OBSERVE FOURTH

WITH PATRIOTIC EXERCISES AT SADLER'S GROVE.

Great Crowd Was Present.—Program
Given Under Auspices of Western Kentucky Soldiers' Association.

The crowd that gathered at Sadler's Grove, on July 4, was enormous. The day was appropriately celebrated by the Western Kentucky Soldiers' Association. The program was opened with vocal music, after which Dr. McCord offered a prayer. Judge W. T. Fowler delivered an eloquent oration suitable to the occasion. This was followed by an excellent skit by the company of which were taken to the grove on hay wagons. There were interesting recitations by Misses Carrie Johnson, Mary Underwood, Pearl and Ruby White, Willie White and Johnnie Renshaw. A patriotic oration by James Breathitt, Jr., aroused much enthusiasm. "He can beat his daddy speaking," somebody yelled. Polk Canister, in his happiest vein, related the history of Co. G, 17th Kentucky Infantry. A basket dinner was served on the grass.

The Western Kentucky Association of ex-Federal soldiers was organized July 4, 1892, for the purpose of promoting loyalty, fraternity and patriotism. Its first president was A. H. Anderson, of this city, and its initial meeting was held at Chalybeate Springs. Since the organization's annual meetings have been held on each succeeding 4th of July. The one Wednesday was one of the best attended and most successful in the history of the association. Wesley Witty was elected president and C. A. Brasher, secretary, for the ensuing year.

James Younglove Dead.

(From Thursday's Daily)

James Younglove died yesterday afternoon at his home in Paducah, aged about forty years. A widow and two children survive him. He was a brother of George and Charles Younglove, and lived in Hopkinsville when he was a youth. The remains will be brought to this city and the interment will take place in Hopewell cemetery, from George Younglove's residence, tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

A Tragic Finish.

A watchman's neglect permitted a leak in the great North Sea dyle, which a child's finger could have stopped, to become a ruinous break, devastating an entire province of Holland. In like manner Kenneth McIver, of Vanceboro, Me., permitted a little cold to go unnoticed until a tragic finish was only averted by Dr. King's New Discovery. He writes: "Three doctors gave me up to die of lung inflammation, caused by a neglected cold; but Dr. King's New Discovery saved my life. Guaranteed best cough and cold cure, at L. L. Elgin, Anderson & Fowler, Inc., Cook & Higgins drug store, 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free."

Twenty Year Battle.

"I was a loser in a twenty year battle with chronic piles and malignant sores, until I tried Bucklen's Arnica Salve; which turned the tide by curing both, till not a trace remains," writes A. M. Bruce, of Farmville, Va. Best for old Ulcers, Cuts, Burns and Wounds. 25c at L. L. Elgin, Anderson & Fowler, Inc., Cook & Higgins, druggists.

CHAT ABOUT PEOPLE AND THINGS

I. With every nerve
At utmost strain,
Looks indicate
Some mortal pain;

II. Eyes flashing hope
Mixed with despair,
Her being breathes
Excited prayer;

III. 'Tis but a hiss
When'er she speaks,
A hectic flush
Surmounts her cheeks;

IV. Her face aflame
And molars clenched,
In perspiration
She is drenched;

V. A gasp of joy
Exultant cries!!
She's nearly dead
But's won the prize!

E. S. Long, of Hopkinsville, who was appointed United States deputy internal revenue collector of the sixth division, Second district, in place of William Jones, resigned, arrived in the city this morning and assumed the duties of his office at once, says the Henderson Journal. He will make Henderson his headquarters.

Mrs. L. P. Gerhart, formerly Miss Carrie Bryan, of this city, sustained a severe injury a day or two ago at her home in Clarksville. While going down stairs at her home on Franklin street, she slipped and fell, and injured her right foot so that she will be unable to be out for several weeks.

John P. Burnett, who has been confined to his home on South Main street for ten days, is doing well and will soon be out. He severely sprained his ankle while stepping from a train.

At the last meeting of Hopkinsville lodge No. 545, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, Lucian H. Davis was elected esteemed lecturing knight, vice James O. Cook resigned.

There will be no meeting of the As You Like It club Friday.

Judge Breathitt has received the following strangely indited card from Dawson Springs: "Straed from dawson spring, Ky. One Sarle poney, three years ole with stair in forehead any infumation leading to her abouts will be rewarded She is a chestnut sarle.
"Please stick this card up."

Miss Bettie Hopper lectured last night in Henderson county to the ladies of the Pleasant Valley Christian church, in the interest of the Women's Home Mission of Kentucky. Her subject was "Our Work in the Mountains."

Charles McPherson will leave next Monday for Philadelphia where he will make his home. He is one of the most popular boys in the city and his departure will be regretted by many friends.

Lawson Flack, who is quite ill at his home on South Main street, is better today.

E. A. Cottrell will occupy the pulpit at the Baptist church next Sunday morning.

Rev. Father Welsh, of St. Peter and St. Paul's church, was in Bowling Green last week attending the silver jubilee of Rev. Father Hayes at St. Joseph's church. Bishop McCloskey presided, and there was a large concourse of visiting priests, together with many prominent Catholics.

The demand for dog tags continues unabated. Up to 10 o'clock this morning 228 tags, meaning $228 to the city treasury, had been sold and there was still heavy demand for the little bit of brass which meant life and liberty to the canines. Almost before the duplicate order for the second hundred tags had reached the stamping works, this amount had been sold so another rush order was at once sent off for the third hundred, thus far eclipsing anything of the kind ever known in Hopkinsville. It is not known what caused the increased demand unless it is that the owners of the dogs, after reading the disclosures in regard to the packing houses, feared that their pets would be inclosed in tin unless they bore the insignia of the city's protection.

A druggist stated yesterday that never before in his history as a druggist had there been so many sufferers from poison ivy, or poison oak, as it is more generally known. He declared that great numbers of people were afflicted with the terrible itching and burning watery blisters, caused by getting the juice of the vine on the skin, and that it was proving harder to cure than usual. It is also in a more violent form, in many cases causing the affected parts to swell to an alarming degree and in other cases of arms to be carried in slings. Remedies which usually proved a specific for the trouble have failed utterly, and anything which promises the least relief is having a ready sale.

Frank Bell, city editor of the Memphis Commercial Appeal, one of the South's greatest newspapers, is in the city to spend a well-earned vacation. Mr. Bell is rendering splendid service on the paper, and despite the immense amount of desk and routine work that must be attended to, finds time for frequent excellent contributions to the editorial columns, an occasional poem and feature stories.

Aubrey Tuggle, who sprained his ankle last week while visiting in Lexington, has so far recovered that he resigned his position at T. M. Jones' store today.

Dr. A. C. Layne, formerly of this city, and who is here now on a visit, will locate soon in Pittsburg, where he will practice the profession of osteopathy.

Mrs. N. S. West was the hostess of a delightful Independence Day entertainment at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James D. Hill, on East Seventh street. The interior of the hospitable home was decorated in national colors and flags. There was a clever guessing contest, the answers of which contained plays on the words, red, white and blue. The first prize, a box of candies, was awarded to Miss Annie Taylor, of Springfield, Tenn., and the consolation prize, a pack of firecrackers, was captured by Mrs. H. D. Smith. Elegant refreshments, the ices being in red, white and blue and the cakes having tiny flags, were served. While the guests were assembling a charming musical program was rendered.

A decree of divorce was granted at the recent term of the circuit court to Mrs. Elizabeth Mason Watts from her husband, Dr. Harry W. Watts, on her petition filed several months ago. The decree is absolute and also restores the plaintiff to her maiden name.

JULY 4 VICTIM.

Yardmaster Cofer Injured by Fragment of a Torpedo.

Foster Cofer, yardmaster of the L. & N. railroad, was painfully injured yesterday morning. He was on the switch engine, which ran over a railroad torpedo, which had been found by some small boys and placed on the track in a spirit of fun. There was a loud explosion and a fragment of the torpedo tore a hole in Mr. Cofer's right leg, below the knee. The injured member was promptly attended to by physicians, but Mr. Cofer will be confined to his home several weeks.

ESCAPE FROM JAIL

FOUR TODD COUNTY PRISONERS
LEAVE THE ELKTON PRISON.

Burgess, Noted for Bunco Work, is Among the Missing.—Blood-hounds Sent For.

(From Saturday's Daily)
J. W. Burgess, who is well known in Hopkinsville, made his escape from the jail at Elkton last night in which he was confined on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. In some manner Burgess got hold of saws and cut his way out through the window. Three negroes who were in jail on minor charges, escaped at the same time. The escape was not discovered until this morning and immediately the officers telephoned here for bloodhounds with which an attempt will be made to track the fugitives. It is supposed that Burgess and the negroes got away about 2 o'clock this morning.

Whiffs of Pennyrite!

ABOUT PEOPLE AND THINGS

Dear Little Maid.

Dear little maid in tears, in tears—
Dark is the day and leaden the hours;
Caroling of birds but tuneless jeers,
Fled, the fragrance and fairness of flowers!
Behold twin streaks
On damask cheeks,
Sorrowful signs of ocular showers.
Dear little maid with pout and frown—
Robbing Arcadia of part of its bliss,
Say, what is weighing thy spirits down?
Surely a world full of woe is in this;
Let us be drying
Eyes of their crying;
Ah! Now for a smile, and—there is a kiss!
Dear little maid! O wonders I see!
Azure the sky and perfumed the air;
Happiness hums overhead with the bee
Of days that are golden this is most rare.
What magic is this?
A smile and a kiss—
Life, laughter and loving abound everywhere!

—Pennyrite.

STRANGER.—A tall gentleman of intellectual mien and rather classic features, and whose gray eyes twinkled behind rimless nose-glasses, has been smiling howdy-does at citizens he met on the street. And they, courteously returning the salutations, wondered all the while when and where they had ever met the nice-looking stranger. He is Dr. Frank Stites, who for many years has concealed his countenance behind a luxuriant bunch of Populist whiskers. Since he has shaved many of his best friends have failed to recognize him.

MURPHEY.—Prof. Ernest J. Murphey will leave next week for San Francisco, from which place he will sail for the Philippine Islands, says the Pembroke Journal. He has a civil service appointment as a teacher in the islands. His appointment is for a term of two years and he does not expect to return to this country until the expiration of the term. Mr. Murphey is splendidly equipped for the work he is about to enter.

POPULAR.—The six best selling books in New York this week are as follows:

"Coniston"—Winston Churchill.
"Lady Betty Across the Water"—C. and A. M. Williamson.
"The Spoilers"—Rex E. Beach.
"The Jungle"—Upton Sinclair.
"Fenwick's Career"—Mrs. Humphry Ward.
"Pam Decides"—Bettina von Hutton.
All of these books are in the Hopkinsville public library.

CIRCUS.—The I. C. officials have received the "movement" of the John Robinson shows; the big circus which comes here the middle of next month.

The shows will leave Mayfield for Paducah July 13th and from Paducah to Hopkinsville July 14th. The circus will spend Sunday here and give two exhibitions Monday, July 10. It consists of the following rolling stock: 46 cars, three advertising, 10 passenger coaches 11 stock and 22 flat cars.

AWFUL.—The Paducah Register contributes the following verse to the new famous Packertown linericks which the New Era recently set in motion:

Mary had a little black cat
Afflicted with the mange;
One day he was shot,
Plunged into the pot,
And appeared as "choice Melange."

DICK MILLER DEAD

ONE OF KENTUCKY'S MOST PROMISING YOUNG STATESMEN.

Paralysis was the Cause of His Demise.—Was a Candidate for Congress in His District.

RICHMOND, Ky., June 30.—The Hon. R. W. Miller, representative from Madison county in legislature and one of the most distinguished young statesmen in Kentucky, died here last night. Miller was 37 years old. He graduated at Centre college, Danville, and in 1897 was made dean of the law school of that university. Miller was candidate for speaker at the last session of the general assembly of Kentucky and after his defeat was a leader of the minority. He was a candidate for congress in his district, subject to the victim of the Democratic party.

AFTER CONTROL

Of Louisville Tobacco Warehouse is A. D. Rodgers.

LOUISVILLE, June 29.—A. D. Rodgers, a representative of eastern capitalists, is seeking to secure options on a controlling interest in the stock of the Louisville Tobacco Warehouse company. Mr. Rodgers said last night that it was true he had approached several of the largest stockholders with a view to securing options on their holdings, but he refused to say how successful his efforts had been. He was very reticent to divulge what interests he represented, but said he would probably have something for publication in a few days.

Whose Say-so is Best?

With nearly all medicines put up for sale through druggists, one has to take the maker's say-so alone as to their curative value. Of course, such testimony is not that of a disinterested party and accordingly is not to be given the same credit as if written from disinterested motives. Dr. Pierce's medicines, however, form a single and therefore striking exception to this rule. Their claims to the confidence of invalids does not rest solely upon their makers' say-so or praise. Their ingredients are matters of public knowledge, being printed on each separate bottle wrapper. Thus invalid sufferers are taken into Dr. Pierce's full confidence. Scores of leading medical men have written enough to fill volumes in praise of the curative value of the several ingredients entering into these well-known medicines.

Amongst these writers we find such medical lights as Prof. Emily Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago; Prof. Hays of the same city; Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., late of Cincinnati, Ohio; Prof. Dr. Grover, M. D., late of Cincinnati, Ohio; John King, M. D., of New York; Dr. Bartholow of Jefferson Medical College, of Pa., and scores of others equally eminent.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the worst cases of female weakness, prostrates, nervousness and restores and corrects irregularities, cures painful periods, dries up discharges and weakens drains, sometimes known as pelvic catarrh and a multitude of other diseases peculiar to women. Bear in mind it is not a patent medicine but the "Favorite Prescription" of a regular, educated physician, of large experience in the cure of women's peculiar ailments, who frankly and confidently takes his patients into his full confidence by telling them just what his "Prescription" is composed of. Of no other medicine put up for women's special maladies and sold through druggists, can it be said that the maker is not afraid to deal thus frankly, openly and honorably, by letting every patient using the same know exactly what she is taking.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is guarded as sacredly secret and womanly confidences are protected by professional privacy. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

How to preserve health and beauty is told in Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Advisor. It is free. For a paper-covered copy send Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 21 one-cent stamps to cover mailing only. In cloth binding 31 stamps.

AMERICANS KILLED

EXPRESS TRAIN PLUNGED FROM TRACK IN ENGLAND

Twenty Persons From New York Are Dead and Others Are Badly Injured.

SALISBURY, Eng., July 2.—Driving at a mad pace over the London Southern Railway, the American Line Express carrying 43 of the steamer New York's passengers from Plymouth to London, plunged from the track just after passing the station here and mangled to death in its wreckage twenty-three passengers who sailed from New York June 23 and four of the trainmen. Besides those to whom death came speedily, a dozen persons were injured, some of them seriously.

The dead include Frederick Henry Cossitt, Dudley P. Harding, the Rev. E. L. King, Toronto; Frank W. Koch, John E. McDonald, the noted race horse man, and C. F. McMeekin, a large stockbreeder, of Lexington, Ky. Charles Sentell and William Mayor McClellan had a narrow escape. The train was going over sixty miles an hour when the "smash-up" came.

WHAT CONGRESS DID

LIST OF IMPORTANT MEASURES—PASSED AND LOST.

Staggering Amount of Appropriations.—President Goes to Oyster Bay to Spend the Summer.

Washington, D. C., July 2.—Promptly at ten o'clock Saturday night Vice President Fairbanks in the house declared the final adjournment of the first session of the 59th Congress.

The following measures were passed during the seven months session: Railroad rate bill. Meat inspection measure. Pure food law. Investigation ordered of the transportation of coal and oil. Lock canal for Panama and $39,000,000 to continue work.

Admitting Oklahoma and Indian Territory as a state and allowing Arizona and New Mexico to vote on it. Tax taken off denatured alcohol. Uniform and more strict method of naturalizing enacted.

The immunity of witnesses from prosecution who give testimony before government tribunals restricted.

One million three hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars for Jamestown exposition in sundry civil bill.

Consular service given a complete new legal status, which will permit of an entire re-organization.

"The largest battleship afloat" authorized, but plans must be sent to congress at its next session.

Law defining and punishing hazing.

The annual appropriation for the state militia doubled.

Bill intended to preserve the scenic beauty of Niagara falls.

Tariff to be collected by the Philippine government on goods entering the island trade revised.

Employers liability law for railroad and other employees engaged in hazardous employment.

Speedy appropriations for San Francisco sufferers, including $52,500,000 and supplies from government stores.

Nearly $900,000,000 of appropriations.

The following measures failed of passage: Reduction of tariff on Philippine products.

Ship subsidy bill. Immigration bill and injunction bill.

Eight-hour bill. Federal control of insurance.

Santo Domingo and Morocco treaties.

The total appropriations including those carried in the regular appropriation acts, all deficiencies, miscellaneous matter and permanent annual appropriations aggregate $880,183,301. This is an apparent excess in appropriations of this session over those made last session, more than accounted for in the three following items:

For the Isthmian canal $42,477,000 under statehood bill, $10,250,000.

Toward construction of new buildings authorized this session, $10,321,000, making a total of $63,018,000 to which might properly be added $5,000,000 for San Francisco.

Other notable increases are three million dollars on the Agricultural and $10,500,000 on account of the postal service.

"President Roosevelt, upon the adjournment of congress, dictated the statement concerning the work accomplished. He says the present congress has done more substantial work along the lines of "real constructive statesmanship" than has been accomplished at any session of congress in which the president is familiar. He says the men of genuine patriotism have a right to feel a profound satisfaction in the entire course of this congress.

The president left early Sunday morning for Oyster Bay where he will spend the summer.

ON INDICTMENTS RETURNED MANY MONTHS AGO

Chaney, Who Murdered Maud Ellis, And Gene Duffy and Rob Simms Taken to the Penitentiary.

CHICKASHA, I. T., July 2.—A negro who committed an assault upon the 16-year-old daughter of Ira Robertson, was captured last night and hanged and burned near the spot where he committed the deed. He confessed and offered no resistance.

To one person the negro gave his name as Chit Mays, of Marshall, Texas, and he told another that he was Will Newbright, of San Antonio. By the time the negro was overtaken near Bradley fully 400 men had joined in the chase, and soon after their victim past the spot where he had committed the crime, and to a tree near the road where a rope was thrown over a limb about eighteen feet high, and another end knotted about the man's neck. He was given an opportunity to speak, and again he confessed his guilt, and after a fervent prayer to God for forgiveness he was drawn into the air. Before he was extinct the body was lowered to the ground, legs and arms were heaped upon it and the mass ignited. For a moment the body writhed, a few groans were heard, and the flames completed the work.

Deputy Sheriff Lucien Cravens made two arrests Friday of negroes who were wanted here on old charges and who had been set at liberty for a long time.

One of the negroes was Marshall Young, who is charged with wilful murder. Young's alleged crime was committed in 1904 at what is known as Springhill church near Masonville, Lee Suggs, colored, being shot and killed. Young was tried before an examining judge at the time and was released but the grand jury returned an indictment against him charging him with wilful murder. During the time since the indictment Young has been living on the farm of J. F. Garnett and has been in town frequently but was never arrested. Mr. Garnett gives him a good reputation both as a workman and as a quiet and peaceable negro. Young claims that he is innocent and that he can prove that he was not at the church at the time of the killing.

The other prisoner is Chappell Browder who is charged with an attempted assault upon Lizzie Hopkins at Longview in December 1905.

Sheriff David Smith and deputies left Sunday morning for Eddyville with Bob Simms, Gene Duffy and John Chaney who received penitentiary sentences at the last term of court. Simms goes for five years, Duffy for twenty-one years, and Chaney for life.

MODERN CIRCUS

A FASCINATION FOR OLD AND YOUNG ALIKE.

We Vow Each Year We Will Not Attend, But When It Comes, We Go Just the Same.

The great American circus has become established in this country as to be almost a factor in the make-up of our nationality.

When the first breath of spring begins to open the buds on the trees and blue birds call to their mates, the bill poster comes forth from his winter haunts, the flaming poster tells us that the circus is coming again, and then, if we are trying to master the multiplication, with glaring bills, all covered with daring gymnasts and bespangled beauties on prancing horses, calling to us through the school-house window from across the street, or perchance, we are trying to guess the future on mess pork, it is all the same. It awakens an interest that can only be satisfied when we have paid the admission fee and are awaiting with expectation as each act is ushered into the sawdust arena. We have vowed time and time again that we would never attend another circus, but each succeeding year finds us hunting for the soft spot on one of the blue boards under the big canvas with as great a relish as when we remained up all night to see it come in, and carried barrels of water for that magic "pass one boy."

When a man acknowledges that he has lost his interest in a circus, he is not far away from the day when he will be sitting in front of his fire-side counting his fingers.

The John Robinson show, recognized for more than four score years as America's greatest of tented exhibition, is billed for two performances on Monday July 16, and the small boy, his mother and, incidentally, his "paw" will be there.

UNCHANGED VALUES

AND FAIR SALES ON HOPKINSVILLE TOBACCO MARKET.

About Half an Usual Crop Has been Planted—Some Quotations—Report of the Inspector.

Since the last report, the local tobacco market has ruled quiet but firm at unchanged values and with fair sales. The condition of stocks and the growing crop makes the outlook very strong. Drought, which prevented planting in many localities until after the plants had become too large and which caused those which were set out in the dry ground to die, has resulted in a poor stand. According to the best estimates, there will only be about 75 per cent of last year's crop, or little more than half of the usual crop.

Many of the association members took their tobacco off the market, but the association is still selling some, although they have made no report. Independent sellers have sold steadily, all private sales, and buyers are taking the offerings freely at current quotations. Lugs are very scarce, as all were sold early. Prices are ruling as follows: Lugs—Low to common, $4.50 to $5.00; medium to good, $5.00 to $6.00; fine, $6.00 to $7.00. Leaf—Low to common, $6.25 to $7.50; medium to good, $7.50 to $10.00; fine, $10.00 to $12.00.

The monthly report of the inspector is presented here as follows:

CIRCUIT COURT ADJOURNS.

(From Friday's Daily)

The circuit court did not adjourn yesterday afternoon as was expected, it being impossible to get through with the business on hand. The session finally adjourned this afternoon, and Judge Cook will leave tonight for his home at Murray.

The attorneys for Joe Springfield, colored, who was found guilty in a majority verdict of the jury and sentenced to three years in the penitentiary for shooting Elihu Dougherty, made a motion for a new trial, and after hearing the argument the court sustained the motion and granted Springfield a new trial.

Sentence was passed upon John Chaney, sentenced for life, and Gene Duffy, sentenced for twenty-one years. A motion was also made for a new trial for Bob Simms, sentenced to five years.

The court overruled the motion for a new trial in the case of J. P. Thompson against John H. Bell, Jr. An appeal will probably be taken.

After having his case go against him in both the city and circuit courts, S. T. Henderson has now taken an appeal to the higher court to test the validity of Section 21 of the city ordinances. This section provides that no billiard or pool tables, etc., shall be kept in a room adjoining a saloon, the exact verbiage being as follows:

"21.—That no billiard table, pool table, or pool table shall be kept, or cards, roulette or dice or any other game of chance played for amusement or otherwise in any room or adjoining room owned or controlled by any saloon keeper or person connected directly or indirectly with a saloon where spirits, vinous or malt liquors are sold or given away.

"2nd. For a violation of the above provision, a fine of fifteen dollars shall be assessed against the proprietor of said saloon, to be recovered by warrant in the Hopkinsville police court."

Mr. Henderson was fined in the city court under this ordinance, but his attorney claimed that the ordinance was invalid on account of the words "or otherwise," giving the city the authority to fix a lesser fine for games of chance than that provided by the state law. When the decision was given against him in the circuit court he immediately prayed an appeal to the higher court, which was granted.

Judge Cook this morning sustained the contention of County Attorney Duffy that former assessor, R. A. Cook, had no legal claim to the $150 which was allowed for listing the polls of the county while making the usual assessment.

This case has attracted considerable attention as it called a halt in a custom which had prevailed since 1891. Under this custom the assessor had been paid $150 per year out of the funds of the county in addition to the amount allowed him under the state law for listing the polls. This year the allowance was made as usual but over the protest of Attorney Duffy, Mr. Duffy then appealed the case to the circuit court, pending the hearing of which payment on the claim was held up.

After hearing the argument upon both sides this morning Judge Cook decided that it was the duty of the assessor to list the polls while making his assessment and was not entitled to any further remuneration than that provided for by the state law.

The case will be taken to the court of appeals for final settlement.

S.S.S. STANDARD TONIC

The ingredients of which S. S. S. is composed, and the method of combining and preparing them so that they gently and pleasantly build up and strengthen every part of the body, make it the ideal tonic for a disordered condition of the system. Every one feels the need of a tonic sometimes. The system seems to get "out of gear," the appetite becomes fickle, the energies are depressed, sleep is not restful or refreshing, and the entire body has a nervous, worn-out feeling. When the system is in this depleted, run-down condition it must be aided by a tonic, and S. S. S. is recognized everywhere as the standard. Being made entirely of roots, herbs and barks selected for their gentle action as well as their invigorating effect on the system, it will not disagreeably affect any of the delicate members or tissues as do most of the so-called tonics on the market which contain potash or some other harmful mineral ingredient. These derange the stomach and digestion, unfavorably affect the bowels or otherwise damage the health. S. S. S. tones up the stomach and digestion, improves the appetite, produces refreshing sleep, rids the body of that tired, run-down feeling, and supplies tone and vigor to the entire system. It re-establishes the healthy circulation of the blood, acts more promptly and gives better and more lasting results than any other tonic, and because of its vegetable purity is an absolutely safe medicine for young or old. S. S. S. acts admirably in cases of dyspepsia, indigestion and other stomach troubles, and after eating, are no longer felt. Not only is S. S. S. the greatest of all tonics but possesses purifying and alternative properties, and if there is a faint in the blood it will promptly remove every trace and restore perfect health. In selecting your tonic for this year do not experiment but get S. S. S., the recognized standard.

SENATOR M'CREARY

FORMALLY ANNOUNCES HIS CANDIDACY FOR RE-ELECTION.

Submits His Claims in an Address Issued to the Democrats of the State of Kentucky.

To the Democrats of Kentucky:

I have in various newspaper interviews declared my candidacy for United States senator, and I now, over my own signature, submit to you my candidacy for the nomination as United States senator according to the plan announced by the Democratic executive committee of Kentucky.

For the honor conferred upon me in 1902 when I was elected United States senator I am sincerely grateful. I have tried to be faithful and efficient, and the manner in which I have discharged my official duties I leave to the unprejudiced judgment of the people of Kentucky.

I have always been in favor of primary elections fairly and legally held, and I have always been opposed to bossism or machine rule. When I was first a candidate for United States senator the other candidates and myself agreed to a primary election to be held two months before the election of United States senator by the general assembly, but the state Democratic committee did not deem it for the best interests of the Democratic party, and refused to order a primary election.

The proposed primary election is ordered to be held many months earlier than any primary election to nominate either state officers or United States senator was ever held in Kentucky, or in any other state. For many years primaries or conventions in our state to nominate candidates for state offices have been held in May or June of the year in which the candidates nominated were to be voted for at the November election, and it has been heretofore believed that said primaries should not occur when presidential or congressional elections are held, so that national and state issues would be separated.

The primary election ordered to be held on the 6th of next November will occur on the regular election day when representatives in congress will be elected, and this primary election was called eighteen months before the election of a United States senator by the general assembly, and two years and eight months before the senator elected can take his seat in the United States senate, and candidates for state offices will be nominated twelve months before they can be elected, and the call for a primary to nominate them so early is in violation of the rule adopted by the Democrats at the last state convention in 1904.

The success of the Democratic party should be paramount to the success of any individual, and the governing authorities of the Democratic party should act for the benefit of the whole Democratic party and not for the benefit of a few Democrats.

The outlook for Democratic victory in the next national election is brighter than it has been in years, and becoming more favorable every day. Kentucky Democrats must give no aid to "rule or ruin" policies, but uphold wise and just policies that will keep Kentucky in the Democratic column with an increased Democratic majority.

RATES ON VARIOUS LINES OF RISKS RAISED.

Local Agencies of the Insurance Companies are Instructed to Make 20 to 40 Per Cent. Increases.

The insurance companies have increased rates in Kentucky.

The Hopkinsville agencies have been notified that rates, now effective, have been raised 10 on various lines of risks from 20 to 40 per cent. The rates vary in the increase, and but few lines of business escape. All manufacturing, general merchandise, and risks that have been costing the companies a good many losses are hit the hardest.

Thus the country will be made to pay for the losses sustained at San Francisco.

The increase on the different lines are as follows:

	Per Cent.
Boot and Shoe Factory	40
Churches	20
Colleges and Schools	25
Flouring mills	20
Iron working plants	30
Metal working plants	30
Paper mills	50
Saw mills	15
Stocks of merchandise of all kinds	20
Summer hotels and contents	25
Terminal elevators and contents	20
Mayor Mencham, since learning of the new rates, says he is in favor of strictly enforcing the revenue ordinance and require every company doing business in the city to pay a license.

Precedents are not lacking in Kentucky for giving to her senators, whose services have proven satisfactory, second and even third terms, and as Democrats have not objected to or criticised my record I am asking an endorsement.

Legislation on important questions and the great issues now before our country concern the welfare of the people more than ever before, and I trust my experience and my investigation make me better equipped for faithful and efficient discharge of my duties if I am re-elected.

The Democratic majority in Kentucky is small when both political parties vote their full strength. Our majority in recent years, as compared with those twenty-five years ago, admonish us of the necessity of earnest and united party action. Every Democrat who participates in the primary election should endeavor to strengthen our party and improve its prospects for victory at the regular election by conducting the campaign on a high and honorable plane, and by seeing that every candidate has justice and fair play, and that an honest primary is held and every vote counted as cast.

Respectfully,

Turnkey Was Locked in His Cell. Posse of Officers Now in Pursuit of the Fugitives.

RICHMOND, Ky., June 29.—Through the assistance of his wife J. F. Ball, of Middlesboro, Ky., one of the noted desperadoes of Eastern Kentucky, escaped from jail here last night. James Taylor and Steve Turner, charged with murder, and James Turner, an alleged cattle thief, also escaped. Mrs. Ball came to Richmond yesterday afternoon to see her husband, who was to have been taken to Frankfort in a few days to serve a life imprisonment. When Turnkey J. W. Leads entered the cage to let out Mrs. Ball, she signalled to one of the prisoners to grab him and threw herself between the turnkey and her husband. A revolver was shoved in the turnkey's face and he was forced into the cell and the door closed. Mrs. Leads grabbed Ball and Mrs. Leads threw her arms around Mrs. Leads' neck, holding her until the men had made their escape. Mrs. Ball was arrested. A posse is pursuing the fugitives.

HOPKINSVILLE BANKS.

The semi-annual statement of the Hopkinsville banks appear in this impression of the Kentucky New Era, showing the financial condition of each of these institutions to be most excellent.

The banks of this city are a source of pardonable pride to the citizens. Everyone is in a strong, healthy shape, with an abundance of resources and unlimited credit, and the affairs are being splendidly managed by level-headed business men and trained officials.

The first statement of the Commercial and Savings bank appears and it gives us pleasure to call attention to it. This institution is flourishing in a most gratifying way.

DEATH WAS SUDDEN

MRS. E. R. COOK PASSED AWAY THIS MORNING.

Was Sitting by a Window Sewing When Summoned—A. L. Mobley Dies of His Injuries.

(From Monday's Daily)

Mrs. Martha U. Cook, the venerable wife of Dr. E. R. Cook, died suddenly this morning at her residence on East Seventh street. It was about 10 o'clock when, without warning, her demise occurred. She was sitting by a window sewing, and her husband was lying on a bed in the room. In a moment's time she fell from the chair to the floor and death was instantaneous. Heart failure was the cause of death, and so quick was the attack that she did not speak or utter a sound.

The news of Mrs. Cook's death spread rapidly and caused grief among her friends and relatives, and the deepest sympathy goes out to the bereaved husband, who, in his 84th year and feeble health, loses the beloved companion who for half a century had shared in his joys and sorrows. The deceased was 75 years old, and she and Dr. Cook were probably the oldest married couple in the county, and their devotion to one another was beautiful. Mrs. Cook was a daughter of the late John P. Campbell, Sr., a pioneer citizen, bank president and member of the Kentucky legislature. She was a devout Christian and a member of the Baptist church. Her disposition was retiring, and she spent her life largely in the duties of home and contributing to the happiness of those around her. In an unostentatious way she accomplished much good. Her hospitality was genuine and sincere and a delight to those who partook of it. She was a lady of many splendid traits and nobility of character, and all who knew her well loved her greatly.

Besides her husband she leaves three sons—Frank Cook, who is in the service of the government at San Francisco; Robert Cook, of Texas, and James O. Cook, of this city. Two other children, Capt. Ed. Cook and Mrs. Sallie Wilgus, died a number of years ago.

Fall Proves Fatal.

A. L. Mobley, who suffered concussion of the brain as a result of a fall sustained at the plant of the Acme Mill & Elevator company several days ago, died from his injuries early Sunday morning. Ever since the accident occurred Mr. Mobley's condition had been regarded as critical and for the last day or two all hope had been abandoned. He was about thirty-five years of age and a popular and energetic young man. His wife and two children survive him.

Interment took place this afternoon at the Goshen burying ground near Fairview.

Death of Child.

The ten months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Marquess, of Pee Dee, died Friday night after an illness of several days. The remains were buried Saturday in the grave yard at Pee Dee.

BY RURAL ROUTES

TWO MORE POSTOFFICES PUT OUT OF BUSINESS.

Newstead and Caledonia Discontinued. The Office at Sinking Fork May Soon Be Abolished.

The postoffice at Newstead has been discontinued, and on July 14th the postoffice at Caledonia will pass out of existence. These postoffices have been put out of business by rural free delivery route No. 4 out of this city and route No. 2 out of Gracey, Route No. 5 out of Hopkinsville and Route No. 1 out of Cerulean have also greatly cut down the receipts of the office at Sinking Fork, and there is a strong probability that this also will be discontinued at an early date.

When a boy turns his bulging pocket inside out we marvel at the quantity and variety of articles he has stowed away. Odd lengths of string-marbles, a horse-chestnut, a top, brass nails, hickory-nuts, an apple, and many more articles are garnered by this "snapper up of unconsidered trifles." We think the collection must be hard on a boy's pocket. And it is. But do we ever think of the variety and miscellany of the substances we put in the pocket of our stomach? There's the apple and the nuts, and things besides quite as indigestible as brass nails and with no more food value than so many marbles. And yet we wonder that the stomach "gives out." When the stomach breaks down under the strain of earliest eating and irregular meals it can be perfectly and permanently restored to health and strength by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The action of this medicine on the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition is so marked, that relief from disease is at once experienced, and the headache, liver "troubles," kidney disorders, skin eruptions and other symptoms of a diseased stomach are quickly cured. Dr. Pierce's medicines are purely vegetable—no alcohol or habit-forming drugs enter into their composition.

DELIGHTFUL EVENT

WAS PICNIC AT THE WESTERN KENTUCKY ASYLUM.

Special Barbecued Dinner Was Served to the Patients and to Invited Guests.—Speeches Made.

The annual barbecue and picnic at the Western Kentucky Asylum for the Insane, Wednesday, was a most interesting and pleasant occasion. It was planned with careful forethought and every detail was admirably carried out, and a more successful event of the kind has not been held. Though arranged specially for the pleasure of the inmates of the institution, a large number of citizens of Hopkinsville enjoyed the hospitality of the asylum management, and spent a thoroughly delightful day.

Dr. Board and Mr. Phillips, of the state board of control, were present and aided Mrs. Bailey, Meder and Ferguson in receiving and entertaining the guests, and saw that nothing was omitted that would contribute to the happiness of the occasion. Dr. J. W. Stephens, formerly of the Western asylum, was also present and was given the glad hand by his many friends.

The Pembroke uniformed brass band furnished excellent music throughout the day. They occupied an elevated bandstand and kept the air full of sweet strains. The band is an organization that reflects great credit upon the flourishing town of Pembroke.

In the middle of the day the barbecued dinner was served. It was first seen that the patients were abundantly supplied with everything on the menu, and then, in the front of the beautiful grounds, a table literally groaning with good things to eat was spread for the guests. There were deliciously barbecued meats, lamb and roast, fried chicken, salads, beaten biscuit, light bread, pickles, olives and coffee, and ice cream, sherbet and cakes. The dinner was perfectly prepared, and to say that ample justice was done to very modestly expressed a stubborn fact. In the afternoon, there was another fine musical program, tennis sets, and comfortable lounging and talking under the shade of the great trees. Later, oratory was unceremoniously and eloquent speeches were made by County Attorney John C. Duffy, the Hon. John Feland, Col. J. J. Henry and Judge J. T. Hainbery. These efforts were able and entertaining, heard with eager attention and loudly applauded. All were more or less in the nature of Independence day orations, with the exception of Mr. Feland's, which was an alleged Democratic speech from the viewpoint of the administration. With good-humored satire, the well-known Republican orator "defended" the party powers from the attacks of N. B. Hayes and called on the officials and employees of the asylum to turn over to the campaign fund their salaries. Nobody but Mr. Feland would have had the nerve and inspiration to make a speech of the sort, and it kept the crowd in an uproar of laughter.

Children like Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar. The pleasantest and best cough syrup to take, because it contains no opiates. Sold by L. L. Elgin, Anderson-Fowler, (Inc.)

FROM CHILDREN WAS EACH GAME TO SIGN PLEDGE OF THE PLANTERS' ASSOCIATION.

Y. M. C. A. Team From the Tennessee Capital Were Easy Picking for Bassett's Boys in White. Interesting Meeting of the Christian County Members Was Held Monday At the Courthouse.

Ten to nothing and thirteen to one in a few words what a snap Bassett's boys had in the ball game yesterday at Mercer park with the Y. M. C. A. team of Nashville as their opponents. The visitors were outclassed at every stage of the game and the locals toyed with them as a cat with a mouse.

In the morning game Harry Morgan was in the box for Hopkinsville, and that he was invincible is shown by his record of fourteen strike-outs and one hit made off him.

In the afternoon Gill Edwards officiated for the locals. Hopkinsville, having taken the measure of their opponents in the morning game, went into the afternoon contest, the pure fun of the game. Edwards allowed Nashville to hit 'em out by throwing over the easiest ball at times that he could command, but even at this the visitors could only get one man across the plate in the nine innings.

Forrest Morris, who is here visiting relatives, was on third base in both games, and his antics and good work about that sack brought up old recollections of the times when he used to hold down that position when the Kitty league flourished.

Tom Glydthwaite wore the mask, big mitt and breast protector for Hopkinsville in both game and while he was catching two of the speediest pitchers in the business he acquitted himself like a veteran and every one was loud in their praises of his splendid work. He is young but bears all the earmarks of a fine catcher. All the other players did equally as good work in their various positions as those especially mentioned and Hopkinsville should be proud of and take interest in their team for it is dollars to doughnuts that they can defeat any other amateur team in this part of the state.

The scores were as follows:

Morning game—	R.H.E.
Y. M. C. A.	000000000—0 1 6
Hopville	01022113—1 8 5
Afternoon game—	R.H.E.
Y. M. C. A.	010000000—1 8 8

My commission expires Feb. 27, 1910.

The farmers of the county held a meeting Monday afternoon in the circuit courtroom in the interest of the Dark Tobacco Planters Protective association. The attendance was rather small on account of the busy season with the farmers, but those who were present were deeply interested, and nearly every one took part in the proceedings.

The meeting was called to order by Chairman W. W. Radford, who also made a most helpful talk, showing the condition of the association at this time.

Mr. Radford was followed by Judge W. T. Fowler, who addressed the meeting at length and who made a most telling speech for the organization. The farmers were much enthused over Judge Fowler's speech, declaring it was one of the best and most effective efforts which have been made in the interests of the association.

After the speeches were concluded new members were called for, and out of the entire attendance there was only one man who refused to sign the pledge.

Talmage Sermon

By Rev.
Frank De Witt Talmage, D.D.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 1.—In this sermon, appropriate to the Independence day festival, the preacher makes a powerful appeal for a further independence which shall result in the redemption of our cities from official corruption. The text is Jeremiah xii, 17: "Seest thou not what they do in the cities of Judah?"

This is the Sunday preceding our national holiday. During the coming week we shall commemorate the time when our forefathers signed the Declaration of Independence, which declares that all men are born free and equal. This is the hour when thousands of patriotic sermons are being preached over this land, most of them exhorting us to prove that this country is the greatest of all countries, our people the best of all people and this marvelous national condition of affairs the direct result of the work of the Continental congress which assembled in Independence hall at Philadelphia July 4, 1776. But though I allow no man to stand before me in admiration of the immortal document penned by Thomas Jefferson, yet I am not one who would cry, "Peace, peace, when there is no peace." I am not one who would assert that our government and our people have reached the acme of perfection, for as our ancestors had wrongs to right in 1776 we have governmental wrongs to right in 1906. I want this morning to place my finger upon the most flagrant weakness of our national life. This is not the weakness of national or state legislation. It is the weakness of municipal corruption, which we find in most of the large cities scattered over our land.

The cancer which is gnawing and eating toward the vitals of man's physical body is even more fatal in its results than the dangers which are threatening him from without. Indeed, the only enemies which are threatening to undermine our national foundations are domestic foes and not foreign invaders. Mr. Lincoln in one of his addresses well said: "At what point shall we expect the approach of a national danger? Shall we expect some transatlantic military giant to step across the ocean and crush us at a blow? Never! All the armies of Europe, Asia and Africa combined, with all the treasures of the earth (our own excepted) in their military chest, and with a Bonaparte for a commander, could not by force take a drink from the Ohio or make a track on the Blue Ridge in a trial of a thousand years. At what point, then, is this approach of danger to be expected? If it ever reaches us, it must spring up among us. It cannot come from abroad. If destruction be our lot, we must ourselves be its author and finisher. As a nation of freemen we must live through all time or die by suicide." That statement is literally true. No foreign foe can subjugate us. England could no more conquer us upon our own ground than we could land at the Liverpool docks and conquer England. The Atlantic and Pacific oceans are two great seas, thousands of miles wide, which say to foreign foes, "Keep out," and also to Americans, "Keep in." No drawbridges will ever be made big enough to span those seas. As long as an invading army has to come to America by ship that army is doomed to defeat before it starts.

The Horrors of War.

Most great statesmen are as loath to enter an international controversy as is the present head of the German empire. Some years ago the young emperor was looking at the Versailles pictures depicting Napoleon's invasion of Russia. He said, "Verseschlag, never did the judgment of God so plainly strike man as it struck Napoleon at Moscow." Then he looked a little longer at the pictures and said, "Verseschlag, your pictures are an excellent corrective of warlike appetites." Then he looked a little longer and again said, "Verseschlag, the statesman who would needlessly plunge his country into an international strife is a fool." Emperor William shudders at the thought of war. The great statesmen, both trans and cis Atlantic, have the same dread. The one great purpose of their lives is to prevent international complications. So, in all probability, you and I will never live to see the day when this nation shall be warring against another first class nation. Thus in our present patriotic sermon let us turn our attention to the infernal rather than external dangers. By the help of God let us go forth as bravely and heroically as did our forefathers at Concord and Bunker Hill to eradicate the greatest weakness of our national life—namely, corruption in our municipal or city governments. These evils of our great cities are to be seen everywhere. Either we must conquer them or they in turn will completely overthrow us.

The civic problem of our land will never be successfully solved until the American voter has intelligence and manhood enough to divorce national and state politics from municipal affairs. The two politics, the national and civic, are entirely distinct. The one to a great extent does not represent personalities, but principles, while on the other hand, civic politics does not represent principles so much as personalities. Let me try to illustrate the demarcation in a few words.

Principles, Not Personalities.
Come back with me to the year 1860. Major McKinley of Ohio is the candidate upon the Republican ticket for president of the United States. He is the logical representative of his party upon the sole issue that he was the author of the famous McKinley bill, which established high tariff. Now, if Mr. McKinley is elected to the presidency he can do absolutely nothing to forward his ideas of protection unless he has a congress behind him which will pass protection laws. Thus all over the country the Republicans of the different congressional districts assemble and pick out men who believe in protection to support the future president in his policy. You can readily see why they do this. When we elect a congressman we do not elect a person, but we elect a principle. We vote for a principle. The national convention picks out the principle. Then the different congressional conventions of the party nominate men who will carry out that principle in their political action. In other words, in national politics the "unit man" is an insignificant figure of sand. But when all these votes are collected together in one great volume we have the national policy, the principle of the great dominant political party, expressed in one mighty chorus sounding together as one voice.

Now, on the other hand, the government of a city has nothing to do with the tariff laws or with the advocacy of a free silver bill. It has nothing to do with the question whether the Philippines shall have self government, as in Cuba. It has nothing, absolutely nothing, to do with national or state politics. A city government has simply to do with men. It is a big business. It has to do with the public schools, and with the water supply, and with the lighting of our streets, and with the street railway system, and with the control of our police and fire departments. Any man who is a strong, honest, upright, intelligent business man can run any city government right. It is not a Republican or a Democrat or an adherent to any of the other same political faiths. And yet the local political "bosses" of a city inevitably hold the municipal government in their grasp by mixing up state and national issues with civic affairs. They nominate their candidates. Then they come to the voters and say: "Now, be consistent. If you are going to vote for a Republican president, vote for a Republican mayor and a Republican city attorney, and a Republican councilman. These men all represent the same great Republican truths." And never was greater nonsense ever perpetrated upon a blinded community than that of insisting on the mayor and council being of the dominant political party.

No Longer Heresy.

Do you believe this is political heresy? Then read the following words of Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States. Mr. Roosevelt declares that most of the municipal corruption of this country is directly due to harnessing up national and civic issues in the same yoke. Let me read to you his own strong, powerful, intense words: "The worst evils that affect our local governments arise from the fact that we have made municipal politics a part of the national politics, mixing up of city affairs with party politics of the nation and state. The lines upon which national parties divide have no necessary connection with the business of the city. Such connections open the way to countless schemes of public plunder and civic corruption." What says Secretary William Taft in a late letter which he wrote to a prominent Republican club of Cincinnati which had elected him an honorary member: "The conduct of municipal affairs has no national relation to the conduct of national affairs, and while it does not seem possible to eliminate from municipal elections the system of nominating party tickets, there ought certainly to be cultivated a much wider spirit of independence at municipal elections in the scrapping of improper candidates selected by either party than is likely to be ever exercised with reference to state and national elections."

Independence in Local Politics.

What these Republican stalwarts teach I believe the great Democratic statesmen are ready to enunciate and to advocate. But, though these facts which I am adducing should be almost self-evident or axiomatic, yet there are hundreds of men living, let me say, in the city of Atlanta, who always vote the Democratic ticket merely because the state of Georgia is Democratic in sentiment, as there are thousands of men living in Philadelphia who always vote the Republican ticket because Pennsylvania is generally Republican. They will make their state and national politics dominate their civic politics. Such a thing is wrong—it is wrong in toto. Every man should endorse principles rather than men in national politics, and every voter should be an independent in civic politics. He should always vote for the most honest and capable candidates in municipal affairs, no matter what state or national politics are involved. But in order to solve the civic problem we must go more than one step. We must in our city politics have the right kind of leaders. We must prevail upon the most respected citizens of the different cities to offer themselves as candidates for the different municipal offices. The kind of men who are willing to accept the gubernatorial and the congressional and presidential offices are the same kind who are willing to be elected to the mayoralty or to the aldermanic chairs in our city governments.

Make It an Honor.

"Oh," but you say, "our prominent men in professional and business life cannot afford to take the humble positions of a city government. The financial returns are so inadequate that they do not feel called upon to neglect their offices for such petty emoluments." Nonsense, my friend, nonsense! The question of financial returns should have nothing to do with our offering the city positions to our most prominent citizens. We should look upon our city governments the same as they do in England or Scotland or Australia or New Zealand. There the people, no matter how wealthy or poor, feel it an honor to be elected an alderman of Glasgow, or Edinburgh, or London, or Melbourne, or Sydney. For years Lord Rosebery and the Earl of Cowlin and John Burns, the labor leader, worked side by side in the London city council. Even in the small towns of those countries you can find the most prominent citizens of all political parties working side by side as aldermen. The simple fact is we want that spirit that says: "When duty calls to the municipal halls, then it is not wrong to go for the greatest of men, no matter whether he be merchant prince or legal authority." As soon as some of our prominent business and professional men are willing to make personal sacrifice to serve in the municipal offices, then these positions will be sought after by our prominent men, as the congressional and senatorial and gubernatorial conventions now call to the front almost any man for whom they indicate a preference.

But there is still another reason besides honor and fame why our most prominent citizens should be prevailed upon to assume the municipal burdens of official life. If a man will not serve his city at a financial sacrifice, then his city will not in all probability serve him faithfully even if he had to make no financial sacrifices. The simple fact is that our country, both in national and civic life, has never been able to financially reward its true servants adequately. Do you not believe that Webster and Clay and Calhoun and Washington and Hamilton and Robert R. Livingston and Judge Story and Marshall and Daniel J. Randal could have made five, ten, fifty, twenty times more money if they had never entered public life? Do you believe that our soldiers who died for the defense of their native land were ever adequately paid for spilling their life's blood? The other day I was reading an account of the mortality of the Fifth New Hampshire Infantry at the battle of Fredericksburg. In one charge it lost 183 men out of a number of 300. In that one charge every one of the color guard was shot dead. Then Captain Perry ran forward and lifted the fallen colors, and he almost instantly was a corpse. Then another soldier, Captain Murray, rushed forward and grasped the flag, and he was shot dead. Then Captain Moore entered that hail storm of bullets for the precious flag, and he, too, dropped dead. Then four or five private soldiers met a like fate and bit the blood soaked earth. Then Lieutenant Nettleton, just as brave as the rest, made a dash for the precious flag and bore it to the rear.

Do you mean to tell me that those men financially were adequately paid for shedding their life's blood? Why, making the thousands of dollars at home if they had not enlisted in the Union army. Yet some of those soldiers were ready to lay down their lives for their country's defense. Now, I want to ask you this question, Are all the heroes of this nation dead? Nay, I believe men and women are just as ready to make sacrifices for their country now in these times of peace as they were in 1861 and 1812 and 1776. And I furthermore believe that the most prominent citizens of our large cities will serve us in municipal offices if we only go after them and call them. In these civic positions which we have to solve let us divorce municipal politics from national politics. Then, in the next place, let us nominate for our city officers not the professional office seekers, but let us go to our best merchants and inventors and physicians and lawyers and ministers—will come to the rescue of our cities in times of peace.

Look to the Conventions.

But we must not stop at our municipal candidates when we attempt to rescue our cities from their present political corruption. We must also weigh carefully in the balance the men by whom these candidates are being selected. There is not one municipal candidate in ten thousand who will announce himself as a candidate for a city or county office, as did William Travers Jerome for the district attorneyship of New York city. A man as a candidate for a public office is inevitably the candidate of certain men and belongs to the same class. "Tis true that certain men, like Governor Folk of Missouri, may be better than the men who nominated them, yet, as a rule, in the political world the water never rises higher than its source. When a man is nominated by a convention, no better and no worse than the men who want to elect him to that office. Therefore if you would find out the kind of municipal candidates who are running, all you have to do is to go among the men and find out what kind of men they are who want that candidate elected. In other words, you can nearly always judge a man politically by the company he keeps.

During my ministerial manhood I have been a citizen of three of the greatest cities of the country, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Chicago have each been my home. I have always adhered to this custom to the letter: When a municipal election was taking place I used to walk through the lower part of the city. There I would carefully scan the faces of the different candidates which the saloon keepers put up in their windows. You will be surprised to find that in nineteen cases out of twenty these faces are always the same in those saloon windows. Then I would always scratch the names of the men whose pictures I saw the saloon keepers wanted. Birds of a feather nearly always flock together. If a candidate for a civic office trains with the saloon keepers and the dive owners and the gamblers and the rascals, you ought to fight him. No matter what defect he may be on, I will hunt him to his political death.

Stand by Your Officers.

My statement naturally brings me to the last and perhaps the most important heading of all the discussion. If you refuse to vote for a man who is even half a bad man, then comes the question: Are you and I, as Christians and church members, ready to do our part in city politics and hold our personal aid to the good men of our cities who are trying to nominate and elect good city attorneys and good school boards and good police commissioners and good political heads of our fire departments and honest men who will prove our municipalities of corruption? It is nonsense for ministers to sit back in their ecclesiastical robes and say: "It is not our business to touch city politics." When a moral issue is at stake it is the business of the churches and the business of all church members to go to the primaries and help nominate the men who ought to be nominated and help elect those honest men after they have been placed in nomination. If the members of the churches would only stand side by side at the ballot box and in the primaries as the saloon keepers and the owners of the places of evil resort stand side by side, the day would not be far distant when all cities would be redeemed and purged of political corruption, even as our United States courtrooms and our national legislative halls have ceased to be a stench in the nostrils of all decent people.

Senator Hoar's Testimony.

Thank God, I believe civic purification is not far distant. It is almost miraculous to catalogue the rapid changes which have come within the life of the present generation in the purification of our national life. Senator George F. Hoar died in 1905. A short time before he passed away he was asked this question: "Senator, is the political life at Washington growing better or worse?" He answered the question in these words: "When I came into public life in Washington in 1859 the corridors of the capitol were haunted by lobbyists interested in all sorts of schemes for plundering the public treasury. There were quite a number of senators and representatives who were suspected by their associates of being venal. When I think of the conditions which prevailed then and for years following—Tweed entrenched in power in New York, five judges of the United States court fleeing from office under threats of impeachment for corruption, the scandals attending the Austrian exposition, the lobbying, the whole civil service treated as patronage by powerful political leaders, the report of the committee of military affairs in the house recommending the expulsion of four of its members for making sale of their privileges of selecting youths to be educated at our great military school, the impeachment for corruption of four judges in New York, the whiskey frauds (in which the private secretary of the president was implicated), the Belknap impeachment, one eminent lawyer of the United States senate trying to smother a scandal which would find no rest in a pending measure—that if the senate could find no rest in it it was not likely to be there, eight active Republican leaders in Massachusetts detected in state prison offenses—it seems to me as if I were living not only in another age, but in another planet."

That was the testimony of the purification of national and state politics in the political life of Senator George F. Hoar of Massachusetts. May we live to see such a wonderful change in the purification of city politics. May we live to see our churches aroused politically. May our churches become great institutions of moral and political training. May their members side by side go forth to capture the political prizes in our cities for purity and righteousness. May our fellow men in civic offices, but may our fellow men by the grace of God, go forth to elect their fellows to positions of civic trust. Then shall the Declaration of Independence of national liberty, signed by our ancestors for us, be supplemented by a declaration of independence of our municipal charters, signed by us for the benefit of our children and for the benefit of the Hebrews of old, we will not only have six cities of refuge, but all our cities shall be cities of refuge, wherein purity and truth and honor shall love to dwell, and where Christ's altars shall be the shrines at which municipal officials and inhabitants shall bow the knee and worship. May God bless and speed the consummation of our beloved cities' emancipation from sin.

A Bible Every Five Seconds.
"Every moment, does a man; every moment one is born," sang Tennyson. The record of the British and Foreign Bible society is, we are glad to say, something bigger and more startling than even the catalogue of human births and deaths. Every five seconds, night and day, from one year's end to the other, the whole Bible or some portion of the Scriptures is issued by the society. So the lord mayor stated at the Guildhall when the Bible society was celebrating its one hundred and second birthday.—London Telegraph.

+ ZEMO +

HAS NEVER FAILED TO CURE

E. W. ROSE MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo.

DEAR SIR: Believing that "ZEMO" saved my arms, if not my life, I will gladly tell all sufferers from eczema what your good medicine did for me. I suffered six years from a torturing case of itching eczema of both arms. I tried eight different doctors, and every eczema cure I could hear of without relief. The disease grew worse and spread to my neck and breast. My arms had great holes eaten in them; I soon became an invalid and was confined to my bed part of the time. My husband bought a bottle of "ZEMO"; the first application stopped the itching, and smooth as my skin will show, before and after using "ZEMO." My arms were so bad some of my friends wanted me to have them taken off, but I would not agree. I am now entirely cured and have gained ten pounds in weight, and feel better than I have felt in many years. I consider my quick recovery by using "ZEMO" nothing short of a miracle. I will gladly answer all inquiries and recommend "ZEMO" to all persons suffering from any itching skin disease.

Yours gratefully,

MANY INTERESTED GREAT FREE TRIP TO MAMMOTH CAVE

IN THE ARTICLES DESCRIBING WONDERS OF CAVE.

Readers Are Being Aroused to a Realization of What the Great Cavern is Like.

It seems that the articles descriptive of some of the wonders of Mammoth Cave, which are now being run in the New Era for the purpose of advertising the great free trip to be given August 17-21, are awakening widespread interest and resulting in good in an entirely different direction from that which had been counted on. Saturday a lady said, "I have never had an opportunity to visit Mammoth Cave, and several times in visiting at other places have I been asked about the great wonder, but could never give any information. Since the articles have been running in the New Era I have been reading them closely, and while I may never have the pleasure of visiting the cave itself, I feel sure that in the future I will be well enough informed on the leading curiosities of the cavern to give at least a general idea of what a marvelous wonder it is. Then again it will be a source of pleasure to be able to give this information and not have to say when asked about it, 'I don't know.'"

As stated above this had not been counted upon when the contest was started, but we are glad that this lady, as well as the general public, is reaping some good out of the articles. The lady referred to above is not a candidate in the contest but is working for another young lady.

Of course in writing up the wonders of Mammoth Cave we can only give a few of the leading curiosities, but such as are given are correct in every detail. Other articles will appear from time to time until the close of the contest, and we trust they will be equally well received as the preceding ones have.

NEW ERA OFFERS SPLENDID OPPORTUNITY FOR TWELVE YOUNG LADIES TO VISIT THE FAMOUS NATURAL WONDER FREE OF ANY COST

County and City Divided Into Districts and Subscribers to This Paper Will Choose Their Candidates.—Full Details of How The Contest Will Be Conducted.

The New Era has made arrangements to give the greatest popularity contest ever offered by a newspaper outside of the metropolitan press. Twelve young ladies, who are to be selected by the votes of friends, will be sent to Mammoth Cave for a delightful outing with all expenses from Hopkinsville paid entirely by this paper.

The exact date of the trip will be announced later, but it will be some time in August before the school opens for the fall term. This is also the most suitable season of the year for visiting the cave.

Chaperons, in addition to the twelve young ladies, will accompany the party and a representative of the New Era will also go along personally to see that everything in the best of style is provided for the comfort and convenience of the party.

The distribution of trips will be as follows: To the young lady receiving the largest number of votes in the district from which she is entered will be awarded a free trip to Mammoth cave with all expenses paid by the Kentucky New Era.

In addition to this, one young lady will be sent from the county at large and she will be the one for whom the largest number of votes is cast in the county. This, therefore, will enable one district to send two young ladies, the one from the county at large and then the next highest being from the district.

The districts are as follows:

District No. 1.

That section of the city of Hopkinsville lying south of Tenth street and east of Little river.

District No. 2.

That section of the city of Hopkinsville lying north of Tenth street and south and east of Little river.

District No. 3.

That section of the city of Hopkinsville lying west and north of Little river.

District No. 4.

Those portions of magisterial districts Nos. 1 and 2 lying outside the limits of the city of Hopkinsville. T. H. Moore is magistrate of district No. 1, and John M. Morris of district No. 2.

District No. 5.

The third magisterial district of Christian county, known as the Pembroke district and of which W. L. Parker is magistrate.

District No. 6.

The fourth magisterial district of Christian county, known as the Longview district and of which W. Walton Garrett is magistrate.

District No. 7.

The fifth magisterial district of Christian county, known as the Lafayette district and of which J. F. Dixon is magistrate.

District No. 8.

The sixth magisterial district of Christian county, which is known as the Union school house district and of which H. B. Clark is magistrate.

District No. 9.

The seventh magisterial district of Christian county, which is known as the Seates mill district and of which John W. Rogers is magistrate.

District No. 10.

The eighth magisterial district of Christian county, which is known as the Fruit Hill district and of which A. J. Estes is magistrate.

District No. 11.

All sections outside of Christian county, Kentucky.

Special Award No. 12.

To the young lady who receives the largest number of votes. No votes are to be cast directly for this award, the winner being determined when the final figures are ascertained.

The Plan.

For every dollar paid on subscription to either the Daily or Weekly New Era, either new subscriptions in advance or on arrears on old ones coupon good for 100 votes will be issued.

sued. These coupons must be voted within 30 days after being issued. No coupons will be issued for payments of less than 50c at a time.

In addition to the coupons given with each dollar paid on subscription, a coupon good for one vote will appear in each issue of the Daily and Weekly New Era. These coupons must be voted within the time specified at the top, but to equalize distances all such coupons will be counted when the postmark on the envelope shows that they were duly mailed before the time had expired. These coupons should be clipped from the paper and neatly trimmed around the border and plainly filled out. In order to obviate extra work, however, these ballots may be pinned together and only the top one filled out, in which case the entire bunch will be counted for the person whose name appears on the first one.

All that is necessary to enter a candidate is for some friend to cast one or more votes for her.

All expenses, including railroad fare, hotel bills, entrance to the cave and guide fees for both the long and short routes, etc., will be borne entirely by the New Era. Rooms will be reserved for the party in advance so that adequate accommodations will be assured.

The plan of distributing the trips by districts insures one young lady at least from every section of the county will be the beneficiary of this offer, while subscribers living outside the county are also given the opportunity to send one candidate. The race for the candidate from the county at large will doubtless prove an interesting feature of the contest as this will not only be an enviable position to be held by the lucky young lady who will thus be declared the most popular young lady in the county, but will also permit the sending of two candidates from some one district.

Ladies, whether married or single, between the ages of 15 and 40 are eligible to this contest.

The vote will be published each week in the Weekly and as often as practicable in the Daily. This count will be made by the employees of the paper but all counted ballots will be saved for a recount should it be necessary to settle any close race or disputed questions.

No person connected with this office, nor any member of his or her family is eligible as a candidate neither can they cast votes.

A candidate must reside in the district from which she is entered, but should she remove during the contest all votes cast for her will be counted for her from the district into which she moves. This is the only way in which transfers of votes will be made.

A person living in one district may cast his vote for a young lady of another district, but the ballot must bear the number of the district in which the candidate lives and not that of the voter.

Any successful candidate shall have the right to name a substitute if she is unable to go herself. This, however, will be subject to the approval of this office.

The price of the Daily is $5.00 per year, either by mail or carrier, $2.50 for six months or $1.25 for three months. The Weekly is $1.00 per year by mail only.

This contest is for the purpose of increasing the circulation of both issues of the New Era and coupons will not be issued on payments for other business. Neither will old papers be sold in quantities so that coupons may be clipped. No coupons will be allowed on subscriptions given to agents unless the full subscription price is paid. Address all communications to this office and make remittances by check, bank draft or express or post office money order. DO NOT SEND STAMPS.

CHAPTER II.

WHEN the Sirdar parted amid ships the floor of the saloon heaved up in the center with a mighty crash of rending woodwork and iron. Men and women, too stupefied to sob out a prayer, were pitched headlong into chaos. Iris, torn from the terrified grasp of her maid, fell through a corridor and would have gone down with the ship had not a sailor, clinging to a companion ladder, caught her as she whirled along the steep slope of the deck.

He did not know what had happened. With the instinct of self preservation he seized the nearest support when the vessel struck. It was the mere impulse of ready helpfulness that caused him to stretch out his left arm and clasp the girl's waist as she fluttered past. By idle chance they were on the port side, and the ship, after pausing for one awful second, fell over to starboard.

The man was not prepared for this second gyrations. Even as the stairway canted he lost his balance; they were both thrown violently through the open hatchway and swept off into the boiling surf. Under such conditions thought itself was impossible. A series of impressions, a number of fantastic pictures, were received by the numbed faculties and afterward painfully sorted out by the memory. Fear, anguish, amazement—none of these could exist. All he knew was that the lifeless form of a woman—for Iris had happily fainted—must be held until death itself wrenched her from him. Then there came the headlong plunge into the swirling sea, followed by an indefinite period of gasping oblivion. Something that felt like a moving rock rose up beneath his feet. He was driven clear out of the water and seemed to recognize a familiar object rising rigid and bright close at hand. It was the pinnacle pillar, screwed to a portion of the deck which came away from the chart house, and was rent from the upper framework by contact with the reef. He seized this unlooked for support with his disengaged hand.

A uniformed figure—he thought it was the captain—stretched out an ungloved arm to clasp the queer raft which supported the sailor and the girl, but a jealous wave rose under the platform with devilish energy and turned it completely over, hurling the man with his inanimate burden into the depths. He rose, fighting madly for his life. Now surely he was doomed. But again, as if human existence depended on nothing more serious than the spinning of a coin, his knees rested on the same few stanch timbers, now the ceiling of the music room, and he was given a brief respite. His greatest difficulty was to get his breath, so dense was the spray through which he was driven. Even in that terrible moment he kept his senses. The girl, utterly unconscious, showed by the convulsive heaving of her breast that she was choking. With a wild effort he swung her head round to shield her from the flying sand with his own form.

The tiny air space thus provided gave her some relief, and in that instant the sailor seemed to recognize her. He was not remotely capable of a definite idea. Just as he vaguely realized the identity of the woman in his arms the uneasy support on which he rested toppled over. Again he renewed the unequal contest. A strong, resolute man and a typhoon sea wrestled for supremacy.

This time his feet plunged against something gratefully solid. He was dashed forward, still battling with the raging turmoil of water, and a second time he felt the same firm yet smooth surface. His dormant faculties awoke. It was sand. With frenzied desperation, buoyed now by the inspiring hope of safety, he fought his way onward like a maniac.

Often he fell. Three times did the backwash try to drag him to the swirling death behind, but he staggered blindly on, on, until even the tearing gale ceased to be laden with the suffocating foam, and his fluttering feet sank in deep soft white sand.

Then he fell, not to rise again. With a last weak flicker of exhausted strength he drew the girl closely to him, and the two lay clasped tightly together, heedless now of all things.

How long the man remained prostrate he could only guess subsequently. The Sirdar struck soon after daybreak, and the sailor awoke to a hazy consciousness of his surroundings to find a shaft of sunshine flickering through the clouds banked up in the east. The gale was already passing away. Although the wind still whistled with shrill violence, it was more blustering than threatening. The sea, too, though running very high, had retreated many yards from the spot where he had finally dropped, and its surface was no longer scourged with venomous spray.

Slowly and painfully he raised himself to a sitting posture, for he was bruised and stiff. With his first movement he became violently ill. He had swallowed much salt water, and it was not until the spasm of sickness had passed that he thought of the girl. "She cannot be dead," he hoarsely murmured, feebly trying to lift her. "Surely Providence would not desert her after such an escape. What a weak beggar I must be to give in at the last moment! I am sure she was living when we got ashore. What on earth can I do to revive her?"

Forgetful of his own aching limbs in this newborn anxiety, he sank on one knee and gently pillowed Iris' head and shoulders on the other. Her eyes were closed, her lips and teeth only set—a fact to which she undoubtedly owed her life, else she would have been suffocated—and the pallor of her skin seemed to be that terrible bloodless hue which indicates death. The stern lines in the man's face relaxed, and something blurred his vision. He was weak from exhaustion and want of food. For the moment his emotions were easily aroused.

"Oh, it is pitiful," he almost whimpered. "It cannot be!"

With a gesture of despair he drew the sleeve of his thick jersey across his eyes to clear them from the gathering

He staggered blindly on.

mist. Then he tremblingly endeavored to open the neck of her dress. He was startled, "and the girl's eyes wide open and surveying him with shadowy alarm. She was quite conscious.

"Thank God!" he cried hoarsely. "You are alive."

Her color came back with remarkable rapidity. She tried to assume a sitting posture, and instinctively her hands traveled to her disarranged costume.

"How ridiculous!" she said, with a little note of annoyance in her voice, "and the girl's eyes wide open and surveying him with shadowy alarm. She was quite conscious.

"Please try not to faint again," he said. "Don't you think I had better loosen these things? You can breathe more easily."

"A ghost of a smile flickered on her lips. "No—no," she murmured. "My eyes hurt me—that is all. Is there any water?"

He laid her tenderly on the sand and rose to his feet. His first glance was toward the sea. He saw something which made him blink with astonishment. A heavy sea was still running over the barrier reef which inclosed a small lagoon. The contrast between the comparatively smooth surface of the protected pool was very marked. At low tide the lagoon was almost completely isolated. Indeed, he imagined that only a fierce gale blowing from the northwest would enable the waves to leap the reef, save where a strip of broken water, surging far into the small natural harbor, betrayed the position of the tiny entrance.

Yet at this very point a fine coconut palm reared its stately column high in air, and its long, tremulous fronds were now swaying wildly before the gale. From where he stood it appeared to be growing in the midst of the sea, for huge breakers completely hid the coral embankment. This sentinel of the land had a weirdly impressive effect. It was the only fixed object in the waste of foam capped waves. Not a vestige of the Sirdar remained seaward, but the sand was littered with wreckage, and—mournful spectacle—a considerable number of inanimate human forms lay huddled up amid the relics of the steamer.

This discovery stirred him to action. He turned to survey the land on which he was stranded with his helpless companion. To his great relief he discovered that it was lofty and tree clad. He knew that the ship could not have drifted to Borneo, which still lay far to the south. This must be one of the hundreds of islands which stud the China sea and provide resorts for Hawaiian fishermen. Probably it was inhabited, though he thought it strange that none of the islanders had put in an appearance. In any event water and food of some sort were assured. But before setting out upon his quest two things demanded attention. The girl must be removed from her present position. It would be too long to permit her first conscious gaze to rest upon those crumpled objects on the beach. Common humanity demanded, too, that he should hastily examine each of the bodies in case life was not wholly extinct.

So he bent over the girl, noting with sudden wonder that, weak as she was, she had managed to refasten part of her bodice.

"You must permit me to carry you a little farther inland," he explained gently.

Without another word he lifted her in his arms, marveling somewhat at the strength which came of necessity, and bore her some little distance until a sturdy rock jutting out of the sand offered shelter from the wind and protection from the sea and its revelations.

"I am so cold and tired," murmured Iris. "Is there any water? My throat hurts me."

He pressed back, the tangled hair from her forehead as he might soothe a child.

"Try to lie still for a very few minutes," he said. "You have not long to suffer. I will return immediately."

His own throat and palate were on fire owing to the brine, but he first hurried back to the edge of the lagoon. There were fourteen bodies in all, three women and eleven men, four of the latter being Lascars. The women were saloon passengers whom he did not know. One of the men was the surgeon, another the first officer, a third Sir John Tozer. The rest were passengers and members of the crew. They were all dead; some had been peacefully drowned, others were fearfully mangled by the rocks. Two of the Lascars, bearing signs of dreadful injuries, were lying on a cluster of low rocks overhanging the water. The remainder rested on the sand.

The sailor exhibited no visible emotion while he conducted his sad scrutiny. When he was assured that this silent company was beyond mortal help he at once strode away toward the nearest belt of trees. He could not tell how long the search for water might be protracted, and there was pressing need for it.

When he reached the first clump of brushwood he uttered a delighted exclamation. There, growing in prodigious luxuriance, was the beneficent pitcher plant, whose large curled up leaf, shaped like a teacup, not only holds a plentiful quantity of rain water, but mixes therewith its own palatable and natural juices.

With his knife he severed two of the leaves and hastened to Iris with the precious beverage. She heard him and managed to raise herself on an elbow. The poor girl's eyes glistened at the prospect of relief. Without a word of question or surprise she swallowed the contents of both leaves.

Then she found utterance. "How odd it tastes. What is it?" she inquired.

But the eagerness with which she quenched her thirst renewed his own momentarily forgotten torture. His tongue seemed to swell. He was absolutely unable to reply.

The water revived Iris like a magic draft. Her quick intuition told her what had happened.

"You have had none yourself?" she cried. "Go at once and get some! And please bring me some more!"

He required no second bidding. After hastily gulping down the contents of several leaves he returned with a further supply to Iris was now sitting up. The sun had burst royally through the clouds, and her chilled limbs were gaining some degree of warmth and elasticity.

"What is it?" she repeated after another delicious draft.

"The leaf of the pitcher plant. Nature is not always cruel. In an unusually generous mood she devised this method of storing water."

Miss Deane reached out her hand for more. Her troubled brain refused to wonder at such a reply from an ordinary seaman. The sailor deliberately spilled the contents of a remaining leaf on the sand.

"No, madam," he said, with an odd mixture of deference and firmness. "No more at present. I must first procure you some food."

She looked up at him in momentary silence.

"The ship is lost?" she said after a pause.

"Yes, madam."

"Are we the only people saved?"

"I fear so."

"Is this a desert island?"

"I think not, madam. It may be chance be temporarily uninhabited, but fishermen from China come to all these places. I have seen no other living beings except ourselves. Nevertheless the islanders may live on the south side."

"It surely cannot be possible that the Sirdar has gone to pieces—a magnificent vessel of her size and strength?"

He answered quietly: "It is too true, madam. I suppose you hardly knew she struck, it happened so suddenly. Afterward, fortunately for you, you were unconscious."

"How do you know?" she inquired quickly. A flood of vivid recollection was pouring in upon her.

"I—er—well, I happened to be near you, madam, when the ship broke up, and we—er—drifted ashore together."

She rose and faced him. "I remember now," she cried hysterically. "You caught me as I was thrown into the corridor. We fell into the sea when the vessel turned over. You have saved my life! Were it not for you I could not possibly have escaped!"

She gazed at him more earnestly, seeing that he blushed beneath the crust of salt and sand that covered his face. "Why," she went on, with growing excitement, "you are the steward I noticed in the saloon yesterday. How is it that you are now dressed as a sailor?"

He answered readily enough. "There was an accident on board during the gale, madam. I am a fair sailor, but a poor steward, so I applied for a transfer. As the crew was short handed, my offer was accepted."

Iris was now looking at him intently. "You saved my life," she repeated slowly. "It seemed that this obvious fact needed to be indelibly established in her mind. Indeed the girl was overwrought by all that she had gone through. Only by degrees were her thoughts marshaling themselves with lucid coherence. As yet she recalled so many dramatic incidents that they failed to assume due proportion."

But quickly there came memories of Captain Ross, of Sir John and Lady Tozer, of the doctor, her maid, the hundred and one individualities of her pleasant life aboard ship. Could it be that they were all dead? The notion was monstrous. But its ghastly significance was instantly borne in upon her by the plight in which she stood. Her lips quivered; the tears trembled in her eyes.

"Is it really true that all the ship's company except ourselves are lost?" she brokenly demanded.

The sailor's gravely earnest glance fell before hers. "Unhappily there is no room for doubt," he said.

"Are you quite sure?"

"I am sure of some." Involuntarily he turned seaward.

She understood him. She sank to her knees, covered her face with her hands and broke into a passion of weeping. With a look of infinite pity he stooped and would have touched her shoulder, but he suddenly restrained the impulse. Something had hardened this man. It cost him an effort to be calm, but he succeeded. His month tightened, and his expression lost its tenderness.

"Come, come, my dear lady," he exclaimed, and there was a tinge of studied roughness in his voice, "you must calm yourself. It is the fortune of shipwreck as well as of war, you know. We are alive and must look after ourselves. Those who have gone are beyond our help."

"But not beyond our sympathy," wailed Iris, uncovering her swimming eyes for a fleeting look at him. Even in the utter desolation of the moment she could not help marveling that this queer mannered sailor, who spoke like a gentleman and tried to pose as her inferior, who had rescued her with the utmost gallantry, who carried his quietude to the point of first supplying her needs when he was in far worse case himself, should be so utterly indifferent to the fate of others.

He waited silently until her sobs ceased.

"Now, madam," he said, "it is essential that we should obtain some food. I don't wish to leave you alone until we are better acquainted with our whereabouts. Can you walk a little way toward the trees, or shall I assist you?"

Iris immediately stood up. She pressed her hair back defiantly.

"Certainly I can walk," she answered. "What do you propose to do?"

"Well, madam—"

"What is your name?" she interrupted imperiously.

"Jenks, madam. Robert Jenks."

"Thank you. Now listen, Mr. Robert Jenks. My name is Miss Iris Deane. On board ship I was a passenger and you were a steward—that is, until you became a seaman. Here we are equals in misfortune, but in all else you are the leader. I am quite useless. I can only help in matters by your direction."

Plodding together through the sand.

so I do not wish to be addressed as 'madam' in every breath. Do you understand me?"

"As you wish, Miss Deane," he said.

"The fact remains that I have many things to attend to, and we really must eat something."

"What can we eat?"

"Let us find out," he replied, scanning the nearest trees with keen scrutiny.

They plodded together through the sand in silence. Physically they were a superb couple, but in manner they resembled senecrowns. Both, of course, were bareheaded. The sailor's jersey and trousers were old and torn, and the sea water still weighed loudly in his heavy boots with each step.

But Iris was in a deplorable plight. Her hair fell in a great wave of golden brown strands over her neck and shoulders. Every hairpin had vanished, but with a few dexterous twists she coiled the flying tresses into a loose knot. Her beautiful muslin dress was rent and dragged. It was drying rapidly under the ever increasing power of the sun, and she surreptitiously endeavored to complete the fastening of the open portion about her neck.

Suddenly he gave a glad shout. "By Jove, Miss Deane, we are in luck's way! There is a fine plantain tree."

The pangs of hunger could not be resisted. Although the fruit was hardly ripe, they tore at the great bunches and ate ravenously. Iris made no pretense in the matter, and the sailor was in worse plight, for he had been on duty continuously since 4 o'clock the previous afternoon.

At last their appetite was somewhat appeased, though plantains might not appeal to a gourmand as the solitary joint.

"Now," decided Jenks, "you must rest here a little while, Miss Deane. I'm going back to the beach. You need not be afraid. There are no animals to harm you, and I will not be far away."

"What are you going to do on the beach?" she demanded.

"To rescue stores, for the most part."

"May I not come with you. I can be of some little service surely?"

He answered slowly: "Please oblige me by remaining here at present. In less than an hour I will return, and then perhaps you will find plenty to do."

She read his meaning intuitively and shivered. "I could not do that," she murmured. "I would faint. While you are away I will pray for them, my unfortunate friends."

As he passed from her side he heard her sobbing quietly.

When he reached the lagoon he halted suddenly. Something started him. He was quite certain that he had counted fourteen corpses. Now there were only twelve. The two Lascars' bodies which rested on the small group of rocks on the verge of the lagoon had vanished.

Where had they gone?

AFTER THE PRIZES

CANDIDATES ARE SENDING IN MANY NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

Pictures of the Young Ladies in the Race Will Be Presented From Time to Time.

(From This Day's Daily).

On account of the festivities incident to the Fourth of July, and the fact that the New Era office was closed most of the day yesterday, the count last night did not show as large a vote as usual. Only one change is noted, and this is in District No. 11, in which Miss Marguerite Bacon takes the lead over Miss Mary Thomas. District No. 2, which has held the lead from the first for the highest number of votes cast, again shows up in this regard, there having been nearly twenty thousand votes cast in this district alone. Other districts are coming strong, though, and first honors may be wrested from No. 2. Miss Alva Lewis, in district No. 5, shows a good increase and materially lessens the lead of Miss Ruby Lackey.

MISS MOLLY NICHOLS, District No. 1. Who has held the lead in this district since the contest first began.

The interest which has been aroused among the candidates in the contest for the special prizes which will be given for the seven largest lists of new subscribers sent in during the month of July has far exceeded the hopes of the management of the paper. New subscribers are being received already in considerable numbers, and every candidate who has been communicated with in regard to this special contest has expressed herself as being very much enthused over it and expects to capture one of the prizes. The fact that no announcements will be made of how the candidates stand in this special contest until after the close adds a spice to it which makes it doubly interesting.

The feature of using cuts of the various candidates has also injected new interest into the contest. The likeness of the candidates will appear from time to time until the contest closes and the public can see for themselves what a fine looking lot of young ladies they are. If any one, like the gentleman in Washington, D. C., wants to vote for the prettiest candidate it will now be up to him to make his selection for himself from the pictures which appear in the paper.

FILES A PETITION

IN BANKRUPTCY IN THE UNITED STATES COURT

The Unsecured Liabilities of Dr. William M. Leverett Amount to $550.45—Assets $1465.50.

Dr. William Moore Leverett, colored, has filed in the federal court a petition in bankruptcy. The petition is unusual in that it sets forth the names of only ten creditors and was evidently forced by the $500 judgment in the Christian circuit court rendered against Dr. Leverett in favor of Annie Belle Phelps, for breach of promise to marry. The largest indebtedness is to the Planters' Bank and Trust company, of Hopkinsville, for $1,002, secured by a mortgage on real estate valued at $1,100. The unsecured liabilities amount to $550.45, including the $500 judgment and attorneys' fees. The judgment bears interest from June 14, 1906. The assets are a $1,100 house and lot and household goods valued at $365.50. After the mortgage is settled all of the property is claimed as exempt.
