

Even though teachers in elementary schools are required to create lesson plans for "content" such as science or math that incorporate state/common core standards, it is also possible to incorporate state art standards into any grade or class. Not only can teachers incorporate both standards, they can also make lessons more hands-on. I plan to show how a teacher can locate and incorporate art standards for any grade or lesson plan. A lesson sample will focus on a kindergarten lesson for math and science that adds activities and objectives connected to art. I will also demonstrate how to do assessments for both the state standards and art standards in the same lesson.
