West Kentucky Rural Telephone Co-op To Hold Meeting July 21

MAYFIELD — The 24th annual meeting of the members of the West Kentucky Rural Telephone Cooperative will be held Saturday, July 21, at the Mayfield Middle School Auditorium beginning at 7 p.m.

Notices of the meeting have been mailed to the 12,000 members in Graves, Calloway, Marshall, Carlisle, Hickman and McCracken counties in Kentucky and Henry and Weakley counties in Tennessee.

Three members of the board of trustees, Bill Futrell, Marshall County, George Stephenson, Graves County, and Hermon Darnell, Calloway County whose terms expire July 21 were recently nominated for re-election by the nominating committee. Members may make additional nominations from the floor at the meeting, according to Glen B. Sears, general manager.

Several gift certificates and extension telephone service free for one year will be awarded at the close of the business session. Entertainment will be furnished by The Alvey's from Paducah.

Sears will present his annual report to the members, and he urges all members to attend. The financial report will be given by Bethel Richardson, the cooperative's auditor. Trustees whose terms do not expire this year include Stanley Jones, Lassiter Hill, Roy M. Lowe, Cortez Schmidt, W. F. Cary, and John W. Galloway.

The telephone cooperative, organized in 1951, has just completed converting all of its 18 exchanges to 1-party service.

Howard, Colley Are Re-elected

MAYFIELD — Jeffrey Howard and Robert Colley, both of Graves County, were re-elected to three-year terms on the West Kentucky Rural Electric Cooperative's board of directors at the co-op's 41st annual members' meeting here Saturday.

Linda R. Sullivan, also of Graves County, was elected to the board of directors after having been nominated by petition. Coy Copeland, Marshall County, seeking re-election to the board, was defeated.

One of the largest crowds in recent years attended the annual meeting, held at the cooperative's headquarters building on West Broadway.

Holdover directors include A. D. Willingham, H. G. Gingles, John Collier, Joe S. Ray, Ralph Edrington and J. D. Wall.

Jerry Smith, Jackson, Tenn., livestock specialist and veterinarian for Wayne Feeds, was guest speaker for the meeting.

Smith stressed conservation in his address to the co-op members, adding "we must utilize our agricultural products to barter for oil."

Smith's remarks were interspersed with humor.

General manager John Edd Walker said the co-op experienced its largest growth in 10 years last year when it acquired 752 new members, raising the total membership to 26,019.

Walker also reported the cooperative's new substation in Marshall County is well under construction, and will replace the 61-13 KV station now in operation.

"This new substation will enable us to provide better service for the eastern and northern sections of Marshall County," Walker said.

The new unit is expected to be in operation before cold weather arrives. The substation will cost about $750,000, Walker continued, and "by building it ourselves, we'll save $250,000."

The cooperative's manager said 412 home insulation interest-free contracts have been signed, at a cost of $164,198, adding that members have repaid $34,091.92 through May.

He also reminded the members that the 5 per cent sales tax disappeared off their residential bills as of June 1.

The treasurer's report indicated the cooperative's net worth is $3,132,971.11, and it has total assets of $20,315,101.10.

The cooperative has 2,440.25 miles of distribution lines and serves members in Graves, Carlisle, Hickman, Marshall and Calloway counties.

State DOT Approves Signal Installation At 641, Glendale

FRANKFORT — The Kentucky Department of Transportation has approved a traffic signal installation for Murray at the intersection of U.S. 641 (S. 12th Street) and Ky. 1550 (Glendale Road).

Materials, equipment and personnel will be provided by the state Bureau of Highways.

However, officials said the work may take some time due to a backlog of signal installations facing the bureau.

Carter Appeals For Bipartisan Support On Energy Proposals

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter appealed today for bipartisan congressional support for his energy proposals, and said he wants enactment of his proposed "windfall profits" tax before Congress begins its August recess.

Carter's comments were reported by Democratic and Republican congressional leaders who attended a White House breakfast meeting with the president.

House Democratic Whip John Brademas of Indiana said there appeared to be "significant bipartisan support" for the president's energy proposals. Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia was quoted as telling Carter the mood of Congress and the country was for action.

But Brademas said some Republicans were less than enthusiastic about parts of the president's program, including the windfall profits tax and a proposed Energy Security Corporation to spur the search for new energy sources.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, said he was unhappy that Carter had "left the private sector out too much" from his energy plans.

Brademas, however, predicted approval of oil taxes and a standby gasoline rationing plan before Congress recesses Aug. 4.

Assistant Senate Republican Leader Ted Stevens of Alaska said Carter wants Congress to give him "the broadest possible" authority to ration gasoline in the event of a national emergency, without provision for a congressional veto — a condition not likely to sit well with many legislators.

The House already has approved the windfall profits tax Carter wants on the oil industry, but it is not clear how swiftly the Senate is prepared to act.

The House is expected to vote before the recess on gasoline rationing, which the Senate approved earlier this year. The original Carter rationing plan was defeated by the House in May.

The president also was reportedly planning to hold highlevel talks on personnel changes that could find longtime aide Hamilton Jordan with more authority over the White House staff. The Washington Star today quoted White House sources as predicting domestic adviser Stuart Eizenstat and press secretary Jody Powell also would be given more power in the expected staff shakeup.

The president's Sunday speech was forceful, clear and eloquent, Sen. Alan Cranston of California, the second-ranking Senate Democrat, said Monday.

But Republican Sen. S.I. Hayakawa of California said the address, "like most Sunday sermons," would be forgotten in a day's time.

In a question-and-answer session with union members in Detroit Monday, Carter acknowledged he has lost close touch with ordinary citizens.

"I've learned my lesson," he told the annual convention of the Communications Workers of America.

He declared he would spend more time listening to Americans everywhere and said that in the 1976 campaign, "I had to do that or I wouldn't have been elected."

Earlier, before the National Association of Counties in Kansas City, Mo., he said, "We can and will regroup."

And, inviting questions in Detroit, he promised to "open the government process so that the fresh air of America can blow through Washington."

Both audiences received Carter enthusiastically, giving him standing ovations in mid-appearance.

The unspoken goal of the campaign-like oratory, following 12 days of cloistered consultations at Camp David, Md., is to revive Carter's troubled presidency and boost his reelection chances next year.

He used the Kansas City appearance to detail his energy blueprint, which he said would cost $142 billion through 1980.

The money, he said, would come from an extra tax on oil industry profits that the White House is confident will soon be approved by the Senate. It has already passed the House.

Some of Monday's most enthusiastic applause came when Carter promised to keep oil companies in line.

If they do not cooperate with his efforts, he said, "we will not hesitate to use the authority that I have to require the oil companies to meet the basic energy needs of our nation. The oil companies must cooperate!"

Industrial Road To Be Closed To Correct Drainage Problem

City officials have announced that Industrial Road will be closed from Main Street (Ky. 94) to the curve near National Lumber Co. beginning at noon today.

The road will be closed to through traffic all day Wednesday for the correction of a drainage problem in the area, city officials said.

The officials said the road should be reopened to through traffic by Thursday morning and that local traffic to and from businesses in the area would be allowed during the interim.

Group Says Federal Allocation, Rules Grant Windfall Profits

By GLENN RITT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consumer group says new federal allocation and pricing rules grant windfall profits to gasoline dealers, but an organization of 60,000 service stations claims the regulations don't help enough.

The Energy Department, meanwhile, says more motorists will benefit than suffer from the changes, which set a uniform ceiling on dealer profit margins of 15.4 cents per gallon, effective Monday.

Whatever the future price of gasoline, its supply appeared to be improving Monday.

Even in the hard-hit Northeast, where blocks-long lines at gasoline stations were common in recent weeks, drivers were facing little or no wait.

Missouri Energy Program Director

J.W. Abbott said, "We probably are in as good a position as we've been in the past 60 days.... We think people have realized things aren't as bad as they thought. They're finding out they can operate just as well on the bottom half of their tanks as the top."

In Pennsylvania and Delaware, independent dealers began pumping fuel again after many closed during the weekend to protest the outgoing federal fuel allocation and pricing rules.

While the Energy Department said the new rules would "provide new protection for consumers," the Center for Auto Safety, a private consumer group, said it will file suit this week to overturn the regulations. "No dealer deserves more than an 11-cent to 12-cent profit margin," said its director, Clarence Dittlow.

"The bottom line is: consumers will be paying more and many dealers who don't need relief will be getting windfall profits," said Dittlow. He also charged that the Energy Department moved so rapidly to help dealers it failed to give motorists time to speak out against the new rules.

The department said current profit margins range from 14 cents to 16 cents a gallon, so the new ceiling will not raise prices significantly, and in some instances, it will force rollbacks.

But the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers puts the current average profit margin closer to 12.5 cents per gallon, which means many motorists could be paying about 3 cents more at the pump.

Gasoline prices in the Midwest and South should rise the most, with little change in the East, the retailers' group said. Western motorists may see prices fall, it added.

Democratic Leaders Begin Effort

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Democratic leaders are beginning an all-out effort to get as much of President Carter's new energy program as possible through Congress before the August recess.

The task may be easier than it sounds because many of the proposals the president put before the nation Sunday and Monday are not new, but variations on measures already progressing through Congress.

First up is the president's request for authority to order gasoline rationing in times of severe shortage and to set state-by-state energy-conservation goals.

Backers predicted easy approval of the measure by the full House Commerce Committee today, setting up expected floor action later in the week or early next week.

The House rejected the president's own standby rationing plan in May.

But leaders quickly went to work on another plan that would give the president the standby rationing authority he wanted as well as the power to impose mandatory fuel-saving steps in states failing to meet specified conservation targets.

House and Senate leaders met privately Monday afternoon to put the rationing bill and other Carter-backed measures already before Congress on an express track.

Emerging from the strategy session, House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, said, "We hope to get four or five pieces of the mosaic through Congress quickly" before the month-long recess that begins Aug. 4.

Leaders said a rush effort will be made to complete Senate action on legislation to launch a new multibillion-dollar synthetic fuel industry and impose the president's windfall profits tax on the oil industry. Both measures already have passed the House.

Carter hopes to use revenues from the tax to finance his entire $142 billion program to decrease U.S. reliance on imported oil in what he has called one of the largest and most expensive peacetime efforts ever undertaken. Senate action is also contemplated on legislation to set up a National Energy Mobilization Board such as the one proposed by the president to oversee major energy projects and to cut federal red tape.

Similar legislation is before the House Interior Committee — but it would expedite decisions on such projects through existing agencies instead of by creating a new board.

Senate Rejects Attempt For Nuclear Moratorium

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate rejected an attempt today to slap a six-month moratorium on the issuance of construction permits for new nuclear power plants.

On a vote of 57-35, senators rejected a move led by Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Gary Hart, D-Colo., designed to give the Nuclear Regulatory Commission time to develop new regulations dealing with siting new plants.

"We cannot pretend the Three Mile Island accident never happened,"

Kennedy said. "We must learn from it."

But opponents, led by Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., said the proposal was "intended only to send a message that further attempts to expand nuclear power at this time is unwarranted."

The plan would have affected six plants under review for construction permits and would not have stopped work on any plant now under construction or forced an operating plant to shut down.

But the vote was important as an indication of congressional backing for nuclear power in the wake of the atomic scare last spring at Three Mile Island.

Skin care

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I know what blackheads are and how to help get rid of them. My question is how do you get rid of whiteheads and what causes them to break out?

DEAR READER — If you know what causes blackheads, you know what causes whiteheads. They're basically the same thing. They're a core of fatty acids formed by your skin glands. This little core of fat may have some pigment from your skin at the top of it or the fats may be affected by oxygen so that they change color.

Many people make the mistake of thinking that a blackhead means dirt. That's not true at all and you can't usually wash them off like you would wash off dirt because the discolored fat is just below the surface of the skin. If it's not pigmented then it's a whitehead.

The treatment is exactly the same. The best approach at home is merely to wash the face two or three times a day with warm water and a mild soap. Soak it thoroughly. Some doctors recommend a degreasing soap. You can also sponge off the face with alcohol sponges to help remove the excess oil formation by your skin glands.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated, to give you more information on the whole problem of blackheads, whiteheads and pimples. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In one of your columns you referred to whether pills were dissolved or not when you took them and you suggested that perhaps some pills should be crushed before they are taken. My wife and I are both in our 70s and a few years ago we had an experience that made me vividly recognize this problem.

We live in a semirural area and had our septic tank cleaned. When the tank was pumped out and the operator was finished, I looked inside and there on the bottom of the tank were hundreds of vitamin and mineral tablets. I retrieved some of them and was able to identify the bone meal, liver, Dolomite and B complex. Ever since then all the vitamin tablets that have been taken in our household have been chewed before being swallowed.

I brought this to the attention of the manufacturer and he said our system was lacking in acid. This may be but the truth is we didn't get the benefit from the vitamin and mineral pills that we had expected.

DEAR READER — I included your letter in my column to highlight your point. The problem is even worse than you think. Not only are some vitamin pills passed through the digestive system without any benefit to the person who swallowed them but excess water soluble vitamins that are digested and enter the body are eliminated in the urine. You're not going to see those on the bottom of the septic tank. The penchant that some people have to take large amounts of unnecessary vitamins has led to the comment that Americans have the richest and most expensive urine in the world.

These remarks are not meant to indicate that people shouldn't have an adequate amount of vitamins. As I've said before, I like people to get these in a well-balanced diet. You're not likely to find a well-balanced diet on the bottom of the septic tank either.

Slob Story

DEAR ABBY: My husband's mother had been a widow for a long time. About two years ago she married a nice-looking, quiet man none of us knew. They live only a few miles from us but we never visit them, and neither do any of her other four children who live in this area. The reason is one you will probably not believe: Mom's husband smells like he hasn't had a bath in 50 years! I am not kidding. Their house is an absolute pigsty; every piece of furniture in the place smells to high heaven. Nobody cares to eat or drink in their house because the smell spoils their appetite.

Mom was in the hospital for three weeks recently, and every day we'd take her husband to the hospital with us (it's a 25-mile drive). He smelled so bad we had to keep all the car windows open.

My husband even told him flat out that people were complaining, and to please clean himself up, but he got mad and refused to do anything about it.

The merchants in town complain about him, but they can't keep him out. They spray after he leaves. Abby, what can we do?

HOLDING OUR NOSES IN W. VA.

DEAR HOLDING: The man must be mentally ill. And his wife has either lost her sense of smell or she's as sick as he is. This is a case for a doctor. For goodness' sake, don't just hold your noses; hold a family conference and get some medical advice!

DEAR ABBY: Ten years ago, before I met the man I married (I'll call him Bob), he got a girl pregnant. Bob was in the service in San Diego at the time.

The girl went to a home for unwed mothers in Seattle, had the baby (a girl) and gave it up for adoption. She named Bob as the baby's father.

My questions: When this child grows up, do we have any responsibility for her? Can she locate us if she wants to? Does she have any claim on my husband's estate if he dies before I do?

We have children of our own. Our wills read: "To all our surviving children..." Is this illegitimate daughter considered a surviving child of my husband's?

Bob told me that he has no real proof that this is really his child. He said he didn't love the girl, but he did sleep with her one weekend exactly nine months before the baby was born, so he could be the father.

Where do we stand?

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: You could be standing right behind the eight ball — or in a safety zone, depending on what state you live in. (The laws differ.) Your questions are intelligent. Consult a lawyer. It could be the best investment you ever made.

DEAR ABBY: I am in love with a divorcee and want to marry her. She says she loves me, too, but doesn't want to get married again because, if she does, her ex will not have to pay her any more alimony. She frankly admits that it's not the money — she just wants to punish him by making him pay as long as she lives.

I am not rich, but I could support her well enough so that she wouldn't have to go to work.

How can I get her to change her mind?

IN LOVE IN ST. CHARLES

DEAR IN: You probably can't. And you could be lucky.

If you need help in writing letters of sympathy, congratulations or thank-you letters, get Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for all Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (25 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Mrs. Danny Osbron Feted At Special Bridal Events

Prenuptial courtesies extended to Mrs. Danny Osbron, the former Barbara Keel, included the following:

Mrs. Gerald McClain and Misses Deanna and Christine McClain opened their home at 207 North 18th Street, Mayfield, for a bridal afternoon party. Assisting as hostesses, were Mrs. Noble Pickard, Mrs. Ralph Pickard, Mrs. James Rule, and Mrs. James Pickard.

Rainbow corsages were pinned at the shoulders of the bride-elect and her mother.

Mrs. Fred Keel. Miss Stephanie Rule attended the register table, which was covered with a yellow linen cloth, and centered with the bride's wedding book. A floral arrangement of roses was on the table and at other vantage points throughout the home.

The refreshment table was covered with a lovely lace cloth. A beautiful arrangement of silk rosebuds, flanked by tapers in candelabrum, was in the center of the table. Party sandwiches, rainbow mints, nuts, and punch were served from silver and crystal appointments.

Hostesses' gifts were of the bride's chosen pottery, crystal, placemats, napkins and rings; a serving tray, and the floral arrangement from the refreshment table.

A breakfast at the Holiday Inn in Murray was hosted by Mrs. Cordie Caldwell, Mrs. Rue Overby, Mrs. Glen Hodges, and Mrs. Allen McCoy.

Roses were pinned at the shoulders of the bride, her mother, Mrs. Fred Keel, her grandmother, Mrs. Lessie Pickard, and the groom's sister, Mrs. Tommy McClure.

The table was centered with an arrangement of roses, where a delicious meal was served. The bride was presented with a recipe file that contained the hostesses' favorite recipes.

An informal personal shower, given by Mrs. Keith Doughty, was held at the Community Room of the Federal Savings and Loan building in Murray.

Refreshments were chips and dips, popcorn, pimiento cheese on crackers, Cokes and punch.

The honoree opened her numerous gifts.

Parenting Styles To Be Most Effective For Children

From The Desk Of
Jean W. Cloar
Co. Ex. Agent
For Home Ec

Parenting and communication styles vary from parent to parent. Responsive parenting is most effective, but often a parent plays the commander general, psychologist, judge, preacher or cynic.

A commander general parent, for example, allows no alternatives, keeps things well under control, and doesn't permit children to express negative feelings. His tools usually are threats, orders and commands.

This kind of parenting style usually causes resentment, rejection and hostility in children. In essence, the parent is saying that he or she has all the rights and the children have none.

Parents who act like psychologists try to analyze a child's behavior. They ask questions, diagnose, interpret and evaluate.

The parent psychologist wants to hear all the details in order to be in a better position to set the child straight. But this kind of superior position doesn't allow the child to communicate feelings openly.

The parent judge

Special Day For Foster Grandparents

FRANKFORT — Kentucky's foster grandparents will be honored with a special program July 19 at Bell House Senior Center, Sayre Avenue, Lexington.

A picnic lunch will be served at 12:30 to some 120 foster grandparents. A puppet show and games are also scheduled.

Foster grandparents voluntarily give individual attention to children who are developmentally disabled with mental retardation, autism, cerebral palsy or epilepsy and who are served by Department for Human Resources facilities and community projects.

Special recognition awards will be presented to foster grandparents who have participated in the program for several years. Among those to be honored is Mary Turner, a foster grandparent at the Outwood facility in Dawson Springs. She has been involved with the program since its inception in 1967, longer than any foster grandparent in the state.

Kentucky's foster grandparent program is funded by ACTION, a federal agency, with matching funds from the state Department for Human Resources.

IT DOESN'T RAIN ON THIS PARADE
FORT KNOX, Ky. (AP) — Military life continued as usual at Fort Knox, while the Baltimore District of the Corps of Engineers "slip lined" 13 miles of plastic pipe to restore the crumbling sewer system.

Polyethylene pipe was inserted, or slipped, through broken and root-infested clay and concrete sewer lines, passing under homes with a minimum of disruption. Without halting training, other lines went under the parade field of the Army post, where 21-inch plastic pipe was slipped through 24-inch clay pipe.

With a population of 43,000, Fort Knox is one of the most heavily populated Army posts in the United States.

pronounces a child's guilt before the verdict is in. The only thing this parent is interested in is "I'm right and you're wrong."

Parents also use the preacher or teacher style to communicate with their children. Lectures, complete with moralization, allow for only one-way communication.

The cynic parenting style uses sarcasm to make fun of or belittle a child. For example, a parent might say, "When you get your own home you can give the orders."

The problem with all of these styles is that ordering, directing, warning or moralizing don't meet the developmental needs of children. They do nothing to help a child develop trust, initiative, industry and the ability to solve problems. Instead, a child might end up feeling "inadequate and insecure."

The more effective responsive parenting style is based on mutual respect, allowing both parent and child to express feelings and ideas honestly, without fear or rejection.

Tell the child you understand how he or she feels and you understand why he or she feels that way. Show you're interested in the child's feelings.

For example, a parent might say, "You feel bored with your project because it doesn't challenge you." The parent and child then can go on to solve the problem with much less antagonism than if the parent said, "Do what you're told to do because I said so."

Following are some tips to be a responsive communicator

-Restrict talking to friendly conversation and use a respectful tone of voice. To influence your child, use less criticism and more positive tone.

-Be both firm and kind. Decide on a course of action and don't waiver, but be non-judgemental and matter-of-fact when applying the consequences.

-Keep your control. Children often try to gain control by demanding special attention. Responding with anger rarely accomplishes anything.

Chances of success are increased by remaining calm and matter-of-fact.

-Encourage children. Recognize their efforts and contributions, as well as accomplishments, and show you understand how a child feels when things aren't going well. Unlike praise, encouragement can be used even if the child isn't successful.

-Show mutual respect. A parent should show faith and confidence in a child and respect for him as a human being with feelings, ideas and worth.

Low Down FROM THE Congressional Record

By Joe Crump
(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

Fertilizer Trap Real

SENATOR HENRY BELLMON (Okla.) "...A shortage of fuel is not the most serious problem the United States faces today. We face a far more dramatic problem — growing dependence on foreign sources for the fertilizers used to produce our food...The fertilizers in question are those which are nitrogen based. Nitrogen-based fertilizers are produced from anhydrous ammonia which is primarily made from natural gas.

"In past years as the United States was concerned about natural gas shortages, Mexico, the Soviet Union and oil-producing nations in the Middle East flared their natural gas as a waste product. In an attempt to put this natural gas to good use, the United States provided these nations with the equipment and technology, necessary to produce anhydrous ammonia.

"Because the natural gas was being treated as a waste product, the cost of the raw material in the anhydrous ammonia was negligible, allowing foreign producers to ship us ammonia at a price far below U.S. costs of manufacture...

"In 1974, the price for anhydrous ammonia was about $400 per ton. Today, in large part because of cheap foreign imports, the price is $85 per ton, which is far below the price needed for American plants to amortize their costs. As a result 29 anhydrous ammonia plants have closed in the United States during the past 2 years.

These closing have come in Kansas, Texas, Georgia, Ohio, Arizona, Oklahoma, California, Louisiana, New Mexico and West Virginia...

"As we have seen in our other dealings with the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), dependence on foreign sources of supply when we have our own unrealized capabilities is a dangerous matter. As our domestic anhydrous ammonia fertilizer plants continue to shut down, we are becoming increasingly more dependent on unstable foreign sources of agricultural fertilizer...

"A disruption in the flow of the anhydrous ammonia supply could bring catastrophe on this Nation. At a minimum the United States would be exposed to a second and more virulent form of extortion...Bread lines will far outreach gas lines...It is my intention to propose effective legislation at an early date..."

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

Congressmen didn't get serious about the gasoline shortage until they had to wait in line at a gas station. They are getting a fair warning regarding the fertilizer situation. We hope that in a few years someone won't have to say, "I told you so!"

Hayakawa's Votes

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Good gosh," said Sen. S.I. Hayakawa. "I voted for him a couple of times myself in the course of my life."

Quite an admission for the California senator. The man he was talking about was Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif.

Hayakawa is a Republican and he's actively looking for someone to run against Cranston in 1980. Cranston has responded by saying he doesn't think he'll have to look very hard for someone to run against Hayakawa in 1982.

At a recent news conference, Hayakawa was asked how his search for a Cranston opponent was going.

The senator said he hadn't found anyone ready to enter the race but "I still have hopes for some of these people."

Reporters then asked Hayakawa about claims by Cranston that he expects to receive support from Republican businessmen.

"He, has always had considerable support from some elements of the business community," said Hayakawa. "What do you attribute that to?" the senator was asked.

"Because he is very, very skillful in making friends and getting contacts," replied Hayakawa. "He is a real skillful politician. I don't take that away from him."

Then Hayakawa admitted he had voted for Cranston when the Democrat was California state comptroller and then when Cranston ran for the Senate the first time.

Rep. John Burton, D-Calif., chaired a House subcommittee hearing on the DC-10 and made it clear he doesn't like Langhorne Bond, who heads the Federal Aviation Administration.

With television cameras recording the event, Burton shouted and cursed at Bond. The hearing was given extensive coverage in California on public television.

Burton's mother watched and apparently didn't like the way her son behaved. She told him so.

A week later, Burton's subcommittee met again with Bond as the main witness.

The chairman acted subdued. After a while his temper began to flare.

Burton got it under control and commented:

"It's amazing what can happen to you when your mother watches public television."

Defense Secretary Harold Brown was making his second appearance in three days before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to testify on the SALT II treaty.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., began his questioning of Brown by commenting that "this is the last time you'll be testifying before this committee..."

Brown sighed and replied: "Sadly, not."

Letter To The Editor

Hubbard Says Thanks

Dear Editor:

Joyce and I would like to express our appreciation to the citizens across Kentucky who extended us their kindness, hospitality and support during my recent campaign for governor.

It was a rare privilege for me to campaign in all 120 counties and establish friendship ties with thousands of Kentuckians from Hickman to Paintsville and Newport to Middlesboro.

The experiences of the past few months have made me realize that the prospects for a bright and prosperous future for Kentucky do indeed exist.

Even though I was not successful in this, my first statewide race, I will always cherish the friends and supporters I have in each county. This, in 1979, is new for me and a victory for any Kentuckian.

I continue to work in Washington as a Member of the 96th Congress for those goals and principles which are best for

A Lesson In Public Relations Flavored With A Dash Of Hawaii

In the wake of my recent account of Leroy Eldridge's experience with the "professional discount" and Texas dentistry, comes this one — just the opposite — as experienced by Rex Thompson, a frequent lunch companion and director of business and financial services at Murray State.

A few years ago, Rex's sister, Freida, and her husband, who is known simply as "X", were stationed at Schofield Barracks in Hawaii. He was manager of most of the military officers clubs in the islands.

"X" is now retired from the Army, and they live in Killeen, Tex., which is near San Antonio. Freida has an interesting job. She works part-time with the World Bridge Federation and travels all over the world, on call, setting up and supervising major bridge tournaments.

Anyway, when they were in Hawaii, Rex, his wife, Ann, and daughter, Jill, flew out to the islands one day to spend some time with them. As they left the plane at Honolulu, a filling came out of one of Rex's teeth. Although it was merely a tiny thing, the hole it left felt like he could drive a jeep into it.

No big problem, his sister assured him, just as Leroy's son had told him in Conroe when he broke a tooth. They had a dentist friend, she said, who could fix him right up.

The next morning, he was at the dentist's office bright early. At the appointed moment, the dentist, Dr. H. L. Masunagi, a Japanese-American, swept into the office, and, within a matter of minutes, had the tooth filled. He was gone almost as swiftly as he arrived, Rex recalls, moving on elsewhere in the office to work on some other patient.

Getting out of the chair and going back to the outer office and up to the secretary's desk, Rex, reaching for his billfold and fully expecting to pay through the nose for the service, especially emergency service, asked how much he owed.

"There's no charge, sir," the young lady said, glancing at the slip the doctor had handed Rex. "No charge!" exclaimed Rex. "There must be some mistake. I just had a filling put in back there."

Apparently overhearing the conversation from an adjoining office, the little doctor stuck his head into the room at that moment and with a smile proclaimed, "That's right, sir, there's no charge. You're a visitor to our islands, and we want you to have a happy holiday."

When he got back to Murray, Rex, as did Leroy, checked the job out with his local dentist. In Rex's case, it was Castle Parker, who, after inspecting the filling, pronounced the Hawaiian's job an excellent one.

"It must have been," Rex laughed. "I've still got it."

The other day, a personable young fellow by the name of Bill Noll was on the Murray State campus reviewing all of the University's student aid programs. He's a programs officer with the U.S. Office of Education in Atlanta. During some idle chit-chat with director Johnny McDougal and his associates, Noll came up with what he termed the three most frequently told lies known to man:

- "I tell my wife what to do."
- "I put a check in the mail yesterday," and
- "I'm from the federal government, and I'm here to help you."

After I shared with you my recent encounter with the wasps while 20 feet up on a ladder, Rob Ray was quick to call with the same remedy Cathryn suggested when I came down off the ladder.

She learned it on her folks' place out near Symsonia in Graves County. Rob said his mom always whipped it up whenever he'd get stung on his boyhood place out near Kirksey.

It's the baking soda and vinegar remedy. It's simple to make and use, too. They both are strongly convinced that it's the very thing to take the poison of a bee, wasp or hornet sting out.

You simply mix the vinegar into the baking powder until you have a paste. Then apply that to the sting area. They say it'll do the job, so remember it.

The Story Of Calloway County 1822-1976

By Dorothy and Kerby Jennings

So did the county join the fun of progress. J. W. Imes began work on a handsome two story brick business building in Almo. W. P. Russell opened a pottery at Pottertown, employing a large force of hands. Fiscal court representatives went to Frankfort to protest the 20 per cent increase in assessments. The fruits of their efforts materialized when only a 10 per cent was levied while all other counties in the area got stuck with the 20 per cent levy.

According to the forecasters of doom, all progress would come to a standstill on the night of May 18, 1910, when Earth would sail into the path of Halley's Comet, offering an unparalleled sight for 205 minutes as the good Earth "filtered through the gaseous head and immersing itself in the stream of fire." Adding to the tumult of mystery awaiting countians, scientists contended: "It is hinted that the Earth, due to movements by Halley's Comet, may have the thrill of seeing stars fall as they did in 1833, two years before the last visitation of the comet." It was a fearful night never to be forgotten by those who took heed of the forecasters dire predictions. There were more family prayers held that night than had been held all together in previous history. Most every front yard resembled a brush arbor meeting with not a person unprepared for the impending holocaust. What promised to be an apocalypse for the devout fizzled out to an all night wake with nothing happening except a slight glimmer of the comet near sunup.

The editor of the Murray Ledger commented the following day: "Good morning: did you get your share of the comet's tail? Anyhow the comet got a few old sinners to their knees the past few days that had not been there before for the same purpose since the comet was here upon its last visit."

In light of the persecution inflicted upon Jews over the centuries — often by their Christian neighbors — this prayer by the eighteenth-century Rabbi Israel of Kosnitz is particularly poignant: Lord of the world, I beg of you to redeem Israel. And if you do not want to do that, then redeem the goyim (gentiles). Rabbi Israel's prayer is found in Martin Buber's Tales of the Hasidim: Early Masters, first published in 1946.

Good Knight?

Opinions Differ When Discussing The Controversial Hoosier Coach

Knight's players are fundamentally sound and team-oriented, otherwise they aren't Knight's players. His program under Coach Tate Locke.

When Locke left for Miami University in 1965, the 24-year-old Knight was named head coach. He quickly earned a reputation as a hot-head, ranting at referees, breaking chairs and getting into hot water with the Army brass.

Knight's Army teams, hampered by a military restriction against accepting plebes taller than 6-foot-6, won consistently. "My most enjoyable coaching experience was at Army," said Knight. "I loved being the underdog and beating schools with reputations."

He moved to tradition-rich Indiana in 1971, quickly putting his stamp on the program, transforming the "Hurricane Hoosiers" into a typical Knight team, despite an outcry by some Indiana

The coach, who knows it all, approaches a gangly teenager, who thinks he does. The coach asks the kid to run as fast as he can to the other end of the basketball court, touch the rim and come back.

The kid struts his stuff as fast as he can.

"Not bad," said the coach. "Eleven seconds. Now do it again."

This time, the coach is on the kid's heels every step of the way, screaming up and down the court. "C'mon...Hustle...Move..." he barks, commanding the kid into a faster gear.

At the end of the second run, the kid looks befuddled. He's puffing a lot harder now. The coach puts his arm around him and stares at his stopwatch. "Now which time do you think was faster?"

The kid, not so strident any more, says sheepishly "the second."

The coach smiles. "Nine seconds," he says.

Bobby Knight, considered by many to be the best basketball coach in the country, has made his point. And if the kid can overcome the shock to his bruised ego, he will have learned a lesson.

It doesn't matter that this wasn't Indiana University, where Knight gets to teach quality players. It was a summer basketball camp for teenagers. But the motivational technique and results are the same.

In six years as head coach at Army and eight years at Indiana, the 38-year-old Knight has never had one of his players make All-Pro in the National Basketball Association or an all-rookie NBA team. Yet, these players in college gave him 200 career championship. When the season was over, a computer ranking service called Knight's nine-man team the second best in the country behind Michigan State.

Yet Knight isn't judged by his court achievements alone. Everywhere he goes controversy hangs over him because of his volatile nature and his strong-armed motivational techniques.

At the recent Pan American Games the spotlight again fell on Knight, coach of the U.S. basketball team. The U.S. was beating the Virgin Islands by 35 points when Knight hotly disputed a charging call. He was ejected from the game and forced to apologize to representatives of the international basketball federation.

Then he got into an altercation last week with a San Juan policeman over the use of a practice facility. Knight wound up in jail for a short time, and the coach and the cop filed assault and battery accusations against each other. Knight faces as much as six months in jail if convicted; Knight's complaint against the cop was dismissed.

Knight doesn't recruit showboat players with oversized egos or statistics. And the consensus of coaches is that, in a sport tainted by recruiting violations, Knight doesn't bend the rules.

teams play a disciplined, passing-game offense and hard-nosed man-to-man defense. Their trademarks are hustle, intelligence and patience. Practices are fast-paced with players skinning elbows and knees diving for balls.

"Sure he yells and screams a lot, but he's doing it for a purpose. He had my attention at all times," said former Indiana player Steve Downing, a No. 1 draft choice by the Boston Celtics and now an administrative assistant to the Indiana athletic director. "Pretty much to this day I'm still scared of him. I'm always on my toes. But I respect Coach Knight more than anybody in this world. Because of him, I feel I can deal with any problem at any time."

"He treated me like a piece of meat," said Rich Valavicius, who quit Indiana and transferred to Auburn two years ago. "He's rough and tough on you mentally and physically. He's constantly on your case, cursing you out. I was intimidated, and I don't feel I deserved it one bit."

Knight played basketball at Ohio State, where the Buckeyes won Big Ten titles from 1960-62 and the national championship in 1960. One year after graduation, Knight volunteered for the draft with the understanding that his initial duty would be in the West Point basketball

All-Star Pouting... Some Players Won't Show

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

SEATTLE — When they introduce the All-Star teams tonight, Ted Simmons will be there to take his bow, broken wrist and all. Rod Carew will line up, too, even though his torn-up thumb will prevent him from playing.

Forty-year-old Lou Brock will be there and so will Carl Yastrzemski, dragging an aching Achilles tendon and playing first base instead of the outfield because of it.

So can somebody please explain why if stars like Simmons, Carew, Brock and Yaz can make it, how come Garry Templeton and Dave Concepcion can't fit in their busy schedules?

Templeton and Concepcion both were selected as backup infielders by Manager Tom Lasorda but both are missing in action, replaced by Craig Reynolds and Larry Parrish, who didn't even have to be asked twice.

refused to come as a reserve, a very adult approach. Concepcion complained of a leg injury which was so severe that he played Sunday for Cincinnati and drove in four runs with a sacrifice fly and a homer. It was obviously a courageous act for him to play hurt that way.

There are some people who could legitimately stay away from this game but are here because they recognize its importance to baseball, the industry which happens to provide them with a living.

How about the managers, Lasorda and Bob Lemon? They could have begged off. But they are here and happy to be on the scene.

Lasorda's NL champion Los Angeles Dodgers are dragging along in last place. He could have used three days off to recharge his batteries after a disastrous first half. He did not.

Lemon was fired by the New York Yankees — forget all that fancy front office talk, he was told his managerial talents were no longer needed and that's being fired. He could have stayed home in Long Beach, Calif., feet up, sipping a tall cool one, instead of coming here. He did not.

How about a couple of senior citizens, the honorary captains, Lefty Gomez and Carl Hubbell? Gomez not only showed up, he was out there in uniform during Monday's workout. Hubbell is here despite suffering a stroke which has reduced his ability to get around.

How about Sparky Anderson, manager of the Detroit Tigers? He's here, fulfilling a commitment to the Pitch, Hit and Run people. Sparky agreed to represent baseball's official youth program before the season started, when he was an unemployed former manager. When he took the Tiger job, he could have pulled out of the PH&R finals here at the All-Star Game. But Sparky would have none of that. He knew the kids were counting on him and he's here.

There's no defense for baseball to deal with athletes who refuse to recognize their obligations — never mind the honor involved — and choose to snub the All-Star Game. But it has been a topic of some conversation here this week.

One suggestion was a substantial fine, but at today's salaries, how much of a dent would that make? Another was to remove the names of absentees from future ballots. But that's not much of a solution either because it would just reduce the validity of the ballot.

So here, at absolutely no charge, is another idea. When next year's computerized All-Star ballot is distributed, fans should remember the players who don't show up tonight and then vote accordingly.

If they can ignore you by not showing up, you can ignore them by not voting for them. There is a suspicion that winding up with 27 votes in the election some year might just wake these guys up. Something or somebody ought to.

Home Runs Boost Post 73's Legion Sweep Of Paris

PARIS, Tenn. — John Denham and Bruce Taylor slammed home runs to power Murray to a sweep of Paris, Tenn., in its American Legion baseball doubleheader yesterday.

Denham broke a scoreless tie in the sixth inning of the 3-1 first-game triumph with a two-run shot, while Taylor helped a 10-7 victory in the second game with three hits, including a two-run homer in the fourth inning. He also tripled.

Murray improved its season mark to 21-14 heading into a doubleheader Wednesday at Jackson, Tenn. Post 73 travels to Sikeston, Mo., Friday before its final home appearance Saturday against Madisonville.

Righthander Scott Tucker limited Paris to four hits while walking three and striking out six. Murray added an insurance run in the seventh when Jeff Jackson singled and scored on Taylor's single.

Brad Taylor survived a rocky start to finish with an 11-strikeout, complete-game triumph in the nightcap for his first victory of the season.

Paris hitters led off with three straight singles to open the game and scored two quick runs. But Post 73 responded with nine runs over the three middle innings.

The biggest outburst was the fourth frame, when Bill Milton walked, Brad Taylor cracked an RBI triple and Tucker singled home another run.

Bruce Taylor followed with his round-tripper.

Homer Mark May Be Shattered When All-Stars Gather Tonight

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer
SEATTLE - It won't take a king-sized hit to get out of Seattle's Kingdome, so batters look forward to tonight's 50th All-Star baseball game with unabashed anticipation.

Even though they'll face the major league strikeout king Nolan Ryan, the National League hitters surveyed the enclosed stadium with happiness.

Davey Lopes, the second baseman from the Los Angeles Dodgers, banged a few balls into the bleachers and observed:

"This is very conducive to hitting. Everybody in batting practice was trying to hit the ball over the wall to hear the oohs and aahs from the crowd. It will be a different story against Nolan Ryan."

The right-hander from the California Angels was named for the Americans with Steve Carlton of the Phillies the choice of National League manager Tommy Lasorda.

Ryan is 12-6 with 160 strikeouts with Carlton 11-8 with 113.

Lasorda said he went to Carlton as his starter because the American League would send up a flock of left-handed hitters and he wanted a south-paw to be going against them the first three innings.

The game is scheduled to start at 5:40 p.m. PDT as the NL goes after its eighth straight triumph and 16th in 17 games. Overall, after 49 games, the NL has won 30, the AL 18 and there has been one tie.

There will be no designated hitters in this game so the pitchers bat ninth.

The Kingdome is sold out at 58,960 — a record for the park which measures 316 down the foul lines, 357 down the power alleys and 410 to center.

Weather doesn't mean much in the enclosed Kingdome, but for outsiders it will be fair with temperatures in the 60's.

Many feel the All-Star Game record of six home runs will be broken. Six homers have been hit in All-Star Games on three occasions, in 1951 and 1971 at Detroit and in 1954 at Cleveland.

Each manager vowed he would use as many from the 28-man squads as possible, but Lemon said, "I feel just as Tommy does. We want to win."

In this game, pitchers are limited to three innings of action each and Lemon said he didn't know who would follow Ryan. He has seven others to choose from including rookie Mark Cleary, a reliever for the California Angels.

Lasorda said Steve Rogers of the Montreal Expos would follow Carlton.

There will be no designated hitters in this game so the pitchers bat ninth.

Jones, Whom Some Say Better Than Sampson, Still Undecided

By ALAN ROBINSON
AP Sports Writer
CHARLESTON, W.Va. — A lingering question in West Virginia high school basketball circles is whether 6-foot-10 center Earl Jones will choose Washington, D.C., over West Virginia as a place to finish his high school career.

Jones, the center many say will be the best high school basketball player in the nation this season, may transfer from tiny Mount Hope High School to Washington, D.C., power DeMatha.

However, Jones apparently still has not made up his mind about where he will play the fourth and final season of his high school career.

Because Jones has a sister and brother living in Washington, D.C., rumors that he may transfer to a school in that area have been prevalent for several years. Jones recently admitted that he is now contemplating such a move.

"I'm living with my sister now in Washington and haven't decided if I'll go back to Mount Hope or go to DeMatha," said Jones. "But I am looking forward to next year because it's my final year. I prefer playing against better competition and I like the pressure."

Jones is a three-time West Virginia all-stater and was named the state's player of the year this past season when Mount Hope had a 23-1 record. He has been named twice to the Parade Magazine All-American team, becoming the first sophomore since Kareem Abdul-Jabbar to be selected.

Jones left his Mount Hope home about six weeks prior to the end of the recent school year to visit his Washington relatives. He stayed there for about a month, but returned in time to make up his missed work, according to school officials.

Jones recently told sports writer Norm Blum of the Florida Times-Union in Jacksonville that he will attend college.

"After next year, I'll be going to college and not the pros. I haven't made a list but I'll talk to the ones I'm interested in."

The 205-pound Jones has been playing AAU basketball this summer for the Washington, D.C. Police Boys and Girls Athletic Club. He made the alltournament team in the national AAU junior tournament in Florida.

Two of his Washington teammates say Jones' play reminds them of two of the nation's most sought-after high school players this season, Ralph Sampson and Sam Bowie.

Sidney Lowe, a DeMatha graduate who will play at North Carolina State, said he prefers Jones to Sampson, who has signed with Virginia.

"I like playing with them both but I prefer Earl," said Lowe. "Earl's not a selfish big man while Ralph dominates by shooting so much. Ralph is more offensive minded, but Earl is quicker than Ralph."

Lemon, Undaunted At Loss Of Job, To Lead AL All-Stars

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
SEATTLE — Bob Lemon hauls on Yankee uniform No. 21 again tonight as American League manager in baseball's 50th All-Star game, and people are wondering:

Will Lemon ever put on a uniform again?

"I don't know, I want to wait and see."

he called in probationed Billy Martin half a year ahead of schedule to reassume charge.

"Sure, I was disappointed," Lemon said. "I'm always disappointed when I get fired. I was given only three days' notice. I wanted to finish out the season."

"Did I feel betrayed? Well, I didn't like it. But I understood the realities. A guy can do anything he wants with his property."

Disenchantment ran particularly deep. Lemon had taken over a mediocre Kansas City team in 1970 and carried it to second place the next year. He was fired in 1972. He took over the last-place Chicago White Sox at the end of 1976 and had the team in first place in July and August of the next year. He was fired in mid-season in 1978.

"It seems ever time I have a good year, I can't get through the next one," he said today. "Maybe if I had a losing ball club, I could hold my job."

Lemon was pleased when he was selected to manage the AL All-Stars although he no longer was in uniform. And there was precedent for not using a winning manager who had been dismissed in the interim (Yogi Berra, Yankees, 1965).

Gildemeister Opens Wash. Star As Winner

By the Associated Press
WASHINGTON — Hans Gildemeister beat David Schneider in the first round of the $175,000 Washington Star Tennis Tournament, 6-3, 5-7, 6-0.

Fred McNair retired in the middle of his match against Alvin Gardiner due to the heat and bowed 6-4, 5-5. In other matches, 11th-seeded Eliot Teltcher eliminated Richard Meyer 6-1, 6-4 and George Hardie beat Trey Waitke 6-3, 6-1.

Lemon's career is at the cross-roads. After taking over the Yankees in mid-season a year ago, with the world champions 10 games out of first place, and leading them to a second pennant and World Series victory, he was unceremoniously removed from his job June 18.

That was when owner George Steinbrenner decided his sagging "gold dust team" needed a shot in the arm and fans who clamored for run-and-gun basketball. He also immediately silenced the whispers that he couldn't handle blacks, or get star players to play disciplined ball.

Indiana went 32-0 and won the national title in 1976, fulfilling one of Knight's greatest dreams.

"When he was recruiting me, he told me his goal was to win the national championship," said Jim Crews, a member of the undefeated 1976 team and now a part-time assistant coach at Indiana. "But he said he was going to do it with good kids."

One way to avoid wasting time and energy in your kitchen is to have adequate storage space in the form of kitchen cabinets. To be sure the cabinets you choose are designed to last, the National Kitchen Cabinet Association suggests you look for the small NKCA-certification seal inside a cabinet door or drawer. It means the cabinets are designed to last despite hard use.

Women and Furniture Designing

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Why is it that women with a flair for design and who know how to draw frequently pursue careers as interior decorators but rarely aspire to the role of furniture designer? "Furniture designing has always been a man's profession, perhaps because it requires dealing with workers as well as a knowledge of mechanics," says Elyse Lacher, one of today's few successful, woman furniture designers. "But, a woman's designs can often be superior to a man's, because she automatically considers questions of maintenance and use, which men sometimes ignore," she added. Ms. Lacher is the designer for Cy Mann Designs, Ltd., a New York-based manufacturer. Like most women in the field, she got into furniture designing by accident. Although she had always been able to draw and studied art in college, she did graduate work in order to become a speech therapist. However, when another designer failed to produce some needed work for the family firm, her uncle asked Ms. Lacher to step in. She did, and joined the family firm for good. At first, her efforts involved styling furniture purchased mostly from European designers to suit them to the American market. But, eventually she began to design on her own, acquiring the necessary technical knowledge on the job. When she started 10 years ago, there were few opportunities for formal education in furniture design. She learned how to do scale drawings and blueprints by studying on her own. In the ensuing years, she has learned that the commercial furniture field requires considerably more flexibility from the designer than do other creative efforts. But she rates both the monetary returns and the level of personal satisfaction to be derived from her calling as very high. "You learn very quickly that the ideal sofa line to a manufacturer is one which produces 40 different styles from six or seven basic frames," she said. Unlike painting or sculpting, a furniture designer does not work alone. It's a cooperative endeavor. And once the creative people step in to make a judgement about whether or not the factory can build the piece as designed. If not, changes must be made. After the prototype is made, the sales department gets a chance to have its say. If they don't think the furniture is saleable, it will have to be changed again. Despite (or perhaps because of) the high degree of pragmatism involved in the design, manufacture and sale of commercial furniture, Ms. Lacher finds the work fulfilling. "It's a wonderful ego boost when something you have designed is made up and then bought by someone."

Q.—A lot of people in our area have the problem of sweating toilet tanks in their bathrooms. One them, seems to have stopped the sweating by covering the entire tank, including the bottom part, with a fitted fabric, but I would like to avoid this if possible. Is there any other way to solve this problem?

A.—Your neighbor has halted this form of condensation because he (or she) has placed something between the warm, moist air and the cold surfaces of the tank. The sweating occurs as this air settles on the tank, since the cold water in the tank makes the surface equally cold. You can buy a foam-like material to cement to the inside of the tank, thus preventing the cold water from affecting the temperature of the outside of the tank. Follow the manufacturer's instructions carefully on how to cement the material and especially on the necessity of getting the inside of the tank dry before you begin work. There are a number of other ways to accomplish the same purpose, one of which is to have a plumber install a mixing valve that will keep the water in the tank lukewarm.

Q.—Our bedroom floor was painted several years ago, and we no longer like the looks of it. We don't want to go through the mess of removing the paint, so we have decided to put down resilient floor tiles. Can these be applied right over the painted floor? The boards in our floor are three inches wide and are in good shape.

A.—When the boards in a wooden floor are three inches or less in width, which makes them less susceptible to warpage than wider boards, they generally can be covered with resilient floor tiles, but in this case I would advise against it. The cement will hold to the paint at this time, but once the paint starts to loosen, the tiles also will loosen. The only way you can be sure the tiles will adhere indefinitely is to install a plywood or hardboard underlayment directly over the floor, then cement the tiles to the underlayment. When buying the underlayment at a lumber yard or building supply establishment, ask for the proper type of nails. Also, although you say the original floor is in good shape, "doublecheck" it to be sure there are no loose boards, which must be nailed down first.

Q.—One of the rooms in my house was painted years ago with a textured paint. I would like to repaint it, but this time I want to use a regular, smooth paint. Would a single coat do or would I have to use two coats?

A.—The chances are that even several coats would not make the surface smooth. You will have to stick with the same type of paint unless you want to create a new surface, that is wall paneling, a heavy wallpaper, burlap or any material that will cover the textured paint.

Meeting The Challenge In Color Coordination

When thoughts turn to re-decorating, they usually stop at color.

The abundance of design materials available today makes successful color and styling coordination a real challenge, particularly in the kitchen and bath. Just the opposite was true in days past — too little variety.

Flipping through sample books that often contain more than 200 colors only results in confusion. Add the wide variety in wallcovering, floor tile, countertop designs and cabinet-vanity selections and the options are overwhelming.

But don't despair. There is a systematic way of re-decorating, according to J. Allen Monte, Director of Design at Formica Corporation. "Start with the foundation of the room — the basic appliances or bath fixture shades chosen or currently in place," he advises. "All color selections can be matched, coordinated or contrasted with these essential basics of the room."

In using color, he said, try to remember that the colors chosen will be in your bathroom or kitchen or any other room for a long time to come. "A favorite color can reflect your personality and, quite likely, the life style of the family."

"Use as a guide the personalities of the colors themselves," the design director recommends. "Red, orange and yellow are action colors. Use red and its variants when you want to show a flair for life," he said. However, these colors cannot be used in large doses in small rooms as they often cause the room to "close in" and seem smaller than what it is.

"Blue, green and violet, the cool colors, are best for small rooms," he maintains. "They suggest dignity, responsibility and relaxation. They also tend to make the walls recede giving the room a larger appearance. But don't use them as dominant colors with the action family as they just won't 'fit'."

Monte said that the absence of color puts white in a class all by itself. It expresses cleanliness, purity and simplicity. Yet its neutrality makes it coordinate well with the action colors or the cool ones. For the dramatic effect, there's black and white. White also provides an un-distracting background for paintings and sculpture, said Monte.

Color is not the only factor to be considered. According to Formica's design expert, practicality is also important. On the walls, he said, vinyl-coated wall coverings offer longer wear. They also are easily wiped clean. They should be considered for easy maintenance and value.

On the floor, he notes that the options are many. There are hundreds of easy-care and no-wax floorings available. Among them: durable synthetics that look like real wood and perform like vinyl. The theme established with appliances and cabinetry, however, must be carried out in every instance, including flooring, Monte cautioned.

From kitchen to bath to any room, the variety of colors, designs and surfaces now offered in the decorative laminate lines provide an excellent opportunity to achieve a well coordinated highly styled custom look, he maintains.

J. Allen Monte, Formica's Design Center Director, maintains that good color coordination should start with the basic appliances and cabinets in the room. He recommends posing samples for visualizing a total room design. Here, he begins color selection by taking a closer look at a paper sample of a basic woodgrain pattern.

Styrofoam TG brand insulation is a savings dividend for the do-it-yourselfer. Whether it is used in porch conversions, basement remodeling and room additions, over ceilings, sidewalls and masonry walls, or under new siding (shown here), this board-form sheathing product adds the benefits of energy efficiency to any area of the home.

Compound Do-It-Yourself Dividends With Energy Efficiency

Labor savings are the basis of most do-it-yourself projects. Now energy efficiency, in the form of Styrofoam* TG brand insulation, can be the interest factor which compounds these savings into a stable, long-term investment complete with dividends.

The rapidly growing do-it-yourself market indicates that homeowners are aware that substantial savings can be realized by accomplishing as many home improvements as possible by themselves, rather than hiring special contractors. Today's do-it-yourself projects are progressively more ambitious, ranging from basement remodeling and porch conversions to room additions and residing.

Remodeling and home improvements projects offer multiple opportunities to incorporate energy efficiency in all areas of the home. The owner who does not evaluate each prospective handyman project for its energy efficiency possibilities is missing a golden opportunity to install permanent thermal protection at the same time," maintains W.A. Growdon, housing market manager for The Dow Chemical Company.

Savings available to the homeowner from his own "sweet equity" and from Styrofoam TG brand insulation together are reflected in lower fuel bills and added resale value as well as obvious aesthetic improvements. The versatile board-form insulation product is lightweight and easy to use in all types of home improvement projects. It can be installed on ceilings, frame walls and masonry walls.

Styrofoam TG brand insulation is available in thicknesses of 3/4" and 1" in 2 x 8 or 4 x 8 panels. It can be easily cut and scored, which makes otherwise difficult spots around electrical outlets or in corners almost as simple to cover as a flat wall. In addition, Styrofoam TG brand insulation features tongue-and-groove edges to help produce a snug fit guarding against air infiltration and drafts.

be included in do-it-yourself jobs where new frame walls are built or where drywall and paneling or just drywall are being added. The versatility of Styrofoam TG brand insulation also allows a handyman to specifically add insulation as a project unto itself to those areas that are in need of adequate thermal protection," stated Growdon at Dow.

In addition to savings in labor and materials costs, a do-it-yourself project including energy efficiency can produce savings in the form of reduced heating/cooling bills that can pay back part of the investment to the homeowner annually. When Styrofoam TG brand insulation is added to the exterior of an existing home under new siding, for example, the resultant savings will in many cases pay for the cost of the insulation within five years. (Actual savings will vary according to climate, living habits, cost of energy and existing sidewall components.)

The Dow Chemical Company publishes specific installation brochures for each of the handyman applications of Styrofoam TG brand insulation. Because the sheathing material is combustible, Dow suggests these brochures be obtained for details on proper use and installation before starting such a job. Application of Styrofoam TG brand insulation to an interior wall area requires coverage with 1/2" gypsum board or equivalent.

A comedy set in Malibu, Calif., the play is the story of a man about town, recently deceased, who is reincarnated as a woman.

Charlie, the man of the story, was known for little in life except his ability to distinguish fine wines and a reputation as a great lover and good tennis player. One character, at a memorial service for Charlie, remarks that "they say he had an excellent backhand."

In his reincarnated state, Charlie, in the guise of a girl, is faced with the problem of changing his personality from male to female. That transformation creates some hilarious situations.

Elaine Bass of Memphis, Tenn., who appeared earlier this season as Mrs. Baker in PART's production of "Butterflies Are Free," plays the role of Charlie Sorel after his reincarnation as a woman.

Joe Dossett of Sacramento is Charlie's best friend, George Tracy. His role requires the character to feel a new and different kind of affection for the new Charlie.

Carla Horton of Murray plays as Rusty Mayerling, one of Charlie's old girl friends.

Miss Horton performed in the female lead in "The Star Spangled Girl," the second of the three PART shows of the season.

Others in the cast are: William Harle of Steubenville, Ohio; Suzanne Hill of Yuma, Ariz.; Skip Hamra of Murray; and Paul Petrask of Chicago, Ill.

James I Schemp, associate professor of speech and theatre at Murray State, will direct "Goodbye Charlie." His directing credits include the University Theatre's musical production of "Stop the World I Want To Get Off." Schemp was seen on stage as an actor earlier this summer in the Playhouse in the Park's presentation of "The Taming of the Shrew."

Ticket information for PART performances may be obtained by calling the box office at (502) 767-6797 day or night.

Cheyenne Residents Resume Searching In Rubble After Tornado

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Stunned by Cheyenne's first tornado in history, residents today resume searching the rubble of more than 200 homes in affluent sections of the city.

The twister injured 37 persons, five of whom were hospitalized. A 14-month-old boy, David McKinnon, died of head injuries when his family's mobile home was torn apart, authorities said.

"No one ever thought we would ever have a tornado in Cheyenne, Wyoming," Mayor Don Erickson said, "but we had one."

The twister bounced across Cheyenne about 3:40 p.m. Monday, departing the city about half an hour later and leaving what Erickson estimated to be more than 200 damaged homes. The mayor said his estimate of the damage was "a very wild estimate. It's not scientific in any regard."

He said the funnel cut across a two-block wide area for 4 to 5 miles within the city limits. "It hit more than once," he said. "It might have hit half a dozen times.

As the twister came close, Norma McClellan urged her two teen-age children to get in the car and outrun it, but her son disagreed. The family took shelter in their basement, and when the sound ended, came upstairs to find their home destroyed.

Nearby, three children alone in their home took the same action.

"The Lord was good to us," said their mother, Diana Coles.

Gov. Ed Herschler asked President Carter to declare the ravaged blocks disaster areas, qualifying residents for emergency federal relief, Erickson said.

About 300 National Guard troops were assigned to the area to help provide relief and prevent looting.

Wall Construction Does Not Bode Well For Operation

By MARIA BRADEN
Associated Press Writer
LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Improper construction of concrete containment walls at the Marble Hill nuclear power plant in Indiana doesn't bode well for the plant's safe operation, says a mechanical engineer who was arrested last month during a protest at the plant construction site.

Concrete industry codes are not being followed, he said, since the hollow pockets result from improper handling of the concrete or improper design. "The most serious thing is the attitude of Newberg Construction (Co.) and Public Service Indiana (the developers)," he said. He cited a deposition taken from Charles E. Cutshall, a laborer at the plant, who said the construction company supervisor told workers simply to patch up the holes prior to inspection by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. Industry codes require workers to jackhammer out hollow places before patching them,

Weber said. Without proper construction techniques, anyone on the outside of the walls would be endangered in the event of an accident, he said. Weber, who worked four years as an engineer in a coal-fired electric-generating plant in Indiana before joining the anti-nuclear group Padlewheel Alliance, said constant monitoring and maintenance is essential because any power plant — coal or nuclear — is going to release emissions. The recent nuclear accident at Pennsylvania's Three-Mile Island was an example of inadequate maintenance and monitoring, he said.

TVA Worker Finds Pools Cheaper Than Filling Tank

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Like most Tennessee Valley Authority employees, Kay Martin finds riding to work for a month with fellow workers in a van nearly as cheap as filling her car's gas tank once. Mrs. Martin, a secretary in TVA's community development office, has ridden a van to and from work for five years, leaving in her driveway the car her husband bought her as a Christmas present. She says she'd rather sit on the van for the 22 roundtrips to her office in Knoxville from her home 17 miles away in Strawberry Plains costs her $32.50 a month.

"If I drove to work and had to park my car, I probably would spend that much a week," she says. "I've got a Cougar and it costs me $27 just to fill it up." She is among 5,000 TVA employees saving a total of 3 1/2 million gallons of gasoline a year by riding to work on buses and in van pools instead of driving alone. "We've got a tremendous demand for more but we've run out of vans," Stan Stokoy, who administers the program, said Monday. "We've got 60 more ordered but the factories have a large backlog because everybody wants them now." Stokoy operates the largest van pool fleet in the nation: 440 vans and 60 special buses taking TVA employees to and from their jobs at 20 locations in the seven states the federal agency serves. He said there was a recent swell of requests to join TVA's pool after the gasoline shortage developed and prices soared with the cutoff of oil from Iran. But it was another shortage which launched TVA's program in 1973. Work had just begun on a headquarters building in Knoxville when employees raised the question: Where are we going to park when it's completed? Not wanting to spend the millions needed to build parking spaces for its 4,200 workers here, TVA agreed to guarantee loans to their credit union for buying the 15-passenger vans. The Arab oil embargo several months later just happened to get the program the boost it needed. TVA now estimates it saved at least $13 million in parking lots, garages and road improvements that would have been needed had the ride-sharing program not existed. The number of TVA employees in Knoxville driving to work has dropped from 65 percent to 17 percent, Stokoy said. And, nearly 28 percent of the 3,200 workers at TVA's power and purchasing headquarters are now in pools or on buses. Stokoy said the typical savings is 5,000 gallons of gas a year for each van and 20,000 gallons for each bus. The vans also have eliminated about 900 tons of air pollutants that would have existed if workers were still driving their own cars, he said. The employees' credit union owns the vans but TVA picks up 35 percent of their costs. The other 65 percent comes from the workers who ride them.

Carroll Writes Secretary On Confusion After Resignation

By HERBERT SPARROW
Associated Press Writer
FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Gov. Julian Carroll wants to make sure there is no misunderstanding with Energy Secretary James Schlesinger about how the nation's governors feel about the transportation of coal, particularly through slurry pipelines. Carroll wrote Schlesinger Monday indicating he was concerned about what had reached Schlesinger from the National Governor's Association's annual meeting last week in Louisville after the confusion surrounding the resignation of deputy energy secretary Jack O'Leary.

Carroll had made concerning coal transportation legislation. "In light of the serious nature of our attempt to establish a channel of communications between the states and Department of Energy, I feel it is important to offer this letter as a further attempt to ensure an open dialogue between you and the states," Carroll wrote Schlesinger. Carroll said O'Leary had expressed the view that the states should have the right to control the use of their own water if slurry pipelines are used to carry coal. Slurry pipelines utilized water to carry coal through pipes. Carroll noted that the governors had expressed fear that federal legislation, even if it attempted to protect that right, could lead to court decisions holding slurry pipelines to be interstate commerce and subject to federal control.

He said O'Leary had agreed to recommend that the coal slurry bill specifically include a provision protecting the right of a state to legislate the use of its own water. "Regarding the question of the department supporting our legislation, I think Jack took a sound position that until the railroads supported the coal slurry pipeline permit apparatus we should not pass any legislation which would aid them financially," Carroll said. Carroll also agreed to communicate his proposal for a national coal severance tax to be used for coal haul roads and road crossings. Under the proposal, the tax would expire in three years if a coal slurry pipeline permit is not passed. If it is passed, the tax proceeds would then be used for all four modes of coal transportation — rail, water, road and pipeline. "Jack's rapid departure will in no way detract from our mutual effort to establish a workable base for negotiating these vital issues," Carroll said.

Carroll said he was also attaching a resolution adopted by the task force "in order to ensure there is no misunderstanding as to the subject of our discussion with Jack."

Carroll is the former chairman of the NGA and is a member of the Coal Transportation Task Force. Carroll said O'Leary had agreed to recommend changes to the coal slurry pipeline legislation now before Congress and to submit a proposal to Schlesinger that Weber, the only demonstrator to be charged with criminal trespass following the June 3 protest at Marble Hill, said he would like the government to explore alternative energy sources.

He said it would be much cheaper to stop the Marble Hill project now than once it is operating.

Weber's trial is set for Aug. 1 in Jefferson County, Ind., District Court.

With him during the news conference was Tom Fitzgerald of Lexington, a spokesman for a new anti-nuclear group here — Safe Alternatives for Energy, or SAFE.

"The people of Kentucky are extremely concerned about the development of nuclear energy — they feel powerless," Fitzgerald said, adding that the organization was formed to educate the community.

Fitzgerald said Kentucky is in a unique position, because while no nuclear power plants are located in the state, several such plants are being constructed just across the state's borders; nuclear wastes are transported across Kentucky's highways; radioactive wastes are buried at Maxey Flats, and uranium enrichment plants are located here.

Persons Charged Following Seven Month Investigation

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Metro police continued a roundup today of 30 persons charged following a seven-month narcotics investigation that ended Monday night, according to police. Police said the 30 persons — whose names were not released Monday night — were cited on 46 charges that followed 40 sales transactions with Maria Neal, an undercover police officer. Ages of the suspects ranged from 17 to 35.

The largest transaction in the undercover "sting" operation, which began in February, involved shipment of eight pounds of cocaine, with a street value of about $1 million, from sources outside the state and country. Police said other drugs involved were marijuana, LSD, PCP, cocaine, amphetamines, barbiturates and heroin, worth several thousand dollars. Videotapes were made of many of the transactions at a special site. Other transactions occurred at various places in Fayette County, according to police.
