WEEKLY NEW ERA.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

HOPKINSVILLE, CHRISTIAN COUNTY, KENTUCKY, FRIDAY, AUGUST 24, 1906.

VOLUME XXV, NO. 38

AT CALLED MEETING

LENGTHY RESOLUTIONS WERE PASSED AT CLARKSVILLE.

Association's Present System of Putting Tobacco Crop On the Market is Attacked.

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 23.—
A meeting of farmers was held here Wednesday for the purpose of considering plans for facilitating the selling of tobacco at better prices. About 300 farmers, over 200 of whom are said to have been association members, were present.
C. N. Meriwether was made chairman presided.

Hon. C. P. Warfield urged upon the farmers unanimity of action in the handling and sale of tobacco.
M. H. Clark made a few remarks, saying he was glad the farmers had organized, and beyond his expectations had won the fight.

E. P. Martin, of Big Rock, said that in order to restore Clarksville to its former position as a market, the board of trade, warehousemen, chamber of commerce and all farmers should join the association and place the price upon their tobacco and sell it through the association and when the time comes to sell it let it be known that the bids shall be opened at the prices set.

J. M. Hunt, of Cheatham county, said the farmers were supreme, and no one had the right to enact any plan of handling tobacco which was not known to them.

C. C. Bell, a prominent buyer of Springfield, said that under the present system of selling association tobacco the farmer was not getting as much now, after out costs, as he received some years ago, and that he paid more for loose tobacco than he was now paying for association tobacco.

J. T. Morrison also addressed the meeting and a letter was read from E. C. Morrow, one of the most prominent independent buyers in the district, in which he said:

"In my opinion, if the tobacco of the Clarksville district had been marketed in the usual way, or in any way to have brought it into open competition at once, so that it could have been bought in preference to the tobacco that has been bought in the western and Henderson districts, the crop of this district would all have been disposed of long since at prices higher than have ruled here in twenty years, with the exception of 1898, when prices were unusually high. The farmers would have received at least one-third more money net than under the present system of selling conducted by the Association."

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted, and the meeting adjourned to Sept. 12:

"Resolved, that it was when organized, and should now be, the basic principle of the Planter's Protective Association, to obtain for the tobacco grower the best possible price for his product, and at the lowest possible cost of selling same.
This principle should be paramount to all others, and the question of markets, the best interest of ware-housemen, prizees and bangers-on are of secondary consideration.

"It is the sense of this meeting that the present system of marketing and selling tobacco does not, for the following reasons, net the farmer the best results for his tobacco:

"First—Because England wants from twelve to fourteen million pounds of our Clarksville style tobacco, and must have it in the loose state so as to redry same, and under the existing system of marketing this demand is denied the privilege of buying tobacco from the Association farmers, consequently is driven to buy substitutes in the Paducah or Western District, where there is practically no organization, thereby depriving us of the competition of demand, which consumes about 20 per cent. of our production. Moreover, there are other large and valuable demands wanting our tobacco in the loose state, and what the seller wants in the sale of his tobacco either loose or prized is to bring all the demands together and allow them to compete for it in whatever shape it will bring him the best price.

"Second. The present system does not bring the demands in competition, but the privacy of the system has caused great distrust in the minds of both seller and buyer. The seller feels that the product of his labor is being sold in a way that leaves room for graft between the worth of his tobacco and what he receives, and the buyer feels suspicious that some pet buyers are receiving privileges he does not enjoy.
"To remedy some of these evils we heartily approve of some sound marketing and selling system, whereby all demands can be brought together in fair, open competition, and the planter can see his tobacco sold open and above board in the loose or prized state, as he may elect.

"We want to affirm and emphasize that we earnestly desire that the Planter's Protective Association shall be made stronger than ever it was by eliminating such methods as experience shows are seriously detrimental to the best interests of the grower.

"We can see no practical benefits to the planter by the senseless an-tagonism towards the buyer. But we believe all demands should be encouraged and brought together in a free, fair, open competition, free from unwise and injurious restrictions and where every man, both seller and buyer, shall have a fair, square deal and knows that he is getting a fair, square deal. All sales we believe, should be under the organization's control, and the system adopted should be clearly defined and all rules and regulations honestly enforced."

Copies of these resolutions were ordered sent to the executive committee of the Dark Tobacco Growers' association, and immediate action requested.

New goods are being received daily at the Palace Millinery establishment and the coming season bids fair to be most prosperous.

AGED CITIZEN DIES

WILLIAM McGEHEE PASSES AWAY
IN GRACEY VICINITY.

William McGehee died suddenly at his home near Gracey Wednesday afternoon. He had been almost totally paralyzed for several years, not being able to move himself about. For the past four or five days he had been unwell but his demise was entirely unexpected.
He was between seventy and eighty years of age and a member of the Baptist church. He was prominent in his community and was a very successful planter. The remains were taken to Clarksville for interment. Mr. McGehee was the father of Sam McGehee, of Pembroke, and J. W. and T. A. McGehee and Mrs.
Bettie Richardson, of Clarksville.

William C. Martin, one of the most prominent pioneer citizens of this section, is dead at the home of his son-in-law, J. W. Turley, near Ferdonia. He was 94 years of age.

Mrs. Boyd Organ, who underwent an operation Tuesday at her home near Garrettsburg for pelvic abscess, died near midnight of the same day.
When the operation was performed it was the last expedient for affording her any relief.

She was a most estimable Christian lady and a devout member of the Olivet Baptist church. She was thirty-eight years of age. Four children, all girls, the oldest, being only six years of age, and her husband survive her. In the absence of the pastor, Rev. H. C. McGill, the funeral services were conducted Wednesday afternoon by Rev. W.
H. Vaughn, of Fairview. Interment took place at the burying ground on the place of J. J. C. McKnight near Garrettsburg.

McCREARY WILLING

AND JOINT DEBATE WITH BECK-HAM WILL BE ARRANGED.

Governor's Challenge is Accepted and Hot Times on Raging Stump Are Looked For.

RICHMOND, Ky., Aug. 23.—United States Senator McCreary has addressed a letter to Gov. Beckham, in which he formally accepts the challenge of the latter for a joint debate.
The senator says he has two engagements this week and one at Owen-ton Monday, Aug. 27, but that any time after Monday he will be pleased to meet the governor and arrange for joint discussions. The senator says:

"Gov. J. C. W. Beckham, Frankfort, Ky.—Dear Sir: Yours of August 21, 1906, was received by me this afternoon. You refer to my answer made in my speech at Mt. Sterling last Monday to a statement made by you in your speech at Lexington, Ky., which was as follows:

"I have never asked or received pecuniary aid from the whisky interest in the present race for United States senator, nor in any race ever made for public office in the past. I would like to know if Gov. Beckham can say the same.

"You say that you can cheerfully answer that question, and suggest that in order that we may have an opportunity of answering any questions that might be asked, we arrange for a series of joint discussions at such places as you and I may agree upon. I have two engagements this week and an engagement to speak at Owenton next Monday, the 27th of August. It will afford me pleasure to meet you at any convenient time or place after next Monday, for the purpose of arranging such joint discussion as we may agree upon.

"I desire that the people of Kentucky have the fullest opportunity to become acquainted with the issues involved in the present campaign. Respectfully,
"JAMES B. McCREARY."

When Gov. Beckham was here Sunday he promised his friends to deliver an address in Hopkinsville before the primary election. As neither he nor Senator McCreary has spoken in this city during the campaign, one of the joint debates may be heard here.

The local managers of Attorney General Hays expect him to be greeted by a large audience when he speaks at the court house next Tuesday, in his interest for his race for Governor. Bills announcing the appointment have been sent out to every part of the country.

The Ohio Democratic convention at Columbus adjourned after nominating a state ticket and endorsing W. J. Bryan for the presidency in 1908. An attempt to amend the platform by endorsing county option was defeated after a warm discussion on the floor of the convention.

The state Democratic primaries in Georgia resulted in a victory for Hoke Smith, candidate for governor, unprecedented in the size of his majority. Of the 145 counties in the state he carried probably 110.

MR. BARR'S FUNERAL

LAST SAD RITES PERFORMED
SUNDAY AT LOUISVILLE.

Remains Laid to Rest in Cave Hill Cemetery—Tribute From the Louisville Herald.

Friends, relatives and business associates of Jason Rogers Barr, general manager of the Lexington and Eastern railroad, who died in Lexington Saturday morning, attended his funeral in large numbers yesterday afternoon at the residence of his father, Judge John W. Barr, 832 Second street.

The services were conducted by the Rev. C. R. Hemphill at 3:30 o'clock. The pallbearers were Walker Wood, of Hopkinsville; Andrew Mitchell, Thomas Morgan, William A. McDowell and Garland Barr, of Lexington, and Thomas P. Satterwhite, Jr., and Eugene Knott, of Louisville. Burial was in Cave Hill cemetery. The body arrived in Louisville at 7 o'clock Saturday night on a special train from Lexington over the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad.—Courier-Journal.

JASON ROGERS BARR.

Jason Rogers Barr was the son of Judge J. Watson Barr and Susan Rogers. Through both his father's and his mother's families he was a Kentuckian of Kentuckians. Since the foundation of the state those whose blood ran in his veins have borne a conspicuous part in every phase of political, legal, social and commercial life. His grandparents on his mother's side were Capt. Jason Rogers and Josephine Preston, the daughter of William Preston and Caroline Hancock. He was kin to the Barrs, the Rogers, the Prestons, the McDowells, the Paynes, the Breckinridges, the Haris, the Voorhies and various other families who have taken an active and conspicuous part in Kentucky's development and history. He was worthy the best of his traditions and his blood.

He had the qualities which made success certain in whatever field he chose. He was a man of the state, together to enter Princeton in the same class, and there was never a day from that September, now twenty-one years ago, until he was touched with the finger of death that we did not know he was destined for more than ordinary success. He was gifted with real intellect, with a wonderful capacity for work, with that undefinable and yet most potent quality called, for lack of some better name, personality, which made him a marked man in any crowd in which he might happen to be, made him a leader of any enterprise in which he was engaged. He tied to him with bonds of steel those to whom he gave his friendship. He won and retained the friendship, the respect, the confidence, the admiration of all who knew him well. After being graduated from Princeton he took a post-graduate course and left Princeton with the distinction of being one of the ablest, as he was one of the most popular, men who ever graduated from there. This morning as news of his death is read in hundreds of homes of Princeton men who were at college from 1885, when he entered as a freshman, till 1890, when he left after a post-graduate course, there will be grief as at a personal loss. "Jase" has gone. From the day he entered college till the day he left he was a marked man, marked by the affection of his classmates, college mates, professors. There were few honors a student could win that were not bestowed on him. Had he been tempted to enter public life he would have been one of the most popular and one of the most powerful for good of his day or race. But he devoted himself to his profession, and his career from the day he left college until his death was a constant preparation for better and higher work. In every position he held he showed capacity to fill a higher and larger sphere.

He was just coming into the full fruition of his powers. It is hard for us to realize that he was nearly forty, and possibly by some would be thought to be entering on middle age. And yet he was in every essential a young man, of stalwart frame, with a superbly trained intellect, with wonderful executive capacity, it looked as if he had long years of usefulness before him.

His death is a real loss to this community. It is a loss to the state and to the section of the state that needs development the most. His heart was wrapped up in the Lexington & Eastern railroad, with which he had been connected for the last twelve years. He had done all in his power to have that road extended to reach the richer coal fields of that section tributary to Jackson.

No man is indispensable; every man's place can be filled, and Rogers Barr's place will be filled, the tasks he had undertaken carried on to success. But the work he did, the foundation he laid, will be of invaluable service to those who take up the task he laid down, and as that task is carried to completion by those who have been associated with him, trained under him, familiar with his plans and methods, the full value of his work will be more and more made evident.

Mr. Crabtree's Will.

The will of James Crabtree, wealthy north Christian citizen who died recently, was probated in the county court. The instrument was drawn in 1895 and was witnessed by J. E. McPherson, J. P. Braden and E. P. Campbell. All of his property, real, personal or mixed, is left to his widow, Mrs. Tabitha Crabtree, who is named as executrix without bond, subject only to two conditions: (1) That all debts and funeral expenses be paid; (2) that $1125 be paid his youngest son to equalize him on money advanced to the older son.

Must Be Stopped.

Fire Chief Hester states that when an alarm of fire is sounded many persons have a habit of connecting with the department by the automatic telephone service to inquire about the fire. As the alarms are turned in over the telephone line, this custom is not only annoying in the extreme, but prevents the department from promptly locating the fire. There is an ordinance prohibiting anyone's ringing No. 5 except in the case of fire to give the alarm, and offenders will be prosecuted.

AFTER FINE OUTING

NEW ERA PARTY RETURNS FROM MAMMOTH CAVE.

Entire Trip Was One of Great Pleasure
Without a Single Circumstance to Mar It.

Tired physically but in the best of spirits, the New Era's Mammoth Cave party reached home Sunday night at 11:30 the train being over an hour late.

Throughout the entire trip there was not a hitch in the arrangements and it is safe to say that there was never a party to visit the great natural wonder which was more congenial or which had more genuine fun than did these young ladies. The trip to Bowling Green and from there to the cave, nice though they were in every way, were only a fitting beginning for the pleasures which were had at the cave. At the hotel there, delightful accommodations were furnished and the three days spent in the historic old hostelry were filled to the limit with pleasure.

Friday the party entered the cave for the long route at about 9:30 a. m. with Josh Wilson, one of the veteran guides, leading them. There were thirty-seven in this party, and the strangers all proved to be most excellent people and trip of sixteen miles and a half which lasted until nearly seven o'clock in the evening was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Saturday the same guide took the party through the short route, going in at 1:30 in the afternoon and coming out at 6 p. m. Sunday, until 3 o'clock in the afternoon, was spent sitting about the hotel and doing such things as pleased the young ladies. At 3 o'clock they boarded the dummy train which carried them to Glasgow Junction, where, after a two hour wait, they caught a fast train to Bowling Green, then another change which brought them to Guthrie where another elegant supper was specially prepared for them at Hotel Whitlow, and from Guthrie the last stage of the journey was made to Hopkinsville.

Not only did the young ladies enjoy themselves to the utmost, but they conducted themselves in such a manner that everyone sought their acquaintance and the hotel management stated that when they left that it was undoubtedly the nicest crowd which had ever visited the cave. John Wilson, the guide, told the managers after he had brought the party out of the long route, that they missed a treat by not going in with them for while they were always obedient to his instructions and attentive to his descriptions of the different wonders, there was never party that had more fun or were more pleasant to take through than the New Era's crowd. Everyone at the hotel soon got to know them as the "Hopkinsville crowd" and strangers would often remark about some of the young ladies would pass about on the hotel veranda, "There goes some of those nice Hopkinsville girls."

Whenever the young ladies would come down attired in their cave suits they never failed to listen up things about the hotel while waiting to enter the cave. This was always innocent fun but as soon as they appeared the crowd began to congregate about them, knowing full well that there could be no dull moments when they were about.

Mr. Albert C. Janin, the gentleman who has the complete management of the cave hotel and property, and his assistants, Capt. Lewis F. Charlet, the cave manager, and Mr. M. L. Charlet, the indulgent and most efficient clerk at the hotel, did everything in their power to add to the pleasure and comfort of the party. All these gentlemen took a personal interest in the party and they will always be pleasantly remembered for their many courtesies.

In breaking up last night it seemed more like the disruption of family ties than it did like the disbanding of a pleasure party. Since the second day out the young ladies had dropped all formalities and were addressing each other more like sisters than acquaintances. Mrs. Nelson made everyone fall in love with her and the young ladies regarded her in the light of a mother and she returned their affection in the same manner.

The happy memories of the trip will never be dimmed in the minds of the young ladies, while the friendships established during the outing will live through the coming years.

Greenville Trial.

GREENVILLE, Ky., Aug. 20.—The trial of Harrison Alexander will likely end today, and the soldiers return home.

FACTS ARE STUBBORN

If Hopkinsville People are not Convinced by Local Testimony, They Differ From Other People.

Facts are stubborn; Some may be disputed, None can be disproved. A fact is always hedged about with proof; Has to stand the test of investigation; Or it drifts to the realm of doubt. Investigate closely the following: The closer the scrutiny, the more convincing the results. A Hopkinsville citizen speaks here:

Miss L. A. Hester, of 212 East 14th street, says: "To walk for any distance or to overexert myself in any way intensified the aching in my back from which I was for a long time a continual sufferer, and if I caught cold it seemed to settle in the same region and made me most miserable. When rising in the morning I felt stiff and sore and often found it difficult to dress myself. Another symptom of my complaint was a weakness of my kidneys which annoyed and distressed beyond words. I doctored but found little if any relief until I tried Doan's Kidney Pills which had been strongly recommended to me and which I procured. They did me a vast amount of good. The pain in my back ceased, the secretion was regulated and my health was improved generally."

GOVERNOR IN TOWN

SAYS THAT HIS POLITICAL OUT-LOOK IS ROSY.

After This Week Will Regularly Take the Stump and Visit Every Part of Kentucky.

Gov. Beckham spent Saturday night and Sunday at the Western asylum as Dr. Board's guest and left Sunday evening for Barren county to fill a speaking appointment. The governor is in the best of health and

GOV. J. C. W. BECKHAM. is heavier than he was the last time of his last visit to Hopkinsville. His weight and his eyeglasses have considerably changed his appearance. To a New Era representative the governor said:

"I am more than pleased with my prospects in this part of the state. Everything looks good now in my race for the United States senate, and it is getting better every day."

Gov. Beckham and friends attended services at the Methodist church Sunday morning. Dr. Lyon's subject was "Christ as a Reformer." At the Baptist church, Dr. Nash mentioned the governor's presence in the city and praised him heartily for his efforts on behalf of temperance and civic righteousness, for "putting on the lid" in Louisville, and for his "invaluable aid" in securing the passage of the County Unit bill at the last session of the legislature. Dr. Nash also paid a glowing tribute to Mrs. Beckham for her Christian virtues.

The governor will not appear on the stump after his speech at Glasgow today until Saturday when he will speak to the Democrats of Marion county at Lebanon. He will then start upon a thorough campaign of the state, speaking in each district. After all have been covered, he will appear daily on the hustings, forming a schedule which will embrace just as many of the principal cities of the state as he can get to before Nov. 6.

TELLER IS MISSING

PADUCAH BANK ROBBED BY TRUSTED EMPLOYEE.

Shortage is $7,300, and is Paid by Bonding Company—Abbott Had Been Gambling.

Paducah, Ky., Aug. 20.—(Special)—Rumors of irregularities, coupled with the unaccountable absence of Phil J. Abbott, teller of the American-German Bank, of this city, caused an investigation of the bank's affairs by the officials, with the result that a shortage in the reserve of $7,300 was found. The Fidelity &

Deposit Company of Baltimore, which was on the bond of Abbott, paid the shortage, and an agent of the company is searching for the teller.

Abbott has been absent since Aug. 1, and his wife says she does not know where he is. Two weeks ago he secured a leave of absence for three days to visit his brother at Robinson, Ill. He is said to have lost heavily gambling.

Abbott had been in the employ of the bank two years. He is 29 years old, and a native of Hammond, Ind.

SOME GOOD ADVICE.

BETTER STAY WHERE YOU ARE DOING WELL.

These Farmers Who Exact Big Things in the West Generally Come Back.

These are the days when the disconcerted farmer's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of moving, says the Elizabethtown News. The great railway systems of the west flood the mails with manuals setting forth the beauties and virtues of this and that region, each claiming to be par excellence, the home seeker's paradise. Agriculture has in this respect taken the place of mining. "In former times the 'new country' that offered most attractions to travelers from a distance was that in which gold was taken out of the ground in big yellow nuggets or infinitesimal dust. In these latter days the search is still for a quick fortune, but the medium exploited is the growing crop, which can be turned into gold or greenbacks, by the slower process of planting, cultivating and harvesting; and the pioneer now has for his emblem the gang-plow and the reaping machine instead of the pick and pan.

Now the advertising circulars teem with prints in which the settler's comfortable homestead and happy family are shown projected against fields of heavy bearded grain, trees groaning under apples and peaches proportionately as large as watermelons, and the cattle of a thousand hills grouped in a pen by the side of the railroad awaiting rapid shipments to markets where buyers stand in line for the chance to draw fat checks in payment. While these pictures attract the eye, few if any, have ever bettered their condition by leaving our own fair country, and many of those who have left would only be glad to be back.

The great and growing popularity of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is due both to its scientific compounding and to the actual medicinal value of its ingredients. The publication of the names of the ingredients on the wrapper of every bottle sold gives full assurance of its non-alcoholic character and removes all objection to the use of an unknown or secret remedy. It is not a patent medicine nor a secret either. This fact puts it in a class all by itself, bearing as it does upon every bottle wrapper The Badge of Honesty, in the full list of its ingredients. Many years of active practice convinced Dr. Pierce of the value of many native roots as medicinal agents and he went to great expense, both in time and in money, to perfect his own peculiar processes for rendering them both efficient and safe for tonic, alterative and rebuilding agents.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" cures weak stomach, indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver and biliousness, ulceration of stomach and bowels and all catarrhal affections no matter what parts of organs may be effected with it.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original little liver pills, first put up 40 years ago. They regulate and invigorate, stomach, liver and bowels. Much imitated but never equaled. Sugar-coated and easy to take as candy. One to three a dose.

CHAT ABOUT PEOPLE AND THINGS

COLORS.—White is the emblem of light, religious purity, innocence, faith, joy and life. In the judge it indicates integrity; in the sick, humility; in the woman, chastity. Red, the ruby, signifies fire, divine love and royalty. White and red roses express love and wisdom. Blue, or sapphire, expresses heaven, the firmament, truth from a celestial origin, constancy and fidelity. Yellow or gold is the symbol of the sun, of marriage and faithfulness. Green, the emerald, is the color of spring, of hope—particularly of the hope of immortality and of victory, as the color of the laurel and palm. Violet, the amethyst, signifies love and truth or passion and suffering. Purple and scarlet signify things good and true from a celestial origin. Black corresponds to despair, darkness, earthliness, mourning, negation, wickedness and death.

PEEK-A-BOO BUG.—The "peek-a-too bug" has made its appearance in this city and neighborhood, say a Pittsburg despatch. The bug is voracious and ill-mannered. It has already interrupted three proposals of marriage. Just when the lovely young woman was about to murmur "yes" she shrieked "Ouch!" and tried to grab her shoulder blade or her ankles. Physicians have treated many young women whom the peek-a-too bug has bitten. All the doctors can do is to prescribe soothing lotions and often they have prescribed in the dark, so to speak. The doctors have not been able to classify the "peek-a-too bug." The insect looks like an ordinary house fly, but is not. The virus it deposits is very poisonous, for the swelling that follows its bite is great and does not yield to treatment quickly. The flesh around the bite becomes hard and the skin leathery, but painful.

BE PROGRESSIVE.—The following clipping, from an exchange, contains so much truth and wisdom and is susceptible of such universal application that it deserves a prominent position in every paper in the state: "The men who harm a town may be found among those who don't advertise; those who distrust public men; those who run it down to strangers; those who show no hospitality to any one; those who hate to see others make money; those who treat every stranger as an interloper; those who put on long faces when a stranger talks of locating; those who oppose every public enterprise that does not appear to be a personal benefit to themselves."

TABLET.—In order to raise an additional sum of $2,500, and thus double the appropriation of the state legislation for the erection of a memorial to Abraham Lincoln at Hodgenville, the Commercial club of that city has sent letters broadcast asking for donations. Contributions should be sent to George L. Hamilton, treasurer, at Hodgenville.

OLDEST DATE.—Prof. James H. Breasted, the Egyptologist of the University of Chicago, announced in an article in the Biblical World, that the "oldest fixed date in history is 4241 B. C." In that year he says the calendar was established, the year beginning on what would now be July 19. Consequently the calendar now in use was 6,147 years old last month. The professor arrived at these conclusions during his long exploration trip in the Nile valley.

FAIRS IN KENTUCKY.—The following are the dates fixed for holding the Kentucky fairs for 1906 as far as reported: Columbia, August 21-4 days. Shepherdsville, August 21-4 days. Lawrenceburg, August 21-4 days. Springfield, August 15-4 days. Brodhead, August 15-3 days. Guthrie, August 23-3 days. Nicholasville, August 28-3 days. Shelbyville, August 28-4 days. Florence, August 29-3 days. Ewing, August 30-3 days. Elizabethtown, Sept. 4-3 days. Paris, Sept. 4-5 days. Bardonia, Sept. 5-4 days. Monticello, Sept. 11-4 days. Glasgow, Sept. 12-4 days. Sebree, Sept. 18-5 days. Henderson, Sept. 25-5 days. Falmouth, Sept. 26-4 days. Pembroke, Sept. 27-3 days. Owensboro, Oct. 2-5 days. Mayfield, Ky., Oct. 3-4 days. Elkton, Oct. 3-4 days.

SIDEWALKS.—Our concrete sidewalks are laid to true grade and alignment, concrete is properly proportioned and thoroughly mixed. The result is a durable, permanent and artistic piece of work—our "know how" does it. Meacham Engineering & Construction Co., 307 South Main Street, Hopkinsville, Ky.

When he compared the astronomical dates in the old and middle kingdoms of Egypt, Prof. Breasted had recently returned from Egypt.

MODERATION.—"Keep working." "Eat lightly."

All of the doctors say much small sickness will follow the hot weather unless precautions are taken. Already many cases of sickness are appearing, the result frequently of heavy eating or of eating not too new fruit and vegetables. The last winter and spring have been the most healthful in the city's history. For billions people unsweetened lemonade three times a day is beneficial. But nothing will prevent sickness so well as light eating and keeping at work.

WARNING.—Superstitious residents of the south side of Paducah are staying wake nights on account of a prophesy written by a spider. In the center of the web is woven plainly, "Warning, Kentucky!" The web is under the top board of a front yard fence, where it is protected from the weather.

PHRASES.—We draw most profusely from the Bible for terse expressions. Proverbs and Ecclesiastes furnishing greater proportion from Old Testament and St. Paul's epistles from the New, and next to the Bible stands Shakespeare. Milton, though far behind these two great sources of English speech, gives us more familiar expressions than any other writer after them. From him we have learned to speak of "a dim religious light," of "grim death," of "heaven on earth" and "sanctity of reason," of "adding fuel to the flames," of "tempering justice with mercy," of the "busy hum of men," of "the light fantastic toe" (that boot to provincial reporters and the "beat handed Phyllis." Chaucer, though rich in material for quotations, has given us no pithy phrases, but from Spenser, who sang of him as the "well of English undefiled," we get "nor rhyme nor reason," "by hook or crook," "sweet attractive grace" and "through thick and thin."

BOARD OF HEALTH

ISSUES CIRCULAR CONTAINING VALUABLE SUGGESTIONS.

Typhoid Fever, is a Preventable Disease and Proper Measures Are Set Forth.

The state board of health is actively engaged in combating the dread typhoid, and is sending out circulars all over the state giving directions on how to guard against the disease, which, the board says, is the most preventable of all diseases, not even excepting smallpox, and only requires the exercise of simple sanitary measures to avoid contagion. The circular which the board requests the New Era to publish contains the following recommendations:

Based upon the teachings of the foregoing facts, the following rules have been prepared with care for the guidance of all persons interested in their own and the public health.

First—When it is known or suspected that a person has typhoid fever he should be placed in a large, well ventilated room, with the windows and doors well screened and such preparation should be made from the first day for the thorough and systematic disinfection of all discharges from the bowels and kidneys as will protect other members of the family, the attendants and the community.

Second—A solution of chloride of lime, eight ounces to the gallon of water, should be provided in quantity, and a quart of this should be put in the bedpan or vessel each time before it receives the discharges, and should be well stirred and allowed to stand in the vessel at least an hour before it is buried. An equivalent solution of creolin, or a thick whitewash made from the fresh quicklime, may be used in the same way when the chloride of lime cannot be obtained, but with these at least two hours will be required to complete the disinfection.

Third—Soiled bed or body linen should remain in the chloride of lime solution for an hour and may then be safely put in the family wash. Solid paper or clothes used about the patient should be immediately burned. Attendants should wash the hands frequently, and the lips, and rinse the mouth always before eating. No one should partake of any food which has stood in the sick room. All of these precautions should be continued until all diarrhea has ceased.

Fourth—Typhoid fever is not contagious in the sense commonly understood, and if fully and intelligently carried out, a case may be treated in any family or community with perfect safety. If others have the disease it will be because they were infected from the same source as the patient, or contracted it elsewhere. The same precautions should be observed in dysentery and all other diarrheal diseases, including summer complaint in children.

Fifth—All well water and unfettered water from rivers draining inhabited areas, where typhoid fever and diarrheal diseases are likely to occur at any time, and milk stored in cans and vessels washed in such water, should be looked upon as suspicious and should always be boiled before it is drunk by anyone immune from typhoid fever. In the absence of a reliable filtered public water supply, carefully collected and properly stored cistern water is safest.

Sixth—The windows and doors of all dwellings, houses, and especially of the kitchen and dining-room, should always be well screened and the flies actually kept out. Unless this is done a carelessly managed case of typhoid or other diarrheal disease, even a mile or more away, may be a source of danger on account of flies. As mosquitoes are known to be the carriers of malaria, the same precautions will protect from this poison also.

OLD SORES OFTEN LEAD TO CANCER

Whenever a sore or ulcer does not heal and shows signs of becoming chronic, it should arouse suspicion, because many of these places lead to cancer. It may appear as an ordinary sore at first, and is given treatment as such, with some simple salve, wash or plaster, with the hope that the place will heal, but the real seat of the trouble is in the blood and cannot be reached by external remedies, and soon the sore will return. After awhile the deadly poison begins to eat into the surrounding flesh and the ulcer spreads rapidly, becoming more offensive and alarming until at last the sufferer finds he is afflicted with cancer. Cancerous ulcers often start from a boil, wart, mole or pimple, which has been bruised or roughly handled, showing that the taint is in the blood, perhaps inherited. Another cause for non-healing ulcers and sores is the remains of some constitutional disease or the effects of a long spell of sickness. S. S. S. goes down to the very root of the trouble and cures so thoroughly that there is never any sign of the trouble in after years. As soon as the system gets under the influence of S. S. S. the place begins to improve, the discharge gradually grows less, the inflammation leaves, the flesh resumes its healthy color, and soon the sore is well, because every vestige of the cause has been removed from the blood. BOOSTING HIS BOOM

CANNON RENOMINATED AND ALSO INDORSED FOR PRESIDENT.

He Makes a Spread Eagle Speech, the Keynote of Which Was
"Stand Pat."

DANVILLE, Ill., Aug. 16.—Joseph G. Cannon, speaker of the national house of representatives, was renominated unanimously for congress on the Republican congressional convention here. He was also indorsed as the Republican nominee for president in 1908.

The speech which Mr. Cannon delivered to the convention after his nomination by acclamation, was in the nature of a reply to Samuel Gompers, president of the American federation of labor, in the labor crusade over the anti-injunction bill, and leaves no room for doubt as to the nature of the appeal which will be made to the people during the coming congressional convention for the continuance of the Republican party in power.

The keynote sounded by Speaker Cannon was to "stand pat." He stated emphatically that the tariff should be revised only when revision would do more good than harm to the great mass of people.

Mr. Cannon had not intended to launch a boom for president at this convention, but the pressure of his supporters was so great as to sweep away his wishes in the matter. Mr. Cannon's supporters in his own district will likely urge the state convention to make similar indorsements. There seems to be little doubt that this will be done.

A Mystery Solved.
"How to keep off periodic attacks of biliousness and habitual constipation was a mystery that Dr. King's New Life Pills solved for me," writes John N. Pleasant, of Magnolia, Ind. The only pills that are guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction to everybody of money refunded. Only 25c at L. L. Elgin, Anderson-Fowler Drug Co., Inc., Cook & Higgins.

There is nothing so pleasant as that bright, cheerful, at-peace-with-the-world feeling when you sit down to your breakfast. There is nothing so conducive to good work and good results. The healthy man with a healthy mind and body is a better fellow, a better workman, a better citizen than the man or woman who is handicapped by some disability, however slight. A slight disorder of the stomach will derange your body, your thoughts and your disposition. Get away from the morbidness and the blues. Keep your stomach in tune and both your brain and body will respond. Little indiscretions of over-eating can be easily corrected. Be surprised to see how you are. Try Kodol for Dyspepsia after you. are caused by indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of indigestion, you have no doubt had shortness of breath, rapid heart beats, heartburn or palpitation of the heart. Indigestion causes the stomach to expand—swell, and puff up against the heart. This crowds the heart and interferes with its action, and in the course of time the heart becomes diseased.

Kodol

digests what you eat, takes the strain off the heart, and contributes nourishment, strength and health to every organ of the body. Cures Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, Inflammation of the mucous membranes lining the Stomach and Digestive Tract, Nervous Dyspepsia and Catarrh of the Stomach.

After eating, my food would distress me by making my heart palpitate and I would become very weak. Finally I got a bottle of Kodol and it gave me immediate relief. After using a few bottles I am cured.

MME. DISS DE BARR FREE.

Mme. Diss De Barr has been released from prison in London, having obtained the maximum reduction of sentence for good behavior. She was convicted on a charge of immoral conduct. The woman through alleged occult powers defrauded several wealthy men in this country, and she served two terms in prison here. Her father at one time lived in Kentucky.

Prof. Tyler, of Amherst college, said recently: "A man can live comfortably without brains; no man ever existed without a digestive system. The dyspeptic has neither faith, hope or charity." Day by day the people realize the importance of caring for their digestion; realize the need of the use of a little corrective after over-eating. A corrective like Kodol For Dyspepsia. It will digest what you eat. Sold by L. L. Elgin and Anderson & Fowler (Inc.)

HAD AN AWFUL TIME

But Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Cured Him.

It is with pleasure that I give you this unsolicited testimonial. About a year ago when I had a severe case of measles I got caught out in a hard rain and the measles settled in my stomach and bowels. I had an awful time had it not been for the use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy I could not have possibly lived but a few hours longer, but thanks to this remedy I am now strong and well. I have written the above through simple gratitude and I shall always speak a good word for this remedy.—SAM H. GWIN, Concord, Ga. $25,000 HUNG UP
FOR STATE FAIR

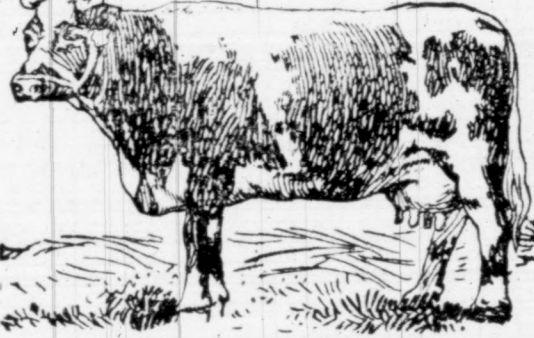

Largest Prize List Ever Offered to Exhibitors.

Money Given By Several Breeding Associations—Low Railroad Rates and Good Races Every Day—Standard Breeds of Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Swine Provided For in Catalogue, Which May Be Had From Secretary J. B. Bowles.

The prize list for the Kentucky State Fair, which will be held at Louisville during the week of September 17-22, has been announced by Secretary J. B. Bowles. In premiums and purses something over $25,000 will be distributed during the week and the Kentucky farmers and stock raisers who enter their products will have something substantial to show for their victories as well as the glory of winning ribbons at Kentucky's Fair.

The Fair will be held under the management of the Board of Control appointed by the State Board of Agriculture, Immigration and Forestry. The Board of Control is composed of five members of this commission, together with four other men appointed by the commission. Great care was taken by this board in arranging the prize list in order to properly distribute among the various classifications the $25,000 appropriated by the state for the purpose and the $10,000 which has been added.

The largest amounts have of course been set aside for horses and cattle, and $5,500 in prize money will be given to the exhibitors of the harness and saddle horses. The owners of bee and dairy cattle will carry away with them $5,000 at the close of the Fair. For sheep $1,500 has been hung up, and the same amount will go to the exhibitors of swine. Fur jackets and mule stock, $800 in prizes is offered, while for poultry and pet stock the prize list runs to $800. For field seed, horticulture, tobacco, etc., $2,500 has been hung up. A large number of silver cups has been offered by public-spirited men for special classes. The

SHORT HORNED JERSEY.

National Herford Association has given $200 to be added to the prize money in the class for Herfords. The American Oxford Down Record Association has offered $45 in special prizes for the best Oxford Down sheep. The American Saddle Harness Breeders' Association has offered a cup costing $100 for the finest horse registered with that association under two years of age. The American Short Horn Breeders' Association has added $395.

Three types will be judged in both the saddle and harness horse divisions. For the saddlers there will be rings for the fashionable walk, trot, canter type, the popular five-gaited horses and the strictly southern saddle horse technically known as the plantation saddle and popularly called nodding walkers. The latter class are judged solely upon the two gaits, the running walk and the canter. The five-gaited horses will, of course, be judged equally upon five distinct gaits, the walk, trot, canter, rack, and either running walk, slow pace or fox trot.

In the harness horse rings there will be three divisions, one for the flashy heavy harness horses, one for the roadsters and one for light harness horses. This latter type is one that is shown only in Kentucky fairs. The horses are not required to have either the excessive action of the high stepper nor the speed of the roadster.

In the beef cattle division prizes are offered for Short-horns, Herefords, Aberdeen Angus and Polled Durhams. In this class a large number of rings have been reserved exclusively for Kentucky breeders. In dairy cattle the Jerseys, Holsteins and Ayrshires will be shown. In the sheep there will be Shropshires, Cotswolds, South Downs, American Merinos, Oxford Downs, Hampshire Downs. For the hogs there are classes for Berkshires, Duroc Jerseys, Poland Chinas, Chester Whites, Tamworths, Yorkshires, and Hampshires, or thin rind. There will also be classes for ponies, mules, jacks and Angora goats.

In addition to the show rings there will be four races on the program each day, one for harness horses decided by heats, best three in five, and three running races. There will be one free-for-all race and one 2:10 trot during the week. The purses for the trotting and pacing races are $600 each, and the purses for the running races are $250 each.

The State Fair will be made attractive to visitors from every standpoint. There will be concerts both during the day and evening by bands of national reputation. The Carnival Company will supply fifteen interesting and amusing shows, and there will be dozens of other attractions on the grounds.

The official catalogue can be had on application to J. B. Bowles, Secretary, Fourth and Main Sts., Louisville, Ky.

FAILED TO CURE

E. W. ROSE MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo.
DEAR SIR: Believing that "ZEMO" saved my arms, if not my life, I will gladly tell all sufferers from eczema what your good medicine did for me. I suffered six years from a torturing case of itching eczema of both arms. I tried eight different doctors, and every eczema cure I could hear of without relief. The disease grew worse and spread to my neck and breast; my arms had great holes eaten in them. I soon became an invalid and was confined to my bed part of the time. My husband bought a bottle of "ZEMO"; the first application stopped the itching, clean and smooth as my picture will show, before and after using "ZEMO". My arms were so bad cured and have gained ten pounds in weight, and feel better than I have felt in many years. I consider my quick recovery by using "ZEMO" nothing short of a miracle. I will gladly answer all inquiries and recommend "ZEMO" to all persons suffering from any itching skin disease.
Yours gratefully,
Mrs. Harvey Burks.

NEGROES IN BERTH

AND PASSENGERS ON PULLMAN ENTERED A PROTEST.

Colored Preacher And His Wife Had Gone to Bed, But Obeyed Order of Policeman.

When the fast Chicago train on the Illinois Central pulled into the local station last night at 9:45, passengers asked Policeman Bryant Baker to force a negro and his wife to leave the Pullman car and go into the one reserved for colored people. The policeman found the negro and his wife had already retired to a berth located in the midst of those which were occupied by white people. The officer ordered them to dress, which they did without much protest, and he then escorted them back into the colored compartment. The negro was a preacher, about six feet tall and as black as ebony. His wife was a mulatto and very fleshy. Officer Baker held the train for nine minutes past the usual leaving time and did not permit it to pull out until he saw that the colored passengers were located in the car provided for their race. The officer says his nose told him of the presence of the negroes as soon as he entered the coach.

LOST HIS HAND

Colored Brakeman Collided With By-stander and Fell Under Car.

(From Tuesday's Daily)

Tom P. Baker, a colored brakeman, met with an accident this morning that cost him his left hand. He had placed a flag at a switch and was running to catch the train, which was moving slowly, when he collided with a man who was standing near the track and fell partly under a car. His left hand was caught under a wheel and frightfully mangled. Dr. Dennis found it necessary to amputate the arm at the wrist.

ADVANCE ORDERED

IN PRICE OF TOBACCO IN DARK DISTRICT.

Effort to be Made to Grow Tobacco in Ireland to Free Her From Our Product.

General Manager F. G. Ewing, of the Dark Tobacco Planters' Protective association, has ordered an advance in the price of all medium and good grades of leaf tobacco. The order will affect tobacco controlled by the association at the different points throughout the dark tobacco district. The advance will amount to about 50 cents on the hundred pounds.

While John Wesley Gaines, who reached Washington this week, shows no abatement in his campaign against the tobacco trust, and, in fact, finds good results already attained there, another menace has appeared which, if reports are true, may affect the tobacco of Kentucky and Tennessee. No new trust has appeared, it is true, but the assertion is made that interests in England are endeavoring to turn Ireland into a tobacco growing country in order to free her from dependence on the American product in the matter of "smokes". But even if it be true that five years' further experiments will convince everyone of the feasibility of the plan or of the truth of the state that the leaf can be grown in Ireland at a profit of from $80 to $500 per acre, there is little likelihood of any real activity which could be felt by the American producer, since it is from another kind of dependence that the Emerald Isle would free herself, while she continues to smoke this country's product.

SOLDIERS AT HOME

BRING NEGRO UNDER DEATH SENTENCE BACK TO JAIL.

Harrison Alexander Views Approaching Doom With Untroubled Eye.—Wanted to "Shoot Craps."

(From Tuesday's Daily)

Harrison Alexander, the negro who was sentenced to death at Greenville yesterday for assault upon Mrs. Florence Whitehouse, was returned to this city this morning, arriving under the escort of Company D., which with Company G., of Earlinton, guarded the jail which lasted through Saturday and Monday. The date of the execution was set for September 21. Commonwealth's Attorney Thomas conducted the prosecution and the negro was represented by John Feland, of this city. The verdict of death was returned about four o'clock yesterday afternoon, the jury deliberating twenty minutes. Judge Sandidge passed sentence immediately.

During the entire trial there was no open demonstration against the prisoner. The soldiers pitched their shelter tents in the jail yard and the camp was named for Adjutant General Henry R. Lawrence, this being the first time that official has been so honored. Company D. was commanded by Capt. E. W. Clark and Company G. by Capt. Paul Price, while Major E. B. Bassett was in command of all the troops.

The negro received the death sentence unperturbably. After it had been passed and the date announced he remarked to one of the soldiers that so far as he was concerned the execution could take place right away. He protested that he was innocent and that the other negro who has figured in the crime told the story on him through revenge. On the way back here he offered to shoot craps with any of the soldiers who would stake him to a nickel.

BEAUTIFUL BETHEL.

Everything in Readiness for Session Which Begins Next Month.

Accepting a courteous invitation from Dr. Edmund Harrison, the honored president of Bethel Female College, a New Era representative had the pleasure, yesterday, of visiting and inspecting the institution. The building, long noted as one of the handsomest and most comfortable schools in the south, has been in the hands of paperers, decorators and artists this summer in preparation for the ensuing session and is in fine condition generally and has never presented a more attractive appearance. Beautifully situated on spacious grounds carpeted with blue-grass, the building with its magnificent columns towers in architectural grace and stateliness among the fine trees whose foliage shades the lawn. So pleasing is the external aspect of the institution that one is not surprised to find the interior quite in keeping. The halls and rooms have been tastefully papered, and new carpets and rugs are on the floors, and the furnishings are adequate in every respect. Particularly appealing is the reading and recreation room in the new wing of the building, and on the tables are all periodicals of any literary value or real interest, and the book cases and shelves contain an excellent library of standard and classical works. All of the apartments are inviting, and everywhere there is something to attest the culture and refinement and rare hospitality of Dr. Harrison and his family. It costs a world of money to keep up properly so large an institution, but Dr. Harrison has been lavish in his expenditures, sparing no expense that would contribute to the comfort and pleasure of the girls and young women placed in his care. Last year was decidedly the most prosperous session of the school since Dr. Harrison has had charge of it, and all the friends of the institution will be glad to know that the coming term, if indications may be relied on, will be even more successful.

Undergoes Operation.

Mrs. Boyd Organ, of Garrettsburg, was operated upon Tuesday by Dr. Brandau, of Clarksville, and Dr. Haynes, of Howell, for pelvic abscess. She is in a critical condition and the operation was attempted as the last hope for saving her life.

Miss Martha Wallis has returned visit to her sister, Mrs. C. E. Mesburo.

POLITICS AND POLITICIANS.

Congressman Ollie M. James announced yesterday that he will not enter the race for the Democratic nomination for governor.

A despatch to the New Era from Richmond, Ky., received this afternoon, states that Senator McCrory is not yet ready to reply to Gov. Beckham's challenge for a series of joint debates in the senatorial race.

The Republicans of Illinois, in convention Springfield, nominated state ticket and endorsed Speaker Cannon for the presidential nomination in 1908. Senator Shelby M. Cullom was unanimously endorsed for reelection.

Gov. Beckham has written a letter to Senator McCrory challenging him to joint discussions on the issues entering into the campaign for United States senator.

The governor's challenge to Senator McCrory was called forth by the question propounded by the senator in a public speech delivered Monday at Mt. Sterling, whether the executive ever asked or received pecuniary aid from the whisky interests in any campaign which he has made for office in Kentucky. In his letter Gov. Beckham assures Senator McCrory that he is ready to answer the question propounded, or any other but that he is of opinion that "long-ranged" discussion through the press of the state would be unsatisfactory, and that questions from both could better be put and answered in a joint discussion.

Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy is out for Hearst for governor. District Attorney Jerome, who is a candidate, has given out the statement:

"It is no surprise to me to find Murphy practically declaring for Hearst."

"Birds of a feather flock together," and when a person, intellectually sterile, socially vulgar and morally obtuse, insults the decent people of the state irrespective of party, by seeking the nomination of a political party by advancing dollars and not ideas, and by methods akin to those of the blackmailer, no thinking man could doubt where Murphy could be found."

After a turbulent session the Illinois Democratic convention at Peoria nominated a state ticket, endorsed W. J. Bryan for the presidency and voted down a resolution calling for the resignation of Roger Sullivan as United States minister.

LEADS SIMPLE LIFE

SOMETHING ABOUT AN EX-GOVERNOR IS EXILE.

Careful to Keep Away From His Native State.—What Taylor is Doing Now.

The Evansville Courier recently had the following to say concerning a Kentucky fugitive:

When Kentucky had her great home coming week there was one former citizen who was not invited to return as an honored guest. Neither did he care to go to his old home. The man was a former governor of the Blue Grass State, William S. Taylor. For six years he has been a fugitive from the state whose affairs he directed for a few weeks.

Once he had the militia of that state at his command and the scepter of power was in his hands. Then came the assassination of Wm. Goebel, who had been Taylor's opponent in the race for governor, and who claimed the governorship.

The stirring scenes following the assassination are fresh in the minds of most newspaper readers. Governor Taylor and his friends were accused of conspiring to kill Goebel. Several of them are in the penitentiary. Caleb Powers, thrice sentenced to death for the murder, is soon to have a new trial.

Governor Taylor and former Secretary of State Finley fled to Indiana to escape arrest. Governor Taylor has been a resident of Indianapolis since that time. Three Republican governors of Indiana have refused to honor requisitions from Kentucky for Governor Taylor. The matter of granting a requisition has been a political issue in every campaign since 1900.

The former governor is an insurance agent. He has a little office in one of the big office buildings. Most of the time his family reside in Louisville. In Indianapolis Taylor has many friends but he is seldom heard of in public affairs. He is modest in demeanor and pursues his business quietly. Frequently he can be found at the Columbia Club, the swell Republican club of the state.

Taylor is aging. His gait is halting. He will not talk about the tragedy in Kentucky. He insists that all has been said that can be said. His excuse for not returning to Kentucky is that he could not get a fair trial. He points to the trials of Caleb Powers as examples. He is content to remain in exile.

BERTH HELD BISHOP

According to a despatch in the Cincinnati Enquirer the colored couple compelled by a Hopkinsville officer to leave a berth in a Pullman on the L. C. and take seats in the coach carried for negroes were a noted colored bishop and his wife.

The despatch says: "Rev. Dr. C. H. Phillips, Bishop of the Colored Methodist Episcopal churches in Tennessee, North Carolina, Texas, and portions of Arizona and New Mexico, and his wife, en route from Nashville to some points in Michigan, were forced out of their berth in a Pullman car on the Chicago Limited on the Illinois Central here today."

A Hopkinsville policeman compelled them to take seats in the compartment reserved for colored passengers. When the train pulled in here a passenger asked the policeman to force the bishop and his wife to leave the car. The train was held here nine minutes while they were dressing and removing their belongings.

"Bishop Phillips is recognized as one of the leading colored educators of the South. He is a close friend of Booker T. Washington. He has received five diplomas from the Walden University at Nashville and has been abroad twice on lecturing tours. Mrs. Phillips is a graduate of the Fisk University at Nashville, President of the Colored W. C. T. U. of Tennessee and Vice President of the National Federation of Colored Women."

"The man upon whose objection the bishop and Mrs. Phillips were ordered out of the car was Irving McGraw, a farmer, living near Pulaski, Tenn."

Talmage Sermon

By Rev.
Frank De Witt Talmage, D.D.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 19.—In this sermon the preacher shows us John, the beloved disciple, in a new light and as a model of strength, courage and heroism for Christians of every age. The text is John xiii, 23. "Now there was leaning on Jesus' bosom one of his disciples, whom Jesus loved."

No art student feels that he has truly studied to the best advantage unless he has sat at the feet of the old masters. What Mecca is to the Mohammedans and Beaters to the Hindus and Jerusalem to the Christians, Rome and Venice and Florence and Milan and Paris and Antwerp are to the young artists and sculptors. So ever come was Michael Angelo when he first looked upon the wonderful figure of St. George carved by the sculptor Donatello on the outside of the church of San Michel at Florence that for a time he could not speak. Then as he studied the magnificent proportions of that greatest of all the great works of the Florentine sculptor he raised his hand majestically and cried, "Now, march!" In these two simple words the architect of St. Peter's, the sculptor of "David" and "Moses" and the artistic creator of "The Last Judgment" and of the frescoes of the Pauline chapel affirmed that the statue of St. George was perfect in its physical proportions and had everything in its makeup but a human soul.

The works of the old masters are almost overpowering; hence we find that the greatest art schools of the world are near to the galleries in which are preserved the immortal pictures and the statues of the greatest artists and sculptors of past centuries. The Louvre has more to do with attracting art students to the "Latin quarter" of Paris by the hundreds and thousands than any other cause. Not a day passes but you can see scores of young students, with their easels, copying Titian's "Holy Family" or his "Assumption of the Virgin," which hang upon the Louvre's walls. There Rubens and Rembrandt and Velasquez and Fra Bartolomeo and Da Vinci are still as much art professors as though they were alive in the flesh. What is true of Paris is equally true of all the Italian cities. So much are the models of the ancient artists sought after for copying purposes that the Italian government has forbidden any of its subjects to sell any of these old masterpieces to any buyer outside of the country. The king of Italy knows that the loss of the works of the old masters would be irreparable, and if they were scattered over the greatest galleries of Italy would have vanished forever.

What Raphael's Madonnas are to the young art students as models, the characters of Moses and Joshua and Samuel and Nehemiah and Daniel and John the Baptist and Peter and Paul and John, the beloved disciple, are to young Christians. These Bible characters are not perfect, any more than the artistic works of the old masters are perfect. Paul Veronese, one of the greatest of Venetian artists, painted his female characters of "The Family of Darius at the Feet of Alexander After the Battle of Issus" in the hooped skirts and low bodiced waists of the Venetian costumes of the sixteenth century, although the battle of Issus was fought a third of a millennium before Christ was born. There is only one perfect being mentioned in the Bible, and that person is Jesus Christ. But though the best Bible characters are not perfect, yet many of them are rightly held up as prototypes for young Christians to copy after. Today I want to speak about one of the best and noblest of the apostles for us to emulate. I want to show how St. John was strong, and how he was one of the most influential and perhaps the best beloved of all the disciples who gathered about the table at the last supper, just preceding the crucifixion.

St. John a Model.
The model of my text, in the first place, was, I believe, a Christian of superb physical proportions. He was not, as some people suppose, a physical weakling. He did not have his head pillowed upon Christ's breast at the banquet table of the last supper because he was a suffering invalid. Oh, no. Far from that. Of all the stalwart young men gathered about this table—for at that time they were probably all young—St. John, I believe, had the best and the strongest physical frame. His eye, like David's, the shepherd boy, must have been clear and quick. His limbs must have been supple and snappy. His chest must have been broad and deep. His skin must have been aglow with health. He must have had the body of an athlete. He must have been a young man bubbling over with fun and good humor, on account of the resiliency of his strong physical constitution. He must have had all the advantages which accrue from good health, because the Bible indirectly affirms it.

How does the Bible assert this? You must read between the lines. The Bible implies that John lived to be a very old man. You must not study St. John the young man at the foot of the cross unless you study St. John an old man on the island of Patmos. There he was supposed to have lived to a very advanced age. Albert Barnes declared that in all probability St. John must have lived far on in the nineties before he died. Like Titian, the great painter, who died of the Venetian plague at his ninety-ninth year, St. John may have almost reached the century mark before he passed to glory. Now, do you think could have lived as long as St. John lived and have done the work he did unless he started with an unlimited supply of physical health and had carefully husbanded his health all through life. Lord Palmerston, governing the destinies of England in his eighty-first year, and William E. Gladstone, still vigorous and ambitious at eighty-five and almost ninety, the most eminent member of the German Reichstag at ninety, and Danby, the duke of Venetia, leading his soldiers in battle at the age of ninety-five, and Homer, a blind old man, writing his "Odyssey" when nearly all of the contemporaries of his own generation were dead and gone, were not any greater physical marvels than this young man who is the prototype of this morning's text.

Stronger Than Peter.
But we do not have to turn to Revelation to prove that John was physically a marvel. There is another reason why I know St. John had a superb physical body. When we read the twelfth chapter of St. John we find Peter and John running toward the rifled tomb on the morning of the resurrection. Which was the swifter of foot? There, in John's own words, we read, "And the other disciple did outrun Peter." Now, no one for a moment would judge the physique of Peter to be that of a valetudinarian. Oh, no! His muscles were those of a powerfully formed fisherman. His skin was bronzed from many a hot sun and tanned by many a cold sea breeze. When the artists draw his picture it is always with the swarthy neck and the deep chest. Yet this other disciple did outrun Peter. When John surrendered his life to the work of the Master he did not have to say, "Here, Lord, is a pair of wheezy lungs and a heart whose valves are out of gear and a brain with all its corpuscles white." He did not say, "Here, Lord, are my weak nerves, too much out of tune to be any longer but call for a medicine for my nerves." No, that was not St. John. He came to the Master and said: "Here, Lord, is a fine physical body. I was born with it. I promise to take care of this body to my uttermost and make it a mighty agent to do thy work. I will keep it well supplied with food. I will look after it to my best ability, so that I may live on earth three score years if possible to do thy work. If not, Master, take it for thy service." Will we consecrate our bodies to God, as did John? If we are prone to physical ailments, will we do all in our power to win back that health in order to become physical as well as spiritual athletes in the Master's service?

"Oh, yes," say some people, "John was one of those lovable men. He was one of those clinging vines. He was the gentle John. He never would say anything to hurt anybody's feelings. He would go miles and miles to tell a pleasant fact. He would go miles and miles to escape telling an unpleasant truth." In other words, most artists paint John with an effeminate face. He is supposed to have a face which could never belong to a great surgeon who has to drive in the knife or to a great prosecuting attorney who has to arraign a criminal at the bar of justice or to a great commander who has to lead his soldiers in battle or to a great statesman who has to sign a death warrant when it is necessary and right to do so. We do not picture him as a man of wrath and denunciation, but only of pardon and of peace, whereas, in fact, no human face should be chiseled with firmer features of decision. He was a positive man through and through. He seemed to be able to handle the thunderbolts of heaven as an inspired writer before or since has ever been able to do. Where can we find such awful descriptions of eternal punishment as in his book of Revelation? Where such denunciation of sin and eternal death as in his apocalypse and his visions? If you would be an apostle like St. John you must be an uncompromising foe of evil as well as one who preaches the love and the pardon and the mercy and the forgiveness of Jesus Christ.

St. John No Compromiser.
St. John was one of the favorite disciples of Jesus Christ on account of his positiveness. When the question of right and wrong came up he was out and out, up and down, through and through for the right. There was no compromise. Are we going to be like John in our denunciation of evil? When it is necessary to use the knife upon the deadly cancer of a good surgeon will keep on driving it in and cutting down until he gets out all of the roots? It is a dangerous matter, this tampering with evil. In my Chicago church there sat Sunday after Sunday a beautiful woman who was the mother of three fine children. One day she came to me and said, "The doctor wants me to go to the hospital and have a lump upon my breast cut out." The next day she had this operation done. But the surgeon was one of those vacillating men. He never did his work thoroughly. He made a small incision and took out the lump. But he did not take the roots away. Within four months the lump came back. Then another surgeon saw it. He said: "Had I done the first operation I could have saved her life. I fear it is too late now." Then he laid that woman upon the table and began to cut. He cut away the fleshy part of that woman's right side, from the waist up into the cords of the neck. But, alas! he began his cutting too late. That mother is now in her grave because the first surgeon did not cut deep enough. This charge can never be made against St. John. When he uses the knife upon the cancer of sin he cuts clear down to the root. He was a man of positive characteristics. His lip was a smiling lip, but it was firm. May God help us to be like John. May we learn how to denounce evil, as well as to preach the pardoning love of Jesus Christ.

But as we come into the banquet hall and find the twelve apostles gathered around the table for the last supper there is another characteristic to which I want to call your attention about this saintly John. He was not only a disciplinarian, but a disciplinarian and a dreamer. He was one of the most practical of men. All his thoughts were not his castles. All his hopes were not anchored in the clouds. All his desires were not focused upon the future. He would see the grass growing at his feet as well as the stars glittering above his head. While he thought about heaven, he always had his feet planted upon the soil of earth. The celestial spirits of the celestial beings did not draw out the parting words beating themselves into foam upon the rocky heights of old Patmos; neither did the "Breath of Heaven" inspire him to the necessity of working in the furrows of his own home. In other words, when John prayed he prayed like the common sense Christian Mr. Spurgeon once told about. A poor laborer with a large family broke his leg. Then the good man's friends decided to have a prayer meeting to ask God to cure his helpless servant. The meeting was conducted by a Deacon Brown. Hardly had the meeting got under way when there was a knocking at the sick man's door. "Is Deacon Brown in?" asked a husky, growing youth. "Well, father wanted me to tell him he did not have time to attend the meeting today. He had to work. But he has sent the prayers and they are out in the cart." The prayers that were sent were piled in an old farm wagon. These prayers consisted of big bags of potatoes and beef and flour. So when St. John prayed he prayed with his hands and feet as well as with his lips. He did not worship God as did the devotees in the temple of Ino, who always worshipped their deity by going to sleep; but he was ready to toil and labor for his deity's bread, as every other man ought to be.

St. John Was Practical.
"Well," you ask, "how do you make St. John out to be such a practical man? How do you know he was careful about his money matters and careful to provide clothing and a home? Does the Bible teach us that? I never heard of St. John being a capitalist or careful about his money matters." Yes, my friends, I think the Bible tells us that St. John was very prudent and careful about the practicalities of life. Here is the picture Christ is giving: the great drops of agony are coming from his brow; grown after grown escapes his lips; he has only a few hours more of life. To whom is he going to intrust the care of his mother? All the poets and the painters and the theologians love to describe the helplessness of Mary the Virgin when Jesus was about to be born. Tell me, was she as helpless then, with the big, heavy Joseph by her side, as she was on the day of the crucifixion, when, as a broken down, helpless widow, she knelt at the foot of the cross to see her divine Son die? Tell me, where can you find in all history a picture so pathetic as that crucifixion scene of Mary in her desolation and helplessness? Ah, yes; the most pathetic scene in all the Bible to me is that broken hearted widow watching the dying agony of her divine Son! Agony of Christ! His echo in agony of maternal heart; dying gasp of Jesus is answered by the moaning cry of this mother, who swoons away. Now, Christ was God, but Christ was also man, and Christ did for his mother just what you and I would do for ours if we had been in his place. He wanted to put her in the care of one who would never neglect her and never let her want. He did not give her to Peter; he was not sure of Peter; Peter was not steady enough; he gave her to the fatherly John. He practically said: "John, I know you will never neglect her; I know you will clothe her and feed her and give her a home to shelter her weary head. Look after her for me, please."

Let us learn to be like the practical John. A man cannot be a true Christian and be simply a theoretical Christian. He must be a practical Christian. He must know that it is his duty to work for his daily bread. He must have his honest struggle to pay his bills and to care for those of his own household, or else he is no Christian at all. What does James write? He says your faith must be joined in hand with your works. Your faith can no more live without works than your hand can live after it has been amputated from the arteries of the arm. "Faith, if it hath not works, is dead." St. John was a practical worker as well as a Patmos seer.

But there are still two more thoughts to which I would call your attention. The first is, John was ready to give up all for Christ; for Christ's sake he was ready to break the home ties and go into a foreign land as a missionary and even to yield up his life. Are you and I willing to do so much for Christ? Perhaps we are too old to become foreign missionaries or ministers of the gospel; then the next best place that I make is this: Are you willing to give your children up for the service of the Master, as John went to minister to the seven churches of Asia?

In the Master's Service.
"Oh," says some one, "I have nothing to do in reference to my children entering the missionary or the ministerial fields! That call must come from God. I do not believe in parent made ministers or in parent made missionaries." The parents have more to do with the children's consecration of themselves than you think. The reason we have not our theological seminaries crowded with students today is because the parents are not sending their children there. How are the parents to send them there? By consecrating their children's lives to the Master's service at their very birth and by keeping on consecrating their children to God's service every day of their school years. Then these children cannot help entering the Master's service any more than the brothers and the sisters of Henry Ward Beecher could help entering his service. Would you like me to tell you why Lyman Beecher's children turned out as they did? Well, I will, by quoting from the diary of this illustrious man, written on the day his first child, the famous Catherine Beecher, was born. These are his words:

"Saturday, Sept. 6, 1800.—This morning, blessed be God, my dear, dear wife is delivered of a daughter, and my soul, my very soul, from agony. Oh, may I never forget the goodness of God, who has heard our prayer. Jesus, thou former of the body and father of the spirit, accept as thine this immortal soul thou hast ushered into life. Take, oh, take it to be thine before it clings around my heart, and never suffer us to take it back again. May it live to glorify thee on earth and to enjoy thee forever in heaven. Now, Lord, we look to thee for grace to help us rear it for thee. May it be thine forever. Amen and amen." Do you suppose any child, or any collection of children, parentally consecrated to Jesus Christ as were Lyman Beecher's, could turn out otherwise than they did? If by prayer and consecration Lyman Beecher could send his boys and girls into Christian service, cannot we by prayer make our own boys and girls devoted Christian workers for this century, as St. John labored in foreign lands during the first century? If by prayer we can consecrate our children to Christ, shall we not by prayer first consecrate our own selves to his dear name?

And now a closing word of warning. Like John, let us be careful that we remain faithful to Christ unto the end. Oh, that we might all, as young, as middle aged, and as old men and women, cling close to the Master! What do I mean by this? Why, I simply want to warn you against the temptations which Satan continually sets for the gray haired, as well as for the youth of the raven locks.

This is no useless "red light" which I am showing over the rocks lining the jagged shores of eternity. When we were young our friends were continually warning us against sin. But when we became older, when we made success in life, when we became in-sters in the pulpit or elders by the communion table or mothers of growing daughters, the people seemed to think we were safe. Are we? Was Solomon safe? Was David safe? Are you safe, oh, father or mother? What is the sin that is beckoning to you now? O God, I have often prayed for thee to save me from the sin of youth. Father, I now pray to thee to save me from the temptations of the thirties and of the forties and of the fifties and of the sixties and of the seventies, and, Lord, from the temptations of the eighties. Thou didst guard and keep St. John the pure, noble Christian that he was, clear on into the twilight of life. Guard and keep me from the sins of mature manhood. Though I may be thy servant to proclaim thy name in thy pulpit, make my faith that of a little child. And this I ask in the name of Jesus Christ, who was with the aged St. John in Asia and on Patmos, and who was also with St. John in the banquet hall of the last supper when he was a young man.

God keep our children from sin. God keep our young men from sin. God keep us when we are middle aged, and God keep us when old, like St. John, our eyes are dim and our step is heavy. May we be like John, the young man, and like St. John, the aged patriarch.

TRIP ON THE RIVER

A DELIGHTFUL FEATURE OF THE OUTING.

New Era's Mammoth Cave Party Arrives in the Best Health and Spirits.

Mammoth Cave, Ky., August 16.—The New Era party reached here safely tonight after a day which could not have been excelled for pleasure.

Much has already been said in the columns of the New Era extolling the many attractive features of a trip down the Barren and Green rivers, but this could only give a faint idea of the real beauty and interest which is to be found on this trip.

To begin with the steamer Capt. Iron is one of the handsomest and most commodious boats in the passenger trade. Capt. Jeff Williams is a young man who went to the limit in every particular to please the party, and he was ably seconded in this endeavor by every one under him. There were only a very few passengers on the boat besides the New Era party, and as soon as the Hopkinsville crowd boarded the boat they took immediate possession of it. Both dinner and supper were eaten aboard.

This section has been visited by as frequent, but fortunately, short showers of rain as has Christian county, and several times during the day these showers fell, but never did interfere in the least with the party.

When it comes to a description of the beauty of the scenery along the river route language proves entirely inadequate to the task, and it must be seen to be appreciated. After leaving Bowling Green, wide fertile bottom lands are succeeded by towering wooded cliffs, showing in a most picturesque manner the blue limestone formation contrasted with the green foliage. These in turn gradually give way to the bottom, then again the bluffs, and so on the entire distance, the whole making a constantly changing panorama of the greatest beauties of nature's handiwork. By the way the scenery in this section was never so promising, and the recent rains, while perhaps damaging other lines of produce, have given this a start which nothing will be able to prevent from yielding a golden harvest.

Three locks were passed through en route, there being lock No. 1 on Barren river, and locks No. 5 and 6 on Green river. Going through these was a most interesting experience for all the party and did not grow in the least monotonous. At lock No. 1 the boat was dropped a distance of fourteen feet while at the other two it was raised for about the same distance.

Lock No. 6 has only been completed this year. It is something new in this kind of a structure, it being built of concrete instead of stone.

Mirth and pure fun have characterized the party at all times and the supply shows no evidence of decreasing. While all indulge in this to the full extent it perhaps would not be amiss to say that Misses Elizabeth Clond, Lillie Owen, Eddie Jones, Nannie Walker and Florence Tibbs are the leaders. There is something doing all the time and the first dull moment for any one has yet to make its appearance.

Mammoth Cave was reached tonight shortly after 9 o'clock, the boat being over an hour late. The Henderson Gleamer's party numbering twenty successful candidates and thirty-five outsiders, who had paid their own way, were found. They will leave in the morning on the Chaparral for the return trip to Henderson by river.

Satisfactory accommodations were received at the Mammoth Cave hotel, and the young ladies soon repaired to their rooms to seek rest, which was the only thing to give them the needed strength for the long route tomorrow.

DEATH OF MR. BARR

PASSES AWAY IN ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL, LEXINGTON.

Remains Will Be Taken on Special Train to Louisville For Interment Sunday Afternoon.

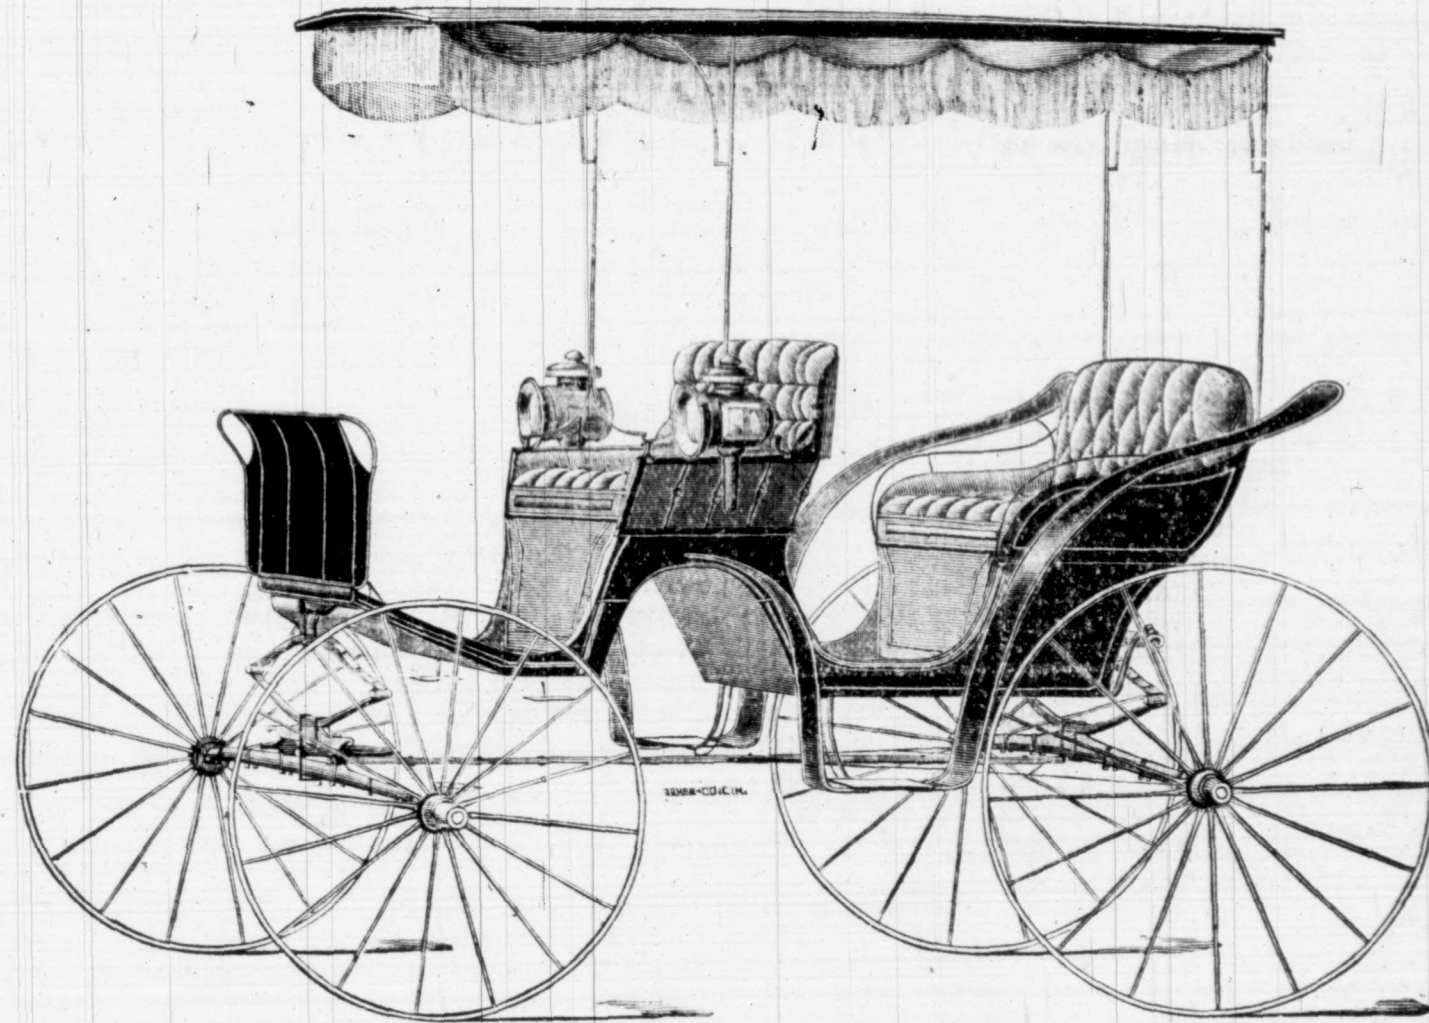

(From Saturday's Daily).

J. Rogers Barr died at four o'clock this morning at St. Joseph's hospital in Lexington. The sad intelligence was conveyed to friends and relatives in this city by a telephone message from A. W. Wood, brother-in-law of the deceased. Mrs. Hunter Wood, the mother of Mrs. Barr, has been in Lexington several weeks on account of the critical illness of Mr. Barr. John and Rogers Barr, the young sons of the deceased, have been spending part of the summer here and tomorrow morning will be taken to Louisville, where the interment will take place, by Hunt Wood, Sr., and Mrs. E. A. Chavanne.

The news of Mr. Barr's death does not come as a surprise. He had been ill of chronic pleurisy for six months and for some time his condition has been critical. Several days ago an operation was performed to remove a rib which was thought to be pressing the lung. The operation failed to give relief.

The deceased was 38 years of age and a native of Louisville. He was a son of Judge John Watson Barr, who was judge of the United States court for the district of Kentucky from 1880 until he retired in 1899. He was a brother of John W. Barr, Jr., president of the Fidelity Trust Co.; Miss Annie Barr, Mrs. Morton V. Joyce, Mrs. Edward McDermott, Mrs. John B. McFerran, Jr., and Mrs. Wallace McDowell, of Louisville. Mr. Barr was a graduate of Princeton College. He was one of the civil engineers who aided in the building to Hopkinsville of the Ohio Valley railroad, now a part of the I. C. system. He married in this city Miss Elizabeth Wood, who, with two children, survives him. Forty-eight years Mr. Barr had been general manager of the Lexington & Eastern Railroad. A special train will carry the remains to Louisville, and the funeral will take place at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Interment in Cave Hill Cemetery.

The Wings of The Morning

CHAPTER IX.

THE CHAPTER AFTER those monkeys in a mood of relentless severity. Thus far the regular denizens of Rainbow Island had lived together in peace and mutual good will, but each diminutive monkey must be taught not to pull any strings he found tied promiscuously to trees or stakes. As a preliminary essay Jenks resolved to try force combined with artifice. Failing complete success, he would endeavor to kill every monkey in the place though he had in full measure the inherent dislike of Anglo-India to the slaying of the native people.

This, then, was what he did: After filling a biscuit tin with good sized pebbles he donned a Dyak hat, blouse and belt, rubbed earth over his face and hands and proceeded to pelt the wretched monkeys. For more than an hour he made their lives miserable until at the mere sight of him they fled, shrieking and gurgling like a thousand water bottles. Finally he constructed several Dyak scarecrows and erected one to guard each of his alarm guns. The device was thoroughly effective. Thereafter, when some adventurous monkey, swinging with hands or tail among the tree tops in the morning search for appetizing nut or luscious plantain, saw one of those fearsome bogies, he raised such a hubbub that all his companions scampered hastily from the confines of the wood to the inner fastnesses.

During each of the two daily examinations of the horizon, which he never omitted, Jenks minutely scrutinized the sea between Rainbow Island and the distant group. It was perhaps a needless precaution. The Dyaks would come at night. With a favorable wind they need not set sail until dusk, and their fleet sampans would easily cover the intervening forty miles in five hours.

He could not be positive that they were actual inhabitants of the islands to the south. The China sea swarms with wandering pirates, and the tribe whose animosity he had earned might be equally noxious to some peaceable fishing community on the coast. Again and again he debated the advisability of constructing a seaworthy raft and endeavoring to make the passage. But this would be risking all on a frightful uncertainty, and the accidental discovery of the eagle's nest had given him new hope. Here he could make a determined and prolonged stand, and in the end help must come. So he dismissed the navigation project and devoted himself wholly to the perfecting of the natural fortress in the rock.

That night they finished the rope ladder. Indeed Jenks was determined not to retire to rest until it was placed. He did not care to try a second time to carry Iris to that elevated perch.

One of the first things he contemplated was the destruction if possible of the point on the opposite cliff which commanded the ledge. This, however, was utterly impracticable with the appliances at his command. The top of the rock sloped slightly toward the west, and nothing short of dynamite or regular quarrying operations would render it untenable by hostile marks men.

During the day his rifles at ninety yards' range might be trusted to keep the place clear of intruders. But at night—that was the difficulty. He partially solved it by fixing two rests on the ledge to support a rifle in exact line with the center of the enemy's supposed position, and as a variant on the outer rest he marked lines which corresponded with other sections of the entire front available to the foe.

Even then he was not satisfied. When time permitted, he made many experiments with ropes reeved through the pulley and attached to a rifle action. He might have succeeded in his main object had not his thoughts taken a new line. His aim was to achieve some method of opening and closing the breach block by means of two ropes. The difficulty was to secure the preliminary and final lateral movement of the lever; but, but it suddenly occurred to him that if he could manage to convey the impression that Iris and he had left the island the Dyaks would go away after a fruitless search. The existence of ropes along the face of the rock—an essential to his mechanical scheme—would betray their whereabouts or at any rate excite dangerous curiosity. So he reluctantly abandoned his original design, though not wholly, as will be seen in due course.

In pursuance of his latest idea he sedulously removed from the foot of the cliff all traces of the clearance effected on the ledge and, although he provided supports for the tarpaulin covering, he did not adjust it. Iris and he might be perdu there for days with their retreat being found out. This development suggested the necessity of hiding their surplus stores and ammunition, and what spot could be more suitable than the cave?

So Jenks began to dig once more in the interior, laboring manfully with pick and shovel in the locality of the fault with its vein of antimony.

Rainbow Island had given him the one thing a man prizes above all else—a pure yet passionate love for a woman beautiful alike in body and mind. And now it was to endow him with riches that might stir the pulse of even a South African magnate, for the sailor, unmindful of purpose other than providing the requisite cache, shovelled to all his actions, suddenly struck a deep vein of almost virgin gold.

To facilitate the disposal at a distance of the disturbed debris he threw each shovelful on to a canvas sheet, which he subsequently dragged among the trees in order to dislodge its contents. After doing this four times he noticed certain metallic specks in the fifth load which recalled the presence of the antimony. But the appearance of the sixth cargo was so remarkable when brought out into the sunlight that it invited closer inspection. Though his knowledge of geology was slight, he was forced to believe that the specimens he handled so dubiously contained neither copper nor iron pyrites, but glittering yellow gold. Their weight, the distribution of the metal through quartz in a transition zone between an oxide and a telluride, compelled recognition.

Somewhat excited, yet half skeptical, he returned to the excavation and scooped out yet another collection. This time there could be no mistake. Nature's own alchemy had fashioned a veritable ingot. There were small lumps in the ore which would only need alloy at the mint before they could be issued as sovereigns, so free from dross were they.

Iris had gone to Venus' bath and would be absent for some time. Jenks sat down on a tree stump. He held in his hand a small bit of ore worth perhaps £20. Slowly the conjectures already pieced together in his mind during early days on the island came back to him.

The skeleton of an Englishman lying there among the bushes near the well, the Golgotha of the poison filled hollow, the mining tools, both Chinese and European; the plan on the piece of tin-ah, the piece of tin. Mechanically the sailor produced it from the breast pocket of his jersey. At last the mysterious sign "32 divided by 1" revealed its significance. Measure thirty-two feet from the mouth of the tunnel, dig one foot in depth, and you came upon the mother lode of this gold bearing rock. This, then, was the secret of the cave.

The Chinese knew the richness of the deposit and exploited its treasures by quarrying from the outer side of the hill. But their crass ignorance of modern science led to their undoing. The accumulation of liberated carbonic acid gas in the workings killed them in scores. They probably found this unseen demon with the tenacity of their race until the place became accursed and banned of all living things. Yet had they dug a little deeper and permitted the invisible terror to flow quietly downward until its potency was dissipated by sea and air they might have mined the whole cliff with impunity.

The unfortunate unknown, J. S., he of the whitened bones—might have done this thing too. But he only possessed the half knowledge of the working miner and while shunning the plague stricken quarry adopted the more laborious method of making an add to strike the deposit. He succeeded, to perish miserably in the hour when he saw himself a millionaire.

Was this a portent of the fate about to befall the latest comers? Jenks, of course, stood up. He always stood square on his feet when the volcano within him fired his blood.

"No!" he almost shouted. "I will break the spell. I am sent here by Providence, not to search for gold, but to save a woman's life, and if all the devils of China and Malay are in league against me I will beat them!"

The sound of his own voice startled him. What was all the fuss about? With a barrow load of gold he could not buy an instant's safety for Iris, not to mention himself. The language difficulty was insuperable. Were it otherwise the Dyaks would simply humbug him until he revealed the source of his wealth, and then murder him as an effective safeguard against foreign interference.

Iris! Not once since she was hurled ashore in his arms had Jenks so long forgotten her existence. Should he tell her? They were partners in everything appertaining to the island. Why keep this marvelous intelligence from her?

Yet was he tempted, not ignobly, but by reason of his love for her. Once years ago, when his arduous professional studies were distracted by a momentary infatuation for a fair face, a woman had proved fickle when tempted by greater wealth than he possessed. For long he was a confirmed misogynist to his great and lasting gain as a leader of men. But with more equitable judgment came a fixed resolution not to marry unless his prospective bride cared only for him and not for his position. To a staff corps officer, even one with a small private income, this was no unattainable ideal. Then he met with the shame and agony of the court martial. While his soul still quivered under the lash of that terrible downfall Iris came into his life. He knew not what might happen if they were rescued.

The time would quickly pass until the old order was resumed, and he to go back to her position in society, a momentary infatuation for a fair face, a woman had proved fickle when tempted by greater wealth than he possessed.

Would it not be a sweet defiance of adversity were he able, even under such conditions, to win her love and then disclose to her the potentialities of the island? Perchance he might fall. Though rich as Croesus, he would still be under the social ban meted out to a cashiered officer. She was a girl who could command the gift of coronets. With restoration to her father and home, gratitude to her preserver would assuredly remain; but, alas, love might vanish like a mirage! Then he would act honorably. Half of the stored wealth would be hers to do as she chose with it.

Yes, this was a possible alternative. In case of accident to himself and her ultimate escape he must immediately write full details of his discovery and intrust the document to her, to be opened only after his death or six months after their release.

The idea possessed him so thoroughly that he could brook no delay. He searched for one of the notebooks taken from the dead officers of the Star and scribbled the following letter:

Dear Miss Deane:—Whether I am living or dead when you read these lines, you will know that I love you. Could I repeat that avowal a million times in as many varied forms I should find no better phrase to express the dream I have cherished since a happy fate permitted me to snatch you from death. So I simply say, "I love you." I will continue to love you while life lasts, and it is my dearest hope that in the life beyond the grave I may still be able to voice my love for you.

But perhaps I am not destined to be saved by you. Therefore, in the event of my death before you leave the island, I wish to give you instructions how to find a gold mine of great value which is hidden in the rock containing the cave. You remember the sign on the piece of tin which we could not understand. The figure 32 denotes the utmost depth of the excavation, and the 1 signifies that one foot below the surface, on reaching the face of the rock, there is a rich vein of gold. The hollow on the other side of the cliff became filled with antimony gas, and this stopped the operations of the Chinese, who evidently knew of the existence of the mine. This is all the information the experts employed by Sir Arthur Deane will need. The facts are unquestionable. Assuming that I am alive, we will, of course, be partners in the mine. If I am dead, I wish one-sixth share to be given to my uncle, William Anstruther, Croshaw Manor, Northampton, Yorkshire, as a recompense for his kindness to me during my early life. The remainder is to be yours absolutely.

ROBERT ANSTRUTHER.

He read this remarkable document twice through to make sure that he exactly recorded his sentiments. He even smiled sarcastically at the endowment of the uncle who disinherited him. Then, satisfied with the perusal, he tore out the two leaves covered by the letter and began to devise a means of protecting it securely while in Iris' possession.

At that moment he looked up and saw her coming toward him across the beach, brightly flushed after her bath, walking like a nymph clothed in tattered garments. Perceiving that he was watching her, she waved her hand and instinctively quickened her pace. Even now, when they were thrown together by the exigencies of each hour, she disliked to be long separated from him.

Instantly the scales fell from his mental vision. What! Distrust Iris! Imagine for one second that riches or poverty, good repute or ill, would affect that loyal heart when its original form was filled with the love that once in her life comes to every true woman! Perish the thought!

Laughing at his fantastic folly Jenks tore the letter into little pieces. It might have been wiser to throw the sheets into the embers of the fire close at hand, but for the nonce he was overpowered by the great awakening that had come to him.

"Good gracious! Don't gaze at me in that fashion. I don't look like a ghost, do I?" cried Iris, when near enough to note his rapt expression.

"You would not object if I called you a vision?" he inquired quietly, averting his eyes lest they should speak more plainly than his tongue.

"Not if you meant it nicely. But I fear that 'specter' would be a more appropriate word. Just look at my best gown!"

She spread out the front widths of her skirt, and certainly the prospect was lamentable. The dress was so patched and mended, yet so full of fresh rents, that a respectable housemaid would hesitate before using it to clean fire irons.

"Is that really your best dress?" he said.

"Yes. This is my blue serge. The brown cloth did not survive the soaking it received in salt water. After a few days it simply crumbled. The others are muslin or cotton and have been—er—adapted."

"There is plenty of men's clothing," he began.

"Unfortunately there isn't another island," she said severely.

"No. I meant that it might be possible to—er—contrive some sort of rig that will serve all purposes."

"But all my thread is gone. I have barely a needleful left."

"In that case we must fall back on our supply of hemp."

"I suppose that might be made to serve," she said. "You are never at a loss for an expedient."

"It will be a poor one, I fear. But you can make up for it by buying some nice gowns at Dooce's or Worth's."

She laughed delightedly. "Perhaps in his joy at my reappearance my dear old dad may let me run riot in Paris on our way home. But that will not last. We are fairly well off, but I cannot afford ten thousand a year for dress alone."

"If any woman can afford such a sum for the purpose you are at least here equal."

Iris looked puzzled. "Is that your way of telling me that the feathers would make me a fine bird?" she asked.

"No. I intend my words to be understood in their ordinary sense. You are very, very rich, Miss Deane, an extraordinarily wealthy young person."

"Of course you are right," she replied. "I am very rich."

"I am not rich," she said. "I am only a poor girl who has been very lucky."

"That is not antimony. It is gold. By chance I have hit upon an extremely rich lode of gold. At the most modest computation it is worth hundreds of thousands of pounds. You and I are quite wealthy people, Miss Deane."

Iris opened her blue eyes very wide at this intelligence. It took her breath away. But her first words betokened her innate sense of fair dealing.

"You and I? Wealthy?" she gasped. "I am so glad for your sake, but tell me, pray, Mr. Jenks, what have I got to do with it?"

"You!" he repeated. "Are we not partners in this island? By squatter's right if by no better title we own land, minerals, wood, game and even such weird belongings as ancient lights and fishing privileges."

"I don't see that at all. You find a gold mine and cooly tell me that I am a half owner of it because you dragged me out of the sea, fed me, housed me, saved my life from pirates and generally acted like a devoted nursemaid in charge of a baby. Really, Mr. Jenks!"

"Really, Miss Deane, you will annoy me seriously if you say another word. I absolutely refuse to listen to such an argument."

For some time they stood in silence until the sailor commenced to reproach himself for his rough protest. Perhaps he had hurt her sensitive feelings. What a brute he was to be sure! She was only a child in ordinary affairs, and he ought to have explained things more lucidly and with greater courtesy toward her temper. And all this time Iris' face was dimpling with amusement, for she understood him so well that had he threatened to kill her she would have laughed at him.

"Would you mind getting the lamp?" he said softly, surprised to catch her expression of saucy humor.

"Oh, please may I speak?" she inquired. "I don't want to annoy you, but I am simply dying to talk."

He had forgotten his own injunction. "Let us first examine our mine," he said. "If you bring the lamp we can have a good look at it."

Close scrutiny of the work already done merely confirmed the accuracy of his first impression. While Iris held the light he opened up the seam with a few strokes of the pick. Each few inches it broadened into a noteworthy volcanic dike, now yellow in its also late purity, at times a bluish black when fused with other metals. The additional labor involved caused him to follow up the line of the fault. Suddenly the flame of the lamp began to flicker in a draft. There was an air passage between cave and ledge.

They came back into the external glare. Iris was now so serious that she forgot to extinguish the little lamp. She stood with outstretched hand.

"There is a lot of money in there," she said.

"Tons of it."

"No need to quarrel about division. There is enough for both of us."

"Quite enough. We can even spare some for our friends."

"The best of them when Jenks climbed to the Summit rock, he remembered ax and rifle and set forth. Iris heard him rustling upward through the trees. She set some water to boil for tea and, while bringing a fresh supply of fuel, passed the spot where the torn scraps of paper littered the sand.

She was the soul of honor for a woman, but there was never a woman yet who could take her eyes off a written document which confronted her. She could not help seeing that one small morsel contained her own name. Though mutilated, it had clearly read—

"Dear Miss Deane."

"So it was intended for me!" she cried, throwing down her bundle and dropping to her knees. She secured that particular slip and examined it earnestly. Not for worlds would she pick up all the scraps and endeavor to sort them. Yet they had a fascination for her, and at this closer range she saw another which bore the legend—"I love you!"

Somehow the two seemed to fit together very nicely.

Yet a third carried the same words—"I love you!" They were still quite coherent. She did not want to look any further. She did not even turn over such of the torn pieces as had fluttered to earth face downward.

Opening the front of her bodice, she brought to light a small gold locket containing miniatures of her father and mother. Inside this receptacle she carefully placed the three really material portions of the sailor's letter. When Jenks walked down the hill again he heard her singing long before he caught sight of her sedulously tending the fire.

As he came near he perceived the remains of his useless document. He stooped and gathered them up, forthwith throwing them among the glowing logs.

"By the way, what were you writing while I had my bath?" inquired Iris demurely.

"Some information about the mine. On second thoughts, however, I saw it was unnecessary."

"Oh, was that all?"

"Practically all."

"Then some part was impracticable?"

He glanced sharply at her, but she was merely talking at random.

"Well, you see," he explained, "one can do so little without the requisite"

PUBLIC SCHOOLS WILL OPEN NEXT MONDAY MORNING.

Important Meeting of Teachers Saturday—Examination for High School Entrance this Week.

In less than one week the school children will be trading the streets with books and slates, and the next few days will be spent by the youngsters in trying to have enough fun to last until the holidays.

The vacation has been rather shorter than usual this year. The school is opened earlier in order that the summer rest next season may begin sooner. Experience has shown that the long hot days of the summer examination period are more trying and enervating than any other time of the school year. This condition will be relieved by starting, hereafter, the vacation earlier.

The three public school buildings will open next Monday, Aug. 27, at 9 a. m. o'clock, and the enrollment of pupils promises to be heavy.

Supt. Barksdale Hamlett announces that a very important meeting of the teachers will be held at the Clay street school on Saturday morning, at 9:30 o'clock. Every teacher is expected to be present, promptly.

The high school entrance examination will be held at the superintendent's office, in the Clay school, on Friday and Saturday, August 24 and 25.

RESIGNS AS CUSTODIAN

Popular Official of Elks Home Give up His Position.

On account of continued ill health, Henry Blumenstiel last night resigned his office as tiler of Hopkinsville Lodge No. 545, B. P. O. E., and custodian of the Elks home. The lodge accepted the resignation with great regret. Mr. Blumenstiel has been faithful and efficient in his work and is held in the highest regard by the members.

VOTE ON AMENDMENT

WILL BE TAKEN AT GENERAL ELECTION IN NOVEMBER.

Question Is One With Which the Citizens, as a Rule, Are Not Familiar.

Following is the constitutional amendment to be voted on at the coming November election. As it is of great importance, and as the voters generally have not so far considered the matter, the provision is well worth careful reading:

An act relating to amendment of section one hundred and forty-five of the Constitution, relating to suffrage and elections.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky:

§ 1. That upon the concurrence of three-fifths of all the members elected to each house, the yeas and nays being taken thereon and entered in full in their respective journals, section one hundred and forty-five of the Constitution of Kentucky be, and it is, amended by adding a fourth paragraph to said section, containing the following words, to wit:

§ 4. Persons who have not, at least sixty days before the election at which they offer to vote, paid in full all state, county, municipal, districts and school taxes due by them for the year previous to the one in which they offer to vote.

That section one hundred and forty-five of the Constitution of Kentucky, relating to suffrage and elections, be amended to read as follows:

§ 1. Every male citizen of the United States of the age of twenty-one years, who has resided in the State one year and the county six months, or the precinct in which he offers to vote sixty days next preceding the election, shall be a voter in said precinct and not elsewhere, but the following persons are excepted and shall not have the right to vote:

"1. Persons convicted in any court of competent jurisdiction of treason, or felony or bribery in an election, or of such high misdemeanor as the General Assembly may declare shall operate as an exclusion from the right of suffrage; but persons hereby excluded may be restored to their civil rights by executive pardon.

"2. Persons who at the time of the election are in confinement under the judgment of a court for some penal offense.

"3. Idiots and insane persons.

"4. Persons who have not, at least sixty days before the election at which they offer to vote, paid in full all state, county, municipal, district and school taxes due to them for the year previous to the one in which they offer to vote."
