Vanderbilt University: — I don't mind telling you that when I first embarked on this Fellowship year, sitting in on the exhilarating and thought-provoking lecture sessions, I often came back to my apartment more than a little chagrined at the ridicule I heard heaped upon "the rural communities" for their "backwardness" and lack of initiative and energy to become a cog in the wheel of this fast-moving urban progress.

More than once I have stood up in class and defended the fallacious thinking in academic circles that the small community is soon to be devoured by the metropolitan areas, whose sprawling boundaries are now crossing county and state lines with remarkable success.

The area of Jacksonville, Florida is the latest to embrace the new concept in city-county consolidation. As in any new endeavor the plan was looked upon with great suspicion by the social, economic and political communities. But when a vast educational program was launched to explain the benefits and the tax savings, the people of the Jacksonville area voted in favor of the issue by more than two to one.

A lack of vitality, enthusiasm and vision has been pointed out as the basic reason for the growing decline and some total annihilation of the small community, as such, on the American scene.

Foremost argument for the rising tide of urbanism, suburbanism and metropolitanism is the complete lack of communication between those who govern and those who are governed.

When is the last time you attended a meeting of the City Commission of either Fulton or South Fulton? Have you ever (this reporter never has) attended a meeting of the Fulton City School Board?

Do you know how and why the City of Fulton increased the taxes by two and one-half cents several months ago?

How many of you have any idea of the criteria used to staff our city and county police departments, our county and municipal offices? Do they measure up to the standards set forth by larger communities for qualifications to handle our governmental affairs?

These are the questions the social and political scientists are asking the students who will go out into the world soon to carry forward the American prophecy as visualized in a patriot's dream.

Take it from this innocent by-stander on the passing scene, the story told of our small counties and cities is not a pretty one. It is no wonder these same scientists have marked for oblivion the rural communities of these United States.

I was in Fulton for nearly three and a half days this past week-end having detoured home from Frankfort where I spent almost three days covering the deliberations of the General Assembly now in session. While there I talked with Rep. Henry Maddox and Senator Carroll Hubbard about some rather important legislation before the assembly that concerns vitally, every citizen of the Commonwealth.

Perhaps it was to prove that the political scientists are wrong about the lack of interest in small communities in matters that concern the general welfare, that I asked around to see the reaction to Governor Nunn's hefty tax proposals.

Here are some typical answers:

"All politicians are crooks, that's why I don't have anything to do with them."

"Our schools are run like private kingdoms anyway, so what difference does it make if Henry

Did you think the "Expo" in "Expo '67" up in Canada meant "Exposition"?

It didn't. It meant an expostulation over the high anticipated deficit of putting the thing on. They thought it was going to lose 47.5 million dollars.

But now Expo has been Exposed, and the expected expenses ran it 210.7 million in the red. That's five times as much as they thought it would lose.

That "thing" they're starting to build out in Highlands on the southern tip of the Ferry-Morse property is just a little electrical substation for the Fulton Electric system, I am told. I mention this to satisfy all curiosity-seekers, myself included.

What happened to Fulton? On Wednesday, February 14,

Kentucky cities of Danville, Elizabethtown, Prestonsburg and Middlesboro were designated "All-Kentucky Cities" by the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce at their annual awards program in Lexington.

Nearly eighty-nine entries were received in the 1967 Opportunity for Progress Contest. Of these, 53 cities received Certificates of Excellence.

Neighboring Purchase communities receiving Certificates of Excellence included Clinton, Mayfield and Barlow.

Sixteen more communities received "Certificates of Participation."

We looked and looked and looked through the lists, but couldn't find Fulton's name anywhere, not even in the "also-ran's."

We understand from the local Chamber office that Fulton didn't even enter the competition, and the hasn't for the past several years.

Nearly A Third Of Passenger Trains In State Serve Fulton, Survey Shows

by Paul Westpheling
Is Fulton now served by more railroad passenger trains than any other city—large or small—in Kentucky?

If a Louisville Courier-Journal and Times story of last Sunday, Feb. 18, is correct, Fulton is served by nearly a third of all remaining passenger trains in Kentucky. (The Louisville paper lists 24 remaining passenger trains still operating in Kentucky, but lists only six of these on the Illinois Central through Fulton.)

Fulton has nine daily passenger trains, and a count of the Louisville newspaper's tally lists 21 other trains, making a total of 30 daily trains instead of the 24 they stated.

In other words, there are 30 daily passenger trains now operating in or through Kentucky, and 9 of these are on the Illinois Central through Fulton.

And that, apparently, isn't all. No other city in Kentucky except Louisville comes even close to having as many trains as Fulton. Louisville has nine listed—two in and out on the C&O to Cincinnati, two in and out on the Pennsy to Chicago, five in and out on the L&N, Cincinnati is listed with 14 trains, including 6 on the L&N, 4 on the C&O and 4 on the Southern, but since this isn't a Kentucky city, we won't count it as such.

Up until a very few months ago, Fulton had 13 daily passenger trains; that was before the railroad discontinued numbers 15 and 16 between Memphis and St. Louis, and numbers 3 and 25 between Chicago and New Orleans.

Here is the current daily schedule:

Maddox Wants School Superintendents Elected; Seeks $12,000 Annual Salary

A bill introduced in the House last Friday would allow the election of local school superintendents under certain conditions.

District school boards now choose superintendents. Democratic Reps. Lloyd Clapp of Wingo and Henry Maddox of Hickman proposed the bill, which would allow a referendum on the election upon receipt of a petition signed by 200 voters.

Under the measure, a superintendent would be elected for four years at the same time as other county officials but the candidate for the post would run on a non-partisan basis on another ballot.

The bill also would require the school board to set the salary of the superintendent at not more than $12,000 a year before his election.

Representative Maddox has long been an advocate of having school superintendents elected, rather than appointed by the respective school boards, as they are now.

The promise to introduce legislation for the change was a major campaign plank of the Fulton County law-maker when he ran for re-election in 1965 and again in 1967. Primary targets of proposed legislation are believed to be the school superintendents in Hickman, Carlisle and Ballard counties where controversies concerning the individuals who hold the posts have been raging for many years in the respective counties.

It is generally believed that, in the campaign of 1965, support from the forces opposing Hickman County Superintendent Dentis McDaniel and Ballard County Superintendent Frank McGary figured largely in Maddox's re-election.

Voting returns in that election indicated that in areas where the aforementioned superintendents were most violently opposed the vote for Representative Maddox was heaviest. It was Maddox's promise to introduce legislation to make the superintendencies elective, rather than appointive, that brought him the heavy vote.

The reasoning was, according to persons involved in the controversies, that, if an election was held to select a school superintendent, the incumbents would never attain the office by popular vote.

School controversies in Graves County and political opposition from certain school leaders in that county is also believed to have influenced Rep. Clapp's interest in the school superintendency legislation.

It is ironic that both legislators, basing their campaigns for election on decreases in taxes, less laws, and no new taxes, should sponsor legislation that would almost double the salaries now paid school superintendents in the four-county, first legislative district. (Fulton, Hickman, Carlisle and Ballard counties).

Vehicle Inspection Standards Are "Relaxed"; Fee Is Cut To $2.00

In the midst of the legislative hassle over repeal of amendment to Kentucky's mandatory annual vehicle safety inspection program, the director of the program Tuesday announced standards will be "relaxed" and the inspection cost will be cut from $2.50 to $2.00.

The changes, and the explanation by program director Robert Shirley, are:

—Eliminating visual inspection of brake lining by removing a wheel. "We feel a road test will be sufficient to indicate if the braking system has serious faults."

—Eliminating parking brake inspection. "While it is our feeling that all vehicles should have operational parking brakes, it appears that some vehicle owners, primarily farm truck operators, consider this an undue burden." Vehicles can still be parked "in gear or parking position," he said.

—Checking wheel alignment for "toe-in" or "toe-out" will be dropped, because it is "basically a tire-saving measure, and the reports we've gotten so far show it is not a factor of such safety significance that it has to be retained."

—Easing of standards on windshield glass. The vehicle will be passed "so long as the driver's normal viewing area is not hampered or obscured by large cracks, shatter or clouding."

Easing of headlight aiming requirements. Many cars come from the factory with headlights aimed low and to the right, Shirley said. "While this is inefficient, it usually does not blind the eyes of the oncoming drivers."

—Allowing tires to be checked "either with a tire gauge or by a visual inspection" to see if they meet requirement of a minimum tread depth of 2/32 of an inch.

Finally, since the "scope of the inspection" has been reduced, Shirley said, the cost is also being cut 50 cents to $2. The major expense to inspectors now is removing the wheel for brake lining inspection, and that will be eliminated, he said.

Unaffected by the new changes are inspection of headlights, tail lights, horn, windshield wipers, rearview mirror and exhaust system.

Ferry-Morse Reports '67 One Of Its "Good" Earning Years; Triple 1966

Earnings of the Ferry-Morse Seed Company here more than tripled in 1967 over the previous year.

At a meeting of the directors held here today, Chairman of the Board and President Selwyn Eddy of Atherton announced earnings for the 1967 fiscal year amounted to $685,242.

He noted that this was "a considerable improvement" over the 1966 figure of $207,224 on the same basis. He also reported that prior to 1966 the last year the company reported a profit was 1959. As a result, he said, no income taxes are payable for the year due to losses in prior years.

"This past year was one of the best years for earnings for this company for many years," he added. Earnings per share for 1967 came to $4.78. They were $1.44 in 1966.

The directors also approved payment of a special dividend of $.50 payable to shareholders of record on February 21. It will be paid on March 6. Eddy revealed it was the first dividend paid since 1959. The directors also approved a 100 percent stock dividend to shareholders of record on March 8, 1968, to be distributed on April 15, 1968. The dividend, he explained is subject to approval by regulatory officials.

He also revealed the outlook for 1968 earnings is "optimistic." Eddy became the chief executive officer of the 112-year-old company in 1964.

Directors of the company include the following: Eddy, Charles F. Brannan, Denver, Colo., former Secretary of Agriculture under President Truman; Dexter Ferry of Detroit; Ralph V. Hunt of Los Angeles; Guy Manuel, president of the Spreckels Sugar Co., San Francisco; and Richard W. McKenna, vice-president of the vegetable and flower seed division.

The company has headquarters offices and plant in San Francisco; offices and warehouses in Fulton, Kentucky, Anaheim and Modesto, California, Tampa, Florida, Buffalo, New York, Memphis, Tennessee, Harlingen, Texas and Phoenix, Arizona.

It has production stations in San Juan Bautista, California, and Hazelton, Idaho.

It also has four research stations in San Juan Bautista, Columbus, Wisconsin, Caldwell, Idaho, and Tucson, Arizona.

Governor Nunn Makes It Evident That What Kentucky Needs Is 'People's Lobby'

A top level individual in the administration of Republican Governor Louie B. Nunn told this writer in Frankfort last week that "the tax increases proposed (by the Governor) will pass because these special interests groups will make the legislators do it."

And therein lies the explanation of "who really governs" the legislative process in the Kentucky General Assembly and in all such similar legislative bodies in these United States.

The immortal words of President Abraham Lincoln, expounding the necessity of a government by the people, for the people in his famous Gettysburg address are ringing with greater emptiness each passing year, as the richly financed lobbyists roam the corridors of both houses, cajoling here, button-holing there, and intimidating the elected representatives here, there and everywhere.

The lobbying groups have been justifiably named "the third branch of government." It is a sad commentary on democracy in general to realize that they are becoming by far, stronger and more effective than the other two—the executive and the legislative branches.

Even more regrettable however, is the growing evidence that what this country needs desperately, is a PEOPLE'S LOBBY of the poor maligned, hard-working human beings whose voices are lost in the wilderness when they try to combat the powerful groups who wine and dine our legislators far away from their respective constituencies.

The proposed two cents increase in the sales tax, and the $7.50 increase in the automobile license plates have been heralded as acceptable to the Farm Bureau, the Kentucky Education Association, the tobacco industry, the coal industry, the racing industry, the horse industry, the whiskey industry, et al.

And why not? Each special interest group apparently has been successful in obtaining the demands made of a governor who appears "caught in the middle" of trying to appease them all, at the cost of the people who can afford it least of all.

The pensioners, the retirees living on social security, the wage-earners, small merchants and other financially-throttled people have no loud voice in these decisions and so the philosophy to get the most from the least powerful is evident in Kentucky again, in all its stark and naked horror.

It is not necessary to give you any empirical data to prove that the voice of the people is being silenced by the dynamic pressure groups. This is made clear by one of Governor Nunn's own cabinet members when Commissioner of Revenue James E. Luckett recently released many other sources of possible revenue to finance existing, and the expansion of, many state-wide programs.

Apparently Luckett's possibilities were not explored, and understandably so; the pressure groups of the whiskey industry, the racing industry, the insurance groups, the gambling combines, the tobacco industry wield a well-greased and well-financed weapon of influence.

But to prove our point, the possibilities suggested by Luckett and released by the Department of Public

Information are listed herewith.

EXCLUDING any increase in the sales tax, the following suggestions would bring in $136,000,000.00 more revenue for the two-year period, according to Luckett.

Isn't this a right generous sum to hand to a man who said that he could operate Kentucky's State Government WITHOUT NEW TAXES AND WITHIN THE PRESENT LEVELS OF REVENUE.

Here are the possibilities:

Tobacco

A rate increase on cigarettes. Estimated figures show, each cent of tax increase per package of cigarettes will bring $4 million in annual revenue.

Coal Mining

Also under study is a severance tax on mining industries. For each cent levied per ton of coal mined, the State can collect approximately $1 million in revenue, Luckett said.

Whiskey

A 10 per cent increase in the consumer tax rate on distilled spirits and beer and wine, could net an estimated $1 million for the State treasury each year.

Auto Licenses

A "reasonable" increase in the price of automobile licenses can produce as much as $15 million in additional revenue, Luckett said. (Ed's note: A 150% increase doesn't seem "reasonable.")

Insurance

In the area of insurance premium taxes, a 20 per cent rate increase can bring the state nearly $2 million in annual income. (Ed's note: This is high enough!)

Corporation Taxes

On corporation income tax rates, for each one per cent rate increase the Department estimates revenue near $6 million.

Income Taxes

The elimination of Federal tax deduction when computing the Kentucky taxable income is possible. This could mean at least $20 million each year for the Commonwealth, Luckett said.

Individual Income

On individual income tax returns, a rate adjustment of one per cent upward on all brackets is estimated to bring $50 million. Revenue officials estimate eliminating the deductibility of Federal income tax on the individual income tax return without a rate change could mean $32 million in revenue to the state.

Personal Services

The taxation of services, for each one per cent levy, the estimated figures show a possible $4 million in revenue. Services taxed would include garages, parking lots, laundry and dry cleaning, repair services etc., professional people.

Gambling

Another source of tax revenue open to the Commonwealth is a rate increase on pari-mutuel, Luckett said. A one per cent tax increase on pari-mutuel is estimated at $1 million in revenue.

The acceptance or rejection of Governor Nunn's tax proposals will be the acid test as to whether our elected representatives constitute The People's Lobby, or the tools of the powerful pressure groups.

We hope that Representative Henry Maddox and Senator Carroll Hubbard will give this urgent alternative their serious consideration.

Whatever the outcome of the new tax proposals we want both of these men to write us regarding their decisions.

TELL HIM SO

If you hear a kind word spoken
Of some worthy soul you know,
It may fill his heart with sunshine
If you only tell him so.

If a deed, however humble,
Helps you on your way to go,
Seek the one whose hand has helped you,
Seek him out and tell him so!

If your heart is touched and tender
Toward a sinner, lost and low,
It might help him to do better
If you'd only tell him so!

Oh, my sisters; oh, my brothers,
As o'er life's rough path you go,
If God's love has saved and kept you,
Do not fail to tell men so!

The Parson Speaks

THE CHRISTIAN LIGHT
SCRIPTURE READING
PHIL. 2:1-16
TEXT PHIL. 2:15-16;

"Among whom ye shine as lights in the world; holding forth the word of life."

Two special duties are taught here. The first is that of living the gospel in the sight of men. The second is that of activity making it known to others.

May we look at "living the gospel." "Among whom shine ye as lights of the world." It is in the imperative mood. In other words it is the duty of every Christian to "adorn the doctrine of God, our Savior in all things", to be a "living epistle known and read of all men," every day in common, constant, living to shine as light in the world, reflecting the light of the glorious "Sun of Righteousness!"

But only a good tree can bring forth good fruit, as only a pure fountain can send forth a pure stream; so, therefore, the first requisite for any pervading Christian influence is the possession of purity of heart — personal holiness. As a lamp can not burn without oil, so a Christian without holiness can give forth no light. Keep thy heart pure, for "out of it are the issues of life!"

A willingness to obey this command of light-bearing will lead us to make open confession of Christ before men. Christ himself said, "Neither do men light a candle and put it under a bushel." In order to shine as Christians, it is our duty to

Library Corner

By Brenda Rowlett

Today, students of social studies in primary as well as in upper grades will find a good supply of books to satisfy their curiosity about the multiplicity of tasks with which men occupy themselves. The books answer their "how" question—how we get our water, food, clothing, metals and oil, homes and other buildings; how men solve the problems of communication, transportation, and government. They answer the "what" questions as they describe what types of work men do in various parts of our country and the world; what types of communication, transportation, and government have been developed through the years.

Many recent books give children an understanding of the contemporary scene, while pointing out relationships to the past and future. Let's examine a few books that will be of use to the students in social studies:

THE SUPREME COURT by Gerald W. Johnson. In 1787 no one realized exactly what the power of the Supreme Court was or could be. And today the Court is less familiar to us than any other part of the government. Yet, with beguiling simplicity, Gerald W. Johnson takes his readers into the courtroom and explains clearly how the Supreme Court functions and what its history has been. He shows, in particular, how two Chief Justices, John Marshall and Roger B. Taney, brought prestige to the court and gave it the power to make its decisions stick without the use of force. Certainly Mr. Johnson has no peer in his ability to make American history and government come to life for readers of all ages.

THE PRESIDENCY by Gerald

W. Johnson. The average American would find it hard to say exactly what the President does. A clear and interesting explanation of this complicated subject is what Mr. Johnson has achieved, analyzing the executive branch of our government in this brief and brilliant book. Here is living history, based on a matter that touches the life of every American. The book also answers such questions as: why no President has ever become a dictator, how the Presidency has changed since the time of George Washington, and which men have done most to change it while they were in office.

THE STORY OF THE UNITED NATIONS by Katharine Savage. On October 24, 1945, the United Nations was born. Its short life has been stormy and insecure, but it stands today as a major hope for world peace and well-being. Representatives from more than a hundred member nations meet in the General Assembly, at the United Nations permanent headquarters in New York City. From this central organization, through its many overseas branches and its agencies and committees, the work of the United Nations is carried on all over the world. The International Court of Justice sits at The Hague and the World Health Organization is based on Geneva. There are United Nations agencies caring for Palestine refugees, helping to improve conditions in underdeveloped countries and striving to bring health and happiness to children of every nationality. Here is the story of the United Nations from its earliest wartime meetings to the tragic death of Dag Hammarskjöld and the period following the election of U Thant as Acting Secretary-General. It tells how the United Nations is constructed, and how it works, of the people who made the plans and those who are carrying them out. There are clear accounts, linked to the historical backgrounds, of the major issues the United Nations has faced: the partition of Palestine, the Berlin blockade, the Korean War, the dispute over the Suez Canal and the crisis in the Congo. This is the fascinating story of the greatest union among nations that the world has ever known.

Come by the library and look at these and other books in the field of social studies that will be of interest to you.

Turning Back The Clock—

February 20, 1948

Two World War II veterans were elected to head the Glendale White Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars at the meeting held Monday. They are: Joe Treas, commander, and Frank Clark, vice-commander. Treas succeeds Paul Durbin, who resigned to accept a permanent army post. Other officers elected are: Harold Lee Bloodworth, junior vice-commander; Jack Alfred, quartermaster; Mickey Lynch, adjutant; Carlos Jackson, sergeant at arms, and James Hagan, chaplain. Neal Looney, Edgar Drysdale and Harold Mullins were named trustees and Charles Dixon is custodian.

A total of $288.55 was collected locally in the recent drive for funds for the National Foundation for the Prevention of Infantile Paralysis. Collected at the picture shows was $160.66, while $127.89 was collected through the Fulton schools. Hubert Jacob, principal of the Fulton High School was local chairman of the March of Dimes drive.

An educational building will be erected at the First Baptist Church at a cost of approximately $50,000. It will be connected to the present building to form an L, extending to the west line of the church property and south to the alley. Groundbreaking service will be on Easter Sunday, with work to start April 1st.

Ladies' Night, the eagerly anticipated annual event of the Rotary Club, at which the members entertain their Rotary Anns, is soon at hand and President Happy Hogan has appointed a committee composed of John Earle, Gene Williamson, Fred Sawyer, Jack Snow, Paul Westpheling and Clyde Hill to work out the arrangements.

Coffee Cup Chatter

Appearance speaks for itself. An attractive appearance can be the key that opens the door to friendships, a better you and even to happier family relations. If we were in business I am sure we would not hesitate to put the product we are selling into the most attractive container. The most important product we have to sell is ourselves. Our clothing and grooming are the package we present of ourselves to the public. Dress your age, keep fresh and dainty, be interested in others, have a variety of activities and interests, be happy and you will remain forever young and a charming person people will want to know.—Mrs. Catherine Thompson

There are so many kinds of attractive pots and pans on the market today that choosing among them may be difficult. We offer these suggestions to help you find just what you need:

Choose utensils with tight-fitting lids and flat bottoms. This helps save electricity or gas by taking full advantage of the heat from your stove unit.

Look for rounded corners and smooth edges to make cleaning easier.

Pots and pans from medium to heavyweight materials wear longer and give better cooking results. Handles should be firmly attached and feel comfortable in your hand. If the handle is detachable make sure it holds firmly when attached. Many moderately priced saucepans have handles that stay cool even when the pan is hot.

Knobs on lids should be easy to grasp.

Pans should be well balanced so they will not tip over, whether empty or full.

Check the size of the pot or pan before you buy. Many have the pan size permanently marked on the bottom.

Careful shopping can give you attractive pots and pans with long, useful lives.—Mrs. Barletta Wrathier

How far from the table edge should a place setting be? All silver, linen and dishes are placed one inch from the edge of the table. This rule is made to prevent danger of the silver being brushed off the table. If the table edge is rounded, this rule must be modified, because the pieces of silver must be parallel to each other. This means that all silver ends on a straight line drawn from the farthest spoon to the farthest fork. The inside knife and fork, and the plate, may then be 1/4 inches from the edge of the table. The basic rule must hold.—Miss Patricia Everett

Today's small houses and apartments are causing a trend toward space-saving furniture arrangements.

Arranging furniture to look "built-in" is one space-saver—and this arrangement is convenient, too. Placing furniture in a one-wall or an L-shaped arrangement helps give a "built-in" effect.

In the living room or den, you might arrange shelves for accessories, dishes and collections; bookcases; chests for storage; and desks to give a "built-in" look. Such an arrangement in a bedroom might include two or three chests and a dressing table.

To give a "built-in" effect, pieces of furniture should be of the same height or adjusted to the same height. For example, you may need to stack chests or bookcases on low benches to bring them up to the desired height.—Mrs. Juanita Amonett

4-H JUNIOR LEADERSHIP

Decisions?? Decisions? As an experienced 4-H club member, do you have difficulty deciding on a project? Have you ever thought about Junior Leadership? Here is an opportunity to practice skills you have learned and to help younger club members at the same time. Learn the art of leadership by serving under an experienced adult leader. First learn that a good Junior leader must be a good follower. When you have the opportunity to serve as a junior leader, accept the responsibility willingly, do it well, and learn to do by doing.—Mrs. Dean Roper

SHOULD CHILDREN BE GIVEN AN ALLOWANCE?

All parents give their children money, whether it is doled out at each request or given in regular sums at regular intervals such as an allowance. In my planning for learning the use of money, one of the essentials is that the child have some money, even though it is a small amount, that is his own to manage.

How much allowance should be given? It depends upon the child's age, his needs, his experience in handling money, the family income, and many other things concerned with the particular situation. The amount needs to be increased as the child grows and his needs and ability to manage money increase.

What is the value of an allowance? The real educational value of the allowance can only come if it really belongs to the child and he controls the spending. Although a child should be permitted to decide how to spend his allowance, he needs guidance from his parents. Their job is to give him experiences in which he finds out the value of money, the regret accompanying the unwise use of it, and the satisfaction that follows wise spending.

Adults too, sometimes have difficulty in keeping the right attitude toward money. It is unrealistic to say money is not important, but the important thing is not how much we have, but how we spend what we do have. Perhaps it helps to realize that money won't buy love, character, friends or a happy home.—Miss Irma Hamilton

WPSD-TV To Start Adult Education Class

A series of high school television classes, sponsored by the Community Action Agencies in the viewing area of WPSD-TV, in the states of Kentucky, Tennessee, Illinois and Missouri will be shown on Channel 6 from 6:30 A. M. to 7:00 A. M. beginning March 4, 1968.

The need for adult education courses is universal throughout the nation. According to the 1960 census, the percentage of people over 25 years of age, in the eight counties of the purchase area who have not finished high school are as follows:

Ballard County 73 percent; Carlisle County 73 percent; Fulton County 73 percent; Marshall County 72 percent; Calloway County 69 percent; Graves County 75 percent; Hickman County 69 percent; McCracken County 65 percent.

McCracken County 65 percent.

The purpose of this program is to prepare people who failed to finish high school to take the high school general equivalency test (GED). The certificate given for passing this test will meet the high school graduation requirements of most jobs.

Ballard, Carlisle, Hickman and Fulton counties are in the process of setting up study centers for those people needing help with the course.

Anyone interested in this Program is urged to contact your local Community Action Office and make arrangements for the books that you will need.

The Ballard, Carlisle, Hickman and Fulton County office is located in Clinton, Kentucky, 304 Cresap Street. The phone number is 502-653-1811.

Mental Health Center Installs "Distress Number" . . . 442-1697

Marlow R. Harston, M. D., the Executive Director of the Community Mental Health Center of Western Kentucky, is pleased to announce that the Center is now prepared to deliver Emergency Psychiatric Services (response to attempted or potential suicide, extreme anxiety, acute alcoholism, etc.) on a 24 hour per day - 7 day per week basis.

The Emergency Service, centralized about the Paducah Mental Health Center is designed to react to a Psychiatric Emergency in a matter of minutes in any area of the 9-county Region.

It is requested that all Emergency calls be placed to the Paducah Center—Telephone 442-1697. During regular working hours the caller will be placed in immediate contact with a member of the professional staff, who will initiate the necessary action. During non-working hours, the caller will be put in contact with the professional person without delay by means of a telephone answering service. In any case, Dr. Harston stressed, immediate help will be initiated.

The Community Mental Health Center is affiliated with hospitals throughout the Region in order to more promptly react to Emergency situations and will, of course, require the cooperation of all agencies and activities concerned with the safety and well-being of our citizens.

In a comprehensive campaign to acquaint all concerned in the 9-county region with the Emergency Service, letters were sent to all interested people and organizations and a card provided with the necessary information. However, the Business Administrator of the Regional Program, Capt. Gaylord T. Forrest, emphasizes that it is important that everyone needing this information receive it—and that a supply of the cards are available on request to him at Center Headquarters, 308 Guthrie Building, Paducah, Kentucky 42001.

With the provision of this vital service, your 9-county regional mental health and mental retardation program continues to lead the way as a model community effort.

Governor Nunn Makes It Evident That What Kentucky Needs Is 'People's Lobby'

A top level individual in the administration of Republican Governor Louie B. Nunn told this writer in Frankfort last week that "the tax increases proposed (by the Governor) will pass because these special interests groups will make the legislators do it."

And therein lies the explanation of "who really governs" the legislative process in the Kentucky General Assembly and in all such similar legislative bodies in these United States.

The immortal words of President Abraham Lincoln, expounding the necessity of a government by the people, for the people in his famous Gettysburg address are ringing with greater emptiness each passing year, as the richly financed lobbyists roam the corridors of both houses, cajoling here, button-holing there, and intimidating the elected representatives here, there and everywhere.

The lobbying groups have been justifiably named "the third branch of government." It is a sad commentary on democracy in general to realize that they are becoming by far, stronger and more effective than the other two—the executive and the legislative branches.

Even more regrettable however, is the growing evidence that what this country needs desperately, is a PEOPLE'S LOBBY of the poor maligned, hard-working human beings whose voices are lost in the wilderness when they try to combat the powerful groups who wine and dine our legislators far away from their respective constituencies.

The proposed two cents increase in the sales tax, and the $7.50 increase in the automobile license plates have been heralded as acceptable to the Farm Bureau, the Kentucky Education Association, the tobacco industry, the coal industry, the racing industry, the horse industry, the whiskey industry, et al.

And why not? Each special interest group apparently has been successful in obtaining the demands made of a governor who appears "caught in the middle" of trying to appease them all, at the cost of the people who can afford it least of all.

The pensioners, the retirees living on social security, the wage-earners, small merchants and other financially-throated people have no loud voice in these decisions and so the philosophy to get the most from the least powerful is evident in Kentucky again, in all its stark and naked horror.

It is not necessary to give you any empirical data to prove that the voice of the people is being silenced by the dynamic pressure groups. This is made clear by one of Governor Nunn's own cabinet members when Commissioner of Revenue James E. Luckett recently released many other sources of possible revenue to finance existing, and the expansion of, many state-wide programs.

Apparently Luckett's possibilities were not explored, and understandably so; the pressure groups of the whiskey industry, the racing industry, the insurance groups, the gambling combines, the tobacco industry wield a well-greased and well-financed weapon of influence.

But to prove our point, the possibilities suggested by Luckett and released by the Department of Public

Information are listed herewith.

EXCLUDING any increase in the sales tax, the following suggestions would bring in $136,000,000.00 more revenue for the two-year period, according to Luckett.

Isn't this a right generous sum to hand to a man who said that he could operate Kentucky's State Government WITHOUT NEW TAXES AND WITHIN THE PRESENT LEVELS OF REVENUE.

Here are the possibilities:

Tobacco

A rate increase on cigarettes. Estimated figures show, each cent of tax increase per package of cigarettes will bring $4 million in annual revenue.

Coal Mining

Also under study is a severance tax on mining industries. For each cent levied per ton of coal mined, the State can collect approximately $1 million in revenue, Luckett said.

Whiskey

A 10 per cent increase in the consumer tax rate on distilled spirits and beer and wine, could net an estimated $1 million for the State treasury each year.

Auto Licenses

A "reasonable" increase in the price of automobile licenses can produce as much as $15 million in additional revenue, Luckett said. (Ed's note: A 150% increase doesn't seem "reasonable.")

Insurance

In the area of insurance premium taxes, a 20 per cent rate increase can bring the state nearly $2 million in annual income. (Ed's note: This is high enough!)

Corporation Taxes

On corporation income tax rates, for each one per cent rate increase the Department estimates revenue near $6 million.

Income Taxes

The elimination of Federal tax deduction when computing the Kentucky taxable income is possible. This could mean at least $20 million each year for the Commonwealth, Luckett said.

Individual Income

On individual income tax returns, a rate adjustment of one per cent upward on all brackets is estimated to bring $50 million. Revenue officials estimate eliminating the deductibility of Federal income tax on the individual income tax return without a rate change could mean $32 million in revenue to the state.

Personal Services

The taxation of services, for each one per cent levy, the estimated figures show a possible $4 million in revenue. Services taxed would include garages, parking lots, laundry and dry cleaning, repair services etc., professional people.

Gambling

Another source of tax revenue open to the Commonwealth is a rate increase on pari-mutuel, Luckett said. A one per cent tax increase on pari-mutuel is estimated at $1 million in revenue.

The acceptance or rejection of Governor Nunn's tax proposals will be the acid test as to whether our elected representatives constitute The People's Lobby, or the tools of the powerful pressure groups.

We hope that Representative Henry Maddox and Senator Carroll Hubbard will give this urgent alternative their serious consideration.

Whatever the outcome of the new tax proposals we want both of these men to write us regarding their decisions.

TELL HIM SO

If you hear a kind word spoken
Of some worthy soul you know,
It may fill his heart with sunshine
If you only tell him so.

If a deed, however humble,
Helps you on your way to go,
Seek the one whose hand has helped you,
Seek him out and tell him so!

If your heart is touched and tender
Toward a sinner, lost and low,
It might help him to do better
If you'd only tell him so!

Oh, my sisters; oh, my brothers,
As o'er life's rough path you go,
If God's love has saved and kept you,
Do not fail to tell men so!

The Parson Speaks

THE CHRISTIAN LIGHT
SCRIPTURE READING
PHIL. 2:1-16
TEXT PHIL. 2:15-16;

"Among whom ye shine as lights in the world; holding forth the word of life."

Two special duties are taught here. The first is that of living the gospel in the sight of men. The second is that of activity making it known to others.

May we look at "living the gospel". "Among whom shine ye as lights of the world." It is in the imperative mood. In other words it is the duty of every Christian to "adorn the doctrine of God, our Savior in all things", to be a "living epistle known and read of all men," every day in common, constant, living to shine as light in the world, reflecting the light of the glorious "Sun of Righteousness!"

But only a good tree can bring forth good fruit, as only a pure fountain can send forth a pure stream; so, therefore, the first requisite for any pervading Christian influence is the possession of purity of heart — personal holiness. As a lamp can not burn without oil, so a Christian without holiness can give forth no light. Keep thy heart pure, for "out of it are the issues of life!"

A willingness to obey this command of light-bearing will lead us to make open confession of Christ before men. Christ himself said, "Neither do men light a candle and put it under a bushel." In order to shine as Christians, it is our duty to

By Brenda Rowlett

Today, students of social studies in primary as well as in upper grades will find a good supply of books to satisfy their curiosity about the multiplicity of tasks with which men occupy themselves. The books answer their "how" question—how we get our water, food, clothing, metals and oil, homes and other buildings; how men solve the problems of communication, transportation, and government. They answer the "what" questions as they describe what types of work men do in various parts of our country and the world; what types of communication, transportation, and government have been developed through the years.

Many recent books give children an understanding of the contemporary scene, while pointing out relationships to the past and future.

Let's examine a few books that will be of use to the students in social studies:

THE SUPREME COURT by Gerald W. Johnson. In 1787 no one realized exactly what the power of the Supreme Court was or could be. And today the Court is less familiar to us than any other part of the government. Yet, with beguiling simplicity, Gerald W. Johnson takes his readers into the courtroom and explains clearly how the Supreme Court functions and what its history has been. He shows, in particular, how two Chief Justices, John Marshall and Roger B. Taney, brought prestige to the court and gave it the power to make its decisions stick without the force of force. Certainly Mr. Johnson has no peer in his ability to make American history and government come to life for readers of all ages.

THE PRESIDENCY by Gerald

W. Johnson. The average American would find it hard to say exactly what the President does. A clear and interesting explanation of this complicated subject is what Mr. Johnson has achieved, analyzing the executive branch of our government in this brief and brilliant book. Here is living history, based on a matter that touches the life of every American. The book also answers such questions as why no President has ever become a dictator, how the Presidency has changed since the time of George Washington, and which men have done most to change it while they were in office.

THE STORY OF THE UNITED NATIONS by Katharine Savage. On October 24, 1945, the United Nations was born. Its short life has been stormy and insecure, but it stands today as a major hope for world peace and well-being. Representatives from more than a hundred member nations meet in the General Assembly, at the United Nations permanent headquarters in New York City. From this central organization, through its many overseas branches and its agencies and committees, the work of the United Nations is carried on all over the world. The International Court of Justice sits at The Hague and the World Health Organization is based on Geneva. There are United Nations agencies caring for Palestine refugees, helping to improve conditions in underdeveloped countries and striving to bring health and happiness to children of every nationality. Here is the story of the United Nations from its earliest wartime meetings to the tragic death of Dag Hammarskjöld and the period following the election of U Thant as Acting Secretary-General. It tells how the United Nations is constructed and how it works, of the people who made the plans and those who are carrying them out. There are clear accounts, linked to the historical backgrounds, of the major issues the United Nations has faced: the partition of Palestine, the Berlin blockade, the Korean War, the dispute over the Suez Canal and the crisis in the Congo. This is the fascinating story of the greatest union among nations that the world has ever known.

Come by the library and look at these and other books in the field of social studies that will be of interest to you.

Appearance speaks for itself. An attractive appearance can be the key that opens the door to friendships, a better you and even to happier family relations. If we were in business I am sure we would not hesitate to put the product we are selling into the most attractive container. The most important product we have to sell is ourselves. Our clothing and grooming are the package we present of ourselves to the public. Dress your age, keep fresh and dainty, be interested in others, have a variety of activities and interests, be happy and you will remain forever young and a charming person people will want to know.—Mrs. Catherine Thompson

There are so many kinds of attractive pots and pans on the market today that choosing among them may be difficult. We offer these suggestions to help you find just what you need:

Choose utensils with tight-fitting lids and flat bottoms. This helps save electricity or gas by taking full advantage of the heat from your stove unit.

Look for rounded corners and smooth edges to make cleaning easier.

Pots and pans from medium to heavyweight materials wear longer and give better cooking results.

Handles should be firmly attached and feel comfortable in your hand. If the handle is detachable make sure it holds firmly when attached. Many moderately priced saucepans have handles that stay cool even when the pan is hot.

Knobs on lids should be easy to grasp.

Pans should be well balanced so they will not tip over, whether empty or full.

Check the size of the pot or pan before you buy. Many have the pan size permanently marked on the bottom.

Careful shopping can give you attractive pots and pans with long, useful lives.—Mrs. Barletta Wrath

How far from the table edge should a place setting be? All silver, linen and dishes are placed one inch from the edge of the table. This rule is made to prevent danger of the silver being brushed off the table. If the table edge is rounded, this rule must be modified, because the pieces of silver must be parallel to each other. This means that all silver ends on a straight line drawn from the farthest spoon to the farthest fork. The inside knife and fork, and the plate, may then be 1 1/4 inches from the edge of the table. The basic rule must hold.—Miss Patricia Everett

Today's small houses and apartments are causing a trend toward space-saving furniture arrangements.

Arranging furniture to look "built-in" is one space-saver—and this arrangement is convenient, too. Placing furniture in a one-wall or an L-shaped arrangement helps give a "built-in" effect.

In the living room or den, you might arrange shelves for accessories, dishes and collections; bookcases; chests for storage; and desks to give a "built-in" look. Such an arrangement in a bedroom might include two or three chests and a dressing table.

To give a "built-in" effect, pieces of furniture should be of the same height or adjusted to the same height. For example, you may need to stack chests or bookcases on low benches to bring them up to the desired height.—Mrs. Juanita Amonett

4-H JUNIOR LEADERSHIP

Decisions?? Decisions? As an experienced 4-H club member, do you have difficulty deciding on a project? Have you ever thought about Junior Leadership? Here is an opportunity to practice skills you have learned and to help younger club members at the same time. Learn the art of leadership by serving under an experienced adult leader. First learn that a good junior leader must be a good follower. When you have the opportunity to serve as a junior leader, accept the responsibility willingly, do it well, and learn to do by doing.—Mrs. Dean Roper

SHOULD CHILDREN BE GIVEN AN ALLOWANCE?

All parents give their children money, whether it is doled out at each request or given in regular sums at regular intervals such as an allowance. In my planning for learning the use of money, one of the essentials is that the child have some money, even though it is a small amount, that is his own to manage.

How much allowance should be given? It depends upon the child's age, his needs, his experience in handling money, the family income, and many other things concerned with the particular situation. The amount needs to be increased as the child grows and his needs and ability to manage money increase.

What is the value of an allowance? The real educational value of the allowance can only come if it really belongs to the child and he controls the spending. Although a child should be permitted to decide how to spend his allowance, he needs guidance from his parents. Their job is to give him experiences in which he finds out the value of money, the regret accompanying the unwise use of it, and the satisfaction that follows wise spending.

Adults too, sometimes have difficulty in keeping the right attitude toward money. It is unrealistic to say money is not important, but the important thing is not how much we have, but how we spend what we do have. Perhaps it helps to realize that money won't buy love, character, friends or a happy home.—Miss Irma Hamilton

Bert Davis underwent major surgery in Mayfield hospital the past week and is doing as well as expected. All friends hope he will respond soon and get well wishes are extended to this fine citizen. His children are attending his bedside.

Rev. Russell Rogers filled his regular appointment at New Salem Baptist Church the past Sunday at 11 a. m. and also at the evening service, held preceding B. T. U. meeting. Sunday School is held at 10 a. m., with Cleo Cherry as superintendent of all departments.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Lassiter and sons, Mark and Stevie, of Martin were in this section as Sunday dinner guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bulton Lassiter.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Carbutt Rickman are improving at their home near here. Both have been in declining health for several weeks and we hope they will be feeling better very soon.

Mrs. Monroe McClain is resting more comfortably at this writing, although remains a-bed at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Roy Colley, and Mr. Colley in Farmington. We hope she will improve very soon.

Miss Margaret Bynum had her family Sunday dinner last Sunday, when Mr. and Mrs. Sam Mathis and daughters, Sammie Jane, Liz and Becky, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Hawks, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bynum and son, Hal, gathered and spent the day with her. This has been their custom for several years.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Mathis are now doing very nicely at their home in our village. Each has been in declining health most of the winter months.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Vincent, another couple of good citizens near here, are also doing well. Mr. Vincent continues his barber shop at his home, taking care of all his former customers.

Rev. Charles Wall will fill the pulpit at Knob Creek Church of Christ on next Sunday at 11 a. m. Bible study begins at 10 a. m.

WPSD-TV To Start Adult Education Class

A series of high school television classes, sponsored by the Community Action Agencies in the viewing area of WPSD-TV, in the states of Kentucky, Tennessee, Illinois and Missouri will be shown on Channel 6 from 6:30 A. M. to 7:00 A. M. beginning March 4, 1968.

The need for adult education courses is universal throughout the nation. According to the 1960 census, the percentage of people over 25 years of age, in the eight counties of the purchase area who have not finished high school are as follows:

Ballard County 73 percent; Carlisle County 73 percent; Fulton County 73 percent; Marshall County 72 percent; Calloway County 69 percent; Graves County 75 percent; Hickman County 69 percent;

McCracken County 65 percent.

The purpose of this program is to prepare people who failed to finish high school to take the high school general equivalency test (GED). The certificate given for passing this test will meet the high school graduation requirements of most jobs.

Ballard, Carlisle, Hickman and Fulton counties are in the process of setting up study centers for those people needing help with the course.

Anyone interested in this Program is urged to contact your local Community Action Office and make arrangements for the books that you will need.

The Ballard, Carlisle, Hickman and Fulton County office is located in Clinton, Kentucky, 304 Cresap Street. The phone number is 502-653-1811.

Mental Health Center Installs "Distress Number" .... 442-1697

Marlow R. Harston, M. D., the Executive Director of the Community Mental Health Center of Western Kentucky, is pleased to announce that the Center is now prepared to deliver Emergency Psychiatric Services (response to attempted or potential suicide, extreme anxiety, acute alcoholism, etc.) on a 24 hour per day - 7 day per week basis.

The Emergency Service, centralized about the Paducah Mental Health Center is designed to react to a Psychiatric Emergency in a matter of minutes in any area of the 9-county Region.

It is requested that all Emergency calls be placed to the Paducah Center—Telephone 442-1697. During regular working hours the caller will be placed in immediate contact with a member of the professional staff, who will initiate the necessary action. During non-working hours, the caller will be put in contact with the professional person without delay by means of a telephone answering service. In any case, Dr. Harston stressed, immediate help will be initiated.

The Community Mental Health Center is affiliated with hospitals throughout the Region in order to more promptly react to Emergency situations and will, of course, require the cooperation of all agencies and activities concerned with the safety and well-being of our citizens.

In a comprehensive campaign to acquaint all concerned in the 9-county region with the Emergency Service, letters were sent to all interested people and organizations and a card provided with the necessary information. However, the Business Administrator of the Regional Program, Capt. Gaylord T. Forrest, emphasizes that it is important that everyone needing this information receive it—and that a supply of the cards are available on request to him at Center Headquarters, 308 Guthrie Building, Paducah, Kentucky 42001.

With the provision of this vital service, your 9-county region's mental health and mental retardation program continues to lead the way as a model community effort.

Senate Candidate Peden Names Industrial Leader To Campaign

Katherine Peden, candidate for the Democratic Senatorial nomination, has named Lee B. Thomas, Sr., chairman of her state finance committee.

Miss Peden, front-runner for the Democratic nomination, seeks to oppose Republican Senator Thruson Morton this fall.

She told a Louisville press conference that Mr. Thomas, long noted for developing Kentucky industrially, "is a sincere and serious man, a doer and an achiever."

She also pointed out that she has "one interest" in running for the United States Senate—"betterment of the lives of the people of Kentucky, and the people of the nation. I, like most Kentuckians, have had to work and work hard for everything I have. I want to go to the U. S. Senate to work hard for Kentucky," Miss Peden said.

"And, in the Senate, I would not vote the way Senator Morton does—against education, against health, against housing, against flood control, against tax relief for the Kentucky businessman and the Kentucky workman," Miss Peden said.

Miss Peden, who set records bringing new industry and jobs to Kentucky when she was Commerce Commissioner, said that Senator Morton "can finance his campaign like a multi-millionaire."

"My campaign must be financed by people in Kentucky who want the things that Senator Morton votes against—improvements in education, health, flood control, housing, tax relief," Miss Peden said.

Mr. Thomas heads Thomas Industries, Inc., which has two plants in Kentucky, and international headquarters in Louisville. It is one of the world's leading producers of lighting products and painting equipment.

Mr. Thomas told the press conference he believes "Kentucky needs Katie Peden in the United States Senate—she will do a job for Kentucky and for our country that we can be proud of. We need her youth, her wisdom and her energy in the United States Senate," he said.

Also announced at the press conference was a statewide appreciation dinner for Miss Peden, which will be held in Louisville on March 16. Henry Offutt, a Louisville banker and civic leader, is the chairman of the appreciation dinner.

Club Conduct Course Is Set For Next Month

A call to order, a gavel rap and the sounds of a meeting in session will mingle at Kentucky Dam Village near Gilbertsville, March 15-17. The occasion will be the fourth Parliamentary Workshop Weekend organized by the Kentucky Department of Parks.

Teaching the course in basic meeting laws will be Mrs. Francis M. Pennington, Registered Parliamentarian, National Association of Parliamentarians. Mrs. Pennington says the study group will actually work through the process of a proper meeting—from its opening to adjournment—with emphasis placed upon the basic knowledge needed for conducting such a meeting.

There will be study divisions examining parliamentary terms, the responsibilities and requirements of each club officer, the role of the participating member, the correct form for minutes, the procedure for reports, the mechanics of elections and motion presentation and processing.

Any interested person is welcome to participate in the weekend. In addition to lodging and meal cost, there is a registration fee of $7.50 to cover the cost of the course. Reservations may be made by contacting Kentucky Dam Village State Park, Gilbertsville, Ky. 42044. Phone number (Area Code 502) 362-4271.

Dear Paul:

OK, Paul, I'm right with you. Your sales tax seems to be high at 5 cents. Our is 2 cents, but we have you skinned on auto tax, if yours is only $5.00. Mine is $37.26 for 1968, and drops about 7% each year, and I am driving a 1964 Buick.

Our governor ran on no new taxes, but is favoring 5c per pack on cigarettes (increase) and $1.60 per gallon liquor, thereby getting by on new taxes.

But what is he going to do when school teachers are demanding $1,000 per year increase in salaries and threatening to strike if they do not get it?

And labor unions and government increasing wages to $1.60 per hour, which is more than I have worked for from sun-up to sun-down.

The unions and government together are putting many little businesses out of business altogether, so what is a wage increase, when you cannot get a job and are strangling the little boys out of business.

We are drifting into dictatorship as fast as possible.

Deaths

Woodson Morris

Woodson Morris, an attorney of San Antonio, Texas, died last Saturday afternoon, February 17, in the Baptist Memorial Hospital at San Antonio.

Funeral services and burial were in San Antonio on Monday, February 19.

Mr. Morris, a native of Fulton, was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Morris. He attended public school in Fulton, Burnam and Hughes prep school in Springfield, Tenn., and Centre College in Danville, Ky. He had made his home in Texas for more than sixty years.

Surviving are one sister, Mrs. L. O. Bradford, and one brother, Dudley Morris, both of Fulton, and one niece, Mrs. John F. Kizer of Milan, Tenn. Mr. and Mrs. Kizer and Mr. Morris attended the funeral.

Mrs. Harry Yates

Mrs. Harry Yates died in Hillview Hospital on Monday afternoon, February 19, following an illness of three months.

Funeral services were held in Pilot Oak Church of Christ Wednesday, February 21, with Bro. William Hardison officiating. Burial in charge of Jackson Funeral Home of Dukedom, was in Oak Grove Cemetery.

Mrs. Yates, 64, was born in Graves County, the daughter of the late James and Nora Cochran Singleton. She was a member of the Pilot Oak Church of Christ.

Surviving are her husband, Harry Yates, of Route 3, Fulton; one sister, Mrs. Maud Crittenden of South Fulton; two brothers, Orvil Singleton of Hickman and Zell Singleton of Pilot Oak, several nieces and nephews.

J. T. Willey

Johnny Thompson Willey died Saturday morning, February 17, in the Fulton Hospital.

Funeral services were held Monday, February 19, in Hornbeak Funeral Home chapel with Rev. George Comes of Fulton and Rev. H. E. Russell of Paducah officiating. Burial was in Pleasant View Memorial Gardens.

Mr. Willey, 74, was a retired barber of Fulton. He was born in Hickman County, the son of the late James W. and Mattie Phillips Willey. He was a member of the First Methodist Church, the Mormon B. Daniel Sunday School class, Veterans of World War I and Masonic Lodge No. 172.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Clara Willey of Fulton; two sons, William Earl Willey of Bastrop, La., and Randall Willey of Los Angeles; two brothers, Richard and Ernest Willey of Fulton, and three grandchildren.

Mrs. Hazel Watkins

Funeral services for Mrs. Hazel Carter Watkins were held Sunday, February 18, in the First Christian Church at Frisco, Texas, with burial in Little Elm Cemetery.

Mrs. Watkins, 75, was the widow of Letcher Watkins, a rural mail carrier at Crutchfield for many years. She died in Frisco, where she had made her home for several years. She was a native of Texas.

Her only survivor is a sister, who resides in Frisco.

Mrs. Lannom Attends Funeral Of Relative

Mrs. Carlos Lannom was called to Hickman last week to attend the funeral of her aunt, Mrs. Mozelle Mobley, who died suddenly in a Memphis hospital. Mrs. Mobley was the sister of Mrs. Than Rogers, Mrs. Lannom's mother.

The Lannoms are now residing in Palo Alto, California, where Mr. Lannom is Pacific Coast manager for Laidlaw Book Company. Mrs. Lannom and Mrs. Rogers are visiting in Bowling Green, Ky., this week with Mr. and Mrs. David Hancock.

Mrs. Hancock is the former Phyllis Kelly of Hickman.

David Dunn and Cindy Homra have been chosen as Outstanding Teenagers of America. They were nominated by the faculty of FHS.

Co-editors Of Kennel Are Named Outstanding Teenagers Of America

From the FHS "Kennel"

The Outstanding Americans Foundation announced that David Dunn and Cindy Homra were selected as Outstanding Teenagers of America for 1967. They were nominated by the FHS faculty.

David and Cindy are very active in school affairs. They are co-editors of the KENNEL and were elected as "Most Likely to Succeed" in the Senior Favorites. They are both members of Mu Alpha Theta, Quill and Scroll, Honor Society, and FTA. They have both been candidates for Mr. and Miss FHS.

In scholastic ability, they are honor roll students and have received three monograms. They both received the FHS award their junior year.

In the sports role, David has participated in football for four years and track for two years, and he is a member of the Bulldogs Club. Cindy has served as cheerleader for three years and was candidate for football queen her junior year.

David now holds the position of the Senior Class President and the FHS Sweetheart. He also is an Eagle Scout and was a delegate to the World's Fair.

Cindy is serving as president of FHS and was selected as the delegate to Kentucky Girls State in 1967.

The Outstanding Americans Foundation, a nonprofit foundation dedicated to honoring, inspiring and encouraging young people to take full advantage of the opportunities in America, sponsors this awards program annually. This is the first year Fulton High School has participated in the program.

Mid-year Grads At Murray Include 27 From This Area

Another record mid-year class was graduated from Murray State University at the end of January.

A year ago, 179 students earned bachelor's degrees and 13 received master's degrees.

Fulton Countians receiving bachelor's degrees included the following: William H. Amberg, Harriet Baldridge, Cathy Campbell Burrow, Margie C. Evans, Anell Goodwin, Betty G. Harrison, Mary R. House, James H. Newton, Philip Putnam, Dan Shelton, Edward B. Wiley.

Betty Jane Roberts Herbig from Hickman County was named.

Humphrey Will Be Featured Dinner Speaker

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey will be the principal speaker at the annual Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner to be held April 6 in Louisville, Senator Lawrence W. Weatherby, chairman of the Kentucky State Democratic Central Executive Committee, announced today.

The $50 a plate fund-raising affair will be conducted at Convention Center in downtown Louisville.

Weatherby said he was also pleased to announce the appointment of George E. Dudley, Louisville attorney, as chairman of the dinner. Dudley was vice chairman of the Jefferson County Democratic Campaign Committee for the 1967 general election.

The Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner is conducted annually by the Democrats as a major fund raising affair for the party in Kentucky.

RIVER PORT

In river travel days, Burnside, Ky., was an important port, the head of navigation on the Cumberland River. The entire town was relocated when the old site was covered by the waters of Lake Cumberland.

Cooperation

As the girl firefly said to the boy firefly she had just lit: "You glow your way, and I'll glow my way."

CONSERVATIONS

There were some 101 billion telephone conversations carried over Bell System facilities in 1967, compared with 97.5 billion in 1966. Conversations on an average business day were 306,400,000. Long distance calls were up 8.4 per cent to 5.3 billion. Overseas calls totaled 12.6 million, an increase over 1966 of 26 per cent.

PLANT INVESTMENT

Bell System Physical Facilities, - Telephones, telephone lines, equipment, buildings, etc. - represent a net investment of about $32.3 billion, compared with $30 billion at the end of 1966. Ten years ago in 1957 it was $14.8 billion.

EARLY EXPLORER

Until Dr. Thomas Walker and a small band of surveyors entered Kentucky in 1750, it remained largely uncharted and unknown.

Mrs. Bill Rice Named Chairman Of Local Red Cross Volunteer Group

Mrs. Bill Rice has been named chairman of the Red Cross Volunteers who serve in the Fulton hospitals and nursing homes, according to an announcement made by Bud Davis, chapter chairman.

Mrs. Rice succeeds Mrs. Glynn Bushart, who has completed her term of office and will serve her mother as co-chairman.

Mrs. Bushart organized the volunteers a year ago and has trained several classes. These volunteers have been on duty two hours each week in Fulton Hospital, Hillview Hospital, Haws Memorial Nursing Home, Parkway Manor Nursing Home and McAlister's Rest Home. Schedules are changed every three months, thereby giving each volunteer an opportunity to work in all locations.

The following have just completed the training course and will start their volunteer service on March 1st:

Mrs. Irene Bizzle, Mrs. Juanita Bizzle, Miss Anna Lou Caldwell, Mrs. Juanita Copeland, Mrs. Elizabeth Darnell, Mrs. Audrey Hutchen, Mrs. Dorothy Jackson, Mrs. Annie Lee Johnson, Mrs. Hazel McAlister, Mrs. Linda McPade, Mrs. Sara Beth Martin, Mrs. Nancy Roberts and Mrs. Sara Snyder.

Mrs. Louise Killebrew has completed a year as captain of volunteers serving in nursing and rest homes and is being replaced by Mrs. Dorothy Graves and Mrs. Mildred Sellers, who will serve as co-captains during the coming year. Other captains are Mrs. Ernest Fall for Fulton Hospital and Mrs. George Moore for Hillview.

Mrs. Bushart has trained a total of ninety-one volunteers; however, a number of them are not able to work regularly for various reasons and more are needed. Another training class will be held in June and anyone wishing to volunteer for this service should sign up at the Chamber of Commerce.

Here Are The Results of Test-Planting Corn In Hickman County In 1967:

Yields of corn varied 68.4 bushels per acre at different levels of population and nitrogen fertility in University of Kentucky Research Plots on the Harold Potts Farm in Hickman County during 1967.

All plots received 150 pounds of P205 and 180 pounds of K20 per acre, so that population rates and nitrogen fertilizer would be the only variable factors.

In general, about 18,000 stalks per acre gave the best yields with medium height hybrids, while 22,000 stalks per acre proved best with the short, early maturing hybrids. Also, 150 pounds of nitrogen per acre gave the best yields.

The average of corn plots on the Potts farm follows.

NOTICE TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS:

In past years we have been sending you three notices before we discontinue your subscription.

We realize that sometimes these things slip your mind and we have found that the third notice does serve to remind many of our good subscribers that we are allowing extra leniency in giving you time to pay your subscription.

However, due to the fact that postage has increased, as have all other costs this year, in the future we are going to send only two notices.

The first notice will be in advance of the expiration of your subscription. In the event that you have not sent in your renewal within thirty days after the first notice, we will send you a second and final notice and allow you thirty days after this notice to send your check or come by and pay your renewal. After the second notice, if you have not renewed your subscription, we will be obliged to assume that you do not wish to continue receiving The News and will, therefore, have to remove your name from our mailing list.

We dislike to be this abrupt about the matter, but feel sure you will understand that rising costs make this necessary.

It will be greatly appreciated if you will send in your renewal when you receive your first notice.

Sincerely, your friends,
Jo and Paul Westpheling

Pop Concert Delights Audience With Many Outstanding Numbers

From the FHS "Kennel"

Did you see "Flower Drum Song" on the NBC movie, Saturday, February 3? Better yet did you hear the highlights from "Flower Drum Song" at the FHS band Pop Concert, Saturday, February 10? If you were in attendance you must agree that it was a really great performance.

Did you ever stop to think how the band felt while you were sitting out in the audience waiting to see how much of your fifty cents their performance was worth? At that same time they were hustling around back stage setting up chairs, warming up instruments and straightening ties. Most of all they were wondering what the verdict would be after their performance.

Granted, they aren't the Philharmonic nor are they Sousa's Band. I guess you could call them "Brown's Band" giving their own rendition of "Carousell", "Malguna", "Tijuana Brass", "Fantasticks", "Shadow of Your Smile" - you name it and they'll at least try it!

You must admit that after "Thundering Drums" you wanted to stand up and shout. Both for the band and for that great drum soloist Chuck Simons from Murray. That was a show in itself!

You may be wondering where

your money goes. The proceeds go toward new instruments, or sometimes new uniforms, since band members come in all sizes. Always about two weeks ahead of time the members get out and sell tickets from door to door just trying to drum up business.

Well? Did you hear the band's Pop Concert? Even if you didn't don't despair! The band has given you another chance. Just be sure to be there for the Spring Concert, May 10 at 8:00 p.m. No telling what they will have planned.

CHESTNUT GLADE

By Mrs. Harvey Vaughn

Ches Morrison, whose condition has been critical for the past several weeks, has improved so that he was dismissed from the hospital and is continuing to improve at his home.

Mrs. Elnora Vaughan, who has spent the past several weeks in St. Louis with her sister, Rebecca, and in Joliet, Ill., with her nephew, Harmon Hagler, and family, has returned to her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bowden, from Madisonville, Ky., spent the weekend with his mother, Mrs. Nell Bowden, and attended service at Sandy Branch Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Cummings and daughter, Sabrina, who have been living in Franklin, Tenn., the past few months, have returned to this community.

Bro. Jackie Brush, from Nashville, preached at Sandy Branch Sunday. He, his wife, his mother and his father were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Barber.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Brundage are looking forward to a visit from their son, Harold, and wife from California. They received a call from Harold, saying they were starting Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bonnie Cummings spent a few days last week in Franklin, Tenn., and helped Dale and Corine move.

Mrs. V. C. Simpson sold her farm to Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Stoker, from Chicago, who will move to the farm in the near future. Mrs. Simpson expects to make her home in Martin, where she is employed.

Work has been started on the Burette Ross home, near Ruthville. Word has been received from Mrs. Opal Pounds that she has been a patient in the hospital in Parsons, Kansas, due to an acute attack of arthritis. She is now back at the home of her daughter and is improving.

Why, When and How to prune shrubs was explained by Mrs. Paul Reams, garden project leader, when the Chestnut Glade Club met in the home of Mrs. J. M.

Paris For All Electric Shavers At:

ANDREWS
Jewelry Company

Burke for the regular February meeting last Thursday at 10 a. m. Mrs. Ada Rhodes conducted the devotional and Mrs. Johnny Hazelwood read the Club Creed. Each member answered the roll call by telling of a visit made to a shut-in.

Mrs. Johnny Hazelwood gave a report from the recent County Council meeting. She reported that Mrs. Grace Prins has been employed as a Home Agent. A welcome is extended to the well-known Mrs. Prins, who has been a very efficient assistant agent for the past several years.

The year books were completed, with meeting places, hostesses and those assisting with each meeting being shown.

A bountiful noon-day meal was enjoyed to the members and four welcomed guests, Mrs. Norma Rogers, Mrs. Jeter Wheat, Mrs. James Clark and Miss Lucretia Reams. Mrs. Wheat was welcomed as a new member.

In the afternoon the home furnishing leader, Mrs. V. C. Simpson, discussed rhythm in furniture and accessories in the home for a more pleasing appearance. Mrs. Myrtle Temple, home management leader, discussed the "Using of Dollar Sense" in the buying of food, housing, transportation and taxes. Mrs. Jimmie Westbrook gave a detailed lesson on the new sizes of patterns.

Mrs. Jim Burke directed the recreation, with Mrs. Johnny Hazelwood the winner. Mrs. James Clark had the numbered flag which matched the number on the door prize.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Ellen Brown, with Mrs. Ada Rhodes as co-hostess, the third Thursday in March. Visitors are welcome.

BIG BUSINESS—Gov. Louie B. Nunn announced that 1967 Kentucky tourist income was up $21 million over 1966 during a Governor's Conference on Travel and Tourism in Louisville Feb. 6. Tourists spent $316 million in the Bluegrass State last year, according to figures prepared by Dr. Lewis C. Copeland, University of Tennessee economist. State Public Information Commissioner Jim Host (left), whose department handles the State's travel promotion program, was chairman of the conference.

PILOT OAK

Mrs. O. F. Taylor

I'm getting so anxious for spring to come, but it's not getting here very fast, snowing every week.

Mr. and Mrs. Vodie Floyd had as supper guests Thursday night, Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Floyd, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Glover and Tracy of Mayfield, and Bill Floyd of Detroit.

Mrs. Boyd Casey is feeling better, after being sick most of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Carr, of Lone Oak, visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Emerson and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Carr, Sunday.

Mrs. Maggie Pankey celebrated her birthday Sunday. She only has three sisters living and all of them came to see her, also several nieces and their families.

Mrs. Alma Boulton and Mrs. Lexie Floyd called to see Mrs. Edith Yates Wednesday afternoon. We are glad to hear that Vestal Coltharp is better and hopes to come home soon. He's in Lourdes Hospital in Paducah.

Several from Pilot Oak attended the Golden Wedding celebration, honoring Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Ruddle of Fulton, held at the One and All Club last Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Joyce Scott, Renee, Rhonda and Robin, of Lone Oak, visited their mother and grandmother, Mrs. O. F. Taylor, Sunday.

Mrs. Mollie Erranton was the guest of Mrs. Lexie Floyd one afternoon last week.

Mrs. Edith Yates is slowly improving at the home of her daughter, Mrs. B. G. Lowry.

Mrs. Ruth Crittenden is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Emily Glover, of near Palmersville at this time.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Puckett, of Lone Oak, were Sunday guests of his mother, Mrs. Hattie Puckett, of Pilot Oak.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Givens of near Water Valley called to see Mrs. L. A. Rowland in the Murray Hospital Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Yates, William D. and LaNelle, called on Mrs. Cassie Taylor late Sunday afternoon.

Local Masonic Lodge Is Host

Roberts Lodge No. 172, F&AM, will be hosts for the First District celebration and all Master Masons in the district are invited to attend and enjoy a good meal and good fellowship of Masonry.

The celebration is being held at 7:30 p. m. on Washington's Birthday, February 22, in the Masonic Hall in Fulton.

Rev. Gerald Stow, pastor of the South Fulton Baptist Church, will give a talk about George Washington's wonderful work in masonry.

COUNTY ATTORNEY

In 1801 Henry Clay was county attorney of Harrison County. The courthouse at Cynthiana, built in 1854, contains many legal records written by Clay.

PIERCE STATION

By Mrs. Charles Lowe

Quite nice crowds attended church services at Chapel Hill and Johnson's Grove yesterday. Several were absent from each church account illness.

W. I. Gossum, of Route 2, was taken to the hospital Sunday morning. We wish for him an early recovery.

Ernest Lowe has been on the sick list the past two weeks, but is getting better.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Stevens and children, of near St. Louis, spent the week end with relatives here and attended the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Bennett at Water Valley Saturday afternoon. We extend congratulations to the young couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Smythson, of Coulterville, Ill., spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Bud Stem. Afternoon visitors Sunday in the Stem home were Mrs. Wallace Cunningham and children and Miss Murphy from Paducah.

Rev. James Holt, pastor at Johnson's Grove, was out visiting the sick and shut-ins Saturday afternoon.

Wednesday night of last week Mr. and Mrs. J. C. (Clarence) Roberts attended a leadership meeting (or school) in Milan. This school was started in April 1932, nearly sixteen years ago. Mr. Roberts, with several others, received the Golden Rule Pen for good leadership and unselfish work in the school. Congratulations to Mr. Roberts. We are sure he deserved the pen. Just recently he attended a meeting of the Obion County School Board in Union City and received a nice plaque for service rendered during the past fifteen years. Just now he is crippled with arthritis, but manages to get out some.

Prestonsburg, the seat of Floyd County, was known as Preston's Station during Civil War days.

OBION COUNTY

Joe Martin, County Agent
Union City, Tenn.

OPPORTUNITIES

YES, some opportunities are available here in Obion County for farmers to find the very latest information and research available in making plans for the 1968 crop year. A typical week has started with meetings being available on a wide range of different farm enterprises.

16,000,000 pounds of milk is a lot of milk and that is about the amount of milk Obion County Dairymen are producing. CAN THE DAIRYMAN COMPETE FOR LABOR will be one of the featured topics Thursday night, February 22, at The Farm Bureau Hall in Union City. Ray Spann and V. D. Parsons, U. T. Dairy Specialists will also discuss dairy feeding, management and equipment.

The Farm Management school will continue next Monday night, February 26, with U. T. Animal Husbandman Bill Tyrrell being the featured speaker and leading the discussion on Beef Cattle Production.

CONSIDER THESE: As you are making your plans for the 1968 Cropping Year, you should stop and consider some changes in the recommendations for some of the chemicals that are used on cotton and soybeans.

The major changes involve the depth of incorporating Planavin and Treflan, Research in Tennessee and other states points out that deep incorporation (placing the chemical deeper than 2 inches) often results in stunting of the crop.

Research has also indicated that disk in the herbicides, then bedding, and dragging off the beds before planting results in deep incorporation. Therefore if you are making your plans to bed your cotton, we would recommend Plan-incorporating the herbicides (Plan-avon or Treflan) after bedding and not the above mentioned practice.

Repeated diskings, especially with heavy discs, also appear to incorporate the chemical deeper than 2 inches in many cases. The disk should not cut deeper than 3 to 4 inches and be pulled at least 4 miles per hour in order to get the chemical mixed with the soil.

FARM DATES TO REMEMBER
February 22 - Dairy Meeting - 7:00 p. m. - Farm Bureau Hall.
February 26 - Beef Meeting - Obion Central High School.

March 5 - Obion County Angus Sale.

March 13 - Plow Boy Angus Sale - Covington.

March 21 - Feeder Pig Sale - Dresden.

April 2 - Feeder Calf Sale - West Tennessee Auction Company.

IRON MANUFACTURE

Manufacture of iron products in Kentucky began so early that men digging the ore required a guard to protect them from marauding Indians.

Two Representatives From FHS Named To Kentucky Girls State

From the FHS "Kennel"

Happiness is being chosen a citizen of Kentucky Girls State. This is the opportunity which will be experienced by Cathy Hyland and Nan Myers. Donna Wall was named alternate. Our candidates are sponsored by the American Legion Post of Fulton.

This state is a mythical state where girls entering their senior year in high school from all over Kentucky are placed in mythical cities and counties for the purpose of learning the political structures of their own real city, county and state government. What they learn during their week at Girls State will give them a better understanding of the responsibilities they will face as they grow into adult citizens of this country.

Girls chosen for this honor are of the highest caliber. Cathy and Nan were selected by the faculty of FHS on such qualifications as leadership, character, honesty, cooperativeness, courage and scholarship.

Cathy was recently selected one of the recipients of the Citizenship Awards. She is a member of the Honor Society, Mu Alpha Theta, Quill and Scroll, FTA and FHS band. She is the news editor of the KENNEL staff.

Nan is an all-around student and takes an active role in school affairs, also. She serves on the KENNEL staff as advertising manager, and she is a member of the Annual staff and future Nurses Club. She was a class officer and candidate for Miss FHS in her sophomore year.

Yes, Girls State will be happiness to these two girls as the great panorama of political processes which have shaped this nation of ours into the greatest nation on earth will lay bare for their minds to examine. That exciting week will become a highlight of their high school years which they will never forget!

ELECTED PRESIDENT

Elmer W. Counce, assistant professor of agronomy at The University of Tennessee at Martin, was elected president of the Tennessee Council of the Chapter of the Soil Conservation Society of America at the state-wide meeting held recently at Nashville.

"If there's a way the I.C. can increase your profits, you can bet BRAINFARE will find it."

William B. Johnson, President, Illinois Central Railroad

We're well aware these days that our customers are taking a hard look at their distribution costs. That's only right. For saving on distribution is one of the few areas left for a company to improve its profits.

When our customers take that hard look, they'll see a new Illinois Central. We've invested big in computerized facilities, hired outstanding specialists for our staff. We call this combination of electronic and human brains BRAINFARE. And BRAINFARE has chalked up some significant gains already—cut empty car miles, moved cars through yards fast, pushed shipments to destinations faster.

Rent-a-Train is a BRAINFARE brainchild. The Department of Transportation calls this new concept "a significant breakthrough in volume rate-making to the mutual benefit of both railroad and shipper."

If this be enlightened self-interest, we invite you to make the most of it.

To break the tie on the World Affairs Test, Terry Dallas and Gordon Jones spoke at the Rotary Club along with the two winners from South Fulton. Terry Dallas was chosen as the winner and Gordon Jones the runner-up.

Dallas Selected By Rotary Club To The World Affairs Institute

From the FHS "Kennel"

On February 7, the Rotary Club's annual World Affairs test was given to a group of junior boys. The test was open to all junior boys and was supervised by the social sciences teacher, Mrs. Cardwell. Gordon Jones and Terry Dallas emerged as the two delegates to speak at the Rotary Club. Generally, the boys with the two top scores are to give brief autobiographies and then talk on some world event. This year, Gordon spoke on US-South American relations and Terry discussed the Franco-American situation. After the speeches the Rotarians made the final decision as to who will go to Cincinnati. Terry Dallas was chosen as the winner and as first prize he receives an all expense-paid trip to the World Affairs Institute at the University of Cincinnati on March 17 and 18. At the institute, he will attend lectures and participate in group discussions with people his own age. The institute will be conducted under the supervision of university officials and men prominent in the fields of political science, economics and international affairs. The questions on the test involved the international events of the past year and men of global importance. Although the questions were, for the most part, multiple-choice, the test was considered to be a hard one. Some comments were, "I think I got two right," "Is there really a Prince of Cambodia?" while another was typically junior, "What's a map!" The delegates are given a substantial amount of spending money, and also, plenty of free time. What they don't spend they have to give back, so, that story is old already. The International Rotary Club has provided a great opportunity for the delegate and at a time when he is probably thinking about college and a life occupation. This could open up something that he might not think of otherwise.

New Book Helps Locate Child's Musical Talent

Do you ever wonder if your child has any talent for music? For several decades, the elusive quality called talent has puzzled the experts in their attempts to measure it. This topic is the reason for a new book written by University of Kentucky Prof. Paul Lehman. Called "Tests and Measurements in Music," Dr. Lehman's book attempts to define the problems in evaluating abilities and achievements in music and providing the public school music teacher—the one person closest to the problem—more tools with which to work and a better perspective of the problem. The book is one of six in the Prentice-Hall Foundations of Music Education Series, which, according to Allen P. Britton, editor of the series, "provides music educators with a unified but highly flexible and completely authoritative treatment of the most important professional concerns." Dr. Lehman earned the Ph.D. degree at the University of Michigan. An associate professor of music education and director of music education in the UK Department of Music, he currently is serving as music specialist in the U. S. Office of Education in Washington while on a leave of absence from UK.

be known as Christians.

But we must not overlook the fact that there is active duty to be done also—that of making known the gospel to the world. "Holding forth the word of life," Christ's commission was, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to all creatures."

This duty rests upon Christians everywhere. God intends that every Christian shall be a missionary of the cross. We are called to be witnesses. Besides, if Christians do not evangelize the world, we are sure no others will do it. The wicked will not make an effort to convert the world or the wicked.

The work is to be accomplished mainly by, "holding forth the word of life"—God's life-giving word. The gospel of the Son of God is the instrument we are to use. But you may ask, "How is the work to be done?" As a practical fact, how am I to carry out the command of the text? I cannot go abroad as a missionary; what can I do? When Christ was about to leave the earth he gave his disciples a command. It was to preach the gospel to every creature. But how could twelve men carry out such a command as that? But let us not forget that he put in one clause which made the performance of duty possible. They were to preach, "beginning at Jerusalem." They were to set about the work where they were and carry on as long and as far as they could.

As professing Christians let each ask himself or herself some questions. Am I shining? What sort of light am I giving? Is it safe for others to follow me? Is there any danger of others stumbling over me? Am I holding forth the word of life.
