WEEKLY NEW ERA.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

HOPKINSVILLE, CHRISTIAN COUNTY, KENTUCKY, FRIDAY, JULY 13 1906.

VOLUME XXXV, NO. 31

LOYALTY IS SHOWN

BY SUBSCRIBERS IN VARIOUS DISTRICTS OF COUNTY.

Only One Change Made in the Latest Count in New Era's Mammoth Cave Contest.

Voting in the Mammoth Cave contest from Monday night to

MISS LILLIE OWEN

Who again takes the lead in District No. 3.

Wednesday night was satisfactory, and this caused marked increases in several places.

Only one district shows a change in the standing of its candidates, this being the Third District, which has regularly had a shake-up for the past several counts. This time Miss Lillie Owen again takes the lead by a scant fifty-three votes over Miss Nannie Reeder. The contest in this district has been warm from the very beginning and promises to keep up in interest until the very close. All the young ladies who are entered are quite popular and they and their friends are working hard.

Other districts show big gains, and while no changes are recorded in any except the Third, there are moves made in the standing for the county at large.

Miss Maud Helsley, daughter of Squire H. C. Helsley, of Holley's Mill, is entered as a new candidate in district No. 10, and she starts with a big vote, and will doubtless prove a strong candidate.

The loyalty of the residents of the various districts to the candidates of their immediate neighborhood, is wonderful. In many instances people have either come and subscribed or renewed their subscription if they were already taking the paper, and voted their coupon for the young lady living nearest them, when they were not acquainted with her. This is explained by the fact that they prefer to have one of their neighbors get the trip rather than some one else further away.

TWO WEEKS LONGER

THE TOBACCO TRUST INVESTIGATION MAY CONTINUE.

Hopkinsville Agents of American Snuff Co. Testify—Other Witnesses From Here Will Be Summoned.

From present indications the investigation of the Tobacco Trust

MISS LEDLEY LOGAN,
The Leader in District No. 6.

which is now in progress before the Federal Grand jury at Nashville will continue for ten days or two weeks more. Each day, according to the Bureau, is said to develop facts, which, in the minds of those conducting the investigation are worthy of consideration, necessitating the summoning of additional witnesses.

It is said that a large number of Hopkinsville and Christian County tobacco men will testify. William

CAPT. DREYFUS, DEVIL'S ISLAND VICTIM, IS FULLY VINDICATED.

CAPTAIN ALFRED DREYFUS.

PARIS, France, July 12.—The court of appeals today handed down its decision in the Dreyfus case, the final plea in which has just been heard, fully vindicating Capt. Alfred Dreyfus and restoring him to his former rank and honors in the army. Capt. Dreyfus waived all claims to monetary damages.

Capt. Dreyfus was dismissed from the French army on the allegation

M. Hancock, of the American Snuff Company, and Mr. Cornett and other buyers for the company have already appeared before the jury and been examined by Hon. Henry Taft, brother of the Secretary of war, and Attorneys Levy and Grosvenor, of New York. The process server called on Mr. Hancock one morning at five o'clock and found that gentleman in bed. He courteously apologized for the untimely hour of his visit but said he wanted to catch an early train out of town. Mr. Hancock was asked three searching questions by the grand jury and told to report before them again next week.

An effort was made to summon Ed R. Tandy at Clarksville but he was in this city at the time. Ed Beach was before the grand jury yesterday and Chas. S. Millin of Cadiz also testified. Congressman A. O. Stanley, who has played an important part in bringing about the investigation is in Nashville this week.

ANOTHER STABBING

(From Tuesday's Daily)

A stabbing affray which may result fatally, occurred this morning on the farm of J. W. Lander near Church Hill when Courtney Henry, a boy, stabbed Henry Giles, a sixty year old man between the shoulders. Both are colored.

Executor's Sale.

As executor for Mrs. Mary A. Kennedy, deceased, I will on July 16th, at 10 a. m., offer for sale at public auction at the late residence on Jessup avenue, all her household and personal effects. Terms made known on day of sale.

W. T. WILLIAMSON, Executor.

MISS LOLA DURHAM,
Of District No. 9.

ALL THREE GUILTY

JIM YOUNG IS GIVEN A TWENTY YEAR SENTENCE.

His Father and Mother Sent to Penitentiary for Two Years, Each, as Accessories.

LAFAYETTE, Ky., July 12.—The jury in the case of Jim Young and his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Young, charged with the murder of John Wallace near Weaver's Store just across the state line, today at Dover brought in a verdict of guilty and sentenced Jim Young to twenty years in the penitentiary and his parents to two years, each.

MISS JULIA ELLIOT,
Of District No. 4.

The killing of Wallace was one of the most sensational which ever occurred in this section, the murdered man being struck over the head with a stick which was alleged to have been wielded by Jim Young. His mother and father were convicted of being accessories and sentenced to two years. The defendants were represented by J. T. Rice and J. S. Raggsdale, and the prosecuting attorney was assisted by Lewis and Brandon.

Dogwood Doings.

Rev. H. C. Ford preached here Sunday and Sunday night.

Everybody went to the 31st of July at saddle's Grove and had a good time. We would be glad if this day came more than once a year.

Quite a number of people from here attended preaching at Pleasant Hill Sunday. The Venerable J. C. Surin preached, this being his annual visit to this church where he was ordained to preach.

Miss Lena Foster of South Christian spent last week with her cousin in Miss Bernard King.

Miss Mina Wood of Sinking Fork visited her sister Mrs. Wick King last week.

Miss Annie Littlefield of Oak Grove visited Miss Ellen Yancey recently.

Mr. Willie Clark, who has been at work at Henderson for the Home Telephone Co., spent part of last week at the home of his mother Mrs. Allie Clark. He left last Friday for Lima, Ohio, where he has accepted a position with the same company.

Wheat threshing is in progress in this neighborhood. Messrs. Johnson and Tucker are doing most of the threshing.

Mrs. Joe Pyle, of Henderson, is visiting her sister Mrs. Humphrey Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. King were in the city this week on business.

Mr. Rodman Duvall who is at work in Hopkinsville spends most every Sunday in this neighborhood, where he formerly lived. "Old-time memories ne'er may die."

Crofton Cullings.

Dr. and Mrs. G. W. Loran, of Nortonville, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. R. McCord.

Mr. George Davis is visiting his son, Dixon, in Dawson.

Messrs. Sam Gilkey and Isaiah Hendrix, of Hopkinsville, are spending this week at home with their parents.

Mr. Wallace Bennett is the guest of his sister, Mrs. Ollie Bowling.

Miss Maud Finley and Messrs. Tom and Lawson Ashmore, of St. Charles, spent Sunday here.

Dr. S. H. Williams left Tuesday for Auburn to visit his brother Byron.

Mr. Ed. Woodson, from Tennessee, is the guest of his uncle, Mr. Charlie Woodson.

Miss Hoard is visiting her uncle, Mr. M. A. Meacham.

Mrs. Belle Myers is visiting Mrs. Charlie Williams in Auburn.

Miss Cora Brown is quite sick of typhoid fever.

Mr. Ernest Cansler and Dr. R. M. Ray are each reported better.

The ice cream supper at the Universalist church Saturday night was very successful.

Rev. H. C. Ford will preach at the Christian church Sunday morning and evening.

HOPE.

Sinking Fork Notes.

There will be preaching at the Christian church Sunday and Sunday night by Rev. Mr. Story.

Miss Myna Wood began her school at Pleasant last Monday.

Miss Berta Hiser, of Hopkinsville, visited her sister, Mrs. W. C. Stevens, Sunday.

Mr. W. L. Buie and wife spent Sunday at Mr. Leslie Haddock's.

Misses Hattie Wood and Fannie Hill spent Sunday at Mr. J. R. Torian's.

Mr. Fred Sizemore is on the sick list.

Dr. E. A. North spent Sunday night in Cerulean.

Miss Bessie Daniel visited Miss Berta McRae last week.

Sunday school at this place is progressing nicely.

SUFFERINGS OVER

(From Thursday's Daily)

Mrs. Lee Wood died last night at her home near old Bellevue, after a long illness of a bronchial trouble. She was about 65 years of age and had been a lifelong and consecrated member of the Baptist church. Several children, among whom are Mrs. M. H. McGrew, of this city, Mrs. Jack Torian and Mrs. John Thurmond, of the county, and Wallace Wood, clerk of Todd county, survive her.

Interment will take place tomorrow in the family burying ground.

WHEAT IS BLOWN UP

ELKTON, July 12.—A stack of wheat on the farm of W. R. Stokes, about two miles from town, was practically destroyed by a charge of dynamite put under it by unknown miscreants. There was from fifty to seventy-five bushels of wheat in the stack. Mr. Stokes had made arrangements with a machine man to thresh his wheat, and this party, finding out later that Mr. Stokes was not a member of the Tobacco Growers' association, decided to thresh it.

M. J. S.

Will be in Hopkinsville, Ky. Saturday, July 14th, and will give a stable with a good and extra fine mules. All parties wishing to buy or trade mules will do well to see us as we have some extra fine pairs of mules.

J. H. W. &amp; Co.

MISS HALLIE CLARK,
Of District No. 10.

HANDICAP OF LEAD

DID NOT INTERFERE WITH SPEED
OF NEGRO.Two "Alleged Members of Lawless
Gang of South Christian Blacks
Arrested by Deputy Sheriff.

(From Friday's Daily)

Sam Reeves, a negro wanted on warrants charging him with gaming, disturbing public worship and shooting with intent to kill, was shot through the right forearm and the right thigh yesterday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Lucian Cravens.

Several attempts have been made recently to arrest Reeves and yesterday the officers received the information that he and Jim Allen, also wanted for gaming, could be found at the Norton farm near Mazonville. Deputy Cravens went out alone and captured Allen and learned the exact whereabouts of Reeves, who was at a wheat threshing nearby. He telephoned to town for other officers, as Reeves was known to be a dangerous man, and when Jailer Will Johnson and Deputy J. W. Smith arrived in answer to the summons, Johnson and Cravens went to the wheat field while Smith was left to guard Allen.

Arriving at the threshing Deputy Cravens got out of the buggy and went around the machine where Reeves was sitting on a sack of wheat. The officer was within a few feet of the negro when he ordered him to surrender, but instead of obeying the order Reeves jumped up and raced off across the field. Deputy Cravens drew his pistol and fired twice in the air but these shots having no effect he fired twice in the direction of the fleeing man but he kept up his pace. Mr. Johnson who was still seated in the buggy, hearing the shots and seeing the negro running off, whipped up his horse and gave chase until he came to a wire fence, when he kept up the race on foot and finally caught his man about half a mile from the starting point. When he came up to his quarry he learned that two of Deputy Cravens' bullets had taken effect, one entering the rear of the right thigh and lodging under the skin in front and the other passing through the right forearm. Neither wound is serious.

Both negroes were brought to jail and locked up and Reeves' wounds were dressed by a surgeon.

Reeves bears a bad reputation, he having been mixed up in numerous scrapes. Last year he was arrested by Constable George Clark, but told the officer after the arrest had been made that he had a gun there certainly would have been a duel as he would let no one man arrest him when he was armed.

For several days past officers have been visiting the neighborhood from this city to Longview, numerous complaints having come in of the actions of what seemed to be an organized gang of negroes of the younger generation. On a number of occasions public worship has been seriously interfered with and at times literally broken up by pistol shooting and other means, and it is said that hundreds of shots are fired nearly every night by parties driving along the Clarksville pike. One man reported that last Sunday he was sure there were as many as five hundred shots fired within hearing of his home.

The depredations of the gang have extended to other annoyances to the citizens living in that section, and every law abiding citizen both white and black, condemn the lawlessness.

BECKHAM'S CAMPAIGN

For United States Senatorship Opened at Owenton.

Governor Beckham was the principle speaker at the Fourth of July celebration at Owenton. For the most part the Governor's speech was a discussion of State politics. He said that the people of Owen county had always been his friends and supporters and that he could think of no more suitable place to deliver his first public utterances in his contest for the United States Senatorship. He declared that he asked for no endorsement of his acts as governor, that if he had been true to his people he had done nothing more than his duty and that his reward was the good opinion of the people. He announced himself as favoring the nomination of W. J. Bryan for the presidency in 1908.

A Tragic Finish.

A watchman's neglect permitted a leak in the great North Sea dyke, which a child's finger could have stopped, to become a ruinous break, devastating an entire province of Holland. In like manner Kenneth McIver, of Vanceboro, Me., permitted a little cold to go unnoticed until a tragic finish was only averted by Dr. King's New Discovery. He writes: "Three doctors gave me up to die of lung inflammation, caused by a neglected cold; but Dr. King's New Discovery saved my life. Guaranteed best cough and cold cure, at L. L. ## TIMES SAYS JAMES

WILL MAKE THE RACE FOR GOV-ERNOR OF KENTUCKY.Has Left for London to Attend Inter-
Parliamentary Union.—Expect
Announcement Soon.A special to the Louisville Times from Washington says:

"A new factor in the race for the Democratic nomination for governor of Kentucky may be Representative Ollie James, of Martin, according to indications. Mr. James left Washington last night for New York and from there will sail on the White Star liner Baltic for Liverpool, accompanied by Mrs. James, who arrived here from Marion a few days ago. Mr. James has been selected by interparliamentary group in congress to attend the world's interparliamentary union at London this month. Others similarly honored are John Sharp Williams and Representatives Burton of Ohio; McGreeary of Pennsylvania and Bartoldt, of Missouri. James will be gone a month or more.

It has been known here for some time that he has received a great many letters from prominent Democrats all over Kentucky asking him to enter the race for governor. He has had the matter under consideration, but has refused to discuss the situation. A close friend says that it is reasonably certain his formal announcement will be made soon after his return from Europe in August.

S.S.S. FOR THE BLOOD

The purifying action and curative properties of this great remedy have made "S. S. S. For The Blood" a household saying, and thousands who are today enjoying perfect health owe their recovery from blood or skin diseases to this universally used blood medicine. S. S. S. is made entirely from roots, herbs and barks which possess not only cleansing and healing ingredients but building-up and strengthening properties to keep the blood in perfect order. No one can be well when the blood is impure; they lack the energy and strength that is natural with health, the complexion becomes pale and sallow, the vitality is weakened and they suffer from a general broken down condition. When the waste or refuse matter, which nature intends shall be thrown off, is left in the system because of a sluggish, torpid condition of the expelling members, it is absorbed into the blood, making this vital stream weak, sour and acid, and its condition is manifested by boils, pimples, rashes, blotches and other eruptions of the skin. S. S. S. goes into the circulation and removes every particle of blood, taint or poison of every character, makes the blood fresh and strong and gives energy to the entire body. When the blood has been cleansed by S. S. S. all skin diseases and eruptions pass away and the smooth, clear skin, glowing with health, shows that the body is being nourished by rich, pure blood. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison, etc., are all deep-seated blood disorders, and for their cure nothing equals S. S. S. It does not injuriously affect the most delicate parts of the body and can be taken with perfect safety by old or young. Book on the blood and any medical advice desired without charge.

Talmage Sermon

By Rev.
Frank De Witt Talmage, D.D.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 8.—Hereditary sin is the most potent influence in molding life. It is the character of the father, who points out the only way in which an evil inheritance from one's ancestors may be overcome. The text is 1 Samuel xvii, 58, "Whose son art thou, thou young man?"

If you were to ask the average American, "Would you like to live in Europe?" in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred he would answer, "No." Logically, no. Europe is not the place for a poor man or for the son of a poor man, but only for the aristocrat. If a man has not had a father and a grandfather and a great-grandfather belonging to the nobility he has but little chance of social recognition. There the question which man asks man is not "Who are you?" or "What have you done?" or "What do you know?" but "Who was your father?" "Who was your mother?" People across the seas seem to think more about the cradle in which you were rocked as a baby than about the schools in which you have studied and the business house in which you have worked.

You say this absurdity of reverence for blood is never more demonstrated than in the unhappiness of some of our international marriages. Many of the poverty stricken titled families of Europe want the American ducats. Their palms are itching after the American gold. But when the dukes and the counts and the barons and the princes of the forest daughters and take them to their dingy ancestral halls the titled mothers-in-law and sisters-in-law and cousins-in-law patronize and slight the foreign interloper. Though their wedding robes may be made out of pearls and their dowries be as big as the opened chest of a Monte Cristo, yet because their blood is not "blue" the old families will have as little as possible to do with the American brides. Oh, the absurdity of cringing before blood! Oh the ridiculousness of making a passport for social success out of the muddled opinions of ancestors whose bodies turned to dust one century, two centuries or even four or five centuries ago!

Wrong Ancestor Worship.
Yes, it is absurd to worship at the graves of ancestors, as do some of the titled families of Europe. When in January, 1750, the ancestral bones of the Hohenzollerns were being moved into the new crypts of the great cathedral where they now sleep Frederick the Great, who had a deep reverence for his grandfather, Frederick William, the great elector, had his ancestors' coffin opened. Then he looked with adoration upon the face of the dead. He patted the hands modeling into dust as he turned to his courtiers and said: "Ah, gentlemen, these are the hands which did the great work! These are the sacred hands!" So some people reverence their dead ancestors and never cease to hold high their heads in pride of what their great-grandfathers did, though their own hands have never done anything remarkable and though they have been all their lives mere parasites, depending on others for their support and advancement.

But though Europe may err in too much reverence for the dead, I believe Americans err just as much on the other side when they pretend to despise the sources from which their family blood is derived. The sins of the fathers are visited upon the children, even unto the third and fourth generations. By the same law of hereditary the virtues of the parents are also transmitted through the blood. I want you this morning to analyze your blood in the gospel laboratories. I would put your eye to the gospel microscope and invite you to examine your ancestral propensities. I want you to find your limitations physically, mentally, morally and spiritually. And as some of us learn how narrow our horizons may be on account of our family blood I would also have some of us learn how great our opportunities of life are on account of father and mother and grandparents and great-grandparents whose qualities we inherit.

I would have you do this for your own sake and for the sake of your children. These evil propensities may be checked. These evil tendencies may be controlled. When you learn from your self examination and from your knowledge of your ancestors what your dangers are you know where to station your guard and what temptations you must resist. You may overcome your inherited taint. Most of the philosophers declare that environment and education are more potent in the formation of character than the strongest hereditary influence. You may have the glory of reversing a bad heredity and transmitting to your children an inheritance purified and cleansed.

Reversing the Inheritance.
I would take you, in the first place, and examine you in reference to your ancestors in a physical sense. I would ask you such questions as the life insurance doctor does when you are about to take out a new policy. Are your two parents alive? At what age did they die? Of what disease? Are your uncles and aunts alive? At what age and of what disease did they die? How long did your grandfathers and your mother's side live? How long did your grandparents on your father's side live? What were the diseases of which they died? Are your brothers and sisters all living? What did your brother and two sisters die of? You look up sharply and say to the life insurance physician: "Doctor, I am not here to get my family or my dead relatives insured. I want to get my own life insured. Why are you asking me these questions?" The physician answers: "It is very important for me to ask these questions. I want to find the family weaknesses. If I find that your blood is tainted with the consumption germs or that your parents died very young on account of some nervous complaint or if I find many cancers among your ancestors, I shall not recommend your policy. You must not only submit to a physical examination of your own body, but you must also testify concerning the lives of your father and grandfathers." Why will we not be as rigid in dealing with our own physical health and in recognizing our own physical limitations as are the life insurance companies when we come to them for insurance?

When we examine the records of our family we find that several relatives have died of consumption. The mother died before you were born. A few years you have had a weak throat and have been kept in the house every winter for months on account of a cough. Now, what is the use of trying to live in New England or in Chicago or Minneapolis? What is the use of your taking a clerkship in a dark store, out of the sunlight, where you have to be housed day in and day out? Why not go to Texas or Florida or Colorado or California, where you can work and live out of doors all the time? Or perhaps your ancestral weakness is found in the digestion. You inherited a weak stomach from your father. What are you doing for it? Are you dieting yourself? Do you take care that you have the proper kind of food to eat and that you masticate it very slowly? Or perhaps your ancestral weakness is a weak nervous system. Do you see that you cease to work at the right time and go on regularly and systematically to rest? We can approach all these things at our ancestors, but some of their bodies, with all their physical strength and weaknesses, are reproduced in our own. "Whose son art thou, thou young man?" Were you well born physically? If you were not well born, are you guarding against the physical weaknesses you inherited from your father and grandfather and great-grandfather?

Another Kind of Inheritance.
But I make a step further in my subject and assert that we inherit our ancestors' mental tendencies as well as their strength of lungs and stomach and heart and liver. We inherit the gray matter in our brain as well as the depth of chest and clearness of vision. We inherit the ability of our minds to think and to reason as well as the conformation of our craniums, within the dome of which that brain is protected and thinks and plans and studies the problems of life. We recognize the intellectual qualities of the mind in which the lower orders of animals are produced. Why should we not be willing to grant that man inherits his mental tendencies also?

You can take one of the most ordinary animals, if you will, away from his parents when he is very young and never let him associate with his kind, and yet that animal will develop the mental characteristics of his family. But I make a step further, perhaps, the child, while in the arms of the mother, has never seen since he was a few weeks old. Some years ago a friend was talking to a professor of one of the New England colleges. He said, "I do not believe all this stuff told about beavers being able to build dams." The professor said nothing at the time. A few weeks later he sent his skeptical friend a little baby beaver, which he had bought from a hunter. This beaver became a tame pet in the family. The beaver, if rightly domesticated, becomes as lovable as a little dog. All day long he sits by the water. He does not seem to have any desire to build a dam. But one day a leaky ball was put in the back kitchen. No sooner did the little animal see it than he ran out in the yard and brought back a chip in his mouth and began to build a dam. The skeptical friend of the professor came in and saw the beaver at work. He ordered the ball to be left just where it was and kept all of water. As the water continued to leak out of the ball the little beaver outlined to work at his dam. And, says the Levinson Journal, from which the account was taken, within four weeks that little beaver, who had never seen another beaver building, constructed a solid dam all around that leaking ball.

The Theory of Mental Inheritance.
So it is with the inherited abilities of the human mind. A child may be taken from his parents when young, yet that child's mind will to a certain extent be a reproduction of some ancestor's mind, whom he may never have seen or heard of. This fact can be demonstrated in many ways. I was never more impressed with this theory of mental inheritance than when, some years ago, I was studying the statistics and the records of some of our insanity experts. Dr. Hammond tells us of one family record which he investigated. A man had three children. One night while taking a warm bath the father committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor. Time passed on and the children grew up to manhood and womanhood. When the eldest boy reached the age at which his father died he killed himself in the same way. At the same age the second son killed himself with a razor in a warm bath. At the same age the only remaining child, a daughter, committed suicide in the same way. And, stranger still, the only child of the daughter, at about the same age, killed himself with a razor. Does any one affirm that the mental tendency of this father was not inherited by the three children and by the grandchild? Dr. Strahan, in that wonderful book entitled "Suicide and Insanity," gives illustration after illustration of parents afflicted with suicidal mania whose children and grandchildren and great-grandchildren have suffered from the same fatal affliction.

Now, if we can inherit the mental weaknesses of our forefathers we can also inherit their mental strength. It is surely something more than a coincidence that we have had in our national history statesmen and patriots whose sons or grandsons have served their country with the ability of their ancestors and have resembled them in mental caliber. The Adamses, father and son, the Harrisons, grandfather and grandson. In our list of presidents are conspicuous illustrations. So we have seen the Beechers produce ministers because their ancestors were bankers because their ancestors were bankers. I always did admire the policy of the presidents of the United States, which is to give a preference to the sons of the noted American soldiers when they make their appointments to West Point. As a rule it is far easier to make a soldier out of a boy whose father and grandfather were soldiers than to make a soldier out of the son of a merchant or out of one whose ancestors were tillers of the soil. Learn the tendency of your minds by studying the records of your ancestors' mental accomplishments. Our mental acumen comes from them as well as our physical equipment. "Whose son art thou?" From whom didst thou get the gray matter of thy brain?

Inheritance of Capacity.
We inherit our physical and mental tendencies, then, but we do more than that. We also inherit our capacities. As some people are born with a musical gift or an artist's gift or with weak legs or with weak eyes, so some people are born impulsive or lethargic or gruff or gentle or lazy or energetic or brave or cowardly. Our way of dealing with the brain or the body is just as much an ancestral heritage as the body and the mind themselves. Let me illustrate my thought by a very common incident of everyday life.

Here, for instance, is a child born with the quality of cautiousness well developed. This child's father and mother and grandfathers and great-grandfathers were all cautious. The male ancestors were not men of adventure. They were not fishermen, defying the storms off the banks of Newfoundland. But these ancestors were quiet merchants of the city. What is the result? This country boy who rears over the fields, heretofore laughs at the city boy as a coward. By birth and education he is in direct contrast to him and is afraid of nothing. The horses' hoofs and the barking dogs and the snuffling snakes and the deadly tarantulas mean no more to him than so many harmless doves or flying cottonball rabbits. In the one case the child both by birth and by education is a cautious child, while in the other, the country boy, by birth and education, knows not what physical fear means.

But let us go further and find this inherited tendency in the moral and the spiritual life. Here, for instance, is a child born the son and the grandson and the great-grandson of criminals. Oh, yes, those ancestors may have been physically brave. They may have been brave as highwaymen to halt the stagecoach at the point of the revolver or brave as unarmed criminals to wrench the pistol out of the grasp of the officer who came to arrest them. But for years those ancestors may have been living in the vitriol atmosphere of immorality and sin. Now, can any one affirm that that child, coming from such morally diseased ancestry, has as much disposition to live a good, moral life as has the child who is the son and the grandson and the great-grandson of Christian parents? No, not "The inherited dispositions are different. The one disposition almost sweeps the child off his feet and leads him like a running stream away from God. The other inherited disposition, like a swift moving current, carries him toward God. The body is inheritable. The mental acumen is inheritable. The dispositions of that body, mind and soul are also inheritable.

Moral Allowances For Them.
The sins of the fathers and grandfathers, as well as their virtues, are visited upon the children even to the third and the fourth generations. I believe history and statistics prove it. Now, what are to be the great practical deductions? In the first place, I would charge you to have sympathy with those you presently as well as by environment in childhood had a bad start in life. Do not be too harsh upon the wayward child unless you find out who was their father and who their mother. If even with all the good physical and moral ancestral blood flowing in your veins you have had such a hard time to do right, how much harder must it be for that man to do right who was born wrong and whose early parental training has not been what it ought to have been? By the law of birth you have no right to judge all men alike. It is not fair or just or right. Why are we not ready to confess the difference of man from man in a moral and a spiritual and a physical sense?

In almost every family there are certain moral or spiritual delinquencies to be found in the ancestral records. We do not speak much about their shortcomings in public. The family skeletons are nearly always put in the fireproof corners of the darkest closets. We not only shut the doors of these closets, but doubly lock them with two different locks. Then we plug up the keyholes.

Now, my friends, I do not want you to publish your past family difficulties. But what I do want is for you better to forget the moral weaknesses of that ancestor, just as you should guard your body against the tendency to consumption which you may have inherited from your mother you should guard against the special moral or the spiritual weakness which you may have inherited from your father or one of your grandparents. Brother, you cannot afford to trifle with that intoxicating glass. You cannot afford to do it any more than could Henry Wilson, who was once vice president of the United States. For years he was one of the very few prominent officials in the city of Washington who would turn down his glass at the public banquets. One day some one asked him why he was so pronounced upon the temperance question, and he replied: "I was brought up in the home of a drunkard. In order to be free of the sight of a drunken father, as a little boy I ran away from home and changed my name. The blood of a drunken parent is in my veins, and I cannot afford to trifle with this evil." Henry Wilson was not the real name of the vice president of the United States in 1873. My friend, if the intoxicating fumes are in your blood, beware how you trifle with the curse which destroyed the manhood of that noble parent.

Beware of Speculation.
You, on the other hand, cannot afford to enter any speculative business. Your father may have lost a fortune in Wall Street. He may not have been a gambler with cards, but he was with stocks. You cannot afford to take any business position away from home. You have a noble Christian wife and three children. As long as you are in their surroundings you are all right. But beware of that moral delinquency of your ancestor. Better give up that membership at the club. You may have greater opportunity there to yield to that evil tendency. You know it. Beware! You are all right if by the help of God you turn and flee that danger as you would run from a mad dog. But do not stand and hesitate. Do not let that evil temptation which overflows from your ancestors put its fatal hand upon you; else you are gone. Run from that temptation. In God's name, run, run, run!

Now, do I wish to discourage you. These evil propensities in your nature may be turned to useful purposes. The philosophers tell us that dirt is only matter in the wrong place. The qualities which cause you so much anxiety may be used for your own good and the good of your country and the good of Christ's cause. The ingenuity and skill in the use of tools which the burglar employs in breaking into houses and picking the locks of safes is not an evil, but only a valuable power prostituted to evil purposes. With his powers he might be one of the most useful mechanics. So your evil propensities may be turned to your advantage and to that of society.

Inheriting Virtues.
But shall I stop here? No. The Bible tells us that the sins of the fathers are visited upon the children. But are not the virtues of the parents also transmitted? Then on account of the glorious Christian triumphs of your parents and grandparents and great-grandparents are these not mighty possibilities of Christian usefulness also within your own lives? By the very words of praise which you are continually using in speaking of your ancestors I know they are possible to you. I know that if a woman was your mother? "Ah," you answer, "my mother was one of the noblest Christian women who ever lived. I cannot think of her ever doing anything of which I could say, 'I wish mother had not done that.' We never had much money, but she always had enough to help the needy. Then she was the best nurse in our town. She was always hunting up some poor sick people and staying with them overnight. She never spoke in public except to pray. But my, she could pray! Then my father, what a fine man he was. Why, he was so honest and fair and true that whenever the neighbors had a dispute they would come to him and let him settle it for them. Ah, yes," you say, "that was a beautiful Christian home in which I was brought up. And as far as I can make out my grandparents on both my father's and mother's side were just the same kind of Christian people as were their children." Is that so, my brother? Is that so, my sister? Then I know the possibilities of mighty Christian usefulness are within you. You have inherited these possibilities. Will you not here and now surrender your heart to Jesus Christ's service and beg him to make you like those Christian parents who gave you birth?

And as I am now pleading with you not to longer resist these good ancestral tendencies I want to ask you a question. Tell me, do you not at times have a strange, intense longing come into your heart in the quiet of your own room? This yearning and intense sense to say: "Oh, why do I not give up this selfish life of sin? Why do I not become a gentle, pure, noble Christian character, as was my mother or my father or my grandparents and my grandfathers?" Do you know what that longing was? It was the Christian blood of your ancestors pleading with you to lead the Christian life. Will you not obey that call and come and surrender your lives to the Master's service? There are great possibilities of Christian usefulness in you. By your family record I know it. When I ask you the words of my text, "Whose son art thou?" will you here and now answer, "I am the son of a Christian, and by the help and pardon and mercy of my father's and mother's God I will be a Christian too." Whose son art thou, young man? Whose daughter art thou, young woman? Whose? Whose? Art thou a child of God?

BABY'S VOICE

Is the joy of the household, for without it no happiness can be complete. How sweet the picture of mother and babe! Angels smile at and commend the thoughts and aspirations of the mother bending over the cradle. The ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass, however, is so full of danger and suffering that she looks forward to the hour when she shall feel the exquisite thrill of motherhood with indescribable dread and fear. Every woman should know that the danger, pain and horror of childbirth can be entirely avoided by the use of Mother's Friend, a scientific liniment for external use only, which toughens and renders pliable all the parts, and assists nature in its sublime work. By its aid thousands of women have passed this great crisis in perfect safety and without pain.

Net bal. road and bridge and general funds	$ 66,925.69

NOTE.

Heretofore the Levy for General purposes and the Levy for the Road and Bridge Fund have not been kept separate, but the Fiscal Court at the April term having adopted the system of working the roads by taxation only these funds will have to be kept separate when collected hereafter.

The balance in the General fund of $3,245.52, as shown by the Sheriff's settlement, belongs to both these funds and is used to pay claims against both funds. Outside of this small balance there is no money on hand to work roads with during the spring and early summer, and to pay the general expenses of the county, and the Fiscal Court has made arrangements to borrow sufficient money for said purposes on an interest bearing warrant at 5 per cent per annum. By so doing the county will be able to pay cash for all roadwork and supplies for the county.

Winston Henry Passes Away At His Home in Casky.—Other Necrological Notes.

(From Wednesday's Daily)

Mr. Winston Henry, a prominent and influential Christian county planter and a gentleman of distinguished lineage, died this morning at 9 o'clock at his home five miles south of Hopkinsville on the Bradshaw road, in the Casky vicinity.

Heart trouble complicated with other affections from which he had long suffered was the cause of death. He was confined to his bed five months, and was unconscious two days before the end came.

Mr. Henry was one of the best known men in the county, public spirited, and held in the highest esteem, and his death will cause general sorrow. He was a devoted Christian and a member of the Baptist church.

The deceased was born 67 years ago in Scott county, and was a son of Col. William Henry and Aneltha Gano Henry. His father was an officer in the Mexican war, and his grandfather, Gen. Henry, was a youth, was a soldier in the Revolutionary war and a general in the war of 1812. Mr. Winston Henry came when a child to Christian county with his parents. He was twice married, his first wife being Miss Mary Bell, a sister of Capt. C. D. and Capt. Darwin Bell. There are surviving daughters of this union, one single and three married, the latter being Mrs. M. B. King, of this county, Mrs. T. U. Smith, of Allensville, and Mrs. Geo. T. Wharton, of Ordway, Col. His second wife, who was Miss Mollie Major, survives him. A brother, Col. Gano

Henry, lives in Los Angeles, Cal., and a sister, Mrs. S. H. Burbridge, resides in this city. The family connection is one of the largest in this region.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock, at the late residence, and the remains will be interred in Hopewell cemetery.

Malcolm, the six months old son of Riley West, died Monday and was buried yesterday at the family burying ground north of town.

One of Hopkins county's oldest and most respected citizens, John B. Earle, of Madisonville, was buried at that place yesterday. He died at his home Sunday after having passed some two years in very feeble health. The now thrifty industrial town of Earlington was named for him, he having been largely interested during its early period in the Honor Coal Mining Company of Hopkins County, now the St. Bernard Coal Company. Mr. Earle is credited with having stuck the first pick in the hillside at the opening of the first commercial coal mine in Hopkins County.

Edward Clinton Higgins, the 18 months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hancock Higgins, died last night of a complication of diseases after a protracted and painful illness. He was an unusual bright and attractive child, and the sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved parents. The interment will take place this afternoon at four o'clock at the residence of James M. Higgins, at Sixth and Clay streets.

His many friends in Hopkinsville will greatly regret to learn of the death at his home in Chicago Saturday, of Mr. Chas. H. Palmer, National field Superintendent of the Gideons.

Mr. Palmer was in this city last January and held a series of interesting meetings under the auspices of the Hopkinsville Gideon Camp. He made a good impression upon all who heard him during his meetings here. He was a forcible speaker and a consecrated worker for the cause of religion.

DISTRICT UNION

OF AMERICAN SOCIETY OF EQUITY IS FORMED.

Adopt Resolution Looking to the Selling of all Tobacco Through a Committee.

To the Editor of the New Era:

The American Society of Equity held an important meeting at Bald Knob School House Saturday, July 7th for the purpose of forming a District Union and the following locals were represented: Haley's Mill Local No. 1 and Haley's Mill Local No. 2, Bald Knob and Bluff Springs, and Kirkmansville and No. 5 School House, and the following members were appointed by the Chairman as a committee on resolutions: Bald Knob Committee, W. R. Overton, J. T. Lile and Jessie Bass; Highway Local Committee, J. C. Hight, Mark Kelley and Andy Wagner; Bluff Spring Local, J. M. Rice, F. B. McCown and C. C. Patterson; Kirkmansville Local Committee, J. A. Utley, Jonah Hale and Nick Wagner.

The following resolutions were adopted: "We recommend that each local elect or appoint one of its members to form an Executive Committee and said committee to convene at its earliest possible convenience and elect one of its members to act as chairman of said board and said committee's duty is to have charge of all tobacco raised in this district union in regard to selling and pricing and securing advances on same and disposing of same to the best advantage."

"And we also further recommend that each local elect or appoint a grading committee of three members from each local to go and grade the tobacco in their local, and report same to the executive committee in due time for selling, etc."

The A. S. of E. is up to date this year as they are already making the arrangements to be prepared to make prices on their 1906 crop as early as possible and Christian county only needs a few good men to organize farmers to control the prices in this county as they do in other counties in this state.

Yours very truly,
H. C. Helsley, Chairman Dis. Com.
Geo. Atkinson, Sec'y. Dis. Com.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS.

All taxpayers whose taxes are not paid on the first day of November shall be deemed delinquent, and such taxes shall bear interest at the rate of six per cent per annum from the first day of November until paid.

Within fifteen days after any taxpayer becomes delinquent the sheriff of the county where the property is liable, shall make and certify to the county clerk a list of all such delinquents, the property assessed and the amount of tax, penalty and interest due the state, county or district and the date when interest begins, which list shall be by the clerk filed in his office and recorded. The county clerk, shall within ten days after this list is filed, issue a tax warrant against each delinquent in the name of the commonwealth of Kentucky.

The tax warrant shall be directed to the sheriff commanding him to collect of the delinquent the tax, interest, penalty and cost and if not paid on demand, to distrain and sell the estate of the delinquent, or the estate owned by him at the time the assessment was made, notwithstanding the existence of any lien upon the same.

DAVID SMITH,
Sheriff Christian County.

CAUGHT AT PRINCETON

Walter Pettus, the negro who stabbed and instantly killed Brice Edwards at the Illinois Central depot Monday morning, and who made his escape, was captured last night at Princeton. Lieut. Booth Morris, of the police force, went after him this morning and will return with him tonight.

DUFFY MAKES GOOD

PROMISES TO SUE FOR RECOVERY OF PENALTIES.

Former Sheriff Lem R. Davis is Defendant in Action Brought By The County Attorney.

County Attorney John C. Duffy has filed suit in the name of the Commonwealth of Kentucky against former Sheriff L. R. Davis and his bondsmen, T. J. Tate, J. P. Tate, O. A. West and W. T. Davis, for the recovery by the state of the amount of penalties collected by Mr. Davis while he was sheriff during the years of 1902, 1903 and 1904, and which the plaintiff declares in his petition was kept back by Mr. Davis and not paid into the state treasury. The amounts as given in the petition which it is alleged were received by Mr. Davis as penalties and which are now sought to be recovered, are as follows: For 1902, $479.72; for 1903, $680.80; for 1904, $829.57, total $2090.56.

This suit is the aftermath of the political campaign of last fall in which Mr. Duffy charged in his speeches throughout the county, that Mr. Davis had no legal right to appropriate these penalties to his own uses, but that they rightfully belonged to the state. He further promised that if elected he would use every effort to recover these amounts and the filing of the suit indicates that he intends to carry out his part of the compact.

Good Position.

Thomas Binns, formerly of this city, but for a number of years manager of the elevator and shipping business of the Dunlop mills at Clarksville, has been appointed manager of the Nashville, Tenn., Warehouse & Elevator company.

That Dog Law.

The last legislature taxed each dog one dollar. The constitution exempts from taxation personal property to the amount of two hundred and fifty dollars. Suppose an individual owns personal property to the amount of one hundred dollars and some dogs not worth ten dollars, can he be made to pay this tax? Can the legislature nullify the exemption of the constitution by laying a specific tax upon a special item of personal property without reference to its value?

This dog tax is un-democratic. A fundamental principle of Democracy is: "No taxation except such as is necessary to support the government economically administered." No part of this tax goes to support the government.

It is in fact no tax, in the proper meaning of the word, but it is a robbery, under the form of law, of the many to pay the losses of the few.

What a manifest injustice to force me to pay a man for the loss of a sheep when my dog never was in twenty miles of where the sheep was killed.

Did Gov. Beckham "approve" this wrong, or did he merely let it become a law by omitting to veto it?

It will be the duty of the next assessor, if this law remains in the statutes, to list the name, age and sex of each dog; but is the present assessor under any obligation to do this? He was elected and took his office before this law was passed. He took an oath to perform his duties according to law, but of course it was according to the law in existence at the time he qualified. He is, it might be said, under a quasi contract to perform certain duties, under certain penalties, with a certain salary. Has the legislature any more right to require him to perform additional labors not attached to the office when he qualified than he would have to refuse to perform a part of the duties fixed when he accepted the office?

Senator Rives and Representative Southall are lawyers, with responsibilities to their constituents; will they answer these questions?

For Congress,
A. O. STANLEY,
of Henderson County.

President Roosevelt has decided to make a long tour through the west and northwest in June 1907, and will embrace the opportunity to discuss many public questions in advance of the presidential nomination for 1908. Whether he will attempt to defend his course in respect to the Morris incident, the Barnes appointment and the Chandler embassy remains to be seen. No doubt he will discuss the beauties of the tariff and of railroad regulation that allows him to ride on free special trains.

Is Secretary Shaw paying his traveling expenses on his numerous political trips, or are the railroads furnishing him free transportation? There is a large "secret service fund" appropriated every year by congress, at the disposal of the secretary of the treasury, for which no sort of accounting is required. What is it used for?

What will the "tennis cabinet" do now that the president has adjourned to Oyster Bay? But, probably Garfield and Pinchot and Murray will need rest from their arduous tennis duties and now have more time for the work the government pays them for doing.

The president constantly talks of a "square deal," but most of his time seems to have been occupied in dealing poor hands to the Democrats.

The regicides were quite willing to be bounced when King Peter tacked a pension to the bounce.

Happy thought for Uncle Sam—set the Central American revolutionists at work digging the Panama canal.

The Cause of Many

Sudden Deaths

There is a disease prevailing in this country that is dangerous because it is so common. It is called "Indigestion." Many suffer from it, and it is the cause of many sudden deaths. It is a disease of the stomach and bowels, and it is caused by eating too much, or eating too fast, or eating too late in the evening. It is a disease that can be cured by taking a little medicine. The medicine is called "Swain's Root." It is a natural remedy, and it is made from the root of a plant that grows in the mountains of the West. It is a powerful laxative, and it is also a tonic. It will cure indigestion, and it will also strengthen the system. It is a medicine that is safe for all ages, and it is a medicine that is easy to take. It is a medicine that is sold in every drug store, and it is a medicine that is sold for fifty cents a bottle. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail, Address Dr. Krimmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

FACTS IN NATURE

Not Only Do We Get Inspiration From Nature, But Health as Well.

For people who are run-down and nervous, who suffer from indigestion or dyspepsia, headache, biliousness, or torpid liver, coated tongue with bitter taste in the morning and poor appetite, it becomes necessary to turn to some tonic or strengthener which will assist Nature and help them to get on their feet and put the body into its proper condition. It is becoming more and more apparent that Nature's most valuable health-giving agents are to be found in forest plants and roots.

Nearly forty years ago, Dr. P. V. Pierce, now consulting physician to the Invalids Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., discovered that by scientifically extracting and combining certain medicinal principles from native roots, taken from our American forests, he could produce a medicine which was marvelously efficient in curing cases of blood disorder and liver and stomach trouble as well as many other chronic or lingering ailments. This concentrated extract of Nature's vitality he named "Golden Medical Discovery." It purifies the blood by putting the stomach and liver into healthy condition, thereby helping the digestion and assimilation of food which feeds the blood. Thoroughly it cures weak stomach, indigestion, torpid liver, or biliousness, and kindred derangements.

If you have coated tongue, with bitter or bad taste in the morning, frequent headaches, feel weak, easily tired, stitches or pain in side, back gives out easily and aches, belching of gas, constipation, or irregular bowels, feel flashes of heat alternating with chilly sensations or kindred symptoms, they point to derangement of your stomach, liver and kidneys, which the "Golden Medical Discovery" will correct more speedily and permanently than any other known agent. Contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients printed in plain English on wrapper.

The sole motive for substitution is to permit the dealer to make a little more profit. He gains; you lose. Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery."

Constipation causes and aggravates many serious diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. One a laxative; two or three are cathartic.

The trouble with a good many people who hope for the best is that they are always ready to believe the worst.

Culture, to some foolish young men and women, means a fling and superior contempt for all except a few choice things. In reality culture means the power of full and delicate appreciation, and the more widely cultured a man is, the more things he knows how to appreciate.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

LESSON III, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JULY 15.

Text of the Lesson, Luke x, 25-37.
Memory Verses, 23, 24—Golden Text, Matt. v, 7—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1905, by American Press Association.]

We are now to have six consecutive lessons in the gospel by Luke in matters recorded only by him. This first one is prefaced by the sending forth of the seventy, the record of their successful mission, their return and report of the same to the Lord, evidently with great surprise that even the demons were subject to them through His name. Our Lord's reply, "Rather rejoice because your names are written in heaven" (verse 20), shows what an all important thing this is in His sight. When we note that the lake of fire will be the portion of all whose names are not in that book of life (Rev. xxi, 19), we may see how serious a matter it is. Jesus rejoiced in spirit and thanked His Father that these things were revealed only to babes, and told the disciples that they were blessed because they had seen these things (verses 21-24). Our lesson introduces us to one who was not a babe, but rather wise and prudent in his own estimation. Perhaps he had overheard or some one had told him of the saying about names written in heaven, and he may also have heard of the works wrought by the seventy and supposed that heaven was a reward for those works; hence his "What shall I do?" Not understanding (for how could he, being only a natural man, I Cor. ii, 14) that works approved by God can only be wrought by saved people having eternal life, he asks what he must do. A similar question was asked by the rich young ruler (Mark x, 17), and something very like it is found in John vi, 28. In each case the answer is suited to the questioner, for he knew all men and what was in man (John ii, 24, 25).

A lawyer was supposed to know the law, so Jesus asked him: "What is written in the law? How readest thou?" (Verse 26.) What is written is the all important question, for since "the Lord hath spoken" (Deut. xxxii, 1; Isa. i, 2) there is nothing more to be said. There is only one correct way to read what is written (Neh. viii, 8), and to do this we must take all in its plain obvious sense. The lawyer answered right, giving a correct summary of the law, quoting from Deut. vi, 5; Lev. xix, 18, and our Lord commended his reply and applied it, saying: "This do and thou shalt live." Our Lord Himself gave the same summary of the law in reply to the question of another lawyer (Matt. xxii, 35-40). But there is no life by the law, for the law is absolutely perfect, and man is wholly sinful and cannot keep it, and all that the law can do is to show man his sin and bring him in guilty before God that he may plead guilty and be saved by grace (Gal. iii, 21, 22; Rom. iii, 19-24).

When the rich ruler had the law set before him, he did not feel condemned, but said, "All these have I kept from my youth up" (Luke xxi, 21; Mark x, 20). The man in our lesson did not say he had kept the law, but he did not feel like pleading guilty, so attempted to justify himself by inquiring, "Who is my neighbor?" We do one of two things always, either justify or condemn ourselves before God (Luke xvi, 15); the latter is the only right thing to do, and when our eyes are opened it is the one thing we will do. See Job xlii, 5, 6; Isa. vi, 5. It is the work of the spirit to convince of sin (John xvi, 8), and we should covet a deep conviction, for only then will we appreciate the Saviour and His great salvation. Perhaps our Lord illustrates to the lawyer the meaning of neighbor by the story known as that of the good Samaritan, and drawing from him an answer as to which of the three was a real neighbor. His application was, "Go and do thou likewise" (verse 37), for all commands to the unsaved to "do" are intended to show us our inability to obey and lead us to Him who is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth (Rom. x, 4). The only rest for sinner or saint is in ceasing from our own work to rest in His finished work, and then, being redeemed, let Him work His works and live His life in us (Eph. iv, 2, 10; Gal. ii, 20; Phil. ii, 13; Eph. ii, 10).

From Jerusalem to Jericho is down grade, and many are on that road regardless of the leader of all thieves and robbers, the roaring lion who is ever seeking to devour and to destroy. Thieves who turn away from God's peace to man's pleasant city of palm trees are sure to fall into some trouble and find few to pity or help. The priest and the Levite both suggest the law, which is powerless to help; the Samaritan is a despised person in the eyes of a Jew and suggests Him who is despised and rejected of men, a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief (Isa. liii, 3).

A study of each of the ten things said of the Samaritan in verses 23, 34, will prove most helpful and all suggestive of our blessed Lord and Saviour. He came where we were dead in our sins, did everything for us and puts us in His own place. He gives healing and joy and makes provision for us all the way. Then He is coming again (verse 35) and will reward all who, like Himself, have walked as He walked (Rev. xxii, 12; Luke xiv, 14). If we follow Him fully, being saved by His blood, we shall be despised as he was (Luke x, 16), but shall have abundant opportunity to prove that we are neighbors to those who need us, as in this lesson, or as in Ex. xii, 4, sharing the redemption Lamb with them, or as in Luke xv, 9, having them rejoice with us over the lost found.

STABBED TO HEART WITH BARLOW KNIFE DELIGHTFUL TRIP TO SUNNY TENNESSEE

FATAL QUARREL AT THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL DEPOT.

Walter Pettus Killed Brice Edwards and Made His Escape.—Tragedy Witnessed by Crowd at Station.

(From Monday's Daily.)
In a difficulty which took place on the platform of the Illinois Central depot this morning, shortly after 6 o'clock, Brice Edwards was instantly killed by Walter Pettus, both parties being colored.

Although there were a number of people on the platform at the time waiting for the northbound train, reports of the killing are more or less conflicting and Pettus was allowed to make his escape and all efforts to locate him since have proven fruitless.

It is said that the trouble started by Edwards walking up to Pettus and charging him with maligning his mother and then striking him over the head with a thin pine board which he had in his hand.

Pettus drew his knife, a single bladed Barlow, and made one vicious swipe at Edwards, the blade entering between the ribs and penetrating to the heart.

Edwards fell to the ground and expired almost instantly while Pettus took to his heels and made good his escape. Officers are searching for him diligently and he will probably be arrested soon.

GROCERY IS SOLD

A deal was closed Saturday afternoon whereby B. B. Rice became the owner of the grocery of Twyman & Ferguson. Mr. Rice took charge this morning and the invoice is being made now.

Mr. Rice, who is a traveling salesman, will not give up his position for the present at least, and the grocery will be under the management of J. R. Ferguson, the junior member of the firm of Twyman & Ferguson. Counselman Joe Twyman, the other member of the firm, has not decided what he will do.

SURPRISE FRIENDS.

Miss Lula Boales and Mr. Frank W. Eldridge surprised their friends Saturday night by marrying. Their mutual and tender regard was known and those who were well acquainted with them had predicted that they would become husband and wife, but that the nuptial day was near at hand had not been intimated.

Shortly before 9 o'clock Saturday night Mr. Eldridge and his sweet-heart, accompanied by Mr. Ross W. Elgin and Mr. Ed Gray, drove to the Methodist parsonage, in the parlor of which they were united in matrimony by the Rev. A. P. Lyon, with an impressive service.

After the ceremony they went to the home of the bride's mother on Sixteenth street where they will reside.

The bride is one of the prettiest young women in the city, gracious in manner and charming in personality. She is a daughter of Mrs. A. G. Boales and is a favorite in a large circle of friends. The fortunate groom is the popular and efficient manager of the big Kress store in this city and is a gentleman of fine business ability and attractive social qualities. His home was formerly in Greensboro, N. C.

Mrs. Cook's Will.

The last will and testament of Mrs. Martha U. Cook was probated this week. It is specified that all the property shall be sold except the household and kitchen furniture and silverware and the proceeds divided. Her husband, Dr. E. R. Cook, is to receive his share under law and $2,000 is to be invested for the benefit of W. C. Cook for his life time, the principal to be inherited by his children.

The balance is to be divided equally among R. L. Cook, Jas. O. Cook and F. P. Cook, the latter's shares to be placed in the hands of the Planter's Bank & Trust Co., for his benefit, to revert to the estate should he die without children. James O. Cook is named as executor without bond and no appraisal or inventory is to be made. The will was dated June 13, 1907 and was witnessed by Jno. B. Trice and W. T. Tandy.

Returns From California.

When Mrs. R. G. Quarles started down the steps of the 5:18 L. & N. passenger train yesterday afternoon at the conclusion of her return trip from Santa Anna, California, she tripped in some manner and fell heavily to the platform, severely spraining her right ankle.

Mrs. Quarles is much improved by her three months' stay in California, and reports that her daughter, Miss Bessie, for the benefit of whose health the trip was primarily made, is also much benefited by the western climate. The latter will not return for several months yet.

To Teachers and Patrons.

There is considerable confusion in some districts on account of a misunderstanding as to which spelling book should be used in the schools. The contract with the publishers of "Read's Word Lessons" does not expire until Jan. 18, 1907, and the "Modern Pronouncing Speller" can not be introduced before that date. Teachers must absolutely refuse to use the "Modern Speller" this year and patrons should not buy it because its use might involve the county in a lawsuit.

HOME ENDORSEMENT

Hundreds of Hopkinsville Citizens Can Tell You All About It.

Home endorsement, the public expression of Hopkinsville people should be evidence beyond dispute for every Hopkinsville reader. Surely the experience of friends and neighbors, cheerfully given by them, will carry more weight than the utterances of strangers residing in far-away places. Read the following: J. B. Cravens, blacksmith, of 320 West 19th St., Hopkinsville, Ky., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills practically gave me a new back. For three or four years a kidney trouble had caused me the most constant and severe aches and pains through my back and compelled me to constantly complain in more than one way. When arising in the morning I felt sore and lame and a great effort to dress myself. The trouble grew worse and a weakness of the kidneys set in which caused me a great deal of annoyance. Willing to try almost anything I purchased Doan's Kidney Pills as soon as I saw them advertised locally and got a box at L. A. Johnson & Co's. drug store. They brought me a great deal of benefit. My back is well and strong now and the trouble with the kidney secretions is much relieved. I have a great deal of faith in Doan's Kidney Pills."

ODD FELLOWS AND REBEKAS VISIT CLARKSVILLE.

Went and Returned on Special Train.—Greatly Enjoyed the Splendid Hospitality Extended.

Members of Green River Lodge No. 54, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and of the Hopkinsville Rebekah Lodge, spent Sunday in Clarksville and New Providence, Tenn., as guests of the Clarksville Odd Fellows.

The day was delightful and inspiring and served to cement most firmly the ties of fraternal regard existing between two of the most flourishing lodges of Kentucky and Tennessee Odd Fellowship.

The occasion was in no sense a picnic or a revel, but due observance with all proper reverence to the Sabbath was paid.

The Hopkinsville Odd Fellows and Rebekahs, nearly two hundred in number, carrying with them Lebkuecher's uniformed brass band, left here at 7:30 o'clock Sunday morning in a special train over the Louisville & Nashville railroad, and arrived about nine o'clock in Clarksville where they were met and greeted with warm cordiality by members of the Clarksville lodges. They marched down Madison street to Pythagoras hall, where an informal reception was held. An address of welcome was eloquently made by Maj. Clay Stacker, grand master of Tennessee Odd Fellows, and there were appropriate responses by Green Champlin, who has recently developed oratorical talent of a rare sort, the Rev. J. M. Rasmussen and W. H. Lee. Selections of sacred music were beautifully rendered by Lebkuecher's band and Charles Kincannon delightfully sang "The Holy City," and there were other appreciated vocal and instrumental numbers. Following the services at the hall, the visitors enjoyed an excellent dinner at the Arlington Hotel as guests of the Clarksville lodges. In the afternoon they were carried to the Tennessee Odd Fellows Home at New Providence. This is beautifully situated, with two large and commodious brick buildings on 180 acres of land, with a fine elevation commanding a striking view of the country that surrounds it. There are fifty children and a number of widows of Odd Fellows in the home, and a few aged members of the order. Here Lebkuecher's band gave a sacred concert which was greatly enjoyed.

A feature of the occasion was an address delivered by Judge M. Savage, Lucian H. Davis and other Hopkinsville speakers also made interesting talks. After an inspection of the home, which was found to be in the best of condition, the Odd Fellows returned to Clarksville and the visitors left for Hopkinsville on their special train, arriving here at seven o'clock. The Clarksville Odd Fellows and Rebekahs and citizens generally left nothing undone that would make the day pleasant and a perfect success, and those who attended are lavish in their praise of the splendid hospitality extended to them.

Want to Sell.

Rev. A. P. Lyon, of the Methodist church, attended last week in Buffalo, Ky., a meeting of the board of education of the Louisville Conference, M. E. Church, South. The object of the meeting was to consider a proposition to take over as conference property the East Lyme college at that place. It is said that the college has made a very liberal proposition, but it will be thoroughly considered by the board before it is accepted. If the college is taken over it will be conducted as a training school to Vanderbilt University.

A Hair Dressing

Nearly every one likes a fine hair dressing. Something to make the hair more manageable; to keep it from being too rough, or from splitting at the ends. Something, too, that will feed the hair at the same time, a regular hair-food. Well-fed hair will be strong, and will remain where it belongs—on the head, not on the comb!

COAL IN KENTUCKY

TOTAL OUTPUT IN 1905 WAS EIGHT MILLION TONS.

Report Filed by Chief Inspector of Mines Shows Amount of Black Diamonds Dug.

Prof. C. J. Norwood, chief inspector of mines and state geologist, has prepared an interesting summary of statistics relating to the production of the commercial coal mines of the state for the calendar year of 1905.

The report shows that in Christian county the Empire Coal and Mining company produced $2,744 tons.

The figures annually presented by the inspector are always less than those published by the federal bureau, since those given by the latter are supposed to cover all the coal dug, including the production of the small "country" and "neighborhood" banks as well as that of the commercial mines and mines in which over five persons are employed. The statistics presented in the inspector's reports are compiled from monthly returns received from the mines, carefully checked in various ways. For the last three years there has been an annual difference of over 330,000 tons between the amount of commercial coal reported by the statistical bureau of the United States geological survey, as shown in the following, amounts being in short tons:

	Commercial coal reported by state bureau.	Total coal reported by U. S. bureau.
1902	6,429,419	6,766,984
1903	7,198,251	7,538,032
1904	7,467,324	7,796,482

The increasing difference between the state and federal figures may be in part due, says Prof. Norwood, to increasing thoroughness in the collection of data relating to the production of small banks by the federal survey, that it seems hardly probable that such banks have materially increased their output from year to year.

DAREDEVIL RIDERS

UNCLE SAM LENDS SOLDIERS TO JOHN ROBINSON.

The John Robinson shows are billed for two performances here on Monday, July 16, and the advance couriers tell of an augmentation to their usual excellent program in the shape of two companies of U. S. cavalry from the world's greatest military riding school at Fort Riley, Kansas. These daredevil riders have astounded the world with their remarkable exhibition of horsemanship, and their addition to the usual excellent offering of this father of shows was only accomplished after much red tape and a strong pull with the military heads of Uncle Sam's army. Within the past few years the riding of the soldiers of the regular army in this country has been brought to such a perfection that the oldest of the successful circus riders have been apprehensive of their laurels, and the coming of the show will afford an opportunity to witness the daily contests between the favorites of the savant arena and the daring soldier boys in blue. These hardy fighters scorn the use of tight and riding shoes, and clad in their regulation uniform, with heavy army boots, they perform with daring ease and consummate skill every remarkable feat of horsemanship known to modern and ancient riding.

FEATURES OF THE RIVER TRIP NEW ERA'S PARTY WILL TAKE

Beautiful Scenery to be Viewed From the Deck of the Steamer Chaperon.
Will Pass Through Three Locks.

Ever since the positive announcement was made that the New Era's party to Mammoth Cave, on the trip to be made August 17-21, would go from Bowling Green to the cave by boat down Barren and Green rivers, this feature of the trip has excited more than passing interest for until this season it was impossible to make the trip by water, but now that a new lock and dam has been completed the entire distance from Bowling Green to the cave is navigable and the river route is proving most desirable for parties visiting the cave.

The steamer Chaperon, which will convey the New Era's party from Bowling Green to the cave, has been overhauled throughout this season and fitted with new machinery and is now said to be one of the handsomest and best equipped boats in the passenger service. It will easily accommodate a hundred people, and in making the trip as the New Era's party will, both dinner and supper be eaten aboard the boat. Capt. Jeff Williams is said to be a most capable and painstaking officer and assurance have already been received that the party from here will receive every attention while on the boat.

Upon first leaving Bowling Green the stream is so narrow that the boat is forced to back for a considerable distance, but after getting into more open water and the about face is accomplished, the trip proceeds merrily.

Barren River is noted for its crookedness and in following its meanderings the boat's nose is pointed to every point of the compass. The scenery on Barren and Green rivers is unsurpassed anywhere, and the cliffs are first reached about fifteen miles from Bowling Green at Brown's lock, the first lock to be encountered. The first bluffs reached are 300 feet high in some places and nestled at the foot is an old time mill, built a half century ago, the combination forming the first of a most attractive lot of views for kodak pictures. These are followed by other bluffs and high and picturesque hills for several miles and then comes the noted Sally's Rock, where a young lady comes out and waves at the boat every time it passes. From here to Woodbury, where is located Lock No. 4 in Green river, a distance of about fifteen miles, the country is not so broken and broad acres of fine farming lands are to be seen. Barren river empties into Green at Woodbury and for some distance up the latter stream wide and fertile bottoms are to be seen on either side, but these later give place again to high cliffs and rugged hills. In some places immense rocks are to be seen lying either in the stream or nearby on the banks, these huge bodies of limestone having been shaken loose from the solid cliffs by the great earthquake of 1812.

Lock No. 5 is next reached and here will be seen some familiar faces for the lockkeeper is none other than Mr. Ed F. Morris, formerly connected with the Louisville & Nashville railroad in Hopkinsville. Mr. Morris has many warm friends here and ever since his departure he has kept himself well informed as to the happenings here through the columns of the New Era. As soon as the announcement was made that the trip would be given by this paper, Mr. Morris wrote a letter urging that the river route be used, and it is mainly due to his suggestion that this most attractive feature was added. Mr. Morris has assured the management that he will see that everything which promises the least pleasure or to add to the convenience of the party shall be in readiness when the trip is made in August.

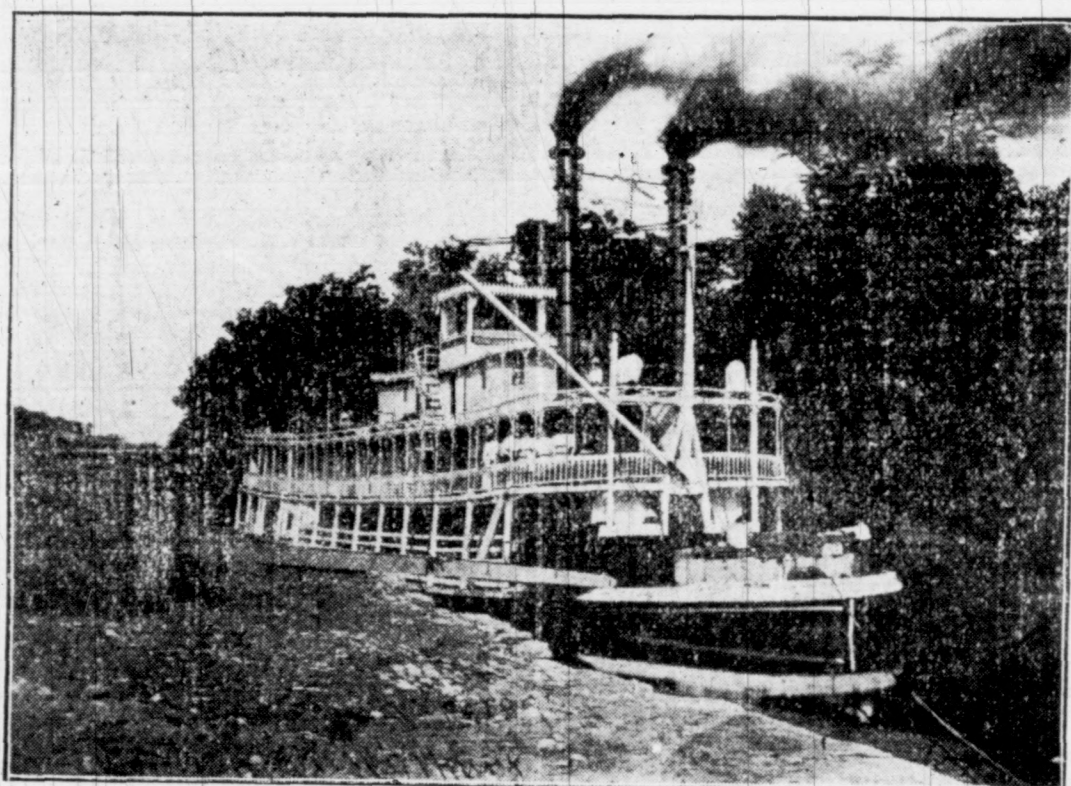

The locks themselves, three of them being passed through on the trip, will prove most entertaining to the members of the party, for possibly none of them, or a very few at least, have ever been on a boat when it passed through a lock. By means of these locks the boat is raised to a height of from fifteen to eighteen feet by the water which flows into the lock and is held by the immense gates at the end, in this manner rivers being made navigable which would not be otherwise. There will be plenty of time for inspecting the locks while the rise is being effected.

Near Lock No. 5 is a famous health resort and here the boat always allows its passengers to land and visit the spring and imbibe the health-giving waters and to visit the hotel. Not far below the lock is one of the most interesting sights to be seen on the river, this being the mammoth asphalt plant which is owned and operated by capitalists of Pittsburgh, Pa. Following this comes more broken scenery which includes a traditional Lover's Leap, and it is said that in the wild fastnesses of the precipitous hills there is even to this day many illicit stills where the genuine moonshine whiskey is manufactured in defiance of the law.

In the midst of this beautiful scenery comes Lock No. 6 which has only recently been completed and which makes it possible for the boat to go as far as the Mammoth Cave landing and which is only a short distance away. After passing through this lock, a bold stream is to be seen gushing out of the face of the earth. This stream is said to be the exit of Echo river which flows through Mammoth Cave and which will be crossed by the New Era's party when they take the long route. While this is the river's exit and it is seen again in the cave, no one knows where it rises or from what source, neither does any one know anything about its underground meanderings or from what distance it comes.

Only a very short distance is traversed after Echo river is passed until the Mammoth Cave landing is reached, where the party will disembark and take vehicles to the cave hotel about a mile distant where the time will be spent until the afternoon of August 21. In order to make the river trip the party will leave Hopkinsville on the afternoon of August 17 and spend the night at the Morehead House in Bowling Green, also taking breakfast there the next morning. The boat will leave the landing at Bowling Green at 7 a. m. August 18, and will reach the Mammoth Cave landing that night at 8 o'clock, thus giving the party a full day's trip down two of the most beautiful rivers in the country.

To go as far as the Mammoth Cave landing and which is only a short distance away. After passing through this lock, a bold stream is to be seen gushing out of the face of the earth. This stream is said to be the exit of Echo river which flows through Mammoth Cave and which will be crossed by the New Era's party when they take the long route. While this is the river's exit and it is seen again in the cave, no one knows where it rises or from what source, neither does any one know anything about its underground meanderings or from what distance it comes.

New President For Farmers and Merchants Bank.—Tobacco Crop in Bad Way.—Burglary Attempted.

At a meeting of the directors of the Farmers and Merchants Bank yesterday, President R. W. Downer tendered his resignation, to take effect at once. Mr. Downer's resignation was prompted by ill health, which has prevented him from performing the functions of his office for the past two years. He has many friends who will regret exceedingly the severance of his official connection with the bank, which he served faithfully and well until driven by ill health from active work. The vacancy caused by Mr. Downer's resignation was filled by the election of Vice-President Jeff. J. Garrett as president and R. T. Chilton succeeds Mr. Garrett as vice-president. Both of these gentlemen have served the bank in official capacity since its organization in 1898, and have figured conspicuously in the splendid success it has achieved.

Reports from the country indicate that the tobacco crop is still in a bad way. The bountiful rain of two weeks ago benefited the plants temporarily, but the scorching sun has since destroyed in large measure the effects of the rain. The plants are making a very slow growth.

Judge Bland held a night session of court Monday night to try some Sunday offenders. Bill Sergeant, colored, was fined $30 for selling whiskey without a license and on Sunday. Bully Cross and Rich Bronaugh, also colored, were fined $14 each for drinking whiskey within one mile of a church while services were in progress.

All the stores of the city except the drug stores now close at 7:30 o'clock every night except Saturday night.

A burglar attempted to break into the Methodist parsonage Monday night, but Mrs. Litchfield was awakened and frightened the prowler away. Rev. Litchfield was away from home, being engaged in a meeting at Fairview.

Mrs. Harriet Bronaugh, one of the oldest inhabitants of this section of the state, is seriously ill at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. R. L. Butler. Mrs. Bronaugh is 92 years of age.

Miss Lula Russell, of Hopkinsville, is visiting in the city. Mrs. H. H. Abernathy, of Hopkinsville, was the guest of Mrs. Frank H. Bassett yesterday.

Death of Mrs. Libby.

Mrs. E. W. Libby died this morning at 8 o'clock at her home near old Bellevue on the Cadiz road, after an illness of two weeks caused by a general let down in her system. She was about sixty years of age and a devoted Christian. Funeral arrangements have not as yet been completed.

"IT WOULD DELIGHT US TO FIND SOMETHING TO CURE THIS DEAR OLD SUFFERER."

HOSPITAL PHYSICIANS SAID:
MR. E. W. ROSE, St. Louis, Mo. RICHMOND, Ind., Nov. 3, 1905.
DEAR SIR: The charity patient in whom I am so much interested was twenty-five years old at the time that she began the use of Zemo, and her weight was 120 lbs. Her health has been poor for some time past, suffering mainly from spinal trouble, according to the diagnosis of the doctors in attendance. She has been a hard worker all her life, having made the living for her family keeping boarders. Somewhat over a year ago she began to trouble her. It gradually grew worse and worse until her entire body was affected, the legs being a mass of sores constantly separating. The itching and burning sensation was so dreadful at times that it was impossible for her to sleep day or night. The doctors (two of our best) pronounced the case incurable, and when I asked permission to use "Zemo" promptly said, "It would delight us to find something to cure this dear old sufferer." "Zemo" was first used on the upper part of the body and soon relieved the patient of the terrible distress caused by the itching and burning. The doctors had been dressing the sores every day, but as soon as they saw the wonderful change in the skin as the face. It was promptly about a month before much relief was experienced in this part of the body, then skin healed off, itching, burning and aching gradually ceased. It seems now as if a testimonial might be given, but the patient thinks that she had better use "Zemo" a few weeks longer before saying that she is cured. However, she is very grateful to all who have been instrumental in securing your wonderful remedy and thinks that it has a great future before it.
Respectfully,
(MRS.) MARY PERRY BELLIS, Nurse in Hospital,

CHAPTER III

THE sailor wasted no time in his bewilderment. He searched carefully for traces of the missing Lascares. He came to the conclusion that the bodies had been dragged from off the Sun dried rocks into the lagoon by some agency the nature of which he could not even conjecture.

They were lying many feet above the sea level when he last saw them, little more than half an hour earlier. At that point the beach-shelf rapidly sloped down into the depths of the rapidly clearing water. Nothing was visible there save several varieties of small fish.

The incident puzzled and annoyed him. Still thinking about it, he sat down on the highest rock and pulled off his heavy boots to empty the water out. He also divested himself of his stockings and spread them out to dry.

The action reminded him of Miss Deane's necessities. He hurried to a point where he could call out to her and recommend her to dry some of her clothing during his absence. He retired even more quickly, fearing lest he should be seen. Iris had already displayed to the sunlight a large portion of her costume.

Without further delay he set about a disagreeable but necessary task. From the pockets of the first officer and doctor he secured two revolvers and a supply of cartridges, evidently intended to settle any dispute which might have arisen between the ship's officers and the native members of the crew. He hoped the cartridges were unexpired, but he could not test them at the moment for fear of alarming Miss Deane.

Both officers carried pocketbooks and pencils. In one of these, containing dry leaves, the sailor made a careful inventory of the money and other valuable effects he found upon the deck, besides noting names and documents where possible. Curiously enough, the capitalist of this island morpue was a Lascares, who in a belt around his waist hoarded more than a hundred pounds in gold. The sailor tied in a handkerchief all the money he collected and ranged pocketbooks, letters and jewelry in separate little heaps. Then he stripped the men of their boots and outer clothing. He could not tell how long the girl and he might be detained on the island before help came, and fresh garments were essential. It would be foolish sentimentality to trust to stores thrown ashore from the ship.

Nevertheless when it became necessary to search and disrobe the women he almost broke down. For an instant he softened. Glimping back his emotions with a savage impression, he doggedly persevered. At last he paused to consider what should be done with the bodies. His first intent was to scoop a large hole in the sand with a piece of timber, but when he took into consideration the magnitude of the labor involved, requiring many hours of hard work and a waste of precious time which might be of infinite value to his helpless companion and himself, he was forced to abandon the project. It was not only impracticable, but dangerous.

Again he had to set his teeth with grim resolution. One by one the bodies were shot into the lagoon from the little quay of rock. He knew they would not be seen again.

He arose and shook himself like a dog. There was much to be done. He gathered the clothes and other articles into a heap and placed portions of shattered packing cases next to mislaid Iris. While thus engaged he kicked up out of the sand a rusty crescent, or mala; sword. The presence of this instrument startled him. He examined it slowly and thrust it out of sight.

Then he went back to her, after donning his stockings and boots, now thoroughly dry.

"Are you ready now, Miss Deane?" he sang out cheerily.

"Ready? I have been waiting for you."

Jenks chuckled quietly. "I must guard my tongue. It betrays me," he said to himself.

Iris joined him. By some mysterious means she had effected great improvement in her appearance. Yet there were manifest gaps.

"If only I had a needle and thread," she began.

"If that is all," said the sailor, fumbling in his pockets. He produced a shabby little hussar containing a thimble, scissors, needles and some shreds of unbleached thread. One said and some fairs were soaked or rusted with salt water, but the girl fastened upon this treasure with a sigh of deep content.

"Now, please," she cried, "I want a telephone office and a ship."

When they reached the sands she caught sight of the pile of clothes and the broken woodwork, with the small heaps of valuables methodically arranged. The harmless subterfuge did not deceive her. She darted a quick look of gratitude at her companion. How thoughtful he was! After a fearful glance around she was reassured, though she wondered what had become of them.

"I see you have been busy," she said, nodding toward the clothes and boots.

"Yes," he replied simply. "Lucky find, wasn't it?"

dry I will replenish my wardrobe. What is the first thing to be done?"

"Well, Miss Deane, I think our program is, in the first place, to examine the articles thrown ashore and see if any of the cases contain food. Secondly, we should haul high and dry everything that may be of use to us, lest the weather should break again and the next tide sweep away the spoil. Thirdly, we should eat and rest, and, finally, we must explore the island before the light falls. I am convinced we are alone here. It is a small place at the best, and if any Chinamen were ashore they would have put in an appearance long since."

"Do you think, then, that we may remain here long?"

"It is impossible to form an opinion on that point. Help may come in a day. On the other hand—"

"Yes?"

"It is a wise thing, Miss Deane, to prepare for other contingencies."

"Do you mean," she said slowly, "that we may be imprisoned here for weeks, perhaps months?"

"If you cast your mind back a few hours you will perhaps admit that we are very fortunate to be here at all."

She whisked round upon him. "Do not fence with my question, Mr. Jenks. Answer me!"

He bowed. There was a perceptible return of his stubborn cynicism when he spoke.

"The facts are obvious, Miss Deane. The loss of the Sirocco will not be definitely known for many days. It will be assumed that she has broken down. The agents in Singapore will await cabled tidings of her whereabouts. She might have drifted anywhere in that typhoon. Ultimately they will send out a vessel to search, impelled to that course a little earlier by your father's anxiety. Pardon me, I did not intend to pain you. I am speaking my mind."

"Go on," said Iris bravely.

"The relief ship must search the entire China sea. The gale might have driven a disabled steamer north, south, east or west. A typhoon travels in a whirling spiral, you see, and the direction of a drifting ship depends wholly upon the locality where she sustained damage. The coasts of China, Java, Borneo and the Philippines are not equipped with lighthouses on every headland and cordoned with telegraph wires. There are river pirates and savage races to be reckoned with. Casting aside all other possibilities and assuming that a prompt search is made to the south of our course, this part of the ocean is full of reefs and small islands, some inhabited permanently, others visited occasionally by fishermen. We was about to add something, but checked myself."

"To sum up," he continued hurriedly, "we may have to remain here for many days, even months. There is always a chance of speedy help. We must act, however, on the basis of detention for an indefinite period. I am discussing appearances as they are. A survey of the island may change all these views."

"In what way?"

"He turned and pointed to the summit of the tree covered hill behind them."

"From that point," he said, "we may see other and larger islands. If so they will certainly be inhabited. I am surprised this one is not."

He ended abruptly. They were losing time. Before Iris could join him he was already hauling a large undamaged case out of the water.

He laughed untristfully. "Champagne!" he said. "A good brand too!"

This man was certainly an enigma. Iris wrinkled her pretty forehead in the effort to place him in a fitting category. His words and accent were those of an educated gentleman, yet his actions and manners were studious by uncount when he thought she was observing him. The veneer of roughness puzzled her. That he was not really of refined temperament, she knew quite well, not alone by perception, but by the plain evidence of his earlier dealings with her.

To the best of her ability she silently helped in the work of salvage. They made a queer collection. A case of champagne and another of brandy, a box of books, a pair of night glasses, a compass, several boxes of ship's biscuits, coated with salt, but saved by their hardness, having been immersed out a few seconds; two large cases of guns in equally good condition, some huge fish covers, a bit of twisted iron work and a great quantity of cordage and timber.

There was one very heavy package, which their united strength could not lift. The sailor searched around until he found an iron bar that could be wrenched from its socket. With this he pried open the strong outer cover and revealed the contents—regulation boxes of ammunition, each containing 500 rounds.

"Ah!" he cried. "Now we want some rifles."

"What good would they be?" inquired Iris.

He softly denounced himself as a fool, but he answered at once: "To shoot birds, of course, Miss Deane. There are plenty here, and many of them are edible."

They worked in silence for another hour. The sun was hearing the zenith. They were distressed with the increasing heat of the day. Jenks secured a ham and some biscuits, some pieces of driftwood and the binoculars and invited Miss Deane to accompany him to the grove. She obeyed without a word, though she wondered how he proposed to light a fire. To contribute some thing toward the expected feast she picked up a dish cover and a bottle of champagne.

The sailor eyed the concluding item with disfavor. "Not while the sun is up," he said. "In the evening, yes."

"It was for you," explained Iris coldly. "I do not drink wine."

"You must break the pledge while very cool at night in this latitude. A chill would mean fever and perhaps death."

She covertly watched his preparations. He tore a dry leaf from a nearby book and broke the bullet out of a cartridge, dumping the powder into a water from a pitcher plant. Seeing the composition on the paper, he tore it in the sun, broke it into bits and scattered a small bundle of yellowed spines from the palms and arranged the driftwood on top, choosing a place for his bonfire just within the shade. Then inserting the touch paper among the spines he uncovers one of the lenses of the binoculars, converted it into a burning glass and held a blaze roaring merrily in a few minutes. With the aid of polished sticks he crisscrossed some sheets of bamboo with his clasp knife, which he first carefully cleaned in the earth. The biscuits were of the variety that had come soft when toasted, and so he balanced a few by stones near the fire.

Iris forgot her annoyance in her interest. A most appetizing smell filled the air. They were having a picnic amidst delightful surroundings. Yesterday at this time—She almost reached a rush of sentiment, but drove it back with instant determination. Tears were a poor resource, unimpaired of God's goodness to herself and her companion. Without the sailor, what would have become of her, even were she thrown ashore while still living? She knew none of the expedients which seemed to be at his command.

"Can I do nothing to help?" she exclaimed. So contrite was her tone that Jenks was established.

"Yes," he said, pointing to the dish cover. "If you polish the top of that with your sleeve it will serve as a plate. Lunch is ready."

He dished up two slices of ham on a couple of biscuits and handed them to her with the clasp knife.

"I can depend on my fingers," he explained. "It will not be the first time."

"Have you led an adventurous life?" she asked, by way of polite conversation.

"No," he growled.

"I only thought so because you appear to know all sorts of dodges for prolonging existence—things I never heard of."

"Rolled ham—and biscuits—for instance."

At another time Iris would have snapped at him for the retort. Still humbly grateful for her previous attack, she answered meekly:

"Yes, in this manner of cooking them, I mean. But there are other items—methods of lighting fires, finding water, knowing what fruits and other articles may be found on a desert island, such as plantains and coconuts and certain sorts of birds."

When the meal was ended Jenks sat lightly to his feet. Rest and food had restored his faculties. The girl thought dreamily as he stood there in his rough attire, that she had never seen a finer man. He was tall, slender and well formed. In repose his face was pleasant, if masterful. Its somewhat sullen, self contained expression was occasional and acquired. She wondered how he could be so energetic. Personally she was consumed with sleepiness.

He produced a revolver.

"Do you mind if I fire a shot to test the cartridges?" he inquired. "The powder is all right, but the fulminate in the caps may be damaged."

She agreed promptly. He pointed the weapon at a cluster of coconuts, and there was a loud report. Two nuts fell to the ground, and the air was filled with shrill screams and the dapping of innumerable wings. Iris was momentarily dismayed, but her senses confirmed the sailor's explanation—"Sea birds."

"Can you use a revolver?" he asked.

"My father taught me. He thinks every woman should know how to defend herself if need be."

"Excellent. Well, Miss Deane, you must try to sleep for a couple of hours. I purpose examining the coast for some distance on each side. Should you want me, a shot will be the best sort of signal."

"I am very tired," she admitted.

"But you?"

"Oh, I am all right! I feel restless—that is, I mean I will not be able to sleep until night comes, and before we climb the hill to survey our domain I want to find better quarters than we now possess."

Perhaps were she less fatigued she would have caught the vague anxiety, the note of distrust, in his voice. Her eyes were very seductive. Her eyes closed. She nestled into a comfortable position and slept.

The man moved the revolver out of harm's way to a spot where she must see it instantly, pulled his sou'wester well over his eyes and walked off quietly.

They were flung ashore on the north-west side of the island. Except for the box formed by the coral reef, with its mysterious palm tree growing apparently in the midst of the waves, the shape of the coast was roughly that of the concave side of a bow, the two visible extremities being about three quarters of a mile apart.

He guessed by the way in which the sea raced past these points that the land did not extend beyond them. Behind him it rose steeply to a considerable height, 150 or 200 feet. In the center was the tallest hill, which seemed to end abruptly toward the southwest. On the northeast side it was connected with a rocky promontory by a ridge of easy grade. The sailor turned to the southwest as offering the most likely direction for rapid survey.

He was not surprised to find that the hill terminated in a sheer wall of rock, which stood out, ominous and massive, from the wealth of verdure clothing the remainder of the ridge. Facing the precipice and separated from it by a strip of ground not twenty feet across, he stood on the highest part was another rock built eminence quite bare of trees, blackened by the weather and seared in a manner that attested the attacks of lightning.

The intervening belt was sparsely dotted with trees, casuarinas, pohn and other woods he did not know, resembling ebony and cedar. A number of stumps showed that the ax had been at work, but not recently. He passed into the cleft and climbed a tree that offered easy access. As he expected, after rising a few feet from the ground his eyes encountered the solemn blue line of the sea, not half a mile distant.

He descended and commenced a systematic search. Men had been here. Was there a house? Would he suddenly encounter some hermit Malay or Chinaman?

At the foot of the main cliff was a cluster of fruit bearing trees—plantains, areca nuts and cocon palms. A couple of chachinas caught his eye. In one spot the undergrowth was rank and vividly green. The cassava, or tapioca plant, reared its high passion flower leaves above the grass, and some sago palms, thrust aloft their thick stemmed trunks.

"Here is a change of menu, at any rate," he commented.

Breaking a thick branch off a pohn tree, he whittled away the minor stems. A strong stick was useful to explore that leafy fastness thoroughly.

A few cautious strides and vigorous whacks with the stick laid bare the cause of such prodigality in a soil covered with drifted sand and lumps of black and white speckled coral. The trees and bushes indicated a well-kept garden, in fact, from being choked with sand during the first gale that blew.

Delighted with this discovery, more precious than diamonds at the moment—for he doubted the advisability of existing on the water supply of the pitcher plant—he knelt to peer into the excavation. The well had been properly made. Ten feet down he could see the reflection of his face. Expert hands had tapped the secret reservoir of the island. By stretching to the full extent of his arm he managed to plunge the stick into the water. Tasting the drops, he found that they were quite sweet. The sand and porous rock provided the best of filter beds.

He rose, well pleased, and noted that on the opposite side the appearance of the shrubs and tufts of long grass indicated the existence of a grown over path toward the cliff. He followed it, walking carefully, with eyes seeking the prospect beyond, when something rattled and cracked beneath his feet. Looking down, he was horrified to find he was tramping on a skeleton.

Had a venomous snake coiled its glistening folds around his leg he would not have been more startled. But this man of iron nerve soon recovered. He frowned deeply after the first involuntary heart throb.

With the stick he cleared away the undergrowth and revealed the skeleton of a man. The bones were big and strong, but oxidized by the action of the air. Jenks had injured the left tibia by his tread, but three fractured ribs and a smashed shoulder blade told some terrible untwisting story.

Beneath the mournful relics were fragments of decayed cloth. It was blue serge. Lying about were a few blackened objects, brass buttons marked with an anchor. The dead man's boots were in the best state of preservation, but the leather had shrunk, and the nails protruded like fangs.

A rusted pocketknife lay there, and on the left breast of the skeleton rested a round piece of tin, the top of a canteen, which might have reposed in a coat pocket. Jenks picked it up. Some curious marks and figures were punched into its surface. After a hasty glance he put it aside for more leisurely examination.

No weapon was visible. He could form no estimate as to the cause of the death of this poor unknown nor the time since the tragedy had occurred.

Jenks must have stood many minutes before he perceived that the skeleton was headless. At first he imagined that in rummaging about with the stick he had disturbed the skull. But the most minute search demonstrated that it had gone—had been taken away, in fact—for the plants which so effectively screened the lighter bones would not permit the skull to vanish.

Then the frown on the sailor's face became threatening, thunderous. He recollected the rusty crescent, indistinct memories of strange tales of the China sea crowded into his brain.

"Dyaks!" he growled fiercely. "A ship's officer, an Englishman probably, murdered by head hunting Dyak pirates!"

If they came once they would come again.

Five hundred yards away Iris Deane was sleeping. He ought not to have left her alone. And then, with the devilish ingenuity of coincidence, a revolver shot awoke the echoes and sent all manner of wild fowl hurtling through the trees with clamorous outcry.

Panting and wild eyed, Jenks was at the girl's side in an inconceivably short space of time. She was not napping the shelter of the grove, but on the sands, gazing, pallid in check and lip, at the group of rocks on the edge of the lagoon.

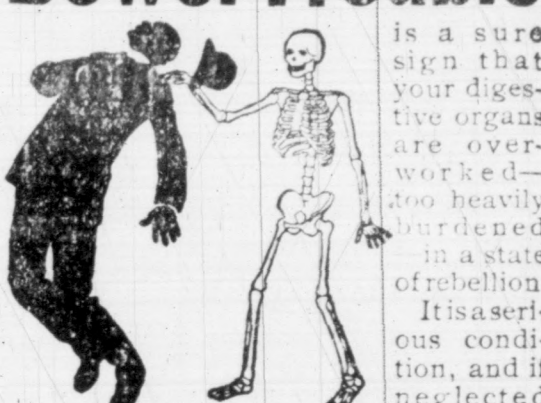

"What is the matter?" he gasped.

"Oh, I don't know," she wailed brokenly. "I had a dream, such a horrible dream. You were struggling with some awful thing down there." She pointed to the rocks.

"I was not near the place," he said laboriously. It cost him an effort to breathe. His broad chest expanded inches with each respiration.

"Yes, yes, I understand. But I awoke and ran to save you. When I got here I saw something, a thing with waving arms, and fired. It van-

CROP CONDITIONS

CORN DOING WELL AND PROMISES A FINE YIELD.

Wheat is Better Than Had Been Expected.—Falling off is Shown in Tobacco Acreage.

In his monthly report of the condition of growing crops in Kentucky State Agricultural Commissioner Vreeland writes the following:

The condition of the corn crop is good, having been well worked. The acreage is about up to that of last year. Wheat threshing is progressing and the yield promises to be much better than indicated a month ago. The berry is plump, generally grading No. 2. The acreage of oats is less than the average, and for want of moisture the condition is not up to the standard. The falling off in the acreage of both barley and dark tobacco is caused by lack of seasons and disposition on the part of the part of planters to curtail the crop.

MAIL BOXES.

Postmaster General Cortelyou has issued an order, to go into effect August 1, rescinding the regulation under which the patrons of rural free mail routes are compelled to purchase boxes from one of the two hundred listed manufacturers who have put on the market 300 different styles of boxes approved by the department, costing from fifty cents to $1 each. Patrons of the rural routes will be permitted to construct their own boxes, provided that in doing so they conform to the requirements of the department as to size, durability and safety and protection from the inclemencies of the weather.

BIG BARN IS BURNED

CONTENTS, INCLUDING VALUABLE HORSE, WHOLLY DESTROYED

County Clerk Gabe Campbell Has a $4,000 Loss.—The Origin of The Fire Is Not Known.

A large stable on the farm of County Clerk G. C. Campbell on the Canton pike containing one horse, ten or twelve tons of hay, several barrels of corn, some farming implements, harness, etc., caught fire Monday afternoon between 3 and 4 o'clock and was totally consumed, together with all of its contents.

The origin of the fire is a mystery, but it is thought it caught from some cause in the hay. When first discovered the entire roof was in a bright blaze and the heat was so great that nothing of consequence could be saved. The horse which was burned was a very valuable animal about four years old. The loss will amount to probably $4,000 with only partial insurance. This is the second time Mr. Campbell has lost his stable by fire.

LINES.

Affectionately inscribed to Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Marquess on the death of their little son.

Where the myrtle creeps in silence, And the great oak casts a shade, And the mockbird sings in gladness, The tiny grave is made.

To your fond hearts ever after, This will be the dearest, sweetest spot.

Here you will plant the rose and daisy And the blue forget-me-not.

He was a dainty little flower, Brought from heaven's own parterre, And he filled your home with beauty.

The while he blossomed here, They had only loaned him to you.

From God's treasure house above, Just to let you know the blessing Of this purest, sweetest love.

All the wisdom of the sages To answer is in vain.

This question, of all ages: "Dying, shall we live again?"

On the summit of Mt. Calvary, When the sun refused to shine, God's love revealed the answer.

To this question for all time, Can't you sweetly trust in Jesus, Put away all doubts and fears, With a pure faith lean upon him? He will wipe away all tears.

Broken hearts, call to this Saviour, He will listen if you will, And you'll hear him whisper softly, "Peace ye tempests, waves be still!"

MIRACLE AT MILL

FRIGHTFUL EXPERIENCE OF MR. AND MRS. BINNS

Step on Passenger Elevator in Mill Broke—Lady Fell Fifty Feet, But Not Seriously Hurt.

(From Tuesday's Daily)

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Binns had miraculous escapes from death last night at the plant of the Acme Mill & Elevator company, when the step of the passenger elevator, on which they were descending from the fourth floor, broke. Mrs. Binns fell to the next landing while her husband only saved himself by hanging by one hand to the hand grip above him. Had it not been that Mrs. Binns struck the next step on the elevator, which threw her off on to the landing, she would have fallen to the bottom of the shaft and in this event would have been killed by contact with the concrete floor of the basement. As it was she was badly bruised, but her worst injury is severe strain of the right ankle. Her physician reports that no bones were broken and there are no indications of internal injuries.

Mr. Binns is employed as miller in this plant his duties being performed from 12 o'clock noon to midnight. Last night his wife went down to the mill to stay with him until he went off duty and it was while making one of the usual descent that the accident occurred. The elevator, which is used for passenger service alone, is an arrangement of steps on an enormous belt.

As a curious freak of fate, it will be recalled that about two weeks ago, A. L. Mobley, an employee at the Acme elevator, fell about four feet down a flight of steps and, striking his chin against a plank, concussion of the brain resulted, causing his death. Mrs. Binns fell fifty feet and was not seriously injured.

RUNNING FULL TIME.

The canning factory has resumed business after having been shut down since the fruit and vegetable crop was exhausted last year. It is now running full time canning blackberries, the crop this year being unusually plentiful and of fine quality. Tomatoes, corn and other vegetables will soon be abundant and then these lines will be taken up.
