dry when May allocations ran out.

That does not mean, though, that all stations will be open all the time this weekend. Some will be closed because their first June shipments of gas didn't arrive before the weekend. Others will close or cut hours in an attempt to stretch supplies through the month.

Oil companies have been limiting dealers each month to a percentage of the amount of gas they got a year earlier. Texaco, for example, limited dealers in May to 80 percent of last May's supply, and is limiting them in June to 70 percent.

But Texaco will distribute about as many gallons of gas in June as in May, despite the allotment percentage cut. That's because more gasoline was sold in June 1978 than in May 1978. Traditionally, more gasoline is sold in June than May because of the start of vacation season.

If the same demand pattern holds true this year, supplies could run out fairly quickly. But analysts say there were signs late in May that public perception of the gas shortage is blunting demand considerably, so gas supplies may make it through the month without serious shortages.

In any case, gasoline should be fairly plentiful this weekend as new shipments combine with gas left over from last month.

"It will be OK this weekend," said John Goodier of the Wyoming Department of Economics and Planning. "It will probably be toward the end of the month when it gets tight again."

"We are finding for the first weekend in June, the situation is a little bit better than the last two weeks in May and certainly no worse," said Jan Ray, a spokesman for the Auto Club of Washington state.

State travel officials, however, continue to warn drivers to use less gas and avoid having to find gas at night, when many service stations close.

Pope John Paul Returns Home; Receives Emotional 'Welcome'

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Pope John Paul II, returning home for the first time since becoming pope seven months ago, arrived in his native Poland today where more than a million of his countrymen prepared an emotional "welcome home."

His chartered Alitalia Boeing 727 touched down at a military airport outside Warsaw at 10:07 a.m. (3:07 a.m. CDT), seven minutes behind schedule.

Stepping from the plane, the pontiff knelt and kissed the ground. It was the first time he touched Polish soil since he was elected leader of the world's 750 million Roman Catholics last Oct. 16.

The airport crowd of 20,000 watched in awed silence as the pope stepped from his plane, then roared it greetings as he accepted a bouquet of flowers from a child and stooped to kiss her cheek.

The pontiff was greeted by Cardinal Stefan Wyszyński, Poland's Roman Catholic leader, and Polish President Henryk Jablonski.

Poland has prepared an unprecedented greeting for the first Roman Catholic pontiff to visit a communist-ruled country, but then John Paul is the first Polish pope in history and 90 percent of Poland's 35 million citizens are Catholics.

Before leaving Rome, the pontiff said he hoped his visit would serve the "consolidation of internal unity among by beloved countrymen and further development between the church and the (Polish) state."

From the airport the pope was to travel by motorcade into the capital for a meeting in Belvedere Palace with Communist Party leader Edward Gierek. After that he was to conduct a Pontifical Mass in downtown Victory Square, adorned for the occasion with a towering wooden cross.

At least one million people were expected to jam the square, with millions of others lining adjoining streets and the motorcade route or watching on state television.

Poles were joyous when John Paul, then Cardinal Karol Wojtyła of Krakow, was elected seven months ago as the first non-Italian pope in 450 years, but today is their first chance to show their adoration. John Paul will be visiting his homeland for nine days for what he calls a "religious pilgrimage."

Banners with the yellow-and-white Vatican colors waved beside Poland's national colors of red and white along the highway into the city from the airport and hung from apartment windows and balconies.

There were portraits of the pope, flower decorations and blue banners for the Virgin Mary.

Roadside shrines were freshly decorated with new paint and flowers, and Poles wore their Sunday best.

There were a few official slogan-bearing banners. One read, "Warsaw, city of peace, capital of a socialist country." Another, hanging near the Soviet war memorial, said, "We know the price of war, we want to live and work in peace."

Police and government officials had been preparing for days to handle the vast throng flooding downtown Warsaw. Military and riot police called in from other zones entered Warsaw discreetly as workmen completed metal-pipe barriers to hold back the crowds.

Restaurants were ordered to stay open beyond normal evening closing hours and hospitals staffs were reinforced. Military field kitchens were set up on sidewalks and stenciled signs pointed the direction to points where drinking water was available.

In practice runs far from the city center, police in helicopters tested loudspeakers for traffic control.

Long lines of residents and visitors formed to buy hot dogs and ice cream cones, while shops, which often have scant stocks on hand, showed an unusual amount and variety of food-stuffs.

Liquor sales were banned in Warsaw and other cities during the days of the pope's visits.

Unchanged Employment Rate In April Masks Mild Labor Force Deterioration

WASHINGTON (AP) — The unchanged unemployment rate in April masks a mild deterioration in the labor force, say several private economists who predict that joblessness will rise to at least 6.2 percent by summer's end. The unemployment rate in May remained at 5.8 percent, the Labor Department reported Friday. If the economists are correct, joblessness will grow faster than expected by the Carter administration, which says it won't reach 6.2 percent until the fourth quarter.

Lyle Gramley, a member of the Council of Economic Advisors, said he would be surprised if the rate hit 6.2 percent before October.

The three economists, representing Chase Manhattan Bank, Citibank and Data Resources Inc., said people hired during the last six months are highly vulnerable to layoffs.

They predicted that unemployment will be pronounced in the durable goods industries, particularly autos and large appliances, where production is falling and retail sales are sluggish.

Construction workers also could be affected more than most groups because housing starts declined in April and savings, a prime source of mortgage money, continue to fall, the economists said.

"In light of these signs, we expect to see a small rise in unemployment next month, probably to 5.9 percent, and 6.2 percent by the third quarter (July to September), said Alan Murray, a vice president of Citibank in New York.

An increase from 5.8 percent to 6.2 percent represents about 400,000 jobs, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

"We now see clear-cut signals of cuts in consumer demand. It's only a matter of time before this shows up in the unemployment rate," said Douglas Bendit, an economist with Chase Manhattan Bank, who says joblessness could reach 6.4 percent by September. Robert Gough, an economist at Data Resources Inc., Cambridge, Mass., said a 6.5 percent unemployment rate is possible by the fall.

Each economist was more impressed by the level of employment than the rate of unemployment. They had expected an increase greater than the 140,000 reported by the Labor Department, in light of April's 670,000 decline, the largest drop in 4½ years.

"Taken together, that's a decline since March of half a million people," said Citibank's Murray. In other economic news Friday, the Commerce Department reported that new construction in April rose 1 percent to an annual rate of $214.4 billion.

The figures reflected somewhat slower growth than in March, when construction increased 3 percent to $211.9 billion. The average annual rate for the three-month period ended April was $210.7 billion, 2 percent below the preceding threemonth period.

AT COSMETOLOGY WORKSHOP — The development of a model curriculum for the teaching of cosmetology in Kentucky vocational schools was the goal of a three-day workshop at Murray State University this week. Among the nine teachers from across the state given the assignment of grouping 55 instructional objectives into a master plan were Grace Brown, left, an instructor at the Detrick Vocational Center, Louisville, and Mrs. Faye Farris, Cherry Corner and an instructor at the Paducah Vocational Center. Standing is Dr. Vicki E. Shell, an assistant professor in the Department of Industrial Education and the project coordinator.

OOPS — This dump truck from the Toy L Barnett Co. backed up too far in trying to fill a hole at the Purchase District Furniture Warehouse with gravel. The hole was to be filled because the store was in the process of building a ramp. Some gasoline leaked from the tank. Gary Jones, driver of the truck, was not hurt.

CHILDREN, ELDERLY VULNERABLE TO FIRE

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Children under 5 and people over 65 are particularly vulnerable to fire death, according to a recent report issued by Honeywell.

Together, these two groups account for only 20 percent of the nation's population, yet they represent 45 percent of all fire deaths.

The report said that children often become frightened and hid when confronted with fire, while the elderly were often hindered because they suffered from impaired eyesight, hearing, mobility, lucidity and strength.

Richard the Lionheart of England died of a battle wound in France in 1199. Legends have romanticized him as a paragon of chivalry, but the facts of his life describe little more than a coarse and often brutal soldier.

Miss Kathie Broach Is Married To Mr. Branson At The Club House

Miss Kathie Broach, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray T. Broach, and Keith Branson, son of Mrs. Celesta Wilson, Paducah, and Ed Branson, Dallas, Texas, were married in a candlelight ceremony at 6:30 p.m. on Saturday, May 12.

The double ring ceremony took place at the Murray Woman's Club House with Bro. Bill McClarin officiating. Wedding vows were written by the bride couple.

Miss Carole Smith, Hopkinsville, pianist and guitarist, played several selections preceding the ceremony. Miss Jenelle Brown, Louisville, was the soloist.

Mrs. Bob Cornelison, Scottsboro, Ala., sister of the bride read a welcome letter written by the bride couple after which the soloist sang "Never My Love."

The fireplace was the formal setting with an altar arrangement of mixed apricot spring flowers, daisies, sweet peas, reberium lilies and baby's breath complimented by pedestals of natural foliage and spiral and tiered candelabra. A unity candle centered the altar setting.

The candles were lighted by Kevin Branson, Paducah, brother of the groom, and Bob Cornelison, Scottsboro, Ala., brother-in-law of the bride as a melody was played. Mothers of the bride and groom each lighted a candle at the altar from which the bride couple lighted the unity candle as "The Wedding Song" was sung.

The bride party entered as the pianist played "Today." The bride entered with her parents who were then seated and the couple walked together to the altar.

Bride's Dress

The bride wore a formal gown of candlelight shimmering organza. Reembroidered alencon lace and tiny pearls created a solitary yoke and standup collar. A double layered flounce of organza outlined the yoke formed the sleeves and draped to below the waist in back in a capelet effect. Motifs of alencon graced either side of the skirt beginning just above the waistline dipping down into the gracefully flared skirt. A deep flounce attached with a border of matching lace encircled the hemline and full chapel length train.

The bride ensemble was completed with an ivory lace profile cap from which drifted soft silk illusion to the entire length of the train.

She carried a victorian bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley with a cathedral strand of pearls. Her only jewelry was pearl earrings belonging to her mother.

Serving as maid of honor was Miss Juana Stockdale with Mrs. Gale Broach Cornelison as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Lore Landolt, Mrs. Kathy Jackson Hargrove and Miss Sandra Stark. All attendants wore identical gowns of apricot silesta. The blouses bodices featured open capelet sleeves and the sunburst pleated skirts flared to the floor.

Each attendant carried an empire bouquet of sweet peas, ruberium lilies, shasta daisies, baby's breath and bakers fern.

The groom's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Ida Peal, Grand Rivers, wore a beige print floor length dress and jacket. Her corsage was a white orchid.

The guest register was attended by Miss Lynn Hewitt of Murray. Guests were given a souvenir scroll encircled with a miniature gold wedding band.

Reception

A reception followed the ceremony in the reception hall of the club house. The five petal, three tiered wedding cake stood in the center of the room on a round table draped with a pau cloth.

The buffet table was covered with a white cloth holding brass appointments and accented with mixed apricot spring flowers in tall brass candelabra.

Serving for the reception were Mrs. Diane Rhoades Montgomery, Mrs. Sandy Bibb Culp, Mrs. Jill Falwell Mathis and Ms. Connie Mikez of Mayfield. The wedding and the reception was directed by Mrs. Jerry Falwell, assisted by Mrs. Rex Smith.

Following a wedding trip to French Lick, Indiana the couple is making their home in Murray.

Out of town guests were Mr.

Miss Tracey Morris, St. Charles, Mo., cousin of the bride, was flower girl and carried a basket of mixed apricot spring flowers. Her floor length dress, fashioned by the bride's mother, had a double self ruffle collar with semi-fitted bodice and sunburst pleated skirt of apricot silesta.

The groom was attired in a candlelight tuxedo with a candlelight shirt and vest. His boutonniere was a gardenia.

Terry Broach, brother of the bride, served as best man. Groomsmen were Ed McAuliff, Chicago, Ill., Monty Cathey, Murray, Randy Burdette, Reidland, and Steve Boaz, Princeton. They wore tuxedos with candlelight jackets, dark brown trousers, and vests with apricot shirts.

David Morris, Jr., St. Charles, Mo., cousin of the bride, was ring bearer. His attire was a candlelight tuxedo with apricot shirt.

Serving as ushers were Kevin Branson, Paducah, Bob Cornelison, Scottsboro, Ala., Robert Lowery, Murray, and Reid Ward, Paducah. The ushers wore dark brown tuxedos with apricot shirts. Groomsmen and ushers wore boutonniere of white rosebuds.

The mother of the bride wore a formal sleeveless gown of aqua silesta-chiffon with a shirred bodice trimmed with beaded matching Venice lace. The softly flared skirt draped to the floor. Her corsage was phalaenopsis orchids.

The mother of the groom wore a formal gown of maize angel knit with a sleeveless blouson bodice trimmed with matching Venice lace. The softly pleated skirt fell to the floor from a fitted cummerbund. Her corsage was phalaenopsis orchids.

The groom's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Ida Peal, Grand Rivers, wore a beige print floor length dress and jacket. Her corsage was a white orchid.

TITLED AMERICANS

NEW YORK (AP) — Titles are more important than money to many young women seeking employment in offices, according to the head of a secretarial agency here.

Few of his applicants wish to be secretaries, says Arnold Castor, president of Hamilton Systems Inc. He has found that although his business advertises only "secretarial" positions, a surprising number of applicants are prepared to reject $15,000 secretarial jobs for those as "administrative assistants" paying $2,000 less.

Other preferred titles are "executive secretary" or "account coordinator," says Castor, who adds that "males are satisfied to be called secretaries these days and they often have excellent skills."

It is with pleasure to announce that Malinda Cochran, bride-elect of Dale Mathis, has selected her china, silver, stainless, and crystal patterns from our bridal registry. Malinda and Dale will be married June 23, 1979.

Dealing with oily hair

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have this problem with the hair on my head. My hair gets so oily I must shampoo every morning just to keep the grease away.

I've tried every shampoo I can get my hands on, especially those for oily hair.

Can you recommend some type of drink which can be taken internally that will cut down on this oil in my hair?

DEAR READER — There are a few medical conditions that contribute to excess oiliness of the skin. Most of these are associated with other symptoms which you didn't mention so I think it's unlikely that you have anything more than just an excessive production of oil.

If you have other skin problems, it might be worth checking in with your doctor just to be sure that you don't have any underlying cause for most of your problems.

For most people the simple excess formation of skin oils that results in oily hair is best treated by just frequently washing the hair. Once a day is not too much for an individual with such a problem. In many people with truly excessive amounts of oil, washing the hair twice a day is perfectly all right.

Ordinarily, blow drying of the hair is hard on it because it eliminates oils that are in the hair shaft and are important to the texture of the hair itself. But in a person who has truly excessive amounts of oil, blow drying the hair might not be a bad idea.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 12-6, Hair Care, to give you an overall appreciation of the factors that affect your hair and how to take care of it. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

One of the factors that contributes to oily hair is an oily skin, specifically the forehead. The oils from the forehead are quickly picked up by the hair, especially with certain hair styles, and the next thing you know you have oily hair again.

Another source of oil is if you use oily hand lotions. Any of the oil that's left on the hand gets in the hair if you have the habit of rubbing your hand through your hair at some point during the day.

You should also avoid adding any oily or greasy applications to your face if you're trying to keep the oil out of your hair.

I'm sorry that there isn't a drink or some medicine that you could take that would immediately solve your problem. There isn't. Your problem is not caused by something you eat nor is it caused by lack of something that you need to eat. It's not a vitamin deficiency.

There are some shampoos that contain chemicals that are particularly effective in cleansing the hair of oil. These are mentioned in The Health Letter that I'm sending you.

Good Husbandry

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY I notice that the first of your TEN COMMANDMENTS FOR HUSBANDS is:

"Thou shalt put thy wife before thy mother, thy father, thy daughter and thy son, for she is thy lifelong companion."

Abby, does your husband put you before his mother? And does your son put his wife before you?

CURIOUS IN N.J.

DEAR CURIOUS: I hope so.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has promised to abide by your decision. Our problem is his snoring. He starts to snore the minute he dozes off, and he snores like a bull.

I have put up with his snoring for the seven years we've shared the same bed. Not once have I nudged him or asked him to roll over because I didn't want to disturb his much-needed sleep.

However, I complain bitterly when he insists on falling asleep in the living room while I'm trying to watch TV.

When I complain he says he enjoys dozing off with the TV on, that it's his living room, too, and I am being unreasonable.

I say that he is being unreasonable to subject me to his snoring while I'm trying to watch TV.

What is your verdict?

BOTHERED IN BELLEVUE

DEAR BOTHERED: I hereby declare the living room off limits for snoring. If hubby enjoys dozing off with the TV on, let him get a portable TV for the bedroom and snore to his heart's content.

Furthermore, if you continue to suffer in silence every night while your husband snores like a bull, I order a psychiatric examination for you! (You are either a masochist or a martyr.) Get some earplugs. Court adjourned.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 23 and my husband is 31. We've been married for two years and have no children. He has a small business and I have a full-time job. We have separate checking accounts and separate lives. He refuses to discuss his business or income with me.

He is never at home at night and I never know where he is. He stays out almost every night until the bars close, and on weekends he's never at home even in the daytime.

I got so fed up with being alone, I left him once. When I try to talk to him about our problems, it helps for a few days, then he goes back to his old ways. What should I do?

LEFT ALONE

DEAR LEFT: Nowhere in your letter do you mention "love." Why did you marry? Surely not to have separate lives. As I see it, your husband enjoys being married as long as he can live like a bachelor. If you want a real marriage, free yourself from this empty, in-name-only relationship and find a man who wants to be a full-time husband.

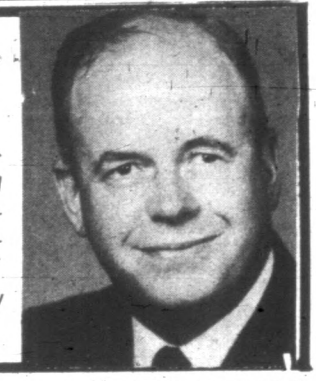

CONFIDENTIAL TO "MARRIAGE IN TROUBLE IN VENTURA": Your letter tells me that your husband is using the television to avoid talking about what's really bothering him. You need to talk honestly to each other. Open up a dialogue with love—not in anger.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet, "How To Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Echoes From The Past

By Judy Maupin

(A Column of historical and genealogical anecdotes, stories and family notes.)

Alonzo Pennington

Last week, I promised to tell the story of one especially daring criminal in the early days of Christian County. The man's name was Alonzo Pennington, one of two sons of Colonel Francis Pennington. Colonel Pennington was one of the earliest settlers, a well-liked and wealthy man who had acted as sheriff in 1829.

Because of the wealth of the Pennington family, both sons, Morton and Alonzo, were given educations much better than was customary for the time. Alonzo, who evidently had every benefit his father could provide, grew into a personable man, highly intelligent and a shrewd judge of others, a trait which he was to put to use in his nefarious activities.

Alonzo married at a young age and settled down on a farm where he proceeded to become interested in buying, selling, and racing horses. The track which he built on his farm soon became a popular "hang-out" for a group of men who were known for their unsavory reputations. Pennington began going on buying and selling trips, and it was at this time that people in the area gradually became suspicious of his activities.

It soon became evident that when Pennington would leave on one of his trips, local negro boys would also mysteriously disappear, never to be seen again. Later, it was learned that these boys had been promised help in getting their freedom, only to find themselves on the auction block in the south.

People also noticed that, when Pennington returned from his buying trips, there would be another flurry of counterfeit money appearing in the neighborhood. He also liked to trade, and his intelligence and knowledge of the law was often put to use in gaining the property of others. People who found themselves in court against Alonzo Pennington came out with the feeling that they had definitely been taken to the cleaners, without being about to put their finger on exactly what went wrong.

The con game that resulted in Pennington's downfall, even though it was a year or more before he was brought to justice, involved a young man named Davis. It seemed that Davis had married a young orphan who had inherited a farm and five slaves. She died soon after the marriage, and since she left no children, her property was to be returned to her surviving siblings, leaving her husband with no property.

Pennington soon convinced Davis that he could help him out of this situation. He convinced the man to sell the slaves before they could be taken away and to sign the farm over to him, with the assurance that his knowledge of law would enable him to keep the property and when the litigation was settled, to return it to Davis. The gullible Davis agreed, and told everyone he was selling out and leaving the county, as per Pennington's instruction to lie low until the trial was over.

Davis told his friends he was moving away and then he disappeared. By this time, Pennington had taken possession of the farm. When Davis' protracted absence was questioned, Pennington said that he was in Illinois, building a saw mill. This answer didn't satisfy Davis' friends, who prevailed upon the law to search for the man.

After much question and asking and searching, two of Pennington's associates were arrested and threatened with public whippings if they didn't reveal what they knew about Davis' disappearance. Finally, one man reluctantly admitted that Pennington had killed Davis and dropped his body into a sinkhole, where it was subsequently found.

Alonzo was on one of his buying trips while all this was going on, and while on his way through Hopkinsville, he met an associate who informed him of what had been happening in his absence. When he found out that his crime had been uncovered, Pennington managed to sneak back home long enough to get a fresh horse and disappear.

It was over a year before Alonzo Pennington was found, having been spotted by a Kentuckian who was visiting in Texas. This was in 1845, and he was subsequently hunted down and brought back home. Popular sentiment was all for a speedy "five minute" trial and hanging, but after much discussion, Alonzo was given a regular trial at which he was found guilty, although it was nearly a year later before he was actually hanged.

He became a type of anti-hero in Christian County, with many folk deeds credited to him without evidence to back them up. But on the other hand, judging from his intelligence and the many things he was known to have done, it is highly possible that many misdeeds had probably escaped notice.

After his execution, things quieted down in Christian County. Most of his associates had decided to try a healthier climate elsewhere, and there were no more negro boys disappearing. The counterfeit money which had appeared so regularly around the area also passed out of circulation, and things returned to normal.

Youngest And Best Geared To The Top

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — You're 30 years old and making $30,000 a year, a fast track combo you feel justifies focusing your sights on a distant but realistic goal, the presidency of your company.

Think again! Take your eyes off the future long enough to look around you. No matter that the 30-30 combination once almost assured you a shot at the title. The odds are against you now. These are the 1970s.

"Big business today has an astoundingly large number of managers in their 30s who make not just their age, in terms of thousands, but double it," says Prof. Eugene Jennings, an authority on the subject.

Replacing the 30-30s as candidates for the big job, his studies show, are the 30-60s, or executives still in their 30s who are earning twice their age, in thousands of dollars.

Jennings, an adviser to corporate top executives, author of numerous books on corporate life, and professor of management at Michigan State University, has spent years studying executive mobility.

Out of his studies have come many revelations that changed our views of corporations, but few findings have had greater significance to young executives than his interpretation of the 30-30s and the 30-60s.

In the 1950s, he observes, 30-30s occasionally could be found, but at best they measured three in 100 managers. By the second half of the 1960s their number had risen to 15 in 100.

Bible Thought

The high priest asked him, and said unto him, Art thou the Christ, the son of the Blessed? Mark 14:61.

And when he said, "I am!" they thought they had reason to crucify him. Who do you say that He is by your life and actions?

Dispute Goes Back Governors' Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's argument with the liberal wing of the Democratic Party didn't start with the oil situation.

The dispute goes back at least to the National Governors' Conference in 1972, when then Gov. Carter of Georgia tried to drum up a move to deny the Democratic presidential nomination to George McGovern.

McGovern's 49-state loss to Richard Nixon proved Carter had been right, and Carter began his own four-year quest for the presidency.

During that campaign Carter contended with liberal suspicion of his Southern origin and his conservatism on fiscal matters.

He was helped greatly by the support of Andrew Young, the black congressman from Atlanta who became his United Nations ambassador.

That alliance and his record on racial matters as Georgia governor helped him gain overwhelming black support. Indeed, the president said recently he owed his election to black voters.

Carter also promised to cut defense spending and supported tax reform, welfare reform and comprehensive national health insurance.

Liberals didn't much care for Carter's promise to balance the federal budget, but the alternative was Gerald Ford.

In the end, the liberal wing supported Carter. But it was a marriage of convenience and a rocky one at that.

Now some liberals talk of divorce, on grounds of desertion. They feel disappointed by the Carter record:

— His promise to cut defense spending was "clarified" to mean he would cut waste. He is pushing now to increase military outlays.

— His tax reform proposals got nowhere and have been shelved.

— His welfare reform plan has been scaled back in hopes of passage.

— His national health insurance plan has been cut down to conform with the anti-spending mood of Congress.

— He proposes cuts in future Social Security outlays and other social programs to reduce the budget deficit.

— He now is concentrating on the fight against inflation, although as a candidate he said his top priority would be to try to create new jobs through increased federal spending.

— He has consistently pushed for higher prices on oil products to encourage conservation.

The oil matter is the current rub. Liberals first helped defeat his 1977 proposal for a heavy tax on domestic crude oil, and now are denouncing Carter's decision to gradually end controls on domestic crude prices.

Democratic desertions helped defeat the standby gasoline-rationing plan which Carter said the nation badly needed.

Liberal votes helped produce a temporary rejection by the House of his deficit-trimming budget targets.

House Democrats voted in caucus to officially repudiate Carter's oil-decontrol plan, although they had no real chance of blocking the move, which took effect last Friday.

Carter makes it plain that he will run for re-election no matter who else is in the race.

The Carter-liberal quarrel is sure to continue.

Crawling To The State Title

Shelby County's Tracy Driver (left) and Murray High's John Denham appeared to be racing as the umpire looked on during last night's state championship game in Owensboro. Actually, Driver had just scored on a sacrifice fly. The Rockets edged the Tigers 7-5 for the title.

Warner Is Defeated Jackson-Outland Duo Advances

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Murray High's Candy Jackson and Kathy Outland, the top-seeded pair in girls doubles, breezed past two opponents to gain today's final in the Kentucky high school tennis championships at the University of Kentucky courts.

Jackson and Outland, who polished off Richmond Modell's Lisa Durham and Elizabeth Luxou (6-2, 6-0) and Lexington-Lafayette's Kelly Carter and Melissa Johnson (6-2, 6-4), played at 11 a.m. today.

They will meet the winner of the Sacred Heart-Caverna matchup.

The Tigers Brett Warner, who like Jackson-Outland won the Second Region tennis title last week, fell to Morehead's Mark Randolph 6-0, 6-1 in the first round.

Alford Slated To Defend Title In Hart Tournament

Veteran competitor Mary Jane Alford of Paducah will be on hand Wednesday to defend her championship when a field of 62 ladies tee it up for the 12th renewal of the George Hart Invitational Tournament at the Murray Country Club.

Last year, Mrs. Alford posted an even par 75 to win the popular tournament for the third time by four strokes over her nearest competitor, Mary Bain of Sikeston, Mo., winner of the event in 1976.

Mrs. Alford will leave from the first tee in the shotgun-started event at 9 a.m., playing with three other Paducahans — Nancy Nickel, Dean Conyer and Tammy Mullen, teen-age daughter of Paston Park pro K. O. Mullen and one of the area's most promising young golfers.

Mrs. Bain will be starting from the third tee in a four-some including Jerle Sullivan, Carolyn Caldwell and Mary Bogard all of Murray. The only other former champion in the field, Mary Jane Nall of Mayfield, will start from the fourth tee. She won in 1968.

Co-chairmen of this year's tournament are Betty Stewart, Jane Fitch and Elizabeth Slusmeyer. They are being assisted by the ladies making up the golf committee at the club.

The $12 entry fee covers the day's activities, including lunch and other special activities in addition to the 18 holes of medal play. A long drive contest is planned for the 3rd hole, and a prize will be given for the closest shot to the pin on the 125-yard 11th hole.

The players have been pre-flighted by handicaps into four flights, the top winners of each receiving prizes valued at several hundreds of dollars.

The winner of the championship flight also will receive the coveted traveling trophy provided by the Bank of Murray in memory of the late George Hart, one of its presidents. A prominent civic leader, Mr. Hart also was mayor of Murray as well as an active member of the club. His widow, Mrs. Lochie Hart, traditionally presents this trophy.

Another special trophy traditionally awarded at the tournament is the Dorothy Holland Team Trophy, an award provided by Al Lindsey, Murray jeweler, in memory of his aunt, also an active member of the club.

active member of the club until her death in 1970.

This trophy will be presented to the four players from any club whose aggregate score is the lowest of any similar group participating. Last year, the Holland trophy was won by a team from the Paxton Park course in Paducah and made up of Mrs. Alford, Miss Mullen, Norma Smith and Nancy Nickel.

The pairings and starting tees are:
No. 1 — Nancy Nickel, Dean Conyer, Tammy Mullen and Mary Jane Alford.
No. 3 — Mary Bain, Jerlene Sullivan, Carolyn Caldwell and Mary Bogard.
No. 4 — Jane Ann Nall, Betty Lowry, Betty Vowell and Vicki McLary.
No. 7 — Vickie Nance, Wanda Brown, Sandy Weintraub and Joyce Stratton.

Arizona Tops Miami In College Tourney

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — When Arizona wins a baseball game, the Wildcats usually do it with their bats.

Coach Jerry Kindall's crew is hitting .331 for the year and some of their scores look like they belong in the slow-pitch softball results. There was an 11-0 game, a 16-15 outing, a 19-18 contest, even a 22-14 slugfest.

"We can't continue to win games on hitting alone," Kindall said after junior left-handed Craig Lefferts pitched Arizona past Miami 5-1 with a six-hitter Friday night in the first round of the CWS.

Murray Finishes 2nd To Shelby In Title Match

By TONY WILSON
Sports Editor

OWENSBORO, Ky. — One example served to illustrate the event: "The best pitch I threw all night got hit out of the park," said Alan Gibbs. "That's the kind of game it was."

The villain with the bat was catcher Tracy Driver, who batted three hits, including a home run, to help his Shelby County team whip Murray High 7-5 last night at Chautauqua Park for the Kentucky high school state baseball title.

For the Tigers, it was a night of stranded runners — they left 12 men on base — and a bittersweet end to an amazing season that saw them run up 19 victories in 21 games, including a 17-game win streak.

"We didn't get the key hits tonight," said Murray High Coach Cary Miller. "We made some mental mistakes, and we committed some errors. Those things were enough to beat us."

For Shelby County, though, it was a perfect ending to a 27-3 season, and a perfect ending for pitcher Perry Joe Nutt, who scattered eight hits in running his record to 9-2.

Nutt had had only one day of rest since stopping Conner in the North Hardin Sectional final Wednesday, but Shelby County Coach Ray Pollett had no qualms about starting the 6-2 senior righthander.

"I wasn't going to let a sophomore or a junior take this moment from my seniors," said Pollett, still amazed at winning the title a full 30 minutes after the game. And Pollett admitted he never once thought of removing Nutt, though he worked himself into plenty of jams through the night.

The first one came in Murray High's initial at bat, in which the Tigers scored three times to open a comfortable margin.

Eddie and Requarth and Thomas Kendall drew successive walks, then scored on Brad Taylor's singing triple to the wall in center. Bill Milton followed with a line single to right, scoring Taylor and putting Murray up 3-0.

After Gibbs set down the Rockets in order in the second, Murray threatened again in their half of the frame. Scott Hill grounded an infield hit and Requarth walked. But two popups ended the inning.

Lindsey Allen finally awoke Shelby County's offense in the third when he singled to right, went to second on a wild pitch, advanced to third on a groundout, and scored on another wild pitch by Gibbs.

James Wiley, Tracy Driver and Brian Mitchell laced successive singles, and Wiley scored from second on the latter when the throw from Hill in left hit the front of the plate and bounced high over John Denham's head.

Nutt bunted for a hit to load the bases before David Bodine cracked a sacrifice fly to right that Driver just managed to beat from third, knotting the score at 3-3.

Kendall gave the Tigers their last lead with a booming home run to left-center with one out in the fourth inning, and Bruce Taylor and Brad Taylor followed with a single and a walk, respectively. Denham sacrificed the pair a base, but a groundout ended the uprising.

The Rockets broke out the long ball to grab a 5-4 advantage in the fifth. Driver homered to left with one out, and Mitchell followed with a double to right. He advanced to third on an infield out and scored when Bruce Taylor's attempt to nail him skidded under the glove of Kendall at third.

Gibbs helped Murray battle back to a 5-5 tie in the bottom half of the frame with a sharp single to left on the first offering from Nutt. He was sacrificed to second by Tony Herndon, went to third on Hill's hit to right and scored on Requarth's sacrifice fly to center.

Shelby County used three straight walks by Gibbs to load the bases with none out in the top of the seventh and scored the winning runs on Andy Upton's two-run single to center.

The Cougars were prevented from further scoring when Bodine was thrown out at third on Upton's hit. Gibbs ended the inning by fanning Stratton and picking off Allen at first.

"I felt good, especially good in the late innings," said Nutt. "I wasn't getting my fast ball over early, but my drop ball started working, and I went with it a lot late in the game."

Miller cited a small strike zone by the plate umpire and a sore-armed Gibbs as factors in the game. "He (Gibbs) didn't get much help from the umpire on strikes," Miller said. "He had been having trouble with his arm all week, and it cut down a lot on his effectiveness."

"I had some pain in my elbow," said Gibbs, who lost for the first time in eight decisions this season. "But I don't want to use that as an excuse. They were a good-hitting team, and it's no shame to lose to them."

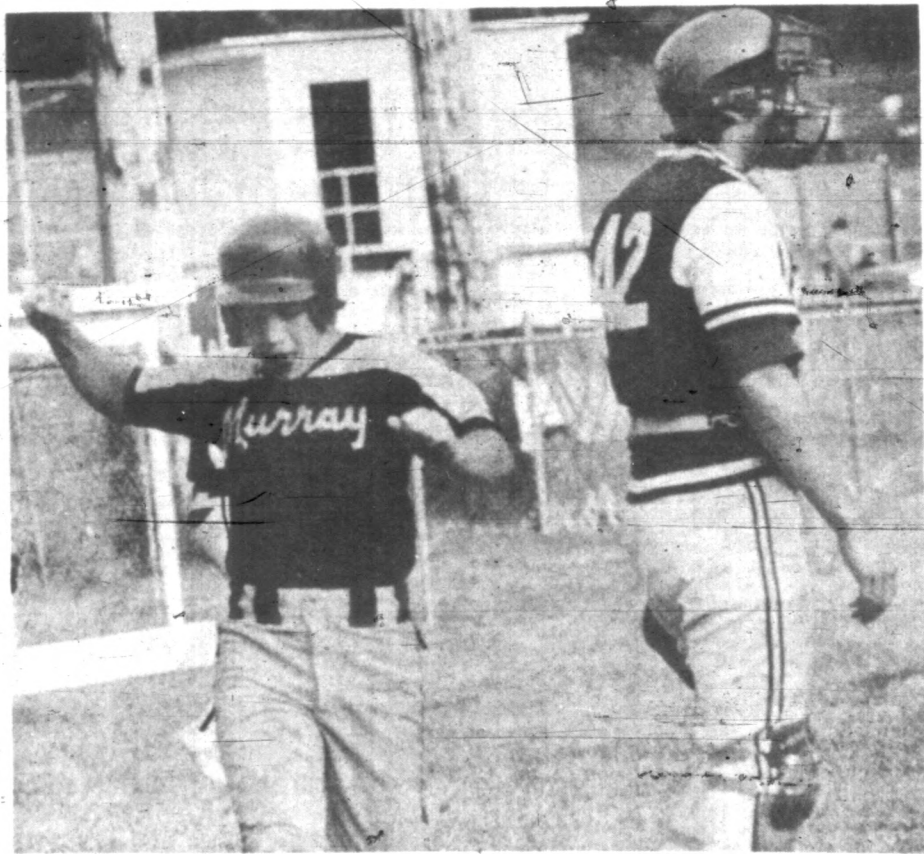

"I think the turning point of our season was our losing the district final game (to Oldham County)," said Pollett. "We went in there expecting to just show up and win, and we got beat. That straightened us up the rest of the way."

"I still can't believe we won this thing," Pollett said gleefully of Shelby County's first-ever state baseball title.

Gibbs was one of five Murray High players named to the all-tournament team. Others were Bruce Taylor, first base; Brad Taylor, shortstop; Kendall, third base; and Herndon, designated hitter.

Other members of the squad were Shelby County's Stratton (second base), Allen (outfield), Upton (outfield), Nutt (pitcher), and Paintsville's Darrell Lemaster (catcher). Stratton was named the most valuable player.

Guidry Finds Groove, Blanks Sox

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Ron Guidry volunteered for relief duty earlier this season — but he hopes to give the New York Yankees more relief now that he's found his groove as a starter.

"I feel really confident now," said the slim left-hander after one of his best efforts of the season Friday night, a 4-0, twohit beauty over the Chicago White Sox.

New York Manager Bob Lemon sees nothing but blue skies ahead for the Yankee ace.

"Guidry had five days' rest like he had all last year and he pitched like it was last year," noted Lemon.

In other American League games, Texas defeated Baltimore 4-2; Milwaukee downed Kansas City 5-4; Boston took a 5-2 decision over Minnesota; Seattle trimmed Toronto 7-2; Oakland edged Detroit 3-2 and Cleveland stopped California 7-4.

In pitching his first shutout of the season, Guidry allowed only a second-inning double by Chet Lemon and a ninth-inning single by Alan Bannister. Guidry struck out 10 and walked four.

Mickey Rivers scored the only run Guidry needed in the fourth inning. He tripled, the first hit off Francisco Barrios, and came home when Willie Randolph grounded out. Lou Piniella later hit a three-run homer for the Yankees.

"We deserved to win," Johnson said. "We felt we

Rose's Return To Riverfront Ends In Loss

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

It was a less-than-triumphant return to Cincinnati for Pete Rose as the reeling Philadelphia Phillies

Rose had said a few years back that he wanted to play the rest of his career in Cincinnati, where he was born and raised. But when the Reds thought he deserved, he played out his option and hustled his way into Philadelphia this season.

He returned to Cincinnati for the first time in an "enemy uniform" Friday night; to the city where he had spent 16 years as one of the Reds. Some of the 48,968 fans who packed Riverfront Stadium, remembered his heroics and cheered. Some remembered his departure and booed.

Before the night ended, though, the vast majority remembered their allegiance. They booed Rose more and more as the game wore on and cheered each time he made out, which was all four times he batted.

They cheered Ray Knight, who replaced Rose at third base, and Knight helped carry the Reds to a 4-2 victory that stretched the Phillies' losing streak to five games.

In the rest of the National League, Chicago shelled San Francisco 8-2, Pittsburgh edged San Diego 9-8, Houston shaded Montreal 3-2 and, in a pair of 11-inning games, St. Louis outlasted Los Angeles 8-7 and New York beat Atlanta 5-4.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Renaldo Nehemiah of Maryland, top ranked in the world, defeated archrival Greg Foster of UCLA in the 110-meter hurdles with a time of 1:51.2 seconds, the fastest electronically-timed race ever, at the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

Nehemiah's time will not be eligible for world recognition, however, because it was windaided. The allowable wind for such a race is two meters, or 4.47 miles per hour. The wind for this race at the University of Illinois was 3.45 meters, or 7.7 miles per hour.

Scott Neilson of Washington became only the second athlete in NCAA outdoor history to win the same event four times, taking the hammer throw with a toss of 237 feet, 3 inches.

Jerome Deal, a sophomore from Texas-El Paso, ran the fastest time of his career 10.19 — in edging James Sanford of Southern Cal (10.22) and Harvey Gallego of Auburn (10.22) in the 100-meter dash.

Other winners were Suleiman Nyambal of Texas-El Paso in the 10,000 meters in the meet record time of 28:01.30; Dave Laut of UCLA in the shot put at 86-11 1/2 and Larry Myricks of Mississippi College in the long jump at 26-7 1/2.

For Laut and Myricks, it was their second NCAA outdoor title.

Murray Business News Briefs

Productivity Down Nationwide

Productivity, or the output of goods and services per hour worked, among workers in Kentucky and the rest of the nation has been declining in recent years.

Between 1948 and 1968, productivity in the private business sector grew at an average rate of 3.3 percent a year. But in the inflation and recession wracked decade that followed, the annual growth rate dropped to an almost nonexistent 0.3 percent.

In the first quarter of this year, productivity fell at a startling annual rate of 4.5 percent. This terrible first quarter number, though, is likely to be revised upward somewhat as improved data becomes available.

But even if the most recent data overstate the problem, there is no question that lagging productivity is a serious long term problem for the economy.

The only way for real per capita income to rise is for each worker to produce more, and this is true whether the gain comes as a result of more efficient machinery, better management techniques, more highly skilled workers or simply people working harder.

Over the long run, wage gains that exceed productivity increases do nothing but breed inflation; without more being produced, there is no way that people, on the average, can be any better off.

The relationship between productivity growth and real income is clear. Between 1948 and 1968, real per capita disposable income grew at an average rate of just over two percent a year.

But in the past five years, huge wage gains have been devoured by inflation and the rate of real per capita income growth has fallen below one percent.

Now government officials, such as Council on Wage and Price Stability Director Barry P. Bosworth, are warning that unless something is done to improve productivity and to tame inflation, Americans can look forward to several years of stagnant, or even declining, real incomes.

"This is not a problem that can be solved by trying to expand the rate of wage increases," said Bosworth.

No one is quite sure what is behind the decline in productivity, although theories abound.

One school of thought holds that much of the problem with productivity lies not in the economy but in the statistics. The decline in productivity growth has been heavily concentrated in services industries and some economists believe that because of the difficulty in measuring the output of services, productivity is being badly understated.

For example, one would expect that the widespread adoption of automatic electronic typewriters, copying machines and computers would have produced an explosion of productivity in many services; the statistics do not show it, though.

Another problem that has hit the economy in recent years has been a massive influx of baby boom-era youths into the labor force along with a huge flow of women many of whom have been out of the job market for years. Teenagers, who tend to lack skills and to change jobs frequently, are notoriously low productivity workers, and many of the women who have re-entered the market also are short on current skills.

These factors reduce the potential productivity of the labor force, but they also are problems that will go away with time.

By the mid-1980s, most of the post-war babies will be well into their most productive years. The improving age structure of the population is likely to give us a much more productive economy, although there still will be some lean years ahead.

Selling Your Home; Buying A New One

By Dexter D. MacBride, ASA
Executive Vice President
American Society of Appraisers

Among the problems you face — and must solve — when selling your home and buying a new one, are: 1. How much is your present home worth, and, 2. What price should you pay for the new one.

Unless you are thoroughly familiar with the real estate market in both your present and proposed location, you will benefit by asking the advice of a professional appraiser. The appraiser who knows the "market place" where your home is located can give you documented evidence of the value of your property — data that will support your asking price and that can be important in dealing with purchasers and lenders.

When you are ready to buy your new home, you'll be searching for a money lender, to borrow enough to finance your purchase. Remember, you're in the market trying to buy money from a lender; the lender decides how much to lend based on an appraisal. Be sure to ask to see the lender's appraisal (you are probably paying for it).

If you feel you're not being offered enough money from the lender, you should go to other lenders. Shop around, look at the appraisals; get the best loan available.

Lenders hire appraisers for their value judgment, based on experience, expertise, professional ability. Reputable lenders select appraisers who are qualified and objective. Ask to see the lender-appraiser's qualifications (tested, designated member of a professional appraisal society?). Fair, objective lenders employ the services of professional appraisers who represent any one of the major appraisal societies in the U. S. and determine their employment on the basis of their qualifications to perform the particular assignment.

If you hire an appraiser to evaluate the home you propose to buy, you should receive a sound analysis of the home itself (structure, condition, rooms, interior equipment, energy efficient items, etc.) as well as a thorough analysis of the environment (community services such as schools, transportation, fire/police/health protection, shopping areas, sewer/water facilities; cultural and recreational facilities; related amenities) and a documented statement of the market value of the property. Such an appraisal will be worth the fee you pay for it — and may save you thousands of dollars.

SPEAKERS-DISCARDED — David Roberts and Danny Spencer of the Murray Drive-In Theater toss away speakers now that the drive-in is equipped with wireless sound.

Radio Sound Comes To Drive-In

Danny Spencer manager of the Murray Drive-In Theater and David Roberts, assistant manager, recently tossed away the antiquated sound system — for drive-in movie viewing.

Although the idea of wireless sound in theatre business is 30 years old, only in the past two years has it been perfected, stated Tommy Brown, Vice-President of the Murray Theaters.

According to Brown the Murray Drive-In Theater is one of the first in this area to use "radio sound."

For the Murray Drive-In Theater it was an economic move. "Radio sound" eliminates speaker replacement and maintenance. For our customers it means greater fidelity, quality, and convenience, according to Mr. Brown.

"Radio Sound" is received on frequency 5.30 on your car AM radio. Simply park your car in the desired position on the drive-in lot as usual, turn your ignition switch to accessory position and tune-in 5.30 on your AM radio.

Brown stated that all cars since 1963 are equipped with solid state radios which eliminates battery drain. A demonstration of "radio sound" revealed that reception is limited to the parking area. You cannot receive the movie audio signal after you leave the premises.

Brown added, ramps one and two will remain with the usual speakers for vehicles that are not radio equipped.

OUTDOOR LORE

Dan Grimes, Murray, caught this eight pound six ounce bass in Ledbetter creek on Kentucky Lake, Wednesday May 23. Grimes was fishing with the camera man for B.A.S.S., Ron Wright, when he caught the lunker. Grimes was fishing a Shallow Wee R, in the crawfish color.

Outdoor Scene

By Mary Barrow

Don Curd and Preston (Pattersons) Barrett, both of Murray, brought in 10 bass and six crappie Sunday, May 20. But Curd out fished Barrett.

Hubert Barrow, Murray, fished out of Cypress Springs Dock Thursday May 24, and came in with his limit of bass.

Jackie Byerly, Jim and Fran Hammons, all of Murray, fished the ledges on Blood River Monday May 28, and came in with 27 crappie and eight sauger. The largest of the sauger was a three pounder.

Leon and Myrtle Boyd, Murray, took Buddy and Donnie fishing Wednesday May 23, to show them how and boated four limits, 240 crappie.

Ruble and Laverne Thurman, Murray, have really had some good days lately. Monday and Tuesday May 21, 22, they came in with 97 crappie after fishing on Barkley Lake. Thursday May 31, the Thurmans fished Energy and brought in 21 large crappie.

A report from Cypress Springs Resort says the fish seem to be moving back to deeper water. Crappie and bass seem to be spotty, several sauger and stripes are being caught.

URW Local 665 and General Tire will hold a team tournament out of the old air strip on Kentucky Lake Saturday May 9.

Terry Yarbrough, Murray, was fishing out of Cypress Springs Dock, Wednesday May 30, and came in with seven bass with the largest going about three pounds and eight ounces.

Gary Marquardt and Truman Whitfield, both of Murray, were fishing on Barkley Lake Wednesday May 30, and brought in four bass. Marquardt said that the fishing on Barkley was still a little tough.

Kenneth McCuiston, Murray, brought in six bass Wednesday May 30 out of Cypress Creek.

Bass Casters Association will be holding their high-low tournament out of Kenlake Marina, Aurora, Friday and Saturday June 8, 9. The highs are the pros and the lows are the amateurs. Entry fee for the highs is $150 and the lows $50. A man that is high and a man that is low will be paired together.

Jerry Maupin's Fishing Line

If you were able to get on the main lake this past week you should have caught fish of some kind. The current has finally slowed to its regular speed and many of the deep water drop-offs had fish that were hungry.

Sauger would rank the most promising right now since they are bottom feeders and are long past their spawning period.

I have been doing best on the deep running lures by rebel. Color changes were not needed unless the cloud cover changed a lot. If you experiment with colors I think you will be very surprised to learn that fish do have a preference most of the time.

Try fishing the edges where the breaks have 5 to 10 foot drops and are sharply defined on a locator. You may not be able to see the fish since they are against these breaks.

Many times a large minnow or jig bounced along by casting deep and retrieving to the shallow side will produce heavy strings of sauger, crappie and white bass.

The wind would be the main factor if you are on the main lake. A lot of people use the wind to drift from one spot to another, having lines set at different depths until one catches a fish.

I talked with Dave Maupin Friday morning and learned that he, his brother Don, and probably their dad J.C., caught some super nice slab crappie over the holiday weekend. They fished several different places before fish were located and when they had the pattern worked out it was a fast shuffle. Caught some the next day too!

The bluegill are really bedding on Barkley now so if you have any favorite haunts grab a box of crickets and head out!

I think they will run larger the next couple of years in both lakes but Barkley has a slight edge.

I really like to use ultra light tackle on these rascals once I get them located.

I remember fishing with Willie Jackson and the late Dennis Taylor and will never forget their description of a good bluegill. Dennis had said many times "a good one is one you have to squeeze against your breast to remove the hook because you can't reach around him." They were the best I ever had the pleasure of fishing with.

My personal thanks to Hal and Mary Barrow and their sons for their help tagging fish during the K.B.A. tournament. Mighty fine folks the county needs to have.

With the warmer temperatures you should remember to keep all gas tanks shaded, as much as possible and prevent dangerous leaks caused by the expanding gases.

HAPPY FISHING!

During the recent B.A.S.S. Tournament held out of Kenlake Marina, several of the wives of the members of the Murray Bass Club helped with the score board. Ladies helping were Peggy Hendon, Valerie Hendon, Brenda Gilbert, Lorraine Maggard, Sandra Grimes. The children helped in several different ways and they were, Gidget Vaughn, Mary Ann Gilbert, Ricky Nelson, Jason Grimes and Chris Jenkins.

Murray Bass Club held a club tournament out of Cypress Springs Dock Sunday May 27. The winners were, left to right: Graves Morris, first place with nine pounds six ounces; Don A. Jones, second place with six pounds four ounces; Neil Stubblefield, third place with four pounds 12 ounces; Larry Ryan, fourth place with four pounds eight ounces. Morris also won Big Bass with a lunker weighing four pounds.

Murray Coast Guard

Auxiliary Involved In National

Safe Boating Week June 2-9

The week of June 2-9 has, by proclamation, been designated as National Safe Boating Week. The Murray Flotilla of the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary is involved with assisting in this program to help bring an increased awareness on the part of the public of the need for the development of safe boating procedures related to recreational boating.

The coast guard auxiliary, of which the Murray Flotilla is a part, is a volunteer, non-military organization established by congress to promote recreational boating in the United States. It has no legal or law enforcement authority and works to achieve its purposes through three basic programs: the courtesy marine examination (CME), public education and operations programs.

Operations: To assist the U. S. Coast Guard, members of the Murray Flotilla perform safety patrols, rescue and assistance missions, patrols for regattas and marine events. These operations are often performed in conjunction with regular Coast Guard units.

Public Education: Each year the Murray Flotilla offers to the public a wide array of boating safety courses, each tailored to a specific need. They include 1, 3, 7, or 13 lesson courses. Area Recreational boaters are urged to contact the Murray Flotilla for information concerning these offerings. Special courses for children are included.

Courtesy Marine Examinations: During National Safe Boating Week the Murray Flotilla is urging the public to take advantage of this area of Auxiliary service, even though it is available throughout the boating season. These examinations are carried out by specially trained members of the Flotilla upon request and/or consent of the owner or operator.

It consists of a check of the boat's safety equipment covering both the federal and state law and certain additional criteria for safety which have been adopted by the auxiliary. Boats meeting these criteria are awarded the respected auxiliary CME "Seal of Safety."

If a boat does not pass the examination the owner is advised of the deficiencies and NO REPORT is made to any law enforcement official. This examination is in effect a form of boater education—a one to one exchange of boating safety information.

In 1978 the Coast Guard has estimated that there are over 14 million recreational motor boats. There were 1,321 reported fatal accidents.

These figures demonstrate the need for greater vigilance and awareness of all aspects of boating safety. Persons interested in any of the programs of the auxiliary are urged to become involved if eligible. Information may be obtained by calling Flotilla Commander Richard W. Farrell at 753-2214 or Division Captain Shirley Johnson at 436-2399.

Kenneth McCuiston, left and Terry Yarbrough both of Murray, brought in a nice string of bass Sunday, May 20. The two were fishing out of Cypress Springs Dock and had fifteen bass totaling twenty-three pounds. The largest of the string weighed in at four pounds eight ounces. The fish were caught on spinner baits and worms, in the shallow water.

Teaching Your Child To Fish

Watching the excited antics of youngsters when they catch their first fish is a priceless experience.

In a 1976 survey (conducted by Sports Network) of Americans' attitudes toward fishing, two facts emerged.

— More than 75 percent of today's anglers began to fish before age 12.

— Most of these anglers were introduced to the sport by a parent or close relative. Fishing brings families closer together. At a time when social pressures seem to be pulling parents and children apart, the togetherness of the sport increases its value. Fishing also serves as an education medium. It illustrates the delicate balance of the environment by involving children as participants in the "food chain." At the same time, fishing generates a respect and awareness for the beauty and irreplaceability of our great outdoors.

When teaching a child to fish follow these tips:

— Don't force them! They can't be experts at casting like their parents. . . give them time and encouragement.

— Remember your daughters! Over 20 million women fish in the U.S. today. . . fishing is not an exclusive father-son sport.

— Review equipment care and maintenance! The sport is more fun when rods and reels are kept in top shape and lines and lures neatly stored without tangles.

— Choose comfortable clothing! Anticipate a shower or warm spell with an alternate change of clothing if necessary.

— Use simple methods! Start them off with spin casting outfits for bluegill.

— Keep the action going! You can create momentum and excitement with some sure-fire nibbles. Start by dunking worms to attract yellow perch or flounder.

— Let them do their own fishing! Half the fun is the challenge and the sense of accomplishment when landing the fish.

— So, let them take the spotlight alone.

— Take time to listen! Fishing provides a golden opportunity to share quite intimate moments, secrets, and thoughts with your child. . . relax and let them happen.

Learning to fish together will be educational for both you and your child. No child is too young or parent too old to begin sharing in this all-American family sport.

Remember, only you can prevent forest fires.

I can't.

'Maximum Production' To Reestablish Geese

Question: how do you reestablish a flock of wild geese in seven states which, until recent years, was thought to be extinct in the wild?

"Maximum production," John H. Ellis responded. Ellis is supervisor of a new wildlife propagation center at Land Between the Lakes, and if his project is successful, the haunting call of the geese will be a familiar sound throughout the Tennessee Valley.

The bird in question is the giant Canada goose, branta canadensis maxima if you're a biologist, and it's the largest in the Canada goose family (16-20 pounds). Prior to the European settlement of America the bird was widespread throughout the interior of the continent. It nested from mid-Canada to Tennessee and from Ohio to the Rockies.

But the giant Canada, like the buffalo, could not adapt to the encroachment of man. Its number dropped drastically until it was believed extinct in the wild. (A few lived in captivity.) Waterfowl biologists were surprised when a small flock of wild giant Canadas were found in Minnesota in 1962.

The reestablishment of the giant Canada throughout its former range became a goal of biologists in the mid-South. Small breeding flocks were reared and planted throughout the region. The largest and most successful of these efforts is the 4,000 goose flock on Old Hickory Lake near Nashville, Tenn. Seed birds for this flock came from a private waterfowl breeder named John H. Ellis.

"At the time I was running a family shoe store in Hartford, Connecticut," Ellis said. But he was also a serious waterfowl breeder, and his private collection of ducks, geese and swans — 112 species — was the largest in the world.

"I started raising waterfowl when I was a 14 year old kid. I hatched and raised a Canada goose under the kitchen stove at home, and I've been at it ever since," Ellis continued. He talked about trips to Canada and the Arctic for collection and study purposes, of his close association with other breeders and biologists. The hobby was consuming in interest.

Meanwhile, the Tennessee Valley Authority, under its mandate to develop the region's natural resources, decided to jump headlong into bringing the giant Canada back to seven states it serves. The starter flock in Tennessee was one of the earlier efforts. The new Duncan Bay Wildlife Propagation Center is the latest and most advanced.

Artificial hatching of giant Canada geese at LBL's wildlife propagation center causes re-nesting by adult birds and increased flock production. This gosling, 30 minutes old, will be moved into a wire and pen until its feathers out.

"I came to the point where I had to make some big changes in my business or get out altogether. I'd always wanted to make my living working with birds, so I sold my business, heard about his new TVA facility, made contact..."

And soon Ellis was on the Land Between the Lakes payroll. "This facility (at Duncan Bay) is probably the best propagation center in the country," he judged. He described the center. "We have a 30 acre pen fenced six feet above ground and two feet underground. Also, around the top of the fence is a electrified strand of barbed wire which keeps out predators." A breeding flock of 45 pairs of giant Canadas are kept in the pen. (The birds' wing feathers are clipped to prevent their airborne escape.) The grassy penned area includes 4 small lakes.

Adjacent to the pen is a 50x150 ft. building where the incubating, hatching and raising processes are carried out. Four large incubators and hatching racks give life to the young geese, and then they're transferred to wire pens.

The eggs incubate for 20-30 days at 99.5 degrees. Then, at the pipping stage they're transferred into the hatcher where the temperature is a half degree lower, Ellis explained. He said mama geese sits a little lighter (and the temperature drops slightly) when the eggs are ready to hatch.

"Then the goslings are raised on wire and water until they feather. With this system our mortality is next to nothing," Ellis continued.

But why all the fuss? Why not let the geese hatch and raise their own young?

That's where Ellis' "maximum production" comes in. If the nests are robbed, the geese will re-nest in approximately two weeks. And most will re-nest a third time. Thus, through the egg collection, artificial hatching process, the breeding flock of geese produce almost three times the number of goslings than they would if left alone. This spring Ellis' flock will produce 450-500 young geese. These birds will be raised to stocking size and then distributed throughout the Tennessee Valley.

Ellis and his wildlife aides are also working with other birds. They're collecting and hatching eggs from LBL's "home flock" of geese, some 52 pairs of wild birds that stay in the Honker's Lake, Energy Lake, Duncan Bay region. All geese hatched from home flock eggs are released right in LBL, and the flock is expected to show dramatic gains. Also, bluewing teal are being raised at the center. In a special fly pen, Ellis has 40 pairs of teal which have already produced 150 eggs for the incubator.

In the next ten years Ellis foresees continuation of present projects and an increase in work with other rare species for release into the wild.

What about the geese Ellis raises? "They have a very high social order," the biologist said. "They mate for life; there are no divorces, but if a mate is lost, the partner will remate almost immediately." He said geese could live a natural life of up to 40 years. The birds must be three years old before they mate. They're good parents, and often the family stays together during migrations.

"But the Canadas we're raising won't migrate. They might move a little in response to harsh conditions, but this is their home. This is where they were born and raised," Ellis said most waterfowl migrate north, in spring simply because that's their home, where they want to hatch their young.

And why all the effort to raise and transplant the giant Canadas? "Well, it's for two purposes: observation and hunting," Ellis stated. "People like to see these birds, and they like to hunt them. Transplanted geese can serve both needs."

The man's job is time consuming and intense. So what does he do in spare time to relax? "I've moved just outside Murray and bought 15 acres where I'm setting up my own pen. I'll be studying the breeding and nesting habits of brant, and I'm going to Alaska this summer to collect my species."

Some folks just love waterfowl.

Unclaimed Dogs Being Destroyed At Shelter After County Rabies Outbreak

RICHMOND, Ky. (AP) — Unclaimed dogs at the City-County Canine Shelter here are being destroyed after seven days confinement in an effort to curb a rabies outbreak in Madison County.

Barbara Donahue, director of the shelter, said Friday in a telephone interview she considered the action "cruel, inhumane," but unavoidable.

"I wish I could do more, but I can't," Ms. Donahue said. "I have to follow orders. For the public safety, we have to do it."

The shelter had only 12 dogs in confinement Friday.

"We put 106 dogs to sleep day before yesterday (Wednesday) and I cried all day long," Ms. Donahue said. "I've got seven dogs of my own and I just can't stand the thought of having to destroy these dogs."

"It took me a couple of days to swallow the pill and realize I had to do it. There's nothing else we can do, but that doesn't mean I have to like it."

Adoptions will be suspended for six months "because dogs can carry the rabies virus for six months and they (health officials) just don't want to take any chances," Ms. Donahue said.

"I'm not happy at all about it," she said. "I'm an animal lover. We're condemning every stray."

Ed Chenault, chairman of Madison Fiscal Court's canine board, said suspension of adoptions was advised by Dr. Joseph Skaggs, assistant director of the state Bureau of Health Services' Division of Preventive Services.

"We couldn't afford to sell someone a dog with the virus," Chenault said.

The decision was made in a meeting last week of Chenault, Skaggs and employees of the county health department. A five-point guideline, detailing actions to be taken by anyone sustaining an animal bite, also was drafted for the public.

"The three agencies that met felt that time was of the essence," Chenault said. "The whole scheme of this thing (the guideline) is to designate everybody's responsibility."

We have done what should have been done months ago."

At least four persons members of a Berea family were undergoing a series of rabies shots after their pet dog became rabid, he said.

Ms. Donahue said 15 animals in the county had been confirmed rabid through Friday and euthanization of dogs at the shelter was necessary.

Three shows will be presented during the premiere season of PART. Performances will be on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings in the air-conditioned University Theatre in the Price Doyle Fine Arts Center on the campus, beginning June 14.

The company will open with Leonard Gershe's delightful and warm comedy, "Butterflies Are Free," which will play June 14-15-16 and June 21-22-23. It is the story of a young man who attempts to strike out on his own and leave the safety and security of home and a very caring parent.

The second show, "Star Spangled Girl," is an award-winning Broadway play by Neil Simon, one of America's most beloved comic writers. Theatregoers will remember his play entitled "The Odd Couple," which was a successful television series for several years.

"Star Spangled Girl" is a witty situation comedy about young people attempting to publish a protest magazine. It will play July 5-6-7 and July 12-13-14.

"Goodbye Charlie" by George Axelrod will top off the first summer season of PART July 19-20-21 and July 26-27-28. The two-act comedy typifies the hilarious life style of Californians in the Malibu area and brings together a wild assortment of characters guaranteed to provoke laughter.

Curtain time for all performances is 8 p.m.

Season coupon books, which sell for $6, include three coupons which can be used individually for each of the three shows or all for one show. Tickets on the night of performances will be $2.50.

Funeral Services To Be Monday For Author Giles

CAMPBELLSVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Funeral services will be held Monday for prominent Kentucky author Janice Holt Giles, whose historical novels have sold more than 3 million copies.

Mrs. Giles, 74, died Friday in Taylor County Hospital here.

A native of Arkansas, Mrs. Giles had written more than 20 books, with the best known being "Forty Acres and a Mule."

She made her home in Adair County with her husband Henry, also an author.

Mrs. Giles worked in religious education in Arkansas for the Christian Church there and briefly at the First Christian Church at Frankfort, Ky., before becoming secretary to the dean of the Louisville Presbyterian Seminary in 1941.

While still at the seminary, in 1946, she began writing her first novel, "The Enduring Hills," which was accepted for publication in 1949.

She married Henry Giles in 1945 and later built a log house on Giles' Ridge at Knifely, Ky., near here on land that had been in the Giles family for four generations.

"In a world where everything has become blurred and the sharp issues of life have lost their distinctive values, wrong is still wrong on the ridge, elementally and powerfully wrong. And right is right, eternally, everlastingly and unquestionably right," she said in describing the influence of the land in "The Enduring Hills."

"The people there still walk in freedom, in moral rectitude, in honor and integrity," she wrote.

Despite the long list and great success of her books, Mrs. Giles once said she was pessimistic about the literary value of her work.

"I'm just a good storyteller, and that is about it," she said.

Survivors include her husband; a daughter; three grandchildren and a sister.

Vote Recanvass Is Under Way

IRVINE, Ky. (AP) — A vote recanvass is under way in the race for Republican nomination for the 84th House District.

Unofficial returns from Tuesday's election showed that Lloyd McKinney of Jackson County won the nomination by three votes over Clarence Nowland of Estill County, who asked that ballots be rechecked.

Officials said a recanvass of Jackson County votes failed to alter the outcome there, with McKinney getting 983 votes and Nowland receiving 341.

The recanvass in Estill and Madison counties will be made as quickly as possible, officials said.

ENROLLMENT DOWN WASHINGTON (AP) — A four percent drop in enrollment has been reported at state universities and land-grant colleges in the current academic year.

The decline was reported by the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, which said the total dipped from 3,362,846 in 1977 to 3,223,948 in the fall of 1978.

So far, his only traffic problems have come from warships.

The Bluegrass and Louisville auto clubs' weekly fuel gauge survey shows 52 percent of the stations expect to be open Sunday and 14 percent are expected to stay on a 24-hour, 7-day a week schedule. The survey shows a three to seven percent drop in gasoline availability in evening hours with 36 percent of the stations along major highways now closing by 6 p.m. on Saturday and 58 percent closing by 8 p.m. weekdays.

The possibility of motorists encountering spot shortages continues with 12 percent of stations surveyed reporting out of one or more grades.

The survey also shows the cost of gasoline went up an average of one cent a gallon the last week. The average price at full service pumps is now 83.6 cents for regular, 88.9 for premium and 87.4 for no-lead. At self-service stations, prices are 1 1/2 to four cents lower with the average being 78.8 cents for regular, 88.4 for premium and 83.3 for no-lead. Diesel fuel jumped another 2 cents the last week — and averages 79.9 per gallon.
