Like hundreds of thousands of other college students in these United States I am "home for the holidays." Steve Jones and I drove home Tuesday afternoon after our last class in weather that was so perfect and so balmy shirt-sleeved garments were in order.

The other member of my Vanderbilt "car pool," Steve Green, came home on Saturday. Oddly enough the first person we saw as we drove into South Fulton near the K & N emporium was Steve in his sleeked up Jaguar, enjoying the Spring-like weather with his little sister sitting beside him.

The two other members of the college contingent at Westwood flew into Paducah on Wednesday. So it will be a merry get-together for all of us.

Getting adjusted to the scholarly life has left me little time for home-sickness. Yet even if I had any leisurely moments I doubt if there would be any occasion to get those pangs of wanting to be home to see all the familiar faces. All I'd have to do would be to browse around the various stores in Nashville, chat awhile with the sales people, and soon I'd find the path-way to home-town relationships.

Two such events happened just last week-end within hours of one another.

At Castner-Knott Department Store I bought a gift for Paul. I handed my charge plate to the lady at the cashier's desk and she immediately exclaimed:

"Fulton, Ky.! I wonder if you know my aunt Mrs. Ina Pittman?"

Well of course I allowed as how I did, where-upon I remarked to Judy Allen, my new found friend:

"Then you must be related to Pat Boone."

"He's my brother," she said. Well that brought on some more pleasant conversation and a glow of good feeling in my heart.

Going over to the Cain-Sloan Department Store the same events occurred. This time the lady said:

"Do you know the Grahams in Fulton?"

"Some of my dearest and oldest friends," I said. Mary Sue Smith was the lady's name. Her husband, a sales representative for a well-known furniture company has been serving this area for a long, long time, Mary Sue told me. She often came with him.

Both Judy and Mary Sue said to be sure and give these mutual friends their best regards and holiday greetings, which I do this very minute.

On an earlier trip to Fulton I was having the car serviced at a station near my apartment building. The young attendant came to the window and said: "Hi Jo." Well, that was something of a switch from the usual staid salutations from the professors in the class-room.

But how sweet it sounded!

The young fellow was James Green, Kenneth Turner's nephew. He's a native West Kentuckian, has lived in Nashville for about a year, and remembers our associations at WFUL in the halcyon days of yore.

It's good news to know that Sara Bushart has accepted the presidency of the Banana Festival for a second term. These twin communities owe Sara a big bundle of gratitude for taking on such a monstrous task for a second go around and for doing such a superb job with her initial performance.

Sara is a tremendous organizer, a wonderful person to work with, a conscientious leader and a dedicated community worker.

With all this and a fine board of directors and advisors, it is no wonder that the 1968 slogan "the sensational sixth" sounds so exciting.

SOME THOUGHTS AT CHRISTMASTIME... With the size and magnitude of this week's paper (one of the largest we've ever published) I am reminded again of what my first managing editor said to me: "Jo there is no person in the world whose job cannot be filled, and oftentimes with the replacement doing a much better job" ... Ouch, again!

I like to think that this is true, but not much in our shop. While Paul has burned the midnight oil he has had some folks around him that I don't think can be replaced or superceded for efficiency.

Death Of Eph Dawes Ends Devoted Career In Area's Publications

by Jo Westpheling

If there is a Fountain of Youth, then there is a Well of Printer's Ink. In the philosophy that they both connote the ultimate in happiness for many, then it is accurate to say that Eph Dawes lived a lifetime, refreshing each year with giant portions of enthusiasm from the Printer's Well for the profession he loved so sincerely.

Eph loved newspapering and newspaper production with such an intensity, that in spite of his failing eyesight he managed somehow to make frequent rounds of both newspaper offices almost every week. Eph was a valued employee of the Fulton News on different occasions, and as a matter of fact, with his brother Jim, founded this newspaper. His last full-time employment was with the Fulton Daily Leader, with which he was associated for many years with the present publishers and the former publishers, the Hoyt Moore Family.

His deep and loyal interest in both firms obliterated any physical debilities that might have plagued him in his later years.

Eph Dawes was a perfectionist. He was a gregarious and cordial man. He was our friend! We loved, respected and admired him.

In the casual camaraderie of a newspaper shop we called Eph a "worrier." It was an attribute of heroic proportions. He worried if the make-up was not to his sensitive tastes; if the linotype slugs were not infinitely accurate; if copy was sloppy; and most of all he worried about our families, his family and his legion of friends, which can be numbered by anyone who was fortunate enough to have met him even casually.

He was a story-teller of the old school. His memory of local events past and present was so precise that we scarcely needed to refer to the files for background material of any newsworthy event of his generation. He was happiest when he could recount these events and what participation he had in them. He was an active participant in the newspaper history of this region.

Eph died unexpectedly of a heart attack last Thursday. Knowing of his intense passion for making his wife Lillie and other members of his family happy on every occasion, Eph would have been loath to mar their holiday happiness.

But Eph was a man whose robust nature and personality will long be cherished at any time of any year.

We extend our heartfelt sympathies to Lillie and to all the Dawes family. For we too have lost a dear and devoted friend.

Mrs. Ward Bushart Re-elected President Of Famed International Banana Festival

Mrs. Ward Bushart, who guided the giant activities of the 1967 International Banana Festival to its justifiable slogan as "the fifth the finest," was unanimously re-elected last Thursday to a second term of office. At a meeting of board of directors held at the Chamber of Commerce office a nominating committee similarly presented a slate of other "veteran" Festival workers to serve with Mrs. Bushart in executive positions.

All were elected unanimously. They are:

John Sullivan, first vice-president; Mrs. Lorene Harding, second vice-president; Mrs. J. T. Nanney, secretary and Paul Kasnow, treasurer.

At the same time the new members of the board of directors and the organizations they represent were named.

They are:

Mrs. R. Ward Bushart, Twin Cities' Development Association; Mrs. J. T. Nanney, Fulton Woman's Club; Mrs. Lorene Harding, B & P; J. F. "Pete" Green, Elks Club; J. D. Parham, Civitan Club; John Sullivan, Lions Club; Harvey Johnson, Rotary Club; Dewey Johnson, Y. M. B. C.; Paul Kas-now, Retail Merchants Association; Hafford Milstead, American Legion; William Archer, South Fulton Boosters; Shelton Owens, Chamber of Commerce; Kenneth Stanley, Jaycees; Gilbert DeMyer, Mayor of Fulton; Rex Ruddle, Mayor of South Fulton.

Mrs. Bushart named the following advisors to the Board: Mrs. Maxwell McDade, Social Chairman; W. P. Burnette, Finance Chairman.

Mrs. Lorene Harding was named Chairman of the By-Laws Committee.

The board of directors has already begun to lay the foundation for the "Sensational Sixth" and looks forward to the same spirit of cooperation from the twin communities that has made previous festivals so successful.

Luchen Pulley Dies In "Death Curve" Collision

A head-on collision on the "Death Curve" of US Highway 51 four miles north of Fulton at approximately 12:10 Wednesday noon brought instant death to a Fultonian and injuries requiring hospitalization to two Florida men.

Luchen Pulley, approximately 55, was killed instantly when his 1968 Buick slammed head-on into a semi-trailer truck at the top of the treacherous overpass over the Illinois Central tracks on US 51. Pulley was traveling toward Fulton alone and the truck was northbound out of Fulton with a load of produce.

Pulley was badly mangled in the wreckage of his car, and Whitnel ambulance attendants, called to the scene, had difficulty removing his body from the vehicle.

William B. Thomas and Larry

Thompson, occupants of the truck and both residents of Florida, were taken to Hillview Hospital, where their injuries were undetermined as this paper went to press Wednesday.

Pulley, who resided at 214 Green Street in Fulton, is survived by his wife and eight children. He was employed by the Pure Milk Company as a bottling-machine operator.

Arrangements are incomplete as this issue goes to press, but will be announced tomorrow by Whitnel Funeral Home.

Carolers Sing Each Night At The Bandstand

Marshall Alexander Post No. 72 of the American Legion and the 40 & 8 are jointly sponsoring for the first time this year a program of "Carols for Christmas" each night this week at the band stand on Lake street. The public is cordially invited to come by and hear the beautiful Christmas music, being presented by different groups each night, at 8 p. m.

Various churches of the twin cities are cooperating with the sponsoring groups in providing the singers for the nightly occasions.

South Fulton Baptist singers will provide the carols for Thursday night.

Friday night singers from the First Methodist Church will present the program.

Highlighting the week's caroling will be the Twin City Sing-Out group, directed by Rev. Kimball Coburn of Water Valley.

Carols for Christmas has been presented by Legion groups in other cities and has proved a popular Christmas activity. It is hoped to make this an annual event of the holiday season.

White Christmas Here? Don't Expect It, Says Climatologist

Kentucky dreaming of a white Christmas may be in for a big disappointment. The odds are against it, University of Kentucky climatologist Allen B. Elam Jr. says.

Elam, weatherman for the Environmental Science Services Administration (ESSA) and the State Weather Bureau, adds that the probability of "a snowfall of any amount and/or a snow cover of any depth, is about a 20 per cent chance in the extreme western portions of the state, ranging up to 30 to 50 per cent in the north and east."

A White Christmas in Kentucky is a rare treat, state climatological records show. By white Christmas, the UK weatherman means "an inch or more of white stuff on the ground."

So far, records show a 10 to 30 per cent chance of that amount of snow cover on Dec. 25 in the state—

depending upon the location, Elam says. "In the past 18 years, only five Christmas days have had any significant snow cover."

Elam pointed out that all five cases have occurred in the last seven years. In 1960 and 1963, he said, there was an inch or more of snow cover over most of the state. In 1961 and 1962, the snow was limited chiefly to the south and/or southeast portions.

In December, 1966, snow fell over most of the state with the exception of the Blue Grass and the northwest sections.

"We have been talking about the chances of having a snow cover of some significance—an inch or more," Elam said. "If we include snowfalls amounting from a few flakes to less than one inch, the chances of snow are much greater."

Seniors Take ACT And SAT Exams

(From The FHS Kennel)

In the last few weeks several members of the senior class have been taking tests which will enable them to tell what kind of chance they have in college and in what course of study to major. Some of the students have received their results from the ACT test.

The SAT test is a test called the Scholastic Aptitude Test. It is given to many seniors all over the United States. All of these students are graded on their tests and based on an average scale. From this they can tell how they rank in Scholastic ability.

The ACT test is the test given by American College Testing. This is the same kind of test as the SAT and the scores are graphed in a similar fashion. Some of the students will wish to take this test at a later date. The test dates are as follows:

New York Times Singles Out Kentucky's Governor Breathitt For Intelligent, Provocative Programs

The states are the critical areas of American government today. For thirty-five years, in war and in peace, the Federal Government has expanded its power and dramatically redefined its role. Local units of government have reacted to the same pressures in remarkably different ways.

In some states, the counties are withering away; in Connecticut, they have been abolished altogether. Elsewhere, the counties have taken on executive and planning functions in an effort to provide metropolitan-wide government as suburbs have mushroomed in importance. Cities, big and small, have meanwhile leapfrogged over the state governments, with their rural-dominated legislatures and their reactionary taxing policies, and have developed direct ties with the new bureaucracies in Washington.

Unless the states rehabilitate themselves as effective, functioning governments, there is little doubt about the direction that political development is going to take in this country in the decades ahead. Federalism will be radically transformed, and the national Government will deal directly with thousands of local jurisdictions. In such a relationship, Washington can only be the master and local governments the agents.

President Johnson, to his credit, has devoted considerable attention to Federal-state relationships. But the real impetus for reform can only come from the states themselves. The recent National Governors Conference provided encouraging evidence that this impetus is growing stronger.

Although the "three R's" — Governors Romney, Reagan and Rockefeller — ler — who are in the Presidential spotlight naturally dominated the news, the more lasting significance of a large number of serious-minded Governors in both parties who take a sophisticated, almost professional attitude toward state problems. As recently as ten years ago, Governors' meetings discussed a few isolated issues such as traffic safety or the National Guard. This year's agenda included the strategy of state planning, regional and interstate cooperation, and states-and-urban problems. The staff studies and statistical analyses would do credit to any Federal agency.

The most provocative reports were those on regional and interstate cooperation prepared by a dozen Governors under the leadership of Gov. Edward T. Breathitt of Kentucky. Education, air and water pollution, transportation, and economic development are problems that do not respect state boundaries. States have to develop modes of political cooperation to adjust to the realities of a river basin, a regional air-shed or a redevelopment area such as Appalachia.

Terry Sanford, the able former Governor of North Carolina, has devoted the last two years to surveying the role of the states. His recently published book, "Storm Over The States" is at once a convincing demonstration of the usefulness of state governments, an indictment of their weaknesses, and an exhortation for further reform. All who care about the success of federalism can only hope that today's Governors and their successors persevere in the urgent tasks of innovation.

1967: The "Good Crop Year"

RECORD YIELDS — The year 1967 is apt to be remembered in Kentucky as "the good crop year." There have been other good years, or maybe better ones, in certain sections of the state, but it is hard to remember one where the season has been so generally good throughout the state as the one just ending. It was a good pasture year and pastures are going into the winter in excellent condition; there is plenty of hay and the largest corn harvest since 1948. Wheat, barley and oats produced record yields last spring. The state's soybean crop is estimated at 11 million bushels, 42 percent more than last year.

Corn is a good crop by which to judge the over-all weather conditions because it is grown in all parts of the state and it is very responsive to the whims of the weather during the critical growing season. The 1967 Kentucky corn yield is now forecast at a record 80 bushels per acre, up 11 bushels from the previous record of 69 bushels made in 1965.

This year's growing season compares favorably with that of 1948. That year's corn crop also broke all previous records. It made 41 bushels per acre, almost 6 bushels above any previous record. Going back still a few more years the poorest corn yield in Kentucky was in 1931, the year of the great drought, when practically no rain fell in the state after early May. That year the crop averaged only 10 bushels per acre.

The two largest corn crops on record in Kentucky were produced during World War I, in 1915 and 1917. In those pre-tractor days over 3.6 million Kentucky acres were plowed and cultivated with horses and mules. Yields well above the average of that period (24 bushels per acre) were produced and over 110 million bushels were harvested in each of the 2 years. This year's crop of 95 million bushels was harvested on less than 1.2 million acres.

BIG CROPS - LOW PRICES. Big crops and high prices seldom go together. The balance between supply and demand is pretty well balanced and a small surplus of a commodity can force the price down severely. Thus with big crops of corn, soybeans and other crops have come sharp drops in prices.

In agriculture the supply of "in puts" does not determine the "output" of production. Nature — the rainfall, sunshine, hail and wind, — elements over which man has little control, is the biggest influence in regulating the supply of farm crops.

POET'S CORNER

A VISIT FROM ST. NICHOLAS

'Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the house
Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse;
The stockings were hung by the chimney with care,
In hopes that St. Nicholas soon would be there;
The children were nestled all snug in their beds,
While visions of sugar-plums danced in their heads;
And mamma in her kerchief, and I in my cap,
Had just settled our brains for a long winter's nap, —
When out on the lawn there arose such a clatter,
I sprang from my bed to see what was the matter.
Away to the window I flew like a flash,
Tore open the shutters and threw up the sash.
The moon on the breast of the new-fallen snow
Gave a lustre of midday to objects below;
When what to my wondering eyes should appear,
But a miniature sleigh and eight tiny reindeer,
With a little old driver, so lively and quick
I knew in a moment it must be St. Nick.
More rapid than eagles his coursers they came,
And he whistled and shouted, and called them by name:
"Now, Dasher! now, Dancer! now, Prancer and Vixen!
On, Comet! on Cupid! on Donner and Blitzen!
To the top of the porch, to the top of the wall;
Now dash away, dash away, dash away all!"
As dry leaves that before the wild hurricane fly,
When they meet with an obstacle, mount to the sky,
So up to the house-top the coursers they flew,
With a sleigh full of toys — and St. Nicholas, too.
And then in a twinkling I heard on the roof
The prancing and pawing of each little hoof.
As I drew in my head and was turning around,
Down the chimney St. Nicholas came with a bound.
He was dressed all in fur from his head to his foot,
And his clothes were all tarnished with ashes and soot;
A bundle of toys he had flung on his back,
And he looked like a pedlar just opening his pack.
His eyes, how they twinkled! his dimples, how merry!
His cheeks were like roses, his nose like a cherry;
His droll little mouth was drawn up like a bow,
And the beard on his chin was as white as the snow.
The stump of a pipe he held tight in his teeth,
And the smoke it encircled his head like a wreath.
He had a broad face and a little round belly
That shook when he laughed, like a bowl full of jelly.
He was chubby and plump — a right jolly old elf;
And I laughed when I saw him, in spite of myself.
A wink of his eye and a twist of his head
Soon gave me to know I had nothing to dread.
He spoke not a word, but went straight to his work,
And filled all the stockings; then turned with a jerk,
And laying his finger aside of his nose,
And giving a nod, up the chimney he rose.
He sprang to his sleigh, to his team gave a whistle,
And away they all flew like the down on a thistle;
But I heard him exclaim, ere he drove out of sight,
"Happy Christmas to all, and to all a good-night!"

SCRIPTURE READING —
Matt. 2:1-23

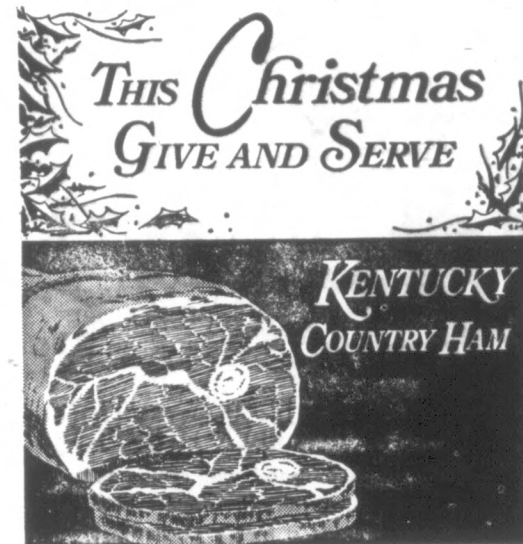

TEXT: "And she brought forth her first-born Son and laid him in a manger; for there was no room for them in the inn." Luke 2:7.
A Page From The Register of the Bethlehem Inn:
The inn in Bethlehem was not unlike the average small-town hotel of our own day. It was seldom filled except in an emergency. The occasion of our text was an emergency, for Augustus had taxed the world. Multitudes from all over had to return to their home city and village to pay these taxes and be enrolled. It was that Joseph and Mary were a part of this crowd who were hurrying to the city of David to register the fallen fortunes of the House of David.

So far as we know, there are no records extant of the inn. Except for the reference in our text, it would have remained in oblivion. Yet we cannot but wonder who occupied the prominent places in the inn that night, who crowded out The Son of God, The King of Kings. Let us turn prayerfully, with imagination, to the pages of the register and may they reveal the characters of those who were there on the night that Mary was sent across the courtyard to the

Santa's Rewards For The Year's Behavior Are Becoming Outlandish

The American toy industries have produced many splendid toys for children of all ages this Christmas season.

The greatest selling articles for girls this Christmas are the Barbie and Ken dolls with their assorted wardrobes. For a modest price anyone can purchase a Ken and Barbie doll, but let's face it, like anybody else they must keep up with the fashion trends. So during this year, parents will spend $128.00 for winter wardrobes to find that the fashions have changed and Ken and Barbie now need a complete spring outfit, which retails at $148.00.

Many smaller industries have caught on and are now offering preacher dolls for $31 to marry Ken and Barbie dolls. Also for realism, one can purchase witness dolls for a wedding at $27 each.

American industries are also appealing to little boys this Christmas by offering action dolls which can Kentucky's Department of Parks is preparing for a flood of requests early next month for choice accommodations next summer at the 13 State vacation parks.

Commissioner Robert Gable says all requests made by letter, postmarked Dec. 28 or later, will be honored on a first-come basis. Mail requests for summer accommodations will not be accepted before this date.

Telephone requests for the 1968 season will be accepted at all vacation parks beginning Jan. 1.

Vacation parks which are open year round (Jenny Wiley, General Butler, Cumberland Falls, Lake Cumberland, Kentucky Dam Village and Natural Bridge) are accepting phone reservation requests from 8 a. m. until 10 p. m. daily.

According to Gable, the Department's reservations service in Frankfort can accept early 1968 reservation requests beginning Jan. 2.

The number is (502) 223-2326. Toll-free calls may be made from these areas by dialing these numbers: Louisville, 583-9796; Lexington, 252-4913; and Covington-Cincinnati, 261-2643.

Opening dates for overnight accommodations in parks that close these facilities during the winter months are: Audubon, April 1; Buckhorn, May 1; Carter Caves, April 1; Kenlake, Feb. 2; Pennyville Forest, May 1; Pine Mountain, May 1; Rough River Dam, April 1. Housekeeping cottages at Cumberland Falls State Park will be open April 15.

FRANCE DETONATES BOMB

Paris — France has detonated its ninth atom bomb. The Defense Ministry said the blast was of "low yield variety." More tests are scheduled for later this summer, and the French government said it expects to test a hydrogen bomb in 1968.

Fulton High Band Members Attend Annual Music Festival At Murray

(From The FHS Kennel)

On Monday, Dec. 4, three of our band members and their director left the school at 8:00 en route to Murray State University. There they attended the twentieth annual QUAD STATE MUSIC FESTIVAL.

Those going from the Fulton band were Lady Rose Craddock—clarinet, senior division; Gary McBride—baritone, Joe Ed Harrison—Bass horn, junior division; and Mr. Brown.

Quad State is an annual event at Murray. It is made up of a series of three events each year. The first event is for choruses; the second event for bands from all over the Four-State area and the third for orchestras. At this time three or four members from each band are invited to attend. They are divided into two groups—Senior Band and Junior Band—according to their grade level.

The two bands met at 8:45 and began practicing for their concert for that night. Practice sessions went from 8:45 to 11:45. At 12:00 the directors attended the special Director's Complimentary Luncheon. At this time the students were set loose on the campus until 1:30. From then on they resumed their practice until 4:30. At 2:00 there was a clinic for directors conducted by Mr. Nilo Hovey. Then from 4:30 to 6:30 they were free to spend their time any way before the concert that night. During the day, besides the practice sessions, there was recreation in the Student Union and lots of "getting to know each other," and at 4:00 there was a concert held by the M. S. U. Woodwind Quintet.

At 7:00, after a full day's hard work in practice sessions, the two bands presented a concert. The Junior Band of 130 members was conducted by Professor Josiah Darnell, and the 170 piece Senior Band by Professor Paul Shahan. Selections played by the Junior Band were: A LITTLE BACH SUITE, THREE CLASSIC DANCES, THEME AND FINALE, VIVOR-ANDA, and FOUR EPISODES FOR BAND. Those played by the Senior Band were: SUGAR BOWL, MARCH, FESTIVAL OVERTURE, THE FOUNTAIN HEAD—a piece composed by Mr. Shahan himself—JESU, JOY OF MAN'S DESIRING, and BOSS NOVA HOLIDAY.

To have representatives at Quad State is an honor not only for the student but for the school also. Fulton has always been represented at Murray's festivals but can't possibly continue unless it receives the support it so richly deserves. Support can be given in any number of ways—by new members, by better attendance and band functions, or merely a word of encouragement now and then. No one can really understand the joy and satisfaction of being a band member until he has practiced many weeks to achieve that special rating of Superior.

In reference to the picture of the Canter home in your December 14 edition, the green painted boards are what was left of the carpet which was ripped from the home of Mrs. Carl Kindred on the corner of Forrestdale and Collingwood.

We spent a good part of the afternoon trying to find where the carpet went since there was no sign of it near the house. Several of the support posts were found in the Finis Vancil yard and the largest portion of the roof, with the porch swing still attached, was found rammed into the Canter home.

The carpet with all posts attached was lifted from over the car and peeled from the house. These were one dent in the car where a post apparently hit it. This whole thing, roof and all, was wood, not metal as many damaged ones were. It was blown more than a block, so it must have been a strong wind.

Just thought you might like to know.

Future Nurses Has Interesting Program

The Future Nurses Club met on November 22, 1967 in the Farm Room. The president, Roma Foster, opened the meeting and the secretary, Kay Mann, read the minutes of the last meeting. Roma then turned the meeting over to Mrs. Geri Braswell, who presented the program.

The program of the meeting was "Infant and Child Care." Mrs. Braswell's talk centered around the care of the infant and the young child. The Future Nurses learned that thumbsucking in the early years of a child could later lead to nail biting. They also learned how to cope with some of the psychological problems of the young child and were given some baby-sitting tips which concerned the child's health.

The Future Nurses enjoyed this program very much and are looking forward to more programs on a variety of subjects.

WILLIAM PICKARD

Sports Spotlight

(From The FHS Kennel)

Is it a bird? Is it a plane? No, it is "Wonderful William." William Pickard that is, one of Fulton High's outstanding athletes.

During the 1967 football season Pickard showed great speed and determination as an offensive and defensive halfback. William was one of the Bulldog's leading ground gainers, which he accomplished by using his great speed that gave him the ability to go around on end sweeps and catching passes. Pickard gave his best performance this year against South Fulton by scoring all four of the Bulldog's touchdowns.

The Fulton High junior is a starting guard on this year's basketball team. His quick movements and good ball handling is an asset to the team. William has shown fine leadership while serving as co-captain of the team.

William is also one of the outstanding members of the track team. He runs dashes and long distance events.

To sum it up, William Pickard is indeed an outstanding athlete.

(From The FHS Kennel)

Communication seems to be getting harder everyday for the students at FHS. Why, just the other day when office girl, Joy Jobe came around announcing all seniors were to meet in the math room immediately, there was a terrible misunderstanding. Nobody realized it until Jimmy King came walking in late and breathlessly exclaimed, "What's everybody doing in here? Didn't you hear the announcement that all seniors are supposed to meet in the bathroom?" He also explained that he would have gotten there sooner but he couldn't decide which bathroom to go to.

I'm sorry all of you couldn't have seen the re-run of Tacky Day put on by the freshman FHA girls the other night at their installation. Those girls looked so awful that when we had supper, the freshmen had to eat in one room while the other FHA girls ate in another.

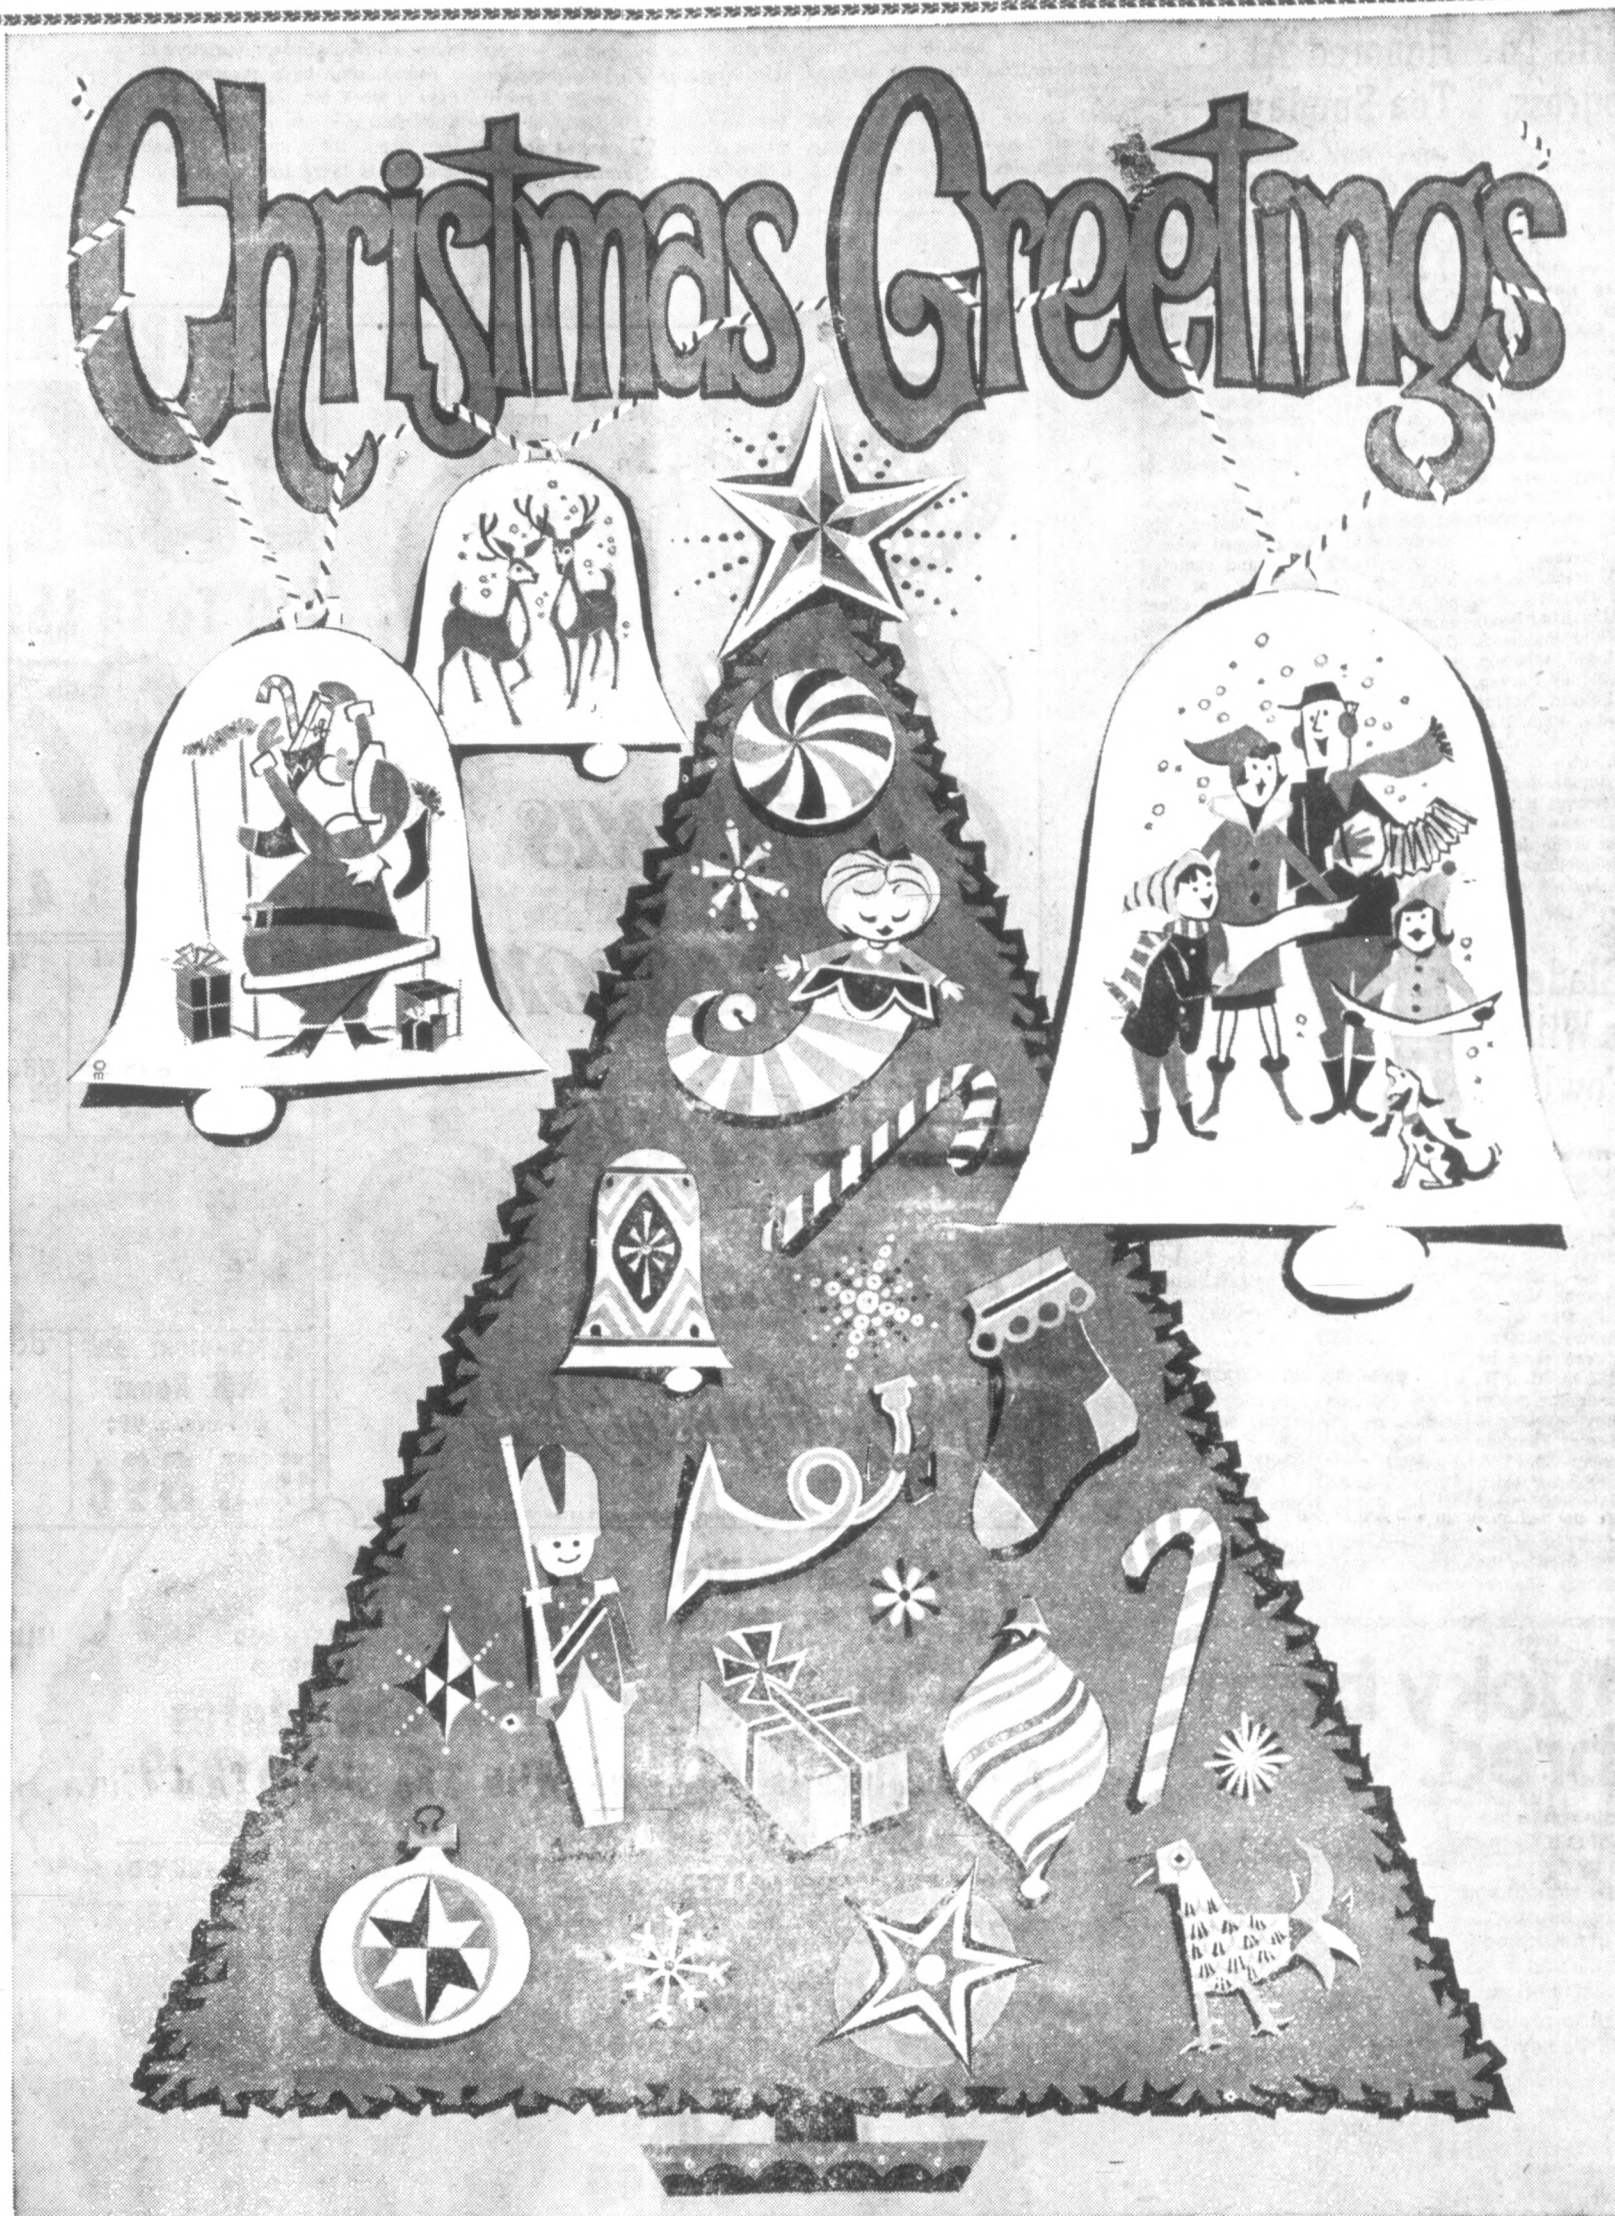

We found out a most astonishing fact at a recent pep rally. When asked how many boys were going steady, over fifteen FHS boys stood up, but when asked how many boys date just one girl, only two stood up. I think we girls had better take heed and check into this matter more closely!

If any of you ever have trouble remembering the time, don't fret. You can always rely on our faithful principal. The other day he knew it was somewhere around eleven o'clock without even looking at his watch. Could this be a new algebraic formula? No, Mr. Snider figured it this way: It had to be after 10:00 because he had coffee on his tie from the ten o'clock coffee-break, but before twelve o'clock since his stomach was growling about every ten minutes.

stable and the manger. O, look, here is the name of a noted governor. He had just arrived from a distant province. Yes, he was a Bethlehem boy who made good. His young manhood had been devoted to a political life in the great centers of the world. He was welcomed with acclaim and given the chief rooms. But angels from the battlements of heaven, ready to descend to the Judean hills, looked in wonder, for this political figure was not to blame. He was unconscious of the majesty of the One in the manger.

Today's political program is like this man. It is not wrong in itself. There is a great need for righteous men in political life, but the Lord Jesus is being crowded out. Within recent years we have heard both the Republican and Democratic candidates for President repeatedly address thirty million people over TV and radio; yet we have heard neither offer Christ his place nor even speak his name. He is not recognized. Our modern systems are in danger of being regarded with scorn and suspicion.

And look at this next name, a noted educator. A good man, member of the Sanhedrin. A prominent professor in the University at Jerusalem. Yet he must register at Bethlehem. When he arrived at the inn he was given the next best room. He represents the wisdom of the world, but the room he occupied really belonged to the Lord and his family.

One of the most insidious dangers throughout history has been the crowding out of Jesus Christ from our educational systems. It is a well known fact that a large portion of those who enter our universities with Christian beliefs lose them before graduation. The Bible is not read in our schools today, while emphasizing the much good it contains, the best text book is left out. Paul writes to the Corinthians, "For after that in the wisdom of God the world by wisdom knew not God, it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believed." The highest science and knowledge is met in the person of the Son of God, of whom it was said, "His name shall be called wonderful."

O, yes, here is the name of a great social leader. He is a man of great wealth. He has lived in the greatest cities of the world, even now he has been called back from Athens to the city of his birth that he might be enrolled and pay his taxes. He also occupied a complete suite with his friends. Yet his only claim to immortality, as we study history, is the record of his name here. His great wealth and social prominence were not sufficient to give his name to history. Yes, the Savior could have used his room. Glance at this name if you will, a world famous business man from Rome. He is the most vital character of all, his trademarks are known to the uttermost parts of the world. To him it is a great sacrifice and a waste of time to return to a little sleepy town like Bethlehem. But it is the law, and he must do it. He, too, gets a place that could have prevented the Savior from being born in a manger.

He represents the great section of the business world of today that regards religion as impractical and believes only in things that are material. I venture to say that the great economic depressions we have witnessed would not have been had not the business man taken the place of Christ. There is no doubt that it was, and is, a spiritual problem. There is need of recognition of Christ in business all over the world from the smallest to the largest. And no new proposed panacea for our ills will succeed, call it by any name you will, which does not recognize the Christ and the teachings of the scripture.

Thirty years later the Bethlehem babe, speaking with quiet authority on a Judean hillside, said to the world of business, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you."

Should he be admitted into the sphere of politics, education, society and commerce, after nineteen centuries of waiting, his teaching would effect revolutionary changes and perhaps help to dim the tragedy of the story on the register of the Bethlehem inn.

LETTERS TO SANTA

GARDNER'S STUDIO
— Commercial Avenue —

Harken Claus,

It is that time of year again and there are many things needed at FHS. In fact we need so many things we sent this letter a month early so that you could fulfill our requests. Despite the propaganda put out by the Great Pumpkin, we here at FHS remind you that it is you and only you that has our hearts and also our presents. Here is our list. Please try to fill the requests.

Thank you,
Student Body

P. S. Instead of Jack-O-Lanterns for Halloween we had Sant-O-Lanterns and also smashed all the pumpkins in the area.

LIST

For study hall we would like a tangerine orange carpet with a blue bulldog in the center.

For Mrs. Bennett's English classes we need reclining seats. For chemistry we need a television instead of a teacher.

A faster way to the cafeteria. An antique dealer to buy FHS.

No censorship in our library. A new sled for the football team (oiled).

A waitress in the cafeteria. Report cards to be lost in the files and never found.

A new plaster job in the study hall ceiling.

Help. A year's supply of themes for 8th hour study hall.

Please send Mr. Brown a sign that says, "It is true that blonds have more fun!"

Please send Coach McCann a set of aluminum weights.

Please send Jimmy King and Mr. Robertson the book, A Hundred Best Lies About Hunting.

Please send Mr. Milner a new set of frogs as the old ones are "rank."

Please send Mrs. Gathers an automatic eraser pitching machine.

The original blue prints of FHS.

For the study hall desks we need a stereo tape console placed in each one.

A Merry Christmas!

Dear Santa,

We feel that the students of Fulton High have been very cooperative with the rules and responsibilities that have been enforced on us. Now that you understand, we want to tell you that we have been discriminated against by our selfish faculty. When you come to see our schools Christmas Eve you will see their plush carpet and luxuries. Santa, we want just a few little conveniences that the teachers have. First of all we would like a psychodelic print carpet which is a foot thick. Then we would like padded seats, and some new modern pictures. If you could arrange it, we would like to have a refreshment bar and have a break in the morning for an hour. Oh, incidentally we would also like to have a couple of escalators. Those steps get to be murder by sixth period. This would be a benefit to both teachers and students, especially for Mrs. Cardwell. Santa, would you please bring Mr. Snider a padded paddle board for the Senior boys? Now since we have been so good we would like to have MOST OF ALL a few copies of our semester tests.

WARNING: Please don't land over the study hall ceiling or you may be dropping in to see us sooner than you think.

Thank you ever so much.

All our love,

5 deprived creative writing students

Dear Santa,

How are you doing this year? I am just fine. It has been a long time since you came to see me last. I have been writing you four years now and I want you to bring me everything you have not brought me in the past. I would like you to bring our new Principal, Mr. Snider, a cowboy belt to remind us of Mr. Martin. Now getting back to me I would like to have a new car, electric train, dump truck, two live dolls, new seats in study hall, some new girls in Fulton High and please bring Teddy a new girl friend.

Your friend,
Red Bird

Dear Santa,

We are three very unselfish, little boys, who would like to see our teachers happy on Christmas. We hope that you will grant the following modest requests.

Please bring Mrs. Robertson some fresh plaster so her light fixtures will hold to the ceiling and to Mr. Robertson please bring a new radar device that will detect the smallest whisper in first hour study hall. Santa, please find some well qualified C. I. A. men who will roam the halls for Mrs. Bennett during third and fifth hour English classes.

Mr. Milner would like one of your latest models of computers to calculate the number of insects captured each fall by the biology class. Please bring Mrs. Johnson a new French class with the ability to pronounce, and Mrs. Steele needs a processing machine which will save her from processing so many books each year.

Mr. Brown's last coat of summer blonde is wearing off and he would like a new box.

As for Mrs. Gathers, please bring her a pair of orange fish net hose to go with her thoroughly mod dress. Coach McCann wishes for Mrs. DeMyer to come back and take over second hour study hall, as he has a hard time controlling the sophomore girls.

Mr. Bushart has had his eye on a big red fire truck that runs on batteries. Please don't disappoint him, Santa.

Mrs. Cardwell is having a problem with a sore throat, and would like a megaphone, so that she will be able to make the students in the back of the room hear her.

Mrs. DeMyer is in need of a new full length mirror of her own because the sophomore girls have taken over the one in Home Ec. room.

As for the students of FHS, please bring them some outdoor-indoor carpet for the halls, that will match the carpet in the teachers' lounge. The students would also like piped-in music, because it is unfair that the office has this luxury and the classrooms do not.

Please bring Mr. Snider a new book of prose and an intercom system so that his quotes will be more effective.

Thank you, Santa,
T. D., D. J., and S. F.

Dear Santa,

Well how is the little round man in the little red coat doing this year? As usual, we have been our typical mischievous selves and are really entitled to nothing more than an educated swat across our posteriors. Please do not feel that we are being too self-centered in asking for these Christmas gifts, but let us assure you that they are for the improvement of things both living and non-living in Fulton High School.

First of all, we'd like a totally rebuilt building in which to attend classes. Our reason for this is that it gets rather monotonous having plaster fall on your head everytime you sit down. Next, we'd like for you to bring a cowboy belt for Mr. Snider because our school seems to be lacking without our beloved principal standing around with a Gene Autry original holding his Levis up.

And now for the students of FHS please bring Ed "Fireplug" Williamson a can of Martin Senour Genuine Florescent Red Paint because since his color is fading, the dogs have trouble finding him in the dark. Jimmy King needs a new duck call because Mrs. Cardwell confiscated his other one. David Winston wants a year's supply of paper measuring 1/2 inch by 3 inches and a 19/20 size pencil with an ultra-microscopic point so he can write easier in a small space with less effort.

Last, just bring the seniors a piece of paper rolled and tied with a ribbon so that we may exit this place.

See you later,
Mike

Fortunately, the students absent from this picture did survive the Carborundum tour. The first group of students pose here before heading back to school.

Physics And Chemistry Students Take Field Trip To Carborundum

(From The FHS Kennel)

The chemistry and physics students toured the Carborundum Plant at Hickman, Kentucky, on December 5. Mr. Snider, Mr. Bushart, Mr. Milner, Mrs. J. A. Poe, Mrs. Fred Homra, Mrs. Bobby Caldwell, Mrs. Bill McCarthy and Mrs. G. F. Bushart drove the students, leaving FHS at 12:30 P. M.

Upon arrival a short talk was given by Mrs. Bob Powell, the plant manager. He explained that at this specific plant electrodes and anodes of crystalline graphite are made. These electrodes, he further explained, are used in the steel industry. The electrodes can stand intense heat with which scrap metal is melted down and made into steel. Another Carborundum plant near Niagara, New York, makes seat covers for Cadillacs which can be heated.

The group of about 50 students was divided into two sections. The guide of the tour was Mr. Dickie Gossum, a former FHS teacher. After being warned not to touch anything, the members of the group were instructed to wear miners' helmets and special goggles.

Mr. Danny Shelton, a student teacher at FHS last year, explained how all the materials at the plant are checked to a high degree of accuracy. The electrodes of carbon are baked for 17 days in huge ovens. Perfectly round sand from Ottawa, Canada, and sawdust are used to pack the electrodes. This takes care of the expansion due to solidification as temperatures up to 3000 degrees Centigrade are reached, and keeps the oven from exploding. Each oven is torn down after two weeks of cooling and the electrodes are removed while they are "cherry red" with heat.

The entire plant maintains all its own machinery in a special building. The whole plant is a complex of six buildings including mixing, baking, maintenance, general office, final products and graphalloying.

The students all appreciated the opportunity to go to the plant and the cooperation of the parents. Everyone enjoyed the trip while they learned something of the properties of carbon and graphite.

Tree Decorated By FHA For Holiday

(From The FHS Kennel)

Christmas spirit is brought forth every year at FHS when the annual Xmas tree is placed in the study hall. The FHA Chapter sponsors this tree, giving the Sophomore home economics students the pleasure of decorating it.

All students are asked to place canned food under this tree. The food collected is given to the Jaycees for distribution among the needy.

Christmas time is the special season when all people think of those less fortunate than themselves. By only bringing food for the tree, students here can make another person's Christmas as happy as their own.

The FHA Christmas meeting December 20 will be mainly a time for refreshments and gaiety. Mrs. Henry Underwood is invited to entertain with lovely piano selections of Christmas music.

All chapter mothers are invited including Mrs. L. M. McBride, past chapter mother. The whole chapter will be led in singing and recreation.

Punch and cookies will be served to all.

DUKEDOM NEWS

Mrs. Hillman Westbrook

The Dukedom Methodist Church was the place for the double ring ceremony which united Linda Susan Davidson and Robert Harold Simpson on December 10th at four o'clock in the afternoon. The church was beautifully decorated with greenery, candles and baskets of white gladioli. Mr. A. A. McGuire, magistrate, performed the rites. Maid of honor was Sandra Gae Marr and best man was Harry Austin. Kevin Davidson, brother of the bride, served as usher and Laura Ann Davidson, sister of the bride, was flower girl. A cousin of the groom, Greg Copeland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Copeland of Martin, was the ring bearer. Nancy Bowlin of Dresden, accompanied by Mrs. Travis Dacus at the piano, sang. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Davidson of Dukedom and is a senior at Dresden High School. The groom is a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Cloy Puckett of Palmersville and is employed at the Milan Arsenal. Presently they are living with Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Davidson.

Donald Hastings is in Hillview Hospital at Fulton for tests and treatment.

Good Springs CPW met at the home of Mrs. Hillman Westbrook for the December meeting, with eight members present. Mrs. Thomas Bruce, president, conducted the business session and the Presbyterian apportionment for 1968 was accepted by the group. Plans for an all-day officers' training meeting will be held on January 11 at the home of Mrs. Lewis Cole. "Gift for the King" proceeds will be used this year to further the rebuilding of the church. Mrs. T. L. Ainsley presented the program from the topic "What We Mean When We Say, I Believe In The Incarnation." She was assisted by Mrs. Bruce, Mrs. Westbrook and Mrs. Winnie Cunningham. Mrs. Perry Bethel and Mrs. Ray Bruce gave a dialogue on "Why It's Wrong To Lock Up Jesus On December 25," which was enjoyed very much.

Ricky Bailey, who has been stationed at Great Lakes Naval Base, will spend the holidays with family. Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Bailey, in Detroit and on from there to Chelsea, Mass.

Christmas Lives In Bethlehem, Ky. In Live Tableaux

Residents of Bethlehem, Ky. have a very special way of celebrating the anniversary of the birth of Christ. It's their "Living Nativity" tableau of the first Christmas and this is its seventh straight year.

Everything about the presentation is living except a doll which is used for the infant in the manger. The scene of Mary and Joseph tending their wondrous babe includes the adoring Magi, shepherds and angels, backed with farm animals keeping a quiet watch. The cast of the presentation is clothed in flowing costumes of early Biblical times. The scene is further enhanced by soft music and lights. On Christmas Eve and Christmas Night, young people of the community gather at the site to sing carols and hymns.

The production is an outgrowth of the village churches' search in 1960 for a community Christmas project. Each year the men of the three congregations build the stable for the scene on a vacant lot near the post office. Animals used are loaned by local farmers.

Mrs. Lee Peyton has been postmistress at Bethlehem for 31 years. She does a brisk business each Christmas forwarding mail for people from every state and from several foreign countries. In addition to the Bethlehem cancellation stamp she imprints each envelope with a stamp showing the Magi following the Star. She'll forward more than 60,000 items this year.

Visitors from all over flock to view the tableau which begins at 6:30 each night, from December 22 through Christmas Night. There is no admission charge for this is the small town's gift to its visitors. Bethlehem is on Ky-22, about 45 miles from Louisville and about 80 miles from Cincinnati.

away last week. He was well-known among the singers in Weakley County.

Good Springs expresses thanks to the Dukedom Methodist Church for the use of their building each Sunday afternoon from 1 to 3 for church school and worship service. Trouble is eased by friends' help.

At this season of the year we say "thanks" to them in more ways than we can ever express. Joe Weaks and Gordon Baird have been our associates almost since we came to Fulton. T. C. Taylor we have known almost as long, but whose tenure here is just a little shorter than the other two.

Its a mighty good arrangement we have as we embark on our twenty-first year of publishing in Fulton.

● AUSTIN SPRINGS

By Mrs. Carey Frieleds

Bobby Rickman, a junior at U. T. Knoxville, arrived home Wednesday night to spend the Christmas holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rickman, and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Grover True.

Rev. Russell Rogers filled his regular appointment at New Salem Baptist Church the past Sunday at 11 a. m. and at the evening service, preceding the B. T. U. meeting.

Grant Bynum shows no sign of improvement over the past several days and is not resting so well at this writing.

Buton Lassiter visited his sister, Mrs. Roy Hammett, and Mr. Hammett the past Sunday afternoon on the Paris-Hollow Rock road.

Farmers are very busy classing and stripping their dark-fired tobacco during the warm, rainy season and hope to have it ready for market as soon as the sales begin.

Miss Gloria Bynum and Mr. Larry Hawks pledged their marriage vows at New Salem Baptist Church at three o'clock in the afternoon on Saturday, December sixteenth.

The church was beautifully decorated with arrangements of white chrysanthemums, holly and a candleabra holding tall candles. The decorating was done by Mrs. C. E. Simmons of Jackson, Tenn., a cousin of the bride.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. T. G. Davis, pianist, who also used the traditional wedding marches.

Rev. Ben Bowlin officiated at the double ring ceremony, in the presence of many relatives and friends. Hal Bynum, brother of the bride, and Mark Gardner of Mayfield lighted the candles.

The bride was lovely in a white floor-length formal wedding gown, hand made by her cousin, Mrs. C. E. Simmons, and her aunt, Miss Margaret Bynum.

Miss Julia Hawks, sister of the groom, was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Sammie Jane Bynum and Miss Elizabeth Bynum, cousins of the bride. All of them wore gowns of red velvet.

Gary Hawks, brother of the groom, served as best man. Groomsman were Velva Hawks, Jr., cousin of the groom and Danny Gardner of Mayfield and Seldon Cashon, cousin of the groom, was usher.

Hal Bynum, brother of the bride, was ring bearer and Melanie Laws served as flower girl.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the home of the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bynum, which was decorated in Christmas colors. The bride's table was covered with a red satin cloth, overlaid with white lace. The central appointment was an arrangement of poinsettias and holly and a three-tiered wedding cake.

After the reception the couple left for a short wedding trip, after which they will be at home to their friends. Mr. Hawks will resume his studies at U. T. Martin, majoring in agriculture, and Mrs. Hawks will return to work in Martin.

To the staff at the Fulton County News, all readers and friends a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

THE POTTER'S FIRST CHRISTMAS IN BETHLEHEM

By Harriet Frye

The winter has come, and the winds;
The trees are as bare as the thorn.
And over the way, in a manger,
We are told that a child has been born.

He lies among cattle and oxen,
And shepherds have brought him their lambs.
Perhaps I shall make him a bright new pot
All painted with donkeys and rams.

The dawn of a morning in winter
Is filled with a mother's light laughter.
Our children will call this day Christmas,
And so men will call it thereafter.

We stand, while our minds are on winter,
Looking out on a pink-and-red morn.
And over the way, in a manger,
We are told that a child has been born.

May your Christmas be filled with much love and laughter.

Jo's Notebook

You'd think that with a few days at home, I'd be able to write a nice long column. But such is not the case at this busy Christmas season.

It has been a merry pace for me. I drove to Fulton last Thursday evening. Left for St. Louis Friday at noon, where I served as a chaperone for Mary Jo's senior prom at the Academy of the Sacred Heart in St. Charles.

Drove home Sunday afternoon in the thickest fog I have ever seen. Took six hours to get here, only to find that the sun had been shining intermittently all day.

I left Fulton Tuesday at noon, after seeing just a few people, but learning a lot of news.

I'll be home for Christmas, along with the other college students, on Wednesday, December 20, to stay until January 3. Wish I could say it will be a restful time. R. Paul and I are saving the holidays to do a joint term paper. Mine will be on "The Spoils System in State Government." R. Paul will write on "The Need For Revision in the Kentucky Constitution."

In spite of the evidence of a crumbling Democracy here in Fulton County, I shall tell you as I told Paul Tuesday . . . the Ford Foundation has not given me a Fellowship to aid and abet the decay of our Freedoms through the newspapers . . . they ask that I seek to preserve them.

This we shall do if this newspaper has to fight the giant battle alone to modernize our reeking halls of justice.

$50,000 Damage Caused By Near Tornado Here Monday

At approximately 11:55 last Monday morning the clouds hung low over the twin cities, and visibility was less than a quarter-mile. It had been raining, intermittently, through the morning. Suddenly a tornado-like wind, accompanied by low swirling clouds, raced along the ground beginning at the Park Terrace restaurant in South Fulton, thence along a path to the South Fulton Baptist Church on Collinwood, and through the Vine and Walnut street area in East Fulton, uprooting trees, smashing windows, blowing down TV antennas, demolishing a carport, overturning an automobile, hurling the aluminum steeple from the South Fulton Baptist Church, and causing damage to at least 65 homes in its path.

A loud "boom" was heard by an observer as the unusual aerial disturbance passed over the communities, and at that instant all electricity went off, and a torrential rain began, lasting for some ten minutes. No funnel cloud was sighted, however, either in this area or in others in the path of the damaging concentration, which pursued a well-defined path from south of Union City, Tennessee up through Graves County to the Ohio River.

Damage is unofficially estimated to be at least $50 thousand dollars in the twin cities.

The only injury reported was Mrs. LeDonna Fields Hill, wife of Jimmy Hill, who suffered numerous cuts from flying glass in her South Fulton home. She was standing by a window in her home, watching the storm, when the glass shattered from the force of the wind. She

She was treated at Hillview Hospital. The Hills' car was rolled over several times by the wind, and damaged heavily.

The large highway sign at the Park Terrace was bent and twisted, but did not fall. Bits and pieces of the tall steeple, ripped from the South Fulton Baptist Church, were scattered over an area of several blocks. A patio top at the home of John McCorkle, 201 Paducah Street, was ripped from the house and blown away, and the same thing happened at the home of Mrs. Carl Kindred. A carport at the home of Mrs. Eula Shankle was ripped from the house and draped over the roof of the Jimmie Jones home, next door. The home of Mrs. Norma Carter on Smith Street was heavily damaged by the winds.

In East Fulton, the home of Mrs. Exie Hill was badly damaged by a falling tree, which also damaged a car in the driveway; falling limbs damaged the home of John Sullivan; a chimney was blown from the Carl Croft home, and the Charles Ray home was badly damaged by the winds.

NFO Delegates Return, Plan Drive On Prices

Delegates from this area have returned from the annual convention of the National Farmers Organization in Louisville and immediately started preparations to halt low farm prices. More than 12,000-voting delegates from thirty states attended the convention.

The delegates voted to start preparations for an all-commodity holding action to halt low farm prices. The timetable adopted for the all-commodity holding action was that within 40 days the NFO would advise its members to stop selling grain; that not even one bushel should be sold. Livestock would be added to the holding action at the opportune time, with dairy also being added at the opportune time.

Delegates from the area included: From Hickman County, Mr. and Mrs. David Dean, T. C. Conner, Buck Sheppard, Hazel O'Neal and Clarence Douglas; From Fulton County, Waymon Smith, James E. White, Mr. and Mrs. Turney Davis and Mr. and Mrs. John Fleming; From Graves County, Hoy Boyd and Billy Pirtle.

Streets and yards in the Twin Cities were a mass of broken limbs and uprooted trees following the storm.

Fantus Survey "Fits" More Industry Here

Fantus Area Research has broadened the scope of items which, it asserts, profitably can be manufactured in two areas of western Kentucky.

In 1964, Fantus surveyed the industrial potential of the whole state, pointing out "localational fit" of products within 16 multi-county areas. The survey was paid by the State.

Commissioner Katherine Peden said on Dec. 6th that the "fresh look" at the two areas was dictated by such growth factors as highway developments and the present and potential expansion of heavy industry into these areas.

Clinton Youth Dies Following Accidental Shot

A loaded shotgun that its handler thought was unloaded caused fatal wounds last Sunday afternoon to a 13-year old Clinton youth.

Dead is Bobby Ray Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Lee, Clinton Route 2. Bobby was shot accidentally by his 16-year-old brother, William Earl, from a distance of about ten feet. The older brother, who told Sheriff William Jackson that "he thought all of the shots had been fired from the gun," pointed the weapon at his younger brother and pulled the trigger.

Another brother, Jimmy Lynn, 9, suffered shot wounds in both legs in the tragedy.

We Mourn The Possible Loss Of Our Constitutional Freedom:—

Appeal For Fair Review-Decision Of Anti-Library Petition Is Asked

(An Editorial)

While the fight to keep open or close our libraries has now disintegrated into a power play among a few individuals who are finding aggrandizement in their new-found positions, the issue will touch our community lives intimately for years to come.

For in the almost unbelievable slipshod manner by which the court has handled the matter, we see a painful break-down of our community morals and tenacity.

We foresee a new pattern of life. A life patterned after a now obscure culture.

If we must accept the decision of the Fulton County Fiscal Court in the matter of our library system, then we have changed our form of government and no longer live under a constitutional republic. If we accept the decision of County Judge John Elmer Cruce as sound, we are wasting the fruits of the peoples' labors in maintaining any kind of government.

For democratic government as we have seen it adjudicated by Judge Cruce and his court is a myth. A myth that requires a woeful amount of re-examination.

Are we equal to the task?

James Hilary Mulligan, a Lexington, Ky., lawyer-poet (1844-1915) who penned the poignant poem "In Kentucky," could be termed a prophet as well. In that short work of four stanzas, in which he concludes with "And politics . . . the damndest in Kentucky," he also says that "yet, wrong is always wrongest in Kentucky."

It is with Mulligan's role as prophet that we contemplate the incompetency, the prejudice, the political motivation and the WRONGNESS by which the Fulton County Fiscal Court processed the dubious anti-library petition presented to them in an unprecedented eleventh hour session before the general election on Tuesday November 7.

If Fulton Countians permit this travesty on the democratic process to stand, we deserve to be submerged in the historical dishonor that will come to this area.

It has been written that "the law is a living thing, but it is a sturdy oak, not a glory vine." Yet, for all practical evidences, the law-abiding and respectable citizens of this Fulton County are permitting backwoodsness, treachery and intrigue to guide the destiny of would-be progressive communities.

The sturdy oak of educational wholesomeness has been whittled at and ultimately felled by a small band of self-styled "legal beagles," hanging on the glory vine of public office.

It is an axiom of a free society that the individual shall have maximum freedom to choose his way of life. And freedom, it can be argued, is more secure where each individual is able to make the basic decisions affecting his own social and economic status. To the extent that the decision, made knowingly, by the persons to sign the anti-tax petition are self-evident expressions of their right to choose, we have no quarrel or condemnation.

But for the businessmen and other community leaders who talk solemnly of the necessity for progress and dedicated action for leadership and the procurement of industry, we have only scorn and ridicule. For these people are guilty of the insidious crime of living in an aura of monumental hypocrisy. These are the same people who bemoan and fight against welfare legislation in Washington and who, more often than not, promote the instances of welfare legislation at the State Capitol and the City Hall.

As long as the State of Kentucky was handing out tax money from the "big pot" to finance the libraries and bookmobile, these individuals participated in the benefits for themselves and their families.

For the time being, let us desist from making generalizations as to the adverse reaction that will accrue from the loss of our County Library System. Let us leave the abstract and concentrate on the classic, the specific losses that we must encounter when a review of our cultural and civic climate is reviewed:

THE LATIN-AMERICAN FRIENDSHIP CENTER: It is here that our loss will be most keenly felt. It will be an exercise of the greatest hypocrisy to ask State and Federal governments, private Foundations and corporate entities to invest in a project to enhance the cultural pursuits of our friends in undeveloped nations, when we forsake the responsibility to keep our own underprivileged citizens informed of their democratic disciplines. Few but the brave would undertake this incomparable task.

three past years it has been an attribute of the greatest pride to take our high-ranking dignitaries and our culturally-starved foreign visitors to the Fulton Library to see renowned expressions of foreign and local art. The one-time postoffice, which houses our library, will be "off-limits" of community pride and knowledge.

THE TOURIST AND TRAVEL INDUSTRY: With the advent of the Purchase Parkway and the establishment of more and larger over-night accommodations, what is there to offer in the City of Fulton in the way of cultural relaxation? The smut collection and the under-the-counter pornography on the newstands?

THE CONCERN OF OUR YOUTH: Most notably affected by the loss of our libraries, as letters to the editor would indicate, are the Fulton County students in colleges far and near, who have shame-facedly taken the barbs and criticism from their fellow students for such obvious exhibitions of backwoods thinking in their own home-towns and governments.

RESPECT FOR THE LEGAL PROCESS: Democracy is challenged today and in the instance of the anti-library petition there is a sudden need to defend its principles. If we permit County Judge John Elmer Cruce's lame defense of the legality of the counter-petition to stand by saying "he accepted it like he did the other one," then the need for contest of jurisdiction in his court is rendered null and void.

Hundreds of people are asking: What can we do? Where do we go from here?

Here's what:

To ward off a long and costly legal battle, which precedent has indicated may be favorable to the Library Board accept Judge Cruce and his court to carefully re-examine BOTH PETITIONS, in public.

To ask that he accept any valid affidavits as to forgeries, misrepresentations and duplications in BOTH PETITIONS, in public.

It is in the sense of RIGHTNESS, NOT WRONGNESS that people want to live.

It is WRONG Judge Cruce not to accept the word of many of our law-abiding citizens that the anti-library tax petition was misrepresented.

For Instance:

—Would Judge Cruce, his magistrates, or any other candidate for public office accept the edict at the polls if it were proven that 214 unqualified voters cast their ballots in the election? If a qualification for voting or signing a petition is the necessity of registration, then an unregistered voter is not qualified. Judge Cruce refused to take into consideration the matter of 214 unqualified voters on the anti-library tax petition; they were not registered.

—Would Judge Wood C. Tipton accept a will for probate if the signature on the document was a forgery? Indeed, no judge or court would, but the County Fiscal Court refused to review the admitted forgery on the anti-library petition.

—Can the prosecuting attorney or the defense attorney, or both, in a murder trial sit in with the jury after all evidence in the crime has been presented by both parties? A travesty in justice? Worse, an adomation. But three Fulton County magistrates signed the petition to abolish the libraries and then voted their predetermined opinions by accepting the anti-library petition as legal and valid.

You are WRONG Judge Cruce in not permitting due process of fairness to the citizens who hold your office and position in high trust.

Jackson Purchase Co-op's Contract With KU Most Favorable For Savings To Its Consumers

The officials and directors of Jackson Purchase Rural Electric Cooperative did what they had to do recently when they signed a contract to purchase power for the next 10 years from Kentucky Utilities Company.

KU simply outbid its competitor for the Jackson Purchase business. The co-op's officers and directors had made no secret of their preference to do business with the Big Rivers Rural Electric Cooperative. But when the chips were down, they voted to accept the bid most favorable to the local co-op's customers, which was as it should have been.

Happy as the Jackson Purchase officers and directors must be with the new KU power rate, the reduction must also cause them to feel some chagrin because of the fact it was not reduced sooner. That KU finally decided to be competitive with TVA, Big Rivers and other sources of private power is a revelation of sorts in itself. Had the decision been made several years ago, KU might still be serving others of the 18 co-ops it once served instead of the one it now serves—Jackson Purchase.

ly retained the right to cancel the contract if KU attempts to raise rates during the 10-year contract period. This not only assures customers of the co-op of cheap power rates for a decade but also opens the doors to bringing new industry into the areas served by the co-operative.

The projected 10-year saving of $2,764,000 by acceptance of the new KU power rate is based on present averages of consumption. The actual saving will doubtless be much larger, considering the certain increase in power consumption which will be encouraged by the cheaper rate.

Both KU and Jackson Purchase stand to benefit from an operational standpoint by continuing their present business relationship. The new, lower power rate will serve the public interest by saving money for the co-op's customers.

All in all, it looks like a fair agreement—one in which everybody gains and nobody loses. Jackson Purchase and the people it serves will reap the benefits of cheaper electricity and KU stands to regain some of the public respect and esteem it lost in a long series of futile battles to retain an archaic and indefensible rate structure.

OPTIMISM

Talk Happiness. The world is sad enough
Without your woes. No path is wholly rough;
Look for the places that are smooth and clear,
And speak of those, to rest the weary ear
Of Earth, so hurt by one continuous strain
Of human discontent and grief and pain.

Talk Faith. The world is better off without Your uttered ignorance and morbid doubt.
If you have faith in God, or man, or self,
Say so. If not, push back upon the shelf
Of silence all your thoughts, till faith shall come;
No one will grieve because your lips are dumb.

Talk Health. The dreary, never-changing tale
Of mortal maladies is worn and stale.
You cannot charm, or interest, or please
By harping on that minor chord, disease.
Say you are well, or all is well with you,
And God shall hear your words and make them true.

THE TIGERS ARE HUNGRY, by Charles Early. A chilling novel of espionage which builds with mounting suspense as two men, an American and a Russian, engage in a merciless struggle that can end only in the survival of one. Charles Early lived in Europe for twelve years and knows it as well as his native town, New York, where he now resides with his wife and daughter. This is his first novel, a natural progression from his writings for the theatre, films and magazines.

NORTH TO YESTERDAY, by Robert Flynn. "It's the first feller that does something that is the hero, and the last feller that does it that is the fool," Preacher tells Lampass as toward the end of this comic, sometimes tragic novel about some wonderful misfits and dreamers who made a belated drive of longhorn cattle from Texas to the railroad in Kansas.

THE ANTHEM, by Noel B. Geeson. Bold and sweeping in scope, moving from the present day to the sixteenth century and back again. The Anthem tells the story of the de Montauban family, a family that bears witness to one of history's fiercest struggles—the bitter and often bloody fight for religious freedom.

THE CHOSEN, by Chaim Potok. With dramatic force, with a simplicity that seizes the heart, The Chosen illumines—for us, for now—the eternal, powerful bonds of love and pain that join father and son, and the ways in which these bonds are, and must be, broken if the boy is to become a man.

THE SAVAGES, by Ronald Hardy. This book centers on the lives of two men, yet is a story of all men who have seen their fellows brutalized and in watching have themselves unconsciously reverted to savagery. Dr. James Caddell came fresh from the battles in Malaya and the Yaman to work in a Congolese mission, he brought knowledge to some, love to one, fear to many—and ultimately death to all save himself.

SILVERHILL, by Phyllis Whitney. I opened the door and went down the gallery steps into the hall of mirrors, into a world of confusion. A hundred candles—a thousand candles—bloomed through the long room, repeating themselves in mirrors and windows, marching without end in myriad rows that receded to the infinite. I stood lost in bewilderment, touched by fear. This is a novel of romantic suspense in which the author creates an atmosphere of shuddering mystery.

ALONG A DARK PATH, by Velda Johnston. Susan Sayre had no doubts about her sanity, yet she was haunted by the thought that she did not have a single memory of the first seven years of her life. The kind and loving couple who had adopted her had done their best to reassure her. They had told her about her parents, who died long ago, and about her Grandfather's request, she had flown from California to visit him and her aunt at Tate House. Susan was eager to meet these unknown relatives who might hold the key to her loss of memory.

WEAVE A WICKED WEB, by Paul Kruger. When a beautiful and moneyed woman who calls herself Amy White hires Detective Kramer to do a tracing job, he knows there is trouble in her background, and that she spells trouble for him. This is a tightly drawn suspense novel of double identity and redoubled suspense by this author.

THE OPEN HEART, by N. Amosoff. This is a remarkable document. For it is a moving, sensitive, emotional autobiographical account of a great surgeon's feelings as he moves from crisis to crisis, always burdened by the agonizing, ever-present responsibility for a human life.

LANDSLIDE, by Desmond Bagley. Bound for Edmonton, the shiny new Cadillac never got there. Instead it plummeted over a snowy cliff, carrying inside a lumber executive and his wife, their son and heir, and a derelict student hitchhiker. Only one of the four survived the fiery wreck—and more than ten years later, that survivor is unexpectedly confronted by an incredible question: Who am I?

THE TWILIGHT MAN, by Frank Gruber. Jim Rand lives alone in an isolated adobe house in the California desert, waiting for death. In to his hermit existence comes a teen-age girl who blows both his past and the question of his brief future wide open.

IN PIOUS MEMORY, by Margery Sharp. This book is proof of Miss Sharp's unquestionable talent. Its story and situations are refreshingly unique while its warmth and humor are reassuringly familiar.

H. L. Hardy and Herman Easley have opened a new laundry in the Whitel Building on West State Line at the overpass. It is scientifically proven that Launderall washes clothes cleaner. Just put in the clothes, add soap, flip switch, and Launderall does the rest in only forty minutes.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pewitt and son have moved into their new home on Middle Road.

A large crowd attended a stork shower at the home of Mrs. Dorothy Emerson for Mrs. Violet Emerson Thursday afternoon. A lot of nice gifts were received.

West State Line: Friends of Rev. and Mrs. Earl Baird of Cayce gathered at their home Friday night and had supper. It was Rev. and Mrs. Baird's birthdays, the 15th. A very enjoyable evening was spent.

There will be a Christmas tree Saturday night, December 20, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marshal Dougherty; also the wedding of their daughter, Grace.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS TO CHRIST

TEXT: "And when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto him gifts; gold, frankincense, and myrrh." Matt. 2:11.

In the old nativity story we read how the Magi, arriving at the manger of the infant Jesus, fell down and worshipped him and presented him with gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh. The greatest for which these wise men will forever be known is that they gave gifts to Christ. Our gifts to him should be gifts of love. There are three gifts of love which we should be giving to Christ.

1. One is love uttered in words. We have a deep love in our hearts for Christ. Why do we so often conceal it in our conversations? Let us express our love to Christ in words—in words that are clear and certain as a trumpet. Let us tell him of our love in our private prayers, in our conversations with others and in our worship in the church.

2. The second gift to make to Christ is love expressed in hearing. Remember how he said, "Hearing ears, they hear not." Let us hear the gospel with eagerness and glad

by
Mrs. John Sherman Cooper

Have started reviewing books - new career! This one was published in the Chicago Sun-Times Book Week on November 26, 1967:

"The high school has become the temple. In the thousands of small towns in the United States, the high school is the central force in the community. No one understands this better than Jesse Stuart, one of this country's best known poets, educators, novelists, and writers. It is auspicious that in Mr. Stuart's latest book, Mr. Gallion's School, he has left the plowshares and the eastern Kentucky farms that he loves and describes so well, to turn his complete attention to the plight of this country's educational system."

The scene is laid in Jesse Stuart's Greenup County in the hills of eastern Kentucky, bordering on the Ohio River. George Gallion, who was born there and had been principal of the high school eighteen years ago, returns to his farm because of a severe heart attack. During his absence he had become a nationally known writer and educator. His first visit is to the local barber - source of all small town information - where he learns that his old school, Kensington High, may not be able to open that year. The principal has resigned, there are only six qualified teachers for over six hundred students, and the school had been plagued by hooliganism, a complete lack of discipline and truancy.

Mr. Gallion, of course, disregards his doctor and his family's advice and once again agrees to become the principal of the school. With the optimism of Voltaire's Candide and the common sense of an eastern Kentuckian, he proceeds to tackle almost insurmountable problems. His difficulties are the basic ones that plague this country's public school system. First and all important, there are not enough qualified and experienced teachers. Mr. Gallion is able to enlist the services of a few of his former students who have become teachers, but is forced to ask students to substitute for teachers in certain instances. Although he was drawn by necessity to this unorthodox method, he finds that it gives the students a responsibility to which they respond. Another Gallion innovation for the reward of good marks, a select group of students is chosen to keep the schoolhouse and grounds in good order.

Deluge Seen For Claims In January

During January through March 1968 the local Social Security Office expects to receive twice the usual number of retirement claims.

According to Charles M. Whitaker, Paducah Social Security District Manager, the prediction is based on past experience. While the monthly intake of survivors, disability, and other claims remains fairly constant throughout the year, there is a great increase in retirement claims during the first three months.

"It will speed-up the payment of benefits and help us manage the workload more efficiently," Whitaker said, "if the applicant will bring with him when he calls to apply, the best available evidence of his age and evidence of his social security earnings for 1967."

Best evidence of age is usually a church, hospital, or public record made when the applicant was a child. Native Kentuckians frequently find that the best available evidence is a school record, made when the school census was taken or during their attendance at school. School officials throughout the Paducah eleven-county district have been of great help to older persons now getting retirement benefits.

If the applicant has been, or is, self-employed he should bring with him a complete copy of his 1967 federal tax return and the cancelled check, money order receipt or other evidence of tax payment. Employed persons should bring a copy of the Form W-2 (Income Tax Withholding Statement) for 1967.

Those planning to apply in the near future are invited to contact our office for advice or help needed in getting age evidence," Whitaker said. "Our office at 112 South Tenth Street, Paducah, Kentucky, is open weekdays - Monday through Friday, from 8:45 A. M. to 5:00 P. M., except on Thursdays when we remain open until 7:00 P. M."

A Few Facts About Mental Retardation In Kentucky

Q. What is mental retardation?
A. A condition where the brain is prevented from attaining full development, limiting ability to learn and put learning to use.

Q. How prevalent is mental retardation?
A. Mental retardation affects 3 percent of the population. Approximately 91,000 persons in Kentucky are mentally retarded. They are as many as the combined populations of Henderson, Owensboro, Madisonville, and Hopkinsville.

Q. What residential facilities does the state of Kentucky have for caring for its mentally retarded and are there any immediate plans for additional facilities?
A. Kentucky has two institutions; one, Frankfort State Hospital and School which is more than 100 years old, and two, Outwood State Hospital and School which is an abandoned veterans' tuberculosis hospital. Plans have been announced for a major facility for the severely retarded. Bond issue money in the amount of $1,200,000 has been set aside for this construction. If the facility is built in Jefferson County at Central State Hospital, where land is already available, only $750,000 are needed to implement the plans.

Q. How many of Kentucky's mentally retarded are being cared for in the two institutions?
A. There are 694 residents at Frankfort State Hospital and School and 405 at Outwood State Hospital and School. According to the Division of Mental Retardation, Department of Mental Health, there are 283 now awaiting admission to an institution.

Q. What is the procedure for admission to a state institution for the retarded?
A. A letter from a parent or guardian requesting institutional placement is all that is required to place a retardate name on the waiting list. A "Waiting List Questionnaire" is completed by professional personnel and this information is used for determining the priority need of the case as it relates to others on the list.

We invite you to submit your questions concerning mental retardation to the Kentucky Association for Retarded Children, Inc. in care of this newspaper.

Nearly 300 Make B&PW Home Tour

The annual tour of homes decorated for Christmas, sponsored by the Business and Professional Women's Club, was held last Sunday. Around three hundred persons made the tour.

The homes visited were those of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Homra and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Templeton. Delicious refreshments, consisting of sandwiches, cookies, mints, nuts and hot spiced tea, were served in the home of Mrs. Ramelle Pigue, past president of the club and past director of District I.

The homes were beautiful, with Christmas decorations. As several callers said, "It would be hard to say which home was the prettiest; all were lovely, each in a different way, expressing the individuality of the hostess."

Lorene Harding, president of the B&PW Club asked the News to express thanks to those who so graciously opened their homes for the tour.

Paducah's "Red Line Tour" Is An Easy Way To Get Around

There's a place in Kentucky where the color red means both stop and go. It's Paducah, a pleasant city where the Old South meets the North and where modern architecture blends beautifully with well preserved historic structures. It's also the metropolis of the state's Western Waterland region.

A visiting motorist may obtain a free copy of the city's Red Line Scenic Tour folder at the Chamber of Commerce in the Irvin Cobb Hotel at Fifth and Broadway. At Sixth and Broadway the motorist can start following a red line, clearly painted on the paving, that will take him to more than 50 points of interest. (The Chamber also offers a free walking tour guide.)

The red line takes you to fine public schools, the city-supported college and many beautiful churches. Among the unique attractions are the Market House, (formerly the old farmers market and now the quaint home for a museum and the Market House Players) the river front, where the Tennessee empties into the Ohio, the grave of Irvin S. Cobb, Kentucky's celebrated writer and humorist, and the handsome statue of Chief Paduke, the Indian for whom the city was named. Also on the red line is the home of Alben Barkley, the "Veep," the Barkley monument and one of this nation's most outstanding city halls a stunning creation by the famed architect, Edward Durrell Stone.

David Canary to join "Bonanza" cast in fall.

we care

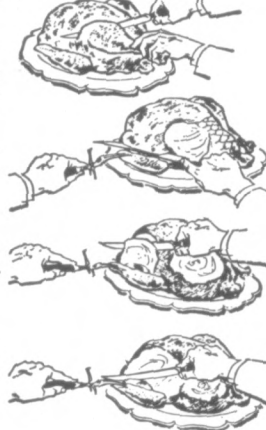

something for "Harry the Hacker"

Lots of us are known as, "Harry the Hacker," because of what we do to a Christmas Turkey.

The secret to classic carving is a very sharp, thin-bladed knife. Allow bird to sit in roasting pan 15 to 30 minutes. It will slice cleaner and the juices will be absorbed, too. Follow these simple directions:

1. Cut off leg by drawing knife deeply between leg and body through hip joint. Press leg away from body and remove.
2. Before slicing breast, make a deep horizontal cut to bone in breast, just above the wing.
3. Beginning about halfway up breast, slice downward with straight even strokes until slices fall free at cut.
4. Cut off wing through shoulder joint. Cut off wing tip. When one side is clean, turn platter and carve other side.

If your Harry's a Hacker, cut this out and put it in his Christmas Stocking. One final thing you can do for "Harry" ... buy your turkey at A&P.

Our Super-Right Turkeys are all Grade "A" birds. Harry will carve such beautiful slices you'll want to rechristen him, "Sam the Surgeon."

Fulton County Got Good Share Of Kentucky's 1967 Tourist Business

Tourism poured $28 million last year into the economy of 13 counties, including Fulton County. These counties comprise the Western Waterland vacation region under the matching fund program administered by the Kentucky Department of Public Information.

Business generated by tourism provided jobs for 4,897 people in the area, states Dr. Lewis C. Copeland of the University of Tennessee. An expert in the economics of the travel industry, Dr. Copeland annually studies the impact of tourism on Kentucky's economy.

His survey, done for the Department of Public Information, reveals that $17 million of the total spent in the area went directly into personal income in the form of wages, commissions and dividends.

Copeland further notes that spending by out-of-state visitors alone in the area totaled $19 million, about $6.5 million of which went directly into personal income.

There are 1,264 merchants serving travelers among the 203,000 residents in the Western Waterland region, the survey states. These merchants paid $9.2 million in state and local taxes last year.

an overall statewide report on tourism in Kentucky, which shows that 26 million out-of-state visitors came to the Commonwealth last year. They spent $295 million, creating jobs for 23,000 Kentuckians.

The matching fund program was begun in 1965 to assist and encourage the promotion of local tourist attractions on a regional basis. It provides the state with funds to match the money, up to a certain point, a locality spends to promote its attractions.

The Western Waterland region is comprised of Caldwell, Calloway, Lyon, Ballard, Carlisle, Crittenden, Fulton, Graves, Hickman, Livingston, Marshall, McCracken, and Trigg counties.

The region has up to $11,287.85 available in state funds for travel advertising and promotion in the fiscal year ending next June 30.

GOOD FISHING ALL YEAR LONG—In Kentucky the fishing season is always open and, according to the State Parks Department, good catches are made at all Kentucky reservoirs during the late fall and winter months. Testifying to this fact are Byron Watson of Lexington and John Lyon of Frankfort who took this string of mixed bass from Lake Cumberland. State Park boat docks remain open the year-round to accommodate fishermen.

HOW MUCH CAN YOU PAY FOR A BULL

How much can you afford to invest in a herd bull for beef cows? We know that you cannot find an exact answer for this question but the results of the October Feeder Calf Sale at Newbern should be of interest to every cattleman in this area. The choice steers in this feeder calf sale sold for an average of $146 per head, good steers $135, and medium steers $124. Choice heifers sold for an average of $114 per head - good heifers $109, and medium heifers $104.

If you're selling many medium grade calves, a bull that will sire a high percent of choice and good calves will pay for himself at no cost to you in a couple of years.

HAVE YOU GOT THE JOB COMPLETED?

A number of farmers are taking soil samples as soon as they finish harvesting their fields. We know there is a large number of farmers that should be doing the same thing. The laboratory is not rushed at this time of the year and you can get the results back in a hurry. Take a few minutes to take a soil sample, it will help take the guess work out of your fertilization program.

With JIM PRYOR
Agricultural Agent, Illinois Central Railroad

Agricultural limestone is a segment of the basic formula for top profits.

A well balanced plant food program is the foundation for productive farm land of modern agriculture.

Farmers today are using only one-third of the 80 million tons agriculture limestone necessary for efficient production.

It is difficult to compare results of liming material with that of nitrogen. Results from nitrogen are more dramatic, thus more is being used. One factor many do not understand or fail to recognize is that applications of nitrogen fertilizer usually lowers the pH of soils. This means that the soil is getting more acid as more nitrogen fertilizer is being used. After a few years of heavy applications of such materials, soil acidity can become so low that it actually reduces crop yields. This is done by tying up other plant food in the soil making them insoluble.

It costs no more to keep the pH level at 6.5 or 7.0 then it does at 5.5 to 6.0. Most crops respond well to agricultural limestone applications when the pH is at the 5.5 to 6.0 level.

Many fields today report a pH of below 5.9 and should be raised to at least a 6.5 level. An application of limestone here could increase corn yields 5 bushels, wheat 7 bushels, and alfalfa as much as 1 ton. Today we cannot afford not to lime and keep a well balanced plant food program on our farms.

Remember, only apply high quality, finely ground agricultural limestone to your soils.

Letters To Editor

• AUSTIN SPRINGS By Mrs. Carey Fields

December 5, 1967
Fulton County News
Fulton, Ky.

Dear Editor:
The Fulton Band Parents Club would like to take this opportunity to express our thanks to the A and P Food Store, A. C. Butts and Son, E. W. James and Sons Super Market and Piggly-Wiggly for their generous donations of food for our recent spaghetti supper.

We also wish to thank your paper for the publicity you gave this project.

Thanks are also due the citizens of the community, who so graciously bought tickets. I personally would like to thank Mrs. Bill Fenwick, who served as chairman; Mrs. Glynn Bushart, as ticket chairman; Mrs. Leon Fields and the members of the band who served the tables, and all members who donated pies or worked.

Without the help of all, we could not have had the financial success that it was.

Yours very truly,
/s/ L. M. McBride, President

Dear Mrs. Westpheling:

It has been quite some time since we have corresponded, and I am writing to express again our regret that the exhibit never reached you. Approximately six weeks after the deadline for arrival in Kentucky, during which time we were repeatedly told by the authorities at Eastern that the paintings could not be located, the two crates were returned to Security Storage Company and finally to our office. At the time, we were preparing the insurance claim. We still do not know where the paintings went.

I hope that the festival was a great success in spite of the fact that the art exhibit was missing. We had organized an excellent show, and, of course, it is always to our advantage and the artists' when the paintings are on display. At the same time it affords an opportunity for the public to become interested in what is happening in the very active and exciting world of Latin American art.

With best regards,
Sincerely yours,
Jane Harmon

hearts. He is waiting to speak to everyone who has ears to hear. Let us bring him listening ears as a good Christmas gift.

3. The third gift to bring to Christ is love expressed in deeds of service. Love uttered in deeds is the best gift of all. Paul says, "Love suffereth long and is kind." It is not only passive, but it is active, it is positive, it is energetic. It does kindness. Remember every time we lift a person a little step higher, every time we put a little more hope into a discouraged heart, we are doing it for Christ. We are giving him a Christmas gift of love.

At this Christmas season let us come to Christ like the wise men of old, laden with gifts of love, love expressed in words, love expressed in hearing, love expressed in deeds. No room for Christ in the inn; have you room for him in your heart? There can never be Christmas without Christ. Goodwill among men means peace among men.

Rev. Russell Rogers filled his regular appointment at New Salem Church the past Sunday at 11 a. m. Sunday school commences at 10 a. m. An ordination service was held at 2 p. m., when Robert Rickman and Cleo Cherry were ordained as deacons. Rev. James Holt, from Johnson Grove Church, delivered the ordination sermon. Some of the visiting ministers were: Rev. Dallas Hemphill from Union City, Rev. Harold Grissom and others. A good number of deacons from other Baptist churches in Weakley County attended the service.

Get-well wishes are sent to Mrs. James Harrison, who underwent major surgery in Mayfield the past week. Reports from her bedside are that she is doing as well as expected. All friends in this section hope the young matron will respond very quickly and soon be able to return to her home near here.

Grant Bynum isn't feeling quite so well for several days. He suffers intensely and rest is disturbed, requiring medication for that. We hope he will be feeling much better soon.

Rudolph Stephenson remains about the same, after suffering from a stroke a few weeks ago. He was a former resident in District No. 1, but now resides in Dresden. Mr. Stephenson spent some time in Memphis, but has been brought home and is a patient in Hillview Nursing Home in Dresden.

Rev. and Mrs. Russell Rogers and Miss Maud Sisson were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Burnett Lintz and all attended the ordination service Sunday afternoon at New Salem Baptist Church.

Best wishes are extended to Carl Westbrook, who is a patient in a TB hospital at Memphis, where he was admitted several days ago. Mrs. Kirk Smith, his sister in Dresden, visited his bedside the past Sunday. Since entering the hospital, he seems to be improving and Mrs. Westbrook returned to their home nearby this village.

Mrs. Ed Fields is suffering from some arthritis discomfort since Thursday of last week and is now receiving some medication from Dr. Willis in Dresden. Mrs. Fields is at the home of children, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Cunningham, and would enjoy cards from relatives and all her friends around this locality. This writer wishes that she will respond shortly, for I have just returned from a visit on the week end with her and family.

Mrs. Hilman Westbrook

Services for the Good Springs congregation will be held in the Dukedom Methodist Church each Sunday afternoon. Sunday School will begin—at one o'clock, with church at two. It is very important at this difficult time that every member make every effort to be present for each service.

No definite plans for rebuilding have been arrived at, but the entire session is busy as they lead the people into the building of another church on the original site. This is not an easy task and they certainly deserve our prayers and support. A building fund has already been started.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Nelson of Mayfield are happy over their new grandson, named Joseph Anthony, born to Mr. and Mrs. Tony Blinco recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Terry Bethel and Lanny are gone to Tarpon Springs, Fla., to spend Christmas with parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fields Carlton. Mrs. M. J. Tyson, sister of Mrs. A. C. Bell, who recently moved from Fulton to live with her daughter in Louisiana, was in a car accident last week and escaped with no more serious injury than broken ribs.

Jimmie Clapp was in Fulton Hospital several days last week. Mrs. C. M. Connelly, of Fulton, who has been to Good Springs with Mrs. Eula Nelson, is very sick in Fulton Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Young are the parents of a son, born last week in Hillview Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Odis Haley left today with their household furnishings for their new home in Demopolis, Ala.

"If there's one God, why are there so many religions?"

That's a question that has plagued thoughtful people for centuries.

Religions often have seemed to divide men rather than join them—which could hardly be God's will.

In our time, so full of wonders, we're witnessing what may be the greatest wonder of all: the growing force of inter-faith understanding. It seems to promise a fuller flowering of God's hopes for man. You and me.

Great new things are happening in churches and synagogues these days. But find out for yourself. This week. Then take your strengthened faith out into the world—and put it to work.

OEO Seeks Funds For "Head Start" Area Programs

On November 1, the Mississippi River Area Development, Community Action Program made application for a grant of $295,032.00 to operate a nine months Head Start Program in Ballard, Carlisle, Hickman and Fulton Counties.

If and when this grant is made, the program will be started immediately. Presently, Congress is debating the question of appropriations for O. E. O., the community action office in Clinton said this week.

The program, according to headquarters at Clinton, will be comprised of 270 children in 10 centers with 18 units within the four counties. The nine-month per capita cost figures out to $1,092.71 per child.

The purpose of the Head Start program is twofold. One is to prepare the three, four and five year old children of economically disadvantaged parents so that they will have an even start with others when they reach the first grade.

Secondly the program will make it possible for the parents of these children to get training in many fields such as: typing, family planning, home improvement, sewing, buying, budgeting etc.

Ten Centers will be located at the following places: Ballard County: Blandville School, Blandville; St. Mary's Catholic Church, LaCenter. Carlisle County: First Baptist Church, Bardwell; First Christian Church, Bardwell.

Hickman County: Kane School, Clinton.

Fulton County: 6th Street School, Hickman; Johnson's Chapel, Hickman; St. Edward's Church, Fulton; Bell's Chapel, Fulton; Antioch Church, Fulton.

The hired personnel will be as follows:

One Director for the four counties, One Social Service Coordinator, One Home Economist, One Secretary, One Nurse, Eighteen Teachers, Eighteen Teacher's Aids, Eight Cooks, Eight Cook's Aids, Eight Janitors, Eighteen Volunteers.

On-Job Training Plan Is Considered For 4 Counties

CLINTON, Ky. —The Community Action Office in Clinton, headquarters of the antipoverty program for Kentucky's four westernmost counties, is investigating the possibility of setting up an On-The-Job Training program.

The program would serve people in Ballard, Carlisle, Hickman and Fulton counties, under the supervision of the Department of Labor.

The aim of the program is to train the unemployed and the under-employed to become more efficient workers so that they can make a better living for themselves and their families.

A side-effect is to make available more efficient labor for employers in the area.

An employer who wants to take advantage of the program may hire anyone he wishes to do whatever job he has available. The person he employs must meet these conditions: He must be unemployed, working below his capacity, working less than full time, working less than full time because his job skill has become or is becoming obsolete, be a member of a farm family with less than $1,200 annual net income, or between the ages of 16 and 22 and in need of occupational training.

The training programs run from four weeks to 104 weeks, depending on the nature of the job. The employer will be paid a weekly amount to take care of training and other expenses. The employer may keep the trainee after the training period.

Historical Society To Meet

MAYFIELD, Ky. —The Jackson Purchase Historical Society will meet Thursday night at the Derby Restaurant in Fulton, it has been announced by Kenneth Wells, president.

Hall Allen, of the Paducah Sun-Democrat, will speak on "The Reluctant Kentuckians," a talk which he made recently before the Filson Club of Louisville. It deals with the dissatisfaction that arose in the Jackson Purchase after that area was joined to Kentucky following the purchase of the territory from the Chickasaw Indians in 1818.

The dinner will start at 6:30 p.m. Reservations must be made with Miss Margaret Heath, secretary of the society, 1202 Maple St., Benton. Mr. Wells said that non-members of the society will be welcome, but, emphasized that they, too, must make reservations.

"Western Kentucky shows promise of becoming the most attractive region in the United States. Barkley and Kentucky Lakes are the greatest recreational complex in mid-U.S. It is supplied with cheap power which brings industry into that area and it will be crisscrossed with a fine road network. When you impose the state's toll road system on the interstates there won't be an area better served by roads. It is the garden of promise."

WHO WILL REIGN? . . . One of these five candidates will be chosen as "Shield Queen." The winner will be announced this week. The finalists are (left to right) Phyllis Cunningham, Carolyn Albert, Sara Jo Wood, Sally Threlkeld, and Annette Bizwell.

5 Lovely Coeds Named 'Shield Queen' Finalists

Five lovely finalists in the Shield Queen contest have been announced by Floyd Carpenter, editor of the Shield.

The five finalists are: Carolyn Albert, Paducah; Annette Bizwell, Fulton; Phyllis Cunningham, Murray; Sally Threlkeld, Owensboro; and Sara Jo Wood, Greenville.

The five girls were selected by a panel of three judges: Mrs. C. J. Warner (1965 "Shield Queen"); Mr. John T. Benson III, Nashville, publisher of the Shield; and Mr. Kenneth Wells, Mayfield, photographer.

A banquet was held in the SUB cafeteria on Nov. 16. It was attended by the Shield staff, the judges, the 10 semi-finalists, and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Anderson. Mr. Anderson, business department, is adviser to the Shield.

After the banquet, the 10 girls were judged in the teacher's lounge of the Business Bldg.

Carpenter said he expects the winner to be announced just before the Christmas holidays.

Kentucky Parks Chief Resigns

FRANKFORT, Ky. State Parks Commissioner Robert D. Bell is leaving that post Dec. 18 to join an accounting firm in St. Louis.

Bell, 42, has been commissioner since December, 1963, except for a seven-month period this year. He resigned in February to help manage the unsuccessful gubernatorial campaign of Henry Ward.

Bell, reappointed commissioner last month, said he will be in charge of government contracts in the management-services division of Ernst and Ernst.

During his state government career, Bell was an assistant to Ward when Ward was conservation commissioner. He also served as deputy highway commissioner and state revenue commissioner.

Also leaving state government is William H. Forst, 35, executive assistant to Revenue Commissioner James Luckett.

Mrs. Nunn's Business Creates A Stir In 'Sensitive' Area

FRANKFORT, Ky.—The presence of the incoming governor's wife in the business of bonding highway contractors has created a stir within that politically-sensitive field.

However, Mrs. Beula C. Nunn, part owner of the Glasgow Insurance Agency, says she has no intention of trying to dominate the business, which yields Kentucky insurance agents at least $200,000 a year.

"We're just a local insurance agency," Mrs. Nunn said. "I don't expect to expand it statewide. We will take care of the local contractors who are our regular customers."

The bonds in question are called performance bonds. Contractors post them with the state highway department to insure that a project will be completed.

Writing such bonds is not doing business with the state. The bond transaction is between the contractor and the insurance company, with the company's agent collecting a commission.

However, in recent years the business has been heavily laced with Democratic political figures, and still is. If a state administration wanted to throw business to certain agents, it could do so by pressuring contractors through the highway department.

In fact, Mrs. Nunn believes the present Democratic administration did tell one of her non-highway customers—a contractor building a state university dormitory—to change insurance agents. (He didn't do so.)

"That's the way they've been doing it," she said.

However, the wife of the new Republican governor said it won't be that way under her husband.

"I think you'll find there's going to be a change in Frankfort," Mrs. Nunn said. "I don't think the new governor is going to put up with his commissioners showing favoritism."

Mrs. Nunn said her agency has no direct state insurance business and will not have any.

"I will never be one to embarrass him by being involved in state business," she said. "On the other hand, I'm not going to give up my insurance business by his being governor."

The bonding-business buzz started after The Aetna Casualty and Surety Co., filed a power-of-attorney form with the highway department. It authorizes Mrs. Nunn and Jerry L. Hardison, agency co-owners, to write bonds, but sets a $350,000 maximum per bond, a limit which would cut them out of the big highway jobs.

"I can tell you that's about as innocent as it could be," said Robert Waggoner, manager of Aetna's bond department in Kentucky. "If we were contemplating a big rush by that agency, we would be up there filing some multi-million or unlimited power-of-attorney in their behalf."

Also, the filing was on Oct. 11, well before the Nov. 7 election which decided the governorship.

Hardison said if there's to be an effort to swing business his way through politics, he doesn't know about it.

"We try to perform a service for the customers we now have," said Hardison. "If people bring their business to me, I'm thankful for it. Whether we have any more contractors will be up to the contractors themselves."

Hardison has been coming to some of the contractors' gatherings which precede the highway bid openings in Frankfort.

"I've been four or five times in the last year," he said.

An official who attends these sessions regularly said, "This fellow Hardison came up last Thursday night. He did tell me in passing that he was in business with Mrs. Nunn in Glasgow. It's the first time I had ever seen him around."

Hardison's name appears just once on the highway department's record of agents who wrote bonds during 1966 and 1967. That bond was for $299,373, a relatively small amount.

Meanwhile, several easily-recognizable Democratic names were doing more extensive business, although no one agent enjoyed anything approaching a monopoly. The list included:

Robert M. Hardy, Frankfort, son-in-law of Lt. Gov. Harry Lee Waterfield, 20 bonds for $15,948,470; Rayburn W. Ford, brother of Lt. Gov.-elect Wendell Ford and partner with him in an Owensboro agency, 23 bonds for $14,005,128; former State Sen. Strother Melton and S. R. Woodall Sr., partners in a Paducah agency, 8 bonds for $3,409,324; State Rep. Howard P. Hunt Jr., Danville, one bond for $2,551,044; and Sen. Wilson Palmer, Cynthiana, 9 bonds for $1,696,596.

(Agents' commissions average about .001 of the face amount, Waggoner said. For a counter-signature of an out-of-state contractor's bond, the Kentucky agent gets half the commission.)

Because Waterfield has been on the "outs" with the present administration, Hardy's showing indicates a lack of political pressure on contractors.

"My opinion is that it's been pretty simon-pure over there the last few years, except for out-of-state contractors who come in here and are subject to Kentucky's counter-signature law," said Waggoner. "Undoubtedly, some agents have been selected to handle counter-signatures."

Several of those contacted claimed the picture was much different under former Gov. A. B. "Happy" Chandler in 1955-59. One of the favored firms then was reported to be a Frankfort agency, Pickett and Goins.

"No more than (E.W.) Jovett over at Winchester and a couple of others," responded Franklin Goins.

Asked to compare his business under Chandler with the Breathitt term, Goins said, "One of them was good and the other one nil."

Miss Miller To Be On Ford's Staff

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Cattie Lou Miller, a top aide of Gov. Edward T. Breathitt, will become Lt. Gov.-elect Wendell Ford's administrative assistant when he takes office next Tuesday.

Miss Miller now is an assistant to Breathitt and Public Information commissioner.

"I intend to be a working lieutenant governor," Ford said in making the announcement Friday. "I arrive in Frankfort with a cooperative attitude and the determination to be of maximum service to the people of Kentucky."

"Gov.-elect Louie B. Nunn and I are in agreement that Miss Miller's services should not be lost to the citizens of Kentucky."

Ford attributed "a considerable share of Kentucky's growth in the tourist and travel industry" to Miss Miller's efforts "and to the effective program she developed and directs."

Tourist snow spend over $113 million more annually in Ken-

Fulton, Ky. Thursday, December 14, 1967

tucky than in 1960 when she took up the tourist promotion program, Ford said. "This year," he added, "more than 27 million visitors came here from other states, compared to 18 million in 1960." "The program she heads has brought Kentucky every top national award available in the tourist field," he said, "including the National Association of Travel Organization's Award, the Midwest Travel Writers Association Award, the Redbook Award and many others."

Council On Alcoholism Is Formed

MAYFIELD, Ky.—Mayor Vandergriff and County Judge Dick Castleman have named 12 persons to serve as members of the Mayfield-Graves County Council on Alcoholism.

The group will plan and initiate a plan of treatment for alcoholism, and an education program.

Members of the committee are: Harold Armstrong, Rev. Loren Broadus, Vicar Robert Burchell, Dr. Clem Burnett, Jack Erwin, Sidney Hale, Barkley Jones, Bill Luther, Frank Perry, Miss Barbara Rule, J. P. Thompson and Jerry Wilson.

The council will meet on the last Tuesday of each month at 4 p.m. at the J. U. Kevil Foundation offices.

Clinton Will Charge For Trash Pickup

CLINTON, Ky.—The Clinton City Council has decided that effective Jan. 1 it will charge for the pickup of trash and rubbish. For many years the city has provided twice monthly pickups free to its residents.

Mayor Kaylor E. Austin stated that details of the schedule of pickups and the amount of charges will be worked out before the end of the year.

It was indicated that the service will be provided and charges made only to those who ask for it. It was also stated that plans do not call for the pickup of wet garbage as the city does not have adequate grounds for disposal of this kind of refuse. A private firm here has been providing this type service.

Court Refuses To Lift Ceiling On Property Taxes

FRANKFORT, Ky. — The legislature has the power to limit local property tax rates, the Court of Appeals ruled Friday.

The decision in effect upheld the action of a special 1965 legislative session and also gives the 1968 Legislature more elbow room to deal with tax problems. The high court tried to keep within narrow confines in the test case.

"We do not pass upon any constitutional questions not directly raised in this case," appellate Judge Sam Steinfeld said.

But the court said enough to settle the issue, at least for the moment.

The ruling went against Gallatin County, which argued that House Bill No. 1, the product of the 1965 session, conflicted with the Kentucky Constitution.

The county contended that Section 157 of the Constitution sets out the maximum taxes a county may levy.

It argued that the House measure could not purport to do the same thing and supersede the Constitution.

The debate centered around the portion of House Bill No. 1 which "froze" tax rates for 1966 and 1967 except for an allowable 10 per cent yearly increase.

Gallatin County said this prevents it from fixing tax rates that would yield the revenue needed.

Steinfeld cited a 1901 high court ruling that "the legislature which gives and recalls, at pleasure, the power to tax, may do so, but not the courts."

He added, "We find nothing to convince us that a limitation may not be imposed when the authority to tax is granted."

The 5-0 appellate ruling affirmed Franklin Circuit Court. Judges John Palmore and Edward Hill did not participate in the ruling.

Gallatin County said specifically the legislature could not fix tax limits at a lower ceiling than did Section 157 of the Constitution.

The state replied that Section 181, which gives local districts the power of taxation, also gives the legislature power to confer this privilege on them.

Political Science Freshman Among Kentucky's Top Ten

By Julia Malone

There is one first year co-ed at Vanderbilt who could hardly be called typical. A newspaper editor chosen a delegate to three Democratic national party conventions, and a founder of the Fulton Ky. — Tenn. International Banana Festival, she is Mrs. Paul Westpheling, now spending a semester at Vandy.

Mrs. Westpheling is the only woman among 10 journalists awarded the Ford Foundation grant known as the Etheridge Fellowship.

As we sat in the Commodore Room for a talk, it was obvious that Mrs. Westpheling (She will ask you to call her "Jo") is no "pick up the kids at 3:00, the groceries at 4:00 and then to the beauty parlor" type woman in spite of a husband and two children, aged 17 and 20.

At Vanderbilt she is taking several political science courses as well as recent American history.

Most Vital Interest

Although there is little that does not interest Mrs. Westpheling, politics is her most vital interest. "To most people politics denotes crooks and corruption," she said. "I'm trying to improve the image and quality of politics. And you can't get any closer to government than I have as a newspaper editor."

In Fulton, Ky., she and her husband own and edit a weekly paper, the Fulton County News.

Mrs. Westpheling has been an active participant in politics. In 1965 she ran for the state Legislature. She says of the election, "I was the first woman ever to be defeated for a legislative post in West Kentucky. . . mostly because I was the first woman ever to seek the office." She lost to the incumbent by a narrow margin.

She is not happy with the situation in politics today. "We need new vitality in the political arena — young, vigorous, idea people," she said. "If you are studying political science at Vanderbilt and you don't go into politics, you're doing your community a grave injustice."

Common Market in One Hour

Mrs. Westpheling, who grew up in Clarksdale, Miss., did not go to college. Asked how she enjoys it now, she says, "I love it. Today I learned more about the Common Market from Dr. Anabtawi in one hour than I've learned from reading newspapers for years."

She is concerned, however, that political science courses be more practical in showing students how to work in politics. "I don't know whether or not that's possible," she added.

Finishing high school during the Depression, Mrs. Westpheling discovered she could not get a job without any experience. To get that experience, she began her career working without a salary for the Clarksdale newspaper where she met her husband, During the second world war she worked for the War Office in Washington and later moved to Fulton, where her list of community activities is long.

Five years ago Mrs. Westpheling originated the idea of having a Fulton banana festival since the town is the nation's largest inland distributor of bananas. Today the festival has grown into a goodwill exchange program with South and Central America.

It comes as no great surprise that she was chosen among the 10 most outstanding women of Kentucky this year. She plans to finish this semester at Vanderbilt and will probably go to another university for spring semester before finishing her belated college career.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand—Deer were introduced into New Zealand in 1861, and other game was imported for 40 years. Elk, sika, sambar, white-tail deer, chamois and tahr are now found in the nation, which has no closed season except on elk. The overrun of game led the government to appoint "cullers" in 1928, and virtually unrestricted hunting continues today.

The covered wagon—Conestoga—was a rugged wagon that helped early settlers reach the West. Bigger and tougher than most wagons, its frame-work was built of solid oak or ash, with thin sides of poplar. Curved downward in the middle to keep the load from slipping and shifting; this was especially helpful in fording rivers, and when traveling fast to outspeed attacking Indians or animals. The Conestoga, chuck wagon and other wagons of the past can be seen at the Harold Warp Pioneer Village at Minden, in south central Nebraska.
