Illinois Central Railroad Planning Major Expansion In Fulton; Top Official Reviews 90-Day Job Notice

The Twin Cities of Fulton, Kentucky and South Fulton, Tennessee have always been known as a railroad town.

Within the next two years it will not only live up to its nearly century-old image, but out-distance the distinction threefold.

In its constant efforts to improve the pattern of traffic along the vast system, Fulton is first on the list for a major re-classification with a program in motion to build a giant new yard here and to triple the number of railroad tracks now coming into the city.

The announcement was made to the Fulton News late Wednesday afternoon by O. C. Zimmerman, vice-president of operations for the IC and well known in Fulton. "There will be about 45 tracks coming into Fulton's new yards when the program is completed in two years," the dynamic official said, making Fulton the major point for reclassification on the entire system. Another reclassification point is planned for Memphis and possibly at another point along the line.

In discussing the matter of last week's notice to about 72 local employees that their jobs would be abolished in ninety days, Mr. Zimmerman briefed the News editor on the background of the notice and the circumstances surrounding its being subsequently rescinded.

"Our railroad is giving the highest priorities to do a better job for our clients, transportation-wise. In computerizing many of our operations, and with task forces constantly on the alert to institute bold new programs of efficiency, first indications were that certain phases of our mechanical operations would be better served by reclassifying our traffic patterns," he said.

"With this in mind we felt that many of our highly trained and skilled employees would want an opportunity to transfer to other facilities where the proposed discontinued Fulton operations would be maintained.

"The 90-day notice was a 'just in case' decision. Having taken a good hard look at the proposals, we feel that, for the time being, the efficiency of our operations and the morale of our employees would be better served if we rescinded the order until a more definite pattern of traffic can be resolved for our classification purposes," Mr. Zimmerman said.

"The new yard to be constructed at Fulton will be the first major expansion program for Fulton since the mid-twenties," the high-ranking railroad official said.

"We hope to bring these programs into reality in about two years with Fulton a vastly expanded railroad terminal, for certain of our proposed classifications," he added.

Thoughts On The IC Story

We have never believed in the old saying that goes:

"Smile and the world smiles with you! Weep and you weep alone."

Ironically, the very opposite is true, for verily misery does indeed love company. A very wise old gent told us once that in times of distress, the absence of people who don't show up to commiserate with you is more obvious than the presence of those who do.

This philosophy is easily applicable to the last week's order issued and subsequently rescinded by the Illinois Central Railroad to abolish 72 jobs maintained in the inspection and repair departments of its "rolling stock," (a railroad term for its vehicles) at Fulton.

The business community was literally "shook" by the foreseeable loss of more than a half million dollars in payrolls, the prospect of vacant rental property; a flood on the market of homes for sale; a drastic loss of revenue on property, sales, payroll and other taxable avenues.

Indeed it was the weeping in the business community of this possible loss that brought a lot of people together in the dialogue of immediate community action. It is as we said in an editorial last week that a community stagnates "when it merely reacts to problems as they arise." We are too pre-occupied with maintaining what already exists, and almost totally blind to the urgency for innovative programs that would bolster us if other industries in this community revised their operations outward, as the IC almost did last week.

Fulton has always been known as a railroad town. We proudly acknowledge this distinction and feel in eternal debt for the wonderful people of the Illinois Central Railroad who have made us unique in mid-America as a transportation center.

If memory serves us, and it does, the International Banana Festival came into being because of Fulton's location as a distribution center for bananas coming into America from the continents to the south of us.

It is a great company. It has a giant payroll here. Under its vigorous new leadership the industry is getting into a highly competitive position, in its field. And it is getting highly diversified, too!

The story released today by the IC railroad should be a prime challenge for us to do a little smiling together, working together, planning together when there are prospects in the offing, rather than to weep together when the chips are down.

The expansion move by the IC will need governmental and civic participation at its best.

Isn't it just about time we find ourselves a city manager, or some kind of a municipal affairs administrator and an executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, the Friendship Center and the Banana Festival?

You answer the question . . . I already have in my mind.

At this time the News finds it the better part of valor to refrain from speculating on the "story be-

Judge Eli Padgett Resigning From Poverty Program; Funds Needed

Don Lattus, outstanding senior in Agriculture, received a gold cup, presented by Elbert Burcham, president of the Citizens Bank of Hickman.

Judge Eli Padgett, a combat veteran in the War on Poverty, is resigning from his post as chairman of the four-county group organized to conquer despair and joblessness among the area's poor people.

The first and only chairman of the Mississippi River Development Council, comprised of Fulton, Hickman, Carlisle and Ballard Counties told the News, in an exclusive interview on Wednesday, that unless interested persons involved in the program are "willing to work with Washington and Frankfort and agree to policy matters among themselves, the program cannot hope to accomplish its goals to elevate the standards of the underprivileged people in our four counties."

The judge, seeking another term as judge of the Hickman County Fiscal Court, said that he has "worked with all kinds of organizations to develop the resources of Hickman County and the area, but trying to fight Washington's red tape in the War on Poverty seems to be a battle that cannot be won under present conditions."

The MREDC, plagued by dissension over local control of the Community Action Programs and by defiance among a few board members of Washington guidelines over program and leadership, is operating on a 30-day extension of funds from Washington until "things can be worked out," the Judge said.

OEO officials in Washington "defunded," the program as of February 28 of this year. On March 4, Judge Padgett said, a call from Washington was followed up by a telegram extending the program for 30 days with a skeleton staff instructed to collect payments on a number of small loans granted to poor people under the program and which are still outstanding.

The organization's efforts in the War on Poverty erupted into open battle with the resignation of Michael Shapiro on October 1. Shapiro, who surrounded himself with a staff of young enthusiasts for sociological warfare against poverty and race prejudice and that may have triggered the defunding of the organization's finances. Arnett, who served as interim director for a two-month period and later as permanent director, has resigned. Judge Padgett told the News that he has not seen Arnett since his (Arnett's) resignation.

At a meeting of the MREDC on Tuesday night held in Clinton only about twelve members of the more than 35-member board of directors were in attendance. Judge Padgett reported to them the status of the organization's position with Washington.

According to Padgett, Justice Jenkins, regional director of the

Fantastic Story Of Latvian Native Gets Encore Engagement Here

What is it to have an heritage and to be unmindful of it? Liliya Purins Murphy knows. It is TRAGEDY.

That others may avoid this fate and be more mindful of their heritage, The Fulton County Homemakers Clubs have made arrangements for Mrs. Liliya Murphy, a native of Latvia, to talk to the High School students and any adults who would like to attend.

She is scheduled to speak Wednesday, March 26th, at:

South Fulton High Gym—9:10 a. m.

Fulton County High School Gym—10:45 a. m.

Fulton City High School Gym—1:45 p. m.

Mrs. Murphy was guest speaker at the Fulton County Homemakers Annual Day luncheon last fall, and they felt her story was one that every American citizen should hear.

Through their "Issues and Concerns" Chairman, Mrs. Clyde Fields, they made arrangements for these programs.

Mrs. Murphy, a native of Latvia, came to the United States March 27, 1950, with 2 small children and only the belongings which they could carry. She arrived in New York on the ship, "General Greeley," along with 2,000 other refugees.

For 16 years, Mrs. Murphy was hospital pharmacist at Good Samaritan Hospital, Lexington, Kentucky. Her son is an honor graduate of Transylvania College, Lexington, and is now an Orthopedic Surgeon in New York. Her daughter is a pharmacist and a kindergarten teacher in Colonia, New Jersey.

She has made some 150 speeches in central and western Kentucky, southeastern Missouri, southern Illinois, and Florida, before civic and service clubs, church organizations, and many appearances on radio and television. She is a member of the American Pharmaceutical Association, American Society of Hospital Pharmacists, American Institute of History of Pharmacy, Kentucky League of Women Voters, Kentucky Society of Hospital Pharmacists, and a member of the Parents Council of New York Medical Colleges. She also is an honorary life member of the US Air Force Defense Team.

She is married to William S. Murphy, Executive Director of the Greater Paducah Chamber of Commerce, December 25, 1965.

Mrs. Katherine Thompson, Area Extension Agent, the Fulton County Homemakers, and the principals of local schools extend an invitation to the public for this interesting program.

WE'RE SORRY . . . BUT We didn't have room for full pictorial coverage of Monday Night's Banker Farm Appreciation Dinner. Watch for it next week.

Mrs. Murphy dressed in the fashion of her native Latvia is shown here with her husband W. S. Murphy, executive director of the Greater Paducah Chamber of Commerce.

Wildlife Week Reminds Us Developing Economy Could Destroy Native Resources

Mountains, seashores, and towering forests usually come to mind when we talk about natural resources. Conservationists are warning that another resource, our abundant wildlife, could be lost in the path of progress and expansion. These hallmarks of civilization take an ever-increasing toll of natural areas, destroying them as homes, or habitats, for wildlife forever.

Once America was a land of forests, marshes, woodlots, and fields, with clean water and fresh air. Wildlife seemed a part of every landscape. Now the serene countryside is being transformed into a land of sprawling suburbs, giant airports, super highways, and mammoth shopping centers. As these appear, the living space for our wildlife vanishes.

Before it is too late, we must stop and consider what this loss of natural environment will mean. Animals from deer to robins need food and cover, clean waters, and room to roam if they are to survive. Areas destroyed by our civilized progress are finished as far as wildlife habitat is concerned.

Spaces for wildlife cannot be treeless subdivisions; they cannot be factory sites or drained marshlands; they cannot be stream beds for sewage or speeding lands for power boats.

Providing habitats, those vital living areas for wildlife, is a matter of choice and economics. The choice is simply: "Do we value this heritage of natural beauty?" If so, we must decide that the beauty of wild animals in natural settings is worth the expense and effort of developing and protecting habitats.

The presence of wildlife in our fast-moving world means that we have not yet destroyed the delicate balance of nature. The prospect of moon travel may fire our imaginations, but the wild beauty of this world is unbeatable for giving a little peace of mind. To ensure a future for this great natural heritage, the National Wildlife Federation, during Wildlife Week, March 16-22, is urging us all to "Provide Habitat—Places Where Wildlife Live."

Miami Writer Talks Of "Whether Report," In Kentucky ... (Whether the sun shines bright)

One of our subscribers from sunny Florida sent us the following article that appeared recently in a Miami newspaper. We thought you would enjoy this "whether report," (whether Kentucky is the home of the bright shining sun all the time.)

WHEN YOU think of the Old South, you think of Kentucky, although it didn't join the Confederacy. Still, as far as tradition is concerned, it stands right along with Virginia when you think of plantations, mint juleps, magnolias, colonels in white Panama suits and hats and all that jazz. They do say that you feel like breaking out with a Southern accent when the band plays, "My Old Kentucky Home" at the Kentucky Derby each year.

"My Old Kentucky Home" is the theme song of the Old South, rivaled only by "Dixie", which now is in disrepute in certain circles. As far as I know, nobody has yet dared to challenge "My Old Kentucky Home," which you hear sung wherever there are barbershop quartets and kitchen harmony.

But if you want to think of plantations, mint juleps, magnolia and colonels in crumpled white, don't go to Kentucky during the winter. It's about as much Old South as Nome, Alaska.

Mrs. Eunice Cunningham, 1015 NW 128th St., is from Stamping Ground, Ky. (Instant joke: Her old stomping ground was Stamping Ground.) That is a short way from Lexington, which is in the heart of the blue grass country. I've been through that part of Kentucky — in the summer — and it is beautiful, comparable to our own state around Ocala where our thoroughbreds come from.

TO GET ON with the story, Mrs. Cunningham comes to Florida each winter to stay with her two daughters, and says, "I do enjoy this sunshine." She says to understand how things are back in her old stomping ground, you have to know this version of "My Old Kentucky Home." Surely you remember the tune to that. Now use that tune to these words:

Oh, the snows piled high
Round my old Kentucky home;
'Tis winter, the sun dimly shines.

And the north winds blows and my ears and toes are froze,
So I thought I'd hunt a brighter, warmer clime.

The young folks skate
On the streets and on the lakes,
All happy, but cold all the day.

While the older folk moan
With their aches and pains and groans,
Dreaming of the sunny South so far away.

So sweep the snow, my lady,
Oh sweep the snow all day.
But to Miami I will go,
Where the sweetest flowers grow,
And forget the doggone snow so far away.

That kind of grabs you right here doesn't it, huh? Please pass another mug of hot grog.

POET'S CORNER

RED GERANIUMS

Life did not bring me silken gowns,
Nor jewels for my hair,
Nor signs of gabled foreign towns
In distant countries fair,
But I can glimpse, beyond my pane, a green and friendly hill,
And red geraniums aflame upon my window sill.

The brambled cares of everyday,
The tiny humdrum things,
May bind my feet when they would stray,
But still my heart has wings
While red geraniums are bloomed against my window glass,
And low above my green-sweet hill the gypsy wind-clouds pass.

And if my dreamings ne'er come true,
The brightest and the best,
But leave me lone my journey through,
I'll set my heart at rest,
And thank God for home-sweet things, a green and friendly hill,
And red geraniums aflame upon my window sill.

FULTON'S

Library Corner

By Brenda Rowlett

This week let's examine a few new adult fiction books that have been received recently for the Department of Libraries in Frankfort.

THE STILL, SMALL VOICE OF TRUMPETS by Lloyd Biggle, Jr. The punishment for offending King Rovva was simple and swift: "Guards surrounded ... and stripped him bare to the waist ... it happened so quickly ... the flashing sword, the shriek of pain, a doctor working on the blood-sputtering stump of an arm." The time is a point in the infinite future, the place the planet Kurr, and it is the task of Cultural Survey officer Jef Forzon to foment democratic revolution.

"Democracy imposed from without is the severest form of tyranny." This is the primary tenet of Interplanetary Relations Bureau, whose mission is to spread universal self rule. For 400 years team B's underground has been unsuccessful in its attempt to depose the king because of his shrewd understanding of the people's tolerance and his bounteous gifts to the poor. It is Forzon who must change this course of history. Despite treason in his own ranks, a price on his head, and little knowledge of this new planet.

Forzon twists his way through this intricate and exciting plot with all the insight and power of an interplanetary James Bond. His key to the enigma is as simple as it is effective, for he believes that the Kurrian passion for artistic beauty and their love for music can be used to create the need for revolution. Forzon introduces the trumpet to Tor, once a national musician hero, and with this subtle move instigates the revolution which will move Kurr toward self rule and possibly prevent his own untimely death.

TWILIGHT JOURNEY by L. P. Davies. Trips ... In the 20th century man progressed from the horse and buggy to the eight cylinder fast-back; from the Sopwith Camel to the Supersonic Transport; from peyote to LSD. But taking a trip in the 22nd century was faster than supersonic and further-out than psychedelic. Taking a trip in the 22nd century was seduction. After years of intensive research, Dr. Clayton Sloan developed a technique which allowed man's mind to travel the corridors of history, to observe and learn. For this short time, the dream world became more real than reality itself. While the Ministry of Education was allocating great sums of money for research to refine and perfect the new technique, its inventor was having second thoughts.

Sloan was caught up in one of the age-old moralistic dilemmas of scientific progress as he realized how the corrupt use of his discovery could destroy civilization. And then, the Bellingier affair occurred, and the doctor finally faced the full and terrifying potential of his invention. This is the spell-binding tale of Clayton Sloan, a man of tomorrow, who must save Sara Bellingier or die himself. He follows a frightening path that can lead to his own loss of reality and strength for survival.

Nazarene Church Beautiful Setting For Crider-Faulkner Nuptial Event

The First Church of the Nazarene at Fulton was the setting for the recent marriage of Miss Linda Crider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burnis R. Crider of Park Road, Fulton, and James Leonard Faulkner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Faulkner of Harris, Tennessee.

The focal point in the nuptial scene was a swirling arrangement of branched candelabras at the altar, using jade and huckleberry greenery. Brass hurricane lamps were used for pew markers. Each window held a pair of slender white tapers with greenery encircling the candles. Centered at the altar scene was a beautiful fan-shaped bouquet of white gladioli and pompon mums.

Reverend William Crockett of Nashville, Tennessee, officiated at the double ring ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented at the organ by Mrs. L. C. Logan. Her selections included "Because," "D'Hardelet," "Ave Marie," Schubert, "Our Wedding Prayer," Webb. For the processional and recessional the traditional bridal chorus from Wagner's Lohengrin and Mendelssohn's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" were used. Mr. James H. Warren, vocalist, presented "Sweetest Story Ever Told," Stulso and "O Perfect Love," Barnby during the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gown in an exquisite floor-length creation of ivory peau de soie, designed with an empire bodice, featuring a stand-up collar of lace and enhanced with a re-embroidered Alencon lace motif traced with seed pearls in the center front. Long, tapered sleeves ended in lace trim and the lace motifs were repeated on the A-line skirt and the detachable full-length chapel train, which fell from the shoulders. Her fingertip veil of tiered, misty illusion was attached to a cluster of petals and lace leaves traced in seed pearls. She carried an arrangement of a white orchid surrounded by frills and streamers on a white Bible.

Mrs. Michael Crider of Mayfield, Kentucky, sister-in-law of the bride, served as matron of honor and Miss Marianne Crider, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Miss Nancy Gregory, Mrs. Tommy Toon and Miss Susan Crider of Mayfield, a cousin of the bride. They wore identical floor-length gowns of aqua blue velvet, fashioned with high necklines and puffed sleeves, combined with matching peau de soie A-line skirts. They wore matching head pieces with aqua veiling attached to velvet bows and carried nosegay arrangements of single white mums nestled in aqua tulle with satin streamers.

Little Nanette McConnell, niece of the groom, was the flower girl and wore a floor-length white peau de soie frock, trimmed in pearl lace, and a tiny white seed pearl crown. She carried a white basket trimmed with white bows and filled with flower petals. Ty McConnell, nephew of the groom, served as ring bearer. He carried a satin heart-shaped pillow, on which a wedding ring was attached.

Mr. Leon Faulkner served his brother as best man, and ushers were Michael Crider, brother of the bride, James Counce, Tommy Toon and Tony Taylor.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Crider wore a lovely lemon yellow Kay Gibson knit, with matching lace trim on the long, tapered sleeves. The matching veil hat complemented the brown accessories and a moss-green orchid corsage.

Mrs. Oscar Faulkner, mother of the groom, wore a becoming cocoa-brown textured knit dress, accented with small self-fabric leaf scallops circling the neckline and her fishnet veil hat was of matching colors. She used beige accessories and wore a bronze orchid corsage.

The bride's parents were hosts to the reception in their home on Park Road following the ceremony. The reception table, draped with an ivory lace cloth, held the three-tiered wedding cake crusted with tiny aqua flowers and topped with a miniature bridal couple. White satin roses surrounded two branched candelabras. Mrs. C. F. Pennington, Miss Roma Foster, Mrs. Michael Butts, Miss Carolyn Allen and Mrs. Ernest Willey served the cake and punch, which was poured from a lovely antique silver ladle. Miss Paula Crider of Mayfield, Kentucky, presided at the register.

When the couple left on a short honeymoon, the bride was wearing a green plaid cape suit, with the white orchid from her wedding bouquet at her shoulder.

The couple will live at 500 Forestdale, South Fulton. The groom will continue teaching at South Fulton Junior High and the bride will attend the University of Tennessee at Martin.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding and reception were: Mrs. Charles Ray Brown and Kimberly Brown of Memphis; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crider, Paula and Joel, Mrs. Victor Malone and Mrs. Ernest Crider of Mayfield; Everett Williams of Brownsville, Tennessee.

"All you hear about is war.
Where is God?"

We've hardly known a time when there wasn't war, or rumor of war.

And with the difficult ideological problems of today's world, the issue of war versus peace is more complicated than ever.

One thing is certain. God is impartial in his caring for peace.

But how do you search for peace—in yourself, and in the world?

You may find some surprising approaches developing in your church or synagogue.

And with your help, your place of worship can, after all, become an important voice in establishing our country's moral position in matters that profoundly affect every one of us.

You're only one person, it's true. But you don't have to be alone in your beliefs.

And it's beliefs like yours that can change the world.

Drowning Is Ruled Suicide

The body of Allen Jones, a 65-year-old resident of the LaCade Hotel in Hickman, was found in the Mississippi River near the Hickman Ferry landing.

Operators of the ferry discovered the body near the bank of the river soon after reporting to work at 7 a. m.

Mr. Jones' car was found near the landing, and all his personal belongings were in the car.

Coroner Don Chaney ruled at an inquest this afternoon the drowning was suicide.

JUDGE PADGETT—

Office of Economic Opportunity in Washington promised to send in a group of representatives next week to evaluate the work of the local program and to make recommendations to hire a new director "that would be acceptable to Washington and to the local board."

The News was reliably informed last week that the Washington representatives were due last week. Judge Padgett said on Wednesday that Jenkins reported "the Washington office was very busy at this time."

Meanwhile Mike Lappin, who was summarily dismissed by the board at a meeting last November continues to work on a volunteer basis with the organization. Lappin, a close friend and associate of former director Shapiro was present at the meeting Tuesday and discussed the program of child care centers with the board. Lappin, apparently in close touch with the regional and Washington offices of OEO, contends that he is due two months salary from the local organization since he was

Page 8 Fulton County News, Thursday, March 20, 1969

"dismissed without cause."

Sharp exchanges with Lappin and the board have subsided in recent weeks. However, it is generally believed that some effort is being made among some of the present board members and area religious and civic leaders to form an entirely new board, compatible with OEO guidelines, with the purpose of reorganizing the whole structure of the OEO program in the area.

Judge Padgett, was among the first county officials to spade-work the organization of the War on Poverty in the area. He has often been a forceful mediator between the wishes of the board members and the demands of the regional OEO office.

"My resignation does not mean that I am throwing up my hands in my hopes to help poor people," Judge Padgett said.

"As a county judge I can see the things that need to be done to help them," he said, "and I do it on-the-spot without having to wait weeks and months for folks in Washington to send memos, experts and guidelines down to see how it can be done."

Meanwhile Judge Padgett said that he is ordering an immediate audit of the finances of the four-county group. Thousands of dollars have been expended for personnel and consultants to keep the program in action according to the structure of the OEO.

The four-county group is not alone in its frustrations to follow the pattern of operations set forth by the Office of Economic Opportunity.

President Nixon has ordered a thorough investigation of the bureau's operation while countless groups such as the Mississippi River Council are falling by the way-side in despair of the guidelines demanded of state and local agencies administering the poverty program.

Let's Build Friendship Center

To The Voters Of Fulton County

First, I would like to state to the people of this county that I am a lifelong citizen of Fulton County and feel that anyone seeking the office of Sheriff should be a person of at least some experience in dealing with this office.

I served 3 years in World War II, most of the time in overseas duty, and was discharged in 1945 with an honorable discharge. Since then, I have been a very active member in the American Legion and I have also been active in, and supported, all civic organization work.

I am 46 years of age, have been married but my wife is now deceased. After my discharge from the armed service, I came back to Hickman and put up a small garage and operated that garage until 1947 at which time, I was employed by the City of Hickman Police Dept. and for the past 18 years have served as Chief of Police which gives me long experience in dealing with law enforcement and tax business and cooperation with FBI and secret service agencies. With this experience, along with a wide acquaintance among the citizens, I feel that I am qualified to fill every duty that is attached to the sheriff's office.

I do not know whether I will meet with all of the people and voters in this county before election but I am going to endeavor to see as many as I possibly can, and if I fail to contact you, I hope you will take this message as a personal visit and use your vote and influence to elect me your Fulton County Sheriff. If elected, I promise to serve without fear of criticism, performing all the duties pertaining to this office, but at the same time being ready to listen to the citizens on any constructive suggestion. And I will do my best to serve fairly and impartially all of the people.

Sincerely your friend,

Marion (Shonk) Graves

Union City Merchants Favor New Municipal Building Site

Union City merchants, meeting Thursday night with members of the City Council, placed their unanimous stamp of approval on an alternate site for the proposed new municipal building which would center it in Washington Avenue in the city parking lot, facing the courthouse.

At the same time the council is expected to okay the use of a portion of the Turner Field area for the location of a new central fire station.

The fire station is a must, and, whether or not the two structures can be built with the money available, about $500,000 is the big question now.

It had first been proposed that the fire station be included in the municipal building, but with the change of sites it was not felt advisable.

The new plan requires the use of only 22 feet of Kiwanis Park and, by using Washington Avenue, only 52 parking spaces will be lost.

The new facility also requires the purchase and demolition of the Park Cafe and the use of the land it now occupies.

The new location will create a complex which includes the municipal building on the east, the courthouse on the west and the post office in the center, all located on Washington Avenue. The front entrance of the building will face down Washington Avenue and will be set back 35 feet off Depot Street. "We are not actually closing Washington Avenue but will relocate it if the plan goes through," City Manager David Frizzell said this morning. According to Mr. Frizzell, on the south side of the building there will be a one-way street to the east and on the north side of the building there will be a street to the west.

Also on the south will be a drive-in window for night payments.
